Dear Mr. Crabtree:

Since your advice in the past has been so helpful to us, I hope that you will assist us once again in the evaluation of applications. A brief critical review of the enclosed proposal will be of great value to us in determining its final disposition. To be most useful, it should include not only an assessment of its scientific merit, but also remarks on its feasibility, the competence and potential of those carrying out the work, and the appropriateness of the budget for direct costs. (Indirect costs and cost sharing will be adjusted if necessary to conform to general Foundation policies.)

As you know, the fact that you have reviewed this proposal will be held confidential. I may, however, summarize or paraphrase certain suggestions and criticisms and transmit them anonymously to the applicant if I believe they would be helpful and if you do not object.

Along with the proposal I enclose rating sheets (one copy to be returned and one for your files) and a postage-paid return envelope. Please mail the rating sheet to me by the date indicated, if possible.

The proposal itself need not be returned.

Again, let me express our appreciation of your help.

Sincerely yours,

John B. Cornell
Program Director for Anthropology
