Dear Don:

Now that I've settled down after returning from Jeff's field school, I'd like to thank you for participating. The school would have been less rewarding if you hadn't come. Your example and humility served as an inspiration for all of us.

Mickey and I traveled to Glass Butte on the way home. Although we could only quarry for several hours, I was fortunate to ship 670 pounds of stone back to San Diego. We weren't sure if we'd make it back to Burns for awhile - a flake split the side wall of the fire and on the way out the leaf springs of Mickey's little truck were bowed downward.

Once I get a hold of some fine-grained felsite, I'd like to start replicating San Diego's bifaces and crescents.

A hello to Evelyn and may both of you enjoy good health.

Thanks again,

Pat Welch
