CLASS SONG.

Words by Florence Corbett.

Music by I. J. Cogswell

Now the veil of time is closing
Round our happy Senior year;
And the hour has come for leaving
School and friends to us so dear.
'Tis with many a sigh of sadness,
And with many a vain regret
That we speak the word of parting,
And we'd fain delay it yet.

CHORUS: Teachers dear, kind friends and schoolmates,
Happy scenes we've loved so well,
Our hearts are filled with deepest sadness
As we bid you all "farewell!"

Happy school days almost over,
Hours now flitting by so fast
Shall be treasured, the most precious,
Of the mem'ries of the past.
Though we leave thee, Alma Mater,
Far in other fields to roam,
We will ne'er forget the moments
Spent within our College home.

Duty calls us on to action,
We must hasten to the strife;
With Hope's banner floating o'er us
We shall make the most of life.
And may He who watches o'er us,
Still protect and guide us well,
So to teachers, friends and schoolmates
One and all a last "farewell!"
