GREETING

IN this the seventeenth volume of the "Gem of the Mountains", the staff has endeavored, in the short space of time granted them, to collect a mass of material representative of this college year. This year the book was under the management of the A. S. U. I., instead of the Junior class, and on account of this fact it was possible for the staff to utilize all of the available material and ability in college. Therefore we desire to take this opportunity for thanking all of those students and members of the faculty who were kind enough to donate their time to this work, thus making the book's publication possible.

The short space of time allowed the staff limits originality and restricts the number of features we should like to run, but we shall at least bridge the gap between the years 1919 and 1921 in the Gem of the Mountains line by this publication.

THE STAFF.

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO

WE may admit that all this world's a stage; and, with certain mental reservations, that all the men and women are merely players. But why a stage and players without a play and an audience, and a means of communication with that audience? Many agencies are constantly at work bringing to the attention of the people of the state, the alumni and the absent brother something of campus and general intra and extra mural university activity; but the Annual is the only one in which the student himself without let or hindrance operates the spot light, featuring and accentuating whatever pleases his fancy and throwing into the shadow that which, in his judgment, appears less worthy of note. Not only does he throw its relentless rays upon the foibles of his fellows for the moment, but he preserves a changeless record for future generations that men may look and learn and take warning.

In ancient days men erected pyramids, obelisks and other monuments in order that the memory of their lives and their achievements might not perish from the earth. The thought of passing on and eternally out has always been abhorrent to the mind of man. When the day for the final exit is at hand the instinct which prompted the erection of the monuments of old asserts itself, and one of its manifestations is the college annual. Emerging as we now are from the shadow of the Great World War, it is believed that this little volume particularly justifies its publication as a chronicle of the events of that momentous period and the notable part taken therein by the University, its faculty, its students and its alumni.

School of Practical Agriculture and Household Arts

In spite of the unusual conditions created by the war, and the demoralizing effects of the "Flu" epidemic, the year 1918-19 was a successful one for the School of Agriculture and Household Arts. The enrollment has been small, but the enthusiasm of the students and their loyalty to all school enterprises have been fully up to the standards of other years.

For the first time since the school was established, there is no graduating class this year, practically all of the members of the Senior class having enlisted. Since the beginning of the war at least thirty-seven students, former students and graduates of the school, entered military or naval service. Many of these saw over-seas service, and several became commissioned officers. Joseph P. Ricketts, of the class of 1917, died of pneumonia while in training at Camp Fremont, California.

In the contests on Agricultural Judging Day, the short course men competed with the college men and the former won two out of four first prizes as well as fully 50 per cent of all awards for the judging of grains, live stock, fruits, and dairy products. The men of the school have been too few to maintain a separate unit in the University Battalion, as in other years, but the individual students have shown the usual "pep" in this branch of their work. The S. P. A. basketball team played a series of games with the fraternity teams and the literary society retained its place as the only live organization of the kind in the University.

Soldiers Triumphant

A young American soldier was found dead on a battlefield in France. Near him lay the bodies of four German soldiers. By the side of the American was a knife driven deeply into the ground—token of his victory in the unequal combat. The only mark of identification found on the American was a ring bearing the seal of the University of Idaho.

* * * * *

At the beginning of the war college men were quick to understand the issue. They did not wait for others. They gave themselves promptly and wholeheartedly to the cause. The history of the war is bright with the achievements of the college men of East and South and North and West.

Among these, the men of Idaho maintained the high traditions of their alma mater. As in the Spanish-American War the University of Idaho contributed an overwhelming proportion of her man-power to the army, so in the Great War, large numbers of our men rushed to the colors. They made a magnificent record in the Students' Army Training Corps and in the Officers' Training Camps. They shone resplendent on battlefields.

* * * * *

The self reliance, the resourcefulness, the incredible endurance, the unconquerable spirit of the West found full expression in their deeds of valor.

* * * * *

And some sleep amid the scarlet poppies, in the land they helped to redeem, under the flag they kept stainless.

* * * * *

Their brave comrades return to home and a grateful country. May those who return to the service of the nation and the great commonwealth of Idaho which nourished them, bring the same superb courage, the same fine chivalry and the same devotion to public duty which they exhibited in camp, on the march, and in the shock of battle.

E. H. Lindley

...In...
Memoriam

To those brave sons of Idaho, who, at sea, on land and in the air, have died that liberty might live, we dedicate these pages.

Stricken with our grief, yet proud because of their glory, we humbly tender this tribute to their memories, pledging our lives and all that we are to the maintenance and upbuilding of the cause for which they laid theirs down.

Lieutenant Ronald E. Everly

Claimed by all who had to do with him in camp and on the battlefield as "courageous, loyal, absolutely unselfish and a man of true merit", First Lieutenant Ronald E. Everly is one of the Idaho men who so valiantly won his place on the Honor Roll of his country as a soldier and as a commander of men.

Enlisting in May, 1917, he was commissioned from the Presidio, and later assigned to Company L of the 361st infantry, leaving for France in June, 1918. He was the only Junior Officer to stay with his company from the time of leaving Camp Lewis until reaching the front. The most popular officer in his company, he gave himself wholeheartedly and unselfishly to put his men in shape, and they followed him in battle with absolute trust. "His intelligent use of command enabled him to gain objectives many times," says his commander, "with a promptitude and paucity of casualties that surprised everyone."

Assigned later to the school at Gondrecourt, he secured his release when his men were "going in", and working his way to the front, "increased the morale of the command fully 50 per cent". After the second day in the Argonne he was forced to assume full command of the company, operating it effectively. Later, he was severely wounded, a one-pound shell hitting his helmet, then bursting behind him and wounding his side and leg. Everly was cited for the Croix de Guerre and recommended for promotion.

His new role as assistant Commandant at the University of Idaho gives this unit of Reserve Officers Training Corps a man who has already assisted in increasing the status and will work under his new commander with the same earnestness which he led his men to victory in the Argonne forests.

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

"For Valor"

Corporal John W. Cramer will long be remembered as one of the valiant Idaho men to win the "Distinguished Service Cross" for gallantry in action "Over there". He was a member of a patrol sent out to reconnoiter the town of Audenarde, Belgium. His detachment discovered several enemy machine gun emplacements and sniper posts located in buildings, from which the streets of the town were being swept with lead. With but one companion, Corporal Cramer dodged from building to building under this intense fire, entered one of the houses containing a machine gun and captured the two Hun gunners who were manning the gun.

Cramer was a Senior in the Law Department of the University. He entered the service in the summer of nineteen seventeen and was sent to Camp Lewis. His ability was soon recognized and he was sent to a small arms school in the East. After intensive training he was again returned to his division and soon afterwards was sent over seas. He took part in active service along the Belgian front. It was here that he displayed the bravery which won for him the highest honor awarded to America's heroes: the Distinguished Service Cross.

Lieutenant Harry O. McDougall

When a man is unwounded after having had his goggles and shoe soles shot away, the gas tank of his aeroplane shot on fire, and many other such experiences, we say he had luck. First Lieutenant Harry O. McDougall, ex-'17, Croix de Guerre, Distinguished Service Cross, did have luck, with a lot of nerve and real courage mixed in.

Lieutenant McDougall received his commission in the infantry, then transferred to the aviation branch of the signal corps, and received a First Lieutenancy in that branch. He landed in France March 13, and graduated from the flying school just in time to be with the French aviators at Chateau Thiery. He participated in every fight in his division from then on, making over 30 bombing expeditions. He was made a flight commander, and was decorated with the Croix de Guerre after his 14th flight into enemy territory.

He received the D. S. C. for "leaving the center of a squadron formation and going to the aid of a brother pilot, who was being attacked by three German planes, and shooting down one plane and putting the others to flight." He was recommended for a captaincy. His machine was disabled five times, one time landing 50 feet behind the front line trenches. His clothes have been riddled with bullets and his observer killed. Lieutenant McDougall was there with the luck—and with everything else that makes a man a hero.

The Students' Army Training Corps at the University of Idaho

The University of Idaho S. A. T. C. ranked highest in the Northwest division, and far above the average in its military, medical and academic departments.

* * * * *

If any S. A. T. C. may be ranked a success, the University of Idaho unit certainly was a success, and had it been given but a few more months to "carry on", it would certainly have accomplished the ends originally planned. Its story is one of harmony, and not of discord, as in many other units.

The first step towards training Idaho's men was taken in June, 1918, when the University was assigned a quota of drafted men for two months' intensive vocational training. On completing their training, they were replaced by three hundred men, now known as Section B, who continued the same line of work.

Section A, collegiate section, established October 1st, inducted men having at least a high school education, and began at once the difficult task of combining military and academic work, with the end in view to produce men who could enter officers' training schools as well prepared men. These men, barracked in fraternity houses mostly, seemed to enter into the serious aspect of the necessary work, and fell into the well defined channels of work earnestly.

The greatest battle which the unit had to combat was the influenza epidemic, but she emerged with flying colors, with a record as clean, and as well fought, as any similar organization of like conditions. The valiant struggle which the medical corps launched against the disease was one which will always bring them honor.

Although well prepared to do so, this unit had no chance to furnish men for officers' camps. Well officered and commanded, these men had reached as near a state of perfection possible, in the short time allotted to the military department, and though this unit of S. A. T. C. was unfortunately disbanded before its aims were accomplished, it did much good, in that young men from all parts of Idaho were given a military experience that was of infinite benefit to them, and proved that the educational institutions of this country are back of the government with all their available resources.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps at the University of Idaho

The history of the R. O. T. C. at the University of Idaho may be called one of ups and downs, with the present status certainly on the "up" side, and with the brightest prospects possible lined up for the future. At times the student members have looked upon the required drill merely as time wasted, but the ending of the war, instead of lessening the morale, has increased it, and with a greater military knowledge, the R. O. T. C. is, and will embark upon the more difficult and advanced problems of work. Athletics take an active part in the training, and company and squad competition are taking important places.

This year the government has furnished a complete outfit, including packs, regular army rifles, with more than 200 rounds of ammunition per man, putting the R. O. T. C. on a better established army basis. Besides the more complicated company and battalion movements, extended order and field problems are being featured, and many of the available hills around the campus have been captured.

A large percentage of Junior and Senior men are taking R. O. T. C. work, under the new provisions for compensation, in which by attending camps in the summer, and completing the University course, they are made Reserve Officers of the U. S. army.

Colonel James G. Hannah made the annual Federal inspection on April 24th. He was unstinted in his praise of the work, especially the way in which the cadet officers handled their command, the well worked out extended order formations, bayonet drill, and the exactness of the review and parade, saying that he could rank this R. O. T. C. among the two or three best units in his inspection.

After the Federal inspection, work on the target ranges was begun, all men getting well started in firing practice, and some ready to compete for sharpshooter examinations.

The addition of Lieutenant Everly as assistant commandant has increased the chances for the University unit to be placed in the honor class. First Sergeant Abendroth has ably assisted Captain Felker, managing the routine office work. With the strongly evidenced necessity for military preparedness and with a staff of such exceptional quality, the University of Idaho R. O. T. C. is well on its way to a high standard of perfection.

Captain Luther Felker

Captain Luther Felker came to the University of Idaho in the summer of 1917, when his predecessor, Captain Cummings, was put into active duty. His appointment here followed a request by Dr. Lindley for a man who would be able to work with college men, and comprehend the conditions surrounding a University atmosphere.

Captain Felker comes from a family of scholars. Serving in the Spanish-American war, he was later put on the retired list on account of poor health. Besides having a desire for college work, he was praised highly by the war department as a man who could well handle the situation at the University of Idaho. Starting on his new task, he built on Captain Cummings' work, and worked in sympathy with the former commander's plans at all times. His success is indicated by the fact that this R. O. T. C. last year ranked highest in its class, and this year contends strongly for a position in the honor class.

With the advent of the S. A. T. C., he rose magnificently to the task, and at all times worked with the civil, academic and military authorities to rank this University unit high. His ability to smooth over all conflicts with the other departments of work was one reason for the high commendation of this unit by the staff of the military department.

He was well pleased with the response given by the men, officers and other authorities. Eager to make the unit excel, the University has backed Captain Felker to the last minute. With another term, the University of Idaho S. A. T. C. would have been a big success.

On this man's discharge, a document of superior quality, is the statement, "This man showed exceptional bravery in the battle of San Juan Hill".

Captain Felker is at all times a practical soldier, with a scholarly mind, and possesses the individuality to wend his way sympathetically

The 1918 Football Season

The restrictions on time for practice and leave of absence for trips by the S. A. T. C. placed a handicap on the football season that made the chances for a winning team dim, but Coach Bleamaster succeeded in turning out a scrapping aggregation in the time allotted him that turned an apparently hopeless season into one of history.

The Old Idaho Fight triumphed over Washington State College for the first time in five years and the two games with Gonzaga counted one victory for the Silver and the Gold and one tie. The University of Idaho filled an engagement against the Mare Island Marines in Spokane with the sole purpose of bringing that crack team to the Inland Empire and though overwhelmingly defeated fought gamely against odds that were not to be overcome.

The men who participated in the games were awarded the athletic sweater the same as the Varsity with the exception of the letters "U. S." in red on the "I". Although these men are not considered officially as "I" men, their efforts to keep Idaho on the Athletic map are none the less commendable and to these with Coach Bleamaster we are indebted for a successful continuation of fighting traditions.

Five Idaho players were given places on the mythical all-S. A. T. C. team—Irving, Corneilson, Meehan, Hansen, Perrine.

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

VICTOR PEARSON
Moscow, Idaho

Captain and Tackle

"Vic" was fighting leader of the warriors and a factor in every play that came his way. A good field general and a thorough student of the game. Played his last game for the Varsity.

LEON PERRINE
Nez Perce, Idaho
Left Tackle

A moose on both defense and offense. Smashed up play after play before it got started and never had an inch made through his side of the line. One more year on the Idaho gridiron.

RICHARD FOX
Nez Perce, Idaho
Right End

Makes up in ability what he lacks in size. Great on spilling the interference and very few plays got around his end of the line. Has three more years to worry the opposing quarterbacks.

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

LYLE MEEHAN

Spokane, Wash.

Left End

The best punter on the team and a good defensive man as well. Stationed at Idaho during S. A. T. C. and returned to Gonzaga.

LOUIS STEPHENS

Blackfoot, Idaho

Left Guard

A consistent performer in the line and one of the heaviest men on the team. Possesses fighting ability and never gives way an inch. Two more years left to play.

PERCY HANSEN

Salt Lake City, Utah

Right Halfback

The fastest man on the team and great on an open field. Got away with a couple of long runs from intercepted passes.

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

BOYD BRIGHAM

Moscow, Idaho

Quarterback

Good at picking the right play at the right time and kept the team on their toes all the time. A dangerous man when bringing back a punt. Two more years to serve.

BENJAMIN BAILEY

Twin Falls, Idaho

Sub Tackle

Had hard competition, but always fighting for a regular position.

EDWARD OAKES

Twin Falls, Idaho

Sub Center

Dependable when needed and could be counted on in a pinch.

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

DAVID WIKS
Coeur d'Alene, Idaho

Sub Center

Another man that was hard to keep off as a regular and helped to develop the team to its season's record.

BOYD CORNEILSON
Moscow, Idaho

Left End

One of the men responsible for the victory over Pullman. Played in the one game but was in it all the time. Two years left at Idaho.

CARL NAGEL
Genesee, Idaho

Left Guard

Powerful lineman and fought all the time he played. Will fight for three years more on the Varsity field.

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

JOHN GARRITY
Nampa, Idaho
Fullback

A wonderful line plunger and can always be depended on for yardage when it is needed. Also strong at backing up the line and caught all that sifted through the middle.

NEIL IRVING
Rupert, Idaho
Left Halfback

Long suit is end runs and his build combined with his speed make him hard to get. Possesses a knack of picking the holes and always gets through for good yardage. Will be battling for two more years.

WARREN BARBER
Boise, Idaho
Left Guard

Unable to be out the entire season, but was there with all kinds of jazz for the W. S. C. game and came through when it counted. Will be on deck for another round next year.

ALBERT GRAF
Coeur d'Alene, Idaho

Sure on his passes back and big enough to fill the pivot position in the line. Fights all the time. Has two years left to fill his place.

COACH BLEAMASTER

The Athletic Season

Idaho's athletic season as a whole was very successful. In basketball Idaho won the all-northwest championship. Idaho's eleven trimmed W. S. C., 7 to 6, making the football season more than worth while. From advance indications the track year will be good. In the conference meet the eight winged "I" men are expected to rank high among the northwestern college track men. Baseball was the poorest of the four sports. With only 11 eligible candidates Coach Bleamaster made up a good team under the circumstances. Lack of enthusiasm for this sport has long been a drawback, but prospects for next season are quite bright, since this year several Freshmen showed real class.

Moe, Hunter, Campbell, Romig, Lindley, Carder, Perrine, proved too much for Washington, Oregon, W. S. C. and the rest of the conference colleges in basketball. Idaho won and well deserves the northwest title.

Tennis may develop into an important spring sport in the near future. Both men and women took an active interest in the clay court sport this spring, and Idaho will be represented in the conference meet at Pullman.

The Freshman rule limits Idaho's possibilities somewhat, but under a regulated system of Freshman athletics the first year men would not be at a loss as to means of demonstrating their athletic duty to their Alma Mater.

Basketball Season

The University of Idaho Basketball team for the second time in two years annexed the Northwest conference championship with a record of ten games won and two lost. The Vandals scored a total of 582 points against an opponents 335 during the season and the crowning feature was the overwhelming defeat of Washington State College the last game. The personnel of the team was the same as last year with the exception of Captain-elect Hyde, who did not return to school, his place being filled alternately by Romig and Carder.

The record of games is as follows:

*Idaho, 51; Spokane U., 19.	Idaho, 45; Whitman, 16.
*Idaho, 34; Ganzaga, 13.	Idaho, 59; Whitman, 23.
Idaho, 40; Whitman, 30.	Idaho, 44; W. S. C., 24.

W. C. BLEAMASTER, Coach

"Blea" took "Hec" Edmundson's bunch of basket-shooters, and developed them into a team that guard and play the floor as well as they locate the ring.

"DROM" CAMPBELL

Captain and Center

All-Northwest Center last season and invincible leader of the Vandals this year. Pivot for Idaho offense and a dangerous man under the basket. Scores as regularly as clockwork. Two seasons to play.

"PREX" LINDLEY, Guard

Captain-Elect

Mainstay of Idaho defense for two seasons. His ability to get in the air and take them off the backboard started many Idaho plays. One year to go.

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

"SQUINTY" HUNTER, Forward

Last year's captain and best field goal shot on the team. Repeated with interest this year, and got 126 out of 198 free throws. Always there with a score, and has two years to go.

"BO" MOE, Forward

Last year All-Northwest Forward and can't be kept off this year. The fastest man on the team. Two more years to come as a Vandal.

"NUTZ" ROMIG, Guard

Played his last game under Idaho colors this season. Shifted from center to guard and immediately made good. Work the floor well and kept the opposing forwards to few baskets.

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

"WILD BILL" CARDER, Guard

Broke into the game late in the season but fought like a demon every minute he was in. Lived up to his name and was a big factor in the beating handed W. S. C.

PAT PERRINE, Sub Center

A power in defence and a dead shot under the hoop. Rolled in several points for Idaho.

BOYD BRIGHAM, Sub Guard

A fast guard and will put up a strong fight for a place next year.

The 1918 Track Season

Although the University of Idaho track team participated in but two meets during the season, both of which were dual meets with W. S. C., the season was more successful than the scores would indicate. Coach Edmundson started the season with one letter man as a nucleus and turned out eight first place winners, but a scarcity of second and third place men made it impossible to annex enough points to win the meets. The suspension of the Freshman rule for the period of the war allowed the use of a number of promising men and of these Moe, Irving, Howard and Luttrupp made good.

Captain Richmond won the 100 in both meets; lost the 220 at Idaho, but won that event at Pullman. Moe won both low hurdles and took a first and a second in the broad jump. Irving won both shot puts; took a first and a second in the discus and two seconds in the javelin. Perrine won both javelin events; two seconds in the shot; first in the high hurdles at Moscow and two thirds at Pullman. Howard took the hugh sticks at Pullman; and McCallie took two seconds in the quarter. Luttrupp placed in the half mile and two mile in both meets.

All these men with the exception of Luttrupp are in school this year and chances for repetition are particularly bright.

One Idaho record was shattered when Irving set the shot out for a distance of 42 feet, topping the old record held by Buck Phillips by six inches.

The University of Montana called off the meet scheduled at Missoula and the inability of the other Conference teams to get in the field made it necessary to cancel the Conference meet at Pullman.

The Idaho track team was composed of the following men, who competed in the events as noted:

Captain Richmond	Sprints	McCallie	Quarter
Howard	Hurdles	Thompson	Sprints
Irving	Weights	Smith	Mile
Luttrupp	Distances	Rosinbum	Middle Distances
Eaton	Quarter	Bistline	Quarter

CAPTAIN ALMQUIST

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

Baseball

From the standpoint of games won and lost, the 1918 baseball season was the most disastrous participated in for some years. The team looked good for a start, but injuries and hard luck combined to make it necessary to shift the lineup a number of times and a winning combination was never effected. The team was without the services of Captain Almquist most of the season, due to injuries received in the first Washington State College game, and the loss of his assistance around the first sack and with the stick was keenly felt.

Rettig was not up to form in the box, his arm still bothering from its injury of the previous season. Coach Bleamaster was confronted with the task of developing an entire new battery and turned one out that performed creditably, though not up to previous standards. Moe played a good game at third and starred at the bat and Largent did well, considering his lack of experience at first.

The team lacked most of all heavy stickers who could hit consistently in the pinches. On several occasions lack of opportune blows lost chances to win.

The schedules of games played is as follows:

At Moscow	-----Idaho	1	W. S. C.	2
At Pullman	-----Idaho	5	W. S. C.	10
At Moscow	-----Idaho	5	W. S. C.	6
At Pullman	-----Idaho	5	W. S. C.	12
At Moscow	-----Idaho	4	Montana	1
At Moscow	-----Idaho	4	Whitman	7

Idaho: Won 1, Lost 5.

The Athletic Board

The Athletic Board is composed of seven members of the A. S. U. I. elected at the annual Spring election to serve for one year. While there are no restrictions as to service, the custom has always been that it will be composed of men who have made their letter in some Varsity sport and it is the policy to have each branch represented.

The Athletic board has charge of all matters concerning the major and minor sports and is, in addition, empowered with the granting of letters as specified in the constitution.

The officers and members of the board for 1918-1919 are as follows:

The Executive Board

The organization known as the Associated Students of the University of Idaho came into existence in 1903. The purpose of the organization is to enable the students, through their executive board, to carry on the work of an organized student body. The executive board is composed of representatives from the various activities—the student body officers and a faculty member. This board has charge of all the disbursements of the students' funds resulting from the registration fee and transacts all general student body business. This year for the first time in the history of the University the publication of the "Gem of the Mountains" has been under the supervision of the Executive board.

The A. S. U. I. includes every student in the University. A fee of three dollars per quarter is collected from each student for the support of the student activities. The fee entitles the student to all the privileges arising out of all the various student funds, and also the privilege of voting. The general election of student officers is held in May of each year.

English Club

The English Club has existed under different forms since 1906, when Dr. Moore first brought together a group of students interested in the drama. In October, 1913, with the encouragement of Dr. Moore, Miss Brashear and Mr. Lehman, the Club reorganized under student control and adopted a definite constitution; its chief aim, however, continued to be "to stimulate interest in good drama, to create a theater in which to present examples of the best English plays, and to uphold the high standards of this form of entertainment and instruction". In 1917-1918, when Dr. Miller came to the University as head of the Department of English, he called a meeting of the major students in English and suggested that the Club should be so organized as to coordinate all student activities in the University which might legitimately look to the department for help or encouragement and to hold out a reward to those students showing special interest and ability in English work. The suggestion was received with enthusiasm, and a constitution was proposed and adopted to enlarge the functions of the Club by providing for a membership from the major students and instructors in the department, the debating teams, the editorial staffs of the "Argonaut" and the "Gem of the Mountains", members of the casts and of the producing staffs in college plays and others showing dramatic ability by successful try-outs, and all other persons who give evidence to the Membership Committee of a permanent interest in the purposes of the Club.

In its practical aspects, the work of the Club is two-fold. Through standing and special committees, it helps to develop and foster the various student activities represented in the Club. An example of this phase of its activity is the successful production of plays last year and this. Then the interest of the Club as a whole is focused in the regular meetings occurring on the second Wednesday of every month during the college year. It is always the attempt of the Executive Committee to make these meetings wholly enjoyable. The Club was not reorganized to provide additional class room lectures. The talks of its faculty members and the addresses of persons of distinction coming from outside of the University are never merely informative or "high brow"—they try, rather, to add to the enjoyment of the members in the various extra-classroom phases of writing, of speaking, of dramatics, and of literature. Not the least part of the regular meetings is the enjoyable social hour that follows the program. The enthusiasm of its members for all phases of its life and work promises for the English Club a permanent and increasing place among the student activities of the University.

The Associated Barbs

The Associated Barbs, an organization of all non-fraternity men on the campus, came into existence in the fall of 1916. The object of the organization is to promote a greater fellowship and solidarity among the non-fraternity men, to act upon matters peculiarly concerning non-fraternity students, and to assist in unifying the student body of the University.

In the three years of its existence the Association has become a power for good in the University and has promise of becoming one of the leading factors in the University life in the future.

Bench and Bar Association

The Bench and Bar Association was organized in 1912. Its membership includes all the students regularly enrolled in the College of Law. The purpose of the association is to effect a unity of action among the students and faculty, and to preserve and enrich the traditions of the law school. It is responsible for the publication of the "Law Argonaut", the staging of the "Lawyers' Court", and the maintenance of the "Honor System" in the law school. Through the association prominent lawyers and judges are brought to the school to speak before its meetings. In this way the law school keeps in touch with new developments of the law in the courts of the state.

The Robin's Lullaby

Sleep, sleep, sleep,
Darkness is falling, my babes;
The glorious sunbeams have sunk to their rest,
Gold-spangled curtains are hung in the west;
Sleep, sleep, sleep.

Sleep, sleep, sleep,
Black night is o'er us, my babes;
Up in the tree-top your cradle is fast,
Rocked by the breezes and swayed by the blast;
Sleep, sleep, sleep.

Sleep, sleep, sleep,
Safe in your cradle, my babes;
Under your mother's wings, cozy and warm,
Safe from the elfins that ride on the storm,
Sleep, sleep, sleep.

On Originality

For heaven's sake don't try yourself to be,
Adopt some other man's philosophy.
Here individuality is sin;
It must be crushed to save your worthless skin.
A teacher's only task it seems to be
Is to arrest originality.
The Sands of Time are asphalt, they believe,
And so try not your footprints there to leave.
T'wards learning facts must we our efforts bend,
Not as a means, but in itself an end.
Learn all your books by heart and understand
Nothing is good unless learned second hand.
Try only to accumulative be,
T'is more needed than productivity.
Burn midnight oil and rise at break of day.
Study incessantly—it's sure to pay,
You'll be rewarded with a priceless "A".

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

The Treasure

The rain beat against the window panes and the pines without sighed and moaned in the wind. Mrs. Lockworthy shivered and drew the covers closer about her. The creek that ran underneath the cabin sent up a draft of cold air through the thin floor. Mrs. Lockworthy was thinking that summering in the mountains was not what it was "cracked up to be". Hard at work back in the hospital, she used to dream of going to sleep to the sound of murmuring mountain streams, but she had never imagined a shrieking, rattling night like this, and she yearned for a comfortable bed and a little steam heat. Overhead in the garret woodrats thumped their tails against all possible objects. "Woodrats", Mrs. Lockworthy repeated determinedly, as if trying to convince herself that it was not the restless tapping of departed spirits. She tried to become reminiscent in order to overcome her nervousness and go to sleep. She thought over her years of hospital work, but no pleasant memories returned to her. On the contrary, the faces of the dead and dying she had seen there rose before her with startling vividness. She clutched at her pillow and wished the doctor would hurry home.

Dr. Lockworthy had gone up in the mountains that evening to look after a wretched old pioneer, who, according to rumor, was dying up there with no one to care for him. He must have found the old fellow in a bad condition, for it was now nearly ten and he had not returned. She hoped he would find his way down the mountain safely. There was no reason why he should not. They had spent their summer exploring the ridge and they both knew every turn and path of it.

Suddenly, Mrs. Lockworthy sat up in bed. She thought she had heard the telephone bell ringing above the noise of the storm. She sprang up with the promptness characteristic of a woman of her profession and groped her way into the next room without even waiting to light a candle. She took down the receiver and listened. "Hello". There was no answer. Only the humming of the wires in the storm. She was about to hang up when she was stopped by the sound of her husband's voice. Clear and distinct it came across the wire. "Can you come up here?", he was asking. "Yes", she responded, and listened again. There was a moment's silence, then the voice said again, "I need you".

It was her husband's most professional voice and she responded to it without delay. In a few minutes she was dressed and held a lighted lantern in her hand, ready to go out into the night. As she opened the door the wind blew the cold rain in her face. She started as if from a dream, and a sudden doubt crossed her mind. "I am dreaming", she told herself. "He could not have phoned from up there. That old fellow has no phone". For a few minutes she stood undecided as to whether she should go or stay, but the clear voice of her husband rang in her ears, and she obeyed.

It occurred to her as she hurried up the mountain side that the old man in question was a wild, romantic character. "The Jesse James of Red Spur Ridge", he had been called, and there was scarcely a crime he had not been accused of committing. It was rumored that he had stored away in his cabin enough gold plunder to buy every mine in the Ridge. In her heart of hearts Mrs. Lockworthy believed that this rumor had urged the doctor to make the call. Professional men are likely to be mercenary.

While nursing, Mrs. Lockworthy had learned the art of closing her mind to all but the case in hand and giving no place to her sentiments and emotions. She struggled now for this state of mind, and in a measure regained it.

She spent an unmeasured while in climbing. The wet pine branches which overhung the narrow mountain path struck out at her in the darkness. The underbrush caught at her skirts. More than once she thought of turning back but that invincible something urged her on.

At last a light shone before her and she recognized her destination. So desolate, so deserted-looking was the shack that she felt afraid to enter. She paused at the door and listened. A low creaking sound reached her ears. Then she tiptoed over to the window and looked in. A fire was dying in a disorderly hearth. A bit of candle sent a faint light from the mantle shelf. An unmade, unoccupied bed stood in the center of the room. The doctor's open case and a basin of water lay on the floor beside it. There was no signs of life. She flattened her face against the pane and looked into the farthest corner of the room. Something was moving there. Out of the dusk rose a white-haired man. His face was contorted with pain and he moved with great difficulty. He staggered to the bed and fell face downward upon it.

Her husband had gone somewhere to phone to her, she thought, and had been delayed. At any rate the old man needed care, and she was on duty. She went in to him without further hesitation. Ever so gently she turned him to a comfortable position and bathed his fevered brow. His eyes were glassy, but at the touch of cold water a light of consciousness came into them. She felt his pulse. It was fast and beat heavily. She turned to put some wood on the fire, and when she came back he was trying to speak. It may have been her imagination, but she thought she heard him say something about "money". Very indistinctly she heard it, for he was very weak, and his lips were blistered with fever. She smiled a professional smile and stroked his thin hand soothingly. Powerful hands they had been once and more powerful arms. She gazed at them half fearfully even now, though death was fast overtaking the old man. An occasional glint came into his eyes, an expression that made her wish the doctor would hurry back. He was trying to speak again. Mrs. Lockworthy listened. This time she caught the word "money", and something more about "in the closet".

It was his last utterance. Traditions of Red Spur Ridge tell how at his death seven devils ran forth from the shack. Mrs. Lockworthy did not see these seven, however. She closed the staring eyes, covered the blue face, and stood gazing alternately from the bed to a low door in the corner of the room. Then she tiptoed over to the door and opened it. It flew back and a heavy something pushed forward on the floor. She bent down and touched it. It was soft, cold and damp. When she drew her hand away and held it to the candle light she saw that it was stained—stained red and sticky. Then all was revealed to her, and she let the door swing back and rushed crazed down the mountain toward the town.

This is a world of multiplicity and change,
And in each little bluebird drifting o'er the green,
We see a shining vestige of our fairest dream.
Without beginning,—yet without end,
It wings its pathway through this world so strange.

Retreat

A bugle note across the campus sounding,
At evening, when the ruddy sun is low—
A half a thousand khaki figures pouring
From out their barracks, forming, row on row—

A sharp command, "Attention!"—Each man stiffens
And stands stock still. The bugle sounds again.
Old Glory slowly lowers, while the echoes
Blend in a sweet, harmonious refrain.

Old Glory, 'tis a tribute we all give you,
This sunset homage—a salute unsought,
Yet given freely, by your sons who love you—
A glorious promise—loyal, fearing naught.

Old Glory, when our Captain calls "Attention!"
At sunset, when our life's small work is done,
May we have been true soldiers, ever faithful,
Courageous, truthful, manly—every one.

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

A Postum Fable

I hardly knew where I was, and I did not care much. I remembered being in the army, and going to France, shooting at a few Huns and getting shot at, and that was all. But then, I was having a pretty good time now, so didn't bother about remembering.

It was a weird place I was in, though richly furnished. . . . Here, I lived on, doing nothing in particular, just existing. I enjoyed the evenings most, when everyone gathered round a huge fireplace and spun yarns. The weirdness, the sobriety and variety of that assemblage was appalling at first. Though the members of the fireside party changed, from time to time; there was one man who seemed to stay on forever. I shall never forget him. Rather emaciated, sallow, anemic; his seemingly visionless, far-seeing gray eyes gave him a most weird expression. His part on the program appeared to be fixed. Each night, before our company disbursed, he would tell a story—a story that in itself, was of no especial interest; except that it was the same for every evening; word for word; even his gestures and his inflections never changed. He would tell his story, a rather strange one to be sure, and the meeting would break up. That his story had some bearing upon us, I was sure, for each night after leaving the fire, someone from our party would be overcome with curiosity, go to him, and ask him what the mystery was about this tale. Once told, they were never seen by us again.

This is the story:

"A man and his wife lived a married life of exceptional beauty and comradeship for many years. They were so wrapped up in each other that each looked with fear toward the day when they must finally part. This extreme love brought about the sad part of this couple's story. The fact that this man was a coffee fiend was the cause of their jolted love dreams. After worrying for many years, his wife consulted a doctor about her husband's craving and the doctor, upon due consideration, gave his verdict: this man should, by the aid of his wife, be relegated to substitutes for the vile bean.

"So the wife began her tedious task. In the morning, she so diluted the coffee that he received one drop of the substitutes in each of his seven cups. Day by day she increased his portion. At first, all went well, but finally his constitution weakened and gradually, slowly, he lost strength. He began to look emaciated; he became sallow, and he continued to grow more so with the increasing substitute. In a few months, with only three drops of coffee left in the substitute, he was weakened until . . . until . . . ; well, my friends, that man died when the last drop of coffee was taken from him. They say that the man went to heaven."

Though the man's tale was queer to me at first, I took no special notice of it until the continued performance completely unnerved me. Finally, after I had heard it for many nights, I gathered up enough courage to brace him on the subject. After the meeting one evening, I demanded of him: "My friend, what is the purpose of your story, and what is it that makes it so queer that makes it pertinent to us? Who was that woman who so lost her loved husband?"

Then in a short sentence, came from him, the terse answer, the answer that ended my existence in that place, and sent me to——, well, I am still going.

"That woman", he said, "was my wife." And so I found out, I had been killed in that last scrap, and I was in heaven.

—M. J., '22

I, who goodness only knows
Could never write in aught but prose
Am asked for English to compose
 Some verses;
 But curses!
The Muse descends not on a maid
So I must go to class, I'm afraid
And get my customary grade.

A Weed

I think there is a bit of the weed in me. I love to be out in the rain, to feel the drops pelt against my face and head in all their dear freshness. They seem to put new life and vigor into me as they do into the drought-burned weed. They make me feel like standing up, unafraid, with all the proud disregard of a weed for the feeling provoked in mere people by its presence, and fulfilling my own mission in life without consideration of passing demonstrations and unpleasant expressions of opinion.

—V. W., '22

"The Snake"

Like a treacherous, coiling snake, a green, eddying river twists its tortuous way through vast lanes of sage brush which stretch monotonously into the purple distance.

—G. N., '22

"Shirts"

Wool shirts are a machine of the devil. They scratch you on your neck, arms, and on a hot day, your shins even itch. The hair on the back of your neck stands out straight when someone puffs by on a hot day, with a sweaty wool shirt on. After a day of torture in a woven file, when you pull the shirt over your head and throw it on a chair the feeling is indescribable. You rub your arms, abuse the place that itched most, and feel the little cold shivers chase each other around your neck and shoulders.

—J. G., '22

Ode (Owed) to a Debt

That you, bill, can never be paid
Is a fact which I oft regret,
For you must wait till my fortune's made—
I sure feel sorry for you—debt.

'Tis once a month that you come to me
With a passionate plea, I know,
But you'll run on anon, till gold is free
And I push lilies through the snow.

And, debt, though you strive extremely hard,
To sever a part of my poke,
You'll get your reward—when I'm under the sword,
For I am, and always will be, broke.

—M. J., '22

On Hurry-Ups

There still is at this University
A relic of ancient barbarity;
The grades of those whose grades are very low
Are on a public board exposed for show,
That mocking crowds may laugh and jeer at you
As at the pillories they used to do;
So if you've leanings t'ward stupidity
Don't fail to enter a fraternity;
For if a hurry-up should bear your name
A brother's snatching it will save you shame.

College Philosophy

When Spring exams are hov'ring
And you burn the midnight oil,
And you dream of dear vacation
Free from literary toil;

Then your home town seems enchanted,
Filled with magic unexplored,
And you wish that you were "homeward bound"
And were safely "all aboard".

When the summer sun is sweltering
And the bees are droning low,
And the butterflies are liltng
'Mongst the flow'rtips; soft and slow;

Then you wish that fall were nearer,
And 'twere registration day—
And you'd paid your precious five
And were back at school to stay!

Mourning doves in a row
On the eaves lowly coo;
Graceful forms of dull hue
Against a sky of deeper blue
Cooing, cooing low.

What bitter brew
Drink you?
Coo, coo!

Gem of the Mountains

The Gem of the Mountains is an Idaho publication which portrays in a more or less kaleidoscopic fashion the events characteristic of the whole college year. Heretofore it has been edited by the Junior class, but this year it was managed by the Associated Students and the many points in favor of such a system may establish a tradition.

The publication of the annual is a great task, but it is surely worth the effort if it succeeds in handing on a link that will connect with the books of former years and in forming a continuous chain of Idaho's activities.

It is one of our oldest traditions and perhaps the most popular and beneficial.

The Argonaut

The Argonaut is the newspaper of the students of the University. The editor and business manager elected by them are in complete control.

Last fall the Argonaut found itself without a staff. But under the direction of Mr. R. D. Jameson of the English department and Helga Anderson, acting editor, a staff, composed principally of girls, was organized and the paper published in spite of the S. A. T. C. and the influenza quarantine. At the beginning of the second quarter the Argonaut reverted into the hands of the staff originally elected for 1918-1919.

Two important advances were made by the Argonaut this year. The news-gathering was placed upon a more efficient basis, through cooperation with Mr. Jameson's class in newswriting. This resulted in the development of a large staff of capable reporters, which, together with the capable business management of Alfred Kinney, enabled the Argonaut to become a semi-weekly publication during the third quarter.

The Argonaut began its career in 1899 as a monthly magazine. The staff is now planning for the day when it will be a daily.

Traditions

We are living in an age of progress, but while we are aspiring to always move forward we must not forget that certain old customs are emphatic representations of wisdom and learning. On the campus we refer to these old customs as college traditions. We desire to perpetuate our college traditions because they are the rituals which remind us of some of the best things we learn in college.

Our foremost tradition is that by which we show our respect and veneration for the President of the University. It is with pride that the sons of Idaho doff their hats to him. We salute him with the same feeling that a true soldier salutes his beloved commander.

During the first real spring weather of every year the Senior class exercises its traditional privilege of absenting itself from one day's classes out of its four years labor and takes to the hills. It is to be very much regretted that recently the underclassmen have misunderstood that this is a Senior privilege coming only after long years of work and have attempted to assume this Senior privilege for themselves. As they become advanced in college they will realize that they have been in error. We hope the underclassmen will not again be guilty of such sophistry and spoil another "Senior Sneak".

It is now well established that no classes at Idaho should ever engage in hazing. As a substitute we now have the Annual Freshman-Sophomore scrap soon after school opens each fall. After the scrap come the "Bury the Hatchet" and the "Upperclassmen" dances. The upperclassmen generally invade the "Bury the Hatchet" before the evening is over.

Freshmen always begin wearing the "green postage stamp" with the pearly button when school opens and employ that headgear till campus day in May. In contrast with the obligatory green cap on the frosh is the Senior privilege of wearing a cane and cowboy hat.

The evening of the last day of the interscholastic track meet is always celebrated by the stunt fest and song contest. This has resulted in the production of many beautiful Idaho songs. Tradition makes it the job of each Freshman Class to build the bonfire on the eve of the annual football game with W. S. C.

On Campus day the men work in the morning in improving the campus. In the afternoon comes the procession of the May Queen and the Seniors in Cap and Gown from the University Gardens. It is on this day also that the graduating class plants its ivy.

There are various other traditions which should be mentioned, but many of them are so common to every day campus life that they are an inseparable part of that life itself . . .

Junior Class

Motto: "We give up." Signed, Patrick L. O'Brien, President.

The only way that we know that the Junior class is here is by the space given up to their overdue bills and class meeting notices on the bulletin boards. They realized that their talent was very limited, and so gave up the annual, also their hopes of a modest class president. They gave up the custom of paying bills after the Junior Prom, and gave up the ghost when the sophs gave them h—— for giving their wild vest show. Much given to looking up to Seniors; they tried to act tough when the Seniors gave their sneak. Prexy gave up the hope of being a heart smasher when he ran the Argonaut onto the Sholes, and the whole bunch is given to showing the Frosh how important a Junior really is. They were also going to give a play, but they gave up when the Seniors gave them the idea that they would give up anyway.

Their colors are black and white, the white giving way to blue in some cases. One reason that they gave up the annual was because they had a Darling editor, and a Morris chair for a business manager.

O'Brein would have made a good president, but he didn't have enough Ginger. Newland is the only notorious member of the class, being in the English club, and Keane has the best "line" in school, although Brooks will blow on forever. Thompson majors in a D. G. course. This class has a first class vampire, and a cupid, the cupid posing for Rose O'Neill's pictures in the Ladies' Home Journal. Bill Denecke has accomplished his aim in life, being Vice-President of the Ag. Club. The girls have all joined the "I Wanta Frosh" club, as the upper classmen know too well.

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

Senior

When this scintillating, dazzling crew of sheepskin chasers were poured into the mold, the Lord's cauldron was teeming over with his most supreme mixtures, making the resulting candidates for life much superior in all ways to the common run, with the exception that he tried to mix blue blood and red blood, from which emanated canes, cowboy hats and chewing tobacco, making the result ludicrous to some of the real men on the campus. What they lack in college widows is made up by many "twosers", the girls preferring under class boys, so they can sling a free eye when they graduate into the world of keen looking males. They had a sneak "flu", and the girls knew about it, so it didn't leak out. They had it early, hoping to catch some worms to sell to the Zoology department, but all they caught was h—— from the under classmen by not having it when they didn't have to study so hard, although we admitted that the school couldn't run without them, and also ran.

However, the gown wearers have many good points, the main one being that they will soon leave us, and they believe that "we also serve who only sit and wait", and are, therefore, very valuable on committees where they furnish the decorum. Their athletes are many; Ott being the best kicker in school, and McCrea all-Northwest center of attraction. Rettig is a runner, having run the A. S. U. I. into the ground. Richmond comes from West Point, and the staff of the annual wishes that he had gone West when he pointed out the mistakes in this annual. When a man goes West he Burns, if he has lived such a life as some Barbers. However, all Pearls are not Pink, and Helga hasn't ruined many boys lives.

Sophomore

Motto: We don't smoke and we don't chew,
And we don't associate with boys that do.

Honest, girls, this is the keneest bunch of youngsters who ever belonged to our Sunday School. The boys are not at all rough, and they foxed the Freshmen, by not fighting them, and let on that the Frosh razooed them, but they were only fooling. The president, a large, terribly rough child, uses guns to guard dates, so is very popular in fires, which are always started by Wood. The whole class goes by the name of Kinney, although a one-time president did dress up like a girl and camouflage like a D. G., so the boys call him "dere Bill".

Upper classmen Endeavor meetings are held Sunday afternoons, with the object in view of becoming as good as everybody else combined, and have succeeded in becoming the best dancers, but that is because they are lightheaded, and dance all the specials. The girls have had experience as jail birds.

You Win

It was a bright moonlight night in the late spring and the very air seemed to breathe a sense of romance. She, a pretty young thing, was a Senior in school as well as a decided man-hater. She had never been kissed and never was going to be (she said). He, also a pretty young thing, and also a Senior, had been courting her night and day since his Sophomore year.

As they stood, close together, he gathered her in his arms and breathed these words close, so close, to her: "Dearest, I love you", and then, while the very air breathed a sense of romance, he, of course, kissed her.

Late that night he collected $3.95 from the fellows who had said it couldn't be done.

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

WHY
GO TO IDAHO!

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

Phi Delta Theta

Motto: Be a class officer, or a sergeant, if possible; if not, be something, even if you have to be in the Boise Club.

This is a very select bunch who were elected for their ability to chew tobacco, fuss, argue and boast; and also they are the best dressed bunch on the campus with the exception of the Short Ags. They fall into two classes: those with a 14-size neck and those with a 15½ size. Each class owns two silk shirts in common and the men who sit next to the Phi Delt guests wear these shirts. It was impossible for all of the Phi Delt to dress up at once, so they gave a story book costume ball; the Phi Delt were very natural, all of them looking simple and childlike, which is the reason they gave this kind of ball. The brothers are expecting to build a house sometime in the next decade and for this reason are pledging as many fellows as possible to help work on the house. The Chapter house is conveniently located, for borrowing from D. G.'s, Betas and Kappas; this accounts for the good eats they have. Al Kinney says that if all the good looking Phi Delt were placed on top of each other, the top man could kick a duck, if Poosey did the kicking. Poosey looks all right from his ankles up, if it wasn't for his face. Their illustrious red-headed President is looked up to by everyone under six feet.

Sigma Nu

Motto: Grab dates with the new girls.

The Sigma Nus are the most exclusive sorority at Idaho. The men are very refined and ladylike, good examples: Ken Newland and Ted Hege. The upperclassmen say that the Sigma Nus have the most exclusive bunch of girls on the campus. S. A. T. C. life was very hard on the sisters, for it brought them in contact with so many rough and uncouth men. The Frosh say that if the S. A. T. C. taught them (S. Nu's) one thing, it taught them to shoot. They are a very home loving bunch and have not yet severed connections with the traditional apron string. The Brothers are very afraid to go home in the dark (most girls are) and for this reason feature Gamma Phis at their parties. One may recognize a Sigma Nu by the dainty way which he picks his way across the campus.

Beta Theta Pi

Motto: We love all our brothers—
To H—— with all others.

The Betas are the men who put the put in puttees. Brother Hollis McCrea has estimated that if all the leather puttees owned by the Betas were laid together, there would be enough hide to cover cows enough to furnish milk for the entire German Army. Dean Eldridge wishes his puttees included. These would at least cover another cow. The brothers are noted for their singing power. This exercise has broadened and expanded their chests; one may recognize a Beta by his immense chest and girth. One of their broadest chests belongs to Happy. According to this, he is their best singer. The brothers are envious of the Kappa Sigs' reputation and are trying to see if they cannot be tougher than the Sigs. Judging from all reports they are succeeding very well, and sometime may be awful tough. While there is life there is hope. The Betas cannot abide quarantine rules and due to their love of the weed, are the only bunch on the campus who have had the thrills of an arrest.

Kappa Sigma

Motto. "Cakes, women and wrist-watches."

The Kappa Sigma fraternity is the only aristocratic and blue-blooded bunch on the campus, according to Dean Hulme. They may be recognized by their loud collars, ties and their vaseline hair. The only Sinn Feiner in College is a Kappa Sig. Their reputation is especially good among the Moscow High School girls. Cecil Ryan was the Kappa Sig heart smasher before he fell in love with the cook. They are the only fraternity on the campus who can afford to keep a dog. This is really economical, for the dog takes turns sleeping with the brothers and thus saves the purchase of new blankets. Their house is one of the most picturesque Spots on the campus and is fully as new and as modern as the University Barn. It has been estimated that if a brick was taken from the walls of the Kappa Sig house and thrown at every bill collector who called there, the house would be totally demolished inside of two days.

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

Alpha Kappa Epsilon

Motto: We take what we can get.

The Akes are not a pill, but are one of the seven wonders of the world, the wonder is that other people let them live. They are noted for their big feet, due to exercising them so much on their long walks across town. They are also notorious for their dancing, both esthetic and otherwise. Kewpie Newman, one of their broadest men, who earns his way through college by posing (who's your tailor and Rose O'Neil) and lives on parafine (cheap), is one of the best examples of A. K. E. dancing. He dances all the time and all over the floors. He is the inventor of the New Man wiggle. The Akes can very properly be called "George Morey's Sunday School Class". Their strange way of dancing is due, no doubt, to George Morey's choric song and dance. Some of the most notorious men in College are Akes—men like the A. S. U. I. President, Ott, famous red-headed lawyer, and Harry Hartwell, matinee idol.

Zeta Chi Alpha

Motto. We take the rest.

They originated and developed in the Devonian Age (age of fishes), during a lost interval. They are noted for many usual and unusual things, one of which is the place they hold in scholarship. The Zeta Chi membership was sadly depleted after examination, when a bunch of the brothers found it necessary to pack their carpet bags and take a vacation. The Zeta Chis hold the horse-shoe throwing championship of the Campus, and also hold the record for red hair. Pat Perrine, Junior, is due to wake from his twenty-years' sleep sometime next year. The brothers are distinguished for their cast iron nerve. They are petitioning S. A. E. The Zeta Chi barn (where they keep their goats) is always full. They say ignorance is bliss; if this is so, the Zeta Chis must be awful happy.

Kappa Kappa Gamma

Motto. To be, or not to be, does not matter, but not to be a Kappa is a failure in life.

Very, very exclusive in numbers, dress and false hair. However, if any high school girls wish to join they may write to the registrar, as all petitions are carefully considered, requirements being that she play the piano, dance, giggle and scream. The D. G.'s object to the Kappas using "swell", "kid", and kindred words, and are trying to reform them. Brother Red Smith is the Kappa house father. Next year it is expected Walter Smith will fill the place. The Kappas' prehistoric party was one of the main social features of the year. The Betas are keeping very quiet about what they know about it, all they say is they wish it always was prehistoric times, and maybe they'll give one sometime, too, and have everybody come and climb through an upstairs window to get in.

Delta Gamma

Motto: "Pledge 'em all."

The Delta Gammas are a very religious organization and go to Sunday School every Sunday. They have a creed composed of seven points to which they religiously adhere. They are: 1. Cop a sweater even if you have to be a corridor girl to do it. 2. Fuss all you can, and all you want to. 3. Stand in the halls as much as possible. 4. Sit at the select D. G. table in the Library. 5. Serve eats to the calling fraternities. 6. Always have a bunch of fellows conveniently near when you are on a rushing picnic. 7. Remember the highest aim in life is to get a fraternity pin.

In order to accommodate all the sisters (the conditions of the chapter house were said to resemble a tenement, ten or twelve D. G.'s crowded in a six by ten room), they rented a shanty, or as the Kappas call it, a shack. They are firm believers in a lot of quantity.

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

Gamma Phi Beta

Motto: Look out for the Dean.

The Gamma Phi's are, strictly speaking, a very English bunch. They strongly believe in English jokes, clubs and brains. They have one of the most famous and catty lines in the world. Just as the D. G.'s are composed of blondes (peroxide, strawberry, etc.), the Gamma Phi's specialize in brunettes. One of the darkest women is called the "Vamp"; no one seems to know just why. Besides the vamp, one of the best attractions at the Gamma Phi house is their furnace room. The frosh are very fond of it and have many tete tetes there. The sisters maintain they have the best looking bunch of girls in Idaho, but we asked the Zeta Chis who had the best looking bunch of girls, and they said "there ain't no such animal". The Sigma Nu's have contested the sister's beauty assertion and declare they are the cutest bunch of girls and we cannot help but believe they are right.

The dear Dean occupies a commanding position, overlooking their cute little house and tries to maintain the strictest vigilance over the front door.

Chi Delta Phi

According to Charlie, the Chi Delta Phi papa, this is the best group in the world. The chapter house is situated well back from the street and in the evenings the sisters play pop-the-whip on the wide, spacious lawn. The sisters (those who accidentally get a date) sit by the fireplace and fuss until late at night, because Miss French is so sure that they never have any dates, that she thought it would be useless to tell them the rules. Charlie Gerlough had a new dress suit, so they decided to give a formal. They invited all of the young swells of the campus and asked a bunch of Thetas to come over and see all the good-looking men who fuss at the Chi Delt House. The K. A. T.'s are very particular to whom they give chapters, but McClure, the famous lawyer, says he believes the sorority is all ready for the Thetas, because they sure are Katty enough.

Personal Advice to Students

My freshman year is drawing to a close. The desire comes to me to share with you bits of wisdom gleaned during this long and observant period of college life. First, I would speak to you on a matter generally uppermost in our minds—examinations. One should begin early in the semester to prepare for this occasion in order to create the proper atmosphere of anxious interest and thrilling suspense. Make it a point to omit the preparation of part of each day's lessons. This habit of procrastination is a delightful one, giving a daily sense of ease and an opportunity to acquire culture and to advance socially. During the week of examination it is very wise to have one's trunk packed and a plausible excuse on hand should it become necessary to enjoy a leave of absence.

Leaving the topic of exams, let us take up one closely akin to it, namely: college professors. There is an amazing variety of them. I would advise that you act as if you were conferring an honor upon them by entering their classes. This will enable them to appreciate your importance and they will treat you accordingly. Always wait for their advice and suggestions in regard to the amount of study you give each subject. Another thing, in regard to recitations, college professors are usually sticklers for the old adage, "Silence is golden".

In considering the social side of college life we must remember that judgment of our success or failure, socially speaking, rests chiefly with the college men, if you are a woman. Of course, in this matter we must move with due caution. Of our success or failure socially speaking rests chiefly with the college men. From observation the average college man seems to be gifted with more than the usual amount of inconsistency peculiar to the male sex. If we attire ourselves gaily for his pleasure and strive to make ourselves charming for his sake, he bewails the fact that college girls are frivolous and care nothing for the serious things of life. Then if we dress comfortably and sensibly, and act in a natural, honest manner in his presence, he asserts boldly that we have no charm, no pep, and seldom marry. The latter way, however, is perhaps the wiser of the two, since this critical creature is so absolutely honest and immune to flattery.

Now as for belonging to fraternities or to sororities or what not, my advice would be with all apologies to the Father of his country, keep free from entangling alliances. In this way sororities will never lose their charm, but will always appear havens of perfections and delight where music and dance and loving sisterly companionship abounds.

As for social life in general, one should make no advances. Everything comes to him who waits. Dates for dances, Orpheum, and the Palace of Sweets will come in due time.

Be individual, and prove your theories; show that you believe in the emancipation of women—for example, by walking down Main Street smoking a cigarette or by dropping in on dances without a tiresome escort dogging your footsteps. In conclusion, get all the advice you can and then do as you please about taking it.

—A. H., '22

GEM OF THE MOUNTAINS

Dedicated to Our Three Lawyers

Denman:

Oh, I sit and wait and ponder,
And I figure and I wonder
And sometimes I am inclined to tear my hair,
In an attitude suppliant,
I just wait here for a client,
And I listen for footsteps on the stair.

Taylor:

Every time I hear a creaking,
And a ray of hope comes sneaking,
And I think three is a prospect of a fee,
In there walks a bill collector,
Me to worry and to hector,
But a client I do very seldom see.

Ott:

On my trousers there are patches,
On my desk are bills in batches,
And I have a gaunt and lean and hungry
look;
On the stairs I hear a patter,
And I think of legal matter,
But an agent calls to try and sell some book.

All together:

Oh, those stairs will drive me crazy,
And my brain is faint and hazy,

Every time I hear a wandering footstep
fall,

And they stop before my door sill,
While my hopes will rise once more, till
They inquire about some fellow across the hall.

But I'll try to be persistent,
If I still can be insistent,
Maybe some fine day in the future times
I'll try to see,

Without any hesitating,
While my heart is palpitating,
Some good client looking in the door for me.

So I'll keep on a plugging,
To my hopes and visions hugging,
Just assured that everything will come out right,

And I'll keep on a working,
Always busy, never shirking,
And I'll wait and smile and grin with all my might.

And when everything is humming,
And my clients in are coming,
And success stands at the threshold of my door,

I won't have that sneaky feeling,
Sort of come to me a stealing,
And the creaking steps will bother me
no more.

Disclosure

The wind she blew, and blew, and blew,
And, oh, the awful things she shew;
Petticoats old and petticoats new,
Yellow and green and purple hue;
Bless the ladies! What could they do
When the wind she blew, and blew, and blew?

Now must we part with dear C—
The fairest of the fair,
Who bored us with the same old "spiel",
With artless eyes and hair.
We billed and cared and turtle-doved,
Till lo—the Truth stole o'er us:
She was the girl our brothers loved
Some five good years before us.
So fare you well, our dear C—,
Things do go so confoundedly,
It well may chance our sons shall kneel
And pay you court unboundedly.

The man who tries to make us believe we have a baseball team.

The man who says Fat Stevens can run the hundred in 10 flat.

The man who said Clayton Keane was a Swede.

From an English "I" theme on the basket ball with Washington:

"For the first time the boys discovered the Indian clubs, and then for a while panorama reigned."

When the Phi Delt's were calling the Gamma Phi's last fall, the following conversation took place:

Ann Burns: Clements, you and Keane can sit out here in the Hall.

Keane: Yes, we would feel just as much at home there as any place in the house.

"Oh, stay!"
"Stay by my side"
And the stay stayed, cor-set did!"

Christ got a bum bunch of ham at the Pastime one morning.

"That ham is bad," said Heinie.
"Forget it," granted the pancake maker. "'Twas cured only last week."

"Probably had a relapse," retorted Christ, as he beat a hasty retreat.

"We're in a pickle," said the Frosh.

"A regular jam," added the Junior.

"Heaven preserve us,"—this from the Seniors.

WHY GO TO "IDAHO"?

The choice of a university or college to be attended should be based upon four principal requirements: 1st, a high purpose and broad field of work; 2nd, a competent faculty; 3rd, a sufficient equipment; 4th, a student body of high ideals. The University of Idaho fully satisfies these requirements.¹

1. PURPOSE AND FIELD—Its purpose is to serve the people of Idaho in developing and training students; in advancing the entire State educational system of which it is a part; in assisting toward the solution of economic and social problems; in furnishing expert knowledge in Agriculture, Engineering, Forestry, Mining, Home Economics, Law, and Educational matters not only to students in residence but also to all who desire it throughout the State.

2. FACULTY—The faculty is made up of eighty-three teachers of thorough training and efficiency attained by years of study and experience. They are deeply interested in the progress of each and all under their instruction. They know the State and its conditions and give their best efforts to its development. In addition there are sixty-five workers in the agricultural extension and county agent work.

3. EQUIPMENT—Its equipment is ample. It has a library of over 40,000 volumes, excellent facilities for teaching literature, philosophy, and the social sciences, and well provided laboratories for the natural and applied sciences and for the technologies.

4. STUDENTS—Its students numbered 1309 in the school year of 1918-1919 and were earnest, wide-awake, and democratic. A large number of them earned their own way. Its alumni now occupy high positions and will be the future leaders of Idaho in professions, the industrial vocations, and in the building and maintenance of homes.

The six colleges and the central agricultural experiment station and the co-operative work with the U. S. Bureau of Mines are located at Moscow; the main agricultural extension office is at Boise, and the agricultural sub-stations and demonstration farms at Caldwell, Sandpoint, Moscow, and Aberdeen.

LEWISTON, IDAHO

An "Ag's" Idea of Law

The law is a collection of rules and precedents so arranged that nobody is protected from anything except those who do not deserve to be. The machinery of the law has grown so cumbersome that the expense of running it is immense. As the poor cannot afford to pay, the matter devolves upon the rich, who, in turn, receive immunity. Thus, the law, originally intended to mete out justice, is a reservoir of delay, debt and despair. If there were no law, there would be no precedents, and without precedents mankind would flourish, so much that law would not be necessary. To mitigate the incompetence of the law ought to be the duty of everyone except lawyers; but inasmuch as everyone including members of congress, is a lawyer, the prospect is not rosy.

Ye Ballade

Canto I

O Students Army Training corps
You army of real men,
I'll honor you when my locks are hoar
And childhood claims me again.

Refrain

O 2 say, 2 say I—S. A. T. C.,
I'll honor you for aye;
In the great melee—you fostered me—
You're the apple of my eye.

Canto II

With my discharge hanging in the parlor
And my khaki suit in the vault—
I'll speak of you with the ardor
Of a sailor bathing in salt.

Second Co-ed: "Well, not quite all. I have got to buy a trousseau, rent a house, get my husband a job, buy him a good suit of clothes and get some "washin'" to do. When that's done, I can name the happy day."

"Now, Thompson," said Captain Felker, "you have the battalion in quarter column facing south; how would you get it into line, in the quickest possible way, facing the northeast?"

"Well, sir," said Thompson, after a moment's fruitless consideration, "do you know, that's what I've often wondered."

The Hot-headed Youth, "Nutts"

You see, he had a lantern jaw to begin with; and so his whole face lit up! His cheeks flamed, he gave a burning glance, and then, blazing with anger and boiling with rage, he administered a scorching rebuke.

First Upperclassman (watching Poosy walk down the sidewalk): "He comes from a good family, doesn't he?"

Second Upperclassman: "Yes, but he's been such a long time coming."

Rube Everly: "I'm going to get a divorce; my wife hasn't spoken to me for six months."

Sergeant Abendroff: "Better be careful; you'll never get another wife like that."

The bunch was all sitting around the fire-place with their mouths wide open, leaning forward—so as not to miss a word. A man was doing the talking, reciting tales; yes, tales of his many battles in the air. He said, "Why, I have seen so many planes in the air at one time that the birds had to get down out of the air and walk."

It was only Tuffy Staples.

During a rally of the students down town, an old man was an interested listener. His daughter, who accompanied him, turned around and said: "Well, Father, how do you like it?" "Fine, fine," said the old man. "I'm half witted myself."

A bum date (as the clock struck 12): "Is that an eight-day clock?"

Denman (Heard in the criminal law class, speaking to Prof. Evans): "Suppose that while I am sitting here, I should try and see how close I could shoot to you without hitting you, and that I accidentally hit you; what would I be guilty of?"

Prof. Evans: "Murder."

Red Clements: "Aw, no; it would be just a misdemeanor."

Poosey Davis didn't have any more romance in him during spring vacation than he did during initiation week. With his good looking, dreamy-eyed friend beside him, entranced by mystic music, Poosey wanted her to come to, and start in on the eats. Touching her hand to wake her up he murmured, "Will you have a little shrimp?"

"Oh, Poosey," happily cooed the fair damsel; "this is so sudden."

With or Without

When the Glee Club was away on its last trip they were obliged to put up at some dilapidated hotels in the small towns. Down South they stopped at one called Puke-a-munga. After all the fellows had gone up to their rooms, one of them came back down and said to the proprietor: "Is there any water in my room?" "There was," replied the proprietor, "but I had the roof fixed."

Things That Never Happen

1. The D. G.'s fail to hold a mass meeting on the second floor of the Ad building at 10 o'clock Monday, Wednesday and Friday.
2. The Seniors make a clear get-away for the hills on sneak day.
3. Anyone to squelch a roomer. (Whether good, bad or indifferent, we like to boost them along.)
4. The baseball team to win a game.
5. ALL of the fair voters exercise their legal right at municipal elections.
6. Quiet in the library.
7. The "Campus Roomer" to leave the "Bench and Footrest" alone for one week.
8. The Annual comes out as per schedule.
9. Dean Little doesn't feature in the stunt-fest.
10. Pat is satisfied with the system (political, athletic, educational, fraternal and ecclesiastical).

Foolish Questions

1. Who is that rather large, bald-headed man over there who is doing most of the talking?
2. Can't we elect A. S. U. I. officers upon merit?
3. Doesn't the wind ever stop blowing in Moscow? (Only a total stranger would ask this.)
4. Is it too late to get my picture in the Annual?
5. Who's at the head of the English department?
6. Who's going to be elected A. S. U. I. President? (This is the most foolish question in the bunch.)
7. Who is that tall, dark complexioned fellow with horn-rimmed glasses who stands in the halls so much.
8. And, what is he looking for.
9. Who is that good-looking fellow? (This makes a strong bid for first place.)
10. What's the Y. M. C. A. building for?
11. May I have a special permission date?
12. Where have I seen you before? (Very foolish, and it might introduce complications. Better not ask it.)

Did You Ever See—

1. Camille when two or three of them were in town at the same time?
2. Pat O'Brien when everything wasn't wrong?
3. Ruth Chapman, Esther Thomas, Ann Burns and Norma Dow on a picnic?
4. Dean Hulme tell a joke without laughing first?
5. A T. N. E. pin on the campus?
6. Bill without Ellen?
7. A good sized crowd at a track meet or baseball game?
8. A Home Ec. student who liked her course?
9. Hollis McCrea have dates with the same girl for longer than two days in succession?
10. Everyone perfectly satisfied with the judge's decision of the Song and Stunt?
11. Gail and Red when they weren't fighting?
12. An A. S. U. I. meeting when one or two didn't run the whole thing?

Ever-ready Red was there with cigars when it came to voting.

"What's the matter, Red, are you feeling seedy?" asked McDevitt.

"No, not exactly that," replied Red, "but I'll admit I'm worried of late. You remember I hired a man to trace my pedigree."

"Yes," replied McDevitt, "hasn't he been successful?"

"Successful! I should say he has," said Red, "but I'm having to pay him hush money."
