

New Commander Arrives For McCall Camp

Lieutenant Charles M. Carman, former company commander of the local CCC camp was replaced last week by Porter L. Martin. Mr. Martin was transferred here from the Ontaio camp. He has served in the CCC for the last several years as educational advisor until he was recently appointed as company commander. Lieutenant Carman contemplates early duty with the army. He is now at his home in Nampa.

Another change made at the local camp was that of Vincent L. Sullivan, recently in command of the CCC camp at Garden Valley, who has been transferred to duty with this camp as subaltern. The men of the Garden Valley camp have also been transferred to this camp. Seven men were left at that camp to train in the shipwright school there but they have also been transferred to McCall.

The McCall camp now has two National Defense Schools in operation. They are full time schools training men as shipwright helpers and mechanics and a third school in carpentry is expected to start soon. The carpentry and shipwright schools will be held in the nursery building of the Idaho Forest; the mechanics school is held in the Idaho Forest shop.
