

I thought that maybe you might have run into this phenomenon before and could explain it, or perhaps your work with heat treatment may have given you some clue to what was going on at the time these things were used. I would appreciate any comments you might have along these lines.

Again let me apologize for the poor quality of the pictures. Also I would like to have them back sometime since I no longer have access to the material.

I enjoyed the brief talk we had in Santa Fe, and am looking forward to more such instructive sessions in the future.

Sincerely yours,
