Dedication

Recognizing the zeal and loyalty with which he has served our Alma Mater, both in the capacity of Dean of the College of Agriculture and as Acting President of the University, we lovingly dedicate this volume to

W. L. Carlyle

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS '15

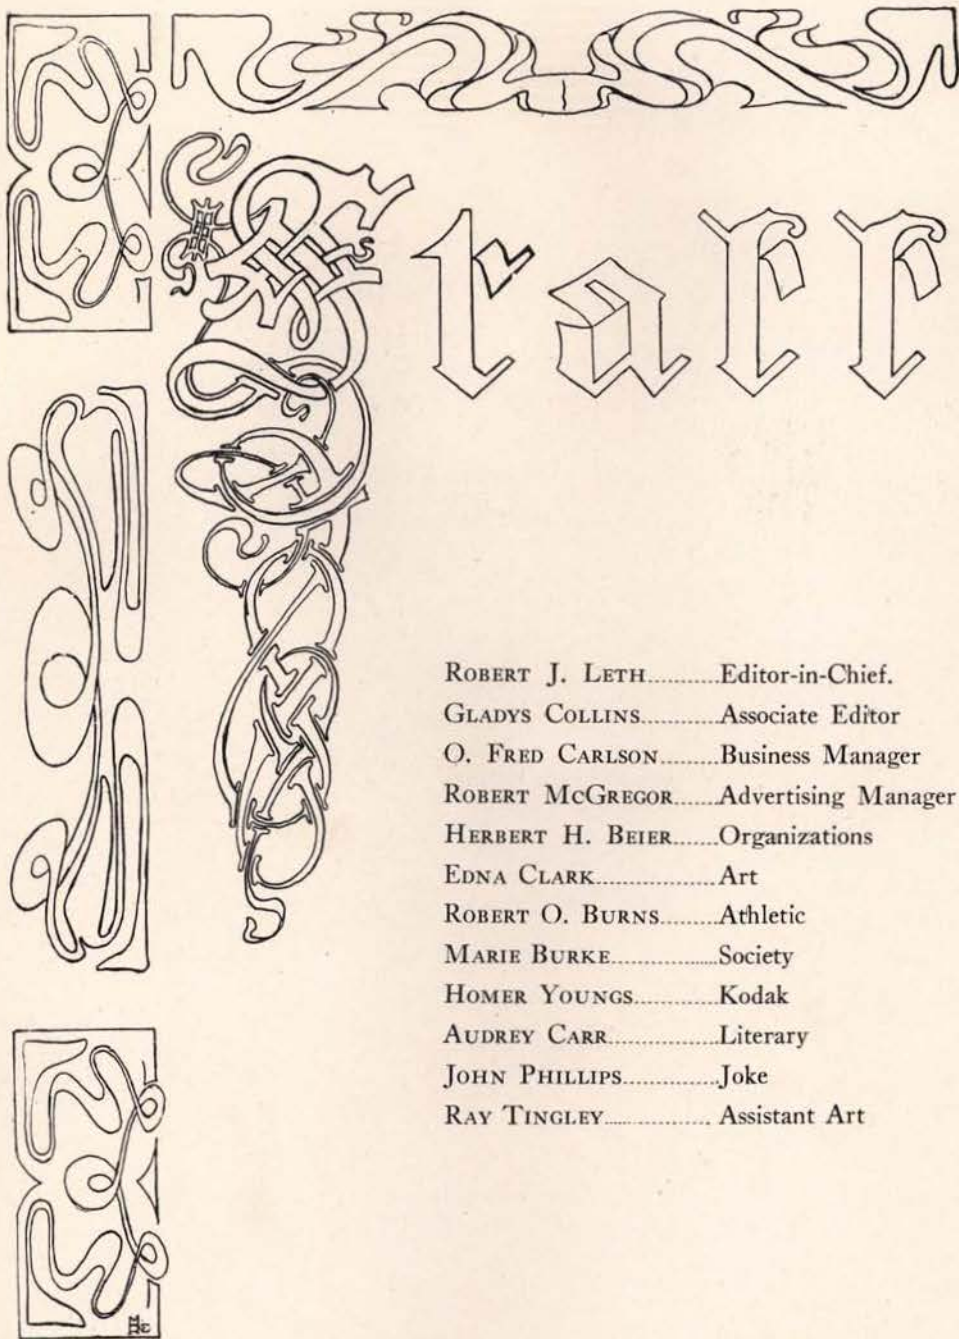

Greetings

AS the representatives of the Junior Class we have attempted to depict the activities of the past year in a true and interesting manner. It has constantly been our aim to make this book as interesting and as representative as possible without exceeding the limits of our resources. Kind reader, if you judge that we have fulfilled our mission you will always find us willing auditors. If adverse your criticism must be, take our advice and "forget it."

We wish at this time to express our most sincere thanks to the following people, who, while in no way connected with the annual staff, have very materially aided in the preparation of the book: Florence Stevenson '15, Vestal Hockett Ex. '13, Lyle Rowell Ex. '15, Agnes Bailey '16, Verne Taylor '14, Harold S. Ayers '17, Anne Wilmot '16, Vernon Fawcett '14, Ralph Green '17, Rollo Carter '16, Bert Smith '14, O. Montandon '17, S. Condi Ex. '17. There are many others who have helped us in various ways to whom we are truly grateful, but lack of space restrains us from including their names.

DR. MELVIN A. BRANNON
PRESIDENT OF THE UNIVERSITY

The Old and the New

WITH the inauguration of Dr. Melvin A. Brannon as President of the University on April 1st, 1914, we entered upon a new era in the history of the institution. We confidently predict that this marks the beginning of a period of growth much greater in magnitude and duration than any similar period of years in the history of the University. We are not basing this prediction on disjointed premises, nor on the sand of the high hopefulness of youth; but on facts which can point only in that direction.

For fourteen months we fluttered about with a temporary head in the person of our Dean of the College of Agriculture, Mr. W. L. Carlyle. During that period not only did we sow and reap as usual but we prospered to a wonderful degree. The number of students increased, our appropriation was enhanced, our faculty was strengthened by the introduction of new blood, and we successfully withstood an attempt to rend us asunder at this critical period of our growth.

With a record of this kind before us far be it from us to disparage the work of Mr. Carlyle—we can only praise. Burdened by the cares of two offices, each requiring more ability than that possessed by the ordinary man, we cannot help but wonder how it was all accomplished. We cannot help but feel the kindling of a new love and respect for the man who made it possible. The realization, therefore, that he—loyal as always—will remain with us is an unbounded pleasure. Is it strange, then, that we feel optimistic about the future when we fully comprehend what the leadership of two men like Mr. Brannon and Mr. Carlyle will mean to the University?

Melvin A. Brannon was born near Lowell, Indiana, September 11th, 1865. Like many other men of note he spent the early years of his life on a farm. It was here he acquired that forcefulness and independence combined with a sympathetic heart with which we now find him so richly endowed.

At twenty-four he graduated from Wabash College taking his master's degree the following year at the same institution. The following four years (1890-94) were spent as teacher of sciences in the Fort Wayne (Ind.) High School. Later he worked with the Harvard and Yale Universities in the world famous Marine Research Laboratory at Wood's Hole, Mass. This laboratory, it might be said in passing, is second only to a similar laboratory at Naples, Italy.

In the course of time Mr. Brannon was elected Dean of the College of Medicine at the University of North Dakota, in which capacity he served for three years. At this time he was promoted to the office of Dean of the College of Arts, which position he held until elected president of the University of Idaho in 1914. Two years previous to this date (1912) the University of Chicago conferred the degree of Doctor of Philosophy upon him in recognition of research work in regard to plant tissue submerged by the Salton Sea.

In research work Dr. Brannon has been very prominent. In addition to the Marine Laboratory and Salton Sea Investigations he is a member of the Carnegie Research Staff in the study of the action of water on vegetable tissue. He has studied the relation of lower plants to the separation of the salts in solution in lake waters. He has conducted a special line of studies with regard to the physical and chemical changes in the storage of vegetables and fruits. While at North Dakota he, also, had charge of experiments in acclimatizing fish to the saline and fresh water lakes of that state.

Dr. Brannon first visited our University in February, 1914. He was at that time considering accepting the presidency and came out in order to look over the conditions here before making his final decision. He first set foot on Idaho soil in his official capacity at Boise on April 2nd, arriving in Moscow three days later, and taking up his work here on the morning of the 6th of April, 1914.

With the period of uncertainty over, and with a strong man at the helm, our Alma Mater should now advance rapidly. President Brannon has assumed his work with a spirit that spells success, and a spirit that will make this a larger and a better Idaho. In behalf of the Junior Class, and the students as a whole, we want to assure our new Prexie at this time of our continued loyalty and support both before and after graduation.

MRS. W. L. CARLYLE
CLASS PATRONESS

Class of 1915

THE fall of 1911 found the present members of the Junior Class applying for admission to the University of Idaho as Freshmen. Registration over we were not long in finding what to do next. In less than a month our numerals were all over the town and our 15 on the standpipe remained there for a year and a half—a record we believe. During the year we played a 6 to 6 football game with the Sophomores, although greatly outweighed per man. The seventeenth of March is a date not found in the calendar of the Class of 1915.

During our Sophomore year we presented the "Magistrate" as a financial aid to the annual; and again this year we will present "Trelawney of the Wells" as a further help to this book.

The Class of 1915 has been represented in all student activities such as athletics, debate, journalism, etc. This year we have the Track Captain and the Argonaut Editor—honors seldom falling to the lot of Juniors.

GEORGE D. AYERS, B. A., LL. B.
DEAN OF THE LAW SCHOOL

Idaho College of Law

THE College of Law of the University of Idaho was established by the Board of Regents, at its April meeting in 1909, and school was opened and work given in the fall of the same year. The Law School is in the fifth year of its existence and it graduates its third class this year.

The purpose, for which the Law School was founded, was to properly instruct the ambitious youth of the State in the provisions, science of interpretation, and application of the laws of the State of Idaho; so that the future lawyers of the state will be prepared to enact, construe, and apply the laws of the state, as they necessarily must. That the School has fulfilled the expectations of the Board of Regents by maintaining a high standard of work is proven by the fact that the graduates of the school have been exceedingly successful in passing the Bar Examination and in the practice of the Law.

The students of the Law School have organized and maintained an association called the "Bench and Bar Association" which has for its object the bringing of the Law students together in a social way and to conduct the affairs of the students. The members of the Senior class organized a Law Club, which they named in honor of the Dean, George D. Ayers, "The Ayers Law Club," which club has for its purpose the developing of the members' ability in pleading, searching for authorities, argumentation, and practical application of the Law.

The members of the faculty who aid so materially in the success of the School are: Dean George D. Ayers, B. A. LL.B., Harvard; Lyman P. Wilson, J. D., Chicago; James G. Gill, LL.B., Wisconsin; and Hon. Frank Moore, LL.B., Michigan.

School of Practical Agriculture

The School of Practical Agriculture

MARCH, 1914, witnessed the graduation of the second class from the School of Practical Agriculture. The popularity of this course is forceably demonstrated by the increase in students from year to year until the number now hovers around the one hundred mark. Taking the young men or women, who find it impossible to attend high school, for five months in the idle season of the year this course prepares them for the practical duties of farm life. The university is thus filling a crying want of the state for better farmers and at the same time extending the scope of its own beneficial influence.

Campus Characters

Fraternities

FRATERNITIES play a very important part in the life and activity of the University. These organizations are founded for the purpose of making conditions as home-like as possible and to develop all sides of the young man's or young lady's character. Five fraternities and three sororities are found at Idaho at the present time. A few of these own their own houses, but the majority of them rent suitable houses in the vicinity of the campus.

Pan-Hellenic Council

THIS is an inter-fraternity organization which was formed in 1911. The council is composed of two representatives from each fraternity and sorority. The object of the organization is to provide a clearing house for problems of common interest among the fraternities and to deal with questions involving faculty rules, etc.

A. S. U. I.

THIS organization has been in existence since the college year 1903-04.

All student activities and concerns are regulated by this body. Each college student becomes a member of the A. S. U. I when he pays the registration fee at the beginning of the semester. This membership allows him the privilege of voting at student body meetings and elections. By a new plan of management, that was instituted this college year, when a student pays his registration fee he receives a ticket which admits him to all college athletic contests, debates, etc. The officers of the A. S. U. I. are composed of seven students elected at the general Student Body election and a faculty representative.

THIS organization is one of the most beneficial that is connected with the University. The object of the Alumni Association is to keep the alumni in closer touch with the University and also do some active boosting in its behalf. The number of alumni of the University has grown to the extent that some periodical was necessary to meet their needs. The first alumni magazine, "The Idaho Alumnus" was published in the college year 1912-13.

Bench and Bar Association

THE Bench and Bar Association was formed for the purpose of bringing all the law students together in one body for business or social purposes. The association is noted for the annual "Lawyers' Edition of The Argonaut," and "Lawyers Bust," which are evidences of an active and wide awake organization.

Through the earnestness of this club with respect to the work in the law school it has attracted the attention of some of the most prominent lawyers in the United States as well as our own state. These admirers of this spirit have manifested it by some liberal contributions to the law library.

The Associated Foresters

THE object of this organization is to promote the study of forestry and secure a knowledge of it from a practical standpoint. The club holds weekly meetings at which current literature on forestry and lumbering is read and discussed. They are frequently addressed by some prominent speaker along forestry lines. The forestry students are fortunate in being in the heart of an extensive lumbering section. Several of the largest lumber mills in the world are located within a short distance of the University. The students have the opportunity of observing and working with practical problems on a large scale. The managers of these concerns have willingly addressed the students in a very instructive manner. The Forestry Association has grown with the department until it has become an instructive feature in the school.

The Pre-Medic Club

THE Pre-Medic Club had its origin in the early part of the academic year with a membership of sixteen. All students who contemplate entering the medical profession and students majoring in the Zoological science may be elected to membership. The main object of the organization is to establish a closer relationship among the students having a common interest, and to stimulate and maintain interest in medicine and surgery by means of discussing various topics pertaining to this field and keeping in touch with current medical and biological literature. The membership has under way a movement promoting the establishment at the University of Idaho a medical school with a complete curriculum of the first two years of the medical course. That such a school is badly in need at the University is evidenced by the fact that a comparatively large number of young men here desire work along this line; and the demand is further obviated by the fact that heretofore, every year, many men have been obliged to desert their own native state in order to secure even the preliminary medical training. Under the new management the Zoology Department offers more than one year of the regular four-year medical work, and with some additional help should be able to offer a strong two-year course.

Idaho Home Economics Association

THE Idaho Home Economics association was organized December 3, 1912, in honor of Ellen Richards (the founder of home economics in the United States). It was affiliated with the Idaho State Federation of Women's Clubs the following spring. Its aim is "to improve the conditions of living in the home, the institution household, and the community." All women of the University and faculty are eligible to membership. Regular meetings are held on the third Thursday of every month.

The activities of the club are expressed by: I. Contributions to the Ellen Richards Memorial Fund in the way of food charts, which may be used as kitchen leaflets. The object of this fund is: 1. Encouragement of better prepared advanced scientific workers in Home Economics; 2. Publication of results of scientific study; 3. Popularization of Home Economics. II. Monthly programs, which have included treatises on Extension Work, Social Problems in Rural Communities, Campfire Girls movement, Idaho Laws of Special interest to women; Bills which the State Federation of Women's Clubs are advancing, School Lunches with demonstrations, and Pure Textiles. III. Weekly Teas served in the Home Economics dining room, which are open to all University people as an opportunity for a social hour.

THE Y. W. C. A. endeavors to develop Christian characters among the women of the University. Besides their regular meetings they are addressed by some able speaker. An occasional social meeting is held. In many instances the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. co-operate in their social meetings and entertainments. The local association keeps in touch with the national organization. This year Margery Luck, student representative, was sent to a national conference meet at Kansas City.

THE Y. M. C. A. has been of a very noticeable service to the students as well as the University as a whole. They have made their meetings interesting as well as beneficial by securing all the good speakers that were available, to address the students. The association has made itself a truly student organization and has been ready to deal with student needs and problems in its regular meetings. Besides the regular meetings there are meetings for social purposes, banquets, etc. The Y. M. C. A. has arranged for courses in Bible and Mission study in a more specialized manner. Many students can secure work through the aid of the Y. M. C. A. Employment Bureau. Each year a number of students attend the North-West Student Conference which is usually held at some sea shore point. In December, 1913, a delegate was sent to the National Student Volunteer Convention at Kansas City.

The Twin Falls Country Association

THIS is a club to which all the students belong, who come from that large portion of Southern Idaho popularly known as the "Twin Falls Country." Meetings are held during the school year, but the big meeting of the year is held during the summer. The summer meeting has become a custom and usually takes the form of an all day picnic to some scenic place, of which there are several in that neighborhood. The alumni of the local high schools are invited to attend these meetings and are entertained at the expense of the club members. This plan has been instrumental in bringing several students to the University and it is the intention of the club to continue this desirable feature. The officers for 1914 are:

President	Robert Leth
Vice President.....	Lesley Williams
Secretary-Treasurer	Verne Lee Taylor

Associated Miners

FOR fifteen years this organization has served the purposes of bringing the mining students together for the purpose of securing some practical information along their line of work, to advertise the mining department of the University and an occasional meeting is held for social purposes. Each year the Juniors and Seniors together with some of the mining professors visit the various large mines of the Northwest. During the present school year the mining department assisted by the other Engineers of the University, entertained the members of the various engineering societies of Spokane and the engineering students of Washington State College, by showing them through the various departments of the University and at a banquet at Ridenbaugh Hall.

The Ayers Law Club

DURING the present college year the growth of interest in the law school manifested itself by the formation of a new law club named the "Ayers Law Club," in honor of their Dean. The purpose of the club is to further by practical work the efficiency of the studies pursued in the law school. The constitution provides that all law students are members of the club. There are three parts or courts in the club, each class composes a court. The club meets every week in accordance with the object of the club. The constitution provides a plan by which regular attendance is required.

Chess Club

A CLUB was formed this year for the amusement of those interested in the ingenious game of chess. While the chess players are entertaining themselves they are developing a faculty for quick thinking. It is the object of the club to arouse sufficient interest in the game to have a college chess tournament and if possible meet other colleges in contests.

Orchestra

THE College Orchestra came into prominence this year more than ever before, due to the interest of the large number of students represented in it and the efforts of their efficient leader, Mrs. M. von F. Hughes. The size and quality of the orchestra is a great improvement over any that we have had before, although it never has been anything but good. The orchestra meets for practice every Wednesday. The public has many opportunities to enjoy the orchestra as it often appears in student assembly and at many of the college functions.

The English Club

AT the meeting in which the above officers were elected to hold office for one college year, the English Club of the University of Idaho came into being. A committee was selected from the executive board, which is composed of the officers named above and nine other members, to draw up a constitution. The first meeting occurred in October, 1913. The purpose of the organization, to quote from the preamble of the constitution, is "to stimulate interest in good drama, to create a theatre in which to present examples of the best English plays, and to uphold the high standards of this form of entertainment."

The club held some meetings at which very instructive programs were rendered. The first plays presented were the two, "Abraham and Isaac" and "The Second Shepherds Play." These plays were prepared, and the casts trained by Mr. Lehman and Miss Brashear respectively. The next play given by the club was the old morality play, "Everyman." This was presented on the evening of December 13, and the coaching was done by Dr. Moore.

At one of the regular meetings in January a little one-act farce, "The Revolving Wedge," was presented by the members. And the next and largest effort of the club was the staging of the "Comedy of Errors" on April 3, 1914.

The organization inherited a good reputation and a few dollars from the old English Club that existed here several years ago. And it has been the aim and the fate of the club to improve the one and increase the other. Both these results have been accomplished.

Glee Club

THE Glee Club enjoys a position of its own in the world of college life. Under the able direction of Mr. Storer it has maintained its former record for excellence, and it well merits the high esteem in which it is held by the members of the University and the people of the town. Each year the club stages some musical performance; these performances are always the best attended of all the dramatic attempts of the students during the year.

Violin Quartet

THE violin quartet has proven its worth by giving a number of public recitals and playing before the student assembly. Their recitals have been attended by larger audiences than any other college function. This quartet represents the best musical talent of the institution. The quartet is under the supervision of Mrs. M. v. F. Hughes.

MILITARY

Military Department

THE Military work is composed of three different phases, the so-called "drill," which is held twice a week; the military science, a study of military methods, operations, etc.; and encampment. The encampment consists of a week spent in some camp studying the practical military problems.

The military work is becoming more popular with the students—several upper-classmen drilling this year as officers.

The Battalion gives an annual Military Ball, which is the largest college function of the year. This year the new commissioned officers gave the old officers a banquet. More interest is being shown each year in the Battalion.

Debate

IDAHO has always taken a high place in debate. It is a branch of activity in which we can boast of more victories than defeats. The record, therefore, of two victories and two defeats during the past year might lead to the impression that we are losing our ability as debators. Such, however, is not the case. The first two teams won because they had the advantage of being coached by the man, who has made it possible for Idaho to win so many debates in the past, Edward M. Hulme. Because Mr. Hulme found his other work so pressing the teams in the second debate were left without any coaching at all. Working under such a handicap we were both surprised and pleased to hear that our men had secured the vote of one judge of the six in these last debates. We need a debate coach, and the rumors that such a man will be here next fall are encouragingly persistent.

The Northwest Tri-State League was organized by W. S. C., O. A. C., and Idaho during the past year. The first annual debates in this league were held December 12, 1913. Each college met one team from each of the other colleges; there were thus three debates going on at as many different places at the same time. Idaho won two, O. A. C. won one and lost one, and W. S. C. lost to both Idaho and O. A. C. We are thus the undisputed champions of the league for this year.

The story was different, however, when we met and lost two debates to Gonzaga University later in the season.

Traditions

YEAR by year Idaho's traditions are becoming more worthy of her, more truly inspirational. They are giving more and more the feeling of awe and reverence, of love and admiration. It is these traditions that foster this spirit toward our University that we expect to live and grow.

Beneath the happy, holiday spirit of every Campus Day throng, there should be the feeling that it is also a holiday—that here is the culmination of the spirit of unity and concord. Mingled with these times of deeper feeling, there are of course, and rightly, the lighter festivities. No one would wish to deny the importance of the position held by the "Old Guard," or the tense moments witnessed during the Seventeenth of March. We have a few traditions, some of them in their infancy, but all aiding in the promotion of closer bonds of union, of greater strength for and in our University.

The Old Guard

THE OLD GUARD appeared according to scheduled time on the day of the Federal inspection. From every side comments were heard that this was the best and largest of all Old Guards. The "Battle Scarred" and crippled soldiers of today derived their burlesque performances from the thirty-seven out of the thirty-nine men who returned from the Spanish-American War. The 1915 "Old Guard" marched through the streets of Moscow to the tune of "In My Harem", where they gave a demonstration of a successful Military Ball, in which privates, surgeons, red cross nurses and commander-in-chiefs mingled in a praiseworthy democracy. The parade terminated on the campus after the Federal Inspection was completed, where the main events of the day were performed. A rudimentary demonstration of Butt's Manual was interrupted by hasty surgical operations: the inspection of brooms, weapons of war, umbrellas, etc. was given up when the Red Cross Nurses fainted at the firing of the cannon (a stovepipe mounted on a roughly constructed wheelbarrow). The sounding of "Retreat" on a fog horn ended a very successful "Old Guard".

Campus Day

CAMPUS DAY stands at the head of all these traditions which link us so close to our Alma Mater. On this day, which usually comes in the latter part of May, the entire Campus is given over to students and friends. Miss French, the originator of Campus Day, and Miss Isabel Stephens, are largely responsible for last year's success. A pleasant innovation was the descent of bright-eyed brownies from the public schools who gave a charming pantomime of popular fairy tales.

Each year the provisions for entertainment, and otherwise, become more elaborate. All events of the day center around the crowning of the May Queen, a girl elected by the student body from the Senior class. All processions, all dances, all Maypoles are in her honor. In her we have embodied the spirit of Idaho.

In 1913 the May Queen was Miss Jessie Coram.

The Pullman Rally

THE time of the greatest expression of spirit is probably the night of the Pullman Rally, which is held the night before the W. S. C.-Idaho Game. Around this custom has grown the preparation of a huge bonfire by the Freshmen. The building of this bonfire takes place the night preceding the Rally and all the mysteries of Halloween are surpassed in the sudden disappearance of everything of an inflammable nature. The freshmen girls have a pleasant habit of appearing with sandwiches and steaming hot coffee just when they are most needed. The Rally begins with speeches from coaches and players and culminates in a night-shirt parade around the blazing bonfire and then through the Streets of Moscow.

The Seventeenth of March

FEARING the superior numbers of the Freshmen, the Sophomores resorted to cunning. The fight was once more in the nature of a flag rush, but this time the pole was draped with wires which were charged with electricity. It is not known if the easy victory of the Freshmen was due to the voltage limit prescribed by a Faculty member or the non-conductivity of some of the Freshmen leaders. Whichever it was, the fight should be arranged in some way in which numbers would not cut such a big figure. One good feature of the Fight was the unbroken promise not to begin hostilities until 10:00 A. M. The triumphant march of the Freshmen to remove the Sophomore colors from the Administration Tower was a continuation of the good spirit shown through the fight.

Bury-the-Hatchet and Upper-Classmen Party

DEPENDENT upon the Seventeenth of March for their existence, are the Bury-The-Hatchet and the Upper Classmen parties, which are held on the night of the fight. The Bury-The-Hatchet party of the Under Classmen is usually held in the gymnasium and has taken on an established precedent. The Upper Classmen party is a dance which is usually held in Hodgins' Hall. This is the only time during the year when the two sets of classes get together and enjoy themselves. Both the parties are becoming more popular each year.

Junior Class Play

EACH year a play is given by the Junior class. This play is presented primarily as an aid to the "GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS," but every effort is made to subordinate the financial aim and make the production one of merit and worth.

Memorial Exercises at the Monument

ON Memorial Day, exercises are held each year in memory of the Idaho Students who lost their lives in the Spanish-American war. The Battalion of Cadets appear in blue uniform and salutes are fired from the crest of the Campus. Last year Mr. Jenkins rendered a very interesting account of the Idaho Students who lost their lives for their country and impressed the Battalion with a spirit of sympathy and patriotism that will never die.

ATHLETICS

Athletic Board

This body regulates and supervises all college athletics, awards emblems, and insignia, appoints student managers for the various branches of athletics and provides for the payment of bills pertaining to their department of activities. The board is composed of seven student members elected by the student body at its general election, and a graduate manager.

MEMBERS OF THE BOARD.

ALBERT KNUTSON, President
GEORGE SCOTT, Secretary-Treasurer
G. L. LARSON, Graduate Manager
V. E. JONES

JOHN PHILLIPS
R. O. BURNS
JOHN HAYDEN
THOMAS DOYLE

Graduate Manager
GUS L. LARSON.

To Gus was intrusted the task of placing Idaho's finances on a firm basis, and too much credit cannot be given him for the admirable way in which he has accomplished this. He is an old "I" man of three branches and quite a believer in the survival of the fittest.

Coach
JOHN G. GRIFFITH.
"Pink."

Pink coaches Football, Baseball and Basketball. He has the ability to turn out a good team as long as enough men come out to fill the places, and has lead the teams to many victories during the past years. Pink has a happy faculty of always having a good one up his sleeve and knowing the right time to use it. There seems to be quite a spark under his flame.

Coach
CLARENCE S. EDMUNDSON.
"Hec."

Hec is Idaho's famous middle distance man. He not only holds several Idaho records, but, also the Northwest Record in the half mile. He was good enough to go to the 1912 Olympic Games, and is therefore thoroughly competent to coach our track men.

The Year in Athletics

ATHLETICS is, as at most institutions, the leading diversion at the University. In fact, some narrow minded person has been so cruel as to say that students regard athletics as their chief business. We are not concerned with the moral phase of athletics, however, but our business is simply to chronicle the chief events of the past year in this, the physical, side of college life.

Our year did not commence very brilliantly; we lost in track and were a poor second in baseball. The second half of the year, however, made up for previous disappointments. We won the East Side Championship in both football and basketball, decisively defeating both W. S. C. and Whitman in these sports; thus living up to the old adage that a poor beginning makes a good ending.

Aside from the major sports, baseball and track, we met W. S. C. in our annual tennis tournament last spring. Seven matches were played, out of which Idaho won five, and thus added further laurels to our athletic prowess. The men representing Idaho in this meet were Wright, Sakuma, David, Soulen, and Hockett. The handicap tournament among the men for the David cup was won by Leth; while the womens' cup was won by Miss Kettenbach. Interest in tennis will probably be much greater this spring than usual as it has been added to the list of inter-collegiate sports and a team will represent Idaho at the Northwest Intercollegiate Meet at Portland some time in May.

FOOT BALL

1913 Football Season

IDAHO finished the 1913 football season champions of the Inland Empire, defeating both our old rivals—W. S. C. and Whitman College. Not only was the season a successful one in every way, but it demonstrated that Idaho has one of the best teams in the Northwest. A combination of "Pink" and the old Idaho Spirit always takes the team a long way toward victory.

Fall practice started with a good percentage of old men back and the best squad of raw recruits that Idaho has ever had to pick from. Coach Griffith put the men through some strenuous practice and all the men were in fine condition when the season opened.

The first conference game was with our old rival Pullman. The teams were very evenly matched with Idaho a shade the better, as the score 3 to 0 would indicate. It was a great game all the way through and demonstrated that the slogan, "Idaho Fights," is not a mere fantasy. To win two victories over W. S. C. in succession is no mean accomplishment, and we are justly proud of the teams who did it.

It was a crippled team that met Oregon at Eugene the following week. The score of 27 to 0 does not indicate the relative merits of the two teams as can readily be seen by comparing scores made by these two teams against other conference elevens.

With a two weeks rest the team came back at the weak Whitman Team with a vengeance, defeating them 29 to 3. This cinched the Championship of the Inland Empire for the second time in two years.

Thanksgiving Day, on a muddy field, we met Oregon Agricultural College at Corvallis. The Aggies won the game by the margin of a place kick, but from all reports the game would have had a different outcome if the field had been dry or in fair condition.

On New Years Day we played a post season game with the Multnomah Athletic Club at Portland. Using a much lighter team and several subs we played them to a standstill and led until the last quarter. In the final quarter, however, weight began to tell and with two of our men laid out with injuries they beat us 20 to 9. Such a game against a team which boasts of not having been beaten for years is no disgrace to any college.

Idaho will lose six men this year: four by graduation and two by the four year ruling. Favre, Knudson, Kinnison, and Samms will graduate, while Lockhart and Johnson have played their four years of football. This will leave some big holes to be filled, but some good subs were out last fall who will be ready to step into the traces next fall.

CAPTAIN FAVRE, Guard.

Favre has played four years of hard consistent football for Idaho and his absence from the squad this fall will be greatly felt. Favre is a member of the "Hit 'em hard club," and although he is not very bulky he makes every ounce count. Favre is one of the best generals in the Northwest.

STUDENT MANAGER ARTHUR O. SUTTON.

Although the student manager does not do any actual playing he is still a very important asset of the team. Sutton performed the arduous duties willingly and efficiently.

CAPTAIN-ELECT PHILLIPS, Tackle

This is "Buck's" third year on the varsity eleven and he has at all times played a strong game both on defense and offense.

ROBERT GRONIGER, Tackle.

A freshman and one of the biggest and strongest men on the squad. He has three years more to play.

"JACK" HAYES, Center.

Hayes played a good game against experienced men this year and should be all Northwest caliber in a few years. He has three more years at Idaho.

BANKS KINNISON, Tackle.

All Northwest guard, 1912. Banks is one of the best punters in the Northwest and also a very good man on defence. This is his last year on the Idaho squad and there will be a big hole to fill.

VIRGIL SAMMS, End.

"Sammy" is a senior this year and one of the best men Idaho will lose. "Sammy" was laid up for quite a time this fall, but showed his old time form when he returned to the game.

STANLEY BROWN, Halfback.

This is Brown's second year on the Varsity. He is a hard player and a great man at hitting the line.

HENRY DEWALD, End.

DeWald is a freshman and should be heard of quite a bit in the next three years.

HEDLEY DINGLE, End.

This is Dingle's first year on the Varsity and he showed some great playing. He has two more years to play on the Varsity.

ARTHUR JARDINE, Halfback.

"Jard" is a fast consistent player and will be one of Idaho's best men in 1914. This was his first year on the Varsity.

HAROLD PURDY, Quarterback.

Purdy is a freshman at Idaho and has three more years to play. He is a good field general and should develop into one of the best quarters Idaho has ever had.

JAMES LOCKHART, Halfback.

All Northwest Halfback. "Jim" is undoubtedly the fastest man on the squad. As a broken field runner he is without a peer in the Northwest. "Jim" is also a good place kicker and was responsible for Idaho's 3 to 0 score over W. S. C.

ALBERT KNUDSON, Fullback.

"Knut" is a senior this year and will be greatly missed next year. He has always been a hard player and held up his side of the line creditably. A very good offensive player.

WILLARD JOHNSON, End.

"Jack" is one of the best ends in the Northwest and one of the best Idaho has ever turned out. Jack played his four years of football and his absence will be greatly felt next fall. All Northwest End.

Basket Ball

Season of 1913-14

THE season of 1913-14 was one of the most successful that Idaho has ever had. From the start it was a battle between Idaho and W. S. C. for the East Side Championship, with Idaho finally triumphing over her old rival. The games between W. S. C. and Idaho were all so close that even the difference of floors entered into the matter. Idaho won six games straight from Whitman and four from W. S. C. for the East Side Championship.

It was a badly crippled team which represented Idaho in the fight with Washington for the Northwest Championship. Idaho lost two games to the U. of W., but in the second game Idaho showed a burst of speed which causes all of her followers to believe that the score would have been different with the regular line-up.

Loux at center was chosen as All Northwest forward. He played the stellar game all through the season.

Soulen, Captain, forward, got his share of the baskets in every game.

Keane at guard played a consistent game. On account of illness "Jimmie" was kept out of the Championship series.

Jardine played at forward and guard. Jard is fast and handles the dribble well.

Hyde is a hard fighter and will make a good man for Idaho.

Gray played a good game and will show some fast work next year.

"Chase's" size does not indicate his ability as a good fighter.

Martinson was a sure thing in the way of a lay back guard. "Tiny" will be back next year to strengthen the squad.

The men who figured in making the team possible: Perkins, "Red" McCall, Samms, Lomasson and Hallam (subs).

MIRAGE OF THE AD C

Base Ball

1913 Baseball Season

THE baseball season last spring could hardly be called a success. From the beginning we were handicapped by the lack of good pitching material. Hayden, our only veteran pitcher, failed to work his arm into shape and only occupied the mound for part of one game. Gerlough, P. Perkins and Mitchell gave us the best they had, but lacked in the experience and consistency demanded of a college pitcher. The other members of the team worked consistently and would undoubtedly have given W. S. C. a hard battle if our pitching staff had been a little stronger.

The following was the line-up:

Mitchell, pitcher.	Donart, right field.

Track, 1913

WITH only two old men back and a small amount of new material to pick from, Idaho's track team accomplished a great deal last spring.

Captain Whitten, Downing and Phillips were the only old men out at the beginning of the season. The new material, although small in number, was of the best of quality. Morrison and Lockhart showed up well in the sprints. Downing and Dingle were both good men for the distances. It was the season of 1913 which taught our new men the things which they will be using this spring. We met three teams last spring, Montana, Whitman and Pullman. We won from Montana by a large score and lost to Pullman and Whitman. At the conference meet at Walla Walla May 31st we took fifth place with ten points.

Track for the season of 1914 promises to be the best for years. With Morrison, Lockhart, Betty and Calquhoun in the dashes, Idaho has four fast men. Downing, DeWald, Dingle, Gerlough, DeHaven, Warren and Bonneville will represent Idaho in the distances. Downing, Dingle and Warren are old men and have represented Idaho before on the cinder track while the other men are Freshmen who have been in track at their respective high schools.

Phillips, Brown, Nordby and Groniger will handle the weights. "Buck" has represented Idaho for the past two years, while this is the first year for the others.

In the hurdles Idaho will have Lockhart (Captain), Ross and Masse.

Cunningham, Gray and Masse will enter the high jump. Dingle and Cunningham will be in the pole vault. For the broad jump Idaho will have Lockhart, Morrison, Ross and Betty. With this abundance of material Coach Edmundson seems very optimistic over the outcome of the season.

Idaho will enter three meets this spring. We will meet Pullman the 9th of May, Whitman about the middle of May and the Conference meet at Pullman the 31st of May.

Interscholastic Track Meet

IT has become a custom for the University to hold an inter-scholastic track meet at Moscow the first Thursday and Friday in May. The leading high schools throughout the state are invited to participate in this meet—the University paying the expenses of three athletes from each school sending representatives. Boise easily won last year's meet with Colfax second and Nezperce third. Arrangements are now under way to hold the meet this spring on the seventh and eighth of May. It is planned to make this year's meet larger and better than any that have been held before.

The Thought of You

Like the fragrance of the wild rose
Sparkling in the morning dew,
Filling all the air with sweetness
Is the very thought of you.

Dearer than the hope of Heaven
Is the image of your face,
Haunting me asleep or waking
With its purity and grace.

Thou art like a bolden sunbeam,
Dancing in a forest drear,
Bringing to the darkened grasses
Messages of hope and cheer.

Thou art like a song of spring-time
When the buttercups peep forth,
And the wild birds stop to warble
As they wing their swift way north.

In thy voice I hear the murmur
Of swift flowing mountain streams,
And thine eyes are soft and tender
With the mist of golden dreams.

Though I wandered in far countries,
(O'er the ocean, wide and blue),
Like the fragrance of the wild rose
Still would be the thought of you.

The Red-Tipped Arrowhead

I KNOW a country where the summer lingers all the year, and lurks concealed in the valleys while the pursuing winter passes unnoticed over her very head. When first I saw this country it was just emerging from the wilderness; it had been cleared out from a dense forest, and was still pungent with the odor of fresh-cut pines.

There is a river flowing through this valley; and its waters are so clear, so limpid, that one can see to the very sand at the bottom. But there are places where the water is deep, and the clearness but discloses other depths below. As we look we feel that there are secrets in those green, bottomless pools. And the restless undercurrents below—are they not the troubled thoughts the river hides below its outer calm?

Tossing, rising and falling, the waters have washed this arrowhead upon the shore. It is a strange thing, black like smoked glass; and when we look more closely we find the tip glows a blood red. A strange significance seems to be yours, black arrowhead: what is the story your red tongue is trying to tell?

* * * * *

I see the same place a hundred years ago. The forests are thick above the shore—there is but a narrow strip of beach. But the river is still the same, and the powdered white of the moonlit waters is cut by the sharp black shadows of the cliffs that guard the farther side.

Two dark figures come stealing from the woods and are silhouetted against the yellow sand. It is a young brave bringing his bride to his own country from the land of her people. The squaw carries on her back a heavy bundle. The brave walks erect and unencumbered, but his keen eyes pierce the black shroud of the forest, and his bow is ever in his hand.

On the beach they stop and light a fire. The squaw spreads out the heavy blankets that are in her bundle. The firelight flits here and there about the edge of the forest, and darts back as if in terror at what it has seen. Gaunt trees stare wildly, startled to be so suddenly revealed.

The brave smoked; and the squaw, with flint and colored stones, hacked out arrowheads. The brave was very content: the fire was warm, and she was a good squaw. The Indians are not a passionate race; but when he thought of the many years ahead, he was glad that she would be beside him by the campfire and in the long, long migrations that he knew his people would make. Today we would say he loved her; but he did not know that word—He only knew that she was there, and that he was very, very content.

A sapling came floating down the river, washed away by the rising waters above. Its slender, straight stem would make a good pike for spearing fish. The brave muttered as much to his squaw. She heard, but said nothing. She was of a silent race—a race that hears and broods and remembers, and never, never tells.

There was a crackling in the bushes behind them, and the darting firelight revealed the antlers of a deer emerging above the shrubbery. The deer was immediately in full flight. The brave sprang up and seized his bow and quiver. The squaw rose too. She gave him an arrow she had just made. It was straight and strong, with a sharp, hard head, black like smoked glass; and the tip was red. It was a love token—but Indians waste no time in sentiment, and the brave sped away.

He followed the trail through the underbrush, over fallen trees, through the thousand devious ways of the forest. Then he saw that the deer was doubling back. Years of hunting told him the path it would take—to the shore again, and across the water. He ran in a straight line towards the beach. Emerging onto the shore he saw the fire. It was burning low now—only smouldering embers. Then—out in the river is a dark object: the deer is already well on its course! From his quiver he took forth the new arrow, for it was the truest and surest. He drew taut the string—he snapped it, and with a snarl the arrow cut through the air. His aim was true—the dark form sank.

With a shout of triumph the brave plunged into the cold water. The dark body rose again; he swam swiftly towards it. The water splashed in moon-silvered spray over his gleaming brown arms. He reached the body just as it rose again—and he grasped it, his whole form going cold with horror. The moonlight showed the fixed face of the little squaw; her rigid fingers still clasped the stem of a sapling. His aim had been true—the arrow pierced her throat.

The deepest grief is that which gives no outward sign.

It is the heart that breaks in stolid silence that can never heal. The brave looked at her indifferently. His heart was sobbing for its desolation—we cannot control the heart. But he let it weep out its grief unconsolated; his mind was his to control, and he thought of the deer that escaped. He glanced again at the dead face, around which the black hair was washed in tangled masses. Then slowly he let her go. The river gods had claimed her, they would care for her. She was only a squaw.

The body sank. He swam back to the shore and slept by the fire.

The air was still gray, the day had not yet come when he stole away. The fire was black and dead. The trees were huddled together for fear of what the wind had told them of the night. The cliffs were haggard in the bleak air. The brave walked with bowed head. He thought of the chase, but his muscles would not respond with the customary thrill. He saw again and again the dead face, the matted hair, the cruel arrow, and the tree held in her rigid grasp.

And all through the years he went, his face stern and unmoved, but his head still bowed. And always he went alone.

If

(With the humblest of apologies to Barnyard Stripling).

If you can bear to live midst joy and troubles,
Crowded all three in a single room,
Whose size you vainly wish were more than double,
As in its narrow space you sit and gloom;
If you can manufacture nooks and crannies
To stow away your cherished hat with plumes,
And swathe your clothes in sheets like all old grannies,
Protecting from an alcohol stove's fumes;
If you can bear to see your lone red sweater,
Worn by a girl that's twice as big as you,
Or loan your muff when it is freezing weather
And your own hands are chapped and red in hue;
If you can stand the rush and hurry
Each morning as you hasten off to school,
Find books and rubbers in the dreadful scurry
Make seven thirty five and still keep cool;
If you are one of those farsighted creatures,
Who sign up weeks ahead to take a bath,
Can shun the sleeping porch and all its features
On cleaning days with just a knowing laugh,
If you can make your voice heard at the table
Above the roar of twenty babbling tongues;
Keep cheerful, passing food till scarcely able
To eat a bite and ease your aching lungs.
If you can study evenings after supper,
While someone down below plays gay waltz tunes,
Or join with glee the wild Welsh rarebit lovers,
And be content to eat soft fudge from spoons,
If you can do all this and much more also
Yet to your college work be firm and true,
Then come, pack up your things, and let us go,
A sorority house—my girl—is the place for you.

The Fair Co-Ed

THE SUBJECT that men usually like to discuss best, next to dwelling upon each other's paramount perfections, is woman. Lovely woman, ever since that morning when Adam awoke with a pain in his side and found that it was not his appendix, but a rib that was missing, has been a source of tribulation and pleasure to mankind.

There are many types of modern women, but the one that is most familiar to me, the most interesting to any educated man, because of intellectuality and personal charm, I shall designate as the 'Fair Co-Ed'. However be it said here, that my knowledge of 'Co-Eds', although it embodies four years experience, could easily be incorporated in that achieved by the ordinary college 'society-man' in one semester.

A 'Co-Ed' may be defined as that species of woman, whose habitat is the modern co-educational institution and for whose sole benefit the college was created. Here we should consider, for a moment, the various elements which constitute the modern university, and their several uses. The athletic field, where the 'Co-Ed' is regaled with football and other gladiatorial spectacles; the gymnasium, where she enjoys her evening dancing; the romantic walks about the campus and town, not mentioning, for lack of information on that score, any particular one, where she may stroll and flirt with the insignificant male of the co-educational institution; the picture shows, ice cream parlors, and livery barns where the same male is constrained to squander his father's earnings—all these were created to make the college life a very happy one for the 'Co-Ed'.

Yet I overlooked a very important feature of the college, and that is the lecture room, each provided with a professor, where it was intended that both sexes should sit at the feet of wisdom and drink from the fountain of learning. Here the 'Co-Ed' may obtain a little rest between her campus strolls, and the professor is a being to gaze upon with a 'baby stare' or to flirt with, and to weep at during examination.

With the greater majority of 'Co-Eds' and in all courses, 'campus' is a favorite elective. And the hours required for a credit are far from being definite. It is a sad commentary, too, that the co-educational institutions has usurped the functions of a matrimonial bureau and is gradually forgetting its own mission. Yet this does not condemn the co-educational system, for statistics show that one engagement out of every fourteen in college, actually culminates in marriage.

Still I do not mean to intimate that all 'Co-Eds' are in college merely to indulge in engagements and other pastimes. There are a few who do not avail themselves of all the advantages of the university, and who emerge from the library four years after registration, with half inch thick spectacles, stooped shoulders, and a Phi Beta Kappa key. This type has an insatiable desire to teach school or lead the discussions in the women's clubs.

There is a type of 'Co-Ed', however, between these two extremes and these 'Co-Eds' make use of all the advantages offered by the institution, both socially and scholastically, but are not extremists. The 'Co-Ed' of this type is endowed with an eternal sweet disposition, apparently, is a good fellow, and has a talent in culinary art, that, when developed, results in concoctions of various sorts, dear to the digestive tract of man and finding a secret passage to the heart.

The presence of this 'Co-Ed' in the class room does not detract from our scholastic progress but, rather, is an inspiration. The co-educational institution exemplifies the American idea, that woman is entitled to the same educational advantages as man, and it has been said that the height of civilization of a nation is measured by the position accorded to its women.

Occasionally today we find a 'Helen of Troy' with a fatal beauty, and for whom men fight and die; a Cleopatra, whose charms ensnare a Mark Antony or Caesar; a Lillian Russel; or a Mrs. Pankhurst, a nuisance for the 'Cause' and the London Police; but the most charming of modern women is the product of the co-educational college—the 'Fair Co-Ed'.

An Ode
To the Departing Alternate Theme Privilege

I must forever say farewell to thee,
Thou privilege so dear to me of late
For when the critic reads this poetry
Sealed, aye, forever sealed, must be thy fate.

Long—yes and dearly have I cherished thee.
How I have hastened, breathless oftentimes,
To get themes in before the stroke of three—
But that, before I took to writing rhymes.

I knew thou wert a very fragile thing
And I would lose thee if I dared offend
The being that can give and take away,
The One that's doomed thee thus to early end.

Ah, sad the day when that cruel-hearted man
Announced in tones that made each Freshman quake,
"To have each write a page of verse I plan—
Blank verse or rhyme, just so 'tis verse you make."

A page, alas, how long this page does seem,
As down it plods my most unwilling pen,
And curse I this above each other theme
I've had to write to satisfy that man.

But thou art gone, aye gone life's brightest beam.
I sit alone in darkness and despair
I now must use theme paper by the ream;
Life seems completely full of themes—and care.

An old Hebrew stood on the sandy shore,
On Lake Hayden far away.
Watching his only son Ike, rock a boat,
Just at the break of day.
All of a sudden the boat capsized,
Ike wished he was back in Town,
The old Hebrew hollered out, "Ike don't get wet!"
Just as the son went down.

Up came the son but he couldn't swim,
So he went down again.
Next time he came up the old man yelled,
"Throw me your diamond pin!"
"Throw it before you drown!"
These were the last words the old man said,
Just as the son went down.

Some Facts Concerning the University of Idaho

More than five hundred subjects are offered in the University.

The faculty numbers eighty-one, which includes seven lecturers.

The courses are under the direction of men of distinguished scholarship, with degrees from the great universities of the world. Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Columbia, Cornell, Chicago, Wisconsin, California, Stanford, Nebraska, Iowa, Virginia, McGill, Toronto, Goettingen, Berlin, The Sorbonne, Madrid and other universities are represented on the faculty of the University of Idaho.

The University is the only institution in the state that prepares students for the Rhodes Scholarship examinations. This scholarship offers the successful candidate three years' residence at Oxford University, England, and an income of fifteen hundred dollars a year.

In recognition of the high scholastic standard maintained, the Idaho Legislature has passed an act which entitles the University graduates who have satisfactorily completed their respective courses in education, to State Teachers' Certificates.

The University of Idaho has the reputation of being one of the most democratic institutions in the United States. A large percentage of its students, by work during the summer or during the college year, pay part or all of their expenses. There is no discrimination, social or otherwise, against the man or woman who works.

A system of clubs has been organized, so that students coming from any part of the state will be brought in close touch with the other students from his section, association with whom will make transition from high school to college easy.

A natural amphitheatre west of the Administration building and very close to any part of the campus has been transformed into an athletic field. It is conceded by Northwest coaches that when completed it will be one of the best in the West.

Although the University is almost the youngest of the State Universities, the high scholarship of its faculty, the honors accorded its Alumni in the great Universities of the East and Europe, the proved efficiency of its graduates in practical life, its recognition by the Carnegie Foundation as one of the group of thirteen state universities of highest standing, have made it an institution of which the people of the State and the Northwest are justly proud.

The University comprises the following divisions:

The College of Letters and Sciences.

The College of Engineering.

The College of Law.

The College of Agriculture.

The Agricultural Experiment Station.

The Agricultural Extension Service.

The Summer Session.

The College of Letters and Sciences offers, besides the customary B. A. and B. S. courses, four-year degree courses in Home Economics and Forestry. Courses in Music, both theoretical and practical, may be counted toward the B. A. and B. S. degrees. Special provision is made for pre-medical and pre-legal students and for those desiring the courses in Education leading to State Teachers Certificate. Normal courses are also offered in Physical Education and Music.

The College of Engineering offers four-year courses in Civil, Mining, Electrical, Mechanical and Chemical Engineering, in which the instruction is both thorough and practical.

In its fifth year, the College of Law continues to offer a thoroughly standardized curriculum, based upon the experience of the best law schools in the country, embracing broad, culture training in legal theory, a comparative study of Pacific coast law and some practical application of these principals.

The College of Agriculture offers thorough courses in Agriculture, Chemistry, Bacteriology, Dairying, Horticulture, Forestry, Irrigation and Drainage, Agronomy, Animal Husbandry, Soils and Veterinary Science.

The Agricultural Experiment Station conducts original investigations in the field of agricultural science, which are of great value to the state and nation.

The Agricultural Extension Service conducts a demonstration train each year to various points in the State which enables the people of Idaho to see what is being done by scientific research work.
