

December 14/79

Dear Don,

Betsy and I hope you are keeping well these days. We have been in Hawaii so long now we have almost forgotten what those mainland winters are like (although England did remind us!).

The book I wrote on ethnoarchaeology while we were in England last year is due out from Cambridge University Press in January, and Betsy continues to put out the Census Newsletter at the East-West Center.

I decided to get back into flying and completed my private pilots license last summer. Now I fly whenever I can, and I am getting into aerobatics. I really enjoy it, but sometimes my stomach doesn't!

Paul Cleghon is going to teach the lithics course here next semester, and I will assist wherever I can. He does very good work, and I am eager to see him get started on his thesis.

Merry Xmas and Happy New Year...
Cheers, Dick + Betsy
