Dear Don,

I hate to trouble you at this time but a former student of ours - Dave Proctor - has applied to take part in your summer field course. He has done two laboratory courses here on two occasions and, since he is now teaching some of this material, he would benefit greatly by being able to study under you. He is a very likeable person - not brilliant but dedicated to archaeology and he has had considerable field experience in California. He would certainly benefit from any help you can give him.

Dick Gould was here on Monday on his way back from a quick visit to Hawaii and told us that Evelyn is very ill. I cannot tell you how much we feel for you both. Please give her our love and remembrances. We often think of you both and your visit here.

Yours ever,

J. Desmond Clark.
Professor of Anthropology.
