Dear Don:

How are you these days? I hope you're pretty good. I am enclosing two letters which were received here that need your attention. Sometimes we get letters that just want publications, so I am able to answer them without bothering you. These aren't like that, though.

If you want to send your answers here, I can type the letters for you and send them on. (I have xeroxed copies.) Whatever you want to do is fine.

Mae retired last June, and now she and her husband go gallivanting all over the country square dancing. So I am doing her job, although sometimes not too well. Do you ever do any more writing?

Sincerely

Lucille Harten

I guess you know Jean Swanson remarried--a fellow named Sam Hanson, who is Hulda Bell's brother.
