Dear Errett:

Many thanks for your most informative resume of next years activities. I am delighted with your interests and approaches. The results should be a real contribution to the profession. The attendants, too, will be rewarded by an experience which is unique in this modern world. You should not have any trouble in filling your quota. We have a man in Idaho who takes out survival groups and I understand that each year he has a waiting list. His name is Olson and he has written a book on his methods. I wish I could give you more information about him but you may know of him or have his book.

I would suggest your sending out your brochures for the bulletin boards of the departments of archaeology to many Universities. Also, you should send a copy of this information to the Editor of the Lithic News Letter - Ruthann Knudson, Dept. of Anthropology, Pullman, Washington - Washington State University. I am sure she would be glad to print it.

I am sorry about the Muto-Sollberger affair. It never should have happened and had Guy consulted me, the incident would have been prevented. Sollberger has much to contribute in this field and needs help in editing and encouragement in continuing his experiments. He is an excellent craftsman and any disagreements we may have are minor. We have talked on the phone and written and remain good friends. I have never heard from Muto nor do I know the purpose of his actions. My apologies to those involved in this tempest in a teapot.

I wish you much success in the coming project and will look forward to your discoveries.

Sincerely yours,

Don E. Crabtree
