Dear Mr. Crabtree:

I have just received word from the University that they will be able to support the cost of transportation for you and your wife, and your expenses while in Dallas, for you to present a demonstration talk at the annual meeting of the Texas Archaeological Society here in Dallas November 6.

It is my hope that you will be able, not only to accept the invitation, but that you will be able to arrive either late Thursday (November 4) or early Friday (November 5) and spend most of Friday looking over our African collections and discussing techniques of manufacture with our staff. Then, on Saturday, most of the day would be devoted to papers presented by members of the Society with a dinner scheduled for the evening. We thought that your presentation and demonstration would make a unique and attractive after dinner affair. If past experience is any guide, we will have between 100 and 150 people in attendance.

Please advise me as soon as possible if you are still able to accept our invitation. I would also appreciate receiving a brief outline of your background with particular emphasis on how you got interested in stone flaking, and if you have a photograph or two of yourself (at work), this also would be appreciated. I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Fred Wendorf
