Dear Dr. Crabtree,

I met you at the Schaertl's party in Boise the night before the 1978 meeting of the Idaho Archaeological Society. I was the person from Florida working for the Bureau of Land Management, who said I would send you some material dealing with early sites in Florida.

Well, after much procrastination (on my part as well as others), I have finally gotten around to sending you the enclosed two publications. As you can see, one is a recent reprint from Science. The other is a special publication of the Florida Anthropological Society. The people who have done the work on Warm Mineral Springs say they are almost ready to put out a comprehensive, final publication. So far, nothing has materialized. Until they get all of their analyses completed, the FAS publication is the most current information on Warm Mineral Springs. Publications dealing with Little Salt Springs are also supposed to be forthcoming.

By the way, congratulations on your honorary doctorate. Please forgive me for taking so long to send the enclosed publications to you. I hope you find them interesting.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey M. Mitchem
