

New Course Scheduled At U Of I

Many views will be brought to bear on the problems of the black man in a new course to be taught by a rotating faculty at the University of Idaho this semester, Dr. Siegfried B. Rolland, professor of social sciences, said today.

The course, titled "Social Science 103 — Black Identity: Alienation and Affirmation," is "being introduced as an experiment in response to needs expressed by students.

"We hope to learn more about what is needed in the black studies area with this first semester of experimentation, and then build on this foundation."

Directing the cooperating faculty will be Asst. Professor Jack L. Davis of English. Visiting faculty members will come from Washington State University. The faculty will include black instructors from both institutions.

Idaho faculty members participating in the teaching will include Professors Rolland and Davis; Professor Robert E. Hosack, head of political science; Professor Harry H. Caldwell, chairman of geography; Asst. Professor Willard Barnes of history; Assistant Professor Kenneth Johnson, sociology, and Corlann G. Bush, English instructor.
