C. A. Robins

Greetings to you of the University of Idaho! Your institution, as one of the oldest in the state of Idaho, has a wonderful record of service to the people of the state. Through its activities it is to be anticipated that many more worthy contributions to the economy of Idaho will be made, both in research and in the training of our young people for service. As the mid-point of the century is reached, we look forward with high hope and fine ambition.

C. A. ROBINS
Governor

He came by rented livery, that convocation speaker of the year 1900, up the sand-surfaced curving road to the pile of granite steps that tunneled upward to the single building that was then the University of Idaho. He came to address a student body of 106 eager youths.

He came by plane, this assembly speaker of 1950. Before landing he circled the 1100-acre campus studded with nearly a hundred buildings to get the feel of the 3500 students he would address on the subject, "America at Mid-Century—What Lies Ahead?"

How he comes, the assembly speaker of the year 2000, or if he comes, rests largely with you, the students of today. If he comes, it will be to a vastly larger group. Our plans and visions for the future should continue at the expanding scale we've just experienced. If he doesn't come, it will be because we failed to solve the social, political and technological problems we inherited and created. We can meet the challenge if we will.

Board of Regents

The highest honor that a state can confer upon one of its public-spirited and responsible citizens is a call to service as a member of the Board of Regents. The Regents work without pay. Their experience, understanding, and judgment are given gratis to the citizens of the state through educational guidance.

Idaho's Board is composed of five members appointed by the governor, and one, the State Superintendent of Schools, who is an ex-officio member. They form the supreme governing body of education in the Gem state. With their varied experience and backgrounds, board members cannot be given too much credit in the molding of the University of Idaho of today — and tomorrow.

Dean of Men

Any father will tell you that being dad to one or two young men is a big job. Dean Lattig is "dad" on the campus to almost 3,000. During the past year, he had an additional duty vital to the interests of all students—serving as faculty coordinator in the construction of the new Student Union building.

During the spring semester, students missed Dean Lattig's sincere smile and those friendly chats they used to have with him. He was on sabbatical leave touring the United States to study student housing and health problems.

Dean of Women

Dean Carter works closely with A.W.S. and the Panhellenic council. Housemothers and hostesses depend on her wisdom for assistance. Last year she wrote a "Handbook for Housemothers" as a guide for them.

Women students who come to her for advice are greeted by a cherry, "Hello, honey girl." She helps them find part-time jobs, sees that they are well-adjusted to campus life and happy in their environments. Grace and dignity step into a room when she enters. Young Idaho women look to her for mature guidance.

Administrative Officials

A multitude of special problems is handled by these officials who keep the university's various departments running smoothly.

G. C. Sullivan, property agent, distributes a large variety of supplies and makes out long inventories for university storerooms.

Many students enter and leave the infirmary each day. Doctors R. M. Alley and G. E. Owen are busy keeping up with the huge task of looking after student health, especially in the rush period which precedes finals.

Work wasn't lacking in this year of expansion for university engineers, Gagon and Hilton. The shifting office of Buildings and Grounds was at times difficult to find.

Decker, chief of the counseling center, is kept busy helping students get started down the right educational road. Bond, student counselor, takes care of housing off campus. Through the year, veterans at Idaho confer with these men about vocational, educational, economic, and social problems.

Kenneth A. Dick, bursar and business manager, and Joseph W. Watts, deputy bursar, are responsible for the administration of university finances. They keep the books on funds, and do more arithmetic in a day than the average individual does in a year.

The man who has held the office of director of the department of field service since it was begun in 1947 is Harlow Campbell. Non-resident instruction, placement, and field service are included in the work of his office.

Director of Information R. S. Gibbs edits releases and sends out pictures that publicize the university. He is assisted by Newt Cutler.

Lee F. Zimmerman, librarian, is responsible for millions of printed words on file at the university. He is proud of the 27 new metal carrells which have been installed this year for researchers. The library has been reorganized to speed up its functions and services.

The university is supported and helped by some 11,000 graduates and former students of the institution, with whom the Alumni Association is now in contact through genial James M. Lyle, alumni secretary.

D. D. DuSault, registrar, is the custodian of those grades which students struggle so hard to make. The academic records of every student from 1892 to date are found in the registrar's files.

University purchasing is centralized for efficiency, and the man in charge is the purchasing agent, L. C. Warner. He has purchased new equipment for the Student Union and has worked out specifications and done research for the cafe, auditorium, bowling alleys, and the kitchen.

Director of physical education and athletics, George Greene, has the big job of coordinating the many fields of physical education.

Warner H. Cornish, family housing director, fills a position which is comparatively new on the Idaho campus. Married students are aided by Mr. Cornish in finding housing on or near the campus.

Idaho's emphasis on a worthwhile research program of value to industry and business uncovers useful information that is handled by L. C. Cady, executive secretary of the research council.

The problem of housing university students is that of director of dormitories, James Bowlby. The assigning of rooms in all men's and women's dormitories is done through this office.

Over 800 freshmen took six tests this year. In charge of this was Clair L. Woodward, psychometrist. He also had a big job of getting grades to advisors by the time of enrollment.

University Field Agent Guy Wicks makes trips throughout the state as a representative of the university, contacting annually thousands of high school students.

Gale L. Mix
General Manager

General Manager

For very good reasons, Gale Mix is known as Idaho's walking encyclopedia. He's always ready with a big grin and a helping hand for any student with a complaint or a problem. In affairs concerning ASUI organizations and procedures, Mr. Mix answers hundreds of questions a day. Campus organizations and faculty alike invariably find solutions to their problems in his endless knowledge of student affairs. Mr. Mix is a dependable listener and advisor for a job of huge proportions—that of filling the requests of the numerous activity groups, the executive board and student body representatives.

He eagerly awaited the completion of the Student Union building. Trying office conditions, such as the day the chandelier fell on his noggin, added to the headaches of the general manager, but Mr. Mix, with the assistance of his staff, operated efficiently, even under these conditions.

Barbara Clements, secretary; Wilson Bowlby, ticket manager; Beverly Foster, cashier

General Manager's Staff

A large part of the work of both the General Manager and the Athletic News Director falls into the hands of the ASUI office staff. Barbara Clements, office secretary, is working under Mr. Mix for the second year and has charge of all typing and clerical duties. Handling ASUI funds and serving in the capacity of assistant to the General Manager is Beverly Foster. Mrs. Clements and Mrs. Foster are both graduates of the University of Idaho. Wilson Bowlby directs seating arrangements and ticket sales for all ASUI functions.

Ken Hunter, publicity director; assistants John Martin and Allen Derr

Athletic News Director

Keeping the press posted on the current activities of Idaho's athletic teams is the never-ending job of Ken Hunter, university Athletic News Director.

Much of his time is spent traveling ahead of the athletic teams, making arrangements for contests with other schools, and promoting Idaho's athletic program throughout the state.

Mr. Hunter's "lieutenants" for the year were John Martin and Allen Derr. Martin and Derr performed the task of writing the articles to be distributed to newspapers both inside and outside the state.

Miss Bea Helander, 1949 Homecoming Queen

Queen Bea

Red-haired Miss Bea Helander, pretty Gamma Phi from Lewiston, reigned over Idaho's 1949 Homecoming. Governor C. A. Robins officially crowned Miss Helander at the half-time of the Idaho-WSC game. She was chosen from the queen candidates by the men's living groups after the "Kick-off" dance.

Homecoming

Twenty-five thousand alumni and students jammed Neale Stadium to watch the Idaho-WSC game October 15. Idaho lost again! The score was 36-13. Queen Bea Helander presided over the windy 1949 celebration.

Friday night pajama-clad coeds serpentine through men's living groups to MacLean Field for the pre-game rally that featured fireworks galore. The Townmen's Trio played for the "Kickoff" dance in the afternoon.

Saturday morning's parade and house decorations were unlimited by expense or theme restrictions. Some of the most outstanding and original entries in the history of Idaho tradition were presented. Phi Gamma Delta captured the all-over participation trophy for the second consecutive year. Beta Theta Pi placed second. Float winners were Sigma Nu and Delta Delta Delta, first for men and women; Beta Theta Pi and Pi Beta Phi, second. House decoration top honors went to Tau Kappa Epsilon and Kappa Kappa Gamma. Willis Sweet and Delta Gamma came in second.

The Homecoming Dance climaxed the weekend. Music by Wyatt Howard and his orchestra delighted the capacity crowd. General chairman Morgan Tovey, whose hard-working committee planned the weekend of gala entertainment, presented intermission awards. Football Captain Carl Kiilsgaard received a plaque from the ASUI and Alumni Association for his service and participation in varsity sports.

Seriously

Representatives from 23 colleges and universities attended the three-day Borah Outlawry of War Conference which began April 24 with forums and discussions that sought ways to obtain world peace. Dr. Hans Morgenthau, University of Chicago, delivered the opening lecture, "New Efforts to Achieve Peace." The afternoon speaker was Dr. Harold Benjamin, University of Maryland, who spoke on education in our atomic age with criticism for too much emphasis on the past and not enough on the future.

Dr. Charles E. Martin, University of Washington, pointed out the second day of the conference that the atomic weapons dilemma we are in presents "the supreme test of man's political and social control over his inventive genius and scientific discovery."

Dr. J. B. Condliffe, University of California, spoke the third day on international trade. Dr. John Brogden, Unitarian minister from Spokane, chose for his topic, "What Can Religion Contribute to World Understanding?"

Dr. Boyd A. Martin was general chairman for the third annual Borah conference. There were 111 delegates from eight states in attendance. Nearly 3,000 students attended each lecture in Memorial gymnasium, which was built after World War I as a monument to peace.

William L. Shirer spoke at Idaho January 23.

Dr. C. J. Brosnan delivered what critics called the "outstanding speech of his career" when speaking on the life of the late Senator William E. Borah at the Outlawry of War Conference.

Before the Borah Conference began Shirley Jacobsen, Tom Rigby, Marv Washburn, and Allen Derr looked over the geographical world situation with Dr. Boyd A. Martin, chairman of the conference.

Speaking

The annual Awards Assembly October 21 recognized student achievement and scholarship

Idaho students who have heard the murmurings of a third world war which threatens the total destruction of civilization attended the special events assemblies with more than usual interest. Two men noted as radio commentators and authors spoke to large student audiences in Memorial Gymnasium. They were William L. Shirer and Stuart Chase. Mr. Shirer spoke on the Red menace and China's conversion to Communism in his lecture, "Where Are We Going?" Mr. Chase, an economics expert, told students his ideas on depressions in his speech, "Full Employment."

Donald Grant's lecture explained the situation in post-war Germany as he had seen it. The psychological approach of the German mind to international affairs was a main part of his address.

The one speaker of the year whose topic concerned not the world of war but the world of literature was Bruce Marshall. The Scottish author of "Father Malachy's Miracle," "The World, the Flesh and Father Smith," "Yellow Tapers for Paris," and "Vespers in Vienna" gave aspiring young authors some inside tips on "How to Write a Best Seller."

Stuart Chase, noted author and commentator, spoke March 3.

Donald Grant, world traveler and expert on foreign affairs, addressed Idaho students October 4.

Bruce Marshall, writer of best-selling novels, gave aspiring authors some tips October 31.

FAIREST OF ALL . . .

Six hundred super-critical beauty experts—the co-eds of the University of Idaho—selected the twelve Gem beauties for 1950. Each girl's living group voted for the one girl in their own house or hall whom they considered the most beautiful. Dames Club selected the veteran's wife of their choice. From their selection of fair ladies is seen the reflection of a woman's idea of true beauty—the kind that comes from inside and shines out in lovely eyes and enchanting smiles.

Winter Week

Although blackened February snows and a warm sun handicapped the IK Ski Club Winter Week, the snow sculptors and skiers entered in lively competition for the festivities and trophies.

Slalom racing events were won by Beta Theta Pi with Kappa Sigma placing second. Tri-Delta, the only women's team entering, drew first place in their division.

Individual slalom racing honors went to Hank Gandiaga, SAE, who covered the course in 33 seconds. Second high was Fred Rich, Kappa Sigma, with 34 seconds. Dorothy Galey, Delta Gamma, took individual honors in women's slaloms with a time of 42 seconds. Yvonne George, Tri-Delta, was second with 49 seconds.

Members of the art department faculty judged TKE's "Snow White" first in snow sculpturing, the Delts' "Boxers" second, Tri-Delts' "King Winter" third, and SAE's "Smokey" fourth.

Holly Dance

The traditional Holly Week festivities sponsored by the sophomore class were brought to a climax with the crowning of Miss Christy Anne Sargent, Ridenbaugh Hall, as Holly Queen for 1949. She was crowned by Bob White, class president, and introduced by Carmen Cavallaro, who played for the gala Yuletide celebration.

Marvin Jagels was dance chairman. Decorations featured holly and lighted Christmas trees. "Mistletoe Inn" was a special attraction. Program chairman was Elizabeth Fitzgerald and Andy Christensen was in charge of ticket sales.

The traditional serenade to living groups with carols was carried on by songsters of the Class of '52. Lonnie Renfrow and Virginia Barton were serenade co-chairmen.

General Chairman Paul Araquistain coordinated the committee work that resulted in a week tinged with Christmas spirit before the holiday's vacation began.

Carmen Cavallaro presented Christy Anne Sargent as the 1949 Holly Queen.

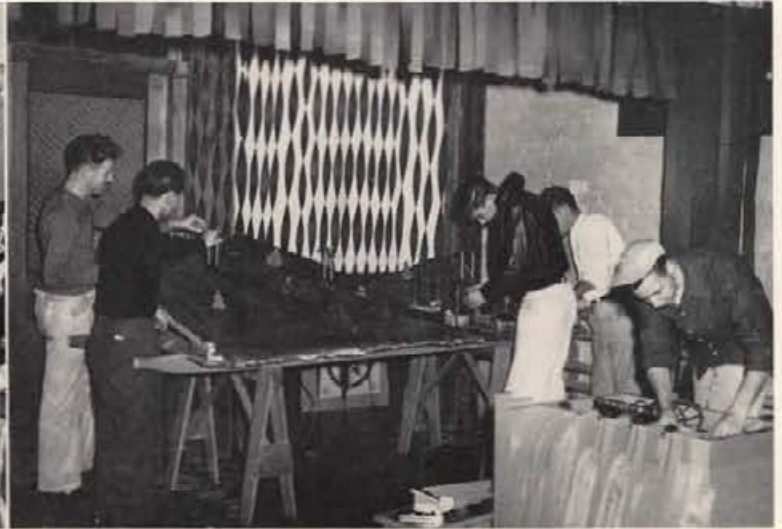

The "Poet of the Piano" and his orchestra were tired out Saturday night but revived Sunday to present a top-form concert in Bohler gymnasium.

Holly Week committee was headed by Paul Araquistain assisted by Shirley Gregory, co-head; Janet Fulton, Marilyn Evans, Andy Christensen, Lonnie Renfrow, Virginia Barton, Elizabeth Fitzgerald, Marvin Jagels, Dick Newton, Bert Johnson, Ken Keefer, and Dave Nye.

"Dream" was the theme for the Engineers' all-campus ball January 14 with music by Clyde Land. Pat O'Connor was general chairman for the dance.

Displays by individual engineering departments provided ingenious decorations. The Electrical Engineers won with an electricity-producing dam that ran a model power plant.

Hilarious

In the whirl of winter fun, more parties and firesides claimed campus attention than a dozen Gem pages could picture. The Philharmonic Piano Quartet

Concert

Anne Bollinger's programs failed to arrive on October 6 in time for her concert in Idaho. She announced her own numbers and asked the audience, "Can you hear me?"

From the rear of Memorial Gym came the reply, "Baby, we don't need to hear you as long as we can see you!"

With that beginning the statuesque blonde from Lewiston, Idaho, began singing what she later remembered as the happiest concert of her tour. The young Metropolitan Opera soprano charmed the audience with her sparkling personality and made a triumphant return home that evening.

Two days before Pullman had welcomed Italo Tajo, outstanding bass-baritone, as the opening artist on the Moscow-Pullman Community Concert series.

Pullman was host again for the October 24 appearance of the Philharmonic Piano Quartet. The talented members of the quartet were John Seales, Max Walmer, Bertha Melnik, and Ada Kopet.

Christopher Lynch captivated a capacity audience in Memorial Gym on December 5. Eugene Bossart accompanied the Irish tenor.

Artists

The Trapp Family delighted concert-goers

On January 6, the Trapp Family Choir sang pre-classical airs and lilting madrigals in Bohler Gym. The program was flavored by peasant costumes of their native Tyrol and the rarely heard block-flute and spinet music used by this quaint family.

With a foremost reputation as one of the greatest younger virtuosos of our time, Tossy Spivakovsky played in Moscow February 16 and amazed his listeners with the sheer wizardry of his violin technique.

Born in Kiev, Russia, and brought to this country before he was a year old, Sascha Gorodnitzki's exceptional talent for the piano was discovered in childhood and cultivated until he stands now in the very limited front row of star pianists. Gorodnitzki played in Moscow March 1.

Elena Nikolaidi, Greek contralto, appeared at Pullman May 6. Though unknown to American audiences, she is highly rated on the continent. Nikolaidi's concert concluded the 1949-50 series of gifted artists.

Sweetheart of Sigma Chi

Dreams came true for Eleanor Powell. Alpha Phi, as she was crowned the Sweetheart of Sigma Chi. Jack Lein, president, presented the traditional Sweetheart pin to Miss Powell.

Twenty-two coeds vying for the title of Sweetheart of Sigma Chi were entertained with a series of dining engagements, a fireside, and the annual Saturday afternoon "Derby" at the Sigma Chi house. After the "Derby" the race was narrowed to six final runners. They were Shirlie Vorous, Bonese Collins, Donna Kjose, Marlene Hopkins, Connie Baxter, and Eleanor Powell.

The formal Sweetheart dance was held December 10 at the Moscow Legion cabin after dinner at the Moscow hotel. As members sang the "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" Eleanor Powell walked down the aisle to one of the biggest thrills of her life. President J. E. Buchanan crowned the 18-year-old freshman from Moscow the 1949 Sweetheart.

Interfraternity Ball

Jim Townley and Bonese Collins with Jim Aston, general chairman, and Beverly Benson at the Interfraternity ball.

Carl Painter and his orchestra from Lewiston played for the strictly formal affair sponsored by Interfraternity Council.

Tuxedos for the men and corsages for the women were in order for the strictly formal Interfraternity Council ball held February 17. Decorations for the gala affair included the crests and colors of each fraternal chapter on the campus.

General chairman for the ball was Jim Aston assisted by Bryan Lawrence and Darwin Cogswell, decorations; Jack Krehbiel, programs and tickets; Dick Magnuson and Darrell Congdon, cleanup; Jim Knudsen, dance band, and Clarence Johnston, publicity.

Spring

Fresh Frolics

The freshmen stood by their colors and decorated the March 17 dance in Irish green.

The crowning of Queen Connie Baxter, Pi Phi, and King Bruce McIntosh, Fiji, highlighted the annual freshman dance March 17 in Memorial Gymnasium. A kiss and crown were received by Miss Baxter from orchestra leader Glenn Henry, who announced she had been elected Queen of the Freshmen. An Irish crown was presented to Bruce as he was proclaimed King of the Ball. A general election among freshmen from each living group determined the winners on March 15.

Wearing of the Green

Glenn Henry and orchestra provided music for the "Wearing of the Green"

Fresh festivities featured an all-campus dance on St. Patrick's Day

The green of spring and St. Patrick's Day burst forth on the campus when the not-so-green Class of '53 sponsored their Irish shindig. Glenn Henry, a top newcomer in Hollywood music circles, arrived with his band but without his featured vocalist, Maxine Elliot, who was unable to appear. The "Wearing of the Green" dance was decorated with green and white crepe paper, shamrocks, and leprechaun figures. A giant shamrock formed the background for the orchestra. High school seniors throughout the state were invited to participate in the activities carried on during freshman week as guests of the "green" class. Bill Taylor was general chairman for the frolics.

Blue Orchids

Wyatt Howard's vivacious vocalist added a thrill to the ball

Dancers at the Senior Ball were framed with a background of orchids

Elaborate decorations and elegant touches such as the fresh Hawaiian orchids made the Senior Ball a triumphant affair and one of the biggest all-campus dances of the year. "Blue Orchids" was the theme for the ball. Wyatt Howard's well-liked orchestra provided the music for the highly successful last fling of the Senior class. An orchid lane entrance directed couples into the ballroom. Original sets depicted many familiar scenes on the Idaho campus and included a replica of the "I" tower.

Triumphant Senior Ball

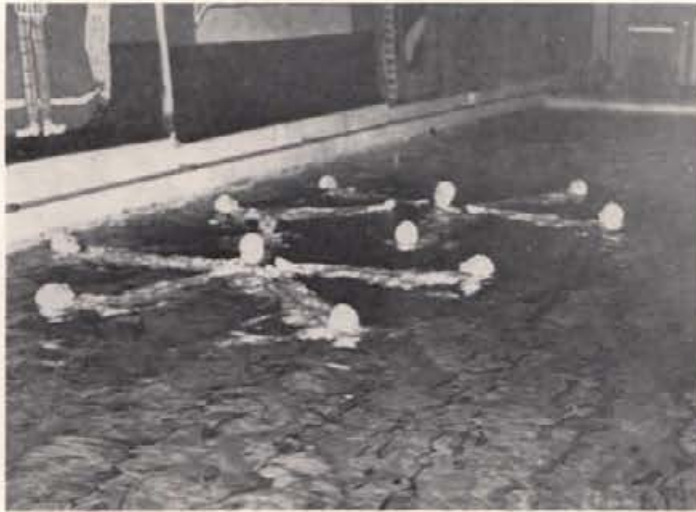

Music by Wyatt Howard of Seattle drew one of the largest crowds of the year

Intermission entertainment brought forth old time burlesque characters

The old dogs of the Class of '50 came up with some new tricks for the Senior Ball held May 6 in Memorial Gym. Orchids imported from Hawaii were presented to each lady attending the dance, and the decorations enhanced by indirect lighting were acclaimed the most outstanding of the year. Memorial Gymnasium was turned into a tropical paradise of blue orchids by sophisticated senior planners under the general co-chairmanship of Ken McCormack and Jean Pugh. Rosemary Fitzgerald and Clarence Johnston handled decorations; Marv Washburn, tickets; Valeta Hershberger and Sue Beardsley, invitations and programs; Elmer Buoy, clean-up; Orval Hansen, publicity; and Morgan Tovey, Jack Lein, Mary Jane Breier and Lou Driggs took charge of scenes. Jim Farmer, Stan Tanner, Betty Wood, Don Smith, and Dick Boyle worked on the decoration committee.

Lady Hell Divers form a star for capacity audiences watching the annual water show in Memorial gym pool. Ann Kettenbach was the Mistress of Ceremonies.

Oh what a flurry was caused by the surrey as it took Janet Sundeen, Dick Wartens, Jo Paulson, Ed Fiester, Jody Getty and Tom Gentry to an old fashioned picnic in the water.

Water Carnival

Howard Humphrey, Bill Brown, Gene Todd and Bill Ringert sing in the Phi Kappa Tau barbershop quartet and revive old tunes for the April 29-30 "Gay Nineties" water show.

Ed Fiester plays his ukulele as Joanne Hopkins, Patsy Lee and Jo Peters sing with him, "Cruising Down the River" in a novel act from the Hell Divers' show.

"Ha. Ha. I won!" cries the gent with the greenbacks. Casino kings who opened the "Golden Nugget Saloon" for muckers were the big boss, Art Griffith; cage man, Rick Chamberlain; whoopee boy, Joe Emmons; swamper, Bill Buhn; card shark skill, Harry Lynch, and promotion man, Barney Brunelle.

Bob Maize and orchestra had that nonchalant air as they played for couples clad in gingham and levis.

Miss Moscow Coed — 1950

Jean Ottenheimer was named "Moscow's Miss Coed of 1950" as the highlight of the "Tick-Tocks of Fashion" style show March 22. The fashion show was sponsored by the Moscow junior chamber of commerce assisted by the Jay-C-Ettes. Lawrence Peretti, president of the university chamber of commerce group, directed the coed contest and Aris Peterson wrote the dialogue narration used to describe the various styles modeled by Idaho coeds representing downtown dress shops.

Led by the Little International Queen and her court, the parade consisted of representatives of all military units, floats entered by the 13 departments of agriculture, and downtown business firms.

Little

The climax of the school year, for many students, came the week ending April 29 with the Little International Livestock show, sponsored by the Ag Club. The show, which consists of a series of practical contests in all phases of agriculture, climaxes weeks of float and display preparation and livestock grooming as well as other sorts of preparation necessary for competing in the various contests. The work of the Little International manager and his committee begins with the first of the school year, for there is much organization and planning to do.

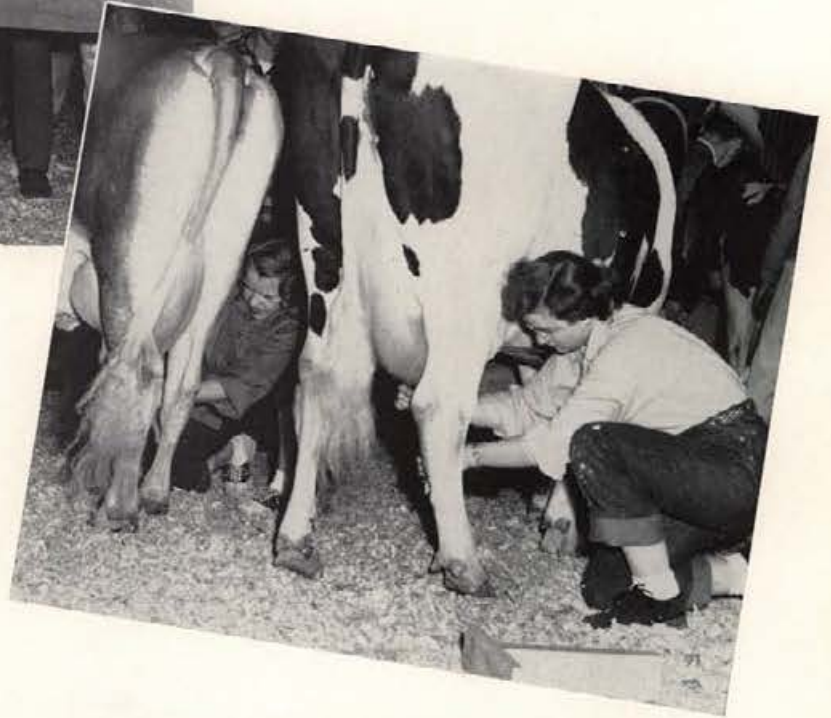

It was a trophy-earning night for the Weinmann boys, Doug and John. Placing high in the final event gave Doug (left) a narrow victory margin and the huge "High Man of Little International" trophy.

A picturesque part of the parade was the horse-drawn hitch reminiscent of by-gone days.

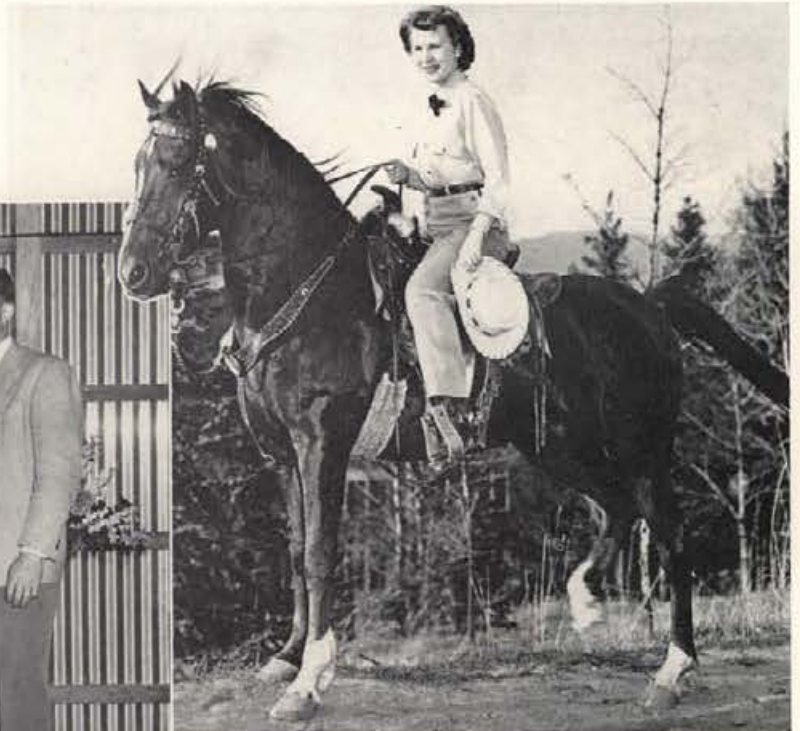

Some of the finest pie-gulpers in the university are glimpsed in action here. Francis Flerchinger, who hadn't eaten for two days, won the pie-eating contest and the first place award—another pie.

An amusing feature was the coed cow milking contest. Marya Parkins won the tie with Betty Pyles, who had too much foam on her milk. Confusing to some of the contestants was the bull that had somehow slipped into the lineup.

International

The theme of the 1950 show was "The Little International Eyes Idaho's Agricultural Future." Highlight of the final night was the crowning of Carol Korvola as Little International Queen. Another center of interest this last night was in the field house where the final livestock competition was completed. A multitude of awards was given to those who placed high in the various contests. One of the purposes of the Little International is to give the aggies practical show ring knowledge. Little International originated in 1924 and is entirely student planned.

Climaxing a long contest was the choice of pretty Carol Korvola from Ridenbaugh Hall as Little International Queen.

May

Hundreds of mothers, guests and students assembled on the east Ad lawn for the Saturday afternoon dancing, music and awards presented for the Mothers' Day weekend. The forty-first annual May Fete, under the direction of Mortar Board and their sponsor, Professor Jean Collette, started with the traditional procession of the May Queen and her Royal Court to their places of honor on the green throne platform backed by the equally traditional chartreuse draperies.

Fifteen outstanding junior women were tapped by Mortar Board members. Those receiving red roses were Bonnie Shuldberg, Mary Louise Will, Carol Bowlby, Donna Jean Broyles, Anne DuSault, Louise Blenden, Barbara Swanstrom, Helen Means, Joan Rowberry, Jane Queen Phyllis LaRue of Hays Hall was elected by the Associated Women Students of Idaho as the senior woman most deserving to reign over the forty-first annual May Fete. Phyllis served as secretary to the ASUI Executive Board in her senior year and was voted the Woman of the year by the Argonaut. Her other activities included Vandaleers, University Singers, Spurs, president of Kappa Phi, vice-president of Wesley Foundation, election board, vice-president of Hays Hall, and Mortar Board. Marie Hargis, Hays Hall, was elected as the outstanding junior woman suited to be her Maid of Honor, and Christy Sargent, Ridenbaugh Hall, was honored among sophomore women as Page for Her Majesty.

Girard, forestry consultant with Mason, Bruce and Girard, and former assistant director of the U.S. Forest Survey; and E. J. Iddings, Dean Emeritus of the University of Idaho's College of Agriculture.

Rt. Rev. F. A. Rhea speaks at Baccalaureate

Baccalaureate

At the university's 55th annual baccalaureate and commencement services June 4 and 5, approximately 6,000 guests assembled to witness the largest graduation in Idaho's history.

The Rt. Rev. Frank A. Rhea, Episcopal Bishop of Idaho from Boise, delivered a baccalaureate address that strengthened faith in mankind's future.

At commencement, Edwin Palmer Hoyt, editor and publisher of the Denver Post, spoke of the three "F's"—faith, the future and fear. He was surprised by the hearty response to his crack, "Idaho as a state has more to boast of than baked potatoes and screwball senators."

Graduation day in 1950 marked the successful fulfillment of a great challenge. The sons and daughters of Idaho who arrived in the fall of 1946 in alarming numbers had received the education they demanded. Four turbulent years of transition and association with their alma mater gave them mutual benefits of growth and expansion.

The Graduates of Mid-Century listen to Bishop Rhea's baccalaureate address in Memorial gymnasium.

Largest Ever

Candidates for degrees in 1950 numbered 915 with 800 receiving bachelor's degrees and the remainder receiving master's degrees.

The majority of the veterans of World War II had finished their interrupted formal education. Four years of vast changes and improvements in the university's facilities and training were the direct result of the Class of '50's influx. A peak of achievement towered high at the mid-century graduation.

Preparatory to the erection of the new Student Union building was partial demolition of the north end of the old structure. Students did without the ballroom, lounges, and permanent offices while awaiting a new center.

The new Student Union Building was completed August, 1950. This $700,000 building houses all ASUI offices and is the center of student activity on the Idaho campus.

Expansion

Former Regent J. F. McCarthy (second from left), who broke the first sod for the present Administration Building in 1906, watches proudly as his son, Regent Joseph McCarthy, does the same thing 44 years later for the new Administration Building annex.

"We are not building the new, we are merely replacing the old," said President Jesse E. Buchanan of the university's $3,788,800 building program. Paced by a suddenly progressive legislature, the program provides for the construction of seven major buildings and several minor units. Of supreme interest to most of the students is the Student Union annex, decorated in soft, soothing, pastel shades of lemon yellow, scarlet, shocking pink and glaring green. This structure features downstairs bowling alleys, a first floor cafeteria, second floor theatre, ballroom, coke bar and lounge, and third floor publication offices. A $700,000 project, the Student Union building is financed by bonds which will be retired by student fees.

Three frame forestry buildings had to be moved to clear the space for the Engineering Classroom Building. Here the wood conversion laboratory is shown precariously turning a corner on the jaunt to its new home near Pine Hall.

The work on the Engineering Classroom Building, which was well started last fall, slowed to a standstill with the deluge of mid-winter snow. The foundations are seen above, with the Kirtley addition lying beyond.

With the wings of the Administration Building on either side, the new Administration Building annex, foundation work of which is shown above, will house the Registrar, Bursar, and other administrative offices of the University.

A phase of the construction unknown to many students is the Building and Grounds workshops, located adjacent to Pine Hall. All shops for repairs and equipment manufacture and supply stockrooms are found here.

and Construction

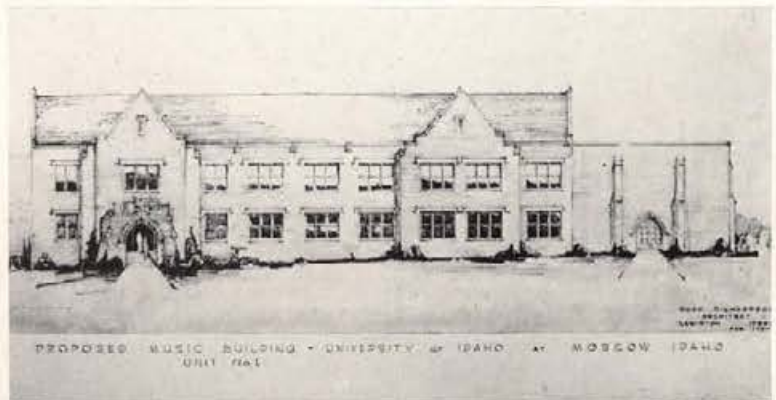

The million-dollar Agricultural Science building, completed this summer, is of functional design.

The work of the school of engineering will be centralized with the completion of the Kirtley Lab Annex, for use by the electrical engineers, and the Engineering Classroom building.

Due to be completed April, 1951, the $600,000 Music Hall will contain all music offices, practice rooms, and an auditorium, leaving Ad 102 entirely to classes and drama. Letters and Science will gain the present offices of the administrative officials when these people move to the ultra-modern Ad annex.

This is only the beginning of Idaho's long-range building program; three dorms and a Home Ec building will rise in the near future.

The proposed Music Building, built in a strict Gothic style, will complete another side to the desired "Gothic Quadrangle," now consisting of the Administration and Science buildings.

The Agricultural Science Building, standing like a gaunt skeleton silhouetted against the sky, was rushed to external completion before the winter snows set in.

Hall M. Macklin, head of the Idaho Music department, turns the first soil for the Music Building, which will replace the multitude of frame buildings now pock-marking the campus.

"Meet me in Moscow" could be the slogan used by the university exchange students.

Tom Tagawa, Richard Kakisako, and Seet Lau are a long way from the oriental food and gardenia gardens of Hawaii. Forestry, business, and sociology are their respective majors. Seet plans to do radio work in America but Tom and Richard will both return to Hawaii. Leo Cespedes, president of the local Cosmopolitan club, will return to Guam to teach.

Catherine Bildt of Munich, Bavaria, left her position as a teacher of dramatics at the Academy of Munich to come to Idaho and learn English. Future plans include directing plays in Los Angeles.

Though Yin would like to return to China, his political convictions keep him here where he hopes for a career teaching political science. After they receive their advanced degrees in education and labor management, Henry and Lee will return to China and do what they can to make living better for their people.

The Associated Women's Council, composed of five elected officers and two representatives from each women's living group, is the ruling body of the Associated Women Students.

Among their most notable achievements in 1949-1950 were the highly successful fall orientation program for freshmen women, and the operation of the point system, devised last year by Mortar Board.

Under the auspices of the council, the Royal Court for the May Fete was chosen in an election held in February, along with the election of next year's officers.

Officiating for the group this year was Rosemary Fitzgerald, president, with Dean Louise Carter, advisor. Other officers were Pat Slack, vice-president; Helen Means, secretary; Janice McCormick, treasurer; and Barbara Swanstrom, orientation chairman.

Government for the students and by the students on the University of Idaho campus is carried out by the ASUI Executive Board. Made up of nine members elected in the spring by the student body from the incoming junior and senior classes, the student body president, and three ex-officio members, this board discusses and acts upon all student matters at their weekly meetings.

Elected to the board were: Bob Moulton, president; Ken Briggs, vice-president; Phyllis LaRue, secretary; and members Keith Judd, Bob Mays, Pete Wilson, Bette West, Del Klaus, Bob Jonas and Dick Geisler.

Ex-officio members of the board were the editors of the Idaho Argonaut, John Martin, and later, Allen Derr; President of AWS, Rosemary Fitzgerald; and General Manager Gale Mix. The board was advised this year by Dr. H. Walter Steffens, head of biological sciences.

One of the busiest and most progressive boards in campus history, the group was challenged by many problems never faced by past boards. The new Student Union Building presented varied problems under student control and the Executive Board gave birth to a new committee to cope with these problems. The student placement system was revised to base all appointments on the merit system and make possible campus-wide participation, the orientation program was carried out by the Student Activities Board, and a complete revision of the Campus Chest was seen. A coalition committee consisting of four members each of the Independent and Greek parties gave invaluable aid to the Board on matters involving party situations.

Among the further accomplishments of the group this year were the revised teacher rating forms, the appearance of bigger and better "name" bands on the campus, and the financial backing of the Blue Key sponsored "Kampus Key."

All the members of the Executive Board serve without pay (and sometimes without honor), except for the steak dinner meetings once a month. And just as seeds planted in the spring cannot be judged until the harvest in the fall, neither could the electors in the spring of 1948 determine how the crop would turn out. But now that the final harvest has been completed, we see indeed that only the finest seeds were sown.

Independent Caucus

The Independent Caucus represents the Independent students on the campus. Each fifty students living in the various halls on the campus are represented by a member in caucus. The activities of the caucus are of a political nature, consisting of the selection of Independent political candidates, setting the basis of Independent policies, and furthering the interests of all Independent students. The success of the 1950 spring election campaign, under the management of Bill Hollingsworth, was shown by the Independents' overwhelming victory, in which they retained control of the executive board and elected their presidential candidate, Vern Bahr. Dan McDevitt led the caucus this year, assisted by Sonnich Sonnichsen, vice-president, and Georgie Hemovitch, secretary.

United Caucus

The United Party Caucus is the Greek political body, consisting of two representatives from each Greek letter house. The main purpose of this group is the selecting of United Party candidates for political office and to manage the campaign. Interest in the election is stimulated by awards to the houses having the best participation. Also, the United Caucus formed a coalition committee with the Independent Caucus to advise the ASUI president on political affairs. Greek members of this committee were Paul Araquistain, Andy Christiansen, Jim Ingalls, and Donna Jean Broyles. Officers of the caucus were Pete Wilson, president; Donna Jean Broyles, secretary; and Emmalyn Ball, treasurer.

Student Activities Board

Row One: Marvin Washburn, Betty Peters, Rose Ellen Schmid, Mary Jane Breier, Dick Boyle, Raymond Radford, Aris Petersen . . . Row Two: Kenneth Goldsberry, Dean Mosher.

The main project of the Student Activities Board was an orientation plan for the fall of 1950, as well as a new plan for 1951 orientation. Under the chairmanship of Dick Boyle, the group also led a drive to acquaint the students with the accomplishments of the university. The annual Intercollegiate Bridge tournament and an all-campus dance on October 5 were also sponsored by SAB. Halftime entertainment planned by the board for basketball games included fencing, introduction of the Vandal Helmet, the Lewiston band, square dancing, I-Club initiation, a tumbling team and balancing act, and the annual Spur Waddle.

Consisting of the editors of the Argonaut, Gem of the Mountains, Blot, and the station directors of station KUOI, as well as several ex-officio members, the Publications Board approves recommendations for the major positions on all campus publications, including KUOI. These recommendations come from the retiring editors of the respective publications. The decisions of the board must then be approved by the executive board before becoming final.

Sigma Delta Chi

This national professional journalism fraternity this year celebrated its first anniversary on the Idaho campus. With a membership restricted to men who intend to enter some phase of journalistic work, this organization endeavors to improve campus publications and to maintain relations with editors and publishers all over the state. The group was led this year by Newt Cutler and John Dillon.

Theta Sigma, local journalism honorary, is composed of women with a satisfactory grade average who profess an interest in the field of journalism. Activities during the year included a reception for college women interested in journalism, the annual banquet with Sigma Delta Chi, and the traditional Matrix Table in the spring. Kathy Burleigh served as president; Sheila Darwin acted as secretary; and Mary Jane Breier was treasurer.

The Idaho

The "Arg" covers the campus

What better indicator is there of Tuesdays and Fridays than groups of people scattered all over the campus reading the "Arg." Virtually everyone reads the Argonaut, the university's official newspaper, either to find his name in print, to see what is occurring about the campus, or merely to be reading a newspaper.

But before this paper "hits the streets," there is a great deal of work that must be accomplished. People begin gathering in the office each Monday and Thursday afternoon and start work on their assigned tasks. The news must be gathered by the reporters and then corrected, authenticated, and rewritten by various persons of the Argonaut staff.

Then all copy is checked by the news editor, who assigns a head or has one written. After the story has a head and is ready for the printer, it goes to the managing editor, who counts the inches that the story will occupy and checks the content of the article.

When the dusk begins to fall, a few of the "higher-ups" pack up all the copy and move to the Idahoian plant, where the paper is printed. The copy must there be formulated, the ads placed, and all copy proof-read. This last task falls upon the shoulders of the night editor, who heads the proof-reading staff.

Finally the night's work is done, and the product of their labors goes through the linotype and later the printing press, and the next day's Argonaut is complete.

Individual features, such as "Jason's Golden Fleece" and various articles by Bill Hansen, Orval Hansen, and Jerry Kinsey enlighten the pages of the Argonaut. The editorial content is of professional quality and highly readable.

Keeping a running score of the social functions of twenty-eight living groups and innumerable organizations was the work of the social editor, Virginia Smith, and her staff. The sports staff, headed by Earl Costello, did an outstanding job in covering all the campus sporting events, although they were sometimes confronted with little to work with.

Editors John Martin and Allen Derr have hoped that the work of the staff, which begins with the reporters' assignment book in the Ad building entrance and ends with the circulation staff, has succeeded in supplying the students with some measure of enjoyment in the 67 issues that they have managed.

The Argonaut received the National College Press' All-Honor Award for the second semester of the school year 1948-1949. The Argonaut was selected tops in competition with schools of equal enrollment in addition to being selected first in all competition. Special awards were given to Editor John Martin for editorial management and to Argonaut writers Stan Godecke and Howard Reinhardt for outstanding reporting accomplishments. Martin attributed this award to a very cooperative staff, without which these high journalistic standards could not have been made. And although the victim of many blasts from irate readers, the Argonaut had achieved the ultimate in college newspapers.

As We Were

The Argonaut dignity received a severe blow when the offices were moved into the coke room off the cafeteria. This move was necessitated when the workmen removed the north wall of the previous office in their vicious path of construction. Things were just a little crowded in the coke room office, and once a staff member wedged himself into a chair, he stayed there. It was a chummy, intimate, but highly unsatisfactory, office. Better things were hoped for.

As We Are

Wednesday, March 8, 1950, is a day that will go down in history, for it was on that memorable day that the Argonaut staff moved into their new offices on the first floor of the new Student Union Building. Large windows with a beautiful Alpha Chi exposure, fluorescent lighting, and a genuine aisle for walking added to the enhancement of the new office, which is easily accessible from the outside. Bigger and better Argonauts should emit from this bigger and better office.

The Gem of

The melodrama of the book without a home, or "Lost Amidst the Upheaval."

"Hallelujah!" we said, "We're going to have a great big new Student Union building and a great big fine office with golden walls and water fountains that give soda pop, and air-foam chairs to sit in. Hallelujah!"

Know what we got? Moved. Moved from our nice beaverboard palace to a corner of Gale Mix's old office, which we shared with Bob Moulton and Blot.

Later, we felt pretty good having the small lounge upstairs, that is until the day they took away the wall between us and the large ballroom. In and out, in and out, came the brick layers, the carpenters, the painters, the plasterers. The dust flew thick and heavy, the wintry blasts chilled our bones and turned our hands blue as we scribbled on the tables.

Sometimes we would sit and dream of our golden-walled office with the soda pop fountains. After five there were no lights and no noise from the hammers and buzz saws and razing crews to distract us. How lovely it was to sit in the quiet dark with cement mixers and stacks of lumber around us, writing our dreams in the dust. But we weren't getting anything done!

the Mountains

All of us got busy pestering the daylighters out of people to get pictures, to give us information. Soon we had drawers full of stuff, but we didn't dare photo-mount our pictures, for in the midst of dust and dirt and wandering visitors, we were afraid all would be lost. Besides, didn't they tell us that in two weeks our offices would be ready? Well, two weeks—two months—four months—and where were we? In the same spot with the builders threatening to evict us to the streets. WE were holding up THEIR progress.

Then it was Easter and still no copy ready to send. We took the bull by the horns and moved our furniture to the partly-finished third floor. So what if there was no tile on the floor? So what if there were no lights, no phone? There were the walls and heat—blessed, blessed heat.

We were overcome with happiness. All this was worth waiting for. From Easter until late June, we have risen early and gone to bed late, reluctant to stay away from our offices for a moment. To classes we went, but we were only waiting for the moment when we could return to our grey-walled, chartreuse-ceilinged-with-a-water-fountain-down-the-hall office and begin work. Why were we so eager? Because it was later than we thought! So we had to enjoy ourselves and lick them stickers for them pictures, write that copy for them printers, and crop them pictures for them engravers. In short, dear students, we had to get this book to press!

These are the photographers whose pictures recorded the visual memories found in this book. Kneeling: Roland Wilde, Phil Schnell . . . Standing: Jack Marineau, Wendell Gladish, Leo Freiermuth. Not pictured was the staff head, Orval Hansen, who officiated on this pic and many others.

It is the work of the art staff, Stan Soderberg, Marilyn Brodd, Peggy Pruett, not only to draw the cartoons but also to draw the dummy. Marian Davidson, absent from the above picture, did the distinctive cartoons for the organization section, while Soderberg did those appearing in the sports pages.

Faced with mounting all the pictures in this yearbook after the new offices were occupied were the photo-mounters, Bob Nixon, Joyce Becker, Frank Gunn and Bill Luscher.

Entire Year Recorded . . . Advertising and Activity Lists Eliminated

You'll notice that we have made changes. The deletion of advertising eliminated the position of business manager and so two associate editors were appointed. Requests for more faculty pictures were heeded in this, the second year of the Gem's new policy of covering the entire school year from September to June with fall delivery of the finished book, a precedent set by Phil Schnell in 1949. Senior activity lists were eliminated because of space limitations in picturing the largest number of seniors ever known in 48 years of Gem publication.

All that we could get into the book is here. Frankly, we don't know how we did it, but golly, we hope you like it! And sincerely, it's been happy and thrilling work to create the 1950 Gem of the Mountains for you students that made history of this mid-century year as we have recorded it.

If this were technicolor, you could see the various shades of green exhibited by our cigar-smoking sports staff, Crusty Hamon, Phil Johnson, Bud Hagan, Karl Klages, and Jerry Kinsey, who did their work with dependability and initiative.

The hard work and dependability of the secretaries, Donna Kiose, Corinne Lauriente, Mary Thompson, and Helen Payne, Beatrice Helander, Marilyn Phillips, Lilli Flo Pratt, Joan DeShazer, Jean Marker, Sharon Osmundson, was expressed beautifully by Bev Balka, unfortunately not pictured, who, when told we quit when we got tired, replied, "Oh! I thought we just dropped dead."

the Temporary

As the man was without a country, so was the Gem without an office. The small former upstairs lounge was the staff's first real office, which served adequately until the workmen tore down the wall connecting it and the large ballroom. No heat and no lights complicated a situation already dismal due to the incessant dust and noise. The above staff members stare aghast as pneumatic hammers resound at full blast.

the Permanent

After the Gem staff was virtually stalemated by the previous conditions, the new office, consisting of a large working room and a private editor's office, was looked upon as sheer utopia. Industry reached its highest peak as the Gem crew worked fast and furious to make up for lost time. New desks, large sunny windows, and Blot exchange issues next door gave the staff the final impetus to produce your 1950 Gem of the Mountains.

At regular intervals, various Gem problems were discussed in the quiet somberness of a staff meeting. Above, Editor Thomas, having read another of her vicious ultimatums, smugly awaits its effects upon staff members DuSault, Mitchell, Fruett, Frank, Bunnell, and McKee.

Business Managers

A direct descendant of the late lamented Blue Bucket and of VanIda, Blot began its fifth year of publication by offering five issues where there had been four and presenting the first in those long registration lines. This involved considerable summer editorial work for Editor Finlayson. It gave its readers a cartoon cover and forty pages of features, fiction and humor, and served as a welcome to the frosh and an introduction to the "Big Seven" on the campus.

The second issue came a little over a month later, sported Homecoming Queen Bea Helander on its cover, and included action shots of the big day itself. By this time the circulation staff had picked up about one thousand subscribers.

STAFF HEADS—Row One: Ann Eggleston, Don Nepean, Bethea Decker, Bob Reeves . . . Row Two: Sherm Black, Fred Farmer.

Life was rather cozy in the cloakroom-turned-office that Blot occupied for the first three issues. Here Finlayson, Hargis, Black, Nepean, Gartin, Reeves and Walenta met and planned each issue.

The staff of the magazine was proud of the big forty-page Christmas Special, featuring Vivian Jones as Miss Santa Claus. This issue included three-color pages for the first time in the history of Blot, and retiring editor Bob Finlayson offered the campus reading public what many called "the best issue yet."

At the semester the reins of the magazine passed into the hands of Marie Hargis and her acting managing editor, Bob Gartin. Jo Korter turned over the books to Donna Jo Walenta. There was no appreciable change of policy under the new management. The magazine still stressed original art and literary works with a slight de-emphasis on humor.

The profile of Shirley Ball, strikingly silhouetted by the ingenious lab work of Dwain Rosa and Earl Brockman, was on the cover of Hargis' first Blot, which came out in March. The inspired pen of Bob Finlayson took "A Backward Glance" at the old Blue Bucket and at the Flapper Era.

Early in April, the staff moved out of the old Bucket cloak room which it had called home for so many months and into the spacious quarters on the third floor of the new annex. Here they settled down to produce the fifth issue of Blot. A review of the Peters' one-acts, a biographical sketch of Stan Hiserman, and the announcement of Joan Wittmann as Blot's Miss Idaho Co-ed of 1950 were highlights of this 32-page edition.

With a permanent home, the magazine's staff gave promise of shaking down into an efficient, working organization and planned to issue even bigger and better Blots in the future.

The Idaho Engineer

Contains technical knowledge and research data, as well as a few jokes.

Pride and joy of the College of Engineering is its quarterly publication, The Idaho Engineer. This magazine deals with all specialized phases and latest developments in engineering.

Some of the outstanding features of The Idaho Engineer are articles written by talented undergraduate engineers at the University of Idaho, who submit their ideas on interesting topics relating to engineering.

Another item of special interest is the Dean's Scratch Pad, which is a general report on varied subjects from Dean Janssen to the readers.

Each issue features news items from the five engineering organizations, as well as all the latest happenings of the Associated Engineers and Sigma Tau, engineering honorary.

Circulation of the magazine reaches out to alumni in all corners of the United States, as well as to other engineering schools.

Before the magazine can go to press, there is a great deal of work that must be accomplished, such as gathering news, soliciting ads and so forth. However, deadlines were met under the capable management of editors Dick Toevs and Jim Teague. Other staff heads were business manager John Barinaga, advertising manager Del McNealy, circulation manager Ed Stell and photo editor John Nesbitt. Faculty advisors are Professors N. F. Hindle and F. H. Hall.

The Idaho Forester

Serves many purposes, forestry year-book, alumni directory and text.

The Idaho Forester is published each May by students in the School of Forestry and is the official publication of the Associated Foresters.

The book serves a dual purpose, being considered both a technical magazine and an annual for the School of Forestry. As a technical magazine, The Idaho Forester features articles by students and faculty members on forestry subjects and those related to forestry.

The annual section of the book is divided into several units. One of these units gives a complete roster of all the 1950 forestry graduates. Another section tells of the activities of the Associated Foresters and Xi Sigma Pi, national foresters' honorary.

All forestry alumni are listed in a directory at the back of the book, along with articles on outstanding graduates.

Many scenic pictures of Idaho nature and wildlife were featured this year, under the supervision of John Vandenburg, photo editor.

The Idaho Forester is distributed to all members of the Associated Foresters and to all alumni of the School of Forestry.

The 1949-1950 staff was headed by Glen Youngblood, editor, Howard Heiner, business manager, and Dave Fellon, advertising manager. Dr. E. W. Tisdale was the faculty advisor.

Student Handbook

Traditions, activities and manners are found in this ASUI publication.

To welcome the Idaho freshmen to the campus each fall, ASUI publishes the Student Handbook. It contains greetings from the ASUI President, the President of the University and the Director of Student Affairs. Also, it serves to orient the somewhat bewildered frosh on university traditions, activities and regulations. And of interest to upperclassmen as well as the newcomers is the complete constitution and by-laws of the Associated Students of the University of Idaho. Jo Garner guided the Student Handbook through the reefs of production this year.

Coed Code

The Idaho Coed Code, now found in the Student Handbook, is a publication of the Associated Women Students which aids in the orientation of freshmen women to the campus. Brief welcoming messages by the incoming AWS president and Dean Louise Carter aid in this orientation. It also contains brief discussions of the proper clothes and manners, a review of feasible activities, and a resume of proper study habits. Also included in the Code, which was edited this year by Betty Thompson, are the AWS constitution and other rules and regulations affecting women students.

Alumni Secretary

Lyle and the Jacksons keep the alums aware of Idaho and of each other.

Acting as a liaison between the university and the alumni, and among the alums themselves, is the job of Jim Lyle, alumni secretary. Until Mr. Lyle assumed the position four years ago, there was no contact with the students after graduation. Now, in addition to his regular task, he works with the university on Homecoming, Commencement, University Day, et cetera. Through Mr. Lyle the public is becoming conscious of the university, its expansion and its goals.

Alumni Roundup

Published four or five times a year, the Idaho Alumni Roundup gives information on outstanding Idaho grads, as well as the activities of innumerable others in the "Through the Years" columns. And all noteworthy campus events and honors are listed, to keep the grads campus-conscious. All reunions or other alumni events are given special attention, as are the results of such meetings. Most of the news comes from the alumni themselves, and this year was edited by Frank and Virginia Jackson.

KUOI

A new modern studio, new equipment and more personnel give KUOI more prestige.

With the impetus of new studios next year, station KUOI, "The Voice of the Vandal," has become a distinct service to students at the University of Idaho. Over seventy students work together twelve hours a day to bring to the campus a variety of programs.

Students at the station work under the same pressure and with the same equipment that one finds in a commercial station. Not only does it give students a chance to work on a campus activity, but it gives them practical radio operation and experience. At the beginning of each year, KUOI auditions fifty students interested in announcing, including both men and women.

KUOI is represented nationally by the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System. IBS provides a large membership of college stations with information concerning engineering problems, program procedure and station operation.

A small group of Idaho students started the station in the fall of 1945. Since then, it has improved by leaps and bounds. New equipment has been installed since KUOI went under ASUI in the spring election. The new studios that KUOI will occupy next year were especially constructed for radio production. Soon, the familiar phrase "broadcasting from the third floor of the Engineering Annex Building" will be heard no more.

Almost three thousand records are the source of most of the station's programs, which are the familiar disc-jockey type. These records represent popular, semi-classical and classical music. Transcriptions and script shows comprise the remainder of the programs.

Before becoming a function of ASUI, KUOI has been student owned and operated. The only revenue obtained came from music broadcasts for house dances. The increased funds have made "The Voice of the Vandal" a station of which all members are proud to be a part.

Miss Jean Collette
Professor of Drama

Mr. Ronald C. Kern
Technical Director

Drama

After making the rounds of the new shows on Broadway last fall, Jean Collette returned to the Idaho drama department filled with ambitious plans and new ideas for the year ahead. She believes that variety is the spice of playgoing and presented shows widely different in type. "The Glass Menagerie," "Twelfth Night," and "The Great Big Doorstep" presented serious drama, classical literature, and grass root comedy in the three major plays of the season.

Studio productions took on new importance. U Hut productions featured settings and original costumes that were especially designed. The striking color combinations and stylized lines of period costumes for "Everyman" and the Shakespearean production were created by Mation Featherstone.

Mr. Ronald C. Kern served his first year at Idaho as technical director. Miss Collette was able to emphasize intimate studio production and to supervise the preparation of more vehicles for presentation this year, comparatively free from worry over the endless details of the backstage organization and production that Mr. Kern handled. In classes and in practice he put across his ideas for modern set designs with more eye-interest and better sight lines.

Every opportunity to see shows by touring players and the Washington State College group was eagerly grasped by Idaho drama students who were anxious to experiment with new techniques in theatre. A beginning toward arena-style production was made when one-acts were presented in special performances for various organizations in living rooms and meeting rooms.

Shakespeare, Tennessee Williams, and Betty Peters, along with other dramatic offerings ranging from serious drama to comedy, were offered to Idaho audiences this year as Collette headline attractions in Variety.

This year saw even more than the usual hustle and bustle around the U Hut and on the auditorium stage with the calendar packed full of production dates. Larger classes in interpretation and play production not only "do bled in brass" but played the strings on the side trying to keep up with the increased dramatic activity. Student designing, crew-work, directing, and acting under the supervision of Miss Collette and Mr. Kern turned out big and little shows that rated the name of "good theatre."

Curtain Club

These Dionysian torchbearers keep the spirit of theatre alive on the campus. Selective membership is based on acting and technical work for drama productions. By arranging play-going exchanges with Pullman, the opportunity for seeing college theatre is increased. Two formal initiations, a spring banquet, and the annual picnic were included in the year's activities. Harry Dalva served as group president.

Tennessee Williams' quiet, intense drama of Tom, Laura, Amanda, and the Gentleman Caller opened Idaho's play season in October. The Wingfield tenement apartment reverberated with the tinkling glass of crushed souls as the idealistic characters were forced to face a realistic world. Mood lighting was to the scenes as music is to the lyrics of a song. "The Glass Menagerie" was a tremendous experience for the audience and a revealing analysis of mixed-up humans. Curtain calls with spot lighting of the actors stirred the aesthetic sense of the admiring spectators in this "play of memory."

Amanda wishes on a star for happiness and good fortune for her daughter Laura.

Tom, the hero of the story, remembers his mother and sister, and tells his story of escaping them, but not being able to forget them.

The Bard spoke again and sang, too, when his "Twelfth Night" was put on the boards March 10-11. Feste, the clown, opened the play with a "Heigh and a ho, the wind and the rain" sung so slyly that few realized that Gregory was improvising to the tune of "Maybe." Scenes of Shakespearean grace and beauty by the Romantics were mingled with the hilarious antics of the Comedian group. Result — a most entertaining "Night." Marion Featherstone designed the authentic and colorful costumes for both "Everyman" and "Twelfth Night" with one eye on her sketches, the other on the budget. Thus both productions were elaborately costumed with a wardrobe planned for adaptability. Mr. Shakespeare, your play written for the Globe did all right at Idaho too! You should have seen the ring-down with the entire cast singing your lyrics! Heigh ho.

To the Comics' delight, Malvolio falls for the hoax of a planted letter. Their superior will soon be a laughing stock.

Together at last—Viola and Orsino, Olivia and Sebastian. The clever Viola has won the love of Orsino by wooing Olivia for him while disguised as her own brother.

Raucy Kern's wild cry of "Give 'em hell, kids!" resounded backstage as curtain time for "The Great Big Doorstep" neared. For weeks crew-doers had made lilies for the third act in spare moments from building and painting the cajun shack with its stu-pend-able doorstep. The actors had searched the campus for Louisiana diction hints and tennis shoes. After the shortest rehearsal period ever given a Collette play, everything was ready. At 8:15 the curtain rose on the spring comedy.

An intrinsic joy felt by the players who were creating anew rolled over the sea of attending faces in spilling, splashing waves of communicated delight. The emotional response of an audience sharing a mutual happiness was tided back to the actors. Everybody was happy—emphatically so—as magic moment of "live" theatre spread a warm glow throughout the auditorium.

The Crochet family tries to help Arthur get his jaws unlocked after he attempted to put a pool ball in his mouth to win a nickle bet.

The Commodore complains of his gastric upsets because the neighbors have been overfeeding him again.

Bob Bunting and Norm Green allegorize Death coming to Everyman in this classic medieval morality play. "Everyman" was co-directed by Neal Christensen and Harry Dalva. . . . Dalva, Christensen, and Davidson dream of "Flower Gold" riches in the one-act written by Mrs. Martha Knight of Pullman and directed by Gene Lewis.

Oscar Wilde's merry farce, "The Importance of Being Earnest," was acted by the advanced interpretation class under the direction of Jean Collette and presented to the public in the U Hut. . . . "Hansel and Gretel," a children's theatre piece, was added to the production schedule. A special performance was given for Moscow schools, with Jim Marshall directing.

"My Paul," directed by Marie Hargis, cast Donna Jo Walents, Bruce Tingwall, Bonnie Shuldberg, and Mary Louise Will in a serious drama with a southern Idaho setting. . . . "The Thirteenth Level," directed by Colleen Christensen, featured choreographic movements by actors Johnny "Reporter" Miller, Oveal "Devil" Hansen, Dale "Beelzebub" Kassel, and Bette "Pauline's Mother" West, and a large supporting cast.

Betty's One-Acts

Three shows—student-directed, student-acted, and student-written—by Betty Peters, a U of I junior majoring in English, were presented March 28, 29, and 30 as studio productions.

An understanding of dramatic elements plus the ability to create highly actable scripts indicates that Miss Betty Peters is on her way to success with a multitude of dramatic moments ahead.

Around the dinner table in "Like Ordinary Folk" sit Joy Ann Rossman, Judy Cople, Andy Tozier, Ann Kettenbach, and Jim Marshall discussing the coming of the agent (Tom Robinson). This play was directed by June Thomas. . . . Inset: Betty Peters, University of Idaho junior, who has written, in addition to these three plays, innumerable poems, short stories, and articles.

Backstage Moments

Ever watch a show from the "wings" or the "flies?" Ask any member of the Idaho drama department what it's like—they have seen all that goes on behind the velvet curtain.

Here the actor is a technician and the technician an actor. Drama students learn how to run the switchboard, to construct, paint and erect stage settings, to apply their own make-up, and to sew costumes and make props. Scene designing, directing, and studying theories of play production are all a part of a thespian's education. The art of acting is learned in classes of interpretation, improvisation, and pantomimic action. Finding out what goes into a play along with the spoken line and stage action is gathered formally in the classroom and then empirically on crew-do. There's no limit set on the histrionic knowledge and skill that may be obtained working backstage on "technical."

Idaho debators talk their way through a very successful season.

A busy schedule kept Idaho debators on the go all year. Coach A. E. Whitehead took his teams all over the Northwest to argue the national question, "Resolved: That the United States should nationalize the basic non-agricultural industries."

The season began with a second place win by Dave Ulmer and Orval Hansen at the Northwestern Intercollegiate meet at Whitman College. In November, Idaho sent five of its top debators to Stanford University where they won eight and lost four debates in the Western Speech Association meet. In January Meredith Glenn and Kent Lake won second place honors in the University of Idaho-sponsored Inland Empire junior debate tournament.

The annual trek to the Linfield College meet at McMinnville, Oregon, came early in March. A few days later Dave Ulmer and Herman McDevitt met a team of West Point cadets on the Idaho campus in a non-decision debate. Meanwhile, Dean Holt and Kent Lake won first in the Idaho Speech Association meet at Caldwell.

In April, Dave Ulmer and Lois Odberg placed third in the Montana University invitational tournament at Missoula. Coach Whitehead took delegates Herman McDevitt and Orval Hansen to Eugene, Oregon, to represent Idaho at the Pacific Forensic League meeting.

In the final event on the calendar, Idaho's Shirley Jacobsen and Orval Hansen met Stanford's Dave Leavitt and Forest Barr on the Idaho campus in an exhibition debate.

To stimulate interest in debate and to recognize outstanding achievement in intercollegiate debate is the two-fold purpose of Delta Sigma Rho, national debating honorary. Membership is extended to both men and women students who have distinguished themselves in intercollegiate debate at the University of Idaho.

Each year the fraternity sponsors a men's and women's intramural debate tournament. All campus living groups are invited to enter teams in the competition for trophies awarded to the winning house or hall. Members of the fraternity also serve during the year as hosts to visiting debate teams. Their welcome was extended to visiting debaters twice during the last year. In March a team from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point was on the Idaho campus, and again in April a barnstorming team from Stanford stopped in Moscow.

Officers for the current year were Dave Ulmer, president, and Mary Louise Will, secretary. Dr. A. E. Whitehead, debate coach and head of the speech department, was group advisor. New initiates added to the rolls in May included Herman McDevitt, Lois Odberg, Kent Lake, James Aston, and Richard Gibbs.

Intramural Debate Winners

Renee Mathews and Elsie Grey, women's winners from Alpha Phi.

John Peterson and Charles Blanton, men's winners from Kappa Sigma.

In the intramural debate tournaments sponsored by Delta Sigma Rho, Alpha Phi emerged victorious in the women's division, followed by Kappa Kappa Gamma. Winner among the men was Kappa Sigma, with Lindley Hall as runner-up.

Sigma Alpha Iota

This national professional music fraternity for women has for its purpose the promotion of the highest standard of professional ethics and culture among women students. Membership is limited to music majors or minors who show promise in the field. Activities included a fall reception for new music students, monthly musicales, and the All-Campus Sing. Officers were Barbara Clauser, president; Joyce Walser, vice-president; and Rita Reynold, secretary.

Phi Mu Alpha

Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, national musical fraternity for men, has for its aims the development of true fraternal spirit, advancement of the mutual welfare and brotherhood of music students, and the creation of a sense of loyalty to the Alma Mater. Organized on this campus in 1936, Phi Mu Alpha has since that time taken part in many activities of a musical nature, their all-campus Song Fest being the best known. Ronald Peck led the group as president, assisted by Vice-President Calvin Long and Secretary Herald Nokes.

The Vandaleers, Idaho's celebrated mixed choir, had a very active season divided between concerts, tours, and guest appearances. Two concerts were given during the year, commencing with the traditional Christmas program of hymns and carols, which was rebroadcast Christmas Eve by 14 Idaho and Washington radio stations. The Vandaleers demonstrated their diversity in the final home concert of the season by singing four separate groups of songs—sacred numbers, operatic selections, folk ballads, and Idaho college songs. The highlight in the life of any Vandaleer is the annual tour, which this year was to southeastern Idaho for a series of 19 concerts. Shorter tours were made to Orofino, Wallace, and Spokane, as well as a special concert for the northern Idaho educators' convention. Mr. Glen Lockery, director of the Vandaleers, is well-versed in the art of choir-directing, as is perhaps best exhibited by the fame of the Idaho Vandaleers.

In addition to many concerts, the University Orchestra played the professional and recessional at the commencement exercises held this spring.

University Orchestra

George A. Michael
Director

Playing under the masterful baton of Director George Michael, the University Symphony Orchestra exhibited a well-rounded repertoire to substantiate its reputation for excellent performance. Mr. Michael joined Idaho's music staff only this year, replacing Professor Carl Claus, currently on leave of absence. The first musical venture of the year was late in January, when Rossini, Rachmaninoff, and Beethoven lived again during the winter concert. Featured soloist was Ellomae Holden, pianist, who played the first movement of Rachmaninoff's Second Concerto. And in the spring concert held on the last day of April, individual efforts were also featured. Soloists Louise Miller, Naomi Nokes, Lois Bailey, John Sheeley, Jeanne Pratt, and Robert Nelson were accompanied by the orchestra on a wide selection of vocal and instrumental treats. Providing the music for baccalaureate and commencement marked the end of the well-played and well-received 1950 season.

Variety and versatility were the aims of the director of the University Band, Kermit Hosch. He desired, and received, a band that could play moving concert music, as well as a brisk march. Everyone became familiar with the band's brilliant black and gold uniforms as they marched and played during the football games this fall. And in addition to playing at sport functions, the band presented two concerts during the year. In the first, a varied program ranging from popular marches through modern contemporary numbers was played, as well as "Mood Pastorale," a vivid tone poem by Professor Hall Macklin. The second concert, which commemorated National Music Week, featured works of American, British, and Russian composers. This latter group was also performed in Potlatch, previous to its presentation here. A new innovation employed this year was the recording of all the works given by the University Band.

University Singers

Norman Logan
Director, University Singers

Keith Forney
Director, Madrigal Singers

Take 180 mixed voices, blend them into close harmony, add a spirited refrain, and you have Norman Logan's recipe for the University Singers, the largest musical group on the campus. Their major work of the season was the presentation of "Elijah," the religious oratorio by Felix Mendelssohn. This work, one of the most popular of its kind, is given once every college generation and features many soloists drawn from both faculty and students. In addition, the University Singers provided the vocal background for the May Fete held this spring.

Madrigal Singers

Idaho's Madrigal singers, under the direction of Keith Forney, have been active for two years. Choosing its members through tryouts, this group sings numbers from the sixteenth century Italian and English schools. A Christmas Serenade with candles opened the year's activities for the Madrigals, and a spring concert, which highlighted the Brahms' "Liebeslieder Waltzes," was given as the climax to this very successful season for Idaho's newest singing group.

Row One: Sally Norris, Jody Raber, Joyce Fisher, Naomi Nokes, Bernice Bauer, Mary Driscoll . . . Row Two: Bob Lind, Gary Neisger, Ben Strobehn, Calvin Long, Mr. Forney (conductor).

The Idaho Pep Band, resplendent in their red and brown uniforms, greeted the opening whistle of the basketball season with a brassy march, or perhaps one of their well-known "fillers." But whatever it was, the Pep Band blasted its way into the musical field this year. Perhaps the Pep Band's greatest claim to glory is the annual Pep Band Show, which this year was considerably toned down over previous years. The show was divided into two parts. The first part emphasized comparatively serious music, while their "Jazz Panorama" dominated the second half. John Sheeley, senior music major, was the student director of the group, the members of which are chosen from the University Band. Earlier in the season, the Pep Band presented a series of 17 band concerts during an extensive tour of southwestern Idaho high schools. The Idaho Pep Band, in fulfilling a need for "brass inspiration," merits the applause of all the students.

John Sheeley

Pep Band

The Idaho Pep Band is well known for the musical interludes they supply at all Idaho varsity basketball games, and especially for their "quickies."

ROTC

"Fall in—come on, you guys, come to dress—right dress . . . huh-ten-chun—no talking there . . . Pah-rah-hade rest—snap those rifles out . . . At rest—dismissed!"

So that the United States would be provided with trained military personnel in any emergency, the Morrill Land Grant Act stipulated that military training must be given at all land-grant colleges. And today, the Idaho ROTC detachment's stated mission is the preparation of junior officers who will serve the nation's needs in time of emergency.

A two-year course in Military Training is compulsory for all physically fit males attending the university. Those who take two extra years along with their regular college courses may win a commission in the United States Army. The ROTC program comprises about 350 individuals, of whom 48 were enrolled in the advanced courses.

Colonel Charles F. Hudson, Professor of Military Science and Tactics, assisted by Major Harley Miller, executive, and four other officers and six enlisted personnel, heads the department and offers this instruction.

Twenty-five cadets attended the required summer camp at Fort Lewis, Washington, accompanied by five members of the Idaho permanent staff, who serve as instructors.

Military Band

The Military Band, representing the top musical talent of the ROTC and AROTC units, supplies the rhythm for the cadets marching in parades, inspections and retreats. The extra duty thereby involved was somewhat enhanced by the extra half-credit the members receive. Also, the group, led by Kermit Hosch, went formal this spring and presented an outdoor concert on the Ad lawn.

Army Rifle Team

Twenty-two wins and only six losses in postal meets was the season's record of the Army Rifle Team, made up of volunteers from the Idaho ROTC unit. In competition for the Hearst trophy, the team placed second in the Sixth Army Area, losing to the University of San Francisco by just two points. Three victorious shoulder-to-shoulder matches were fired against the Navy Rifle Team.

Idaho's sixth regiment of Scabbard and Blade, a national society organized in 1905, picks its junior and senior members on a basis of character and proficiency in military sciences. Parley Cherry was elected to represent the group at the national convention in Cleveland, Ohio. Choosing its new initiates in the spring, Scabbard and Blade was the co-sponsor of the annual Military Ball.

Row Five: Virgil Muck, Vernon Thomas, Del Naser, Lee Boyle, Eugene Thometz, John Ghiglieri, Donald Trupp, Melvin McCoury, Robert Betts, Robert Duncan, Robert Peterson, Michael Churilla.

Outstanding ROTC students are tapped for this national military honorary. The group is characterized by snappy drills in their annual competition with the navy drill team. Other projects are flag raising ceremonies at football games, a spring picnic, and participation in arranging the annual Military Ball. Officers last year were Carl Stamm, captain; Burton Humphreys, first lieutenant; and John Leshar, second lieutenant.

AROTC

"Hup, hup, hup, hoo, hee, hor" chanted these Air volunteers (?), marching in the soggy Homecoming Day parade.

The Air Force ROTC became a separate detachment on the Idaho campus for the first time this year, with Major Edward Lundak as Professor of Air Science and Tactics. Other officers assigned to the unit were Major Jerry Miller, Assistant Professor of Air Science and Tactics, Captain Robert Jones, in charge of sophomore training, and Captain Monte Robertson, unit adjutant.

Underclass cadets number 355, with advanced students totaling 85. The latter group study and drill five hours weekly, and are paid 27 bucks a month for their labors. Successful graduates are commissioned second lieutenants in the Air Force reserve, and the most distinguished are tendered regular Air Force commissions.

The advanced students may specialize either in administration, with the required summer encampment at Hamilton Field, California, or in communications, camping for the summer at Scott Field, Illinois.

In preparation for the annual inspection in the spring, all the AROTC students were seen performing early drill in the wee hours of the morning, in addition to the regular Thursday stint. This practice was rewarding, however, for the Idaho detachment received a rating of excellent for this area.

"But there really aren't so many knobs," points out Major Miller, instructor in advanced communications.

Row Three: Preston Bair, James Dunham, Max Herrington, Frank Whitsel, Harry Isaman, Frank Pentzer, John Matheson, Herald Nokes, Brian Brunzell.

Arnold Society

Named in honor of General of the Army H. H. Arnold, the Arnold Society of Air Cadets is the newest of the military honoraries. Its aims are to encourage greater teamwork, technical knowledge, and cooperation among AROTC students. And although new to the campus, the group got into the swing of things by co-sponsoring the Military Ball. The faculty advisor is Major Jerry Miller.

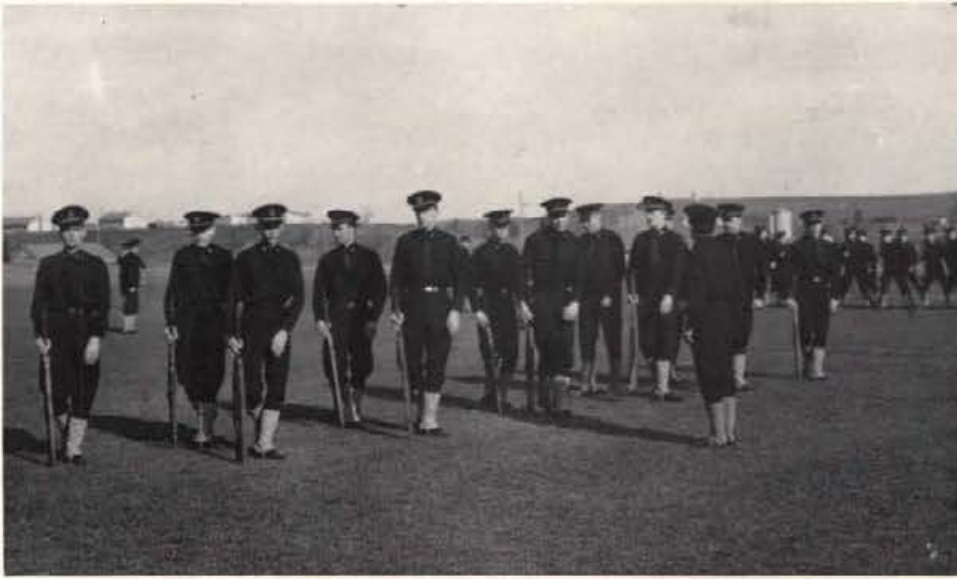

William Olesen, P. J. Daily, Parley Cherry, Alfred J. Prince, Carlisle Brough.

Air Rifle Team

In its first year on the campus, the AROTC Rifle Team became noted throughout the Northwest for its ballistic prowess. Intercollegiate competition is held by means of telegraphic matches, in which each team fires at its home ground, and then the scores are compared. In competition for the Hearst Trophy, the Idaho team took first ribbons over twenty other schools in the western region, and ninth place in competition with one hundred forty-one schools in the nation.

N R O T C

The NRO boys were obliged to do early morning drill last spring. And some of these mornings they were so sleepy they couldn't stand up straight.

The University of Idaho is one of the 52 leading colleges and universities in the United States having a Naval ROTC unit. One hundred eleven students are enrolled in the program, and, upon graduation, these Vandal midshipmen will become commissioned officers in the regular Navy, Naval Reserve, Marine Corps, or Marine Corps reserve.

Twelve officers and enlisted men, led by Captain C. A. Chappell, teach these students basic navy fundamentals for the first two years, and then tackle such complex subjects as navigation, engineering, and gunnery.

All students take a three-hour course each term for four years. Regular students take three summer cruises of six weeks each, and contract students take one cruise of three weeks duration. Regular students, appointed as the result of a nation-wide competitive examination, receive $50 per month plus tuition and books. They are commissioned into regular service. Contract students, who receive about $27 for the last two years alone, receive reserve commissions. This year Stanley Tanner and Russell Moffett received commissions as ensigns in the United States Navy.

THE NAVY STUDENT OFFICERS are those who, lacking the educational background equivalent to their rank, enroll in school for five semesters, where they specialize in science and mathematics. This extra training thus enables them to compete with the regular navy officers.

Eagle and Anchor

The Eagle and Anchor Club, organized in the early part of 1947, provides extra-curricular activities, fellowship and development of leadership among midshipmen. Some of the highlights of the past season were the highly informal "Shipwreck Dance," and the "Navy Ball." Officers of the group are Stan Tanner, CO, and Jerry Rockwood, executive, with Hal Cottrell, mess treasurer.

Navy Drill Squad

The NROTC Precision Drill Team was organized in October, 1948, and since then their blue uniforms and white web belts have become familiar sights on the campus and in town. In the short time which it has existed the unit has established a reputation for prowess in military drill, which it exemplified this spring by defeating three other marching teams in a drill contest. The unit commander is John Clayborne.

Navy Rifle Team

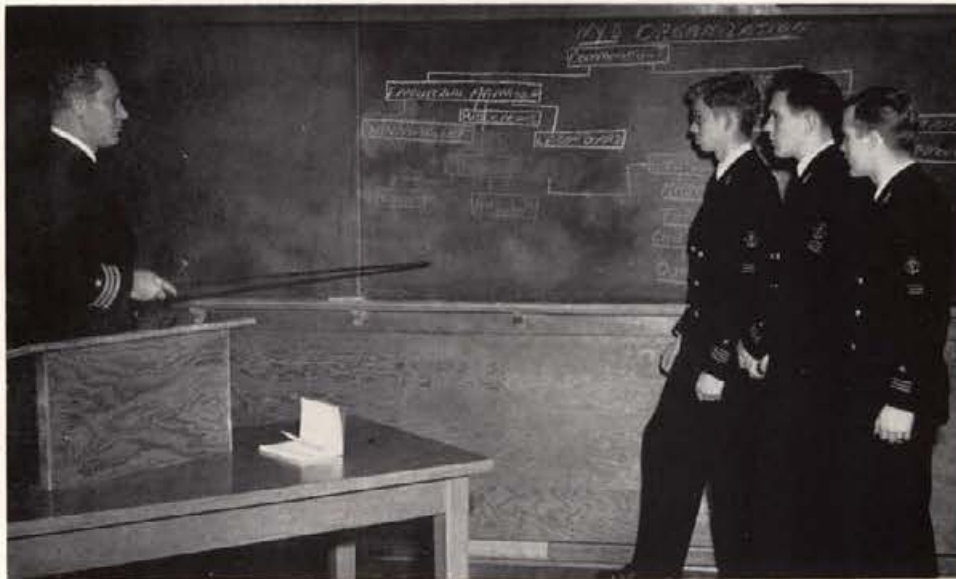

The Navy Rifle Team, composed almost entirely of freshmen, completed a very successful season, considering their lack of experience on the firing line. Two trips were made during the season, one to Pullman for a match with WSC, and another to Seattle for a triangular match with Washington and Oregon State.

Kneeling: Dougherty, Prisky, Shauer, Johnson . . . Standing: Sgt. West, Wood, Taylor, Byrnes, Gordon.

"Better watch out, Stemple, you can't sneak out with that model."

Commander Pugh may be stating a fact,

but these seniors seem to doubt it.

The Engagement Pat Hankins and Sonny Parris look at diamond rings

Betwixt and between the vet and co-ed
 Arose a romance, and they were wed.
 Housing troubles began, so the school said
 They would provide a roof and a bed.

How wonderful to have a trailer or apartment,
 Sketchily equipped with things borrowed and lent!
 Every month they watched for the checks Uncle sent
 And stretched them far to cover groceries and rent.

Betwixt and Between

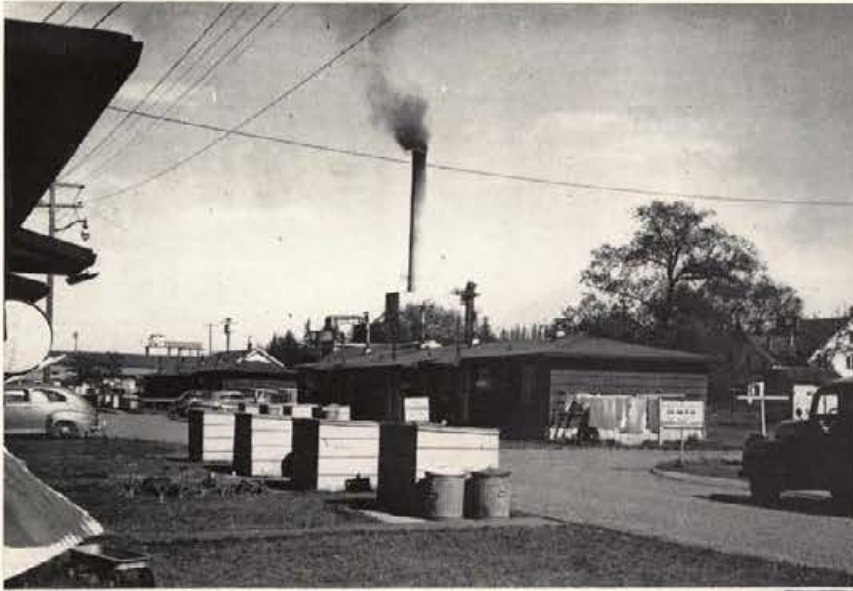

The Wedding Mary Stringer became Mrs. George Lea

Miss Debbie Toevs takes a bath with help from Daddy

The younger populace never lacks sandbox playmates

West Sixth Vets' Village houses 148 veterans and their families

Kiddies' clothing was shown at the Dames Club style show with a plentiful supply of young models from the village

The Baby Mr. and Mrs. Bill Williams welcome a new member to their family

Fighting the coal stove left both a wreck,
While drafts around doors gave all a stiff neck.
When wives had jobs—the housework, "Oh, heck;
Darling, is there time between classes to swab down the deck?"

After the addition came new problems galore,
And, although the wee one they certainly adore,
It's stumbles and grumbles during feeding at four
While wondering how to last one sleepless night more.

The kitchen sink soon became the baby's bathing place,
To mop as fast as kiddies splash was always a losing race.
After bragging of smiles, came the disgrace
When company arrived and gazed at a screwed-up face.

But how quickly they grew and were out taking knocks
As they played with the gang in the neighborhood sandbox;
While Mom's home with baby, Bud's out throwing rocks;
When you bring him inside, he takes apart clocks.

It was hard to believe, but at last came the day;
"It never can be," how oft they did say,
But at last each has a degree—P.H.T. and B.A.
And the vet and co-ed are merrily on their way!

THE SPORTS SEASON had its ups and downs and so did the Idaho yell team. Bringing the Vandal cheering section out of the final quarter blues is always tough work. It took more than saddle shoes, flying arms and that ability to leap in the air. Yell King Gary Nefzger, with the able help of Wally Larsen and Chuck Williams from the male sex and a feminine touch added by the Harding sisters, deserves a pat on the back for a thankless job.

IDAHO SPENT a major share of its time in striped territory September 17. In the 1949 football curtain-raiser the Vandals staged a terrific show by smothering little Willamette University under an avalanche of touchdowns.

A list of the Idahoans who starred in the game would be as long and shiny as a comet's tail. Coach Howell and his staff put everything but the squad bench into the ball game in an effort to keep the score from mounting.

The Vandals crossed the goal line four times in the opening period, picked up two more counters in the second, and added seven tallies in the final quarter.

Halfback Glen Christian led the scoring parade with two goal crossings and three conversions for 15 points. John Brogan, Al Schireman and Ken Larsen scored twice; Ben Jayne, Jim Chadband, Bud Riley and Al Foucar getting the rest. Will Overgaard kicked four good placements.

THE UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, rated a perennial powerhouse by experts within the PCC, cut loose with devastating speed and a star-studded backfield in Eugene to deal the Vandals their first setback of the 1949 campaign.

For three minutes Idaho's claim of having its strongest team in 25 years seemed justified. The Vandals, still fresh from the Willamette University runaway, took the opening kickoff on their own 25 and drove all the way down to the Oregon 24. The Ducks throttled the drive at this point and Idaho never threatened thereafter.

The pitching arms of Oregon's Deadeye Dick passers were stored in mothballs most of the afternoon. Only when the Ducks' ground attack bogged down did flippers Earl Stelle and Jim Calderwood take to the air lanes.

Regardless of the score, the Idaho line was exceptionally strong.

LIVING UP TO ALL pre-season press notices, a well-coached Texas university eleven outscored the fighting but out-manned Idaho club in Austin. The contest was the first big inter-sectional tilt for Idaho since 1946.

Blair Cherry's Texans found the going plenty rough during the first 30 minutes of the game with the Longhorns walking off the field in a 7-7 deadlock at the half. Idaho's lone touchdown and conversion knotted the count with one minute and 25 seconds remaining before the intermission period.

The Idaho drive started on the Texas 47. John Brogan flipped a pass to Orville Barnes. The play carried 27 yards to the Longhorn 20. Jerry Diehl then moved to the four on a statue of liberty and King Block capped the drive three plays later by bucking over from the one-foot line. Will Overgaard converted. The touchdown was the first score yielded by Texas in three games.

All-Coast Tackle Carl Kiilsgaard played 52 minutes in the 96-degree temperature. Coach Cherry commented, "I wish we had Kiilsgaard on our ball club. He is one of the finest tackles I have seen this year" Carl was named on the Texas all-opponent team.

FUTURE CHIROPRACTORS . . . Fullback Jim Chadband (twisting head), tackle Marvin Beguhl (45), and end George Ballew (6) collaborate as they give Cougar halfback Don Paul a soothing massage. Paul became so relaxed he dropped the porkhide. Idaho recovered.

RUTGERS BEAT PRINCETON in 1930, the Queensmen's first win over Princeton in 35 games. Kansas knocked over Nebraska in 1944, the Jayhawkers' first decision from Nebraska in 28 contests. Just proof that a jinx is eventually snapped. At Vandalville, Idaho is still waiting for the break. WSC again smothered the Silver and Gold last fall for the Cougars' twenty-second consecutive triumph over Idaho. The Vandals have not won from their cross-state-line rivals on the gridiron since 1925.

A homecoming crowd of 21,500 watched Idaho virtually fumble away the ball game. A total of eight Idaho bobbles fell into WSC hands, and the Cougars, taking advantage of the gifts, quickly converted two of the miscues.

After a scoreless first period, WSC fired the boilers and scored three times—two counters coming via the Vandal fumble route.

Jerry Diehl skirted left end early in the third period for Idaho's first score. Late in the fourth quarter, Glen Christian romped 76 yards for the second tally. Will Overgaard split the uprights for the Vandals 13-point total.

IDAHO CAPTURED one conference game and booted itself out of the deep, dark PCC cellar by soundly trouncing Montana State University in Missoula. The victory gave the Vandals possession of the "Little Brown Stein" for the second straight year.

The Grizzlies dropped a 13-7 decision to WSC earlier in the season and established themselves as a threat in the conference loop. Idaho, however, was playing its sharpest since the Willamette game.

Using a plunge and buck offense, Idaho registered three quick touchdowns in the opening quarter and added two more TD's in the third. A pair of six-pointers in the final frame completed the Vandal scoring for the afternoon.

Idaho halfback Jerry Diehl slashed over for three touchdowns to lead the onslaught. King Block, Jim Hatch, Bob Mays, and Keith Bean contributed the other four counters.

DIXIE'S "MAYBE T" was served without cream and sugar to Portland University in Boise. And the recipients didn't like the taste of it one bit.

Idaho lost little time in running up the scoreboard at their "Southern Idaho Homecoming." The ball game was barely three minutes old when Halfback Jerry Diehl opened the scoring column on a 25-yard dash. John Brogan followed suit moments later with a 27-yard romp. Bob Mays fired a 45-yard pass to end Gene Bates for TD number three, and from that point, the Idaho scores came as free as substitutions. By intermission the Vandals led 28 to 0.

A Bob Mays to Orville Barnes combination and a 63-yard run by Mays accounted for touchdowns five and six in the third period. In the fourth quarter Halfback Jim Hatch put the cap on the Vandal scoring when he knifed over his own left tackle and raced 71 yards.

CONFERENCE WIN NUMBER TWO was almost in the bag. Idaho placed a 12-to-0 lead on the scoreboard, then yielded the advantage to Oregon State in a point-a-minute ball game.

A Dad's Day crowd watched the sputtering Beavers throw their machine in gear and move off the field with a 14-12 half-time lead.

The contest was everything but easy-going for both squads and "mix it up and make it rough" was the theme for the day.

Jerry Diehl, Jim Hatch, and John Brogan took turns lugging leather down field for the Vandals' opening counter. Diehl topped the drive with an 18-yard spurt around end. Idaho tallied again in the opening seconds of the second quarter when Brogan hit the bull's-eye on a dart pass to Keith Bean.

The Vandals crossed the goal stripe two more times in the free-for-all second half. Max Glaves lofted a 20-yard pass to Brogan; he took it on the dead run and galloped 55 yards to the goal. Later in the fourth stanza, Jim Hammond pitched a pass to Bob Mays who raced 76 yards for the counter.

A DAY AT THE RACES . . . Fullback King Block (4) just hauled in a Brogan pass and heads into Indian territory. The play carried thirty yards. End Rich LeDuc (25) sends one Redskin to the dirt with a rolling block on the 43. Richard Abraham (30), Stanford 211-pound center, finally tagged Block.

THE IDAHO SQUAD showed that it packed plenty of "hard noses"—a laconic description of kids who can take it—when they invaded Palo Alto for the season final.

The Vandals were hit and hit hard by Stanford, but came out of the melee fighting. It was just a bad afternoon for the Idaho lads. Stanford couldn't do anything wrong and Idaho couldn't get started. That told the story.

Rose, McColl, Mitchell, Benson, and Klien each scored a Stanford touchdown, the other four being marked by Hugasian and Mervin. Gary Kerkorian split the uprights nine times.

John Brogan, the Vandals' chief threat of the contest, rolled up a total of 101 yards in 13 carries for a seven-yard average. In the Idaho forward wall Roy Colquitt, Tom Trees, Billy Mullins, Wilbur Ruleman and Carl Kiilsgaard were the main stalwarts. After the game Howell commented, "Next to Texas, Stanford was the best team I have seen all season."

LOOK OUT FOR IDAHO on the maple court. The Vandals proved themselves this season by letting other conference quintets know that Idaho was tired of being the doormat for the Northern Division.

Coach Finley adapted his style of play to the ability of his sophomore-junior hoopshooters. The combination wrinkled the brows of rival coaches.

A lifetime basketball record shows that as a player and as a coach, Finley has been on the winning side 816 times—on the losing end 55 times. In three years of coaching at Vandalville, his courtmen have won 44 conference and pre-conference contests against 49 defeats.

Idaho rang up 828 points in 16 pre-conference outings for a 66.7 average. In conference play they flipped in 736 counters for a 46-point game average.

The closest score Idaho could register against the defending Northern Division champions was a 48-44 count in a game played at Corvallis.

Frank's Fighters Floor Fist Flingers

TOP-FLIGHT COACHING from Frank Young landed Idaho mittmen three championships this season. The Vandals were virtually superb in every department as they fought all odds and climbed to the top of the Intercollegiate fistic ladder. Idaho hammered out six wins in seven dual matches—won the first Spokane Invitational Boxing tournament—copped their second consecutive Pacific Coast Conference boxing title—and then topped it all off by sharing the NCAA Boxing Championship honors with Gonzaga University. Senior Herb Carlson, Idaho's 165-pounder, punched his way to become the only collegian in coast ring history to win four individual PCC titles. At State College, Pennsylvania, Carlson won his third NCAA boxing crown and the John S. Rowe memorial trophy. Len Walker, winner of the national 135-pound title the previous year, walked away from the Penn State ring with the NCAA 145-pound crown.

WITH HAPPY NEW YEAR ringing in their ears, the Idaho ski squad scored third place honors in the Annual Red Mountain, B.C., Intercollegiate 4-Way event. Following the appointment of Gene Harlow as ski coach, the team scooted to a third spot standing in the Northern Division meet at Emida. A few weeks later they quickly took to the snow at Snoqualmie Pass and placed sixth in a field of ten. High spot of the season came at McCall. Sverre Kongsgaard soared to a first in the jumping division and the squad ranked second in the team scores. With new members from Scandinavia, the traveling six wound up the season with several brilliant individual performances. Kare Reed proved his value in winning the Northern Division Cross-Country race, Tor Lyshaug, a fellow countryman, pushing him all the way.

CAPTAIN FRED BOYLE well on his way in the Northern Division Slalom race. Fred placed ninth in this event and third in the combined 4-way. He was one of the team's most consistent scorers.

Pool Paddlers

IDAHO'S WATER THRASHERS were sunk by most of the conference opponents this season. The Vandals, however, did splash out a league win over Montana State University and a non-conference triumph over Eastern Washington. Coached by versatile Eric Kirkland, the pool men came up with some promising material. Captain Carl Kinny had good times in the 100-yard free-style events. Dick Wartena turned into an outstanding distance man and placed third in the 440 at the Northern Division meet. Ken Lyons placed fifth in the individual medley at the ND and Jim Farmer gathered in points as a diver. Ed Fiester helped the team in the sprints and relay.

IDAHO GOLFERS were understroked by most of the Northern Division squads this season but they did register a comfortable win over Montana University. The weak cards scored by Idaho do not show the valuable experience individual linksmen gained during the course of the season. Four regulars will return for another year on the fairway, giving Coach Frank James a strong foundation for the 50-51 campaign.

IDAHO NETMEN didn't have a winning season. Most of the team tussles were entered on the wrong side of the ledger, but some fine individual work brightened the year. Stuart Dollinger supplied most of the scoring tonic for Idaho by winning over half of his matches. At the Northern Division meet, Hal Barnes defeated Oregon State's number two man, 6-3, 6-3, while Ewel Grossberg lost to Montana in three close sets.

THE IDAHO DIAMOND CREW ranked high in crowd appeal this season but low in Northern Division conference standing. Coach Finley's nine looked stronger in every department this season even though they did land on the cellar step with Oregon State. The Idaho mound staff was capable but the Vandal hitting left something to be desired. Southpaw Bob Pritchett was the top Idaho pitcher. Pritchett turned in a won 2-lost 3 record during conference play. Ozzie Kanikkeberg, who worked mostly in relief roles, won 1 and lost 1 in conference play. Cless Hinckley and Don Hunt posted 1-2 records during ND play and Lloyd Schiller had a 0-2 record. Second Baseman Tobe Masingill was the most consistent wood swinger at the plate. Masingill slashed 17 hits in 53 appearances for a .305 mark. Rightfielder Joe Zavesky hit at a .255 clip and catcher Dick Merrill was slapping the apple at the .241 mark.

For Finley fans.

OREGON STATE COLLEGE SERIES

YOU'RE OUT . . . But Ump—I'm the first baseman. The Beaver batter who hit me the apple, he's the one who's out. My gosh, read your rule book.

Idaho was set down in one-two fashion by Oregon State in Corvallis. The Vandals suffered a 14-5 setback on a 13-hit attack by OSC in the first game.

In the second Corvallis encounter, Idaho jumped off to an early two-run lead but OSC cut loose in the third frame and came out on top with a 9-4 victory.

The Vandals evened the series when they snapped up two in a row from OSC in Moscow. Bob Pritchett hurled a masterful six-hitter against the Beavers in the opener.

Ozzie Kanikkeberg pitched a seven-hit affair against OSC in the second game. Kanikkeberg goose-egged the Beavers in every inning but the sixth.

Joe Zavesky poked a home run for Idaho's only extra base hit during the first Oregon game in Eugene. The Ducks set Idaho down 12-4.

The second Eugene contest was a complete reversal of form for both clubs. Idaho unlimbered their hitting power and pounded out a 17-12 win.

Idaho leveled off their four-game series with the Oregonians at MacLean field. Oregon bashed out a 12-3 decision in the first contest.

Bob Pritchett chalked up his second conference win of the season when he put Oregon down 9-7.

CAUGHT SLEEP-WALKING . . . Bob Pritchett puts the tag on an Oregon runner who took a big turn around first base and found himself in a hot box.

DON'T STRAIN YOURSELF, NEIGHBOR—I've got the ball in my glove and I've got my foot on the bag. All you got was exercise from a run down the first base line.

Washington State's Lee Dolquist ruined the MacLean field conference opener when he effectively scattered eight Idaho hits for a 7-3 win over the Vandals.

WSC shelled out a marathon 13-1 win over Idaho in Pullman. Glen Darnall swung the big stick for Idaho when he socked out two triples.

Rod Keogh made it three straight wins for WSC over Idaho when he twirled a 9-1 triumph in Pullman.

Cougar Coach Buck Bailey lost a battle with the plate umpire at MacLean field and was ushered from the premises, but the Cougar nine won their battle and posted a 9-6 win over Idaho.

Idaho dropped its Northern Division conference opener to Washington in Seattle, 8-2. The Vandal nine capitalized on a shaky start by Husky pitcher Bob Moen, and hugged a two-run lead at the end of three frames. Moen then settled down and blanked the Vandals the rest of the route.

Don Hunt, backed by brilliant Idaho fielding, hurled himself out of the tight spots and nosed out the University of Washington 6-5 in the opener in Moscow.

In the second session at MacLean field, Washington covered the Vandal outfield with 17 bingos that dropped Idaho 8-1.

DECAPITATED—Washington's first sacker wasn't clipped by the ball. He just went out of his head stretching for a wild throw. Zavesky safe at first.

Cinder Sensations

Stan's Spirited Sprinters Score Successful Season

IDAHO'S TRACK SQUAD lacked only depth in ranks, a prime prerequisite for gaining victories. The Vandals failed to win a single dual meet, but in many cases they captured the majority of first place honors. Don Miller, Vandal 440 specialist, turned in the best mark in Northern Division competition when he breezed through the quarter-mile in 49.6. Warren Johnson recorded a 4:19.1 mile against Washington University in Seattle. The leather-lunged junior then garnered a second in the mile event at the Pacific Coast conference track and field meet at Berkeley. Two other Idaho entries also placed in the PCC session. John Allyson ran fourth in the two-mile event and Keith Bean finished fifth in the high hurdles. Norm Farnham qualified for the 880-yard run but he didn't make the trip to the California city. Farnham won the Northern Division title in 1:56.1.

"I" Club

THE "I" CLUB works as vigorously for the advancement of intercollegiate sports off the field as they do on it. This year the lettermen organization cooperated with the Alumni Association and held the first Vandal Booster Day in the history of the university. Jerry Diehl and Norm Farnham were acting "I" Club presidents for the school year.

ATHLETIC MANAGERS—First Row: Burt Humphrey, Winston Churchill, Wendell Herrett . . . Second Row: Orval Hansen, John Seegner, Jim McKevitt, Jay Couch.

THE ATHLETIC MANAGERS' ASSOCIATION is composed of student managers of the various university athletic teams. They accompany varsity athletes on their trips to matches away from home and look after the players' needs and equipment at all times. The main function of this group, which was organized in 1949, is to better the relations of managers with athletic department coaches and the players.

PARDNER, AT IDAHO YOU CAN GET A BUCK that's exempt from income tax. Bareback bronc riding, wild cow riding, calf roping and other rodeo events are now a part of collegiate sports. Idaho's first National Intercollegiate rodeo team had three rodeo kings crowned during the season. Captain Ned Stuart won the bronc riding contest in the Montana University rodeo at Missoula. In the Washington State rodeo at Colfax, Bob Lint won the bronc riding event and Floyd Venable took top honors in wild cow riding.

IDAHO'S FROSH TRACKSTERS lost their only meet of the season to the Washington State Cou-babes. But, in the eyes of Varsity Coach Stan Hiserman, the meet was a success. Bruce Sweeney, a high-stepping timber-topper, placed with firsts in the high jump and low hurdles in addition to scoring a second in the high's. In field events, Buck Nelson cashed in with top honors in the shot-put, then placed second in the javelin and discus. Other first place winners were Lorin LaFoe and Glenn Casebolt in the 440 and two-mile events respectively.

They Left Something Behind When They Went Away

Orchids all the way around for the Senior Ball! Wyatt Howard played for the "Blue Orchids" dance that drew one of the biggest crowds to attend an all-campus affair this year. Orchids were presented to all the ladies. Decorations literally turned Memorial Gym into a college campus covered with familiar scenes. Beside the orchid-bedecked bandstand on either side were two silhouettes depicting a man and woman in caps and gowns.

This year saw 920 seniors graduate in the largest Commencement in the university's history. The Class of '50 took in the peak of the post-war delayed-education enrollment. A large proportion of the vets were graduated this spring. Definite goals and ambitions prompted their high scholarship. A feeling of responsibility and dedication was strong in their approach to college. It is this new attitude which pervaded the campus and classrooms that we hope will not fade too soon after their departure. The world cannot help but be brighter with their commencement into the business and affairs of life that lie ahead in the second half of an amazing century.

Graduates at Mid-Century '50

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

Del Klaus, president; Valeta Hershberger, treasurer; Jean Pugh, secretary; Ken McCormack, vice-president

Campus Personalities . . . the rolling 'est wheels

Sue Beardsley

Prominent in WRA, Susie served as Women's "I" Club proxy this year. Truly an activity gal, she has been a hard-working member of Elections Board, Gem, Arg, Spurs, Delta Mu, Orchestras, Kappa Delta Pi, various campus committees and finally the top of the ladder . . . Mortar Board.

Herb Carlson

"Herbie" is Idaho's outstanding boxer of all time. Besides being Pacific Coast champ four years and National champ three years, he was voted outstanding collegiate boxer this year. A Sigma Nu, Herb is also a member of "I" Club, Blue Key, Silver Lance, Executive Board, and Chamber of Commerce.

Ted Diehl

Alternate football captain and boxing co-captain have made this four-year letterman outstanding on campus. An engineer by trade, Ted is a member of ASAE, ASCE, Associated Engineers, "I" Club, and president of the Sigma Nu house.

Del Klaus

Senior class president "Schmelbert" Klaus is a wheel from way back. Beginning as advertising manager of the Arg, Del went to the top fast. Activities included Executive Board, Publications Board, Silver Lance, Blue Key, Delta Chi house manager, and Sigma Delta Chi.

Sheila Darwin

Blot associate editor and Arg rewrite and news editor made her a natural for Theta Sigma. Being a dietetics major, Sheila is a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron and was cover girl for the National Home Ec magazine, What's New in Home Economics, Mortar Board, Spurs, Home Ec Club, and Panhellenic list her in their ranks.

Bob Finlayson

From circulation staff to editor of Blot magazine is Bob's success story. A Blue Key and Sigma Delta Chi member, he has served on almost all campus week committees as well as Student Activities Board, Publications Board, Rally Committee, Independent Caucus, U Singers, Campus Chest, and Attic Club. Chrisman Hall claims him as one of their big three.

Bob Moulton

"Moldy" was ASUI president this year and with that honor little more need be said. From Freshman class vice-president to I-K Junior Knight and Executive Board, Bob Moulton made Chrisman Hall home and let his key chain grow heavy with honors. Few campus organizations, boards and committees have not felt his presence. Election to Phi Beta Kappa came simultaneously with ASUI presidency making him the outstanding activity man of the campus.

Jean Ottenheimer

Small, blonde and lovely describes Miss Moscow Coed of 1950. Looks and charm aren't all that make this little Alpha Phi outstanding, because this year she has ruled all Greek letter women as President of Panhellenic Council. Head of the 1949 Gem secretarial staff, AWS and many campus committees have taken just a wee bit of her time too.

Rich Pennell

This super boss has been the pride of the Vandaleers and drama department. Character leads in many, many ASUI plays have brought cheers from the audience for four years. Phi Mu Alpha, Scabbard and Blade, and Blue Key have welcomed this active Fiji to their groups.

Orval Hansen

"King Midas," with the golden touch, is the only senior to complete four years of college with a straight four-point and is still a top activity man. A few of his feats include Alpha Zeta, Phi Eta Sigma, Blue Key, Scabbard and Blade, Delta Sigma Rho, Sigma Delta Chi, Phi Beta Kappa, Elections Board, IRC, KUOI business manager, Arg, Gem, Blot, IFC, Dad's Day, Kampus Key editor, Varsity Debate, Senior Track manager, and ROTC's outstanding air cadet.

and the staunchest spokes of the class of '50

Phyllis LaRue

The Argonaut's choice for outstanding senior woman reached the height of her success when she was elected May Queen of 1950. Top activities include secretary of ASUI Executive Board, Mortar Board, Phi Upsilon Omicron, Kappa Phi president, Spurs and Vandaleers.

Dick Boyle

Idaho's own "Mr. Anthony" to many troubled students, Dick always seems to make time to sit down and talk things over. Between business classes he has served as president of Interfraternity Council and Delta Tau Delta, been chairman of Student Activities Board and set in on Student Faculty Committee and Rally Committee meetings.

Morgan Touey

Willis Sweet's number one man served as Homecoming Chairman and Blue Key president this year. Supporting major titles include sophomore class president, Scabbard and Blade, Independent Caucus, Election Board chairman, U Band, U Singers, Senior Week, Dad's Day, and Attic Club.

Dave Lewis

The top man at KUOI in 1949, Dave has held a seat on the major boards at Idaho, including ASUI Executive Board, Publications Board, and Student Activities Board. Latest venture is the family board when he married a gal from across the state line at WSC.

Bette West

"B.I." has starred in many ASUI plays, headed various campus committees and made ladies out of pledges at the Thela house. Elected to ASUI Executive Board and Mortar Board in the spring of her junior year, Bette has gained top honors as a member of Kappa Phi, Delta Mu, Spurs, Curtain Club, Sigma Alpha Iota, and Vandaleers.

Dean Mosher

A little Fiji with big ideas and lots of ambition and initiative pretty well describes this all around activity man. Yell King in 1948-49, Dean has been an organizer in all major campus "weeks." Vandaleers, "I" Club, Blue Key, IRC, Phi Alpha Delta, Bench and Bar, and Student Activities Board have welcomed him into their ranks.

Ken McCormack

Brains, brawn, and a politician's hand-shake have made this Beta well-known on the Idaho campus. Alpha Epsilon Delta, Phi Eta Sigma, three years of varsity football and junior and senior class vice-president are the proof. "I" Club, Blue Key, and Silver Lance also claim him as a member. On the gospel side, Ken served as president of Canterbury Club.

Carl Kiilsgaard

"Bear Tracks," Idaho's football great, was chosen to play in the East-West Shriners' Benefit game last Xmas. A four-year football letterman, Carl became a member of "I" Club as a freshman and presided over the group in 1949. Ay Club and Alpha Zeta claimed him as a member as did Christmas Hall until the fall of 1949 when he joined his fellow athlete at the Idaho Club.

Rosemary Fitzgerald

"Fit" hangs her hat at the Pi Phi house and Nest and rules the Associated Women Students with an iron hand. WRA and Newman Club have claimed her as have Student Activities Board, Rally Committee, Calendar Committee, Disciplinary Board, Student Union Planning Committee, and ASUI Executive Board. She has also served as Spur prexy and Spur junior advisor.

Tom Rigby

He should be known as "President Tom" because this former Lindley man has served as president of the Northwest Regional International Relations Club, Delta Sigma Rho, and Independent Caucus. Varsity Debate has made Tom a well-known speaker on campus, but he had to take a back seat in activities after he took the matrimonial vows last Xmas with Elenore Strange.

Students Learn the Art of Living and Receive Professional Training

Art and architecture, biological sciences, home economics, humanities, mathematics, music, physical sciences, and social sciences are the eight diverse departments that compose the College of Letters and Science headed by Dean T. S. Kerr.

The cultural values of the fine arts and great literature of the world are combined with practical instruction that leads to careers related to the learning each individual pursues. Subjects that build a foundation for a fuller enjoyment of life and that develop a philosophical and clearly-reasoned view of man and his place in the universe are found among the humanities and social science courses, some of which the university requires be taken by all its students regardless of their major field.

The opportunities for specialized study are numerous in each of the departments, but in four years the student has a chance to explore the subject matter of a wide variety of courses that give him a broad understanding and perspective in years to come. The intangible values that build character are garnered through close relationships of teachers and students in classes that demand deep thinking about problems concerning human relations, purposes and values.

Betty Jo Howley, Ross C. Alm, and Muriel Stephens are three instructors who follow the English department's policy of developing their students' minds along with their speech and writing abilities.

Mrs. Rapaich, Norman Siringer, and Helen Dudley spend many hours in their University Hut offices grading freshman English compositions. Part of their work is concentrated on helping the student understand more completely the literature he reads.

of Letters and Science

Professor John H. Cushman, chairman of English, is an authority on great novels, classic and modern plays, Chaucer and Shakespeare.

Professor William Banks' deep and sincere interest in students helps them over the rough spots they meet in adjusting new ideas to their philosophies of life. His words impart inspiration.

Golden Anniversary Year for Letters and Science

The Orientation (Non-Degree) Curriculum intended to serve students who are not seeking a degree or who are having difficulty in deciding what courses they wish to select went into effect this year as a two-year general course in which students may branch out into a wide exploration of special interests.

The Administration staff of the college will have more room next year with the completion of the Ad building addition. All business offices that are now occupied by the Registrar and Bursar will be located in the annex and their present offices turned over to Letters and Science.

The College of Letters and Science was established just a half-century ago in 1900. It is the oldest and the largest of the nine schools and colleges that make up the University of Idaho. With 1950 marking the golden anniversary year for this division, there are golden achievements to go along with the occasion. Through the years changes and progress toward better classrooms, better instruction, and higher standards of developing individuals to attain the maximum goals of their potential possibilities have been stressed. The combining of education for living and for earning a livelihood are aims that have made this institution universally respected in its half-century of service.

Edward Cebull, Bernard Engel, and Hulon Willis share TC 2-105 as their office and hold student conferences there. They go over each student's work in regular individual talks with members of their classes.

Professors Howard Pakenham, William Tenny, and Theodore Sherman teach literature and other upper division classes. Professor Sherman is supervisor of the non-degree curriculum.

The Home Ec girls championed the cause of Bean Soup this year by popularizing it with a tasty new recipe.

Ann Harding tries her hand at textile design and painting in a Home Ec lab.

Art and Architecture faculty members Austin Killian, Clayton Page, Robert Garland, Mary Kirkwood, Theodore Prichard, Arnold Westerlund, and John Nevin try out the department's new furniture . . . Pottery classes give students of the machine-and-mind age a chance to create artistic products with their hands.

Original designs for all types of construction are drawn with technical accuracy by student architects who work for beauty and practicality . . . Norm Tilly explains the work of his team in city planning to other architecture students who worked on this class project.

Malcolm Jollie works on bird classification.

Professor Earl Larrison's collection of Snowshoe rabbits shows how protective coloration changes with the seasons.

Dr. Floyd W. Gail is head of botany studies in the department of biological sciences.

The Larrison-Jollie wildlife research team, trappers de luxe, arranges a collection of birds they have acquired . . . Dr. Gail assists a student with a complicated step in his Botany lab work.

Science students record their notes gathered by scientific observation . . . Boni Yragui works out a chemistry problem and learns the basic processes in chemical analysis.

Marion Frykman, William Davidson, Miriam Little, and George Michael practice for a faculty recital.

Louis Huber, Agnes Schuldt, and Keith Forney teach music classes and give individual lessons as well.

Herman Doh assisted Professor Paul T. Scott in the journalism department this year . . . Professor Arthur H. Beattie, Professor Howard French, Kathryn Beasley, Ellin Silverman, and Professor Claude Ashby teach classes in French, Spanish and German.

Professor Arthur H. Beattie, chairman of languages, has a Scotch-Irish ancestry but specializes in French. He has written two textbooks on French, received a diploma with honors from the Sorbonne, and was awarded the Academic Palm by the French Government in recognition of his distinguished service in the Arts . . . Miss Rentfro, August Vavrus, Professor Arthur Howe, and Paul Lonardo teach language and literature courses in Greek, Latin, Russian, Spanish, and French.

Problem solvers in the mathematics department are Cyrus McAllister, Miss Helen Jeane Terry, Leonard Lind, and Professor Anthony Lebarre.

Professors Lawrence Botsford, Alfred Halteman, Roy Wild, and Mr. George Witter work out answers in Room 303 of the Administration Building.

Professor R. E. Hosack, acting chairman of political science, explains the background for current headlines to his students . . . Professor C. J. Brosnan is an authority on American history. His textbook on Idaho history is used in teaching throughout the State. "Who's Who" lists him among the nation's most distinguished.

Professor Harry C. Harmsworth, chairman of sociology, studies human associations in their various forms and functions . . . Dr. Frederic C. Church, chairman of history, is famous for his bow ties, green shoes, and his knowledge of the history of civilization in its entirety.

Alpha Epsilon Delta

Aloysius, the skeleton, occupies the attention of this group during the year. Primarily for pre-med students, membership is also open to students in fields related to pre-med. The qualification for initiation is a 2.8 accumulative grade-point average, and the big event of the year is the annual initiation banquet. Tom Shull served as president of the group, while other officers were Leo Freiermuth, vice-president; Dave Ulmer, treasurer, and Betty Bonnett, secretary.

Row One: Bruce Powell, David Ulmer, Tom Shull, Charles Berry, Stanley Tanner, Robert Webb . . .
Row Two: Lee M. Kelley, D. A. Gustafson, W. H. Cone, H. W. Steffens, Leo Freiermuth.

Phi Upsilon Omicron

Membership in this Home Economics honorary is based on scholarship, activities, and interest in the home economics profession. The big event of the year is the annual Christmas holly sale, and last year the club's special project was the re-decoration of the cloak room in the Home Ec department. Phyllis LaRue was president, assisted by Gay Deobald, vice-president; Margaret Eke, secretary, and Shirley Tanner, treasurer.

Row One: Joan Brown, Beverlee Randall, Margaret Faust, Janice McCormick . . . Row Two: Miss Marion Featherstone, Sheila Darwin, Shirley Tanner, Phyllis LaRue, Gay Deobald, Marybelle Carnie . . .

Phi Beta Kappa

The oldest as well as the best known of college fraternities, Phi Beta Kappa is recognized as the father of the fraternity system on American college campuses. Originally a debating society of congenial spirits, Phi Beta Kappa has since become more and more an "honor" society, and now gives recognition to scholarly attainment in the field of liberal arts and sciences. Officers were J. Irving Jolley, president; and Frederic C. Church, secretary.

Row One: Betty Bonnett, Shirley Ball, Jeanne Foster, Ellomae Holden, Shirley Jacobsen, Edith Stough, Lois Siebe, May Burkhart . . . Row Two: Lee Bath, Alfred Prince, Beverly Schupfer, Vida Baugh, Elizabeth Bean, Gladys Crane, Robert Moulton . . . Row Three: Calvin Long, Clinton Chase, Donald Miller, Kenneth Briggs, Harry Dalva, Louis Boyle, George Crane, Orval Hansen.

Intricacies of Modern Business Demand Educational Preparation

Teaching students to know their business as it is conducted in the present-day world is handled by the School of Business Administration which is directed by Dean Ralph H. Farmer. The teaching of business as a profession, until fairly recently in our world, was learned not in the classroom but by entering some business firm and learning on the job. Today there is a demand from business firms for persons who have secured specific education for specialized positions. Since 1925 the university has maintained a separate school to acquaint students with the breadth and complexity of present-day economic life.

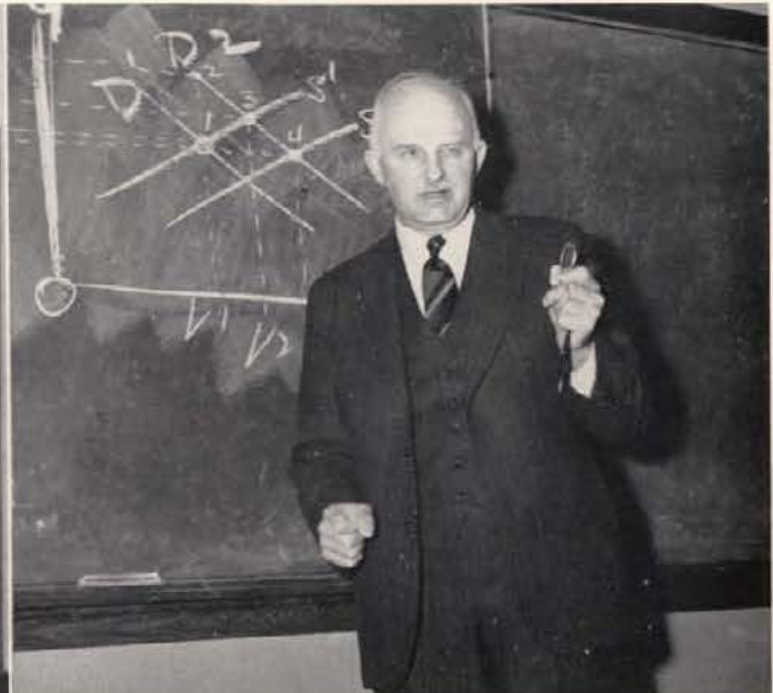

General Business, Accounting, Merchandising and Advertising, Foreign Trade, Extractive Industries, Economics, and Secretarial Studies are the seven major fields from which a student may choose the specialized curriculum he wishes to study.

The school avoids extreme specialized instruction in business practices in accord with the wise attitude that such practices vary greatly among business firms and change rapidly. The school's principal purpose in its educational program is to give students an understanding of the broad principles underlying all business activity.

Margaret E. Muir and Ruth Anderson teach typing and shorthand to classes in the secretarial studies department.

Professor Erwin Graue teaches economics to business majors and applies his theories of practical situations to human relationships in the everyday business of living.

of Business

Professor Willard J. Wilde handles the accounting problems of the School of Business.

Assistant Professor Charles E. Marshall teaches marketing and advertising to his classes. Students gained practical experience on merchandising field trips to Spokane.

Students Learn to Predict Trends and Adjust to Changing Business Conditions

Students are trained for specific jobs where this is possible as in learning the operation of office machinery, in accounting and in secretarial work. No training that may soon be out of date or inapplicable to the student's future work is stressed.

Another aim is to give the student some appreciation of the social and ethical responsibilities of the businessman.

A final purpose is to give the student the broad liberal education that is expected of the man or woman with a university degree. Personal relationships in the business world require the ability to get along with people and to meet them easily. The school seeks to aid its students in acquiring the background for this valuable attitude of congeniality.

A business workshop with research projects and an extensive library of business reports supplies the School of Business Administration with the means for keeping its fingers on the pulse of business and economic trends in Idaho and throughout the world. Students are taught to meet the conditions of the changing business world and to make well-reasoned speculations about the future.

Students relax on the Ad building steps before getting "up" to business in the second floor classrooms.

"Do you think he'll give a quiz today?" Students take a personal interest in the classroom plans of their unpredictable professors.

Phi Chi Theta

A dessert bridge party for faculty members of the business school and a joint banquet with the WSC chapter highlight the social activities of this honorary. Pi chapter was organized 23 years ago at Idaho, and its purpose is to encourage fraternity and cooperation among women business majors. The Phi Chi Theta key is awarded to the outstanding graduating senior. President Ruth Reichert was assisted by Janet Mackey, vice-president, and Barbara Schaff, secretary.

Standing: Barbara Schaff, Alice Johnson, Christy Sargent, Jo Ann Schlegel, Barbara Ulrich, Noreen Rouse, Jean Carter, Ruth Reichert

Audio-visual aids are becoming an important part of teaching.

Professor Boyer uses some psychology to keep his classes happy.

Educational Path Leads to Varied Careers and Opportunities

The School of Education, organized in 1920, is a profession school whose aim is to prepare qualified men and women for careers as teachers, supervisors, educational administrators, psychologists, and personnel officers. Various programs of study are planned to meet certification requirements of the State of Idaho, those of most states, and the requirements and policies of the better public school systems throughout the country.

The public schools of Moscow and surrounding communities are used for student teaching. Actual schoolroom conditions are thus provided for observation and for practice in teaching.

The four-year training programs are organized in such a way as to devote approximately one-half of the time to study in subject-matter fields, about one-fourth to general education, and somewhat less than the remaining one-fourth to professional education subjects.

The professional education courses include the study of the characteristics of the human individual and his process of physical, mental, and social growth; a study of the backgrounds, objectives, and effects of education; a study of and practice in instructional methods, and a study of the professional status of the educational worker.

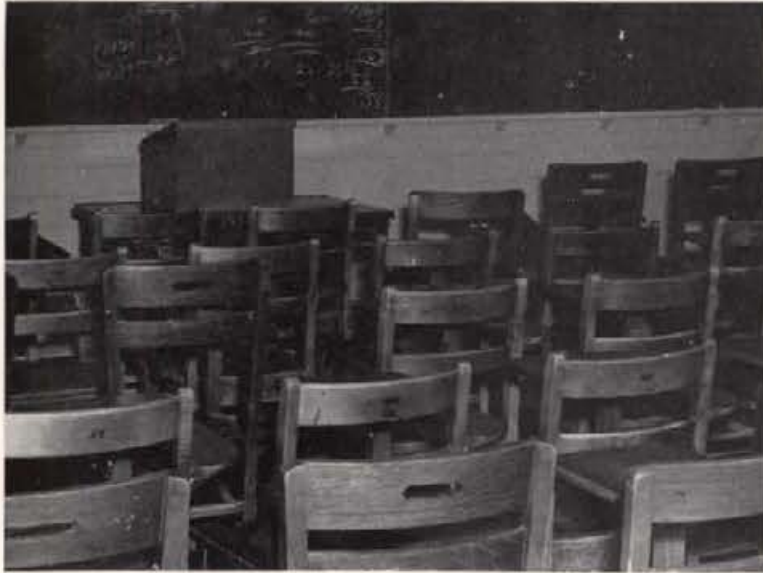

Dora Gaudin is one of the many practice teachers who learn the chalk and blackboard technique.

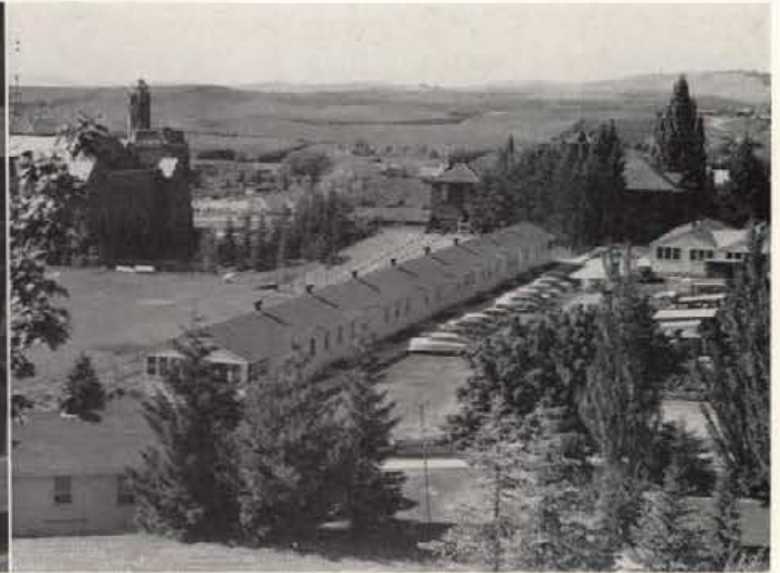

Professor Hvron L. Snider teaches classes in the philosophy, sociology, and history of education.

of Education

Saturday Classes.

The temporary classroom buildings are a part of the University's adjustment to suddenly-increased postwar enrollment of education-seekers.

Graduates Return to Catch Up with Current Practices

The University Placement Bureau renders placement services to Idaho graduates and students without charge. No graduate of the School of Education, with a reasonably satisfactory record, experiences any great difficulty in finding employment in the field for which he is trained.

For many years after their graduation day, teachers come back to Idaho in the summer to keep up with changing ideas and methods in education. Former Idaho students who are teaching in their home state cooperate with the university in standardizing state-wide educational curricula to insure a strong, well-balanced background for high-school students.

The Education Workshop serves as a supplementary library for education research. Bulletins, magazines, manuals, and a large variety of textbooks for all grades and types of instruction are supplied in the Workshop. The School of Education acquaints its students with the many career opportunities available to them in public and private teaching, with the Federal Government both in and out of the country, and in industries and institutions. Preparation for work in any field of educational service is offered through a complete program of specialized courses.

Dr. Ray M. Berry teaches courses in high school methods, school administration, and school finance.

Professor John Snider's courses deal with elementary, remedial, and other special studies in instruction.

"Ghastly, isn't it?"—Professor Boyer is explaining that the man at the right has been hypnotized and thinks his teacher has turned into an ape named Butch.

Dr. Burlingame is sure everything will turn out all right. She is classed among the most brilliant lab technicians in the nation.

Educators Apply Psychological Principles in Their Teaching

The Department of Psychology in the school of education is headed by Dr. William Boyer, who teaches classes in general and applied psychology. He is assisted by Dr. Giles, who specializes in guidance work and who conducts a children's clinic in the summer. This summer two specialists in the field of treating crippled children will help him in the child guidance clinic.

Mr. Welch is the department's research man and specializes in learning. He will be on leave next year for work on his Doctor's Degree.

Dr. Burlingame's work is concentrated on comparative psychology and individual differences. She handles the laboratory experiments and notebook work of psychology students. Mr. Miles served as lab instructor this year. He was chosen for the position through the department's custom of selecting the most outstanding psychology graduate for one year's work in the laboratory.

The principal work of the department is engaging in pre-professional training of psychology undergraduates. General Psychology and Educational Psychology are required courses for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education. Psychology as the study of human behavior is considered an indispensable part of the "equipment" needed by men and women entering educational occupations today.

Professor Giles is wondering about the whole affair but with proper guidance he believes the monkey business will be cleared up.

Professor Welch is all for experimenting a bit before he expresses an opinion. It may be that the man is an ape hypnotized into thinking the ape is a man. Who knows?

Dr. Ray M. Berry teaches an advanced education class in the Education Workshop. The literature found in the Workshop provides special information for education researchers.

Kappa Delta Pi

Kappa Delta Pi, national honorary for education majors, was established on the Idaho campus in June, 1928, and has for its purpose the recognition of outstanding future educators. A 3.0 grade average is required for membership, as are certain education courses. An initiation dinner, a banquet, and group parties comprised the social functions. Officers were Carol Organ, president; Elaine Androes, vice-president; Sue Beardsley, secretary; and Harold Skinner, treasurer.

The primary purpose of the College of Law is to afford a thorough and scientific legal education for students who are fitted to pursue professional study under university methods of instruction.

Mrs. William Fols has the task of caring for the nineteen thousand volumes and complete collection of treatises and periodicals, as well as all standard digests and encyclopedias in the law library.

Law Students Trained by Professional Legalists

The College of Law of the University of Idaho, headed by Dean Edward S. Stimson, has been in operation since 1909. The courses offered are all professional courses leading to the degree of LL.B. Normally a student may graduate after three years or six semesters in the College of Law.

The curriculum is designed to prepare students for the general practice of law in any American state. Special attention, however, is paid to local law in the western states such as community property, pleading and practice. Courses are also offered in subjects of increasing importance, such as labor law, taxation and administrative law. The accumulation of information is subordinated to the more important ends of developing the faculties of the student and of training him in scientific habits of thought, at the same time imparting a thorough knowledge of the law as it actually functions.

The College of Law is conducted on the theory that the teaching of law is a task requiring all the working time of well trained legal scholars who have made special preparation for teaching. The members of the teaching staff do not practice law but give their entire time to instruction and research.

Professor W. J. Brockelbank is one of the team of well-trained legal scholars who have made special preparation for teaching.

Professor Thomas R. Walenta and his colleagues concentrate to the ends of developing the facilities of the law student and of training him in scientific habits of thought.

of Law

The years may come, the years may go, but the feud between the aggies and the lawyers goes on forever.

Law students spend hours each day in their law library, studying the decisions and special problems of law cases.

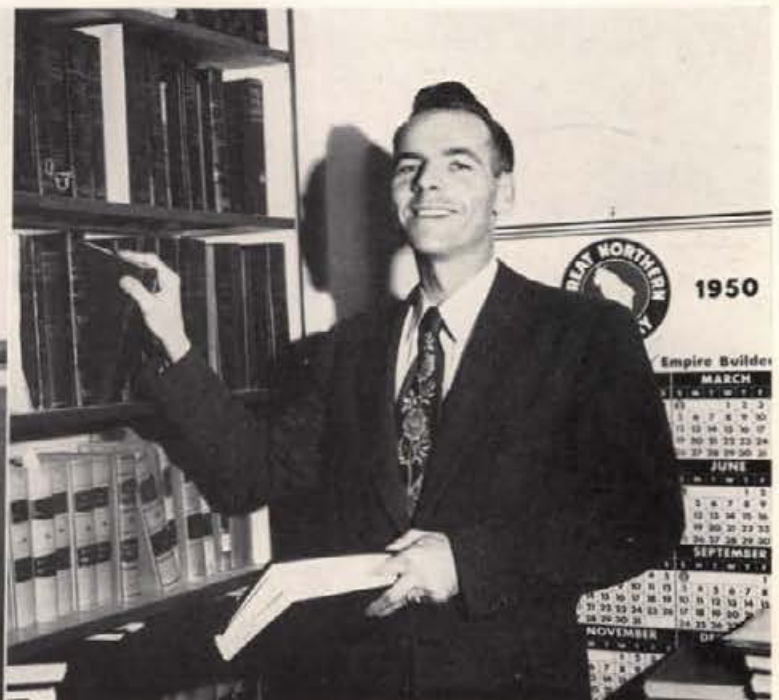

Third-Floor Back Specialists are a Close Knit Family

As an essential part of the curriculum, the Law School maintains a Practice Court, under the direction and control of members of the faculty. The purpose of this court is to supplement the classroom courses in pleading and practice by giving the students an opportunity to co-ordinate their knowledge of procedure with their knowledge of the substantive law in the oral argument of questions of law. The cases assigned in the practice court cover all the principal fields of law and equity. They are litigated in accordance with the usual rules of practice.

An excellent library of more than nineteen thousand volumes is maintained by the College of Law. Constantly being added to by gifts and purchases, it contains an unusually complete collection of treatises and periodicals, as well as all standard digests and encyclopedias. In order to obtain decisions from the highest level possible, all the reports of the Supreme Court of the United States are maintained, as well as those from the subordinate courts. To round out the potential lawyer's education, works on the general nature and history of law, legal philosophy, public international law, and on closely related fields of political science and business practice are also found in the library, which is operated by Mrs. Carolyn Folz, law librarian.

A part of Professor George M. Bell's work consists of preparing law students to take the bar examination in any state in the United States after they complete the required six semesters of specialized study.

Professor Robert E. Shea helps to impart a thorough knowledge of the law as it actually functions in his classes and gives special attention to local law in the western states.

Phi Alpha Delta

This professional fraternity was organized to promote high professional and ethical standards in the field of law. Its membership is composed of law students who have shown that they meet those standards of scholarship, ethics, and professional stature that the fraternity advocates. The William E. Borah Foundation Award is presented to the outstanding law school graduate each year under the auspices of Phi Alpha Delta. Lloyd G. Martinson served as Justice.

Seven hundred acres of university farm land, barns, and livestock are used to give practical training in agriculture.

Top Rating College Has New Million-Dollar Home

Long rated as one of the top agriculture schools in the nation, the College of Agriculture had reason to be especially proud this year. The million dollar Agriculture Science building construction began in June, 1949, and was finished in July, 1950. Four stories of the building appear above the sidewalk. There are 50,000 square feet of floor space and 500,000 cubic feet of space within the walls.

The aggies will not be reluctant to leave their old home in Morrill Hall to move into a functionally designed building with its plain straight lines uncluttered by frills. The plant and most offices of the thirteen separate departments of the College of Agriculture will be housed in the new building that incorporates such features as a modern mechanical exhaust system for discharging chemical fumes, walk-in refrigerators for vegetables and meats, a freight elevator, new modern lab equipment, a large lecture room wired for sound, noise-proofed walls, and asphalt tile flooring. Reinforced concrete walls faced with one inch of insulation board with one inch of air space followed by four inches of brick will save on heating costs for the large building through rigorous Moscow winters.

These two aggies look a little sheepish. They were late for Professor Hickman's eight o'clock class in Sheep Production.

Lady Shorthorn in her velvety white gown was a finalist for Little International Queen but Carol won out.

of Agriculture

First excavation for the new Ag Science building was made June, 1949.

Completed during the summer, the million-dollar building is expected to be nearly ready for use in September, 1950.

New Hen House Makes Fowl Life Pleasant

The Dairy Science building with its modern creamery, and the university's 700 acres of experimental farm land that also provides ideal shelters for fine herds of Holstein and Jersey cows, flocks of pure-bred sheep and several herds of pure-bred swine, adds to the facilities provided for training students in all phases of agriculture.

Amidst the vast expansion and construction that has marked this year of changes, the Poultry farm's pedigreed birds were not slighted. A new hen house replaced their temporary dormitories just as Dean Theophilus had promised his feathered friends.

A College of Agriculture major receives a well-rounded education at Idaho. Provision is made in the curricula to see that students receive a broad education in culture as well as specialized training in their agriculture major. The thirteen departments offer the best training there is in such fields as animal husbandry, dairy husbandry, horticulture, poultry husbandry, veterinary science and agricultural chemistry, economics, education, and engineering.

The university's pure-bred swine got some extra-special instructions about not being hoggish in the Little International parade.

These black-faced sheep are blue ribbon winners whose pedigree lists are enough to make their poorer relations red-faced.

Henry C. Hansen and James C. Boyd are two members of the university's research staff that traced cheese woes to bacteria-killing penicillin found in milk of cows treated for mastitis.

Professor C. E. Lampman, poultry department head, takes down feed-ration figures as C. F. Peterson, poultryman, weighs the chicken.

Research and Service Are Stressed by University

In addition to regular schooling, a five-month short course in Commercial Dairying gives men practical working knowledge of modern dairy manufacturing methods that fits them to fill responsible positions in the dairy products industry.

Research in the Agricultural Experiment Station turns out numerous scientific findings each year that are converted to practical improvements and new ways for better utilizations of the land and its products. These valuable additions to agricultural progress are published and circulated directly to the people who can use the information through the services of Extension workers. The university's three-fold program of Teaching, Research, and Service for the citizens of Idaho is effectively and progressively carried out through the well-integrated organization of the College of Agriculture.

Idaho Sends Three Judging Teams to Pacific International

Members for the Dairy Products Judging Team were chosen on the basis of who had the best smellers and tasters for telling the quality of milk, butter, cheese, and ice cream. They judged against the experts' ratings in Portland at the Pacific International in October, placing second, and then went to Los Angeles for the International Collegiate Contest.

The Dairy Cattle Judging Team placed second at the Pacific International Livestock Show, October 8. Lamont Smith placed second high in individual judging and first in judging Brown Swiss breeds. Donald Wagoner placed first in Ayrshire judging. The Brown Swiss bell, which becomes the property of the school winning it three times, has been won twice by Idaho in the two years it has been offered.

At the same show, the Livestock Judging Team brought home grand championships for swine and lamb breeds, and numerous blue and red ribbons were won by other livestock entered in the show.

Surveying the campus is a job that never ends for engineering students who learn by doing in rain, shine, and snow.

In the fall Kirtley Annex construction was just beginning.

Engineers Look Forward to a New Home

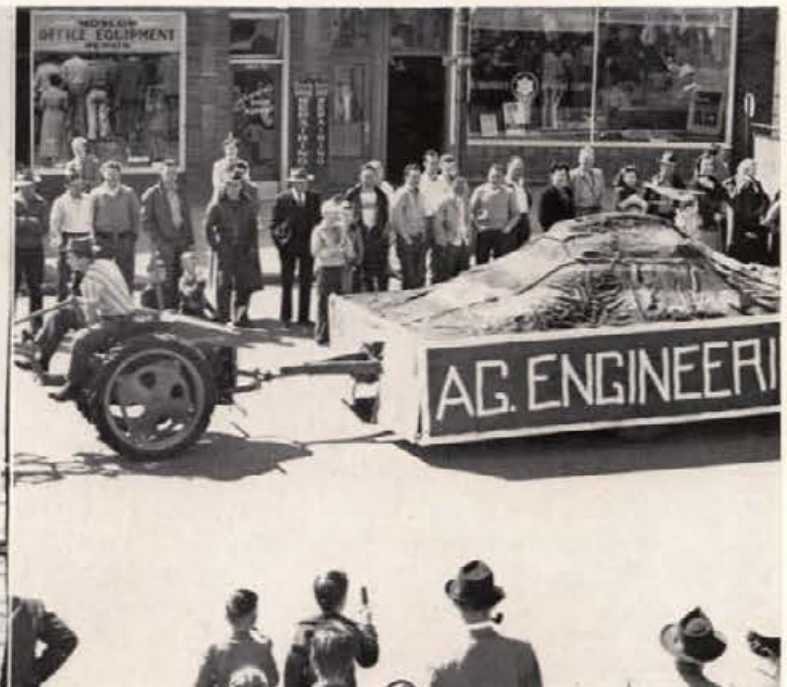

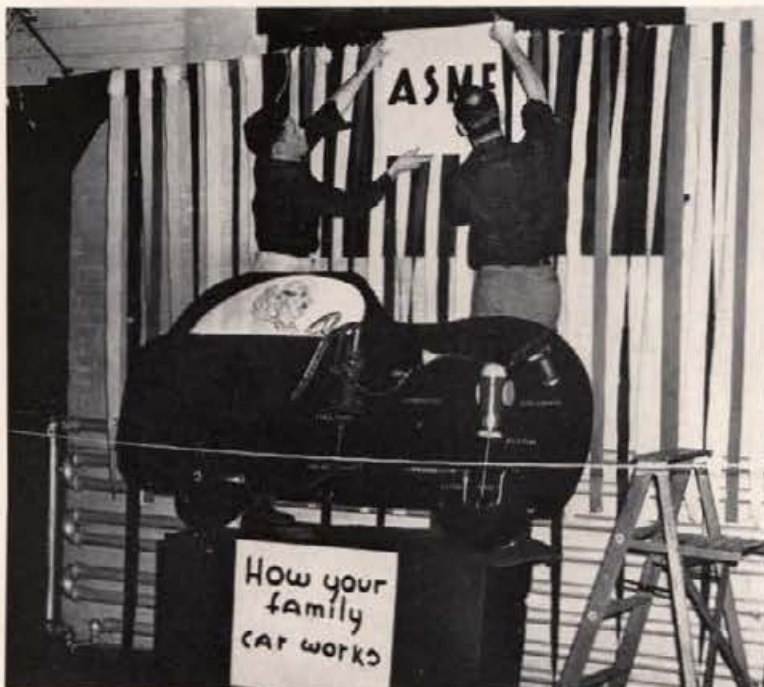

The College of Engineering has experienced a year of transition and expansion while preparing to move to new quarters that were under construction this year. The Kirtley Laboratories Annex was completed this spring and the new Engineering Classroom Building that will house all Engineering offices and classes is slated for completion January, 1951. The Engineers will be in a compact location with laboratories and classrooms next door to each other.

The present Engineering building that has stood as a Gothic landmark on the Idaho campus for nearly a half century will be razed next year to make room for the new Home Economics building.

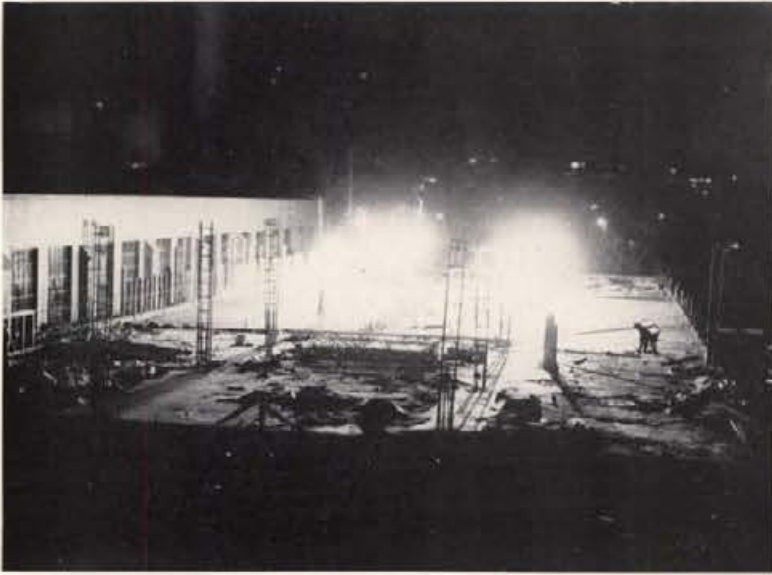

Of medium size as rated among the 150 engineering colleges in the nation, Idaho is recognized as a training center for engineers that is large enough to provide the finest equipment and laboratories for its students while being small enough to give personalized instruction to the work of each individual. The outstanding accomplishments of College of Engineering graduates in competition with engineers throughout the world indicates the excellence of the training they receive at Idaho. Large industries on the Pacific Coast, in the Middle West and in the East regularly interview and recruit graduates because they know what others from Idaho have done.

Concrete was poured on winter nights to speed up the progress of the Annex.

By late spring, the Annex was completed and ready for new equipment and testing rooms to be set up.

Vets March Away to Re-Build the World

The work of the first year in engineering is basic and the same for all freshmen. At the beginning of the second year, students begin to specialize in one of the five main divisions of the College of Engineering. The particular branches of the profession that offer complete training are Agricultural Engineering, Chemical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, and Mechanical Engineering. Of special note among the equipment available for practical instruction are such features as a new and complete chemical engineering laboratory; a new hydraulic and irrigation laboratory; a new mechanical engineering laboratory with typical, full-size engines, machine tools, and steam, gas, and aeronautic apparatus; and exceptionally well-equipped groups of electrical laboratories for work in power, electronics, and radio.

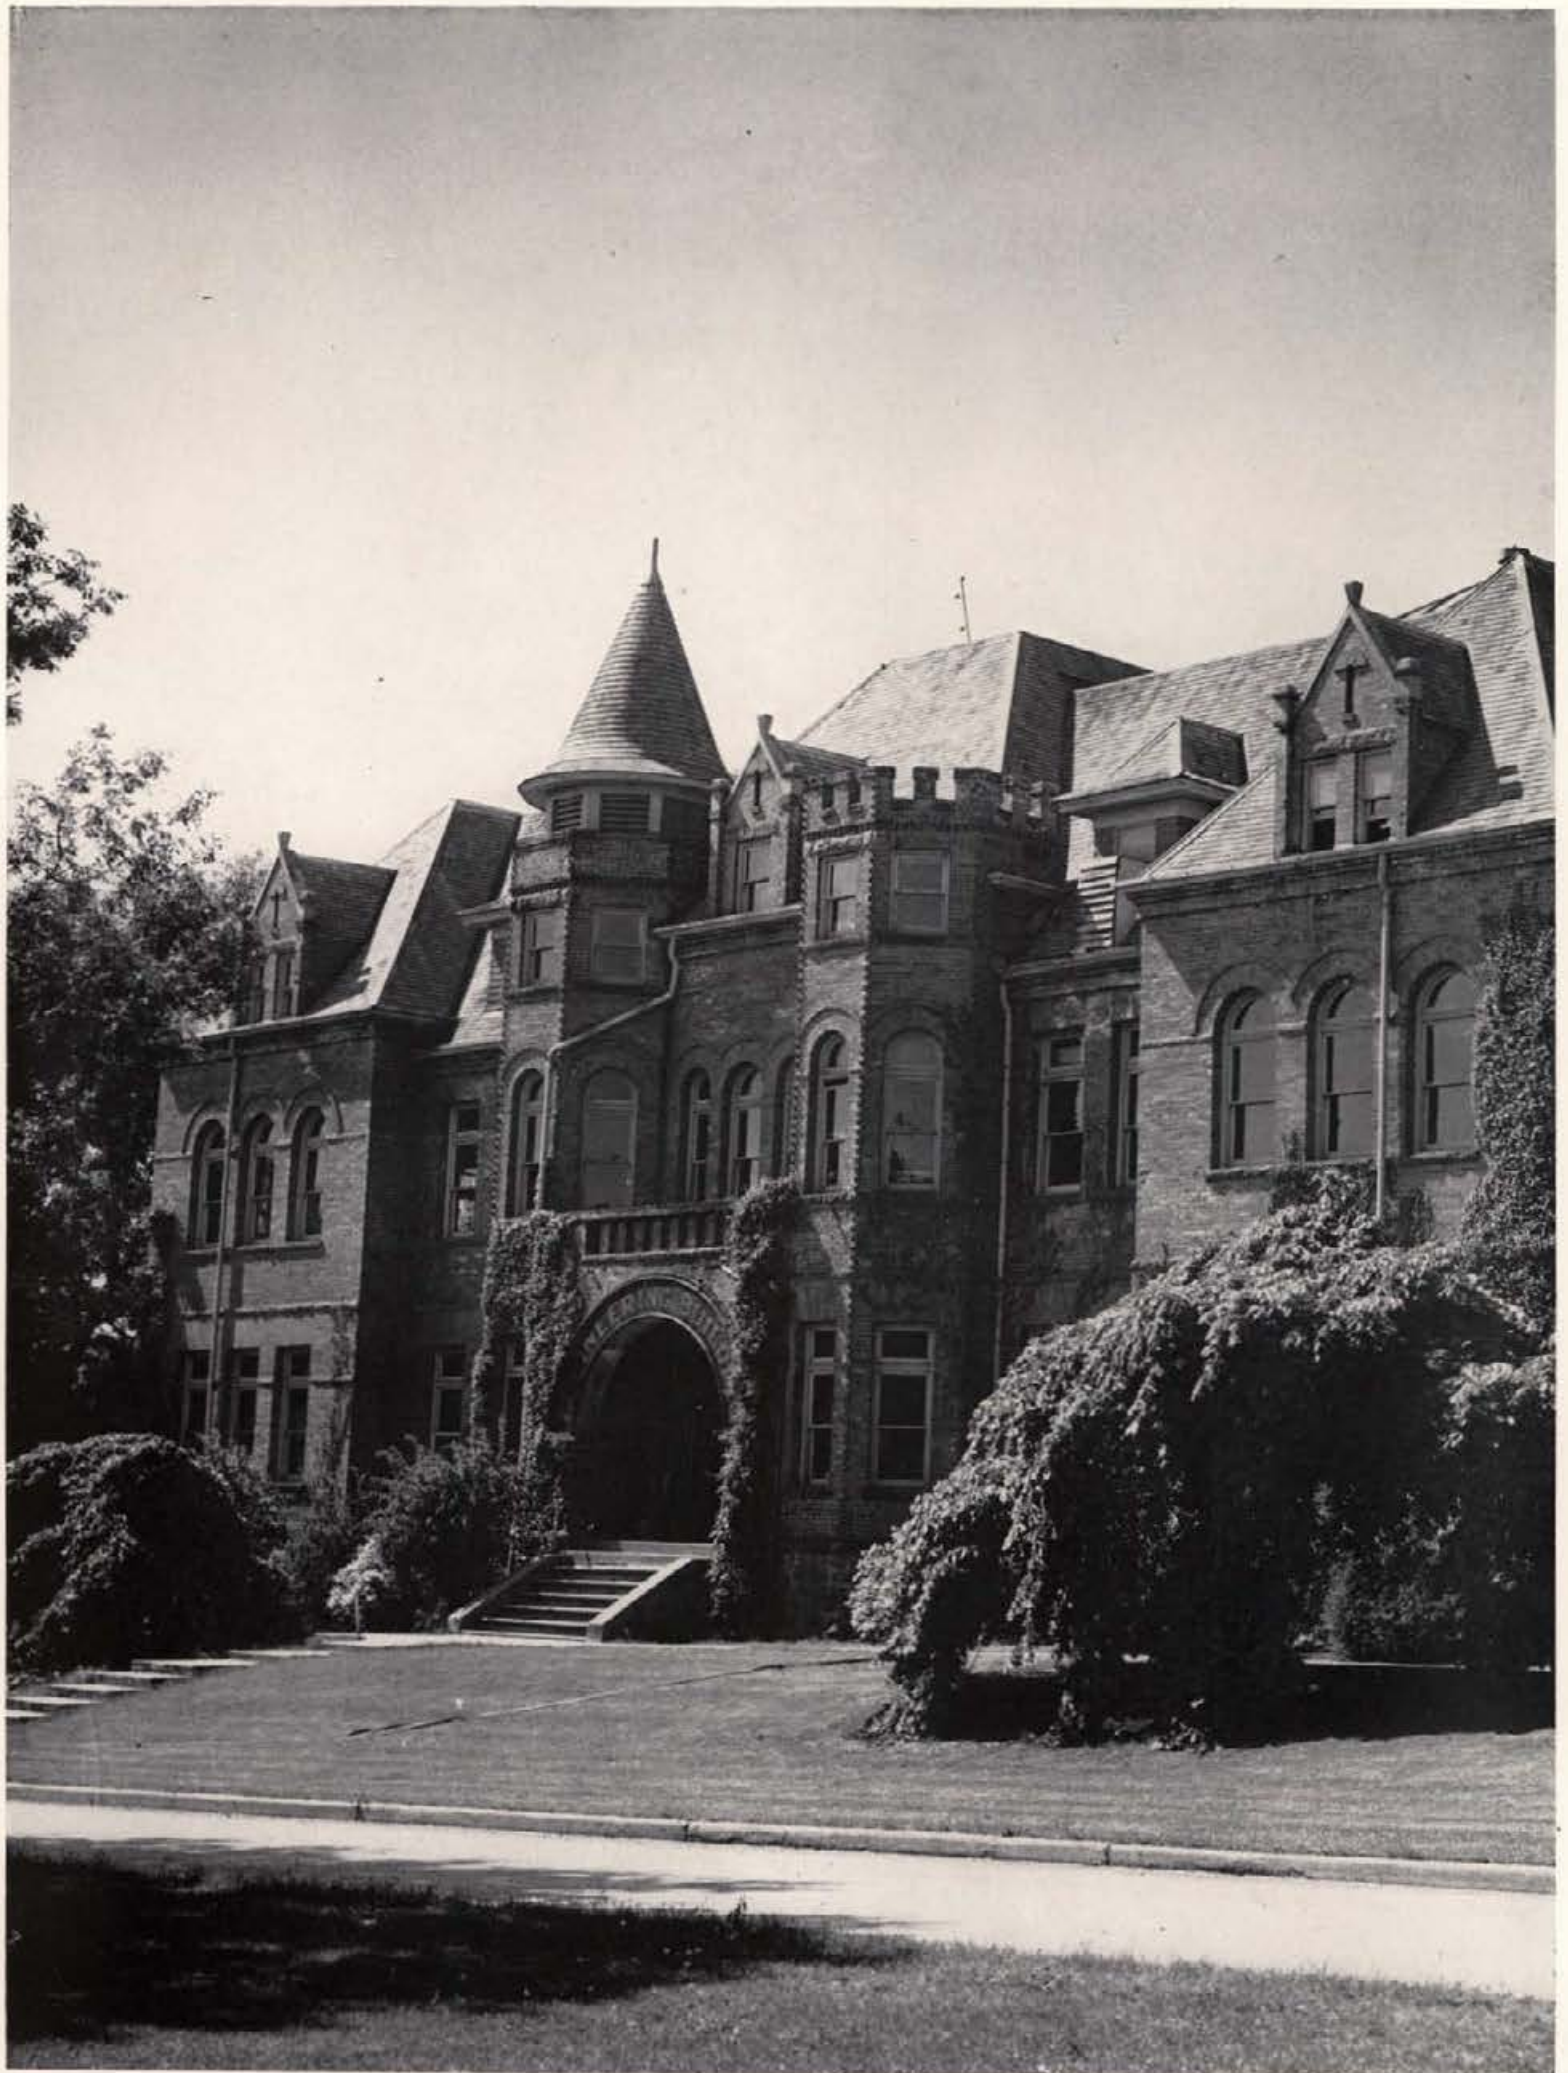

In this, the busiest year the five engineering departments have ever known, their largest class in the university's history was graduated. The veterans marched away with their sheepskins to set about rebuilding a war-damaged world. Many of them will return next year for advanced study in cooperation with the Engineering Experiment Station. The College of Engineering sends forth men who use their technical training to design and build all the materials and constructions that make this a more orderly and solid world in which to live.

Initial excavation for the Engineering Classroom building tore up the land across the street from the Navy building.

Such work as pouring molds for supporting columns fascinated the passersby throughout the year. The Classroom building will be finished in January, 1951.

A sentimental last look at an old landmark, the Engineering Building. Condemned since 1924, the picturesque Home of the Engineers will be torn down next year.

Recognition of professional and scholastic achievement in the engineering field is the prime purpose of Sigma Tau, national engineering honorary. Selection for membership is based on scholarship and leadership in the junior and senior years. Awards are made each year to freshmen in engineering for outstanding scholastic achievement. Dean and Mrs. Jeffers get acquainted with Paul Bunyan at Foresters' Ball.

Idaho Offers Foresters a Vast Outdoor Classroom

The School of Forestry at the University of Idaho attracts more out-of-state students than any other factor on the campus. Every state in the Union is generally represented among the foresters. Idaho's top national rating for excellent training in this field is one of long standing.

All foresters follow the same schedule of studies through four semesters followed by summer camp at Payette Lakes. Then in the third year, specialization in wood utilization, forest, range or wildlife management begins. The basic program provides a broad foundation, as well as an acquaintance with several of the fields of professional and scientific activity, any one of which the student may choose to prepare for in his remaining undergraduate years.

All forestry students attend summer camp at the end of their second year to become acquainted with the nature of field work in forestry. Summer camp is held for eight weeks immediately following the close of the spring semester.

The work of the School of Forestry goes far beyond the teaching done on campus. Experiment and extension offices are located throughout the state for the supervision of over 75 per cent of Idaho's land that is classified as non-cultivated. Detailed reports of the condition of these wild lands and all things vegetable, mineral and animal that are contained there are carefully kept by the university. Research studies are made of potential utilization possibilities and means of improving these areas that compose over three-fourths of our state.

Professors Ernest Wohletz, Merrill Deters, and William Polz talk over transportation problems with the Potlatch logging superintendent.

Frank Pitkin, manager of the university nursery, finishes packing 150,000 trees destined for planting in tree-starved areas of southern Idaho.

"In the Forest Where the Air Is Clean, So Are a Man's Thoughts"

The University of Idaho is one of the 16 selected institutions where a collection of flora and wood specimens of all trees in the United States is being assembled. This collection affords an unusual chance for students to become acquainted with the trees, range plants, and plant diseases of all species.

The arboretum contains over 150 species of trees. Nearby is a 20-acre forest-tree nursery maintained and operated by the School of Forestry in cooperation with the Federal Government for the production of young trees for planting. A 7,000-acre University Experimental Forest is located on the slopes of Moscow Mountain. Within 40 miles of Moscow is the largest electrically-operated white pine sawmill in the world. Land that offers real problems in soil conservation, support of wild life, and which is useful in studying all phases of management and conversion to recreational or grazing areas, is found in abundance throughout the state.

These outdoor classrooms combined with teaching and laboratory experimentation and research provide an ideal training ground for the type of forester Idaho produces. Courage and vision coupled with qualities such as courtesy and boundless energy are requirements that a forester must measure up to to make the grade as keeper of the open range at Idaho.

Dr. Lee Hutchins, who is from the Bureau of Plant Pathology in Washington, D.C., and Dr. Ernest E. Hubert do further research on young trees afflicted with pole blight.

Dr. Thomas S. Buchanan inspects a white pine infected with the pole blight disease that presents unsolved mysteries of cause and corrective treatment.

This national forestry honorary is the goal of all foresters, being composed of students selected on the basis of high scholastic attainments in the field and in related courses. Highlight of the year is the annual picnic featuring two-inch steaks broiled to individual taste. Walter L. Robinson served as Forester; Omar M. Campbell, Associate Forester; Leonard W. Hoskins, Secretary; and Paul A. Hoskins, Ranger.

Mr. Harry H. Caldwell instructs students in geology and geography courses that have cultural as well as practical mining value for understanding the earth's formations.

The Geology building is the home of the School of Mines. Mineral collections and samples of ore from all parts of the state are found inside the showcases that line the hallways.

Modern Methods Replace Sourdough Prospecting

The sourdough prospector, who played such an important part in the whole mining picture and around whom much of the early history and romance of mining has been written, now plays a secondary although important role in ore-finding. Now, the trained mining geologist, by scientific methods, is more likely to discover important new ore bodies, or, if failing in this, marks those areas in which the prospector's chances are most favorable. The prospector, untrained in the science of geology, sees only the surface and this not through trained eyes, while the geologist-pro prospector sees the surface, and through this observation is able to predict with intelligence subsurface possibilities.

In August of 1917 the School of Mines was created as an administrative unit of the university to train men in the technology of the mineral industries and to improve mining operations through scientific research.

Invaluable opportunities to supplement instruction at the school are offered by observation of the best technical practice and actual field training work in the mines of one of the foremost mining regions in the world. Idaho cannot be surpassed as a field for general geologic investigation with numerous natural formations available for students to study.

Going down—student miners enter the subterranean chambers of a mine to study at first hand what they have read in books.

Miners like a gamble, and here the boys have a bet on. He who pans the most ore wins.

of Mines

Muckers' Ball with "greenbacks" and an air of the gay nineties brings back the romance of early mining days.

In this geology lab, students benefit from the research of others who have studied the history and evolution of the earth as recorded by its crust.

U of I Surrounded by Natural Wonders and Rich Mines

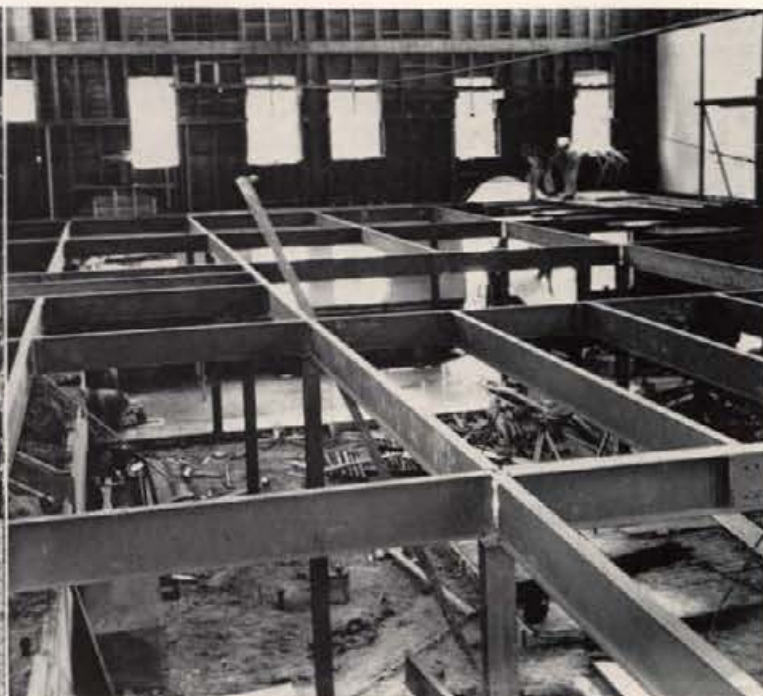

Since its beginning, the school has devoted extensive research to many valuable projects. By working together with the Idaho Bureau of Mines and Geology to gather basic information on the mineral resources of Idaho, the school has found extensions of old ore bodies and discovered new ones. Benefits in the field of mineral processing over the years should be estimated in millions of dollars for the state alone—hundreds of millions on a world-wide basis—for many ore-processing machines and techniques, such as Dean Fahrenwald's flotation process, are in use in mining districts all over the world.

Remodeling of the Metallurgy building this year caused a shift in the offices of the school. Professor W. W. Staley's office was moved to the temporary Metallurgy building across the street from the university heating plant. Professor Staley accompanies miners on their field trips and tours of field inspection to mining districts of the state.

Students of geology and mineralogy have their centers of study ideally situated in locations unrivaled for their nearness to natural wonders such as the Craters of the Moon, the "River of No Return," and Snake River's "Hell's Canyon," parts of which are the deepest on the continent. Mining students receive their classroom and field training from a university that is located in the geographical heart of a vast mineral area.

The whole bunch got together on a field trip for Professor Staley to take their picture in the latest mining fashions. Notice the novel lighting on m'lords' hats.

The Metallurgy building in the process of receiving a complete interior remodeling for next year's usage.

Student miners record further research information deep beneath the earth's surface.

Sigma Gamma Epsilon

Sigma Gamma Epsilon, mineral industries honorary, is made up of scholars in the earth sciences who maintain sufficiently high grades to place them in the upper portion of their class. Active on the campus since 1929, the group has for an objective the promotion of fellowship within the group. James Roy served as president; J. Melvin Baillie, vice-president; James Morgan, secretary-treasurer; and George Glarborg, corresponding secretary.

Enrollment Highest Ever as Graduates Seek More Knowledge

Enrollment in the Graduate School broke all records this year as graduates returned to work on their masters or to do advanced study in their special fields. Research projects abounded and valuable contributions to science, industry, and agriculture were added to the impressive list of serviceable discoveries and inventions made through the university's research and project program.

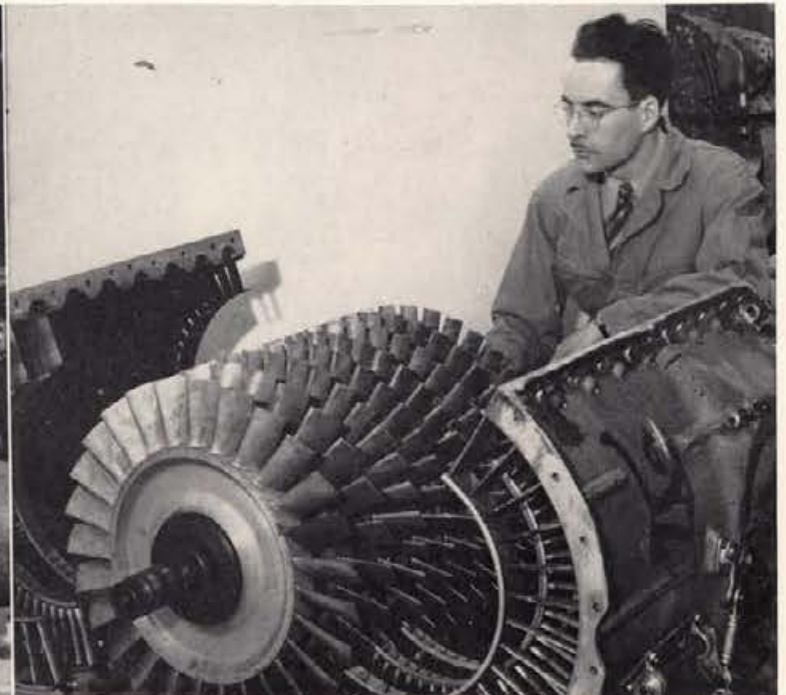

The Graduate School presents an opportunity for its students to become closely associated with mature scholars in the classroom and the laboratory. This year twenty-eight research fellowships and twenty-four teaching assistantships were distributed among various departments of the university. Research fellowships vary from $750 to $1,200 and teaching assistantships from $750 to $1,000.

Most of the research fellowships are given to students who carry on phases of studies in the regular research program of the experiment stations. This close connection between graduate research and the experiment stations not only aids materially in the over-all research program of the university but also provides the best type of training for the individual looking forward to a career in research. Teaching assistants are expected to give half-time service to teaching work.

Research fellow William Simpson gets down to some fine points in his advanced study.

Seymour Levy helps Tom Coulton with his fishnets. Mr. Coulton taught part-time in the zoology department while working on fish pond studies for his M.S.

Problems in welding were taken up in Henry Silha's paper that earned him his Master of Science degree in mechanical engineering.

Summer School Attracts Advanced Learners

Graduate work is administered by the Graduate Council composed of Dean Charles W. Hungerford and nine members appointed by the president from various academic divisions of the university. J. Frederick Weltzin, Erwin Graue, Joseph Newton, William C. Banks, L. C. Cady, N. F. Hindle, Merrill E. Deters, Hall M. Macklin, Lee F. Zimmerman, and D. D. DuSault form the present Graduate Council.

Graduate students for the 1950 summer session outnumbered the undergraduates as high school teachers returned to catch up with current educational practices and the veterans delved further into specialized learning. Those seeking advanced degrees in the arts also increased in number.

Over thirty-five departments in the university offer their complete facilities and special instruction to the ever-growing number of graduate students who have found that they need additional training to supplement the basic training received in the undergraduate school. Specialized occupations, research positions, and teaching careers call for the advanced preparation that graduate students have found to be more than adequate at Idaho.

Visiting director for the summer session of curriculum revision, Dr. William H. Anderson lectures to a class of graduate students in the Education workshop.

During the war, Howard C. Johnson served with the secretariat of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Afterwards, he was appointed to the Veto Committee of the United Nations and is now Advisor to the Planning Staff Bureau of United Nations Affairs. While the Assembly adjourned for the summer, Mr. Johnson taught political science courses to lucky Idaho students.

Upperclassmen Took an Upper Hand in Running the Campus

Vaudeville had a comeback when the juniors brought Dick Taylor with his "Taylor Made Music" to Memorial gymnasium for the Junior Prom April 15. The six acts of the vaudeville show featured a Hollywood chorus of dancing girls, novelty numbers, and mimic entertainment, mental telepathy, and juggling. Pretty snappy, eh? Try as they might, though, not a single junior romeo wrangled a date from the performers.

The wheels began to roll as the juniors got ready to replace their senior masters both in the classroom and in campus activities. A fine adeptness in the art of campusology marked the casual poise of the wise old members of the Class of '51. They were beginning to grasp a filmy something called "mental and emotional maturity." From the green of frosh days, to the blue of the sophomore slump, they were emerging to the golden days of achievement and progress in the subjects they were seeking to master and in the art of adjusting to a satisfactory concept of life and their part in it.

Helen Means

The DG's president has cut quite a swath for herself in three years. Beginning with Alpha Lambda Delta, Gem, and Home Ec Club as a freshman, her next two years are history. Spurs, Debate, Arg, Theta Sigma, Phi Upsilon Omicron, Panhellenic Council, and AWS have all clamored for and received her attention.

Dale Benjamin

Here's the "Voice of the Vandal" himself, the director of KUOL. Dale has also served as president of the SAE house and Interfraternity Council. An old timer in journalism, he won a press scholarship, is a member of Sigma Delta Chi, and favors the Arg with a story now and again. Blue Key and Silver Lance have crowned him with success, too.

Barbara Swanstrom

Meet the newly elected president of Mortar Board. Three short years have seen Barb uhahing with the Spurs, dabbling in publications, working backstage on ASUI plays, and orienting frosh women through AWS. If you ever need a hard-working organizer, just call the DG house and ask for Barb—she's a top activity gal.

Marie Hargis

"Viro" is one of Hays Hall's most active girls. Being Blot editor and the star of many ASUI plays have made her well-known on campus. Theta Sigma, Mortar Board, and Curtain Club have tapped her for membership, and she was also elected by the women students as May Fete Maid of Honor for 1950.

Jack Gregory

Jack has sponsors, no less, for his KRPL program of songs by an Irish tenor. He gave splendid performances as Feste in "Twelfth Night" and as the singing newsboy of "The Time of Your Life." This vandaleer is claimed by the ATCs as their number one character and by the campus as its dry humor man. Incidentally, he's quite an angel—in pep band shows.

Paul Araquistain

Over at the Phi Tau house, Paul is the number one boy. United candidate for ASUI presy this spring, he has been the moving force on United Caucus, Vice-president of sophomore class, Disciplinary Board, Coalition Board, Student Businessmen's Chamber of Commerce and various campus committees have received Paul's attention and guidance.

Pam Gaut

Here's another Kappa with a lot on the ball. Have you ever seen this kid go into one of her character acts? She's terrific. And you ask if she's been in activities—here are just a few: Debate, Alpha Lambda Delta, Canterbury Club, Hell Divers, Spurs, WRA, Orchestra, Kappa Delta Pi. Her success was crowned with election to Mortar Board.

Donna Jean Broyles

You'll see and hear lots about this girl next year because she's going to be Homecoming chairman. A potential wheel from the time she stepped on campus, Donna has been a Spur, junior class treasurer, Alpha Phi president, and a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, Curtain Club, and Student-Faculty Board.

John Martin

"Red Eye" is known on campus for his hot editorials. He brought the Argonaut an All-American rating when he was editor. Distinguishing himself in many fields, he is a member of Blue Key, Publications Board, Sigma Delta Chi, and was recently elected to preside over the Kappa Sig house this year.

Gary Sessions

Alpha Tau Omega says he's the hardest working man on campus and we pretty well agree with them. Gary has been in a lot of activities and came out on top every time. Blue Key recognized his efforts and made him a member as did Alpha Zeta when they elected him president. He has also worked on Homecoming, Dad's Day, Little International, and for the Ag Club.

Mary Louise Will

The ability to meet any situation gracefully and forcefully has gained Mary Louise a seat at the head of many boards and committees. She has served as president of Alpha Lambda Delta and Spurs, and vice-prexy of AWS. Recently she was tapped for Mortar Board because of her work for Delta Sigma Rho, Varsity Debate, Student Union Board, Arg and dramatics.

Vern Bahr

Idaho's newly-elected ASUI president lives at Chrisman. Top activities include Blue Key, Silver Lance, Alpha Zeta, Phi Eta Sigma, Scabbard and Blade, Homecoming and multi boards and committees. Last year Vern was voted the outstanding student in the school of agriculture. In sport circles, he has been active in varsity boxing.

Rose Ellen Schmid

Election to ASUI Executive Board was a highlight of Rose's junior year. A resident of Hays Hall, she has been active in Spurs, Kappa Phi, U Band, Vandaleers, Independent Caucus, AWS, and Home Ec Club. Next year on Executive Board she will act as private secretary to the ASUI president.

Betty Peters

Betty Peters is the "poet laureate" of the Idaho campus. She has been a mainstay of the fiction staff of Biot as well as the Arg, Curtain Club, Theta Sigma, Spurs, Independent Caucus, Student Activities Board, WRA, Gem staff and Mortar Board have favored her with membership and welcomed her talents.

Bob Culbertson

"Cub" is one of those people who works like a little beaver but is very seldom heard of. Actually he's one of the top organizers in the junior class. A Beta brother, he has served as president of Alpha Phi Omega, Blue Key secretary, and was a member of IKs, Vandaleers, and Phi Mu Alpha.

Dick Reed

If you've ever been to a basketball game over in Memorial Gym and seen a streak of lightning race down the floor, you've seen Dick Reed. He's forward on the varsity five and a two-year letterman. Recently he was elected to ASUI Executive Board. You can generally find him at the Sigma Nu house if he's not playing ball at the gym.

Jane Fisk

Athletic Jane has devoted three years to physical activity among women students and was recently rewarded with the presidency of WRA. A spark plug in all Forney Hall activities, she is also their president. Mortar Board tapped Jane this spring. Her enthusiasm, ability and stick-to-it-iveness make her a much-called-on gal for important jobs.

Janice McCormack

Jan is presently busying herself as president of AWS as well as of the Hays Hall lassies. To be at the top of AWS you have to have activities back of you and Jan has. The top ones include Spurs, Arg, Debate, Phi Upsilon Omicron, Mortar Board, and loads of committees and boards.

Sherman Black

Sherm has probably been mistaken for a professor more times than most professors. Currently he is fiction editor of Biot, president of Kappa Delta Pi and International Relations Club, and a member of Sigma Delta Chi and Blue Key. His prose and poetry show great talent in the budding.

Allen Derr

If you see the Arg editor rattling around the campus in a blue bucket of bolts, that's Al Derr in his limousine. "Jason" has been tops in activities for three years, lives at the TKE house (or at least sleeps there), and holds membership in Blue Key, Silver Lance, Sigma Delta Chi, Publications Board, and ASUI Executive Board.

Holly Week Traditions Carried On

The sophomores brought Carmen Cavallaro to the campus for the 1949 Holly Week Dance. The Poet of the Piano played for "Holly Frolics" and Christy Anne Sargent was crowned the Holly Queen of the year. An arch consisting of holly and mistletoe was constructed along with several lighted Christmas trees to make up the decorations. "Mistletoe Inn," a room inside a room, featured a towering ornamented tree.

The annual Sophomore Serenade of all the campus living groups heralded the approach of the Christmas season as softly falling snow descended on the yuletide singers.

The sophomores took over their share of campus activities and concentrated on Nesting and Perching between classes. They began to understand what college was all about and started learning how to live in the adult world they would soon enter as intelligent members of a complex society.

Frosh Frolics Made a Big Hit on Campus

There must have been some Irishmen among the freshmen. March 17 was the date set for the frolicking frosh dance decorated in shamrock green with all the trimmings of St. Patrick's Day. Connie Baxter and Bruce McIntosh were crowned Queen and King of the Leprechauns at the "Wearing of the Green" semi-formal dance. Glen Henry's orchestra came straight from Hollywood to add their "Impression in Rhythm" to the gala affair.

Special guests at the dance were visiting high school seniors who were also shown about the campus and through the various academic departments of the university by representatives from the Class of '53.

Not so many veterans appeared in the new crop. Most of the frosh were direct from high school, and properly bewildered by the campus world of activities, wheels, all-campus events and conflicting ideas presented in the classroom. The youngsters soon adopted the "collegiate air" and by second semester were amazing their big brothers and sisters by their "savoir faire" in matters curricular and extra-curricular. Oh, those reference papers!

The Golden Fleece

No volume of the Gem of the Mountains has ever been produced without meeting and overcoming special difficulties. Neither has a Gem come into existence without the cooperation, sacrifices of time and labor, and spirit of loyalty and devotion such as the kind given by the staff of this book.

My special gratitude goes to Jerry Bunnell, Karl Klages, Bob Nixon, Fairy Frank, Jerry McKee, Clyde Winters, Lee Bath, Sally Norris, Phil Johnson, Tom Mitchell and Andy Tozier who, when reliability and skill were needed, gave forth with a willing determination to get things done.

To the secretaries and photomounters who accomplished their jobs with efficiency and without expectations of glory or reward, I can only offer my admiration and thanks for wonderful support.

A special feeling remains with me for the Gem photographers. Behind the pictures in the book lies the story of what it took to obtain a pictorial history of the year. Their contribution and my thanks are equally inexpressible in mere words.

Working with each staff member has been a rich and rare experience. Every one of them had a vital interest in the Gem and I shall always believe that each one did his and her best—even when the ship seemed to be sinking.

Throughout the year the trip has been an adventure. My broader thanks go to those students and members of the faculty and administration whose interest and grand cooperation rang like cheers from the shore raising the spirit of the Argos crew and thereby easing the rougher crossings. When the bad times are forgotten, memories of these supporters will still fire a sharp glow of faith in human nature.

In a class apart stands General Manager Gale Mix who always had the right solution for every problem. He moved mountains of obstruction from our path as though they were only very small molehills.

An acknowledgment of my indebtedness is far from complete until I thank Rafe Gibbs and Newt Cutler in the Publications office, Hutchison's, Sterner's, and Rudy's studios, and Kyle's Photo Shop for their cooperation and fine work.

Western Engraving and Colortype of Seattle and Syms-York Company of Boise gave us the benefit of their long experience and wisdom in the production of All-American yearbooks. Kingscraft produced our covers with high fidelity to our wishes and we thank them for the quality of their work.

For all who helped plan and produce Volume 48 of the Gem of the Mountains, there is discovered a bit of rewarding truth more precious than the capture of a golden fleece. The golden memories known only to those who shared the experience of creating this book are locked within its pages and made more priceless by the knowledge that it took the combined efforts of all of us to do the job.

The sincerest hope of the staff is that each reader may find many enduring memories of happy moments on these pages. We have captured our golden fleece from simple but heart-warming recollections of the time when we were busy preparing this record of you and what you were doing at mid-century. May you enjoy it—and thanks for the memories.
