Dear Don,

I hope you haven't been too bothered writing letters for me; sometimes I don't know that my references have even been contacted until much later.

Here is another one, however, although this is as close as I have come to getting a job so far. A one-year position is not the best situation, but the work load and salary sound better than average.

I hate to impose upon you anyway, and I certainly apologize for the rush in this case. But the enclosed copy of the letter from Dr. Garland should explain the haste.

I noticed both you and Joel Gunn are presenting papers in the same symposium at Miami. He was at Kansas, and a good friend. He mentioned applying to the Flintworking School and a possible letter from me about him, but I haven't heard anything more. I would be glad to write a recommendation if needed. Anyway, I am glad you two will get together. I am afraid Susanna and I will only go to Miami if I have not gotten a job by the time of the meetings.

Thanks for all your patience and assistance during one of the most trying periods of my life so far. Our best to Evelyn.

As ever,

Paul
