Dear Mr. Crabtree:

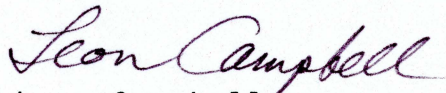

Here are some copies of the pictures I took of you working flint during the recent meeting of the Wyoming Archaeological Society. Thanks for your cooperation, and thank you for the souvenir point.

I have sent black-and-white copies of some of the pictures to a Ms. Jacqueline Nichols with the Flintknappers' Exchange in Albuquerque, NM. The day I was taking the pictures, she expressed interest in using some of them.

I am amazed at the way you and the other flintknappers knocked out point after point with such dexterity. Good show! Your talk about the flint work in Belize was interesting. About five years ago, I worked for a seismograph company, and came within a touch of being sent to Belize to work. When the crew returned, they didn't tell me about anything like the fancy rock work. Had I realized what might have been around, I would have pushed like crazy to get sent there!

Again, thanks for tealking to me and letting me photograph you.

Sincerely,

Leon Campbell
