
Secretary of War Dern Brings "New Deal" to Idaho

Secretary of War, George H. Dern, speaking for the state chamber of commerce, Saturday brought the "new deal" to Idahoans.

In defining the "new deal" the secretary said, "that it proposes to run the country for the benefit of the people instead of for the malefactor of great wealth. It means putting people back to work and giving them decent wages and hours of work, thereby bringing back the consumers purchasing power, which will always be the basis of our prosperity. It means justice to the farmer by easing his burden of debt and raising the price of his products. It is an intelligent, scientific endeavor to bring about national recovery".
