Dear Dr. Crabtree:

We are pleased that you are writing an essay for Daniel Ingersoll's book on EXPERIMENTAL ARCHAEOLOGY. Your contribution was an attractive feature of the plan remarked on by our advisors when we brought up the project for consideration.

Other archaeologists to whom we have mentioned the project seem eager to see the book and we want to publish as soon as we can. We hope your essay is nearly ready and we look forward to seeing it when Dr. Ingersoll sends us the complete manuscript. He has told us you have only to make some final revisions and send him the illustrations.

Cordially yours,
