To
Prof. Crabtree, Idaho State University I recently heard your very interesting talk on T.V. relative to ancient tools. Above is a drawing of a stone arrow or tool which I found along the foundation of my home. Probably turned up when the house was built. Before the white settlers came to America, the Seni-Senape Indians lived in this area of N.J.

Could you tell me whether this stone is a genuine relic + if so its approx. mate age?

In a Text entitled "Early Man" (Life Magazine Publishers) an almost exact duplicate of this stone (without the notches shown on my stone) dates to the Sangouan culture approx 38,750 B.C. to 41,000 B.C.

I appreciate any information you can give me, pertinent to the above + I thank you for whatever interest you may find in the matter,

Very truly yours,
(Miss) Ella Jargstaff
