Dear Jim and Jane:

Long before this I have intended to write and thank you for the wonderful hospitality you and your university extended to us when we were in Bloomington. It was such a pleasure meeting you and your staff and students and really one of the nicest trips we have ever had. I do hope you will come to Idaho sometime and let us try to repay you in some small way.

Thank you so much for the lovely lunch which was certainly a blessing to me, as I was having quite a time finding something I could eat with my sore teeth. I now have had them remade and am able to do justice to a steak.

The flint works beautifully and please give my thanks to Jim and Marge for taking us to get it. Imagine that Jim has left for Gana by now, so have missed my chance to thank him personally. Promised to send you student Heilman some obsidian. Evelyn jotted down his name and address and then promptly misplaced or lost it. Would you please send me his name and address and I will get his package off promptly.

Have been busy working at ISU doing some more high speed photography on flintknapping techniques. Am leaving on June 25th to visit the Grasshopper site in Arizona and then to the Anazasi site in New Mexico. It will be a rush trip for I have to be back here by the 10th of July, as Norman Tindale is coming to visit me. He is the man from Australia who has seen so much stoneworking first-hand by the natives in the bush there.

Thank you again for everything and do let me know what I can do to repay your kindness in some small way.

Yours sincerely,

Don E. Crabtree

P.S. Thank you for sending the flint. Know it was an inconvenience to have it in your garage for those few days.
