Dear Bill:

Evelyn and I were so happy to see you in Dallas and learn of your activities over the past year. It has been such a long time since we attended the S.A.A. meetings that it was like a home-coming. However, visits were too brief with the many friends we met there.

Thank you for your invitation to Grasshopper. I make a mental picture of your fine facilities, the good food and the excavations and recall the happy times we have had there. I am sorry, but for this year I won't be able to come to the site due to previous commitments. Also, at present, I am involved in constructing an addition to an existing building I rent to the local agency of the Forest Service and must be on hand to see it through to completion and then meet with the G.S.A. people from Washington for approval.

Just received a card from Marie Wormington from China where she has been with the delegation of scientists visiting archaeological sites. She says it has been a rewarding experience. I hope she will publish her observations and impressions of that remarkable country.

Bill, again thanks for the invitation but for now will have to take a rain check.

Your friends,

Don and Evelyn
