Dear Dr. Gould,

Glad I had a chance to meet and talk with you at the SAA meetings in San Francisco. I hope your field season in Australia was successful.

You suggested that I write to remind you of the problem we discussed in San Francisco. I needed an estimate of the quantity of stone that would be used by an Aborigine during an average year, with the total broken down, if possible, by task or type of tool. This would include both stone actually used and also waste material. Any additional bits of information you could add about stone procurement and use would be greatly appreciated.

Hope you will be at either the AAA or SAA meetings this year, as I'd be interested to hear the results of your work in Australia, and also how your axe quarry studies are coming. Thanks for your help.

Sincerely,

Barbara Luedtke
