

POTLATCH FORESTS, INC.

GROWERS AND MANUFACTURERS OF FOREST PRODUCTS

GENERAL OFFICES: LEWISTON, IDAHO

Greetings to our Forest Visitors:

You are welcome to enter our Idaho timberlands for hunting, fishing, berry-picking, camping, hiking, skiing—with certain exceptions. Active logging areas may be closed for public safety. Some areas may be closed by State law during extreme fire danger. Shooting of firearms is prohibited in or near townships, picnic and campground, logging operations, and some areas under grazing lease.

We ask your cooperation in observing these few restrictions for your own safety and that of our forest employees. Also, please be careful with smoking and fires, even in the fall of the year when conditions may not seem critical to you. Never leave a camp or warming fire unattended.

We understand some people are not aware that P. F. I.'s policy has always been to permit free use of its timberlands by the public for recreation. Consequently, as a public service we have, for several years, published free maps covering most of our Idaho operating area.

These maps show the few gates known to exist on P. F. I. roads at the time of map publication. You may find some gates not shown or on lands of other owners. Please see the Clearwater map for explanation.

While P. F. I. owns and manages for multiple use a little over 300,000 acres of land in the area covered by the two maps, this is only about 20% of the total area. The balance is owned by the state and federal governments and by other private companies and individuals.

Although not included in this year's hunting and fishing packet, several brochures of particular interest to sportsmen and forest land recreationists are available on request from P. F. I. Write to Public Relations Dept., Potlatch Forests, Inc., Lewiston, Idaho.

If you find these maps and information interesting and useful, we would appreciate hearing from you. Also, we would be pleased to receive any suggestions or questions you may have.

Respectfully yours,
POTLATCH FORESTS, INC.
