Hi Don,

Lot's going on keeping me busy these days. I just returned to Dallas after an extended stay in Tucson. Worked with a sample of Art Jelinek's TABUN materials, Looks to me like they weren't flaking in the cave or else they were selecting out a specific flake type and carrying it off. Nothing conclusive yet.

Trying to finish up my article for Wilmsens book, keeping in practice flintknapping I. Dennis Stanford is having me make a series of Cody knives to be used in some experimental studies and is supplying me with casts of paleo-indian things that are at the Smithsonian. I'm amazed at the extreme variation in size and flaking on the knives. The Lehner excavation is a certainty now and will be from May 15[±] to July 1^{rst} ±. What am I supposed to remember about the fieldschool next summer? I'd like to visit but don't know how to swing it. Hope to get up to Wyoming in August or Sept.

ce.2.2.35

Any possibility of getting together then?

From what I have heard Joel was turned down on his functional studies grant. Too bad cause we really need something conclusive done at least to establish a basic research approach.

May become involved in the making of an educational film about Early Man in America by the Shell Oil Co. Don't know what it means yet. Have a meeting with some people about it on the 26th Feb.

Hope all is well with you and Evelyn. Folks send their regards,

Bruce
