Dear Mr. Fletcher:

Please excuse the tardy reply to your recent letters. I had to attend the S.A.A. meetings in Oklahoma City and just returned from there when I had to go to Washington State University to do a little lecturing and demonstration for the graduate students there. So I have just not been at home. Certainly, your requests never offend me and I just hope that I can help in some way to encourage your interest in lithic tool manufacture.

Under separate cover I am sending you a package of flakes and one percussion biface (ovate knife) and a notched knife and a pressure flaked knife-like point. Was not just sure what kind of a knife you had in mind so did the best I could. The material is obsidian from Glass Butte Oregon.

It was not necessary to send the $5.00 but will keep it for postage. When you run out of material drop me a note and will send you more flakes - but no more money please.

As soon as my publication on pressure flaking is published in American Antiquity, will send you a copy.

Good flaking!

Yours very truly,

Don E. Crabtree
