MARK MEANS, Cash Dealer.

—The Eighth Annual New Year Number of the West Coast Trade was a production to be proud of. It consisted of forty pages, handsomely illustrated, and full of valuable information concerning Washington, the Evergreen state. Bro. Strong is deserving of much credit in issuing this superb number.

—The total production of metals in Idaho during 1899, according to a Boise dispatch of last Monday: Gold, $2,500,000; silver, $6,103,000; lead, $4,960,000; copper $60,000. With the new mines opening up and the trouble in the Cœur d'Alene settled, it is firmly believed the output this year will be much greater.

—The government asks for bids for carrying mails next summer from both Seattle and San Francisco to St. Michaels and all points along the Yukon river, as far as Dawson City, Canada; for Nome, Alaska, where the rush of gold seekers is expected next spring, and for additional service to offices on the Alaskan southern coast.

—The papers are again full of railroad talk. It is said the six months truce between the N. P. and the O. R. & N. expires Feb. 5 and after that time work will be pushed on many lines already surveyed. Men are now in the field on the reservation and along the Snake. We hope the O. R. & N. will not surprise us by building to Genesee in one night from Pullman as we want to be prepared to give them a great hurrah when they get here.

—The LaGrande Chronicle has the following to say on the death of Mrs. Pickering's brother: "The news of the death of J W. Mead was received in this city on Sunday and caused many expressions of deep regret. Mr. Mead was a resident of this city for many years, having come to La Grande in 1887, and was employed in the office of the O. R. & N. as ticket agent, a position he held until the condition of his health compelled him to resign. A short visit in California improved his condition to such an extent that he ventured to return, when he accepted a position as assistant cashier in the Farmers and Traders bank of this city until he became interested in what is known as the Basin mines in the Eagle Creek mountains, where he spent one summer. Upon his return he went to the Sumpter district and when the bank in that city was started he became interested in it and was elected its cashier. Mr. Mead was not of a very robust constitution, though not what would be termed a sickly person. A few days ago he contracted a slight cold which terminated in pneumonia, and he was at once taken to the Hospital in Baker City, at which place he died on Sunday last at one o'clock. His remains were shipped to West Liberty, Iowa, where his mother and sisters reside. Mr. Mead was about forty-three years of age."

—During the holidays occurred four deaths at the Soldiers' Home at Boise Andrew Bacon, aged 75, Chas. Davis, aged 53, Budd Clark, aged 58, and William Schell, aged 59. The three former veterans died on the morning of the 26th.

—Some people still persist in saying that this is the first year of the 20th century, but they are in the minority. Cyclopedia Britanica says: "Some ambiguity is occasioned by the want of uniformity in the method of numbering the preceding years. Astronomers denote the year which preceded the first of our era by 0, and the year previous to that by 1 B. C.; but chronologers, in conformity with common notions, call the year preceding the era 1 B. C. the previous year 2 B. C. and so on. By reckoning in this manner there is an interruption in the regular succession of the numbers; and in the years preceding the era, the leap year instead of falling on the fourth, eighth, etc., fall or ought to fall on the first, fifth, ninth, etc." The astronomers and chronologists are at variance. The former mark one year 0, the chronologist omit the 0 entirely. It must be admitted that there are 100 years in a century, and a century is not completed till the 100 years are complete. Last year was '99 and it takes this year to complete the century.

—Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Baird, who came out to spend the holidays with Genesee people from Salmon river, receive this from the Teller: Mr. and Mrs. Baird ride the range together. This lady is proficient in the ordinary work of the cow boy. There is no vanquero on Salmon river roundups that rides a better horse or is more daring in equestrian feats than Mrs. Baird. The range she rides is perhaps the most rugged in the northwest. The Salmon river breaks often make the heart of a strong man quake when he undertakes to course the winding trails along steep mountain sides. This lady often urges her steed to a full run over these trails where the cow boys dismount for safety. When Mrs. Baird went to their stock ranch first to make her home she was an invalid. She is now the picture of health and she can ride as far in a day or week as any cow boy on the range. Mr. and Mrs. Baird have not only found pleasure and health in their isolated home but they have accumulated a comfortable fortune in a very few years by their energy and industry. It is strange that more young people do not take advantage of the opportunities offered for free homes, free ranges and sure fortunes in a hundred pretty valleys in the interior. The isolation is the bugaboo that holds back many from the step that leads to a future competency. The strife of many a home in the city or on the farm is more trying upon the nerves than the isolation of the free homes and ranges offered by Uncle Sam.

—The curling eddies of the Snake river have brought up the grinning skull of a murderer, who perished at the hands of lynchers at Lewiston in 1872. A dentist picked up the skull and it stands grinning at his patrons. Near Mt. Idaho two men, Yates and Walters, lived in one cabin. They disagreed over something, and a division of property was made, Yates remaining in the cabin. Next day Walters came to the cabin and shot Yates dead. Two men in the cabin seized Walters, bound him hand and foot and brought him on the back of a horse to Lewiston. He was given a hearing and secured a change of venue to Boise. People fearing the prisoner would escape hanging decided to do the job themselves, and one night broke in the jail and overpowered the man. He fought like a demon before he was secured. Next morning his lifeless body dangled from a bar gate pierced by a hundred bullets. The body was placed in a deep hole and covered. And now the waters bring the skeleton to surface after 27 years.

—Chief Clerk Arney of the state department, tells the Boise Statesman that the recent sale of state land held at Moscow recently was the liveliest he ever attended. Five hundred farmers were in the crowd of bidders and such interest was taken in the sale that the district court adjourned while it was in progress. The terms of sale were 30 per cent down and the balance in 10 years at 6 per cent. All the farmers had money and the payments were made promptly. The appraised value of the land sold was $15,921. The amount for which the land went at the auction was $18,670, nearly $3000 over the appraised value, a circumstance that reflects the prosperous condition of Latah county. The amount paid down as the result of the sale was $5601, leaving a balance of $13 069 that will draw 6 per cent interest for 10 years. Mr. Arney also sold some improvements on land that had been leased, the state realizing $2215 therefrom. The land sold was 600 acres out some distance from Moscow and 360 acres in 10-acre tracts near that city. The 600 acres was appraised at $9060, or $15.10 an acre. The 360 acres of 10-acre tracts was appraised at $7861, or $21.80 an acre, and sold for $10,809, or a trifle over $30 an acre. The 360 sold for $9375, or $15.60 an acre.

Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Genesee Exchange Bank will be held at the banking house Tuesday, January 16, 1900, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing directors for the ensuing year, and transacting any other business that may come before the meeting.

—Near Blackfoot while a young man was driving a bull against a storm, the animal became disgruntled and turned in raging fury upon his defenceless driver, who caught with his left hand a ring in the nose of the rampant and infuriated beast. The bovine tossed his snoot high into the air with such force as to fracture and dislocate bones of the young man's arm, and for a moment it seemed that he was doomed to utter destruction, but the heroic fellow did not for an instant lose his presence of mind. He grabbed the ring with his other hand and thus held the brute at bay until assistance arrived.

—A gentleman returns from Central Africa and reports: "We saw no Congo Free State officials, and the country to the west of the German borders was in a state of utter disorganization. Grogan set out with a number of porters and Askaris and had proceeded far when he came upon the grass huts of the cannibal savages. They were engaged in dancing and uttering wild screams. They were quite nude, of the negro type, infinitely hideous, with long, oval faces, huge mouths and muscular bodies. They were armed with bows and arrows and gave Gorgan's party a warm time for three days. Gorgan had only a few soldiers with him, but successfully kept the cannibal horde at bay. He managed to get a message to me, and with all speed I joined him, but by this time the cannibals had retreated. So far as we could gather from the blacks these cannibals were originally West Congo rebel soldiers. The first cannibals were apparently Balaka people, who, in their easterly march, fed on the original population of central Congo, till now there is scarcely a decendant of the original population left. The women resemble that of a wild beast more than a human being, but the children were not so hideous."

CAPTURED AS A BRITISH PRIZE.

German Steamer Bundesrath Was Towed Into Durban Harbor—Hamburg Is Stirred Up—The Owners of the Vessel Protest.

Lourenzo Marquez, Jan. 1.—The steamer Bundesrath, belonging to the German East African line, has been captured as a prize and taken to Durban. The Bundesrath arrived here from Mozambique. The German steamer Bundesrath of 1319 tons, sailed from Hamburg November 8 for Tanga, East Africa.

Hamburg, Jan. 1.—The directors of the German East Africa line have received news of the arrest of the Imperial mail steamer Bundesrath. The commander of the Port of Durban refused an explanation of the cause of the seizure. It is declared here that there was no contraband of war on board and when application was made to the German foreign office the latter immediately promised interposition with the British government.

The seizure of the Bundesrath was referred to at a meeting of merchants held here today. After a speech by Adolph Woermann, president of the Hamburg chamber of commerce, dealing with the great progress of the German empire during the closing century, Herr Reiffe, speaking in behalf of the firms trading with South Africa, asked whether the chamber was doing all that was necessary for the protection of German trade in that part of the world. German commerce, he asserted, had already suffered detriment through the war in South Africa, and now came the seizure of a German steamer by a British warship.

Herr Woermann replied that the chamber of commerce had already considered the question of representations with the view of taking action in the matter.

Cavite Is Full of Rebels.

New York, Jan. 1.—The World's Hong Kong special says:

It is well known here that General Otis is badly worried over the situation in Cavite province. There are 21,000 organized insurgents in Cavite, and as many peasants have rifles and are ready to take a shot at an American whenever the opportunity is offered. Before General Lawton's death it had been planned that his movement to subjugate Cavite should be pursued two weeks, or longer if necessary. His death has had a bad effect on the troops, and the fighting since then, with its list of American casualties, makes the statement that the war is over absurd. Negotiations are said to be in progress for the surrender of the province. There has been talk of this sort before, but negotiations fell through. If they fail now, Otis, it is thought, will depend upon American success in the north and famine in the south to bring about a disposal of the southern insurgents. No Manila paper is allowed to criticise the administration or to publish news from the United States relative to the Philippine policy of that government. The $30 reward brings in few rifles. Outside of the northern provinces no one is safe without a good-sized military escort.

Boiler Explosion Victims.

Lancaster, Pa., Jan. 1.—Four men were killed and several injured by a boiler explosion a mile west of this town. They were employes of Keller & Kressen, railroad contractors. The dead are:

Doland Haldeman, of Bainbridge; Witt Sherbahn, of West Donegal; Burt Harris, a negro; an Italian known as "Tony," who was hurled 150 feet.

Debts of Millions Gone.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—Petitions in bankruptcy to the number of 1694 were filed with the clerk of the United States district court in this city in 1899. The total liabilities were $60,000,000, and assets were estimated at $9,000,000. The latter is nominal, as a considerable portion of the assets were old book accounts which proved valueless.

Loss of Insurgents Heavy.

Manila, Jan. 1.—Colonel Lockett has had a second engagement with the insurgents northwest of Montalban, and by a brilliant charge drove the enemy from their position. Only one American officer and five soldiers were wounded, but the loss of the insurgents was heavy. Our troops captured a number of rifles and a quantity of ammunition and provisions.

Ore From Asia.

Tacoma, Jan. 1.—One hundred and seventy-one sacks of ore concentrates were brought here on the City of London from the mines near Singapore, in the Straits Settlement, for treatment in the Tacoma smelter. This is the first shipment of ore from the Orient to an American smelter.

New York Broker Bankrupt.

New York, Jan. 1.—Stanley H. G. Stewart, doing business as Stewart & Co., bankers and brokers, No. 40 Wall street, filed a petition in bankruptcy. The petition was sworn to by Mr. Stewart on December 28 in Washington, D. C.

Jim Hill's New Road.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—On Dec. 31 the Sioux City & Northern railroad, from Garretson, S. D., to Sioux City, will pass from the hands of the co-receivers to the control of the Great Northern railway. It is stated that President J. J. Hill of the Great Northern contemplates radical changes.

Roberts' Case Is Postponed.

Washington, Jan. 1.—Representative Taylor of Ohio, chairman of the special committee investigating the case of Roberts of Utah, says the case will not come up for action in the house before the middle of January.

Boers Shelled Ladysmith.

London, Jan. 1.—During the night of December 28 Ladysmith and Chieveley camp were in full communication, the former reporting all well. While the signalling was in progress the Boers attempted to muddle the messages with flashlights from each extremity of their long entrenched line.

The naval brigade took advantage of the opportunity to shell the Boer positions, which were plainly revealed by their own lights.

The naval battery resumed the shelling of the Boer trenches on the morning of December 29, but their fire failed to elicit any signs of life.

A dispatch from Cape Town, dated Wednesday, December 27, announced that an armored train had restored communication with Dordrecht, where the Free State flag had been hauled down and that the Boers had been driven from the adjacent hills to Stormberg.

The war office, when communicating about midnight copies of the messages exchanged between the queen and the inhabitants of Kimberley, stated that no further news had been received up to that hour, and nothing of importance has come from other sources during the night.

The week's sorties, skirmishes, reconnaisances and bombardments at various points where the British and Boers confront each other, so far as can be judged, have had no effect upon the general situation at the seat of war, which is practically the same as it was a week ago.

Pretoria, Jan. 1.—Three British prisoners from Malapo report that Captains Vernon and Sandford, of Colonel Baden Powell's staff, were killed during the engagement in which Lords Edward Cecil and Cavendish Bentinck were wounded. The object of the sorties was to capture cannon. The losses of the British were very severe.

Gain in Surplus Reserve.

New York, Jan. 1.—The Financier says: The statement of the New York clearing house banks for the week ending December 30 shows a further gain of $784,000 in surplus reserve, the total now standing at $11,168,075. As was the case during the previous week all the cash gained by the banks went to swell excess reserve since deposit requirements were lessened by the shrinkage in that item. The statement is favorable and indicates that influx of funds from the interior in the past six days have been quite as heavy as has been estimated. The loss of gold to Europe by Saturday's steamer does not count in the current exhibit, but the exports of a week ago figure to the full extent. The outward flow therefore has been almost made up by subsequent receipts and the gain in legal tenders represents the surplus shipment from the interior. The banks have maintained their position so far as cash is concerned, but they have added little to their loaning capacity.

Button Traffic Is Stopped.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 1.—A large number of buttons on which was inscribed the words "Victory to the Boers," both in French and English, were recently seized by the customs officers in Toronto and forwarded to the department here. All importations of the character mentioned are declared to be seditious under the customs act, and are therefore prohibited. The buttons were being sent to Toronto and Montreal people. They were made in New Jersey.

Suffering From Paresis.

New York, Dec. 30.—A special to the World from Boston says:

Congressman Boutelle is now in the hospital for the insane at Waverley, seven miles out of Boston. When he was brought to Boston last Monday night it was the intention of the attending doctors to place him in the Channing sanitarium at Brookline, a private institution. He was refused admittance there, the inference being that his case was a more desperate one than the management cared to be responsible for. From a thoroughly reliable source it was reported that the congressman is suffering from paresis.

Cleveland, Ohio., Dec. 27.—Every employe of the American Express Company throughout the country received a check for $25 as a Christmas gift from the company. A circular accompanying the check states the gift is made for faithfulness in the performance of duty. As the company operates between Maine and Oregon, there are several thousand employes. It is estimated that the aggregate sum of the gift will reach $60,000 or $70,000.

To Be Sold at Auction.

New York, Dec. 30.—The gallery of paintings collected by the late Judge Hilton is about to be sold at auction. It is composed of nearly 200 paintings, mostly by modern French artists, and is valued at more than $500,000. Among the masters represented are S. Meissonnier, Corot, Daubigny, Gerome, Vibert, Makart, Munckasy, Bougereau and Tissot.

Stockman Was Robbed.

Walzenburg, Col., Dec. 30.—W. J. Milsap, a prominent stockman, was seized by two men when about to enter the Klein hotel and robbed of $12,000. The money was mostly in his coat and vest pockets, and these garments were torn from him. No trace of the criminals has been found. Mr. Milsap was on his way to Mexico to buy cattle.

Civil War in New Guinea.

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 30.—News has been received by the steamer Aaroangi of a bloody civil war which has been raging among the natives of Kiriwina, New Guinea. In the fighting the head chief was defeated and 11 villages in all were destroyed, with heavy slaughter.

Sir James Paget Is Dead.

TO PREVENT INSURRECTION

IN CAPE COLONY LOCALITY.

Cape Town, Jan. 2.—The colonial authorities are using every precaution to prevent an insurrection on the part of disloyal Dutch in Cape Colony, and to suppress a rising if one should occur. Everywhere the British colonists are being organized into home guards, drilled, armed and ready to act in their respective localities should armed Dutch colonists gather. The theory is that the British home-staying colonials should be fully prepared to cope with the Dutch colonials without the aid of regulars.

The alertness of the British makes united action on the part of the pro-Boer residents difficult. Unable to act openly, they slip away singly or in small groups to join the enemy's forces. The authorities have been informed of many centers of agitation, which it is considered undesirable to particularize, but there is nothing like concerted action over the wide districts.

The case of Mr. Michan, solicitor to the DeBeers Company, who is accused of treason, acquires increased importance, as he has been transferred from the custody of the civil authorities here to the military authorities at DeAar. His high position causes the Dutch to watch his case keenly.

Parties of Boers have been operating some 70 miles south of Lord Methuen's position. Boers appeared on Christmas day near the railway about 29 miles south of DeAar. A force of the duke of Highburg's own volunteers prepared to engage them, but the enemy retired.

Another party fired into a British patrol camp during the night of Wednesday, Dec. 27. This was near Victoria road. An attempt was made not far from that point to damage the railway. One man was caught in the act and shot.

A similar attempt was made between Multiersoletie and Klapmuts, but the would-be wreckers escaped. Like attempts are reported from several other points. Evidently small parties of Boers or Dutch colonials have been trying to interrupt the movement of trains, but thus far they have been baffled by the elaborate British patrolling.

In one case a patrol of regulars fired on a patrol of colonials. The latter were wearing broad-brimmed hats and were mistaken by the British for Boers. No casualties occurred, but in consequence of the incident an order has been issued requiring all classes of troops to wear helmets.

Pope Leo's Successor.

Rome, Jan. 2.—It is asserted that the pope, during the recent service of opening the holy door at St. Peter's cathedral, addressed his intimate entourage and said: "I thank Divine Providence for granting me the grace of being able to celebrate the great function, and I wish for my successor grandeur and long reign, to the greater glory of God. My successor will be young as compared with my own age, and will have time to see many glories of the papacy and the church." Later Leo clearly designated Cardinal Girolemano Maria Gotti.

Dutch Regiment From Iowa.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—A special from Orange City, Ia., says:

An entire regiment of soldiers is said to be en route from the Dutch colony in this (Sioux) county to join the Boers in the Transvaal. If seemingly well authenticated accounts are to be believed, the organizers of the force are shipping the men out three or four at a time by different routes. The money to hire and equip them was all raised in or near Orange City and Sioux Center. Drilling has been in progress in remote parts of the county for some time. It is said only picked men have been accepted.

Heavy Snow in the South.

Macon, Ga., Jan. 2.—The heaviest snow ever known in this part of the south fell Sunday. It is estimated that there is fully six inches on the level.

Charleston, S. C., Jan. 2.—The snowfall was the heaviest here in December for 30 years. It lasted four hours, when it turned into an ice storm, coating the trees with a thick covering of ice.

Shot by Mistake.

Walla Walla, Wash., Jan. 2.—The funeral of little Roland Burke, which occurred from the home on East Main street this afternoon, has spread an air of gloom over the city. It was another case of a presumably unloaded gun killing a child. Roland Burke is dead, and the little fellow who accidentally shot him is nearly crazy with the horror of his act.

Beef Famine in Klondike.

Tacoma, Jan. 2.—Beef famine threatens the Klondike. Letters from Dawson state that by the end of December there would not be a pound of fresh meat left.

Robbers' Victim Is Dead.

Sioux City, Ia., Jan. 2.—John E. Robson, the bridge contractor, who was assaulted by a burglar in his office recently, is dead. There is no satisfactory clue to the murderer.

Gen. McIntyre Not Guilty.

Waterville, Wash., Jan. 2.—The jury in the case of the State vs. Brig. Gen. J. D. McIntyre, N. G. W., charged with arson, returned a verdict of not guilty, after being out only 40 minutes.

St. Paul boxmakers have organized.

Erie painters organized.

HERE'S A BRAND-NEW STATE.

Probably there are not many people who have heard of the republic of the Acre. It is a brand-new state which has arisen in South America in the last few weeks. It owes its origin to the fact that a large part of the interior of South America is a no-man's-land, some parts claimed by two and even three of the republics, which have no clearly defined limits.

A certain Rodriguez Aries happened along and determined to take advantage of this state of affairs. He was an adventurer who had seen much of the world, having been successively a bank employe in Spain, a theatrical manager in the United States, a clerk of works in Paris, and a broker in the Argentine Republic. While in Buenos Ayres he made the acquaintance of the gentlemen who are now his Ministers of state.

Rodriguez Aries proclaimed a vast territory bordering on Brazil and Bolivia as the Republic of the Acre, so called from the river of that name, a tributary of the Amazon, which flows through it. The territory has an extent of some 200,000 square miles and an estimated population of 50,000. It was claimed by both Brazil and Bolivia, but that did not matter to Rodriguez Aries. He established his capital at a small village called Antimfiri, appointed his Ministers, and was ready for business. He calculates on raising revenue from a royalty on the rubber gathered in his territory, which depends principally on that staple for its commerce.

Rodrigues Aries is an intelligent, wideawake man, apparently about 50 years of age. His face is of a decided Spanish cast, with kindly looking eyes, which beam on you through a pair of gold-rimmed spectacles. From his appearance one might take him for a professional man—a lawyer or a doctor.

Whether the new Republic of Acre will take a permanent place among the family of nations remains to be seen. It may be noted that there are prosperous states in existence today which have arisen in the same manner as the Republic of Acre, among these may be mentioned the Transvaal and the Orange Free State in South Africa, which were also established by adventurers in a no-man's-land, and are now of sufficient importance to make no small noise in the world.

The region of the Acre is one of the hottest and most healthful in South America. It is also one of the richest in rubber, which grows wild in the woods in great abundance, and those engaged in the rubber trade can generally calculate on making their fortunes in four or five years if they escape the malarial fevers and other diseases which dog the steps of the white man in these latitudes.

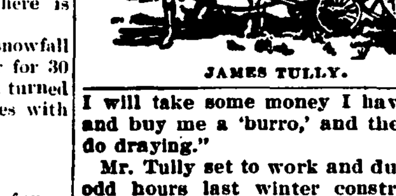
The territory of the Acre, or a portion of it, was granted not long ago to an American syndicate by the government of Bolivia, which had a very doubtful title to it. The syndicate was to build a railway and make other improvements, but the project never came to anything, owing partly to the disputed ownership of the land, which led to litigation, and finally resulted in the proclamation of independence already referred to.

SMALL BOY IS A DRAYMEN.

Youngest Teamster in Chicago Earning Money by His Enterprise.

Chicago has perhaps the youngest drayman in the United States, if not in the world. He is little Jimmy Tully, the son of J. J. Tully, a plumber living at 5121 Dearborn street, and he is a trifle more than 8 years old. About a year ago little "Jimmy" conceived the idea of earning a little spending money in some other way than by selling newspapers, said to his father:

"Papa, I want you to make me a dray; just like the ones men have, and



JAMES TULLY.

I will take some money I have saved and buy me a 'burro,' and then I can do draying."

Mr. Tully set to work and during the odd hours last winter constructed a wagon for Jimmy. Then the boy bought his "burro" and was ready for business.

A license was secured and a few months ago he hauled his first load, which was an eighth of a cord of wood. Since then Jimmy has done all sorts of work with his miniature truck, from hauling a trunk to taking a bundle of laundry to "Ah Sin's." He hitches and unhitches without any assistance, and has started a bank account with money earned by his "dray."—Chicago News.

Public Money to Run Pawnshops.

Railroads Win.

RUSSIA VERSUS ENGLAND.

STARTLING STATEMENTS MADE

Threatens Occupation of Herat If the British Take Over Delagoa Bay—May Lead to Another War—Secret Treaty Between England and Germany.

New York, Dec. 30.—A dispatch to the Tribune from London says:

The announcement of the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger that under the secret stipulations of the treaty, Germany will take Portugal's Asiatic colonies and the territory north of Zambesi, and that England will take Delagoa bay, is the most startling news of the day. The authority is not official, and the statement of the concerted action of the two powers against French and Russian occupation must be accepted with reserve until the foreign office confirms it. The alleged payment of 25,000,000 marks for Germany's share in this territorial trade also seems doubtful. Some disclosure of this kind has been expected in diplomatic circles for several weeks, since the necessity for shutting off the supplies of arms and ammunition for the Transvaal has become apparent with the prolongation of the war.

While the Russian press forecasts the occupation of Herat as the first consequence of their occupation of Delagoa bay, the French journals are curious to know what the Washington government will do regarding the seizure of American vessels by the British navy. Whatever the action may be, the reports that Mr. Choate has intervened in the matter are premature and unfounded.

The British prize courts will, without doubt, be allowed to do their work precisely as the American prize courts operated during the war with Spain. The questions of contraband of war and neutral rights will be argued in due course. Russian and French rumors that all neutral powers will intervene if England takes effective measures for closing the back door against the entrance of contraband of war into the Transvaal are colored by the general belief that there is a secret agreement with Germany relating to any emergency which may arise on the east coast.

Officers Promoted.

Washington, Dec. 28.—Gen. Gilbert S. Carpenter, who was recently confirmed as brigadier general in the regular army, has been placed on the retired list on his own application, after 30 years' active service. His last service was in command of the Eighteenth infantry, in the Philippines. He has been detached from further service in the field and ordered home. His retirement leaves two vacancies in the list of brigadier generals and results in promotions in every grade of the line, including the promotion of Lieut. Col. Sannow of the Fourth infantry to be colonel of the Eighteenth. The two vacancies in the list of brigadier generals will be filled on the reassembling of congress by the promotion and retirement of several officers who have distinguished themselves in action in the recent wars.

It is popularly supposed that Gens. MacArthur, Wilson, Lee, Wheeler, Bates, Young, Ludlow and Wheaton, all of whom hold volunteer commands, will be made brigadier generals in the regular army, and that all but two of the number will be immediately retired.

MacArthur will undoubtedly be retained in active service, but there is less certainty as to the identity of other general officers to be retained. The death of Gen. Lawton left a vacancy in the list of major generals of volunteers, which will be filled by the promotion of either Bates, Young or Wheaton, all of whom are on duty in the Philippines. These appointments will be made soon.

The convention of nine days, being the longest ever held by the American Federation of Labor, closed December 20. Among the closing items of business transacted were the adoption of a resolution appealing to congress to submit to state legislatures a sixteenth constitutional amendment to prohibit disfranchisement of citizens on account of their sex, and directing President Gompers to correspond with the trades unions of the continental European countries with a view of bringing about fraternal relations.

The nineteenth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor is now in session. In point of attendance and representation of unions, the meeting is the largest ever held in the history of the body, there being 185 delegates present, which number will be increased to 200 before the end of the week. The net increase of membership in the unions affiliated and those chartered directly was 144,000, and the financial showing is also favorable.

General Lawton's Funeral.

Manila, Jan. 1.—The funeral of General Lawton, who was killed at San Mateo, December 18, was held with impressive ceremonies. The remains were conveyed from Paco cemetery down the Luneta to Pasig and thence to the transport Thomas, which sails this afternoon. As the body was removed from the vault, Chaplain Marry read prayers. The personal staff of the late general was augmented by Color Sergeant Simon, Trumpeter Haberkam and Privates Oakum and Mohrusen. The latter, who were closely connected with Lawton's recent campaigns, bore the casket from the vault to a six-horse caisson awaiting at the gate.

The funeral procession was composed of the band of the Twentieth regiment, General Hall and his staff, two troops of the Fourth cavalry, who were with Lawton at the time of his death, a battery of artillery, a number of clergymen, the caisson covered with flowers, the personal staff, generals on foot, Generals Wheeler, Bates, Forsth, Kobbe and Schwan and Admiral Watson in three carriages, a naval battalion, Major General Otis and staff, foreign consuls in full dress and a number of the Philippine supreme court.

MINES AND MINING NEWS

OUR NORTHWESTERN MINES.

Items Gleaned From the Late Reports—All Districts Are Being Developed—A Prosperous Year Is Predicted—Mining Notes and Personals.

It is reported that arrangements for deep mining at the Red Boy, in Sumpter district, were perfected last week. The owners, who so far have been taking out ore by the tunnel system, will now sink a 100-foot shaft, and go through to China, if the ore holds out. Experts predict that wonderful riches will be found in the lower regions of the Red Boy, which has already, and is daily, making such wonderful returns from what might be called surface mining. A complete plant will be installed, including modern hoist and compressor.

Republic.

Lone Pine-Surprise is growing rich.

John Cody of Cody camp was in town this week.

Lone Pine has ear marks of a great mine, as the vein is improving.

The Gopher shaft is 125 feet in depth. The water has again become annoying.

The reported strike in the Belcher winze is said to have opened four feet of copper on the veinshrdlu puputaoin of copper.

Capital is pouring into Chesaw Reservation camp. George B. Mechem, representing capital from Montreal, recently bought twenty-two claims.

The Merrimac shaft has reached the 200-foot mark. This work has been done in five weeks. It is wonderful work for hand drilling. The rock was of a favorable character for rapid work.

Judging by the activity at the new custom mill it is evident that the projectors are live men and are losing no time in the erection of a mill building. For weeks the work could not progress with any degree of speed as it was impossible to get mill timbers on the ground. But now a pretty fair supply is kept ahead of the carpenters.

Four men are working on the Noonday. The property lies one-half mile north of Republic and is owned by J. F. Mayo. A tunnel has been driven in 100 feet. The ore assays quite high it is said.

As is generally known, a Montreal syndicate has taken hold of the noted Poland China property at Meyers Creek. The Australian and Sidney are adjoining claims owned by a Canadian syndicate. There is a 16-foot ledge on the Australian and an eight-foot vein on the Sidney. The ore is similar to that on the Poland China. A deep shaft is to be started at once. The Independend has a shaft 90 feet in depth and a vein eight feet in width. It carries high grade ore. It is termed galena ore, but carries some gold. A three-story hotel is running and if you come this way you will find as good accommodations as in any ordinary mining camp. There is a good saw mill in operation and lumber is sold at $14 per thousand. This is reasonable and the people here show their appreciation of the moderate price by using the lumber freely.

British Columbia.

The Chloride Queen development is progressing nicely.

The Gold Drop mine in Greenwood camp promises to be a shipper shortly.

The pay roll of the Dominion Copper Company, in Greenwood camp, has 60 names on it.

The Warner-Miller Company has 18 claims under bond, near the Skylark and Ranger.

The Rambler-Cariboo has paid to date $71,000. The next monthly dividend of 1 cent a share was payable January 1.

Development work is to be commenced shortly on the Dominion mineral claim on the south fork of the Wild Horse, about seven miles from Ymir.

A long tunnel is being driven on the gold-bearing ledge at Silverton, which will test whether or not wealth goes with depth on the gold properties of that camp.

The new machinery for the Minnehaha, Camp McKinney, is nearly all in position and is only awaiting the arrival of a few small parts before being given a trial run.

Up Wild Horse creek and its tributaries there has been more or less development going on all summer, but the work for the most part has been suspended for the winter.

Messrs. Finch & Campbell, who are developing the Hennessy group of claims at the head of Midge creek, have run in one tunnel for 100 feet, where the ledge was encountered.

The concentrator of the Philadelphia Mining Company at Sheep creek, near the line of the Red Mountain Railway, was started a few days since and a trial run of four days had. The machinery worked well.

A long tunnel on the Ymir is to be run 3,000 feet to tap the rich ore bodies. It will be large enough for two car tracks and will form the main working entrance to the mine. Development is to start on the Hillside group on Round mountain.

The annual report of the Hall Mines Company has just been presented in London, and, somewhat to the surprise of the shareholders, no dividend is to be paid this year. The profits made, however, have been fully as large as in previous years.

The Nickel Plate, at Rossland, is running with a full force. Two compartments of the new shaft having been sunk to the 400-foot level, the third compartment is being raised from that level to the surface. As soon as this is done sinking will be resumed in all three compartments.

The electric hoists are being assembled and installed in the Black Bear tunnel and at the Josie shaft, at Rossland, and are expected to be in running order within two weeks. The excavation for the hoist and the shaft station in the No. 6 tunnel of the Columbia-Kootenay is nearly finished.

The department of mines of the province of British Columbia has forwarded 71 cases of nuggets and gold dust for exhibition in the provincial section of the Paris exposition. The gold is representative of all British Columbia's creeks, and among the specimens is a nugget worth $64.00 from Storm creek, Cariboo.

MINING NOTES.

In the Cascade range, 20 miles north of Cle Elm, are the Mount Stewart mines. The ores are copper-gold.

A big strike on the Alamo was recently made at Sumpter, Ore. Seven feet of quartz with visible gold throughout.

Another rich blind lead was struck last week on the Iconoclast, near Keller. The extent or richness of it has not been determined.

There is accumulating evidence that the Miller mountain gold district, northeast of Boise, discovered last summer, is one of the best found in this state.

The town of Buffalo, it is reported, now has one resident—the postmaster. In this connection it is said he is getting so tired of himself that he is going to move.

The Mammoth concentrator at Wallace, Idaho, is nearly finished, only a few connections of spouts being yet to be made. The water has been turned on the wheels and the machinery is running to get the roughness off while the jigs and spouts are soaking up to stop leaks.

It is reliably stated that the December output of the Bonanza mine will be the greatest in the history of that great producing property, which in one instance not long since cleaned up in one month nearly $100,000, says the Baker City Democrat.

News reached the office of the Rebecca company recently that the crosscut which is running from the bottom of a 60-foot shaft near Keller was in 42 feet with no sign of a wall and solid copper ore all the way. The ore looks alike and it is said to show values quite uniform and sufficiently high to make shipping possible. The mine is considered one of the wonders of the south half.

The Boston & Montana Mining Company has brought suit in the district court against the Montana Ore Purchasing Company to recover $600,000, value of the ore alleged to have been taken from veins of the Pennsylvania claim by the defendant concern in the last four years. This is looked upon as another phase of the big controversy between the two companies, which was decided by the district court yesterday in favor of the Montana Ore Purchasing Company.

A correspondent from Mount Idaho says: J. R. Wolfe, the assayer from Buffalo Hump, reports that a big strike was made in the St. Louis mine last week. Mr. Wolfe reports that development work is proceeding satisfactorily on the Mother Lode, Fortune and other claims in the camp. The snow is now six feet deep there, but excellent weather is prevailing. The trail to the camp is packed hard and is in excellent condition for travel, snowshoeing not being necessary.

Judge Clancy in the district court at Butte, Mont., has handed down his decision in the suit of the Montana Ore Purchasing Company against the Boston & Montana Mining Company to settle ownership to certain veins of copper under the Rarus and Johnston claims, owned by the plaintiff, and the Pennsylvania, owned by the defendant. The decision is in favor of the plaintiff. The trial of the action was before the court without a jury and occupied 10 weeks. The judge has had the case under consideration two months.

Manila in Danger.

Manila, Jan. 1.—Four explosive bombs, a few firearms and 500 rounds of ammunition were discovered in a house in the center of Manila while the police were seeking Recarte. The insurgent leader, who was said to have come to Manila in the hope of effecting an outbreak by taking advantage of the mobilization of the American troops at General Lawton's funeral.

It developed that the plot included the throwing of bombs among the foreign consuls attending the ceremonies in order to bring about international complications. These, it seems, were to have been thrown from the Escolta's high buildings, but the avoidance of the Escolta by the funeral procession spoiled the plan.

The populace, it is thought, had been prepared for the attempt by a rumor circulated widely among the natives yesterday that Aguinaldo was in Manila and would possibly lead the outbreak.

The American authorities having been advised of what was brewing, prepared for all contingencies. Captain Morrison, who commands the troops in the most turbulent district of this city, says he does not believe an actual uprising will ever occur, as the natives lack the resolution to take the first steps in a movement that would entail fighting at close quarters with American troops.

Miners meet in convention at Indianapolis January 15, 1900.

Free Rural Mail Delivery.

THE First Assistant Postmaster General, in his annual report for 1899, declares that there has been nothing in the history of the postal service of the United States so remarkable as the growth of the rural free delivery system. The daily delivery of mail at the farmer's door, by the Federal Government is no longer an experiment. In the words of the report, the system has now "to be dealt with as an established agency of progress, awaiting only the action of the Congress to determine how rapidly it shall be developed." Rural free delivery of mail is now in successful operation from 383 distributing points radiating over forty States and one Territory. The only States now without the service are Idaho, Mississippi, Montana and Wyoming.

Advantages of the System.

Among the advantages accruing from the system the First Assistant Postmaster General enumerates the following:

1. Increased postal receipts. More letters are written and received. More newspapers and magazines are subscribed for. So marked is this advancement that quite a number of rural routes already pay for themselves by the additional business they bring.

RURAL MAIL BOXES NEAR TEMPE, ARIZ.

2. Enhancement of the value of farm lands reached by rural free delivery. This increase of value has been estimated at as high as $5 per acre in some States. A moderate estimate is from $2 to $3 per acre.

OHIO CARRIER, IN WINTER.

3. A general improvement of the condition of the roads traversed by the rural carrier. In the Western States especially the construction of good roads has been a prerequisite to the establishment of rural free delivery service. In one county in Indiana a special agent reports that the farmers incurred an expense of over $2,600 to grade and gravel a road in order to obtain rural free delivery.

4. Better prices obtained for farm products, the producers being brought into daily touch with the State of the markets and thus being enabled to take advantage of information heretofore unattainable.

5. To these material advantages may be added the educational benefits conferred by relieving the monotony of farm life through ready access to wholesome literature and the keeping of all rural residents, the young people as well as their elders, fully informed as to the stirring events of the day.

Many Difficulties Encountered.

An interesting history of the service is given—the difficulties that were encountered and overcome, and the satisfaction with which the advent of the carriers was received by the farming community. The carriers wear a uniform similar to that of their city brethren, which, as well as their conveyances, is provided by themselves. On two routes there are girl carriers, and they are as unflagging in their devotion to the service as the men, and as efficient. At first, before Congress or the postoffice department held out any hope that rural free delivery would prove more than a transitory experiment, extreme carelessness was manifested as to the kind of receptacles put up as rural free-delivery boxes. Tomato cans, cigar boxes, drainage pipes upended, soap boxes and even sections of discarded stovepipe were used as mail boxes and were frequently placed in hedge rows or other inconvenient spots out of reach of the carrier. These defects have, however, been remedied in great part and boxes of the regulation pattern are now in general use. These are now furnished by the people benefited, but the department recommends that they hereaftr be supplied by the Government.

Instances have been very few where rural carriers have been reported for misconduct or inefficiency. They give bond in the sum of $500 for the faithful performance of their duties. No case has yet occurred where the department has been required to call upon their bondsmen.

Under present regulations the carriers give receipts for money orders, and, if their patrons desire, can inclose and mail these orders after they have obtained them. I am informed that direction will shortly be issued by the Third Assistant Postmaster General empowering rural carriers to receive and receipt for letters for registration just as city carriers do. At present they deliver registered packages, but are not authorized to receive such packages for registration.

There is abundant evidence that the service is appreciated by those for whose benefit it was designed. Petitions from every section of the country where the service was given a fair trial began to pour in upon the department. Special agents were appointed to look into the claims presented and to lay out services wherever the conditions seemed favorable to an economical and successful administration. Such good results were obtained that Congress, responding to the demand of the people, appropriated $150,000 for rural free delivery for the fiscal year 1897-98 and gave $300,000 for the same purpose for the current fiscal year. The requests for the service multiplied like an endless chain, every new rural delivery route established bringing in three or more applications from contiguous territory for like privileges, and before four months of the present fiscal year had expired the appropriation was found to have been practically apportioned out. That is to say, the existing service, if continued to the close of the fiscal year, would require the disbursement of the whole amount appropriated by Congress.

The people generally in the rural districts are co-operating with the department in promoting the efficiency of the system. Thus far there have been twenty robberies of postoffice boxes reported, and each beneficiary appears to take a personal interest in assisting the carriers. The First Assistant Postmaster General recommends an extension of the system as far as consistent with due economy and the convenience of the public.

—Ira Cadwell leaves today to accept a position in a bank at Lewiston. Ira, best wishes of the NEWS and many people go with you.

—The Canadians received their first baptism in the war with the Boers this week. They behaved well and made several good captures, for which the English are truly grateful. England has decided to hustle over several thousand more troops and win the war at all hazard. Must win or go down.

—This is the time of year when extra clerks are turned off for a couple of months. They will recuperate and study on the future. It is the hustling active and determined man that fits himself for his calling and succeeds. Any one can float on the tide, but in the end he finds a downward pull. To stem the tide one must be ready for hard knocks and persist in getting on top when the struggle will be easier. Keep pushing.

—The seizure of the three vessels laden with American flour consigned to merchants in South Africa by the British people may bring more trouble to John. The right of a belligerent to confiscate contraband of war on the high seas is generally conceded, but the right to classify foodstuffs as contraband and subject them to confiscation is a matter of dispute, even when the food is consigned direct to a belligerent. If England persists in holding to this seizure she may regret it some day. She is dependent upon importation for its food supply, and let but a first-rate continental power declare war on it, and, following the recent British example, hunt down every neutral food-carrying vessel on the high seas, and England would face a disaster infinitely worse than any that could be inflicted by the use of shell and explosives. The United States government has a high duty to perform in protecting its own shippers and we await the outcome of this incident. If provisions are to be considered contraband of war there can be hardly an important conflict in the world without effecting our exports.

—With the New Year we should study improved methods of doing business. A little talk to all classes might do no harm—farmers, town people, and young folks who are beginning upon life's work. Whatever you do, do well. This is the secret of success. One has but to look around to be convinced of this fact. In every trade the mechanic who puts forth every effort to perfect himself in his special line of work is the man who gets the biggest wages and advances the most rapidly in business, and the expert in farming is the most prosperous. Whatever you follow excel in it, whether at farming, store keeping or in some profession. This principle is a good one to follow from the time we enter school until we lay down life's burden. It is not necessary for scholars to take up all the studies, for the man who knows one or two things thoroughly is far ahead of the man who knows a little about several things, but does not know any of them well. Jack-of-all trades seldom reach far up the ladder of fortune. The prominent men of today are those who have been educated in some particular line. There is Gen. Grant; he did not know the tune of Yankee Doodle from Hail Columbia when he heard them, he was a failure as a financier, yet when it came to military tactics he was one of the geniuses of the world. Same with Dewey, Sampson and Schley, and others. They made a specialty of the business that made them famous. The most successful farmers east are the ones who do their work well. The same with our newspapers; many of them are not worth taking out of the postoffice. All can profit by following this advice.

The Latest X Ray Invention

Is the Endoscope, which is for the purpose of examining the interior of the stomach. It is claimed, that with this instrument, the treatment of stomach troubles will be revolutionized, as it locates the cause of disease. With due respect to science, however, would state that the causes of stomach troubles have been known for the past fifty years, and likewise their cure, which is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine that has many imitators, but no equals. It cures dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, constipation, nervousness, insomnia. It also prevents malaria, fever and ague, and keeps the bowels regular. When not feeling right, take a dose. It is the standard medicine of the American people. Look for Private Revenue Stamp over neck of bottle.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 5, 1900.

—Will make a good match.

—Merchant Means took a run up to Orofino the past week.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gaffney spent the forepart of the week in Moscow.

—Mrs. Dr. Follett returned to Dayton the first of the week. She likes her new home very much.

—A big jack rabbit hunt took place near Blackfoot last week and some 2000 or more of the animals were surrounded.

—Lost, a mouth piece and a short shank to a coronet, near the Halverson place. Finder please leave at this office and get reward.

—The body of a man by the name of Johnson was found near Gem Friday with a broken jaw and skull crushed in. Little was known of him.

—Jake Tonning let a lot of ties fall on his feet the other day and he has not worked since. He went to Pullman Tuesday to receive treatment from the railroad physician.

—Brakeman O'Hora was not quite swift enough with his fingers and had one of them made into mince meat. Taking a rest now. Mr. Walter is the braker in place of Capt. Gilbert.

—Some seventeen of the Knights had a smoker during the closing hours of the old year. They ushered in 1900 in good style. Ate lunch as the minute hand jumped from the old to the new year.

—Throw away that figure "8" and write it 1900. That figure has been with you all your life, but you must now give it up. 1900 will look a little queer on the dial plate of Father Time for a while, but we will soon get used to it.

—The Oakesdale Sun, with a checkered career of ten years, turned up its toes last week, or rather the sheriff cut off its wind. The paper had been dead for some time and only needed pushing over and burying. For several years it did a large business, requiring from five to seven persons to perform the work, but it never had a manager.

—It is a curious fact—well known, however, to weather experts—that heavy firing will generally cause rain, even though the sky was clear beforehand. At Waterloo rain came down in torrents. So it did in several of the big battles of the civil war—Gettysburg, for example. The tremendous concussion shakes the little globules of water which are always present invisibly in the atmosphere together, and so brings them down.

—Bradstreet's and R. G. Dunn & Co. say fewer business failures occurred during 1899 than any year since 1892. Throughout the country is reported much heavier than for many years. The steel factories say they have enough orders on hand to keep them humming for many months. Laborers are getting good wages. The Palouse would be in a more flourishing condition if the grain rates to the coast were cut in two and the ocean tonnage reduced the 14 cents which have been tacked on since the commencement of war.

—C. A. Snyder paid the NEWS a visit the past week. He is one of the progressive farmers east of Genesee. Though he was favored with a fine wheat crop last fall—10,000 bushels, or over forty bushels per acre—yet he claims he is not making much money at grain raising. Wheat is too low to allow any profit. He is gradually working into mixed farming and is fencing and preparing his 400 acres accordingly. We must raise some cattle, hogs, sheep, poultry, and the sooner a start is made the better it will be for all of us. Such has been the experience of agricultural men in every locality of the east and we must come to it here in Idaho. Don't say you cannot start now, for you can with two or three pigs, a calf and a cow or two. In a year or two you will have stock to exchange for gold. Don't sell your calves, as you have been doing in the past, they are worth as much to you as to the buyers who get them to feed for a season and then turn them off for twice or three times as much as they paid you. And then, when our creamery comes, which will not be long, you will be better prepared to furnish milk and rake in the wealth at once, whether your farm responds fruitfully to your desires and slavish labor or not. Get some stock and look forward to a little ease and comfort in your old age. Mr. Snyder says the farmers have not the cows for a creamery. Now is a good time to make a start.

—Mike Keane departed for Spokane this week.

—Tom Gilbanks and wife went to Pullman Wednesday.

—Mrs. Lisne went to Moscow Wednesday morning. Mrs. Martinson was at the hub Saturday.

—It is stated that 22,000 Irishmen in America are preparing themselves to assist the Boers in fighting England.

—Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Palmerton came down from Pullman to spend New Year's with the U. G. Dickson people.

—Capt. Gilbert went to Spokane last week and may remain. It is also stated that he may go to Cape Nome in the spring.

—Avery Cummings, who is attending the Spokane high school, came home to spend the holidays with his people.—Cœur d'Alene Press.

—Prof. Cobbs was remembered with a rocking chair by the pupils in the high school. He made good use of said chair during the holidays.

—Mrs. Jennie Beele, of Hoquiam, Wash., arrived in Genesee Wednesday to spend the winter with her people, the H. B. Hodgins family. It has been nearly seven years since she left here.

—The dancing club enjoyed a whirl Friday evening. The hall floor was full of young people who came out to take advantage of the last dance of 1899. Some person, perhaps a virago, sprinkled red pepper upon the floor, just to annoy those in the swim.

—Fred Hoover and family moved down from Uniontown last week and now occupy the Grimes residence. Mr. Hoover will manage the Darr lumber yard and Mr. Evenson will return to Uniontown and assist in the hardware store.

—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Geseltchen entertained a number of people at their fine home Sunday afternoon and night—to watch the old year out and the new in. The Smolts and the Lorang people were present and at a late hour an elegant luncheon was served.

—Numerous cases of small-pox are in and around Moscow. With one or two exceptions the cases are mild. In the Matthes family there are four members sick, one seriously; the family of D. C. Gardner has been invaded, also W. A. Campbell's and Arthur Evetts.

—Off to college. Genesee sent pupils to the different colleges and schools the past week—to Lewiston, Spokane, Moscow, Colton and other points. And many scholars are coming in from the country to attend the Genesee schools. NEWS is glad to see this disposition, to climb higher the ladder of fame. Education is the best that parents can give a child, far better than money or anything else.

—Nixon Halverson came up from Lewiston Tuesday to remain a week. Says the valley is all smiles—green grass, birds singing, and people spading and preparing the soil for gardening. His daughters, Misses Antonette and Mabel, and Miss Emma Tweedt, who spent the holiday vacation in and around Genesee, returned to Normal Tuesday. Miss Mabel accompanied the ladies for a visit of ten days.

—Genesee warehouses contain more grain now than at the beginning of any previous year. There is now on hand: 250,000 bushels of wheat, 21,000 bushels of barley, 20,000 bushels of oats and 2,000 bushels of flax. Owing to the busy fall and bad winter roads, the farmers have a much greater supply on hand than usual. Should we be favored with good sleighing and better prices for grain this month business would be extra fine. Now the Palouse is very quiet because the price of our one product is low. Some of the wheat is mortgaged and some is held in the hope the price will pop up soon. At 50 cents everything would present a livelier aspect.

If your watch needs repairing and you want it done right take it to

This is the best remedy in the world for la grippe, coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough and is pleasant and safe to take. It prevents any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia.

—Geo. Mochel brought down a fine deer from the mountains last week.

—Prof. and Mrs. Savage were here from Uniontown over Tuesday night.

—M. A. Means has contracted for half a page of the NEWS for 1900 and expects to do a larger business than ever.

—Nixon & McNeill have been doing some artistic work in the graining line on the interior of the Wood residence.

—H. B Fulton, deputy warden at the penitentiary and an old friend of the T. Driscoll people, visited here several days last week.

—Geo. Mochel says the farmers live better than the city people. He knows for he and Mrs. Mochel spent New Year's day at Clark De Bow's ranch.

—Leonard Wirtz, of Bald Butte, while descending a steep hill north of Colton, was thrown from a horse and quite severely injured. He was unconscious for several hours.

—Father Kyzer held midnight mass Sunday night and the large church was filled with people. The interior of the building was finely decorated and when lighted made a beautiful scene.

—Elder Martin, the Adventist, tarried in Genesee a few days the past week. He is one of Lewiston's small-pox patients. His face is still pitted and a little sore, but is recovering nicely. He was a pretty sick man last October.

—R. Jackson visited Spokane last week, and after sizing up business elsewhere, decided to reopen the Monarch the first of January. Thinks it is better to make a little cash and play safe than to go to the mining camps and take big chances.

—The debate on steam and electricity at the school house Wednesday night was decided in favor of steam. Question for next Wednesday night, "Resolved, that the pulpit exert a greater influence for good than the press." This will be an open meeting held in Hill's hall; admission 15 cents.

—A. W. Conway was in Genesee a day or two this week from the booming town of Magnolia, late Cul de Sac. This town is the terminus of the road running south of Lapwai and is in the center of a rich farming country. We have the word of Conway and Harvey, representative citizens of the town, that a few days since when it was learned that a deputy sheriff was approaching the city limits, that 23 of her best citizens fled to the hills.

—Cashier Brewer returned from Spokane this week. After talking with the many creamery people there he is convinced that a skimming station in Genesee would pay the farmers better than a creamery. The machinery for a good skimming station costs about $800. The Hazelwood Creamery will pay for butter fat in milk about 5 cents per pound less than we sell the finished article for. Genesee milk furnished the better the price would be. We will have more to say another week.

—Pretty sloppy weather since the rains of Monday and Tuesday, but Rev. Hicks intends to give us something different the remainder of this month: Warmer weather during the opening days, some rain, turning into sleet and snow over wide sections from 3rd to 6th; then a little rain, turning colder, snow and blizzardous; a regular storm period is central on the 9th; be on the watch for sudden and violent change to colder, close on the heels of warm weather and rains; a reactory storm disturbance from 15 to 17; cold weather may be expected; the next ocean storm period extends from the 19th to the 23rd; warmer weather and some lightning will follow; rain and snow 26th and 27th, and decidedly cold from 27th to 29th, followed by a storm into February. Ice cutters should do their harvesting during the last week. Prof. Hicks says electrical storms will occur frequently during January—much rough weather during the first three months of the new year.

The regular order of service was held from 8 o'clock until 9, and from 9 to 10 the christian part of the congregation gave the history of their conversion. After an intermission of one-half hour the meeting was continued until the 12 o'clock hour, being interspersed with readings, songs and some interesting talks. When the bell rang out the midnight hour the church was engaged in silent prayer. An audience of about 125 remained to the close of the service.

There will be quite a saving of time and ink in writing the number of next year in Roman numerals. It will be MCM. This year is MDCCCXCIX, and even that does not take so many letters as 1888—MDCCCLXXXVIII—the most literary year, if we may so put it, in two millennia.

The armored train is an element of strength to the force that controls it and at the same time it is a ticklish thing to run and to trust to, for it would take but little to throw it off the rails or to blow it into the air with dynamite or other explosive, in either event spreading carnage among its occupants. Then again, it is both a gain and a detriment to the army which depends upon it, inasmuch as while it makes an almost impregnable cover for the soldiers its frequent use soon renders these soldiers very poor fighters in the open.

A Berlin paper says that "the Americans begin earnestly to think of the political and economical annexation of South America." Another German newspaper says that "the suspicious doings of the Americans" in South America "should be watched carefully." The London Saturday Review, a consistent hater of America and all things American, asserts that "the dream of the far-seeing American today is 'South America for the North Americans.'" All of which is as amusing as the funniest "piece" in the funniest of the comic papers. We never met an American who would have this country take the whole or any part of South America as a gift. Did you?

After a review of the origin of that penal institution a writer in La Revue de Paris gives the number of exiles sent from Russia to Siberia. There were 900,000 from 1754 to 1864 ,415,000 from 1864 to 1888, and 132,000 from 1888 to 1898. He states that the system has given Siberia a proletariat that lives in mendicity, vagabondage, and crime. "Transportation gives little correction to the criminals and exerts no civilizing influence on Siberia, nor does it add to the security of society." That has been officially admitted by the Czar's government by the decree of May 18, 1899, which adopted the principle that transportation to Siberia should be limited, and established a commission to devise a way of encouraging a profitable colonization for Siberia. Siberia is not the sterile region that the novelist and dramatist picture it. The land can nourish 50,000,000 men, and free colonization might perhaps bring about that "blossoming like the rose" which penal colonization is unable to effect.

In the Cornhill Mr. Paget gives an account of the early rising habits of the imperial court of China. "At 2 a. m. every morning the halls of audience are opened, and at 3 a. m. the cabinet councils are held." "The court entertainments take place at 8 a. m., and at 10 a. m. the work of the Emperor's day is over." The British Medical Journal, commenting on this, states that the habit of early rising which is regarded by so many elderly people as a virtue is in reality to be traced to physical and not to moral causes. "To be drowsy in the evening and wakeful in the early morning is rather characteristic of age and is probably to be attributed to the hardening of the arteries and the less ready action of the vaso-motor system." This sign of degeneration is crystallized as a characteristic of the body politic in China.

Bicycle enthusiasm, which reached its highest mark in 1896 and 1897, is now distinctly on the decline. It was predicted then—and the universal favor with which the wheel was regarded justified the belief—that it would continue to grow in favor and become an established institution. Within certain limits it will undoubtedly do so. It is not now the exacting and absolute fashion, and hence loses that great demand. It has fallen to the prosaical place of a practical convenience and utility. The enthusiasm of fashionable rivalry has vanished and as a measure of recreation its use has largely fallen away. It has been found that the wheel has its inconveniences and dangers, and is not altogether the health promoter that was urged at one time. Still it remains for many thousands, and possibly hundreds of thousands, an inspiriting and profitable exercise. But the novelty has worn off, the fashion craze has gone and the wheel is simply regarded from a practical standpoint with a legitimate and limited demand.

When it comes to averaging the number of crimes committed by men and women, the statistician demonstrates pretty clearly that the men are much worse than the women. Some modern sociologists have ventured to assert that the women were quite the equal of men in the field of criminality, but this appears to be a mistaken idea. Prof. Mentegazza has made a study of this matter and gives his conclusions in an article published by the Humanitarian. His statistics are quite elaborate and equally as convincing, showing plainly that women occupy a higher plane of morals than that held by the men. As these statistics are of unusual interest, covering a question much mooted just at present, some of them are given here, as follows:

Man for forgery and counterfeit coining was convicted 100 times to a woman's eleven.

In France in 1880 women delinquents were fourteen to 100 men.

In Italy in the same year they were only 9 per cent.

In England and Wales between 1834 and 1842 there were twenty-four women to 100 men, all for the more serious offenses.

In 1871 Dr. Nicholson found in the prisons in England 8,218 men and 1,217 women.

In Bavaria from 1862 to 1866, in a population consisting solely of peasants, the women who were condemned were in proportion twenty-nine to 100 men.

In the prisons of Turin from 1871 to 1884 the women in respect to men are represented by a figure of 13-67 per cent.

These statistics show that, taking the whole of Europe, the men are five times more guilty than the women. There is a lack of information concerning the relative morality of men and women in the United States, but it is safe to say the men, when compared with the women, will be found to be a pretty bad lot of fellows.

Irving's View of the Stage To-day.

"The greatest marked development in the theater in the last twenty-five years," said Sir Henry Irving slowly, and in that strikingly measured manner, "is that it is no longer necessary to vindicate the stage. There was a time when it was. Another great change, and one that has helped the actor immensely is the growth in the number of strong, honest and capable critics. The actor must have publicity and honest criticism, and, in proportion as he gets that, the necessity for 'vindication' ceases. He then takes his place according to his merit, that is, he takes his place in his time. But an actor is never sure what another time will think of him. An actor's rewards are peculiar. I think it was Mr. Archer who said that beautiful pictures, statues and fine buildings, no matter how much you admire them, never cause you to throw up your hat or applaud very vigorously. In walking through an art collection you simply make a pencil mark alongside of the name of the pictures that please you. The methods of expressing approval of acting are stronger, but the thing that produces the approval has passed away with its creation."—Ainslee's.

Annual Rainfall of Nearly Forty Feet

The heaviest rainfalls so far observed with scientific accuracy occur in India. At Cherrapunji, in the Khasi Hills, in Assam, the mean annual precipitation is 39 feet 6 inches, at Debundja 30 feet 10 inches, and at Bibundi 34 feet 4 inches. Both the latter stations are on the sea coast and at a much lower level than Cherrapunji.

What a jolly old world this would be if others could only see us through our eyes.

IT IS VERY COMFORTIN'.

It is very comfortin'
When your hair is gettin' thin,
And the crow feet in your eyes have come to stay,
Just to feel her little hand
Smoothin' back each silver strand,
While you meet her lovin' look and hear her say:
"My dear, it seems as tho'
Every year you live you grow
Handsomer than in the olden days;"
Then you look up at your wife
And you think in all your life
You never heard a sweeter word of praise.

But the tear drops will arise
To your dim old failin' eyes,
And you kiss the gentle hand, still white and small,
While you try to tell her how
You loved her then—you love her now,
But bless me if the words will come at all;
For just then there comes to you
The trials she's gone thro',
And borne without a murmur for your sake;
You can only bow your head
At the lovin' things she's said,
While your poor old heart will only ache and ache.

But she knows what ails you then,
And she kisses you again,
While you hear her gently whisper, sweet and low:
"Life has brought more hopes than fears,
We have known more smiles than tears,
And the years seem ever brighter as they go."
Yes, 'tis comfortin', you know,
When your step is gettin' slow
And you're slidin' down life's hill a'mighty fast,
Just to feel her little hand
Smoothin' back each silver strand,
While she tells you that she'll love you to the last.

A HEART.

HE has no heart."

"Who? Ben Trisbee? Well, perhaps not, sentimentally speaking; but, then, he is merry and fond of society and has lots of courage and I expect that is nearly as good as a heart to take one along in the world. He is always ready to speak some pleasant words to drive the blues away and make life brighter for those about him."

"Do you know how old he is?"

"Well, he looks about 26, but mother declares she used to go to school with him long ago and that he must be at least 40."

"Why, it is not possible!"

"One would not think so to look at him, it is true—to see his silky, blonde mustache and the dimples all the time coming and going in his fair face; but there is his sister, Mrs. Willey—she must be nearly 40. I have wondered sometimes if it did not make him feel old to have her children calling him Uncle Ben."

"His sisters all worship him."

"Yes, and well they may, for he is, as the old Scotchman says, 'O'er kind to them.'"

"And yet you think he has no heart?"

"Well, I mean that he never loved anybody, and never could love anybody more than five minutes at a time."

They were two girls walking along the street of a pretty New England village and earnestly discussing one of the lights of society in the quiet place. Even while they talked, while his name had scarcely left their lips, he joined them, this same light-hearted bachelor, the existence of whose heart was so problematical to the sentimental young damsels.

"Good morning, girls," he said, cheerily. "You always look like a pink and a buttercup. What wonderful subject are you discussing now?"

One girl blushed and hesitated, and the other, more frank and fearless, said, bravely: "We were talking of you."

"Of me? Well, that is flattering, I declare. Was it some shortcoming of mine, some sin I have recently committed?"

"No; but we wondered why, when you are always so kindly and pleasant, that you have no heart."

The man laughed gayly.

"Is it the universal verdict that I have no heart?" he asked.

And the girl answered: "I guess so. I have heard it said a good many times, and I have never heard anyone contradict the fact."

He laughed again—such a merry, heartsome laugh—and said:

"Well, well, chickens, it is a lack that no one would ever accuse you of; only see that your hearts do not lead you astray, that is all."

With a merry smile he raised his hat and said:

"I must tell you good-by as well as good-morning, for I am going away this afternoon."

"Oh, please, Mr. Trisbee," said one of the girls, deprecatingly, "don't go away so early. Why do you always leave us with the summer, as though you were such a warm weather bird you could not bear the frost?"

"I did not suppose you missed me," he said, bowing.

"But we do miss you," persisted the girl, blushing, "and we like to have you here."

"Thanks, many thanks. I am sure your gentle and graceful appreciation would tempt me to stay, if anything could, but I must leave, all the same; so good-by, and don't forget me. I will be back early in the spring, ready for another campaign. Which shall it be—mountain or seashore?"

The girls were both looking grieved and sorry.

"Oh, next summer is so long to wait," said one of them. "Why can't you stay here now?"

"Don't ask for reasons or explanations," he laughed; "they are stupid things at the best. I am going down to Mrs. Willey's to bid the children good-by. Will you go along with me?"

"We were going there, too," they said. And so the trio moved on together. The good-bys were just as merry and frank as everything else that the gay bachelor had a hand in, and soon he went away, with many kind wishes following him.

As he passed out of sight, turning at the last instant to throw kisses to the children, Mabel Ray, one of the girls who had been talking of him, said, discontentedly, to his sister:

"I don't see what he wants to go away for; I should think he might stay here all the time—I don't think he minds the cold."

"No," said his sister; "he doesn't mind the cold, it is true, because he has been accustomed to it since childhood."

"Then what does he go for?" pleaded the girl. And the lady, drawing her work basket nearer her, said:

"I wonder if you two girls would like me to tell you a story. I will send the children out to play and we will have a quiet time by ourselves."

The girls signifying their delighted assent, nestled down in the sunshine to listen to the story.

"It is all about brother Ben," the lady said, half apologetically. And the girls, like two children, answered:

"Oh, goody! we want to know so much about him."

"Fanny says he has no heart," said Mabel, "but I tell her he has a merry soul and lots of courage, and that is nearly as good, isn't it?"

"No heart!" The lady repeated the words in a curious, dreamy voice. "Well, let me tell you my story, and then you shall judge for yourselves whether he has any heart.

"Twenty years ago Ben was a boy, counting his first score of years on life's great dial, and no happier, more light-hearted, thoughtless fellow never lived. He was kind to everybody and made friends everywhere. You remember the old house down in the hollow, surrounded with great elm trees and wide, green fields. It was Squire Marsden's old place then, and there was not a handsomer residence in town. He had but one daughter, you know—Minnie Marsden, a pretty girl, sweet tempered, childlike and affectionate. She and Ben had been school children together, and perfectly devoted to each other ever since they could go alone. They grew up and entered society here, and their love for each other was as much a recognized fact as that of any married couple in the place. I think Ben would have died for her any hour, so perfect and self-forgetting was his devotion. But when he was 22 and she 18, and they the prettiest couple you ever saw together, there came a stranger to this place—a handsome, stylish man, with plenty of airs and graces that he had brought from faraway New York, and seemed delighted to make an exhibition of in our little seaport town. He came upon official business—something connected with the custom house—and did not hesitate to announce as frequently as possible that he was American consul somewhere, had been appointed and approved by high official authority and was to leave soon on a brilliant tour that was to bring him much fame and honor, not to speak of wealth, which was a secondary consideration to him.

"Squire Marsden was immensely flattered by the attentions this magnificent minister plenipotentiary paid to his pretty daughter, and when the man, perfectly infatuated, asked for her hand in marriage, that she might accompany him on his wonderful tour, the old man gave him his blessing and sanction at once.

"He declared Ben had never said anything to him about marrying his daughter, and I think it quite possible that he never had, for they had taken everything so much as a matter of course that they probably had not paused to put it in formal words, thinking that it was sufficiently well understood without such formality.

"So when the old man told Minnie what he expected of her she looked at him in amazement. I think the girl was flattered by the stranger's attentions, but she had not thought that anything could possibly interfere with her love for Ben, and she had no thought of giving him up.

"But Ben was proud and sensitive. He knew that Squire Marsden was wealthy and was inclined to look down upon his poorer neighbors; still he had put up with this, as he could, for Minnie's sake; but now, when the old man came and told him that but for him Minnie could make a brilliant match and be received in foreign courts as the first American lady of the land, Ben made up his mind in an instant and expressed it accordingly.

"'Minnie is the dearest thing on earth to me,' he said, 'but heaven knows I will never stand in the way of her happiness.' And so, with one brief farewell, he left her.

"I saw them together that night. I heard him talking with her in tones that he tried vainly to make calm and firm. I knew that with Minnie Marsden he gave up all hope for the future. I saw him hold her in his arms for one minute, and then—ah, well, I ought not to talk of this to you, girls; but Ben went away and soon afterward Minnie was married.

"If her bright dream of pride and wealth and foreign courts was ever realized there was certainly no evidence of it in the pale, sad face she brought back to our native village scarcely a year later. She went home to her father's with her husband. He proved to be an idle, speculative man, his head always full of some great plan—some magnificent prospect—soon to be realized. He involved the old man in speculations that took his broad acres to liquidate, and then he died, leaving Minnie no home and no fortune.

"It was then that Ben came back here, and I told him how poor Minnie and her children were. He gave me money for them, but he refused to see her. He has never seen her since; but every year, when her husband goes to Washington and she comes back here with her little ones, Ben gives me money to see that she is well cared for through the winter, and he goes away, that he may not see her face."

The two girls were weeping quietly as the lady ceased to speak, and Fannie, clasping Mabel's hand, whispered softly:

"He has a heart."

"Yes, he has," said Mabel, stifling a quick little sob in her throat.

She did not guess why Mrs. Willey had told them this story.—New York News.

NURSERY CARS.

Wail of a Bachelor Who Is Particular About Traveling Companions.

The innovation of a nursery car upon our railways—or, at any rate, upon the long-distance trains—would be an institution hailed with delight by all men and most women.

How many men who do not themselves smoke invariably travel in a smoking carriage because there they feel more secure from an invasion of children and babies than in any other part of the train.

Babies form a class entirely by themselves in the category of unpleasant traveling companions, and there are probably few who at some time in their lives have not had experience of the noisy, sticky-fingered, peppermint sucking, dear little children, who trample on your toes and deposit luscious, half-sucked gobs of taffy on your trousers in their endeavors to reach the window to put their heads out, whence they are promptly hauled back by anxious mothers or nurses, and cry; or the babies in arms who placidly assimilate milk from a bottle, until a jolt of the train makes them choke, having at that moment more nourishment than they can possibly deal with; or the inquiring child who plays with the hinges of the door until the guard slams it; or the child who is perpetually feeding, and throughout the journey sits in a semi-torpid state sucking oranges, the all-pervading odor of which fills the carriage.

Babies are all very well, but a baby in a railway carriage, like a bull in a china shop, is out of place.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Electric Cat.

Some of the French newspapers have been telling about the new method of whipping men which has just been introduced experimentally in some of the penitentiaries and colonies of France. The instrument bears the pleasing name of "The Electric Cat," and l'Electricien expresses the scientific opinion that it is a great improvement upon the Russian knout and the cat o' nine tails which it says "still unfortunately figure in many penal colonies and in the penitentiaries of so-called civilized States."

The method of this new whipping machine is very simple and business-like. The culprit who has been sentenced to undergo the lash is tied to a post in the usual manner. Behind him is a wheel, driven by an electric motor, which goes round and round with a velocity that is unpleasant for the victim. The velocity may be regulated, however, according to the severity of the trouncing to be administered. Attached to one of the spokes is a whip which swings around the circle and the culprit is placed at such an angle with reference to the instrument of flagellation that every time it comes around it nips him squarely on the back.

It is claimed for the new invention that it dispenses justice impartially and equally. It has no animus against the prisoner, its blows are given with equal intensity and it better fulfills the idea of even-handed justice than manual flogging, which is likely to distribute penalties very unevenly.—New York Sun.

House Hunting.

House hunting is not a very pleasant occupation even at the best of times, and a bright and clever young woman has hit upon the novel way of increasing her income by relieving ladies in search of new habitations of this disagreeable but very necessary work. The difficulty which she herself experienced in seeking the desired kind of domicile is said to have given her the idea. She makes arrangements with the real estate agents and hunts houses on commission. Besides, she receives a fee of $2 from the family for whom she finds the house. All that is necessary is to give her explicit instructions as to what is required, and if such a place is to be found within the limits of the stipulated area she finds it.

General Lee's Modesty.

A month or so after his surrender Gen. Lee went one day to the store near his home in Powhatan County, Virginia, which served also as the post-office. Everybody in the town was instantly eager to see him, and in a few moments the store was crowded. The General was talking with the proprietor about crops and other matters, and appeared utterly unconscious of the fact that the gathering of the residents was due solely to his presence. Suddenly he realized that everybody was watching him and modestly said: "But I see I am keeping you from your many customers. Pardon me!" and at once withdrew.—Ladies' Home Journal.

He Proposed Again.

"She refused him, as she thought that he would propose again."

"And did he?"

"Oh, yes. But it was to another girl."

Poverty would soon be an unknown quantity if men could dispose of their experience at cost.

SAFE IN THE TRENCHES.

Earthworks Are Better Protection than Walls of Masonry.

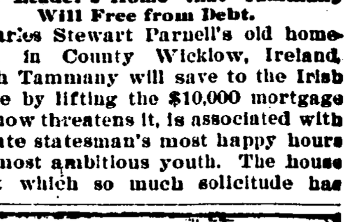
Experience has shown, says the Chicago Tribune, that soldiers are safer in trenches protected by earthworks, such as surround the beleaguered city of Ladysmith, than if they were behind walls of solid masonry. Sitting in his trench, a soldier can smoke and read in perfect security while a storm of bullets may be passing overhead. Nor will rifle bullets penetrate an earthwork to any distance. Bullets from a Lee-Metford rifle will penetrate further than those from a Mauser, while those from a Mauser will go further than those fired from a Martini. Shots from Maxims or other rapid-fire guns are similarly ineffective against earthworks. The only way in which soldiers can be dislodged from such a position is by the use of heavy artillery, and even in that case the firing must be extremely accurate, so that the shells will burst immediately above the trenches. This, of course, requires not only extremely accurate marksmanship but the expenditure of a great quantity of ammunition.

SAFE IN HIS TRENCH.

THE PARNELL HOMESTEAD.

Irish Leader's Home that Tammany Will Free from Debt.

Charles Stewart Parnell's old homestead in County Wicklow, Ireland, which Tammany will save to the Irish people by lifting the $10,000 mortgage that now threatens it, is associated with the late statesman's most happy hours and most ambitious youth. The house about which so much solicitude has been exhibited in Ireland and America is a fine old residence of a type that is common in the Emerald Isle. It was built on the estate at Avondale, Wicklow, which was bequeathed by a friend to John Parnell in the last century, descending from him through his younger son, William, to John Henry, the father of Charles Stewart. The patriot's mother became the mistress of the house when her husband took her to Avondale in 1834. She had been Miss Delia Tudor Stewart, daughter of Admiral Charles Stewart, of the United States navy. Young Charles was sent away from his ancestral walls when he was a boy, but it was within them that his American mother gave the political bent to his mind that distinguished him ever after. The house is well built and stately, and might have been deemed even lordly in former days.



PARNELL'S OLD HOMESTEAD.

First American Vessel on Lake Erie.

The first American vessel on Lake Erie was The Washington, built near Erie, Pa., as early as 1797. In the next year the Jemima was put together three miles below Rochester by one Eli Granger, and was the first of our vessels to plough the waters of Lake Ontario. It was not until 1817 that a steam boat appeared on the lakes. This was the Ontario, which was made after the pattern of the Sea-Horse, then running on Long Island Sound. During the following year Walk-on the-Water appeared, and surprised the marine world by steaming from Black Rock, New York, to the prosperous little town of Detroit. It was a clumsy but a wonderful thing, that primitive sidewheeler, with her belching funnels and cranky machinery, for on her first trip, we are told, she was greeted with cheers and cannon at every port into which she put. Her journey took her five days, and her passenger list was limited to twenty-nine but she was a slight improvement on that original canal boat, with a great upright engine in her hold, which constituted the first lake "tug."—Ainslee's.

Anti-Climax in a Mine.

Professor Weed, the noted geologist, recently had a thrilling and hair-raising experience in Butte. He was decending a mine on a ladder and when several hundred feet down the ladder parted, leaving him suspended in the darkness. He hung to the round with all the tenacity his being was capable of, determined to strain the very last drop of his vitality in the hope that succor would come. He cried out for help, but the deep, dark walls returned his voice unanswered. His whole life came back to him in vivid retrospection; perspiration dripped from his forehead as he realized that only for a short time could he withstand the awful strain. And then he dropped. Four inches below him he struck a heavy body, which afterward proved to be the globe.

"I wonder if all men are fools," snapped Mrs. Enpeck during a little domestic tiff the other morning. "No, indeed, my dear," replied her husband. "I know a number of men who are bachelors."

Even when a man does have greatness thrust upon him he really thinks he achieved it.

MILITARY BOUNTY LANDS.

The Great Part They Played in the Development of the Country.

Military bounty lands have played a highly useful part in the history of this country, and, next to the acquisition of territory, the homestead laws and the extension of railroads into the far West, it is to the military bounty land system that we owe the creation, settlement and peopling of thirty-two great States outside the original thirteen. It was particularly to this system that the settlement of Ohio, Kentucky, Michigan, Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas was due. In all, 80,000,000 acres of land have been granted as military bounties—as much as the combined area of New York, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland.

Ten millions acres were awarded to revolutionary heroes, their widows and heirs, and the lands were located chiefly at first in what was known as the United States Military District in Ohio, and the Virginia Military District, also in Ohio.

Military bounty lands likewise were given to our soldiers of the war of 1812. Six million acres of public land then open to settlement were set aside for the "regulars" of that day—3,500,000 in the then Territory of Illinois, 2,000,000 in the Territory of Louisiana, between the St. Francis and Arkansas Rivers, and 500,000 in the Territory of Missouri, north of the Missouri River.

Similar land bounties were given for service in the war with Mexico, and up to this date about 600,000 military bounty land warrants have been issued to survivors of that war, their widows and heirs, representing in all about 62,000,000 acres of land, each warrant averaging about 100 acres. By the act of 1855 every surviving soldier or his widow or heirs, whether of regulars, volunteers, rangers or militia, who performed military service for not less than fourteen days in the United States in any regiment, company or detachment of the revolutionary war, the war of 1812, the Mexican war or any of the Indian wars since 1790 and prior to 1852, or participated in a single battle, became entitled to receive 160 acres of public land free of expense.

All bounties for service in the civil war were paid in cash, and the only advantage which honorably discharged soldiers and sailors of that war enjoy in land transactions over the private citizen is that under the homestead laws in making an entry they are excused from the personal performance of certain preliminaries, and the time of their service is deducted from the time required to perfect their title.

At present the United States has 600,000,000 acres of public lands unappropriated and unreserved, excluding Alaska. Of this enormous acreage over 316,000,000 acres are surveyed and open to pre-emption or purchase. The greatest areas of unappropriated public lands are in Montana, 71,000,000 acres; Nevada, over 61,000,000; New Mexico, 56,000,000; Arizona, 54,000,000; Wyoming, 49,000,000; Idaho and Utah, 44,000,000 each; California, 42,000,000; Colorado, 39,000,000, and Oregon, 35,000,000.

Minnesota has over 3,000,000 acres surveyed and at the disposal of the public, and Michigan has 500,000, all surveyed. Missouri and Wisconsin have nearly as much as Michigan. Washington has 5,000,000 and Oklahoma has 7,000,000. In addition there are 2,500,000 acres of abandoned military reservations in the far West, which the Government is now disposing of in small lots—the largest in Montana, the Dakotas and Utah.

Grumbling.

A noted divine has declared that a husband's grumbling and scolding was often only his way of beginning a conversation, and he maintained that if a man were sulky the worse he was the more cheerful his wife should be. Certainly husband and wife should bear and forbear, he says, and the soft answer turneth away wrath more effectively by the domestic hearth than elsewhere. Then business is often worrying, and the husband coming home needs and usually deserves to find there all soothing and calming influences. But surely it should be mutual kindness; at times the man must take his turn in meeting irritability or low spirits with cheerfulness and kind, gentle consideration! As to the theory that the wisest and best course is for the wife of a sulky, tyrannical man always just to give in and crouch before the storm, he does not think that is either good policy or real kindness ultimately to the man himself.

Historic Tree for Valley Forge.

Some time ago the Centennial and Memorial Association of Valley Forge addressed letters to the Governors of the thirteen original States asking each of them to furnish a tree from some historic spot to beautify the grounds. In response to the letter sent to him Gov. Wolcott of Massachusetts has directed the transplanting to Valley Forge of a tree from a nursery within a short distance of Plymouth Rock, grown on land surveyed a few years ago by Ralph Waldo Emerson and Harry D. Thoreau.

Wanted Beards.

The women of the imperial city of Rome once got possessed with a morbid ambition to raise beards like their brothers and husbands. They used to shave their chins and smear unguents over them. It appears, however, that the men of Rome did not favor this feminine eccentricity, for Cicero mentions a law that was passed to prevent women rasing beards.

ENGLAND'S HAPPY NEW YEAR

THE OUTLOOK IS GLOOMY.

England's Greatest Army Stopped by Two of the Smallest Republics—Military Economy Commencing to Hurt Now.

London, Jan. 1.—It is strange to note that as the new year dawns for Great Britain the greatest army she ever put in the field remains passive in South Africa, held at bay by two of the smallest republics on the face of the earth; while at home, in spite of the large volume of trade and apparent prosperity, her financial interests are in a state of instability not seen since the Baring crash. All Europe is yelping at her heels, and the necessity for America's friendship is recognized on all sides. Papers and people that for years have been ready with a jibe for America's good will no longer make any attempt to belittle the desirability of securing her friendship.

"America," says the Globe, usually humorous at the expense of all things trans-Atlantic, "with a crop of 542,000,000 bushels of wheat, is especially in a position to help us."

The economic shoe already begins to pinch the military foot. Not very seriously, but enough to suggest grave cogitations as to what would happen if Great Britain would war with a great power. The fact that the government has chartered so many transports has resulted in a rise in the price of bread, while coal is rising by leaps and bounds to famine prices. It is such unpleasant results as these that silence the scoffer at things American and induce such a vituperative publication as the Saturday Review to say: "The Americans have had their eyes open as to the possibilities of a foreign policy and are taking a sounder, besides a cooler view, of the situation. They are not less friendly to us than before, but the insincere element has been eliminated and has left a reliable substratum of good will," which concatenation the Saturday Review under different circumstances would have construed into damning evidence of the insincerity of American friendship.

It must not be inferred that this view is held by many of the sincere English friends of America, who now point to what they are pleased to term its great friendliness as proof of what they have always maintained.

With such a serious outlook for the coming year, it is hardly surprising that articles appear under the heading "Are We Decadent?" and similar strains. On the other hand, there is still a small section of the press and public which devotes its energies to senselessly abusing the Boers and predicting the speedy entry of the British into Pretoria.

Mormonism

Is a blot upon our land—a symptom of governmental ill-health. The right laws would act upon it as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters does upon constipation, or dyspepsia. They would quickly restore healthy purity; and this is just what the Bitters does for the human constitution. It makes the stomach strong by curing indigestion and biliousness.

The most contagious diseases are those of the heart.

—The C. D. Fleming Co., of Colfax, made an assignment Thursday for the benefit of their creditors. Aaron Kuhn was named as trustee.—Pullman Herald.

—Two widows of soldiers of the First Idaho regiment, viz: Gertrude L. Bradley, of Wardner, and Jane Darrah, of Pocatello, have been granted pensions of $12 a month, each, for loss of husbands in the Philippine war.

—The war department last week made public a statement showing that there are 200,000 storm sufferers in the island of Porto Rico, dependent upon charity, who must continue to look to America for means of subsistance until the banana crop ripens. 2000 more tons of food is needed to stop starvation. The death rate is fearful.

—The admission of Oklahoma to statehood will be pushed during this congress. The territory has an area equal to that of Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Jersey and Delaware combined. There are 700 churches, 1000 Sunday schools, and 150 newspapers. It has a wheat area greater than that of the British Isles.

—The war department is going to send four or five hundred soldiers to Alaska in the spring. They are intended for service in the Cape Nome district. It is estimated that there will be a large influx of fortune hunters on account of the attractive statements which are being made regarding the prospects there. The duty of the troops will be to preserve order.

—Since it has been decided to give the name of Clarkston to the new town that has grown up in Vineland, Washington, opposite Lewiston, additional interest is shown in a celebration to be given in 1903. It is proposed to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the visit of Lewis and Clark to the Snake river valley. Both Lewiston and Clarkston will join in the centennial demonstration. It has been suggested that a statute of each of the famous explorers be erected at either end of the big steel bridge that spans Snake river. If the idea is carried out the statutes might be cut from native marble and the bases of native granite, both of which are found in abundance within a few miles of the two towns.

—The eight Cœur d'Alene fugitives under indictment for murder have been located positively in the Clearwater basin of northern Idaho, Mr. Sinclair tells the Review. The expedition under Sheriff France located the log cabin, but from signs of fresh tracks they had evidently taken their flight the previous day. A Wardner preacher down in the basin last fall saw eight suspicious travelers and from his description of them it is certain they are the lads wanted. Others have also visited the basin and found the house in which were bunks and eight gun racks, pipe, coat, etc. The state is centering every effort around their capture, and await the arrival of spring when officers and soldiers will be sent in pursuit. Now the country is covered with from 4 to 5 feet of snow. The hearings of the lesser prisoners have been delayed until the chief offenders are captured.

Baby's Future.

The fond mother dreams great dreams of baby's future as she holds the sleeping little one in her arms. But the dreams will never come true unless she has given him a strong body and a healthy mind. Children die in hosts, or live to struggle through life feeble of body and dull of mind because the mother was unfit physically and mentally for motherhood. Women who use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription endow their children with strong bodies and bright minds. It is every mother's duty to give her child the advantages of a healthy body and mind. A weak or sickly woman cannot do this. "Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Mrs. Orrin Stiles, of Downing, Dunn Co., Wis., writes: "I have been intending to write to you ever since my baby was born in regard to what your 'Favorite Prescription' has done for me. I cannot praise it enough, for I have not been as well for five years as I now am. In July last I had a baby boy, weight 11 pounds, and I was only sick a short time, and since I got up have not had one sick day. I have not had any womb trouble since I got up. I was not only surprised myself but all of my friends here are surprised to see me so well."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure biliousness.

—The National Anti-Trust League has issued a call for a national conference to be held in the city of Chicago, on the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, February 12, 1900. The object of the meeting will be for the purpose of deciding upon an anti-trust policy and permanently organizing an an anti-trust movement. A paragraph of the declaration reads as follows: "We believe the criminal conspiracies in restraint of trade commonly knows as trusts, which so alarmingly characterize the present time are a menace to liberty. They close the doors of business opportunity to all but the rich and powerful. They impoverish the producer and consumer. They degrade labor. They have seized upon the avenues of transportation and poisoned the fountains of public information. They debauch the elective franchise. They are public enemies They must be destroyed or free government is lost. The only power capable of successfully combatting the tyranny of these gigantic capitalistic monopolies is the aroused and organized hosts of the people to whom the government and the country rightfully belong and in whom all power of right inheres."

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE "NECESSARY" MAGAZINE

The best-informed men and women in the world use the AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS to keep well informed, and call it the "necessary" and "indispensable" magazine. In the busy rush of to-day ambitious men and women must know about the important questions of the month, and not only this, they want to know about them at the right time. When the whole country is puzzled over the gigantic combination of trusts, a well-informed article is printed in the AMERICAN MONTHLY, giving the facts, and its editor discusses the theory; when the Dreyfus affair is in everyone's mouth, the best story of Dreyfus and the great case comes out in this magazine.

Every month, in "The Progress of the World," Dr. Albert Shaw gives a comprehensive picture of the world's history during the previous thirty days. In the departments, the valuable articles and books that have been published during the past month are reviewed and quoted from, so that the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY can get the gist of them. In every issue nearly a hundred pictures are printed, including the portraits of the men and women who are making the history of the month.

To be thoroughly well informed helps any man or woman in his or her work. A subscription to the AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS represents an investment for the best kind of profit, as well as entertainment. One subscriber has just written: "Count me a life subscriber, and when you send me a number beyond the limit of my subscription and secure no renewal from me, consider it a notice of my death."

FOR LITERARY INSTITUTE.

To the Genesee NEWS.

In recognition of the fact that knowledge is power and enlightenment the order of the day, we wish to lay before your readers a proposition for which we ask their most earnest and just consideration. We make no claim for originality as the scheme was introduced by a prominent eastern publication some two or three years ago. It has been, and is now, a complete success. The plan is this: The editors will announce as often as may be necessary, a subject for discussion of a nature that will interest us, or that is paramount for the time being. For instance: Our public roads and laws governing them—how can they be improved? Diversification of farm products—how can they be promoted? How can the obstacles be overcome? Laws governing the levying and collection of taxes—how can they be improved? Would a state board of arbitration be a benefit? Are Farmers Mutual Insurance organizations as good or worse than old line companies? There are many questions of equal importance that occur to our mind, but these are sufficient to show the range for a free for all discussion that can not be otherwise than beneficial if carried on in the way proposed.

Attending the literary and debate on expansion the other evening we were impressed with the benefit that accrues to those so fortunately situated as to be able to take part, but for one at a distance to attend is out of the question, and the effect is not far reaching enough as it is. Again, our most serious and studious thinkers are the ones that find it the hardest to give clear and forcible expressions of their thoughts to an audience while the most fluent speaker oft-times misses the point entirely. Now here is where the advantages of our literary institute on paper comes in. It is all done in calm deliberation without any fuss and feathers. You take the paper home with you to your own fire-side, read it at your leisure and study the question at issue, and if there is something not in accordance with your idea, you will note it. Fire in something to the editor, if it is only half a dozen words to the point. This is the least you can do.

Right here we wish to say most emphatically, in the discussion of these questions political "isms" of any kind must be omitted. One of our wisest statesman said that good government was honest government, and that is what we are after just now. Some may ask what is wrong with these question you propose to discuss? In answer, let me ask, are our public roads and methods of working them in fit keeping with our boasted prosperity and general advancement of this the closing year of the 19th century? Is it compatible with our boasted ability as producers to have meats, creamery butter and eggs imported to our very doors? Is it not a reflection on the intelligence of this community that a paid servant of the people had to address them through the medium of the press setting forth the cause of our heavily increased taxes. Again cannot our present method of paying taxes be made less burdensome?

Indifference to our home needs hinders our advancement. We should talk plain now and not wait till the grass grows over our streets and the moss hangs from our hat brim in graceful festoons. You gentlemen Editors have your ideal for which you strive in the upbuilding of the NEWS, just as we plan and work for our ideal farm and home. Together we should and needs must have an idea what our home town and country should be like. Neither can be perfect. We should organize and take advantage of the opportunities as they present themselves before us. Now gentlemen don't think for a moment that we wish to deprecate your most successful efforts in giving us a neat and newsy local paper. Far from it, that the NEWS is well at the head of its class is well known. To strengthen its position, to more closely unite and identify its interest with the interests of its patrons is our sole purpose in thus inflicting upon your readers this tale of woe. You, we and all of us have got to take a new load or at least brace it up with a few trumps if we wish to succeed in waking up this fossilized community to a realization of its true condition and take in a few tricks that of a right belong to it. Time is up. HENRY J. HERMAN.

Blarney Castle, Jan. 8.

[If agreeable, farmers may send in letters for issue of Jan. 19, on "How to make good roads." Letters must not take up more than six inches of space in the NEWS.—EDS.]

State Teachers' Association.

At the meeting just held at Boise it was voted to hold the next meeting at Mountain Home. Latah county's superintendent of schools was elected vice president of the association. All the county superintendents in the state were present but one. The president and several members of the University faculty were there rustling for the U. of I. Two prevailing questions discussed were: Rural School Problem and Free Traveling Libraries; also morality in the schools and the teaching of Greek and Latin by Prof. Anderson of Whitman county.

The "Plow Boy Preacher," Rev. J. Kirkman, Belle Rive, Ill., says, "After suffering from bronchial or lung trouble for ten years, I was cured by One Minute Cough Cure. It is all that is claimed for it and more." Cures coughs, colds, grippe and all throat and lung troubles.

GENESEE GRADED SCHOOLS.

Following is the summary of the year's enrollment of the Genesee Graded Schools, and the attendance for the first week after the holidays

Intermediate, Miss French instructor. enrollment 45; attendance 41.

Second primary, Miss Duthie. Total enrollment 71; attendance 62.

First primary, Miss Burdic. Total enrollment 76; attendance 69.

Total enrollment for the year 287. Present enrollment 263.

For the month of November the three having the highest average in the "D" high school are: Ilena Wood 98⅔; Cordelia Grant 98⅓; Edith Mervyn 98. For the month of December the highest six of the same grade are: Madge Fowler 96¾; Ormand Patterson 96¼; Cora Hodgins 94¼; May Herman 94¼; Cordelia Grant 94; Ilena Wood 93½. Number of new pupils enrolled since the holidays, 24.

The literary society is doing good work in this line. The organ is quite an aid in literary efforts. The high school enrollment is the highest in the history of the school. The average per cent. of attendance was 98¼ during the month of December.

The high school extends a cordial welcome to visitors.

GRAMMAR DEPARTMENT.

The new year starts with 43 pupils in regular attendance in grammar room. Number of pupils in sixth grade, 17; number of pupils in seventh grade, 12; number of pupils in eighth grade, 14. The seventh and eighth grades are doing good work in percentage. The sixth grade will complete fractions this month.

INTERMEDIATE DEPARTMENT.

The new year commenced with an enrollment of forty-one, six of whom were new pupils.

The fifth grade have finished their study of Benjamin Franklin and each pupil has written an essay on Franklin, pasting pictures of him and his home upon their papers.

The fourth grade have also written several biographical compositions, in connection with their language work.

Leona Moss who has been absent for a month on account of sickness, is in her class again.

Mr. Krum made a very pleasant visit to our room Friday morning. We are glad to welcome anyone who is interested in our work.

LULU FRENCH, Teacher.

SECOND PRIMARY.

The new year brought us an embarassment of riches in the way of numbers. Every seat is occupied and our room full.

The third grade numbers thirty-five and the second grade twenty-seven. The third grade works in two divisions in reading, language and arithmetic.

Both grades have written stories in connection with language. At Thanksgiving time a story of "The First Thanksgiving" was written and pictures of the Mayflower, wild turkey, and pumpkins were used to illustrate.

The second grade are preparing a story of "The Greeks." The best, or one of the best, will be published next week.

Preparatory to the observance of Lincoln's birthday, on the twelfth of February, the third grade are writing a story of Lincoln and will use pictures of Lincoln and his home to paste in stories.

Owing to lack of time, writing and drawing alternate—writing is given three days of each week and drawing two days.

This week the children will finish their study of the sphere by drawing pictures of apples and oranges and coloring them.

Last Friday afternoon we received a pleasant call from President Krum of the school board. We most sincerely and cordially invite all parents and citizens of Genesee to visit our school and see our work.

MARGARET DUTHIE, Teacher.

PRIMARY.

We began the new year with an increase of eight in attendance, giving us far more than we could accommodate with seats.

There have been over fifty enrolled in the beninning class this year which in itself is a sufficient number for a school.

The "A" beginners have taken up spelling since the holidays. They seem very much interested in their new study.

Mr. Krum favored us with one of his pleasant visits Friday which was greatly appreciated by both teacher and pupils. He can always find something worth commending, thus helping us to "Take up the burden of life again" a little easier.

Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Scroggin also visited our school last week. Parents are always welcome. As to our progress, come and see.

HAPPENINGS OF 1899.

SUMMARY OF A YEAR'S IMPORTANT EVENTS.

War in Philippine Islands and South Africa, the Dreyfus Trial, Political Difficulties in Samoa, Death and Destruction by Fire, Wind and Flood.

Many causes have combined to make the year 1899 a rather remarkable one. Its opening was signalized by Spain's surrender of the last vestige of her sovereignty in the western hemisphere; its progress brought forth the declaration of war between England and the Transvaal Republic, and its close leaves these nations still engaged in a bloody contest, that may result in important political changes in South Africa. During the year the fighting between the natives and United States troops in the Philippines has continued and the war is yet on.

Other events, aside from warfare, that have occupied public attention to a greater or less extent have been: Signing of the treaty of peace with Spain; settlement of difficulties in the Samoan Islands; trial, conviction and pardon of Captain Alfred Dreyfus in France; numerous large fires that have destroyed many lives and much property; tornadoes that caused disaster and death at Kirksville, Mo., in April, and at New Richmond, Wis., in June; several fatal shipwrecks; deaths of prominent men, among them President Felix Faure of France, Garret A. WHEN BABY PRAYS.

When baby by her crib at night
Enfolds her little hands to pray—
Dear little hands so soft and white—
I listen while the sweet lips say:
"Now I 'ay me down to s'eep;"
I p'ay the Lord my soul to teep;"
And listening, years are backward rolled;
The past is as a tale untold.

And standing by my mother mild—
Dear mother with your hair of white—
Again I am a little child,
And say again as yester night:
"If I s'ould die before I wate,
I p'ay the Lord my soul to tate;"
And half it seems in baby's plea
The olden faith comes back to me.

Ah, me! I know my faith is but
A phantom of the long ago,
Yet when my babe, with eyelids shut,
Repeats the words I used to know:
"Now I 'ay me down to s'eep;
I p'ay the Lord my soul to teep;"
Some way, some way the world-doubts flee;
The old sweet faith comes back to me.

It comes again, the old sweet faith;
It is my own, it is my own,
And doubt has fled, the gloomy wraith,
Before a baby's word alone:
"If I s'ould die before I wate,
I p'ay the Lord my soul to tate."
So for a baby's lisping plea
My thanks, dear Lord, my thanks to thee.

REVENGE.

"If you please, ma'am, could I speak to you for one minute?" asked Mrs. Locksley.

Theodora Dale started from the deep reverie in which she was buried, and looked up with large, startled eyes.

"Certainly, Mrs. Locksley," said she. "What is it?"

"It's about the rent for the rooms, Mrs. Dale," said the landlady, drawing herself up with a little jerk. "Two good months you've occupied 'em, and it stands to reason, ma'am, as a hard-working widow woman, as has only herself to look to, wants to see the color of her money. Not as I would have hurried you, ma'am," with a half-relenting glance toward Theodora's deep mourning garments, "while the poor major lay ill, nor yet while he was being buried. But——"

"I am sorry to have inconvenienced you, Mrs. Locksley," she said, "but I was, of course, obliged to settle the undertaker's bill at once, and that has taken all the ready money which I had at command. I have written to my husband's relatives, however, and I expect remittances very shortly, which——"

Mrs. Locksley compressed her lips.

"I've heard that same thing from my lodgers before, ma'am," said she. "All I can say is that I would very much like to have the bill paid as soon as possible."

"It shall be paid to-night, Mrs. Locksley, without fail," said Theodora, her cheeks becoming even hotter than before. And the instant the door closed upon the short, stout figure of the landlady she let her head fall upon her clasped hands and burst into tears, tears that were almost like distilled fire, so scalding and bitter were they.

Theodora Dale had been married only three months. She had been a schoolgirl of 15 at Mme. Bonmerci's establishment, just out of Saratoga, when Maj. Lionel Dale saw and admired her at the Springs. He made some careless inquiries about the young beauty with the gazelle-like eyes, scarlet lips and blue-black hair that clustered so low upon her forehead, and learned, in an incidental sort of way, that she was an orphan, training at the expense of Mme. Bonmerci herself for a governess.

"Hang it!" said Maj. Dale, "she's too pretty for that! I'll marry her!"

Little Theodora Mayder, who had scarcely left off playing with her dolls, and was heartily sick of Mme. Bonmerci's exactions on the one side and the unconscious tyranny of the children on the other, was half frightened, half pleased, when the handsome, middle-aged major proposed matrimony to her.

"But I am so young!" she pleaded, the carnations and lilies succeeding each other in her cheeks.

"You are the prettiest little half bloom rosebud in the world," the major made answer, gallantly.

Mme. Bonmerci spoke a word or so of warning to her.

"My child," said she, "beware what you are about. He is three times your age—he gambles. It is true that your life now is a hard one, but——"

"I shall marry him," retorted Theodora.

At the end of three months Maj. Dale's favorite horse, Meg Merrilies, ran away with him and killed him, and Theodora, not yet 16, was left a widow.

Naturally enough she wrote to her husband's relatives, whom she had never seen, and now, upon this October evening, she was expecting an answer to the letter.

The color mounted to her face as the postman paused under her window—she caught the letter from his hands and tore it eagerly open.

It contained nothing but her own letter, returned to her with these words penciled across the envelope.

"Mr. Chandos Dale's compliments to the young lady who beguiled his brother into a secret marriage, and he is confidently of opinion that her talents in the husband-hunting line need no assistance."

And this cutting taunt, this gratuitous insult, was all.

Theodora sat pale and silent. She knew that her husband did not care to refer to his relatives much, generally avoiding the subject when she broached it, but she had never dreamed that he had allowed them to think her a mere adventuress who had contrived to entrap him into a disadvantageous marriage. She had long ere this discovered that Lionel Dale was a thoroughly selfish man, but she had never dreamed how selfish.

But the blow, sharp and sudden as it was, nerved her to further exertions. She put on her hat, went out to the nearest jeweler and sold her watch and chain—Lionel's wedding present—for probably about one-third of its worth. With this she paid her bill at Mrs. Locksley's.

"Begging your pardon, ma'am," said the lodging-house keeper, "but what be you going to do now?"

"I am going to give music lessons," said Theodora.

She had a full, fresh voice, like a lark's, and she knew that she could make this one gift of God a bread-winner.

"It will be a life of drudgery," she told herself, "but I would starve sooner than apply again to the Dales for assistance."

And the years crept by and the 16-year-old widow who stormed the citadel of fortune so bravely won the day.

* * * * * * * *

"Signora Theodora Dalli! No; I have not heard her yet," said Chandos Dale, indifferently. "But they say she is the best Marguerite we have yet had, and I have sent to secure a box for to-morrow night."

Signora Dalli was in her best voice that night when Chandos Dale, her brother-in-law, sat with folded arms in the proscenium box. And the half-blown bud of five years ago had ripened by this time into the full-blown rose of loveliness. Her blue-black hair floated like a jetty, glimmering veil of brightness down her shoulders; her eyes shone like midnight stars, while the radiant pink and white of her cheeks owed none of their beauty to cosmetic arts.

And Chandos Dale, sitting there with intent eyes and an artist's soul, all alive to the flutelike richness of her voice, thought she was simply the most beautiful creature he had ever seen.

The mayor of the city where the signora was singing had a little private reception in her honor, after the opera was over. Chandos Dale, of course, was among the invited guests; and then Signora Dalli knew who he was.

"I have the advantage of him," said Theodora to herself, "smiling a curious smile. "And I shall take care to retain it!"

"Are you really in love with me?" said the signora, opening wide her almond-shaped eyes, where the jetty fires seemed to burn with sleepy luster—"with me—an opera singer?"

And Chandos, about as hopelessly infatuated as it is in his nature of man to be, vowed that he would commit suicide if she didn't have him at once.

"Put it in writing," said the Signora Theodora Dalli, with a laugh.

"Why?"

"It is my fancy."

"Your will is my law," protested Mr. Dale. So he wrote a very pretty and poetic declaration of love upon tinted paper and sent it to the signora's suite of apartments at a private hotel.

The same evening he received the very letter which had come to Lionel Dale's widow that October sunset, with its penciled bit of sarcasm. And under it was written:

"The young lady who beguiled Chandos Dale's brother into a secret marriage has needed no assistance from his relatives. The Signora Dalli—otherwise Mrs. Lionel Dale—returns the inclosed compliments, and has the honor to bid Mr. Chandos farewell!"

Theodora never enjoyed anything so much in all her life as she did the writing of this letter.

She had conquered her own fortune now. She was indebted to no one. And the next month she was married to a young English gentleman who had followed her bright eyes half over two continents.

While Mr. Dale had the satisfaction of knowing that he had wrought out his own destiny.

Boer Names.

The origin of the names of some of the towns in Cape Colony and Natal which are at present so prominently attracting public attention is of interest. Durban is named from Sir Benjamin Durban, who was Governor of the Cape in 1834. Grahamstown and Harrismith are named respectively from military commanders—Col. Graham and Col. Sir Harry Smith. Caledon, Beaufort, Somerset and Cradock are named from former Governors. The towns of Ladysmith, Port Elizabeth and Lady Grey are called after the wives of Cape Governors. Kimberley is named after the Earl of Kimberley, who was Colonial Secretary from 1870 to 1874, when that town advanced from the position of a mushroom camp to that of a permanent mining center.

Oriental Advertisers.

Some of the similies used by oriental advertisers are remarkable. Here are one or two specimens which have recently appeared in Eastern newspapers: "Goods dispatched as expeditiously as a cannon ball." "Parcels done up with as much care as that bestowed on her husband by a loving wife." "Paper tough as elephant's hide." "The print of our books is clear as crystal, the matter elegant as a singing girl." "Customers treated as politely as by the rival steamship companies." "Silks and satins smooth as a lady's cheek and colored like the rainbow."

JIM WARDNER OF IDAHO.

Gave a Name to Two Towns, Lost Four Fortunes, and After Another.

"Jim Wardner, of Idaho and all over," said a visitor in Chicago from the Pacific slope, "ought to be somewhere in New York city at this very minute, for I heard he had left for the East on a prospecting trip, just before I got down from Skaguay. Wardner is a genius that cannot be downed, and besides having one town named for him in Idaho and another in British Kootenai, he has made and lost four fortunes in mines, and is now starting in on his fifth. At least, his fourth is gone, and he only makes a fortune when he happens to be out of one. His last venture was big, but it went wrong. He had two steamboats on the Kootenai, and started the town of Wardner, which went with a boom, and Jim started to win a million.

"There was a rival town across the river, but they had to depend on Jim's steamboats for their stuff, and, naturally, under the circumstances, Wardner had the bulge on Steelton, the name of the other town. One day, when everything was coming Jim's way, both of his boats went on the rocks and sunk, and Jim wasn't yet in a fix to replace them. In other words, it busted him, and he got out of it the best he could, which was to go off to Toronto and trade his town site for a stock of goods. These, to the extent of $40,000, he carried up to Lake Bennett and started with it down the river for Dawson. Evidently Jim's luck wasn't on the water, for his boat load of stuff was wrecked, and he only saved enough of it to bring him in $9,000, when, if he had had luck, his $40,000 would easily have been sold for $400,000 at the usual Dawson profit. That sort of things would have knocked out most men, but Wardner went right on, and now, I understand, he has got something to present to the notice of capitalists better than anything he ever struck.

"His 'black cat farm' was one of the things that gave him a reputation for wealth. This was a farm on an island in Puget sound, where he raised, according to his representations to an Eastern journalist, such vast numbers of black cats that their fur brought him in a fabulous revenue. Of course, it was a fabric of the fancy, but the story was told everywhere, and Wardner's black cat farm was one of the features of the coast—on paper, at least.

"Another story is told on him of a time when he was between fortunes and wanted to get to New York for a grub stake. He was at Vancouver, and as he couldn't swim, nothing was left him to go on but the land, so he struck the Canadian Pacific Railroad. He stated his case to the agent and asked him to telegraph Mr. Shaughnessy, the general passenger agent at Montreal, to the effect that Mr. Wardner was at Vancouver, and unless he got transportation he would have to walk. The obliging agent sent the message and asked: 'Shall I issue the transportation?' Later the agent received a reply: 'Don't let Mr. Wardner walk.' and that same night Mr. Wardner was flying Eastward on a Canadian Pacific train. Arriving at Montreal Wardner went to Shaughnessy to extend his thanks, and when the general passenger agent saw him he threw up his hands.

"'How did you get here so soon?' he asked.

"'Over the Canadian Pacific, of course,' responded Wardner.

"'But how? Didn't the agent get my telegram?'

"'Yes, and it said: 'Don't let Mr. Wardner walk, and I didn't,' smiled Jim.

"'Great Scott!' exclaimed Shaughnessy, 'that telegraph operator left out a period. The telegram should have read: "Don't. Let Wardner walk."

"Then Wardner gave Shaughnessy the haha, and Shaughnessy gave Wardner a dinner and Wardner didn't have to walk on to New York, either. He's a great chap, is Jim Wardner, and he'll be on top again by and by, see if he isn't."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Tallow Candles with Red Wine.

In France the peasantry still stick to medicines calculated to turn the average doctor's hair gray with horror. Wine is an ingredient of every prescription. In fever cases it is always the predominant one. The French peasants faith' in fermented grape juice is truly beautiful. If his children are stricken with the measles he gives them wine, well sweetened with honey and highly spiced with pepper. For a severe cold he administers a quart of red wine and a melted tallow candle mixed. For scarlet or brain fever he gives eggs, white wine and soot well beaten together.

Small Coins in Greece.

The smallest coin now current in Europe, and the one having the least value, is the Greek lepton. The lepton is, according to the decimal monetary system, current in all countries belonging to the Latin union. Some idea of this valueless little disc of copper may be gathered from the fact that the lepton is the one-hundreth part of a drachma. The Greek drachma usually passes for the value of 20 cents.

A Famous Eagle.

The eagle which originally decorated the stern of the famous schooner yacht America—which first won what is now known as the America Cup—is now the sign of the Royal Eagle Hotel at Ryde, Isle of Wight, overlooking the scene of the vessel's triumph over her English competitors in 1851.

NEW WAY OF STOPPING TRAINS.

Their Steam Is Cut Off When Danger of Disaster Is Ahead.

Judge Albion W. Tourgee, who is now consul at Bordeaux, France, writes to the state department of a recent improvement upon the "block system" on railroads designed by a French inventor, which, it is claimed, will greatly lessen the danger of collisions on railways. "The fact that the United States is the most profitable field for the exploitation of useful inventions," writes the judge, "has taken a firm hold upon the inventive minds of other countries, and the first thing a man does who has a novel idea of any sort is to seek to have it patented in the United States. That this is especially true of inventions pertaining to railway appliances is only natural when one contemplates the fact that the United States, with its 183,000 miles of railway track, has six times the mileage of any other country in the world.

"French inventions are usually defective in the mechanical character of the means by which the end sought to be effected is attained. This is, no doubt, due to the fact that so small a proportion of the population have any practical mechanical knowledge. Almost every man in the United States knows the use of tools. Very many who have no manual occupation are fairly skilled workers, and those who have inventive tendencies are not ashamed to devote their leisure time to the acquirement of technical skill necessary to prepare their working models and perfect their inventions. In France, on the contrary, such knowledge is considered derogatory to anyone in the higher walks of life. A clerk will not close a shutter nor dust off the top of the desk at which he works, since that is the business of an 'ouvrier,' nor will a man who moves in good society permit himself to be seen carrying a package of any sort along the street.

"One result of this exclusive use of tools by laborers is that French invention usually has, to an American, a certain sense of awkwardness in its mechanical application. The idea may be a good one, but there is very seldom any of the handiness which one finds in an American invention. In the many cases of application for American patents which come before me, I am almost always struck by this lack of directness of application, which leaves them open to competition, thus destroying the value of the invention by improvement of application of a principle.

"This does not apply to an invention by Pierre Paul Guibert of Millau, department of Aveyron, France, intended to prevent railway collisions. It is, in effect, a simple and natural application of the 'block system'; but, instead of merely displaying a signal at each end of a section of track showing that the same is occupied, Mr. Guibert's system acts also on the engines of the approaching locomotives, and, by cutting off steam automatically, brings the train to a standstill.

"As a preventive of head-on collisions this invention would seem a positive improvement on the block system, through it is quite possible that the increased cost of installation may prevent its general adoption. I send inclosed a set of drawings and a copy of the specifications for his patent, which Mr. Guibert was kind enough to send me. Whether his system is of practical importance or not, it serves to show how the United States is regarded by the inventors of Europe, who make haste to secure protection under our law, so as to take advantage of the wonderful market it opens to really meritorious devices."

God Needs the Help of Mothers.

"The grave mistake of repressing children," writes Barbetta Brown in the Ladies' Home Journal, "is caused by the mother's failure to be keen enough to see where she may touch a child's life and where she may not; where it is for her to guide, to help, to encourage, and where the child-life is sacred to itself alone. That the child is another individual never occurs to some mothers, nor that he has his own possibilities for growth, not to be tampered with; his own privacies, not to be invaded; his own 'holy of holies,' to be held holy. The Power that is working in the vast life of this universe is working in your son or daughter as part of it; and it has its own purpose in regard to each child life as surely as for each planet in its orbit. God needs much help from mothers, but God does not intend to be effaced by mothers. Cooperate, then, with the Power working through your children, mothers. Do not make the great mistake of attempting to compete with it."

Jews As Soldiers.

The first wound inflicted during the late Turco-Greek war was received by a Jew. There are in the British army 700 Jews, 144 of them being officers. France has 300 Jewish officers, amongst whom are several brigadier-generals and generals of division. In Italy the Jews hold high rank in the army. Thus, the Commandant of the Fortress at Turin is a Jew, Lieut.-General Ottolenghi. He is a persona gratissima with King Humbert, and was Chief of the Italian Crown Prince's Brigade at Naples.

The Oldest Steam Engine.

The oldest steam engine in the world has recently gone off duty after working more than 120 years. It was built in 1777. It is a beam engine, the beam being of wood; the cylinder 32 inches in diameter, with an 8 ft. stroke. This veteran engine has been in the service of the Birmingham Canal Navigation Company.

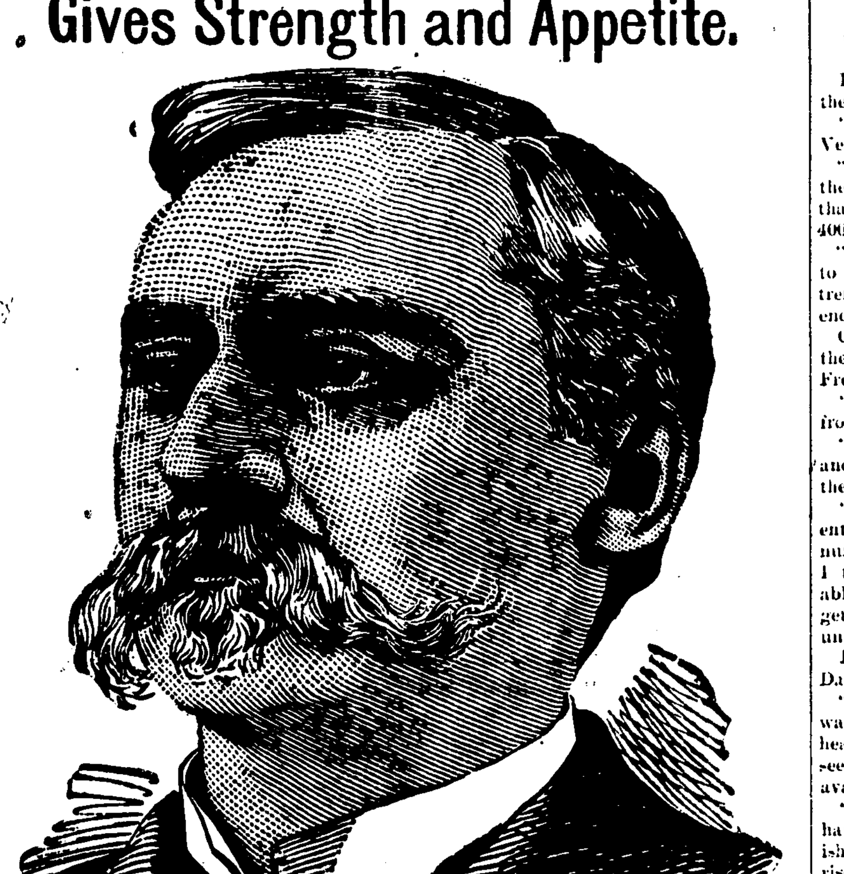
U. S. SENATOR ROACH

Says Peruna, the Catarrh Cure, Gives Strength and Appetite.



Hon. W. N. Roach, United States Senator From North Dakota.

Hon. W. N. Roach, United States Senator from North Dakota, personally endorses Peruna, the great catarrh cure and tonic. In a recent letter to the Peruna Medicine Company, at Columbus, Ohio, written from Washington, D. C., Senator Roach says:

"Persuaded by a friend I have used Peruna as a tonic, and I am glad to testify that it has greatly helped me in strength, vigor and appetite. I have been advised by friends that it is remarkably efficacious as a cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh"

Peruna is not a guess, nor an experiment; it is an absolute, scientific certainty. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Peruna has no substitutes—no rivals. Insist upon having Peruna. Let no one persuade you that some other remedy will do nearly as well. There is no other systemic remedy for catarrh but Peruna. Address the Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio, for a free book on catarrh, written by Dr. Hartman.

GERMAN STEAMER SEIZED.

TAKEN BY A BRITISH WARSHIP

Germany Claims the Herzog Carried No Contraband Goods—War Situation as Seen in London—Hopes to Avoid Trouble Over Recent Captures.

Durban, Jan. 8.—The German steamer Herzog has been seized by a British warship and brought to this port.

This steamer, which Germany claims carried no contraband and no cargo intended for the Boers, was captured a short time ago and is now considered a British prize, to be dealt with by a prize court.

London, Jan. 6.—The passing of another week has apparently effected no change in the condition of the war in South Africa. It certainly has not been productive of any serious developments. In England the yeomanry are manfully contending with the difficulties of the riding school, which is putting their patriotism to the test of falls on the tanbark and other inconveniences.

Coal is getting daily dearer and the funds for the "absented minded beggars" and others are swelling by the thousands into proportions of unheard of munificence, while the papers, when not magnifying indecisive skirmishes into brilliant successes, devote casual attention to the difficulties which have arisen over the seizure of cargoes bound for Lorenzo Marquez. In the latter respect the Bundesrath incident almost monopolizes attention, the seizure of American flour being relegated to a very subsidiary position and not being taken as having the slightest possibility of producing international friction. On the whole, the British press has taken a calm view of the German seizure matter and has refused to be led into replying in kind to the bitter comments telegraphed from Germany. In this the papers merely voice the feeling of the government, for not the slightest feeling for the action taken against the alleged contraband have been given out, though that question in abstract causes no end of cogitation, but more regarding the effect the present discussion will have upon future events than by the press of contemporaneous difficulties.

The British government believes it has a good case against the Bundesrath. But both in this instance and the case of the American flour the government holds that absolutely nothing definite can be done until details have been learned.

New York Blaze.

New York, Jan. 9.—Fire destroyed the brick factory building on East Fifty-ninth street did $100,000 damage. The building was used in part as a storage warehouse by Bloomingdale Bros., and they are the chief losers.

The London, Canada, street railway strike is not off, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

BIG BATTLE AT LADYSMITH.

GENERAL WHITE REPORTS.

Boers Are Gathering in Large Numbers Around the Garrison—Attack Weak Points—French Compelled to Retreat.

London, Jan. 9.—General Buller sends the following from Frere Camp:

"This from White: 'Attack renewed. Very hard pressed.'

"I have absolutely no more news and there is no sun. There is a camp rumor that White defeated the enemy and took 400 prisoners.

"I sent all available troops yesterday to make a demonstration at Colenso. The trenches there were all occupied by the enemy."

General Buller has wired the war office the following, dated January 6, from Frere Camp:

"'January 6.—The attack continues and the enemy has been reinforced from the south.

"'Have beaten the enemy off at present, but they are still around me in great numbers and particularly to the south and I think a renewed attack is very probable. The sun has failed and I can not get further information from Ladysmith until tomorrow.'"

London, Jan 9.—A dispatch to the Daily Chronicle from Frere Camp says:

"Saturday's bombardment of Ladysmith was the heaviest yet recorded. All the heavy guns were working and the Boers seemed to be pouring in shells from every available lighter gun.

"It lasted fully four hours and must have meant either a sortie by the British or a determined attack on the garrison by the Boers. Our shells could be seen falling on Umbulwhana hill and the enemy were replying. Beside the cannon reports there were sounds indicating smaller pieces of artillery in action. The fighting must have been at closer range than has been the case up to now.

"Our naval guns at Chieveley sent their usual fire into the Boer trenches, but there has been no further movement here."

London, Jan. 9.—A special dispatch from Frere Camp dated January 7, says:

"General White heliographs that he defeated the Boers this morning. They crept up so close to the defending forces that the Gordon Highlanders and the Manchesters actually repulsed them at the point of the bayonet."

London, Jan. 9.—General French reports a "serious accident" to the First Suffolk regiment. Four companies of the regiment attacked a Boer position. Lieutenant Colonel Watson in command was wounded and a retreat was ordered.

The Boers Lost.

London, Jan. 9.—The war office has just published the following bulletin from General Buller:

"Frere Camp, Jan. 9.—The following is from White:

"'An attack was commenced on my position, but was chiefly against Caeser's camp and Wagonhill. The enemy was in great strength and has pushed the attack with the greatest courage and energy. Some of the entrenchments on Wagonhill were three times taken by the enemy and retaken by us.

"'One point in our possession was occupied by the enemy the whole day, but at dusk, in a very heavy rainstorm, they were turned out of this position at the point of the bayonet in a most gallant manner by the Devons, led by Colonel Park.

"'Colonel Ian Hamilton commanded on Wagonhill and rendered valuable service. The troops have had a very trying time, and have behaved excellently. They are elated at the service they rendered the queen.

"'The enemy was repulsed everywhere with heavy loss, greatly exceeding that on my side, which will be reported as soon as the lists are completed.'"

A rumor is current in London that General Buller has crossed the Tugela river, captured 12 guns and is now marching on Ladysmith.

Money Market.

New York, Jan. 8.—The Financier says:

The New York banks continue to gain slowly in cash holdings and surplus reserves, despite the drain made upon them by gold exports. The clearing house institutions report at the end of the week just ended $589,650 excess cash above the amount held at the opening of the year, the surplus reserve standing at $11,757,725. The expansion for the six days ending Saturday is more than of ordinary interest, since it was made in the face of an increase of nearly $9,000,000 of deposits, which, of course, tied up about $2,250,000 of money in additional reserve requirements. The gain in cash was $2816,200, of which the greater part was in the form of legal tenders, due to receipts from the interior. Loans are $4,107,600 higher.

Want War to Stop.

New York, Jan. 6. — A special from Washington says there is reason to believe that the Transvaal government has only recently requested this government to use its good offices to bring to an end its war with Great Britain. This request came through the American consul at Pretoria. No answer has been given by the state department.

Mysterious Disappearance.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Charles A. Tracy, confidential bookkeeper for F. P. Bagley & Co., marble dealers, has disappeared.

Fighting at Molteno.

Burrowing at Ladysmith.

London, Jan. 8.—The war office has issued the following:

"From Buller, Frere Camp, Jan. 8.—The following telegram was received from General White Jan. 6: 'The enemy attacked Caesar's Camp in considerable force. The enemy was everywhere repulsed, but the fighting still continues.'"

The doings of the besieged at Ladysmith have been fully described by recent letters. If the Boers continue to so closely hem in and bombard White's force the besieged promise to become full-fledged cave dwellers, for, according to the Daily News correspondent at Ladysmith, the prevalent tendency there is to burrow.

Hyde Park, N. H., Jan. 8.—Julia Marlowe-Tabor, the actress, has been granted a divorce from her husband, Robert Tabor.

Damaging Fire at Butte.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 9.—The large warehouse of the Hennessy Mercantile Company, opposite the Great Northern depot, was destroyed by fire. Loss on building, $12,000; fully covered by insurance. Loss on stock, between $40,000 and $45,000; insurance about $20,000. Cause unknown, but believed to have been from defective wire or spontaneous combustion.

German Actor Killed.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 8.—Hans Ravene, a well known German actor, who has been playing here, was instantly killed by falling from a stairway at his boarding house.

England's Armored Trains.

The magnificent armored trains used by England in her war with the Boers will protect her troops in about the same way that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters drives dyspepsia from the human stomach, and then mounts guard that it does not return. The bitters has won in every case of indigestion, constipation, liver and kidney trouble for fifty years.

Visited by Earthquakes.

Tiflis, Russian Caucasia, Jan. 6.—Altogether 13 villages in the Achalak district of this government have experienced earthquake shocks. Six of these places have been completely destroyed and 800 dead bodies have already been recovered.

"Nature Abhors a Vacuum."

Nothing in the world stands still. If you are well and strong day by day the blood supplies its tide of vigor. If you are ill, the blood is wrong and carries increasing quantities of diseased germs. You cannot change Nature, but you can aid her by keeping the blood pure. Hood's Sarsaparilla does this as nothing else can. Be sure to get Hood's, because

The fight against the New York Sun is still being waged with great bitterness by organized labor despite the court injunction. It is hinted that powerful capitalistic interests are backing the Sun, and also that some of the other daily papers are secretly supporting the Sun in order to break the power of the typographical union. The strike and boycott of the printers in Kansas City also continues, and the machinery of the courts is now being employed to keep the people guessing.

The duodenum is continuous with the small intestines. The small intestine empties into the large intestine or colon at the cæcum. The arrows indicate the direction which the contents of the bowels must take in passing through the alimentary canal.

are packed away in your insides and must be kept clean, in order and doing business.

It's a long way, with many turns and pitfalls to catch the refuse and clog the channel if not most carefully cleaned out every day.

When this long canal is blockaded, look out for trouble—furred tongue, bad breath, belching of gases, yellow spots, pimples and boils, headaches, spitting up of food after eating,—an all-around disgusting nuisance.

Violent pill poisons or griping salts are dangerous to use for cleaning out the bowels. They force out the obstruction by causing violent spasms of the bowels, but they leave the intestines weak and even less able to keep up regular movements than before, and make a larger dose necessary next time.

Then you have the pill habit, which kills more people than the morphine and whiskey habits combined.

The only safe, gentle but certain bowel cleansers are sweet, fragrant CASCARETS, because they don't force out the foecal matter with violence, but act as a tonic on the whole 30 feet of bowel wall, strengthen the muscles and restore healthy, natural action. Buy and try them! You will find that in an entirely natural way your bowels will be promptly and permanently

5 DROPS (TRADE MARK.)

A MARVELOUS DISCOVERY

In Medical Science, Wonderful, Astonishing, Yet True.

CURES RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA.

By the introduction in the medical field, of our most wonderful "5 DROPS," a legacy of inestimable value has been bequeathed to mankind. Suffering humanity is no longer at the mercy of diseases which have always defied the skill of the medical profession, for now "5 DROPS" defies these diseases, and has robbed them of their terror. This is truly a God-given remedy, yet invented by man for the benefit of suffering mortals, and will be handed down to coming generations as the most wonderful production in medical science during the Nineteenth Century. This remedy is positively curing more people daily than all other remedies combined. We challenge the worst cases of Rheumatism in all its forms, Catarrh, Neuralgia, Asthma, La Grippe and kindred diseases as a test of what this remedy will do. It has positively cured in a short time many who were bed-ridden for years; others who could only walk by the use of crutches, and still others who had been given up by competent physicians to die. This is no exaggeration. We have the evidence in our possession to prove all we say and more too.

"5 DROPS" positively cures the following diseases: RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, DYSPEPSIA, BACKACHE, HAY-FEVER, CATARRH, SLEEPLESSNESS, NERVOUSNESS, HEART WEAKNESS, TOOTHACHE, EARACHE, CREEPING NUMBNESS, BRONCHITIS, LIVER and KIDNEY DISEASES, and where one is cured by this remedy, they stay cured of these diseases, for it fortifies the system against any future attack. "5 DROPS" is the name and five drops the dose. Large bottles (300 doses) prepaid by Mail or Express, $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00. Sample bottles, regular price, 25c., but for the next thirty days from the date of this paper, we will send sample bottles upon receipt of 10c each. No one can appreciate this wonderful remedy until they try it. Write today. Agents wanted.

J. W. HOPP, CHAS. POWER } Editors and Proprietors.

—Among the evidences of prosperity of our land comes from the silver, democratic (formerly republican) Weiser Signal. It lately put in fast presses, folder, engine, paper knife, type, etc. Last week it said: "The past year has been an eventful one, and our paths are marked by many evidences of prosperity and advancement. * * We stand only on the threshold of the great industrial temple. The developments of the future will be swift and magnificent." And still it howls for Bryan and silver. Some queer people.

—A South Dakota paper tells of a farmer who, during last year disposed of 700 bushels of potatoes for $245, and 800 bushels of wheat for $418. Besides this he received $210 for wool and $475 for milk. The increase from cattle and sheep came to $300. Thus he has made a neat total of $1,648, apart from the products used in sup porting himself and his family. In commenting upon this favorable showing a paper calls attention to the fact that the dairy products were the most profitable of all. The farmer's cows brought him more gross income and net profit than eight acres of wheat land at 10 bushels to the acre, or several hundred sheep.

—At one time, shortly after our war ended in Cuba, a large per cent of the inhabitants were strongly opposed to the United States governing them. Such opposition has grown beautifully less. As the people become educated and more informed on our form of government the better they like us. Gen. Wood has triumphed over this opposition by his simple, kind and generous methods. Recently Havana gave Mr. Wood a royal welcome and pledged co-operation with his cabinet. May we not expect the same from the Philippines? We hear no more kicking regarding the rule of Mr. Otis. On the other hand we frequently hear about the splendid progress of the schools there under American teachers. When the Filipinos cease their warfare, which they have carried on for many years, and become educated, they will follow Cuba and feel grateful to the United States for the present struggle. Dr. Schurman, president of Cornell university, and of the Philippine commission, says, "the belief of the best natives today is that if we leave the islands chaos will reign, and they do not want us to leave. They ask us to stay until our work is finished. Our staying is the only thing that will enable them to realize their best aspirations for freedom and self-government." Dr. Schurman was formerly opposed to taking the Philippines, but "we are there and must do our duty in upholding national honor. We must put our hands to the plow, and we must stay and work out the problem before us."

—D. M. Evans, speaker of the Idaho house of representatives, is being talked for governor. He is a south Idaho democrat, an able man, and would make a strong race.

—The New York Commercial contains much information concerning postal affairs. It strongly opposes a reduction in the price of carrying merchandise through the mails. It does not uphold Great Britain's system of carrying an 11-pound package for 26 cents. Our postal law now has a deficit of some $9,000,000 per annum for operating expenses alone, and if to add to this appropriations for new postoffices and new equipments, the deficit would be doubled. Every one knows that if Uncle Sam does not sell postage stamps enough to pay his postal expenses, he must make it up from his custom duties, or from other internal revenues, so that the people pay the government's deficit, which forms the profit going into the pockets of a few large business houses who are in a position to work Uncle Sam's machinery to their personal advantage. If a woman in the west can get a new dress, or ten pounds of tea, or anything a family needs, at an expense of 26 cents, she will send to New York for it. A cheap parcels post means sure death to the country merchants, a blow to the prosperity of every little country village, and an enormous reduction in the business of regular jobbing merchants. The big institutions of the cities would corral the retail trade of the entire country. A strong protest will go up when the measure is before congress for action.

The Latest X Ray Invention

Is the Endoscope, which is for the purpose of examining the interior of the stomach. It is claimed, that with this instrument, the treatment of stomach troubles will be revolutionized, as it locates the cause of disease. With due respect to science, however, would state that the causes of stomach troubles have been known for the past fifty years, and likewise their cure, which is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine that has many imitators, but no equals. It cures dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, constipation, nervousness, insomnia. It also prevents malaria, fever and ague, and keeps the bowels regular. When not feeling right, take a dose. It is the standard medicine of the American people. Look for Private Revenue Stamp over neck of bottle.

—We hope Prof. Bryan of the state agricultural college at Pullman will continue in the Review his articles on farming Much good will result. He says stockraising was a profitable business in the Palouse in the early days. Wheat growing was also profitable for a time, but mixed farming must now occupy the attention of the tillers of the soil. First, that the soil may be preserved and replenished by diversification of crops. Second, for the utilization of a large amount of feed which now goes to waste, and which can find market only by raising of well bred stock on the farm. This product can be marketed at a saving of over 400 per cent in freight to the coast while returning the fertilizing product to the soil. Labor finds profitable utilization throughout the entire season, losses from single crop failures are lessened, expenses on machinery and horses is lessened, and a more thorough cultivation and larger crops result from diversification. We must do something beside raising wheat alone.

—Several communications are received for this issue. We have not room for all. Some appear elsewhere in a curtailed form and others are laid over. We must insist on brevity. Come often, but curtail. Half a column is enough for any ordinary subject. Bear this in mind hereafter.

—Though this spring-like weather is enjoyable, fine for stock in the fields and saving in fuel, clothing, etc., yet most people prefer frost and snow this month. NEWS gardens contain pansies, daisies, and at this rate apple blossoms will soon be in order. It is feared a cold snap later on may damage fruit trees and reduce the yield for next season.

—Dan'l Healey received sad news the past week, the death of an older brother who has been operating in San Francisco a store for many years. A younger brother moved to California but Dan knows nothing of his whereabouts as he has not heard from him for 15 years or more. The brother that died, Jermiah, was about 55 years old, a successful business man with wife and two daughters.

—The W. R. C. ladies elected and installed officers for the ensuing term as follows: Mrs. C. E Hibbs, president; Mrs. A. Stamps, senior vice; Mrs. Eliza Gray, junior vice; Mrs. G. W. Daggett, chaplain; Mrs. Mary Gray, conductor; Mrs. Nancy Murphy, assistant conductor; Mary Swank, guard; Mrs. R. Pickering, secretary; Miss Ida Follett, treasurer. These and other members and their partners were royally entertained at the fine home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Daggett Saturday evening, Capt. Daggett dishing up an elegant oyster supper.

—Mr. J. L. Goodnight has resigned his position as overseer of the many farms of J. P. Vollmer. He has held down this position for four years with credit to himself and highly satisfactory to Mr. Vollmer. Mr. Goodnight is a wide-awake, hustling, faithful man and rendered good service while looking after some seventy quarter sections of land. Mr. Matt Fuchs will now perform this task. Mr. Goodnight will devote his time largely to stockraising and the carrying on of his Rim Rock farm. Success to him.

—Department Chaplain G. W. Daggett this week received from C. A. Clark, S. V. D. C., of Boise, a report of the deaths of veterans occurring at the Soldier's Home since June 1. Ten deaths have occurred—James Gill, Wm. H. Grimes, James H. Hoagland, Curtis A. Force, Chas. Davis, Budd Clark, Wm. Schell, James D. Cellar, John F. Millemann, Andrew M. J. Bacon. All have honorable records. The first gentleman served in Co. H. 3rd U. S. Infantry for nearly 29 years. Mr. Bacon served in the Mexican war—16th U. S. Inft. —The building in which Mr. Berry was living on the Oylear farm on the Potlatch, was destroyed by fire recently, leaving the family in destitute circumstances. Neighbors have been kind and made them several donations of clothing, flour, vegetables, etc.

—Considerable activity was displayed around Judge Burr's court yesterday occasioned by the arrest of E. G. Crossett for giving liquor to a minor. This furnished the idle men an opportunity to shine. Prosecuting Attorney Smith arrived on the train, and with Attorney Samsel to assist in the prosecution, the outcome may result a little serious for the gentleman. —The debate last week on expansion developed the fact that Genesee has several excellent debaters. A gentleman passing heard the most eloquent speaker, and thinking it was Webster, rushed in, but discovered it was Mr. Welch. The discussion was lively, interesting and instructive. Perhaps it would be better for all if questions of interest to Idahoans were discussed instead of these national issues. Farmers would then assist in the discussions.

—Lewiston Patriot says when the Mt. Idaho stage reached Main street one of the wheels became detached and was lost in the mud. After several hours of diligent search was found and hoisted to the surface. Dr. Conant tells a better one. While passing along the new road northeast of town this week he overtook a man who was so busily engaged in extricating his team and wagon from the mud that he did not see the doctor. All the doctor could see was the horses ears, the top of the buggy seat, and the blue air. The man talked loud and in an excited manner, and being a foreigner the doctor had a picnic.

—Charley Morse sold his interest in the barber shop to Thos. Decoursey and departed Monday for the mining town of Sumpter. The new town is attracting many people. Mr. Decoursey is now sole owner of the shop and will continue to please all.

—The Literary by the scholars on Wednesday night was the best entertainment of the season. NEWS would like to particularize but lack of space prevents. A couple of one-act plays were put on and creditably carried out. The darkeys performed so well that they were called back the third time. Recitations were fine, and Miss Lulu Brennan read the society paper which was nicely gotten up. The attendance was good. It was a treat. The sum of $13 35 was cleared.

—Misses Marie Nebelsieck and Hettie Burgess gave a party Saturday evening at the home of the latter at the Evans residence. The guests were: Misses Sophia Beechler, Ethel Jamison, Pearl Follett, Minnie Stamps, Emma Nebelsieck, Mae Hodgins, Lizzie Mochel, Angelea Lorang, Messrs. Dan Moore, Don Johnson, Joe Wells, Fred Wilkinson, Wallace Cool, Chas. Kennedy, Geo. Boliou, Bob Beechler, C. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Evans. High five was the game, Miss Lorang winning head prize and Miss Jamison the foot. Fine spread at midnight, then the clock was stopped and music and singing followed. Big time and Fred is just recovering. Emma Nebelsieck was chief cook, bottle washer and card puncher.

—The gentlemen composing the Hazlewood Company, are experienced dairy men and operate eight skimming stations in eastern Washington. They will unite with the farmers of this community in establishing a skimming station at Genesee. Their plan is this: They will furnish everything complete for a plant for $800, without the building, and take a portion of the stock. They will put in a man to operate the plant and buy the cream, the price to be governed by the price of butter in Spokane. If 5,000 pounds of milk per day is delivered they will deduct 5 cents per pound at the present price for creamery butter which is 32 cents, leaving the farmer 27 cents for his butter fat. If less than 5,000 lbs. is delivered daily the deduction will be greater, scaling down to 8½c for 1500 pounds. Even at the lowest figure the farmer would get 47c per roll for his butter which is considerable more than he now receives, and it would be cash. When enough milk is produced to insure the success of a creamery the butter-making machinery can be added for less than $500. The creamery petition recently circulated received the signatures of 15 farmers who were willing to put in $100 each. If these farmers will put in $40 into the skimming station proposition we will have the plant in operation by March. Give us a creamery or a skimming station.

Geronimo Parra and Antonio Flores, who were executed at El Paso for murder, made a desperate effort to kill some of the officers or spectators when their cell dore was unlocked. It had been decided to hang Flores first, for fear he would break down, and when the officers unlocked the cell door to convey him to the gallows both prisoners dashed out and stabbed right and left among the crowd with dirks made of coarse steel wire. A desperate struggle followed, and the most intense excitement was precipitated, but they were soon overpowered and hung.

Battle at Ensly.

London, Jan. 8.—"The men were crowding around the engines in line offering the drivers fabulous prices for a cup of water," writes the Globe correspondent, describing the close of the battle at Ensly, South Africa, "but it was useless. The drivers had been threatened with court-martial if they supplied any, as there was a great difficulty in keeping a sufficient supply for the engines. I saw one soldier lying flat on the line under an engine catching a few drops in his mouth from a steam pipe."

Such extracts as this mailed description of the fighting in South Africa give some faint idea of the conditions under which it is being carried on. Belated as these letters are, by the time they appear in English papers they throw much needed light upon the situation so barrenly reported over the censored cables.

It was the heat that drove British soldiers to drink gratefully from the exhaust pipe of an engine after seven hours' fighting at Ensly, where they lost 179 killed and wounded.

Red Cross Workers Stopped.

Hamburg, Jan. 9.—Herr Adolph Woermann, one of the owners of the German vessels seized by the British, was interviewed by a representative of the Associated Press: He said:

"The last one taken is the Herzog. She has on board Dutch, Belgian and German ambulance corps. All these were traveling bona fide under the Red Cross. It is certainly the first time that such a corps has been detained by a hostile government.

"Their services were offered to the British, but were refused.

"We cannot help interpreting the action of the British as chiefly intended to prevent the German East African line from continuing its service on account of the competition we have made against the English lines.'

MINES AND MINING NEWS

OUR NORTHWESTERN MINES.

Items Gleaned From the Late Reports—All Districts Are Being Developed—A Prosperous Year Is Predicted—Mining Notes and Personals.

An important strike has been made in the Pauper mine on War Eagle mountain at Silver City, Idaho. Drifting north from the incline at the 500-foot level opened 10 inches of gold ore that runs about $500 a ton. This mine is an extension of the Poorman that was formerly a large producer of rich ore.

Republic.

In addition to this list of tunnels there are many that are 250 feet in length or over.

Only twenty claims were recorded on January 1 in Republic. The claim-jumpers were few.

At the Blacktail mine a winze is being sunk on the east vein, 40 north from the main tunnel.

The crosscut from the bottom of the winze in the Golden Lion tunnel is in 182 feet, but the vein is not yet in sight.

The Chico 200-foot level is now in 100 feet from the shaft, and from where the hanging wall was first struck it is in 47 feet.

There is 60 feet of ore in the Quilp mine and solid quartz in the crosscut. A complete machinery plant is to be installed. It is nearing the profit-paying point.

The auditor of Ferry county, at Republic announces that all fees to his office must be sent in either cash or money orders. Personal checks will not be received.

On the Ben Hur 230-foot level the south drift is in 60 feet, and a drift has been run a few feet northward. The vein on this level is about four feet wide. The value of the ore is not reported.

The San Poil continues to show the making of a valuable mine. The south drift from the lower tunnel is in over 400 feet, and since entering on the south pay shoot, it has been run about 150 feet on the vein.

Now that cheaper methods of treatment, and increase mill capacity for the company and custom ores of the camp are ripening, Republic, to a close observer, is looking substantially better than it has at any time since its discovery.

A sample from the Gold Ledge taken across four feet in the roof of the drift shows a value of $12.32. There is one foot of very rich ore in the ledge, a picked sample from which showed a value of $158.54. The pay streak will average $100 per ton.

Belcher camp, situated on the headwaters of Lambert creek, 14 miles northeast of Republic and a mile north of the state road, which affords the easiest and shortest route to it, is showing well wherever there is any work being done. The veins, according to his description, are iron capped contacts, between granite and limestone.

Republic No. 4 tunnel is 2300 feet in length. No. 3 tunnel 1400 feet, Mountain Lion tunnel 950 feet, Black Tail 560 feet, San Poil 550 feet, Golden Lion 540, Princess Maud 540, Gold Leaf 450 feet, Treasury and Republic Big Six Consolidated 450 feet, Morning Glory 550 feet, Copper Mountain 400 feet, Anaconda 400 feet, Palo Alto 450 feet, North Star 400 feet, Summit-Republic 450 feet.

The year just closed has been a most important one in the history of Republic camp and the Eureka mining district. The town of Republic has prospered to a degree far in excess of any other town in the state. The district surrounding the town has prospered in like manner. But prosperity has not been confined to this immediate neighborhood. Camps such as Sheridan and Wauconda, each about 15 miles distant, have made remarkable strides forward.

Baker City, Oregon, Notes.

Two rich strikes are reported. The Van Anda and Union Copper are the latest luck mines.

Granite is on the road to a first class boom. The townsite title question is now settled and investment is safe.

The Virtue mine, eight miles east of Baker City, has been worked for 35 years and is still the storehouse of untold wealth.

The Magnolia Mining Company has installed a 20-stamp mill and is now ready for business. The Magnolia is one of the Granite properties and is owned by an English company.

The machinery in the May Queen is all in place and the stamps will soon be dropping. The property is well developed and promises much for its owners.

A telephone message received from the Union copper mine says that at 40 feet the "rock is just red with copper." In a short time this will be added to the list of shippers.

Clear creek runs through this property and furnishes power for the mills on the Red Boy group. The owners propose to put in a 10-stamp mill in the spring. Development work is being pushed by both shaft and tunnel.

A big strike has just been made on the Big Buffalo. It has a ledge of 80 feet in width, is free milling and assays $100.04 per ton. This property is situated two and a half miles west of Baker City, and is owned by Al Geiser of Bonanza fame.

The all-absorbing topic now is the building of the railroad from Baker City to the Seven Devils country. People begin to see the importance of it to them as a distributing point, and that it will open up a mineral country of unsurpassed richness. It is reported that the O. R. & N. will build the road if they be given the right of way. The building of this road will add to the number of shipping mines east of Baker City, as the partly developed properties will be pushed to the shipping point.

Another property which is attracting the attention of mining men is the Excelsior group. This group is composed of the Golden Key, Excelsior and Blackbird, and the four principal ledges of the Red Boy run through this group, which is situated on Red Boy mountain, about 35 miles west of Baker City and three miles west of Granite. The ledge on the Golden Key is 34 feet in width, and the Blackbird 20 feet. Assays on the Excelsior run as high as $338. The average assay on this group of free ore is $11.25, and by cyanide $28. The ledges are in place with talc seams between walls and ledge formation.

British Columbia.

The St. Eugene, near Moyie, will put in new machinery to enlarge its capacity.

On the St. Eugene, in the East Kootenay district, the vein has been exposed on the surface for 600 feet.

Hector McRae, manager for the Boundary Creek Mining and Milling Company, has received the smelter returns from a car of ore shipped from the Gold Bug, one of the properties of the company, which is located near Greenwood. The value of the ore per ton was as follows: Gold, 3.72 ounces, $74.40; silver, 130 ounces, $75.40; lead, 12 per cent, $7.40. Total gross values for the car, $2,358. This is the highest grade ore yet shipped from the Boundary country.

From advices received from Cranbrook, it is evident that the strike in the North Star recently made is a most important one. It was made at a point 150 feet down the hill from the old workings. There is 26 feet of ore in the vein, and the vein has been opened by two shafts sunk at a distance of 40 feet apart, and there is already said to be $300,000 worth of ore in sight, and there is no telling what the extent of the deposit is.

A large piece of work is now being commenced at the Ymir mine, which, when completed, will be the largest piece of engineering work ever executed in that district. A long tunnel is being run from the proximity of the mill to tap the ore body at great depth. The length of the tunnel will be some 3,000 feet, and it is to be made large enough to allow of the laying of two car tracks side by side. When the tunnel is completed it will run from the main working entrance to the mine, and all the ore will be brought out through it. The gravity tramway now in use will be thus superseded, and the ore placed in the mill more economically.

MINING NOTES.

The Discovery is equipped with a whim. The shaft is 100 feet deep.

The Little Chester also has upon it a whim. The shaft is about 90 feet deep.

Idaho's attorney general says fifty cents is enough as a fee for recording claims.

A movement is on foot to change the revenue stamp law so as to tax on sale values only.

The Little Ned is also equipped with a whim. The shaft is between 80 and 90 feet deep.

A few hundred feet north of the Lorna Doone shaft the Flag Staff is being worked with a whim. The shaft is 100 feet in depth.

The Sixteen to One tramway at Wallace, Idaho, is completed and the mill is running experimentally.

Senator Clark has won in the supreme court to reorganize the United Verde copper mine of Arizona.

The foregoing list embraces all the machinery of every description that is used in mining in Sheridan and Cody camps.

The Gold Ledge, which lies about four miles due east of Republic, is operated by a whim. The shaft is 125 feet in depth.

There appears to be no end of the substantial surprises accompanying the development of the mines in the South Fork district, Idaho. The assay shows that the ore carries $160.53 to the ton.

They have two good ledges near Nelson, Wash. Gold values predominate in one and copper in the other. Assays are satisfactory and expensive and valuable improvements are being made in the district.

John F. McKee of Wallace, Idaho, was killed last week by falling 150 feet down the raise in the Black Bear mine at Gem. He was recently from Chico, Cal., being in the act of coming off his first shift at the Black Bear, when his foot slipped on the ladder. letting him fall. He was married seven weeks ago.

Three deeds were filed for record in Wallace, Idaho conveying the different interests in the Black Bear and Yankee Doodle lodes and the Black Bear concentrator to Peter Larson and Thomas L. Greenough.

In Sheridan camp the Zella M. is equipped with a compressor plant, and all work is done with machine drills. The shaft is 180 feet in depth. One tunnel, 500 feet in length, cuts the lendge at a depth of 250 feet.

The outlook for the present year in Bodie camp, Wash., promises much for the mines. Shipping ore shows on many dumps, and it is believed that development will open some shipping mines before the close of the year.

Three-fourths of a mile north of the Gold Ledge, in what is known as Cody's camp, the Lorna Doone is worked with a whim. The shaft is 160 feet in depth, but it is not worked on account of the great quantity of water. The whim will have to be discarded and a steam hoist substituted.

GILMORE PARTY IN MANILA

Were Finally Rescued—Were Nearly Starved—Says Aguinaldo Was Good to Them—Lieutenant Gillmore's Story—A Pitiful Tale.

Manila, Jan. 10.—Lieutenant J. C. Gillmore of the United States gunboat Yorktown, who was captured by the insurgents last April near Baler, on the coast of Luzon and rescued a few days ago by Colonel Luther R. Hare of the Thirty-third volunteer infantry, was in the apartment of his sister, the wife of Major Price, at the Hotel Oriental, Sunday, in Manila, and told a remarkable story of his eight months in captivity, ending with his dramatic deliverance from a death that seemed inevitable.

The steamer Venus came into the harbor from Vigan, province of South Ilocos, with Lieutenant Gillmore and 19 other American prisoners, including seven of his sailors from the Yorktown. Lieutenant Gillmore, after reporting, came ashore and hobbled along with the aid of a cane to the Hotel Oriente, where American officers and ladies were waltzing through the halls to the strains of "Aguinaldo's March."

Although tanned and ruddy from exposure, he is weak and nervous, showing the results of long hardships. He speaks warmly of Aguinaldo and very bitterly against General Tino, declaring that while in the former's jurisdiction he was treated splendidly, but that after he fell into Tino's hands he suffered everything.

Colonel Hare and Lieutenant Colonel Howse, the latter of the Thirty-fifth volunteer infantry, rescued Gillmore's party on December 8 near the headwaters of the Abalut river, after they had been abandoned by the Filipinos and were expecting death from the savage tribes around them. When the rescuing force reached them they were nearly starved, but were building rafts in the hope of getting down the river to the coast.

Lieutenant Gillmore made the following statement to a correspondent of the Associated Press: "The Filipinos abandoned us on the night of December 16. We had reached the Abalut river near its source that morning and the Filipinos rafted us over. We then went down the stream along a rough trail, guarded by a company of Filipinos. That night we were separated from this guard and another company, armed with Mausers, was put in charge of us. I suspected something, and questioned the lieutenant in command. He said: 'I have orders from General Tino to shoot you all, but my conscience forbids. I shall leave you here.'

"I begged for two rifles to protect us from savages, adding that I would give him letters to the Americans, who would pay him well and keep him from all harm. He refused this, however, saying he would not dare to comply. Soon afterward he left with his company. We had seen some savages in war paint around us and we prepared to fight them with cobble stones, the only weapons that were available to us. The next morning we followed the trail of the Filipino soldiers, feeling that it was better to stick to them than be murdered by savages, but we could not catch up with them. Then I ordered the men to build rafts, in the hope of floating down the river. It was a forlorn hope, but I knew the river must empty into the sea somewhere. I was so weak myself that I did not expect to get out, but I thought some of the men could. On the morning of December 8, while we were working on the rafts, the Americans came toward us, yelling. One of my men shouted: 'They are after us.' He was lashing bamboos. I knew it was the yell of Americans. The rescuing troops thought we had Filipino guards and called to us to lie down so they could shoot the Filipinos. That was the finest body of officers and men I ever saw."

Lieutenant Gillmore could not speak enthusiastically enough about the 140 picked men who had rescued him and his party.

Fatal Shooting Scrape.

Boise, Idaho, Jan. 8.—A special from Weiser, Idaho, says:

While a dance was in progress at Council Valley recently Sam Harpham and Dan Moore got into a difficulty over a question in relation to their dancing numbers, as a result of which Moore fired three shots at Harpham, one shot taking effect in the latter's breast and from which he died in about 30 minutes. Moore is a freighter and lives in Council.

A Body Found.

Spokane, Jan. 8.—The body of Henry Thompson, a German railroad laborer, has been found in the river about five miles below the falls. The body had evidently been lying in the water for two weeks, as it was swollen twice its natural size, and in places had commenced to slough away. Two large gashes in the right side of the skull indicated the manner of death and gave rise to the presumption of foul play.

Mineral Production in U. S.

New York, Jan. 8.—The engineering and Mining Journal, in its annual statistical number, published the preliminary statement of the mineral production in the United States in 1899, showing that the total production was valued at the place of production at $413,738,414, as compared with $314,255,620 in 1898.

Shot by His Brother-in-Law.

Russellville, Ky., Jan. 8.—Edward Sinclair, cashier of the Deposit bank of this city, was shot and seriously wounded at Keysburg, this county. It is alleged the shooting was done by Will Elliston, a brother-in-law of Mr. Sinclair.

Smallpox at Butte.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 8.—The smallpox suitation here remains unchanged and there are plenty of sufferers to testify that the disease has not spent itself. In all, it is calculated that there are about 75 men, women and children now down with the disease, and of this number about 40 are at the smallpox hospital. The balance are in private dwelling houses, which are under quarantine. In all, about 100 people have been victims of the disease, but only three deaths have occurred. There have been only four or five cases of genuine smallpox and all the rest has been a very mild type, which is generally called varioloid. With the exception of the four or five cases mentioned the people who have been attacked have, as a rule, been in bed with a fever for one day and have been able to be up and about after that. Immediately following the fever a slight eruption appears, and after the expiration of one week it disappears.

Distress at Ladysmith.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—There is a deepening sense of anxiety respecting Ladysmith, whence the most disheartening reports of the prevalence of sickness are received. Gen. White reported a list of nearly 20 deaths in one day from enteric fever and dysentery, and 70 serious cases in the hospital. Dr. Jameson has all the work he can do in that fever nest. It is evident that the garrison cannot hold out long and that Sir Redvers Buller will not allow many days to pass without striking a blow. Transports with fresh battalions and batteries arrived at Durban yesterday, and within 48 hours Sir Redvers ought to be in readiness for a supreme effort. The Boer line of defense is now described as 16 miles in length, having been extended up and down the Tugela in order to prevent a turning movement. There are many dispatches of minor interest from Gen. Buller's camp this morning, but no details indicating the direction of the next attack.

Chinese Routed the French.

Victoria, B. C., Jan. 6.—News has reached Canton that a battle occurred between natives near Wangchaun and the French forces stationed there. It is said that the Chinese routed the French and pursued them for some distance. The French loss was 30 killed. The Chinese losses are not stated. The battle occurred on the 10th and 11th of last month. On hearing of the affair the viceroy dispatched three gunboats with 1000 soldiers to restore order. The viceroy also wired Taung Li Yamen asking what steps are to be taken, as he is quite unable to carry out delimitation to the satisfaction of the French. The news brought by the Queen Adelaide, which has reached here.

The President Upheld.

Washington, Jan. 5.—At the opening of Thursday's session of the senate, Senator Beveridge of Indiana presented the following resolution:

"That the Philippine islands are territory belonging to the United States, and it is the intention of the United States to retain them as such and to establish and maintain such governmental control throughout the archipelago as the situation may demand."

Senator Beveridge asked that the resolution lie upon the table until next week, when he will speak upon it.

No Formal Protest Made.

Berlin, Jan. 6.—It is semi-officially announced that Germany has not protested against the seizure of the Bundesrath, but merely has requested that the matter be investigated and settled as speedily as possible.

The imperial mail steamer General has been detained at Aden and occupied by British troops with the object of searching her cargo, which is to be discharged. The General is owned by the German East African line. Although the manifests of the General showed that there was no war material on board, she was compelled to discharge her cargo.

Fight Over an Office.

San Francisco, Jan. 9.—There was a riot at the city hall when Tax Collector-elect Scott attempted to take possession of his office. One man was shot in the neck and removed to the hospital and others were bruised in the fight that ensued. The police finally restored order, not, however, without a free use of their clubs.

Scott's election is being contested by Collector Sheehan, whose term expires today, on the ground that Scott had not resided here for five years, as required by the new charter.

Big Fire in New York.

New York, Jan. 8.—Fire destroyed a six-story brick factory building at Fifty-ninth street and First avenue, occupied by Frank M. Wise, aluminum and metal; Brown & Smithson, ornamental plasterers, and E. S. Levy & Co., cigars. Chief Croker estimates the damage at $200,000.

Bold Dash for Freedom.

Hoofd Laager, Ladysmith, Jan. 6.—Six horsemen made a dash from Ladysmith a few nights ago, and, though pursued, they escaped. It is believed the party included Col. Rhodes, a brother of Cecil Rhodes, and Dr. Jameson.

Terminus for a Russian Line.

Portland, Or., Jan. 8.—A Badyansky and two other prominent Russians have arrived here. They represent the Russian government in an official capacity and come to the Pacific coast for the purpose of recommending a terminus for a great Russian steamship line.

Jackson Day in Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Six hundred democrats gathered in the banquet hall of the Tremont house to observe Jackson day in an appropriate manner. Hon. William J. Bryan was the honored guest and chief orator of the occasion.

COL. PILCHER ON THE RAID

TOWNS ARE BEING EVACUATED

The Canadians Acted as Escorts to the Refugees—General Buller Was Pleased—Other Items From South Africa.

Belmont, Jan. 5.—Col. Pilcher, it is officially announced, being only on a raiding expedition and for military reasons being unable to occupy Douglass permanently, has evacuated the town, bringing off all the loyalists. He has now returned safely to within close proximity to Belmont. When he announced the necessity of evacuating the place the inhabitants declared that their lives were not worth five minutes' purchase after the troops left.

Pilcher, therefore, invited them to accompany him to Belmont. The vehicles of the town were totally inadequate to convey the refugees, so the troops gave up transport wagons to the women and children. The Canadians acted as an escort to the refugees, carrying babies for the women, and kept everybody lively by singing as they marched along, in spite of sore feet occasioned by the heavy sand, which made marching extremely tiresome. The force received Buller's congratulations on the success of the expedition with great satisfaction.

Hoofd Laager, Ladysmith, Jan. 6.—The garrison of Ladysmith during New Year's night threw out feelers on all sides, exchanging shots with the Boer pickets. At midnight a couple of shells fell into the Boer camp, killing a burgher.

Gen. Joubert preached in camp Sunday. The Rev. Mr. Moiring, who has just arrived here from America, addressed the burghers this afternoon, dwelling on the expiring century witnessing the life struggle of a people. New Year's morning shells filled with confectionery and containing the season's greetings were sent into Ladysmith. Federal shells are selling in Ladysmith at from 30 shillings to 5 pounds.

Boer Camp at Colenso, Jan. 6. — The British naval guns at Chieveley camp continue their ineffective long-range firing night and day in order to divert the Boer attention from the movements of the troops.

Gen. Joubert denies that he has ever protested against the use of lyddite. He avers that up to the present time he has not lost a single man from lyddite.

Frere, Jan. 6.—A vigorous shelling of the Boer trenches on the plain forced the burghers to shift their position after their horses had stampeded.

Orange River, Jan. 6. — There was a small skirmish near Belmont Wednesday. The British fired a few shells, but the Boers did not respond. Reinforcements of infantry and artillery have been dispatched to Gen. French from DeAar.

Pretoria, Jan. 6.—Vanzenberg reports from Derdepoort that Kaffir stations have been destroyed and the inhabitants are fleeing. Chief Lynchwe, with 3000 Kaffirs, attacked the Boer laager, but the natives were dispersed.

Pretoria, Jan. 6.—A representative of the Associated Press, who has been in Johannesburg for some time, says the utmost order prevails there. Looting is exceptional and where discovered is heavily punished. The sanitary condition of the town is perfect and sickness is rare. About 1260 British subjects are still in the Rand district.

London, Jan. 6.—There is great satisfaction here at the news that De Aar has been able to send Gen. French the reinforcements of guns and infantry of which he appears to be so much in need. The fighting in the hills is incessant. Latest telegrams say that French has almost surrounded Colesburg, but the Boers are stiffly defending all their positions close to the town, preventing the British from capturing it.

London, Jan. 6.—Further details of the fighting between Gatacre and the Boers at Cyphergat show that 3000 Boers with artillery attacked the British outpost between Cyphergat and Molteno. Gen. Gatacre, with mounted troops and field artillery, moved out in front of Sterkstrom and found the Boers strongly posted at Copersburg, whence they were dislodged, fleeing in the direction of Stormberg. The Boers used the British guns captured Dec. 10 and shot well, but the British kept under cover and there were no casualties on their side.

Tenement House Fire.

New York, Jan. 8.—A tenement house fire in East Ninety-second street resulted in three deaths and seven persons being badly injured. The dead:

Mrs. Mary Sutherly, a widow; Frank Sutherly, aged 9; James Sutherly, aged 22 months, both sons of Mrs. Sutherly. The injured: Harry Sutherly, aged 5, critical; Raphael Pitizzo, bruised; Fire Lieutenant Stone, M. Edan, Michael Sullivan, Charles McCarthy, Martin O'Leary overcome by gas and smoke.

The fire, which had started in the cellar, gained great headway before the firemen arrived.

A Warm Skirmish in Cavite.

Manila, Jan. 7, 11:30 p. m.—Reconnaissances out of Imus, Cavite province, this morning resulted in the loss of three Americans killed and 20 wounded. The enemy's los is estimated at 60 killed and 80 wounded.

Colonel Birkheimer, with a battalion of the Twenty-eighth volunteer infantry, advanced toward Noveleta.

Major Taggart, with two battalions of the same regiment, moved toward Perez des Marinas. A part of the Fourth infantry was engaged south of Imus.

Newton an Embezzler.

Buffalo, Jan. 8.—The statement is made that F. L. Newton, paying teller of the Fidelity Trust and Guaranty company, has embezzled $48,000.

The Seizure of American Goods.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The state department has received from Ambassador Choate at London, by cable, a statement of the facts he had developed in connection with the seizure by British warships of American goods on the three merchant vessels, Beatrice, Marchona and Maria. The goods comprised not only flour, but miscellaneous articles of common trade. They were shipped for Lorenzo Marquez in British and German ships, but our officials contend that they were not subject to seizure. They could not, however, lodge representations on the subject until they were possessed of a knowledge of the facts, and as soon as Mr. Choate's statement came to hand an instruction was cabled to him to inform the British government that we could not admit the right of seizure in these cases.

This is the preliminary step usually taken in such negotiations. Next in order will be a report from our consular representatives at Lorenzo Marquez respecting the present condition of the seized or detained goods and the damage sustained. The state department is not yet fully informed on these points, necessary to the further presentation of the cases.

It is not yet known just where the goods are, or if they have all been seized, or only in part. It will be the duty of our consular agent at Lorenzo Marquez to ascertain and report these facts, and he is now engaged in doing this under the original instructions of the state department.

While the department is acting as it promised in the beginning to firmly protect all American rights of trade, it is showing no unseemly haste in the presentation of the case. The instruction to Mr. Choate was not a demand for the release of the goods, nor yet for indemnity; but rather a precautionary notice to the British government to save all our rights in the case.

It will be sufficient to initiate the settlement of the matter by negotiation, the state department having not the slightest doubt that the British authorities will make full amends to the owners of the goods when the facts are all laid before them.

Champion Wrestling Match.

Spokane, Jan. 8.—For the fourth time in Spokane Hali Adali, the terrible Turk, demonstrated his ability as a wrestler, winning the contest with D. A. McMillan. He threw Jans Olson, the Swedish wrestler.

After the first bout with McMillan Jans Olson tried conclusions with Hali. Olson wrestles Graceo-Roman style only. The men sparred for an opening for several moments; then Hali secured a fair back hold and brought Olson's shoulders to the mat in 4 minutes and 20 seconds.

The second bout with McMillan was the most interesting of the contest. It required 15 minutes and 25 seconds for Hali to win this bout. In this bout McMillan displayed his ability to use the head spin successfully time and again when Hali was forcing him to the mat. The big Turk perspired from head to foot and gave a grunt of satisfaction when referee Andy Green called "fall."

Fifteen minutes and 12 seconds was the time of the last bout. Both men showed the effects of the hard work of the first two bouts, McMillan frequently sparring for wind and taking advantage of every opportunity for a breathing spell.

As in the other two bouts, the Turk won with a half Nelson.

LABOR NOTES.

Debs lectured in Canadian cities last week to the usual large houses.

The Illinois labor commissioner says "In Chicago the name of the sweaters is legion; the reward of work is often grinding poverty; filthy and rotten tenements, druggy courts, piles of garbage, lower floors are often used as stables and out-houses, while upper rooms serve entire families for eating, drinking, being born and dying."

There is said to be a string attached to the raise of wages secured by the textile workers of New England. The average raise per employe is 71 cents a week, but it is claimed the living rates in the industrial centers have been advanced so arbitrarily that the little 71 cents disappears before the workers can get a good grip on it. Old song! Now you see it and now you don't.

John P. Reese, one of the United Mine Workers' officials who was imprisoned for contempt of court in Kansas, has been released and has gone to his home in Iowa. He declares that he will return to Kansas and carry on the fight for his organization despite all the courts and jails in the universe. Reese is said to be a man of pluck and determination.

The hard and soft coal miners of Pennsylvania are talking strike again. They want more wages and the bosses declare their demands would have the effect of forcing an industrial depression, which might become general.

Conspirators Sentenced.

Paris, Jan. 6.—The high court (senate) in a secret session condemned MM. Buffet and De Roulede to 10 years' banishment. M. Guerin was sentenced to 10 years' confinement in a fortified place. M. Saluces was sentenced to 10 years' banishment.

Not Yet in Colesburg.

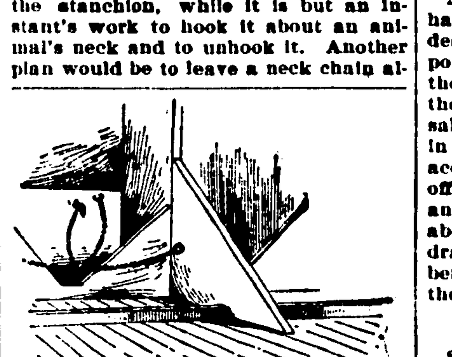
London, Jan. 4.—Latest advices from the Colesburg district tend to modify the estimate of Gen. French's success. The predicted occupation of Colesburg had not been accomplished, while the Boer guns announced to have been silenced were still active.

Stabbed to Death.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 8.—George Ryan, who was stabbed last week, is dead. The stabbers, Matt Mattison, Matt Martin, Joseph Koski and George Erickson, will be charged with the murder.

A Cow Stall.

The cut shows a number of features that go to make an excellent cow stall—sloping partitions to keep the hay in the crib and sloping partitions between each cow, a chain hitch that is attached to both sides of the stall giving the cow freedom of movement, but not too much freedom, and, lastly, a raised piece of plank that the cow steps over in order to eat, but must step back across when desirous of lying down. Trial of this plan shows that it does much toward keeping the cows clean, as it brings them back to the manure gutter when lying down. Go the rounds the last thing at night and remove any droppings that may have fallen upon the platform. This will insure a dry bed during the night. The arrangement of the chain fastening in the way suggested is the nearest approach possible to the stiff stanchion in controlling the movement of the cattle, while doing away with the most serious faults of the stanchion, while it is but an instant's work to hook it about an animal's neck and to unhook it. Another plan would be to leave a neck chain always about the animal's neck, with a snap at the under part to attach to the crosswise chain when the animal is brought into the stall. The neck chain then serves a good purpose when leading the stock out to water, or when moving the animals about for other purposes.—New York Tribune.



A GOOD COW STALL.

The Farm Horse.

We do not like the very large horse for the farm, where he must be used for all purposes, to drive to mill, to meeting and to market, as well as to pull the plow, the farm machinery and the loads that are to be moved about the farm. The horse of 1,500 pounds eats about twice as much as the one of 1,000 pounds, and while the large draught horse may be cheaper for the truckman it will be better to have the light horse or two light horses on the farm, even if it is necessary to load a little lighter at times. There are a few draught horses of 1,500 pounds or heavier whose legs are strong enough to last when they are put to heavy work, but many of them will not endure, and they give out about as quickly on the farm as on the pavements. One trouble with the large farm horse is that he eats too much hay, and the farmer is often only too willing to give it to him. More horses are injured by overfeeding with hay than with grain.

Rye as a Special Winter Crop.

A crop of rye on the land is beneficial even if it is never harvested. When rye is seeded down in the fall it necessitates the destruction of many young weeds, and as the rye takes possession of the land it destroys all young weeds that appear later. If used as a green crop for cattle in late fall and early spring, it makes sufficient growth after the stock has been removed to provide a green manurial crop for corn, thus adding to the top-soil plant food gathered from the sub-soil and made available. Rye also covers the soil in winter and protects it, assisting to prevent loss of the fertilizing elements, and, as it is hardy, it can endure the coldest winters. As a wood destroyer it excels all late crops, does not exhaust the land when grown as a green manurial crop, occupies the land at a season of the year when many other crops can not be grown, and costs less in proportion to advantages derived therefrom than anything else grown on the farm.

Layering Plants.

Layering plants is one way of propagating fruits and flowers, and it should be attended to at once. Quinces, grapes, currants and gooseberries are propagated by layering as well as roses, lilacs, snowballs and other similar shrubs.

To do this properly, work the surface of the soil around the parent stock until it is fine. Then carefully bend down a branch until it lies on the surface, holding it in position by driving small stakes across it. Repeat the operation until all the branches that are to be laid down are in position, and then cover the portion laid down with six inches of soil, leaving two or three of the buds nearest the tip exposed. Let these lie in position until next spring, then cut free from the parent and take up, when a bunch of roots will be found to have formed on that part of the branch which was covered.—Farmers' Voice.

Potatoes for Fattening Hogs.

Whenever potatoes are very cheap farmers are apt to try to get something out of them by feeding them to stock. Every year there is a certain proportion of potatoes too small or too scabby to be marketable, and some of these are likely to be given to the fatening hogs with the idea that their starch can be converted into fat. But only 20 per cent. of the potato is starch, the other 80 being nothing but water. Even when cooked the potato absorbs as much water as it loses, and is much too bulky in the small stomach of a hog to serve as its principal feed. Beyond the small amount required to keep the bowels open, potatoes are no advantage to the hog, and for this a few beets, which the hog will eat with greediness, are greatly to be preferred.

Kill your hogs early in the morning and let them hang till after dinner, then cut them up. As fast as you cut the hams and shoulders up salt them well and lay them out on boards to cool. Leave them there about forty-eight hours, then commence packing in a large tank or barrels. Put hams in first, skin side down, pack in tight. The shoulders go in next and the side meat on top. Weight down with large rocks and then you are ready for the brine. Use about eighty pounds of salt, four ounces of saltpeter and six pounds of brown sugar to 1,000 pounds of meat. Take what water you think you will need to cover the meat, put in the salt and saltpeter, and bring to a boiling heat; skim, and then let it cool before putting over the meat. Let the meat remain in the brine about three weeks, then hang it in the smokehouse. Let it hang two or three days before building smoke under it. Use hickory wood for smoking. Smoke till the rind has a light chestnut color.

Now, as to dry salt. To each green ham of eighteen or twenty pounds, one dessertspoonful of saltpeter, one-fourth pound of brown sugar, applied well to the fleshy side of the ham, and about the hock; cover the fleshy side with fine salt, half an inch thick, and pack away in tubs—to remain four or five weeks, according to size. Before smoking, rub off any salt that remains on the meat and then cover with ground pepper, about the bone and hock. Hang up and drain twenty-four to thirty-six hours before smoking. Smoke the same as the brine meat.—Kansas Farmer.

Profitable Small Fruits.

Some of the small fruits that offer inducements for growing them are entirely neglected. When the market is well supplied with some kinds it may be lacking in others. The currant and goseberry are examples. With carloads of strawberries, blackberries and raspberries reaching the markets, currants and gooseberries come in small lots, and sell almost on sight. These fruits may require a little more care than some kinds, but it is the labor that gives the price, and the grower should produce anything that pays well for labor.

Pulling Fence Posts.

Take the hind wheels and coupling pole of a farm wagon and a chain with a ring, or, better, a large hook at one end. Fasten the chain to the pole in front of the axle in such a manner that when it is passed back over the axle and bolster the ring or hook will about touch the ground—a little longer or shorter, according to the size of the posts to be pulled up.

Now back the axle against the post, raise the coupling pole toward the post, against which it may lean, place the chain like a noose around the post, slipping it down until tight. Next bring the pole forward and to the ground. This will raise the post nearly a foot and generally fully loosen it. If the post is very deeply set or hard to pull out it may be necessary to repeat the process, slipping the noose farther down. Back to the next post and repeat.—Orange Judd Farmer.

READY TO PULL THE POST.

Educated Farmers.

The large number of young men who leave the agricultural colleges of the States and the extra number taking "short courses" in agriculture sooner or later influence the present methods of farming and stock raising. Some of the State colleges have "dairy schools," and pupils are also given instruction in veterinary surgery. In addition to being taught farming from a scientific point, the pupils of each college are drilled and instructed by army officers appointed by the United States government.

Wheat Straw for Feed.

Wheat straw alone is not considered valuable as food, but if cut and fed with grain it may be given with advantage to steers. It is not advisable to change the food of cows for one that is deficient in quality to that which they may be receiving. Wheat straw contains about 27 per cent. of sugar, starch, etc., 3 per cent. of mineral matter, nearly 4 per cent. of albuminoids and between 2 and 3 per cent. of fat. Cows will sometimes eat it at the stack from choice, even when well supplied with other foods.

Swine Mange.

Mange in swine is caused by filth and unnatural conditions. It is due to a minute parasite, which burrows under the skin. It can not be easily cured, but if the animals are thoroughly scrubbed on a warm day, using carbolic acid soap, then well rinsed, and when dry thoroughly anointed with a mixture of four parts lard and one part kerosene, two or three times, and given clean quarters, the mange will disappear.

—Mississippi's governor stirs us the Mormons in his message to the legislature last week. He said: "There is no threatened danger to the state more baneful than the lecherous teaching of the Mormon apostles of polygamy. It is more dangerous because it is taught under the guise of the ministry of the gospel. The Mormons disclaim the open teachings of polygamy in the pulpit, but they teach it in the corner and the minister's cloak gives potency to their speech."

—Less work and more play for school children under fifteen years of age is being discussed and urged by the Pocatello Tribune and the Idaho World. The Tribune editor is an old teacher and knows what he is talking about. It has its advantages and our professors should give some attention. It is claimed 3½ hours each day are ample, two in the forenoon and 1½ in the afternoon. By this method the schools become a delight, rather than the dread of the little ones.

—The Isthmian Canal commission will leave Washington city this week and will sail from New York on Monday next for Nicaragua, where a new investigation on the ground will be made into canal routes. The commission expects to be gone for three months, most of which time will be spent on the Panama canal, the Nicaraguan route having been pretty thoroughly gone over in former years. It is not likely that a formal report can be submitted in less than eighteen months, but a brief preliminary statement may possibly be prepared before congress adjourns. Unless there is good reason to expect this, congress is likely to act without further delay.

—Designs for the greatest battleships ever projected for the American navy have been decided upon by the naval board of construction. The three new vessels—to be called the Georgia, New Jersey and the Pennsylvania—will equal in formidability the finest line of battle vessels yet laid down by any foreign power, and, with the addition of typical American improvements, will surpass in fighting force any ships now afloat. The salient features of the design contemplate a displacement of approximately 14,-000 tons, as compared with the Oregon's 11,000 or the new Maine's 12,-300. The speed is to be "at least nineteen knots," with a coal bunker capacity of 2,000 tons. The total cost of each of these three ships when ready for sea will exceed $7,000,000 each. They will cruise 7,000 miles straightway, and there will not be three ships of similar offensive and defensive strength in the fleet of any possible enemy.

Chamberlain's War in South Africa.

It had been the confident boast of the British promoters of the war in South Africa that their troops would eat their Christmas dinners at Pretoria, Johannesburg, and Bloemfontein. The Tory press of England spoke of the Boer as a mere fly on the wheel of the chariot of Progress, to be crushed at a single turn. It was Mr. Chamberlain's opinion, undoubtedly, that the Boers would not fight. As we explained at the time Mr. Chamberlain never dreamed of bringing a hideous war upon England, being confident in the potency of those methods of his that had for some time been lauded by his admirers as the "new diplomacy." His theory was that the way to get all you want in dealing with a small power is to invent pretexts for a quarrel, appear to have serious grievances, enter upon a course of ever-shifting and increasing demands, and, while negotiations are still pending, to ship troops and make all the appearance of preparation for war. To Mr. Chamberlain's great surprise, the small nation of like blood with the men who under William of Orange fought so gloriously against the army of the Spanish Inquisition spoiled the game of the new diplomacy by preferring to fight against incomparable odds rather than to do the obliging and logical thing and permit themselves to be bluffed.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for January.

What We Eat

Is intended to nourish and sustain us, but it must be digested and assimilated before it can do this In other words, the nourishment contained in food must be separated by the digestive organs from the waste materials and must be carried by the blood to all parts of the body. We believe the reason for the great benefit which so many people derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla lies in the fact that this medicine gives good digestion and makes pure, rich blood. It restores the functions of those organs which convert food into nourishment that gives strength to nerves and muscles. It also cures dyspepsia, scrofula, salt rheum, boils, sores, pimples and eruptions, catarrh, rheumatism and all diseases that have their origin in impure blood.

—It is said the present famine in India is far more distressing than even the awful famine of two years ago, and no rain is expected until the middle of June. Ahmednagar, Sholapur and Bombay districts are the heaviest losers from the plague.

—Though Canada invites immigration her population tends to diminution rather than increase. The reason is that there are better chances for industry and enterprise on our side of the line. We constantly annex the flower of Canadian youth. It is almost impossible to drive them back when they have once secured a foothold here.

—That southern democrats are by no means unanimous in regard to expansion, is evidenced by the fact that in three states expansion is the principal issue between the rival candidates for election to the United States senate. In Alabama Senator Morgan, an expansionist, is defending himself against Governor Johnson, who takes the opposite side. In Mississippi, Senator Sullivan has defeated Representative John Allen, who attacked him because he supported the administration last year, and in Arkansas, Governor Jones is attacking Senator Berry because he opposes expansion.

There are over a hundred new bills for the erection of public buildings now on file in the House, with more to come. And also bills increasing the cost of nearly every building authorized by the last Congress. A good many of these buildings are really needed, but the majority can be handed over to posterity for its consideration without any special damage to the present.

—This year Chinese New Year season opens January 31, and already preparations in the larger towns have begun for a big time. The accumulation of dirt of many months disappear from house, clothing and carcas, the latter being a great event. Debts are paid, buildings decorated with flowers, firecrackers burned, and the cravings of inner man appeased. Lem and Charley have not announced their program as yet.

—The Agricultural College of the University offers work this winter for farmers, dairymen and horticulturalists that should do much to improve the agriculture of this section. Work begins Feb. 5th, time having been changed from the date previously given, and continue two weeks. It is a training school in the best up-to-date methods of general farming, stock-raising, breeding and feeding, dairying, fruit growing and gardening. The work will be practical and any farmer of reasonable intelligence will be able to use the information gleaned in his daily work on the farm. Experienced and successful farmers and horticulturalists will find many things of value to them in this course. The tuition is free and the course is open to all. The young men and women who expect to farm should not neglect this opportunity. Prof. H. T. French at Moscow will send you a circular explaining the course.

—Senator Beverage of Indiana made his maiden speech last week and is now ranked with Conkling as an orator. He recently visited the Philippines and in his speech said: "The times call for candor. The Philippines are ours forever, territory belonging to the United States,' as the constitution calls them. And just beyond the Philippines are China's illimitable markets. We will not retreat from either. We will not repudiate from either. We will not repudiate our duty in the archipelago. We will not abandon our opportunity in the orient. We will not renounce our part in the mission of our race, trustee under God, of the civilization of the world. And we will move forward to our work, not howling our regrets like slaves whipped to their burdens, but with gratitude for a task worthy of our strength, and thanksgiving to Almighty God that he has marked us, as his chosen people, henceforth to lead in the regeneration of the world. This island empire is the last land left in all the oceans. If it should prove a mistake to abandon it, the blunder once made would be irretrievable. If it proves a mistake to hold it, the error can be corrected when we will; every other progressive nation stands ready to relieve us. But to hold it will be no mistake. Our largest trade henceforth must be with Asia. The Pacific is our ocean. More and more Europe will manufacture all it needs —secure from its colonies the most it consumes. Where shall we turn for consumers of our surplus? Geography answers the question. China is our natural customer. The Philippines gives us a base at the door of all the east. And the Pacific is the ocean of the commerce of the future. Most future wars will be conflicts for commerce. The power that rules the Pacific therefore is the power that rules the world, and, with the Philippines, that power is and will forever be the American republic."

—Prof. Swidensky is undertaking to re-organize a band in Vineland, says the Vinelander. The paper also says the dog poisoner is there and doing a great business. Wheeled hoes are in operation turning mellow dirt to tender green plants—onions, lettuce, etc.

—The merry war between Moscow and Lewiston is still on. Senator Shoup recently introduced a bill in congress for the establishment of a Federal building at the former town, and of course the latter has aspirations and wants the building. The Lewiston council passed a memorial to congress and in it was incorporated some things unpleasant to the Moscowites, and the newspaper men have been saying naughty things of each other. The Patriot is having a hard time of it to find the scamp who is responsible for said memorial. NEWS thinks there is little danger of either town securing a building very soon, but in case Uncle Sam decides to send a buildidg to Idaho, as a compromise the senators should select Genesee as she is located midway between the two cities. However we will not be disappointed if the edifice is not forth coming, though Genesee has superior claims.

—Since the Kendrick washout of last week much speculation has been indulged in as to the future of that line to Lewiston. That it has been a losing proposition since it has been extended is freely admitted. It is not only an expensive road in operating but a dangerous one and many people are getting so they will not travel it. Some profess to believe that the Northern Pacific will extend its line from Genesee to Lewiston and make it the main road. Time will tell. The Moscow Star says it is rumored that the N. P. will build down the Little Potlatch from Cornwall to Juliaetta. In this way the Kendrick hill can be avoided. It says "the gentlemen who conveys this information says the traffic over the Northern Pacific to and from the Clearwater is of such a volume that it is becoming a serious problem to handle it over the Kendrick hill, and that aside from the danger attending that route the expense incurred on account of this hill is more than sufficient to justify the expense of building this new line." It would take less money to build to the Clearwater from Genesee than from any other point, there being two easy grades.

The "Plow Boy Preacher," Rev. J. Kirkman, Belle Rive, Ill., says, "After suffering from bronchial or lung trouble for ten years, I was cured by One Minute Cough Cure. It is all that is claimed for it and more." Cures coughs, colds, grippe and all throat and lung troubles.

—An Idaho lady recently entered a hardware store and asked for a jack-pot. She was informed that they did not keep jack-pots, which caused her to turn away with a down-cast look, remarking that she was so in hopes that they had kept them, because her husband kept talking so much in his sleep about jack-pots, and if she could get one she knew it would tickle him nearly to death.

—The new copper and gold discoveries in Idaho are likely to make that state the scene of marked activity during the coming year. The whole country is on the advance. It means new prosperity for Idaho. There will be an increased number of farmers, growing centers of trade, better markets and prices, and rapid development of vast mineral resources. Idaho's day is near at hand.—Northwest Magazine, St. Paul.

—The bodies of Gen. Lawton and Maj. Logan are homeward bound and will arrive at 'Frisco about Jan'y 31. News is also received that the bodies of the volunteers buried in the Philippines will soon be removed to the U. S. for final interment. This will be good news to the bereaved ones. Although the fountain of grief will be started afresh at beholding the casket containing their soldier boys who have fallen in distant lands, the absence of paternal hands at the dying bed would be atoned so far as possible by the evidence of loving memory. The boys desired to be buried on home soil.

Mr. Balfour's Remarks.

London, Jan. 15.—The frivolity displayed in his recent speeches by Mr. Balfour, the government leader in the house of commons, has landed what has been known as the strongest government of modern times in the slough from which extrication is difficult if not doubtful. His light-hearted remarks, which were pleasantly accepted by the nation when times were good and all was well, are offensive to a people mourning for lost sons and deeply angered by the unprecedented reverses. Mr. Balfour, if he had tried, could not have more successfully put his countrymen on edge, and when Lord Salisbury speaks he will have much to atone for. The memory of Mr. Chamberlain's "alliance" speech was dying away before Mr. Balfour put his foot still deeper in the mire. The conservatives hope that Mr. Balfour will follow Mr. Chamberlain's lead and "keep a discreet silence." As the Saturday Review, one of the government's staunchest supports, puts it, "the administration is now face to face not with the opposition but the nation. tI is a crisis out of which several must come with reputations smirched and possibly result in the wreck of the government."

WORST FLOOD IN YEARS.

RUIN NEAR KENDRICK, IDAHO.

Three Lives Reported Lost—Many Houses Swept Away—Julietta Tramway and Warehouse Damaged—The Whole Country Flooded

Kendrick, Idaho, Jan. 15.—Sudden and terrible floods in the waters of all Potlatch streams have caused enormous damage in the valleys of the Potlatch and Clearwater rivers. Three children are known to have been drowned, and there are fears for the lives of others who are living on bottom lands.

Bridges and railroad tracks have been obliterated; a score of houses at Kendrick have been swept away; the streets of Kendrick and the highways near the river at all points as far south as Pullman are flooded and a waste of waters now forms the landscape where two days ago was farming acreage and busy marts. It will be weeks before the full extent of damage is known, for the rivers are still bank full and overflowing and rain threatens tonight.

At 6 o'clock in the evening the Potlatch river, swollen into a raging torrent swept through the embankment formed by the railroad grade above town and poured with sudden violence into the narrow street which runs along the river bank. Before the people could collect their senses the flood was waist deep and rising, had swept away a score of dwelling houses, while the frightened citizens, carrying and dragging their wives and children, were breasting the torrent and making for higher ground.

So far as is now known, all but three escaped safely. The unfortunates were the children of Charles Hamlin, street commissioner of Kendrick. They were swept away and drowned, while the father, mother and driver escaped after a night of terrible peril.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamlin and their children and a driver were in a buggy drawn by two horses, in one of the main streets of the little town. When they saw that the waters were rising about them efforts were made to get to higher ground, and this would have been accomplished in safety had it not been that 100 cords of wood above, carried on the surface of the flood, swept around the frightened animals and in an instant the vehicle was overturned. It was impossible for the parents to render assistance to their children, or in fact to do anything for themselves, for swimming among the thousands of sticks of cordwood was a feat the strongest man would not have essayed. Mr. Hamlin was brought out on the bank after a daring rescue by John Long. Mrs. Hamlin was found this morning in the top of a dwelling, where she clung all night, half dead from exposure and suffering from the terrible mental strain of grief over the loss of her loved ones. The driver was also rescued in the morning from the top of a building, where he also had clung all night. Although the house where he was located was in the middle of the torrent, ropes were thrown him and he was dragged through the waters to dry land.

There were other daring rescues during the height of the flood, which occurred just as darkness was descending over the town.

John Morgan is another who had a narrow escape. He was swept out by the flood, but caught the roof of a dwelling, where he clung until morning and was rescued.

At Julietta.

Juliaetta, Idaho, Jan. 15.—Juliaetta has had a flood experience the effects of which will be felt until March, for until that time transportation over railroads will be out of the question, if the opinion of railroad men goes for anything. All bridges above and below are gone with the waters and there has been considerable damage done grain warehouses on the river banks. Fears are felt for the safety of people living on the bottom lands below where there are a number of farms and families. It is believed, however, that the waters will not be so high or the current so strong that it will prevent citizens in the inundated district getting to safer places.

No Trains Into Lewiston.

Lewiston, Idaho, Jan. 15.—The rainfall at this time is unprecedented in the history of the valley. The Clearwater at this point rose 8 feet in 24 hours.

Several narrow escapes are reported from Potlatch. A cattleman from Asotin was caught in the flood and lost about 20 head of cattle, his saddle horse, and barely escaped with his life. The flood was caused by the recent warm rains and the melting of about four feet of snow in the Potlatch.

Palouse Rivers Rising.

Colfax, Wash., Jan. 15.—The South Palouse river has reached the highest point in several years.

At Walla Walla.

Walla Walla, Wash., Jan. 15.—The highest water experienced since 1883 occurred here. Trains were delayed and bridges washed out. Below town the railroad bridge was washed away and one bridge was lost by the city. The damage is considerable, but the water is receding.

Umatilla on the Rampage.

Pendleton, Ore., Jan. 15.—The warm weather during the past two days has melted the snow in the mountains. The Umatilla river has risen six feet and continues rising.

At Thorn Hollow, 18 miles east, a railroad culvert was washed out and the river spread all over the bottoms. Extensive damage to the railroad and wagon bridges is feared.

Later.

Kendrick, Idaho, Jan. 16.—The bodies of two of the Hamlin children who were drowned in the flood that caused such disaster in this town have been recovered. The body of the third child that was swept away by the rushing waters has not been found, and there is but little hope of the anxious searchers being rewarded.

The rumor that two Chinamen had been drowned proved to be unfounded.

MINES AND MINING CAMPS

METALS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Items From the Rich Regions of the Pacific Northwest—News From All the Principal Mining Camps—Personals—Mining Notes.

The Union copper mine, about 18 miles northeast of Baker City, Ore., made a rich strike the other day at a depth of 35 feet. It is free milling ore, and very rich. The ledge is very wide and shows wonderful values. Development work is being pushed as rapidly as possible. A shaft will be sunk 100 feet and the ledge crosscutted and drifts run. Seven men are now employed and more will be added as fast as they can be used. It has abundant capital and its development is assured. The property was first located 32 years ago, and, like many others here has lain dormant till now. The ore resembles that of the Hecla-Calumet, but is much richer. The Copper Queen, situated near this property, is under bond to Captain J. H. Heisner and eastern associates, and a 150-ton smelter will be erected in the spring. These properties are situated northeast of Baker City, near Irwin Postoffice. The Golden Chariot men recently made a good strike, the assays running $206.07. The ledge is from 30 to 50 feet in width. They have three shafts down from 12 to 15 feet. It is situated on Olive creek, above the Van Andra mine, about one mile. The owners are jubilant over the outlook.

A company has been formed to take over the Hercules claim.

Contractor Dexter states that the ledge has not yet been cut by the big tunnel on the Georgie Reed.

The Chico shaft was sunk to a depth of 135 feet and a crossut was run for the ledge. This was encountered 44 ft from the shaft.

The Columbia is making a fine showing. There is two feet of fine looking steel galena. The average value of the assays is $62.42.

The large stringer that has been followed for the past 100 feet in the Copper Mountain tunnel grows wider and richer constantly.

The Rebate has six feet of ore in the drift that is being driven along the ledge from near the south end line of the claim toward the Tom Thumb.

The Republic Reduction Company which is erecting a custom mill about 1000 feet south of the old mill of the Republic Consolidated Company, has a small army of men working. It is claimed that every good carpenter who applies for a job, is given work.

Quilp's great ledge shows sixty feet of ore from wall to wall. It is the widest vein yet opened in Republic. The ore is claimed to be full of paying value across the full width. Deep development again proved necessary in Republic.

Major R. G. E. Leckie states that the permanent working shaft on the Quilp mine will go down from the top of the hill. The compressor plant to be used for prospecting purposes will be placed in the gulch, near the mouth of the tunnel. The usual prospecting work is going on and nothing new is reported.

Mr. Jackling's coming to Republic camp from Mercur, Utah, is of utmost importance, not only to the Republic Company itself, but to every person interested in mining in that camp. He has assured the directors of the Republic mine that he can reduce the cost of reduction of the ores of that mine 66 per cent, and that he can save 95 per cent of its values. This is a big promise, but the Republic owners believe that Mr. Jackling can carry it out, and his record is an indication that the faith of his new employers is not unfounded.

British Columbia.

The Gertrude and Iron Colt, two Rossland mines show fine ore bodies.

The machinery for the stamp mill for the Lemon mine, in Camp McKinney, has arrived at Greenwood.

The ore shipments from Rossland camp for the first six days of the new year show a daily average of over 745 tons, and a weekly average exceeding 5000 tons.

The Cariboo mine in Camp McKinney has resumed shipping its concentrates to the smelter. Superintendent J. P. Keane, is arranging for the shipment of concentrates to the Hall Mines smelter at Nelson.

The 150-horse-power electric hoist on the Josie mine, which was started last week and run for two or three days under adjustment and regulation, is now in practical operation and running magnificently.

A rich pocket of ore has been found in the I X L, at Rossland, in No. 1 stope above No. 1 tunnel, and already a ton of this rich ore has been taken out. It is by far the richest ore that has been found in the mine. There is plenty in sight. The ore is impregnated with large and small masses of free gold. Roy H. Clark, manager of the mine, estimates that this ore will run between $5000 and $7000 to the ton. A half ton of ore taken from another pocket gave a smelter return of $2400, ro $4800 per ton, and this ore is much richer than that was. It is by far the richest ore that has yet been found in Trail Creek division.

A fine strike has been made on the 300-foot level of the Old Ironsides at Phoenix. Crosscutting has been in progress for some time past. Just prior to the Christmas holidays ore was encountered, but the holiday suspension of labor prevented a determination of the extent of the strike. Water rushed into the crosscut when the vein was encountered, and this has only just been mastered by powerful five-inch pumps. The whole face of the crosscut is in a fine quality of chalcopyritic ore. The vein is yet to be crossed. Accurate values have not yet been ascertained, but there is no doubt that they are high. The strike is highly gratifying to the Old Ironsides management, as it proves again the continuity of the ore body.

MINING NOTES.

Deer Trail No. 2 and Bonanza companies may combine. Both are controlled in Toronto.

The following dividends were declared by Utah mines during the first ten days in January: Ontario, $45,000; Mercur, $50,000; Silver King, $75,000; Swanson, $5,000; Daily West, $30,000; Mammoth, $40,000.

It is understood that negotiations are now in progress in Spokane for the sale of the Young, Butterworth, McKenna, Gree and Glidden interests in the Big Buffalo mine to Clark & Sweeny. The latter firm now own the Rice and Mallory interests, naving completed the details of the purchase some weeks ago.

Captain J. W. Heiser returned from the Copper Queen recently and reports everything as moving along nicely. They expect to be in ore in a few days and their expert, Mr. Welch, has informed him that he will be satisfied in putting in a smelter, which he will do in the near future.

Two or three rich strikes have been reported in Baker City. The Bunker Hill, west of here, and the Union Copper mine, northeast of here, being the most prominently mentioned. The large amount of development work being done gives promise of plenty of news in the near future.

The new ten-stamp mill on the Magnolia mine, in Granite district, Oregon, owned by the Magnolia Mining Company, W. L. Vinson, general manager, started dropping stamps last week, and from the first the machinery worked as smoothly as a clock, not a single hitch occurring, be it said to the credit of Mr. William Potter, builder of the mill.

Nine copper mines in the United States paid or declared during 1899 dividends to the amount of $26,419,775, an average of close to $3,000,000 apiece. The Calumet & Hecla, the greatest copper mine in the country, heads the list with a record of $10,000,000. Next comes the Boston & Montana, Butte's big producer, with $5,400,000. The years' dividends swelled the total paid by the nine mines to $120,973,525.

An important strike, both in quantity and quality of ore, is reported from the Golden Zone, near Loomis. As the property has been developed for two years in good ground, the strike is not a surprising fact. Some rich specimens of free flake gold have been brought in by Robert Hargrove from his Whiskey Hill property, near the Maryetta. They are taken from an 18-foot shaft, and the extent of the ore or substance containing the gold is as yet problematical. If any quantity of this talcy substance is to be had, it would prove an exceedingly rich strike. A large surveying party of the Great Northern engineers is nearing Loomis, and may be expected here soon, while a third party has left Wenatchee setting cross section stakes for the line between Wenatchee and Brewster, and it is said will follow right through to Loomis and the boundary line.

Dewey for Sea Duty.

New York, Jan. 13.—A special from Washington says:

If Secretary Long approves the recommendation of the board of officers engaged in revising the naval regulations, Admiral Dewey will continue to be available for sea duty. A provision inserted in the regulations permitted his assignment to the command of a fleet and to a sphere of duty such as the secretary of the navy may direct.

It is not expected that the admiral will again go to sea, though if he were to make application for a sea assignment the department would undoubtedly be glad to give it to him.

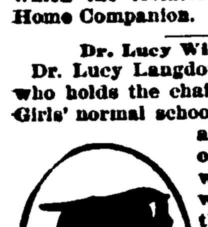
Vice Chancellor Reed of New Jersey has refused to grant an injunction restraining strikers from inducing men to quit or refuse employment. He holds that such strikers are acting within their rights so long as they do not employ coercion.

A WOMAN'S WILL.

A FEMALE over 12 years of age in New Mexico and over 16 in New York may bequeath her personal property. But 18 is the age fixed for devising real estate in California, Colorado, Connecticut, Dakota, District of Columbia, Illinois, Maryland, Minnesota, Montana, Nevada, Utah and Washington, while in the other States the testatrix must be 21 years of age. Married women may devise their separate estates in Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Dakota, District of Columbia, Idaho, Kentucky, Maine, Missouri, Nevada, North Carolina, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming. It is necessary in the other States that a married woman have the written consent of her husband before disposing of her property by will. An unmarried woman's will is legally revoked by marriage, but her property may be arranged in such a manner as to permit her to dispose of it after marriage as she may desire. The person making the will is called the testator; feminine testatrix. A will is of no effect until the death of the testator, and may be changed or canceled at any time by him. A will may be revoked by marriage, a codicil, destruction of will, disposing of property devised in the will, or by the execution of another will, as the last will annuls the power of any preceding one. If real estate is conveyed by will, it should be done in accordance with the laws of the State or county in which the land is located, but personal property is conveyed in harmony with the laws of the place in which the testator resides.—Woman's Home Companion.

Dr. Lucy Wilson's Work.

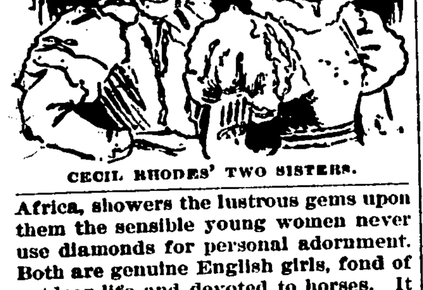
Dr. Lucy Langdon Williams Wilson, who holds the chair of biology at the Girls' normal school, Philadelphia, has arranged an exhibit of the biological work of the school, which is to be sent to the Paris exposition. The collection, which has been made at Mrs. Wilson's own expense, costing probably about $500, consists of sixty-six charts, illustrating very clearly the course of study and the methods of instruction used at the school, and 100 neatly bound volumes of the pupils' work. One-half of the charts illustrate the nature work taught in the school of practice, and the other half represents the laboratory work of the students of the Normal school. The charts are printed in French and English, and pictures and drawings explain the work of each grade. The books contain the written exercises and drawings of plant and animal life done by the pupils.



DR. WILSON.

Cecil Rhodes' Sisters.

These are the two sisters of the "Diamond King," Cecil J. Rhodes. Although their brother, who has made $75,000,000 mining diamonds in South Africa, showers the lustrous gems upon them the sensible young women never use diamonds for personal adornment. Both are genuine English girls, fond of outdoor life and devoted to horses. It is due to their influence that Mr. Rhodes no longer avoids the fair sex as once he did.



CECIL RHODES' TWO SISTERS.

The Well-Dressed Woman.

The majority of European women are in one degree or another of a mind with the English woman who said that "there was no use in being well dressed at home, because everybody in the town knew who she was, and that there was no use of dressing well when she went elsewhere, because then nobody knew who she was."

This is an altogether different attitude from that of the American woman, who feels that she owes it to herself to be well dressed, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. American writers who go into raptures about the originality of the Parisienne ought to have these facts brought home to them.

The Busy Woman's Time.

The busy woman who has discovered how to use her time is certain to become successful. It is not the bustling, rushing, hurrying woman who uses it to the best advantage. She frequently imposes on people, who believe that she is a great worker, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. As a matter of fact, she is generally the one who does least. She spends her energy in talking, but it is the quiet, self-possessed woman who is the real busy one. Apart from the capacity of working quietly and persistently, there is the necessity for using the minutes to advantage—a very difficult task at all times.

Perhaps the greatest hindrance to work is the thoughtlessness of those acquaintances who drop in from time to time "just for a moment's chat," or "to wait for the next car." If one had nothing to do this would be extremely pleasant; but when it really means that the hours of work must be indefinitely lengthened until lost time has been made up the pleasantness of such a proceeding fails to strike the busy one. The housekeeping woman has no notion of the value of time. How can it be otherwise when she generally has too much of it on hand?

As to Invitations.

If you know that the friend whom you are inviting has a visitor staying with her, you should by all means include the visitor. If you cannot at that time invite your friend's guest to your dinner or luncheon it would be better to defer your invitation to your friend until a time when she has no one with her.

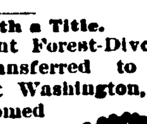
You may request an invitation for a dance for a stranger in town, for a young relative, or for a young man who dances whose acquaintance you know would be agreeable to the prospective hostess.

For card parties, luncheons and dinners you can never request an invitation, even for a guest staying in your house. You can only let your hostess know that you have a visitor, thus leaving her free to do what seems best to her. You are at liberty to take your guest to an afternoon tea, to a large evening reception or to any affair to which the number of guests is evidently unlimited, without previously notifying your hostess.

You cannot ask a hostess for an invitation for a resident of the same city unless this person is a newcomer. For most social events you can freely ask an invitation for a man or a distinguished stranger; less often is it proper to ask one for a married couple.—Woman's Home Companion.

Returns with a Title.

The wife of Count Forest-Divonne, who has been transferred to the French embassy at Washington, has been gladly welcomed back to the city of her girlhood conquests. The countess is extremely beautiful, and is one of the few American women who have been received with open arms by the old regime in France, and to whom all the salons in the Fauborg St. Germain stand wide open. She has not paid many visits to the States since her marriage some years ago, at which time Count Divonne was an attache of the French legation at Washington. The wedding was of such magnificence that it is still talked about in Washington's smart circles. It is to be said, too, that the marriage has been a far happier one than has been the rule with Franco-American alliances.



COUNTESS DIVONNE.

Orange Blossoms.

There is a tendency toward the discarding of orange blossoms at weddings ultra-fashionable, which is termed iconoclasm by those who consider the use of these fragrant flowers indispensable by the bride who would be true to all the traditions regarding wedding finery. The orange branch bears flowers and fruit at one time, and is therefore looked upon as the fairest emblem of prosperity. The use of orange blossoms is older than the Anglo-Saxon race, and it is said that it was in Arabia the flowers first appeared in bridal wreaths.

No More Old Maids.

The tradition that if one does not wish to marry one must become what used to be known as an old maid is now quite obsolete. A woman in her thirties, whether married or single, is at her prime, and no one knows it better than she does. Her age is a distinct gain, not a loss; an asset, not a deficit. She is quite conscious of the advantage, and is, on the whole, rather proud than otherwise of her experience.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Beware of Birds.

Kissing a pet bird is one of the many things to be added to one's list of "dont's." It has been recently discovered that consumption is sometimes hidden in the cage of canaries, parrots and other feathered pets. Lung diseases are prevalent among pigeons, and the practice of placing the lips to the bird's beak is considered a dangerous proceeding, and is apt to spread germs.

You can always distract a woman's attention by showing her a new dolly pattern or a baby.—New York Press.

A curious thing about a woman is that she can feel absolutely honest about her dishonesty.—Fairfield Republican.

A woman can condone selfishness in a man when it takes the form of his wanting her all to himself.—Philadelphia Times.

When a woman quotes her doctor as saying she must not work too hard, she looks keenly at those around to see if they are properly impressed.—Atchison Globe.

RUSSIA'S MINISTER OF FINANCE.

M. de Witte is, perhaps, the most wonderful and influential man in the Czar's service, not even excepting the Foreign Minister, Count Muravieff. Only a year ago the Czar issued a public rescript thanking him for his services and appointing him Secretary of State. The Czar has absolute confidence in his proved integrity and sterling honesty. M. de Witte's rise from a position in the lower walk of life has been a most remarkable one. He has had a career which has few parallels in the history of the world. Twenty years ago he was a mere village stationmaster on the railroad line from Kieve to Odessa, and he is indebted for his rapid rise and promotion to the fact that on one memorable occasion he disobeyed orders. He had received certain instructions with regard to the transportation of troops to Bulgaria, and finding that compliance therewith would have resulted in hopeless confusion he took upon himself to act in direct opposition thereto. Called to account for his disobedience, he was able to prove to the satisfaction of his superiors that he had acted in the only manner certain to be successful, and that the orders transmitted to him were entirely wrong. This attracted the attention of M. Wychnegradski, who was at that time President of the railroad on which M. de Witte was employed. On Wychnegradski becoming Minister of Finance he brought the young stationmaster with him to St. Petersburg, where he rapidly promoted him from one post to another, until seven years ago he succeeded him as Minister of Finance.

THE STRANGEST FISH.

Equally at Home on Dry Land and in Water—Curious Habits.

The strangest fish in the world is found in the abode of strange creatures, Australia, and in the wilds of Africa. It appears to be almost the connecting link between fish and air breathing animals. The Australian variety of lung fish—deratodus—has not only gills, but also a bladder by which it breathes air and utters sounds that have frightened men who knew nothing of its habits. This strange fish sometimes emerges from the water and crawls over marshy places, by the aid of its fins, making a noise like a bark, which sounds more than eerie in the silence of the night.

The air bladder is an adaptation by nature of this strange fish to the peculiar conditions under which it is compelled to exist. The streams in which it is found dry up in the dry season, and the lung fish has to breathe air, sometimes for months at a time. It buries itself in the mud, and only when the warm rains come does it awake to active life again.

Another kind of lung fish—protopterus—is found in Africa, but it does not grow so large as the other. It seals itself in a clay sac or cone, and lies dormant until the rains soften the clay and let it out into the water again.

The Reproduction of Pompeii.

The amusement side of the Paris Exposition will certainly not be neglected, and the scheme of Chevalier Pesce to reproduce the life of Pompeii is rapidly coming into concrete form. The project has been under consideration for some time, and in a few months the visitor to Paris will behold once more the vanished city, which the excavations, of recent times have brought to life. The life of the Forum, the camp, the gladiators, the Temple of Isis, the theatre bordering on the Forum, the numerous shops and public baths, and all those houses, squares and open spaces in which were formerly concentrated the life, activity, the pleasures and the celebrations of public spectacles which made this watering place by the Mediterranean one of the most attractive spots in the Italian peninsula, will be rendered very real. Numerous actors in costumes archaeologically accurate will give to the city its former animation.

Picking Out the Waiters.

The safest plan to pursue at a reception where the waiters and male guests are clad in swallow tails is to jam your hands into your trousers' pockets and jingle a few coins when you meet a stranger. If his eyes begin to bulge and his hand commences to travel toward you he's a waiter. This is a straight tip.

When it comes to scandal, don't expect charity from the person who has at one time had to ask for it.

SAMUEL GOMPERS.

Some Characteristics of the Famous American Labor Leader.

Samuel Gompers, the American labor leader, is as conservative as the English leader, Burns, is radical. Where the latter says strike, Gompers says arbitrate. "I cannot," he once said, "much as I hate oppression, endure the sight of hunger."

The nation owes a bigger debt of gratitude to Somuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, than most people imagine. Had it not been for the rock-like firmness with which, for nearly a fortnight, this man stood against a continent-wide strike of sympathy with the Pullman men, there might have been an uprising of organized labor, compared with which the strikes and riots that really did occur would have been mere child's play.

Mr. Gompers' diplomacy was not less striking than his wisdom. He at no time said that he would not advise a strike. He simply, by delaying action, gave his followers time to think. When they had thought, they saw the masterfulness of his course. Mr. Gompers proved himself to be a general worthy of leading so great an organization as the Federation.

Samuel Gompers is an American by adoption. He is of German descent, as his name indicates, though of English birth. Thirty-eight years ago he was apprenticed to a shoemaker in London. Then he was a lad of 10, with no brighter prospects, no greater advantages than those of ten thousand other apprentice boys of the world's metropolis. To-day he is the executive head of the most extensive combination of labor unions in the world. In this capacity he wields a constant power by the side of which that of other labor leaders is nothing.

The lad did not like the shoemaker's trade, and, his release being secured, he learned to make cigars, becoming proficient by the time he was 13. Then, with his father's family, he came to America. Down to the time he began to work in the shoe shops, he attended day school regularly. After that he continued his studies at a night school, where he applied himself so eagerly as to excite the especial attention of his teachers.

Upon his arrival in America he joined a New York cigarmakers' union, and his gift of common sense and his power to express his thoughts logically and clearly quickly made him a prominent member. Later he was repeatedly sent as delegate to the international union.

When David B. Hill was Governor, he wished to make Mr. Gompers a member of the State Board of Arbitration at a salary of $3,000. The tender was courteously declined.

"If I should accept a political appointment," said Mr. Gompers, "my usefulness in labor organizations would be entirely and permanently destroyed."

In 1882 Mr. Gompers was made president of the American Federation of Labor, and now holds that office. His salary is but $1,000 a year, less than he could earn at his trade in good times, and a far smaller sum than could be commanded by a man of his unusual natural abilities and self-won acquirements in the business world.

A Matrimonial Lottery.

Every three months in the province of Smolensk, Russia, husbands and wives are chosen by the chance drawing of a lottery ticket. The tickets cost 1 ruble (60 cents) each. There is only one prize to be drawn, and it consists of the entire sum yielded by the sale of the tickets, amounting to 5,000 rubles ($3,000), together with a woman described as being of noble blood. The tickets are sold only to men, and the lucky winner of the prize will have to marry the damsel if he takes the 5,000 rubles. If, however, he be already married he is at liberty to turn over the money and the woman to any friend whom he may wish to put in for such a good thing. If the winner should be willing to marry, but is not found to be to the damsel's taste, then they are to be excused from matrimony and permitted to divide the rubles.

The American Bird.

The turkey was first discovered in America, and brought to England in the early part of the sixteenth century. Since then it has been acclimatized in nearly all parts of the world.

Why They Wear the Fez.

From an interpretation of a passage in the Koran Moslems are forbidden to have shades to their eyes, hence the absence of the peak both from the fez and the turban.

The number of Buddhists is computed to be 455,000,000.

The Festive Buckwheat Cake.

Makes a feller, when he goes into the kitchen, fairly smile,
An' yer mouth begins to worter as you stand a-sniffin' there,
While the odors from the griddle fill and permeate the air,
As you note the crispy-old-familiar-palate-ticklin' cake,
That yer wife kin turn out, jest the way yer mother used to make,
Fer they ain't no use o' talkin', not a meal should we be able To enjoy, without that old, familiar pancake on the table.
Oh, there's nothin' in the culinary art that brought the joys
As those buckwheat cakes we used to masticate when we were boys,
With a slice of ham to start on, an' the gravy, rich and brown,
To kind o' sort o' lubricate yer throat as they slipped down;
An' the jug o' maple sirup right beside yer plate the while,
You was jest the most delighted kind o' genus juvenile,
As, each mornin' at the table, you would allus undertake
To keep yer mother busy turnin' out the buckwheat cake.

There's a memory lingers 'round the buckwheat cake, as in yer mind,
You turn from all yer troubles, an' the everlastin' grind
Of bizness cares, that agitate yer thoughts from day to day,
And you kind o' sort o' linger 'round a scene that's far away;
'Tis a crispy, snappy mornin', an' the sun is jest in sight,
An' the fallin' snowflakes sparkle like a million diamonds bright,
As a call comes up the stairway: "Say, you Bill, for massy sakes,
Git up an' come to breakfus', if you want some buckwheat cakes!"

An' you hustle out of bed an' in yer dry goods mighty quick,
Lest yer dad make his appearance with a springy, seasoned stick,
An' you scoot down stairs a-flyin', an' you sousle off yer face,
An' slide down to the table, jest as dad has finished grace;
An' yer sister pours the coffee, an' you help yerself to cream,
While you wait with great impatience, but with ecstasy supreme,
As yer mother, with a smile upon her face, perceeds to make
That appetizin', stomach-fillin', crispy buckwheat cake.

You kin brag of oysters, quail-on-toast, an' other viands dear,
But I'll tell you now, an' say it, too, with nary bit of fear
Of any contradiction, that the feller who says that
Is simply preachin' nonsense, likewise talkin' through his hat.
I have tried the hull caboodle, an' I sort o' guess I know,
(An' I'll gamble that the Hoosier people all will tell you so)
That the man, I don't care who he is, will make a durn mistake

Pretty Heavy.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught, on their visit to Egypt, met with several humorous experiences. One of them shows that even the Egyptians are not free from an unhappy weakness for saying just the wrong thing at a critical moment.

After an inspection of the troops by the duke, outside of Omdurman, to which the duchess had accompanied him on horseback, the girths of her saddle suddenly gave way. There was no way of repairing them, and to enable her royal highness to get back with the least possible inconvenience a sort of sedan-chair was improvised from a guncarriage. On this she was carried by Egyptian gunners, who were in charge of a native officer.

On the way the duchess said: "I hope your men will not be tired after carrying me," and was surprised and amused to receive the ungallant reply:

"Indeed, no, madam; you are no heavier than the gun they are accustomed to carry!"

Over the Falls.

A Wisconsin paper reports an Indian's remarkable escape from death. He was one of a driving crew that broke a big jam above Sturgeon Falls. He attempted to cross the river on a log, and to the horror of the spectators, was carried over the falls.

The falls are forty feet high, and consist of two pitches and the rapids. Of course the man was given up for dead, and the driving crew thought it useless to search the river for his body, as the logs were piling over the falls at a rapid rate.

The next morning, however, the Indian walked into camp for breakfast. He had been swept down the river and up against the bank, where he managed to crawl out. Finding only a few scratches and bruises, but being, as he remarked, "rather tired," he lay down and slept until daylight, and was none the worse for his adventure.

Hindu Girls Like Sweetmeats.

Like the American girls, Hindu girls are passionately fond of sweet things. One of their candies—sadu—is very much like our plain sugar candy. It is made of sugar and milk and flavored with attar of roses. Buddhikabal, or hair of Buddha, is one of their most popular sweetmeats. It is so called because it is in fine long strings like vermicelli. This is made of sugar and cream from buffalo's milk, which is exceedingly rich. The women pass most of their time eating candy and gossiping.

Bird that Guards Sheep.

The yakamik, a bird of the crane family, is used by the natives of Venezuela in place of a shepherd dog for guarding and herding their flocks. It is said that however far the yakamik may wander with the flocks it never fails to find its way home at night, driving before it all the creatures intrusted to its care.

FOR A CREAMERY.

Portland, Ore., Jan. 15, 1900.

EDITORS NEWS: Permit us to reply through the columns of your paper in answer to an article recently published in regard to a skimming station at Genesee.

We respectfully ask the readers of this paper to carefully note the following and judge for themselves as to which would be the most profitable, a skimming station or a co-operative creamery.

Our plan is that a creamery should be run on the co-operative plan, the patrons of which are charged but 3 cents per pound for having their butter manufactured. Now say that the creamery received on an average of 5,000 pounds of milk per day, the profit of which, at 3 cents per pound for manufacturing the butter, would amount to $2,430 per year, which would pay all running expenses, and pay a handsome dividend on a $4,000 plant. Now as these individuals say, at their skimming station, the patrons are charged 5 cents per pound for butter fat; now as there is a churn yield over the butter fat, which on an average will amount to at least 2½ cents per pound more, which added to the 5 cents, makes 7½ cents per pound the patrons are actually charged for having their butter manufactured. At this rate the patrons would be paying $6,075 per year, while on the co-operative plan, as above stated, they would be paying but $2,430, making a difference of $3,645, which ought to go down in the pockets of the milk producers, being nearly enough to build a modern creamery every year.

These individuals also state that should the supply of milk fall below 5,000 pounds, or down to 1,500 pounds, they would charge 8½ cents; now by adding the churn yield, which is part of the patrons property, will amount to 11 cents per pound. At this rate, suppose that butter should drop to 20 cents per pound as is usually the case through the summer months, you would then be paying a little more than half of what your butter is worth to have it manufactured, while on the co-operative plan you would be paying but 3 cents, leaving you a net profit of 17 cents per pound, instead of 9 cents on a 20 cent market.

We wish also to announce that we have not given up our work at Genesee, neither do we intend to, and we leave it to the people after carefully considering the matter, whether they wish to invest their money in a creamery or a skimming station.

Opposite Conant's Drug Store.

—Bert Reeves accompanied Jumbo to the Sumpter region.

—"Our Boys" by home talent will be presented in a few weeks.

—C. F. Burr and son Bill transated business in Moscow Wednesday.

—Alpowa men, Fuller & Walker, sold 600 sheep to Seattle people at $3.75 per head.

—Small social parties are numerous now—two or three each evening. The Sugan club is the latest.

—Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Conway of Magnolia have been enjoying city life and visiting their many friends here.

—The jail has been moved to the city lot, two cells and a stove put in and the marshal is now anxious for a prisoner.

—Gus Skuggerud returned from Parkland. Wash., last week to remain a while. He is now caring for August Johnson who is ill.

—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hobson returned from the metropolis on the first through passenger. Report Fred and Debbie getting along nicely.

—Messrs. Wood and Goodnight rushed over to see the floods and came back with lighter hearts. They were not touched by the raging waters.

—Mrs. Henry Nelson, Fred Nelson, LeRue Tice and Artist Hanson took Wednesday morning's passenger for the Wardner and other Cœur d'Alene towns.

—The main line conductors, those chaps with gold braid on their hats, rather like the idea of coming to Genesee instead of going up and down the steep hills on the other road. The same with the darkeys. It is a relief.

—Seymour, Owen and Houghton pulled out with the mixed train Tuesday morning for the Moscow branch, leaving their families behind for our good people to entertain. The shift is not appreciated by the trio.

—Sam Alexander came down from Oakesdale Sunday, visited here a few days and then passed on home to Lewiston. He may winter with us. Samuel says Spokane is gradually downing Oakesdale and business men are getting out one by one.

—The young people perpetrated a surprise on the Misses Nebelsieck last Thursday evening. Cards and other games were played. At lunch time the surprisers were surprised when Mrs. Nebelsieck rolled in a lot of good things she had previously prepared on the sly. Moore and Wells say they never had a better time.

—NEWS went to press last week as the jury was secured in the Crosset case. The gentleman conducted his own side, and made a poor job of it. The prosecution easily proved that he gave liquor to a child belonging to Mrs. Martinson and the jury had no trouble in rendering a verdict of "guilty." Judge Burr fined Mr. Crosset $250 and costs, amounting in all to $275. Being unable to raise the necessary cash or bond he was taken to the Moscow jail where he will cook his own grub and grow fat for 125 days.

—Vineland is shown up admirably in the illustrated pamphlet just issued by the land company which built the irrigation canal and big bridge. The pamphlet is really the experience of the settlers and home builders in the colony, told in their own words, and accompanied by photographic views of their own homes, gardens, orchards and business places. It is a handsome pamphlet and will be sent free to any reader of this paper on application to the Lewiston Water and Power Co., Clarkston, Washington, or Lewiston, Idaho.

—The home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Driscoll presented a happy scene last Thursday night, they being assisted by Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Lees in entertaining ten tables of card wielders. Those accepting invitations were Messrs. and Mesdames Seymour, Conant, Jr., Grant, Wood, M. Driscoll, Power, Standish, Nagel, Gray, Bressler, Hodgins, Smolt, Gaffney, Hibbs, Hopp, Mr. Vollmer, Mrs. Burdic, Mrs. Nordby, Mrs. Welch, Miss Fulford, Miss Montgomery. Pretty celluloid favors attached to score cards were used—the lady's containing a flower painted by Mrs. Driscoll, the gent's a verse with the name of a flower and these were matched for partners. Very pretty. A dozen or more games were played in a short time. The fine repast came next and was properly discussed. The evening proved a pleasant one for all. Mrs. Gray and Mr. M. Driscoll were seen walking off with the head prizes. Mrs. Burdic and, we believe, Mr. Grant also succeeded in capturing a prize. These parties are growing too large for the average house.

—The continued low price of wheat puts a check on much business.

—Lost, a point lace handkerchief at the Driscoll-Lees party. Finder will please leave at NEWS office.

—Operator Morris has been promoted to the high position of express messenger between Genesee and Uniontown on the flyer.

—This weather makes the stockmen rejoice and the coal barons frown. The orchardists do not know where they are at and are watching Jack.

—Rev. Fowler's subject for Sunday is of a historical nature and one that should be interesting to all. Considerable to it and will pay you to come out.

—A sister of Mrs. W. A. De Bow, Mrs. Mary Legerwood Morris, died in Moscow Jan'y 2. Her husband died one year ago. She leaves one son and one daughter, besides her parents and four brothers and four sisters.

—The Moscow Democratic-Times has been propped up again. There will be no flies on the paper hence forth with Herren, L. N. B. Anderson and C. E. Eddy swinging brushes. We look for a paper that will wake up the people at the county seat.

—Dr. Beck was kept busy the first of the week vaccinating many of the Potlatchers, the rush being occasioned by the case of small-pox in the Shoop family near Lenville. The other doctor have also been doing a land office business in the same line the past week.

—M. Driscoll has been appointed guardian over the Antone Martinson children. His Honor, Judge Steele, made no mistake in making this appointment. All Genesee say it is a good one. Mr. Driscoll will look after the property and see to it that the children are properly cared for.

—Rev. Chr. Anderson was given a surprise last Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hauan, north of Genesee. Some forty-five of his congregation congregated with well filled baskets and passed the afternoon most pleasantly and before departing presented the reverend gentlemnn with $39.25 in cash.

—Two hundred thousand dollars is the amount estimated by a railroad man that the Northern Pacific will have to dig up for all damages occurring on the Kendrick-Lewiston road since it has been in operation, about eighteen months. And there is no way of improving the line for future use. It will set the head officials to thinking.

—Genesee is on the main line once more. How nice. The first through train arrived Tuesday morning and inside of an hour after its arrival a freighter was seen leaving in great haste for Lewiston with a load of beer. Upon inquiry we learned that Lewiston had not had a train since Friday and the people were experiencing a great beer drought. Teams have been coming and going ever since.

—The great flood at Kendrick last Friday destroyed much property for the citizens and for the railroad company. From six to ten miles of track is wholly or partially destroyed, several houses moved or damaged, grain in one warehouse partially destroyed and the unfortunate people of the town are downcast. The worst of all is the drowning of three children belonging to James Hamlin. The mother had a very narrow escape, being found the next morning almost lifeless. All this was caused by the heavy rains on top of 15 inches of snow which came down the gulch with great force and breaking through the embankment. Several cars went down the tide and the engine and force had a narrow escape. Work of rebuilding is going on and it will be several months before trains will run to Lewiston. The regular passenger and freight trains come to Genesee now, making connections with the Lewiston stage at Uniontown, giving us two trains in and two out daily. The mixed train formerly running between Genesee and Pullman has been transferred to the Troy run. The Uniontown-Lewiston stage has been revived, as was the practice prior to the completion of the road from Juliaetta, and is doing a big business. The ferry is in good running order and everything is working nicely under the new arrangements. See telegraphic dispatches for more news of the wreck.

Samsel will write your deeds, mortgages, leases, contracts, etc.

If your watch needs repairing and you want it done right take it to WALTERS, Jeweler.

—The subject at the Congregational church next Sabbath evening will be "The Great Pyramid, or Egypt's Bible in Stone." No preaching in the morning.

—These names shine brighter upon our subscription book: Henry J. Herman, J. A. Leitch, O. V. Niles, Sherm Wahl, J. H. Miller, W. D. Rogers, L. Jain, John Lorang, Henry Heitfeld, A. Murphy.

—At the Genesee Exchange Bank meeting Tuesday evening the old directors were re-elected. Another meeting will be held soon for the purpose of re-electing the officers and declaring the usual 5 per cent semi-annual dividend.

—Dr. Ehlen is trying hard to resurrect the Genesee cornet band. We have plenty of talent in that direction and any amount of wind, but a little shy on instruments. Five or six of the men got out the other evening and made noise enough to astonish the natives. Let's have a band and wake up the populace.

—Paul Rock and Mr. Goodnight have been gathering up some fine fat hogs for the Spokane market, paying $4 per hundred. How much more prosperous we would be if farmers raised more hogs and cattle and less wheat. Our foreign market is always good and is growing better while our range for cattle decrease yearly.

—H. P. Hull, merchandise, was the heaviest loser in the Kendrick flood—$2000; the other losses ranged from $50 to $300, McGrew escaping entirely. Gazette was baptized and lost all of its type-lice. At Juliaetta the farmers' warehouse sustained quite a loss, and much damaged wheat is being disposed of at 25 cents per bushel.

—Genuine spring weather. Fruit tree buds are large and ready to burst, flowers are blooming, lilac and rose bushes are leaving, robins, quails and meadow larks are chasing over the hills, and everything has the appearance of summer. A cold snap is almost sure to come, and if it does, much damage will result to the fruit crop and the trees. The outlook in the valleys, with a cold spell, will be more gloomy than up here.

—Those who went to Moscow to attend the Rebekah blowout were Miss Pickering, Mrs. Hibbs, Mrs. Agent Gray, and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Daggett. Of course they had a big time. They no sooner arrived there when they wanted to come home again. They were told all sorts of yarns about smallpox. The schools were ordered closed, public gatherings stopped, etc. Though there are quite a number of cases in the town they are of a mild form.

—Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Ebel were considerably frightened the other morning at 3 o'clock when they were awakened and found their room full of smoke. They nearly suffocated, and in a few more minutes it might have been serious for them. The previous morning Mr. Halterman, who occupies an adjoining room, threw some ashes and fire into a box near the stove, little thinking it could do any damage. During the night a fire started from it and Mr. Ebel had all he could do to save the building. Close call all around.

—The social event of the season among the young people was given by Miss Angelea Lorang at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Smolt Wednesday evening. High five was the principal game and seven tables were used. Partners were chosen by guessing conundrums. Guests were: Misses Nebelsieck, Mae Hodgins, Sophia Beechler, Saidee Fulford, Mabel Montgomery, Hettie Burgess, Minnie Stamps, Lizzie Mochel, Ethel Jamison, Mr. and Mrs. F. Gesellchen, Mr. and Mrs. Lorang, Messrs. Don Johnson, Joe Wells, Fred Wilkison, W E. Cool, C. Kennedy, Geo. Boliou, Bob Beechler, Vincent and Joe Lorang, Ralston Vollmer, J. Morris, Rosalia, Julia and Marie Lorang. At midnight a halt was called and prizes were awarded, Mr. Wilkison securing the first and Miss Jamison the booby. A fine luncheon was served after which music and singing entertained the happy people for two hours. A fine time.

A New York woman arrested for keeping chickens in her rooms supposed they were no worse than the squawking parrots and the yelping dogs of the other rooms of an apartment-house. Why should there be so much difference of opinion as to pets?

Think of a promoter in the intelligent city of New York inducing people to give up their money by promising them 520 per cent. a year! Evidently if you want to hoodwink people, you want to hoodwink them well. If he had only promised a return of 5 or 10 per cent. he would, in all probability, have secured few victims. There is an immense amount of attraction in a gold brick.

The head of a large corporation says that he is tired of having people bring in trivial thousands of dollars delayed because his stenographer's feelings were hurt by a reproof for tardiness. The remark sheds light on the fact that many corporations are supplanting women by men employes. Too many women have yet to learn that business is business, not sentiment, and that places are held, if not always won, by business qualifications alone.

The humorist's assertion that talk is cheap, women half price, seems in the whirligig of time to have brought in its own revenges. At the recent International Council of Congregationalists, every speaker exceeded the time allotted him, thus encroaching upon the privileges of his successor. At a subsequent meeting of a State Federation of Women's Clubs, only a single speaker overstepped the limit of time, and the exception was a man!

The necessity for some change in foot-ball rules may be seen when it is noted that in proportion to men engaged in action there were more casualties reported last fall from the campaign on the gridiron than from the war being waged in the Philippine Islands. Twenty-two men engage in a foot-ball game and the contest wages for an hour and a half. The casualties in killed, wounded and disabled will average 20 per cent., which, we believe, is very much greater than have marked the fierce and bloody battles of the world's history. True, a man is not killed in every game, but the death list, nevertheless, is far too heavy. As for broken limbs, bruises and ribs and collarbones, these are but incidents to the sport.

There are other Bill Anthonys. Brave men who have faced dangers in flood and field, but find the everyday struggle of life more menacing, more trying than facing shot and shell. And there are many men and women who have done nothing more heroic than to "keep up with the procession" until now, but who feel discouraged and are not sure of the future. To all such it may be said that, however safe and easy our posterity may find the path of life, in days to come when perhaps justice and order reign, the conditions to-day give a splendid opportunity for character-forming. For this cause we should deem ourselves fortunate that we live in an age of stress and strife. For this reason we should set ourselves steadfastly to our daily tasks, however humble. Mark Tapley, one of Dickens' cleverest creations, accepted every hardship and trial as an opportunity for gaining credit to himself for cheerfulness and helpfulness. That is the spirit in which we can succeed. This is the ideal which we can carry with us in daily life and conquer.

Our new Department of Agriculture, which, when first authorized by Congress, was regarded by many as likely to prove more costly and ornamental than useful or profitable, is gradually justifying its creation. While the experiments in agriculture and some of the bulletins issued by the department may not have been of great practical value to the average American farmer, the information it collects and furnishes the public in weekly bulletins and annual reports is worth many times the cost of collection and publication. It is well known that the crops which wheat, corn, oats, various fruits and meat products to supply the deficiencies of the rest of the world, but it is not so well known that over $1,000,000 are worth annually of the agricultural and forest products of other countries. The annual report of the Department of Agriculture for the present year presents this fact in clear and unmistakable figures, and the mere statement indicates that there is still a vast profit able and unoccupied field waiting for the American farmer. The bulk of these imported products, which include coffee, sugar, India rubber and a dozen varieties of fruit are chiefly grown in tropical countries. With our recent acquisitions in the West Indies, Philippines and the Sandwich Islands we are engage in the production of all these articles and the $200,000,000 prize is certainly worth striving for. As a prerequisite to success in this line of endeavor the people should cultivate a little more pride and faith in American products. We are importing and using very inferior American wine, which is exported first to be furnished with a foreign label when we could get a much better article at home if we were willing to be known as consumers of home-made wines. There is little doubt that we can produce figs, dates, prunes and other fruits which we now largely import. Oranges of the best we already grow in Florida and California, and with our new West India acquisitions all our tropical fruits can easily be of the home grown varieties. And why should we not be able to supply our own wants in the shape of coffee and tea and the sugar to sweeten both within a very few years? The fault of the American farmer to date has been his inclination to confine himself to the cultivation of the staple crops with which he often overstocks the markets. There should be greater diversity in his farming, and the reports of the Department of Agriculture point out very definitely the field in which this diversity can be profitably exercised. American farmers cannot study these reports too carefully for their own prosperity.

Domestic Woes.

WHEN PEGGY GOES TO MARKET

When Peggy takes her basket up
And off to market goes,
I'm stupefied with wonder at
How very much she knows.
She makes her way between the stalls
And with judicial air
Decides that this is "no and so"
And that is "pretty fair."

She knows if fish are fresh or not,
And, wise as any owl,
She differentiates between
A chicken and a fowl.
She thumbs the breastbone of the one
And pulls the other's legs;
She squints her pretty little eyes
To test the new-laid eggs.

The veg'tables must be just right,
For with a critic's eye
She scans them, and is inclined to pass
Their imperfections by.
She calls the market folks by names;
Ah, what a lot she knows,
When Peggy takes her basket up
And off to market goes!

When Peggy does the marketing
My heart with pride she fills;
I go along, a useless thing.
Except to pay the bills.

In the Nick of Time.

THE Widow Carney came out of her two-room shanty beyond the dump. She stood erect in the spring sunshine, looking over a network of railroad tracks, across to the switchtowers where Kathleen had taken Fergus O'Hara's dinner. Nellie Carney was still little more than a girl. Her face was arch and sweet, her eyes merry, and her hair black and curly. The wind blew her calico dress away from her fine figure.

And you say that she's a widow," John Conover remarked to Fergus. "Not long I venture."

"Three year," said Fergus, panting a little. "Not any fault of the b'ys. She's a little uppish, is Nellie Carney. Phil were a fireman an' like to be engineer wan day, but the greasers down the road bedivilled him was right when they attacked the train. Company gives her the run av the house than, an' she keeps boarders for meals."

That is how John Conover met Nelly Carney. He was getting ready to go home into the face of the big switchman. He motioned the next man, and all drew their pistols. Fergus crept to the door, motioning Nelly to protect herself. There was a sudden crash-in of the door, three shots and a dash at the window. Nelly fired the pistol that she held straight into the face of the man who came first.

John Conover was always a badly crippled man. He had expected no favors at the hands of the big switchman, but he knew Nelly well enough to think she would never relinquish the claim only over his own signature, and he had only twenty hours of freedom to die that she might have a fortune. It was a cruel death to the grave for him.

Every one knows the story of the two continents. The claim was one of the three best in California. Kathleen was such a fabulous heiress she could have commanded princes, but she chose a plain American. She had a young half brother, who, strange as it may seem, was called Fergus from the first. He was a famous athlete in an Eastern college in the '70s, and married an English girl of family. Nelly Conover, as Mrs. Fergus O'Hara's second lady, may often be seen in the picture galleries and pleasure gardens of continental cities, walking beside the stately chief of a genial old gentleman. She kept her vow. No time since that awful hour on the mountain side has she been from John Conover's side.

When Henry Irving Was Hissed.

"I was hissed every night for a week when I was playing the provinces about thirty-five years ago," said Henry Irving to a writer in Alcshe's. "I was given an engagement as leading man in a very small theatre, and before I made my bow to the audience I learned that the man whose place I had taken was very popular in the vicinity, and that the people strongly disapproved of the way in which the management had forced him to retire, so that when I made my appearance the audience showed their disapproval of the manager by strongly hissing the successor to their favorite, and they kept it up for a week. It was a very unhappy week for me."

The Same to Him.

"How much for a photograph?" he queried, as he entered the room at the head of the stairs.

"My dear sir, you have made a mistake," replied the occupant of the office. "This is a dental parlor, while the photographer is next door."

"Oh, you pull teeth?"

"Yes, sir."

"How much?"

"Fifty cents apiece."

"Well, go ahead and yank out one or two. It's about the same to me."

Pretty Stiff.

"Corn is pretty plentiful out here?" interrogated the new arrival at Atchison.

"Well, I should say so," responded the citizen. "Why corn is so plentiful out here, neighbor, that the laundries use cornstarch to put our shirts. It's too common for pudding."

FARMS AND FARMERS

Single Sashes Double Glazed.

One of the ways in which poultry and other stock suffer is from the rapid radiation of heat from the windows at night. Double windows are sometimes used, but these are expensive, somewhat of a bother to put on and hard to keep clean.

The cut shows a single sash, double glazed, which a poultryman has recently described. The sash is made so that the glass can be set on both sides of the wooden bars, leaving a half inch of air between the glass. This gives a double window and the cost is said to be not more than 25 cents extra per sash for the glass and the labor of setting. The glazing must be tight and Hay in Better Demand.

Canadian papers are boasting that the war in the Transvaal has created a demand for hay, and that prices have already advanced from 50 cents to $1 a ton in Montreal, and if there were more vessels to take it and lower rates of freight there would be a further advance. So many British vessels were taken as transports for the troops en route for South Africa, and for stores and supplies, that it has been almost impossible to send forward the amount of goods that Great Britain wants from America. It is reported that one cargo of Canadian hay has been sent direct to South Africa by the way of Boston, and that other vessels are on the way to Montreal for a cargo. Hay is now in good demand in the United States, and prices are more likely to advance than to decline. If farmers here and in Canada will next year increase their fodder crops as they may, they will not only have enough for their own if they have to spare, at better prices than they have realized for some years, or we cannot read the signs of the times aright. It is the planning for silage and fodder crops will enable them to feed more cattle at home and have hay to sell.

Value of Turkeys.

Buff turkeys probably resulted from selected crosses of the bronze and white breeds. In size and general appearance they resemble the White Holland, but with pure buff plumage. The full color is hard to get and every hatch includes birds with white feathers and dull plumage. This difficulty is perhaps the chief cause of lack of popularity. Buff turkeys are seldom found in the market though they are considered equal to the other small breeds for general purposes.—Orange Judd Farmer.

A New Hybrid.

The Brazilian minister at Washington has reported to the United States department the fact that Baron de Parana in Rio Janeiro has succeeded in producing a cross between the zebra and the mare, a hybrid which is much larger and handsomer than the mule. The mule used is what is known as Mitchell's zebra, a native of South Africa, which is naturally less wild and more tractable than the mountain zebra, and which has been used for dozens of years in this country. The mule mentioned as to work in teams of six, eight or more together, or with the same number of horses, though it does not work kindly singly or in pairs, as in its native haunts it went in large droves for protection against other wild beasts. The baron claims that they are more docile and gentle than the ordinary mule, quicker, softer mouthed, with no tendency to kick, remarkably upright in conformation, possessed of strength, and are much less subject to disease and far easier cared for than the mule.

Weed Seed for Birds.

Some one has said that if weeds were kept down birds of many kinds must become extinct for lack of food. Just this there appears no immediate danger, and we hope that when birds are likely to suffer from this cause there will be people who for humanity's sake will furnish food for them. A hand of oats, millet seed and other small grains thrown out every day in winter will supply a vast number of small birds, and if we were rid of the detestable English sparrow, we could have the trees around our houses thronged with song sparrows, finches, chickadees, wrens, snow birds, and hosts of other birds both winter and summer.

Planting Tree Seeds.

Apple seed and plum and cherry pits can be kept in the cellar in condition to grow with proper attention to watering. But in any ordinary dry cellar the sand gets too dry to prepare the seeds for germinating the first spring. It is much safer to bury outside, where they will have regular moisture and more or less freezing and thawing. It is also safe to plant these seeds and pits in the fall, if properly managed. Cover the seed at least three inches deep in drills by mounding two inches about the surface. Early in spring rake off the mound, leaving the seed one inch deep with a mellow surface for a seed bed. In this way the seeds will not be packed and the plants will make larger growth the first season than we secure with spring planting.—Farmers' Advocate.

Cultivation of Berries.

Berries should be cultivated from planting time to fruiting season, keeping the ground pulverized between the rows; strawberries, however, should be mulched with straw, which takes the place of cultivation. Blackberries, which often dry up on the bushes before the crop is all matured can be saved, in most cases, by frequent surface cultivation between the rows, retaining moisture, which nourishes the plants and ripens the berries. The roots of trees spread on every side the same distance as the limbs extend, and therefore cultivate deeply over the entire surface; in the case of large trees, none but shallow plowing should be done, so as not to injure the roots.—Farmers' Voice.

A Winter Gate.

A gate that must be used in winter is often opened and shut with difficulty when the snows become deep. If the hinges are made according to the plan shown in the accompanying illustration the gate can be raised continually as the snow becomes deeper and deeper. The long part of the hinge is made of a rod of iron that will turn easily in the eye of the other part of the hinge. In the lower hinge have three or four thicknesses of leather or iron rod, as shown. When the gate is to be raised slip a 20-penny wire nail through the projecting hinge rod, and the gate will swing on the elevation required. When the snow is gone the gate can be returned to its natural position.

Farmers' Children.

Farms are places for raising crops, not only crops of grain, but crops of men and women. Every farm should raise not only the physical health and strength, but also many, aye, most of the brightest minds in the various walks of life. Farmers' boys and girls have ample opportunity for the education and development of their mental faculties. Good schools are abundant and easily accessible. The high schools in the smaller cities are now nearly or quite as good as were many of the colleges a few years ago. The State normal schools, agricultural colleges and universities furnish wonderful opportunities for the education at low cost of the present day.—Farmers' Advocate.

Getting Rid of Rats.

Mix corn meal and plaster of paris together, about one-third plaster of paris. The rats will eat the corn meal, also some of the dry plaster. As they pick the corn meal out, add a little more meal to it, and mix together, put it in shallow dishes and set it around in different places. Also have some water convenient for them to drink. And in three or four days you will not be troubled with rats.

To Keep Apples.

An experiment made by a Michigan grower of apples shows that if apples are packed in bulk-dirt, clean sand, and the apples not allowed to touch, they may be put into bins and kept for months, provided the bins are in a cool, dry cellar, and the apples not bruised. Success has been obtained by the use of well-dried corn and oats also, on which keeping with beets, turnips and potatoes.

Farm Notes.

Shelter sheep from cold rains.

Do not allow manure to accumulate in the stables.

Sheep as much as any other stock require dry bedding.

As the roads get bad the loads should be made lighter.

Oil stock of any kind decrease in value as they become older.

It is a safe rule on very cold days to increase the grain rations.

It is a loss not to feed sufficient to maintain a good, thrifty condition.

Young animals are easily kept thrifty if they are well sheltered.

He leaves several nephews, who reside in the western part of the state. "Uncle Billy," as he was best known, was a generous, honorable man, and many an old-timer will regret to hear of his death.

The epidemic of smallpox seems to have broken out with increased strength in Butte. What to do with the increasing number of patients is a problem. Both pest houses are crowded to their utmost capacity, and if any more are taken their beds will have to be made on the floor. The house of detention is crowded all the time. Since the outbreak of the disease 70 patients have been taken to the pest houses, 49 remaining there, and only three dying. Just the moment a touch of cold weather arrives the doctors expect many deaths from the disease. The Attorney General has delivered the opinion that if the schools have to be closed all teachers will be entitled to full pay while they are closed. GENERAL BULLER ADVANCES

CROSSED THE TUGELA RIVER.

General Warren's Division—Many Stories Afloat—Gen. French Mounts a Gun on a High Mountain—Shelling Bombarded.

Cape Town, Jan. 17.—The authorities have received news that General Warren has crossed the Tugela and occupied a strong position north of the river.

This report has been current here, but is discredited in official circles.

London, Jan. 17.—Up to the present the reported crossing of Tugela river by General Warren's division remains but rumor. Nevertheless, the whole tenor of such news as has been dribbling in from south Africa recently indicates that a combined movement of a comprehensive character is proceeding. It is not necessary to believe unconfirmed stories of the Boers being in full retreat from Colenso because it has been learned that a column is proceeding via Weenen to help Mauler to cut off their retreat, but at the same time credible information from many sources indisputably points to momentous changes in the disposition of the republic forces.

Military men are divided in opinion as to whether Buller is at Springfield or preparing a flank movement from Weenen. Officials are inclined to credit the report that the British have crossed the Tugela river in that direction, although there is no confirmation of the report and altogether there is a more hopeful feeling in official circles. There is little news of importance from elsewhere.

French's forces have succeeded in dragging a 12-pounder to the summit of the rocky Coleskop, a thousand feet above the surrounding plain, and they successfully routed a Boer camp three miles away from Stormstroom. An interesting item of news is that Boers escorting a party of rebels have successfully gathered all the rebels in two miles of the Boer central camp at Bird river, the British force being too weak to interfere.

A dispatch from Pretoria says the federal forces recommenced the bombardment of Mafeking during the morning of January 12.

An Unconfirmed Rumor.

Rutherford Harris, formerly resident director in South Africa of the British South African company, has received a cablegram to the effect that Buller has suffered another reverse.

The war office has no information to enable it to confirm or deny the dispatch said to have been received by Rutherford Harris.

Jail Break Failed.

Belleville, Ill., Jan. 16.—Thirty prisoners in the St. Clair county jail made a break for liberty. One of them was mortally wounded. The sheriff was wounded, but not seriously. The sheriff was in the cage to give the prisoners their supper. As a trusty pinioned his arms the others rushed out of the cage. The turnkey was forced into a corner and handcuffed and his revolver and keys were taken from him. His cries for help were heard by Sheriff Kimball, who was at supper, and he ran up the stairs Ed Rively, a prisoner, fired at him. He threw his left arm over his heart and received the bullet in his forearm. He shot the prisoner twice. One bullet entered his abdomen and he is dying. When the police arrived in answer to the call they could not get into the jail until the doors had been broken down with sledge hammers. The prisoners were then driven back into their cells.

Indian Scare in Canada.

Montreal, Jan. 16.—There is fear of the Canadian Indians in the northwest rising owing to the withdrawal of some of the mounted police for the Transvaal. The condition is considered serious. Clifford Sifton, minister of the interior, and commissioner have telegraphed the Indian agents to warn the Indians that misconduct on their part will mean a stoppage of the government bounty and any outbreak will be suppressed by force. The white men and half-breeds who have been doing the mischief are ready for anything.

Toledo, O., Jan. 13.—William W. Gage, a cousin of the secretary of the treasury, penniless and depending upon charity for medical attendance, died at a boarding house in this city. He is a widower, and lost all his property during the civil war while he was living in the south.

New Cable Lines.

France is dependent upon England for news of the Transvaal war, because the cables are under their control, and she is ready to spend a sum of money to establish a cable of her own. It would be over $20,000,000 to lay it, but it would be worth it to her, as the only cable she has is believed to be as good as lazy.

WHEAT CULTURE.

A few hints on wheat culture may be of benefit. We depend on capillary irrigation and must study the soil. Suppose the plowing is eight inches deep, open, lumpy, straw in it and the grain sown with a seeder. Some seed will go down the cracks 8 inches, some half way down and some lodge on top. After the ground is dragged it gets quite dry, seed on top starts and drys up; seed farther down comes up, but very thin. Let us examine. Here are several grains at the bottom of the furrow in some straw, one kernel sending up a 4-inch sprout which struck a lump and bent into a snarl and could go no farther; lots more like it. Now we examine grain not buried so deep and find it some better, making a stand for half a crop.

A week has passed since our examination and we have had a nice rain. We dig down and find a seed close to the bottom sending roots downward and striking hard bottom; we follow the speer to the surface, once white and tender and greenish as it reaches the air; tiny sprouts forming a cluster of rootlets two inches below surface and developing a crown. Since the rain we find crowns down 3 and 4 inches among the lumps, leaves having a hard time pushing through. We will now rest for three weeks.

During this time it has been dry. We dig again and find the roots spreading about 3 inches from the top. That long tap root with the seed on the end is the only one that goes to the bottom of the furrow. Ground is dry and should it not have been rolled and packed down? Hardly, for those dry lumps would cut those tender roots; there is plenty of moisture at the bottom of the furrow where the seed root has reached; this is capillary irrigation: Few roots get below four inches and all that keeps the wheat alive is the checking of evaporation in the night. What makes the grain stool, and so thin, when the soil is so uneven and full of straw? I can only say, straw, lumps and cavities have a tendency to concentrate heat, and while conditions are favorable produce abnormal growth in the crown, setting more shoots in each stool than if the ground was more evenly shaded by non-heating foliage What would be the result if we got hot June winds? I claim, if there is sufficient supply of water in the store cavities of our hills and the ground is worked so that the rootlets can reach the capillary collection, there was never a wind dry enough to exhaust the moisture from the foliage or wheat straw faster than the roots could supply it back to the stalks and leaves.

Now what do you think of rust? I think the cause simple and the remedy in common sense practice. [Here Mr. Miller invites farmers to get together and give their ideas and do away with the scientific principles of professors. In conclusion he gives the following good remedy.]

REMEDY.

For 7 or 8 years when my ground was new and my light cayuse team unable to turn over more than 4 inches of dirt, I never had smut, and volunteer grain free from same. I am sure more care in harrowing and rolling will help; we should get other wheat, similar to red chaff; plow shallow; in deep seeding we depend upon one condition; at all depths a portion of the seed will be adapted to the season. Winter wheat will be the cleanest crop if it does not stool too much; the surest crop is the late sown as it endures the cutting process of spring the best, and does not spend its vitality in overgrowth in the fall. If a wheat root has absorbed the best quality of its surrounding soil in the fall and conditions become unfavorable at or before maturing then smut follows. With best wishes to my loved profession and all the faithful toilers of the farm, field and orchard, I am

Yours, T. E. MILLER.

The Jolly Girl

Often changes to the jaded woman. "I can't see what's come over Mary; she used to be such a jolly girl," was the remark of a young woman visiting a married schoolmate. Marriage changes a woman. The drains and pains which are so often the sequence of marriage rob her of all vitality. Give her back her former strength and she'll be as "jolly" a wife as she was a maid. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives back the lost strength by re-establishing the health of the delicate womanly organs. It dries the drains and stops the pains. It cures ulceration, inflammation and female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

"For two years I had been a sufferer from chronic diseases and female weakness," writes Mrs. Allen A. Bobson, of 1125 Rodman Street, Philadelphia, Pa. "I had two different doctors, and they gave me medicine which only relieved me for a time. My niece advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I concluded that to open a correspondence with you for your advice would be safest, so I did, and have been highly benefited. I find that after taking six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and five of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and following your advice in regard to local treatment, I am now a strong woman. Accept my sincere thanks for the interest manifested in my case and the happy results obtained."

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. Correspondence private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW REVIEWS

THE "NECESSARY" MAGAZINE

The best-informed men and women in the world use the AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS to keep well informed, and call it the "necessary" and "indispensable" magazine. In the busy rush of to-day ambitious men and women must know about the important questions of the month, and not only this, they want to know about them at the right time. When the whole country is puzzled over the gigantic combination of trusts, a well-informed article is printed in the AMERICAN MONTHLY, giving the facts, and its editor discusses the theory; when the Dreyfus affair is in everyone's mouth, the best story of Dreyfus and the great case comes out in this magazine.

Every month, in "The Progress of the World," Dr. Albert Shaw gives a comprehensive picture of the world's history during the previous thirty days. In the departments, the valuable articles and books that have been published during the past month are reviewed and quoted from, so that the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY can get the gist of them. In every issue nearly a hundred pictures are printed, including the portraits of the men and women who are making the history of the month.

To be thoroughly well informed helps any man or woman in his or her work. A subscription to the AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS represents an investment for the best kind of profit, as well as entertainment. One subscriber has just written: - "Count me a life subscriber, and when you send me a number beyond the limit of my subscription and secure no renewal from me, consider it a notice of my death."

The lessons assigned for home study to pupils in the 6th, 7th and 8th grades shall be such as to require not more than one hour and a half.

We believe at least thirty minutes should be devoted to every recitation, and it may be wise, where the classes are large, to extend the time to forty-five minutes. In every recitation the teachers should devote one-third of the entire time to the elucidation of the subject under consideration. No new branch of study should ever be entered upon where the teacher does not spend at least from five to ten minutes in illustrating the principles of that study, and if it be in mathematics upon the blackboard, so that the student will have a rule and a guide fresh from the teacher's lips and hands as to how to proceed.

Every student we think in the 6th, 7th and 8th grades should be instructed that one to one and one-half hours each night in the week devoted to study is important and necessary so as to make his entire school hours not to exceed six or six and a half hours under any circumstances.

The last half hour before retiring at night, should be devoted to light reading, cheerful conversation, or amusements of some kind, and that he should be in bed and asleep before 10 o'clock. We think the student should be further instructed that to rise before 7 o'clock, unless obliged so to do, is against his best personal welfare, and that the time intervening between 7 and 9 o'clock, outside the breakfast hour, should be devoted to good healthful exercise of a physical character.

If such rules and regulations were put in force and give advice along lines of this kind, better mental results would be obtained at the end of the year and we would have the physical condition maintained at the highest standard without the slightest danger of a mental collapse.

—It is said that at least 40,000 people will go to Cape Nome in the spring from Dawson, Victoria Seattle and San Francisco. Can they all get rich? Hardly. There will be many disappointments on the bleak sands of Cape Nome. It is stated that already the pay ground is practically secured.

—Supreme court meets in Lewiston June 16 and October 1.

—Senator Shoup might, in order to make no enemies, put that government building at Genesee. Then Lewiston and Moscow would have "no kick coming." Besides, Genesee is young and ambitious.—Uniontown Gazette. Genesee has lots of voters, but few politicians. We have the country, location, and population.

—In order to obviate the necessity of two conventions this year, one for the election of delegates to the national convention and the other to nominate the state ticket, and also with a view to hastening the perfection of party organization in the different counties, the NEWS moves that if practical the state committees get together and discuss the advisability of holding one state convention this year. It may be impossible for the republicans to do this as their national convention is to be held quite early—June 19—but the other parties could do so without any inconvenience, and it would be a great saving.

—There is not the slightest doubt that the Nicaraguan canal bill will soon pass both houses of congress. A reliable poll shows that there are 62 senators and 254 representatives in favor of action at this session; and 1 senator and 29 representatives in favor of the delay. This is a declared majority or more than two thirds in the senate, and of nearly three-fourths in the house. Even this does not measure the strength of the movement of the canal, as many members who refuse to state their position at present will undoubtedly vote for action when the time comes. Probably four-fifths of each house favors action at this session.

—If the free rural delivery system is extended to Idaho this year, as there is now a good prospect of being done, it is to be hoped Congressman Wilson's recommendation of some point in Latah county for the service will be adopted. Latah is the banner agricultural county in the state at this time, and in the immediate vicinity of either Moscow or Genesee there is probably a much more extensive population within reach of the service than anywhere else in the state. Rural delivery is not useful or successful except in a thickly settled agricultural community and to carry out the practical purposes of the system perhaps both Moscow and Genesee should be given precedence over every other point in the state, says the Lewiston Tribune. Genesee has a larger scope of thickly settled farming country surrounding her than any other town in Idaho. No one disputes this Then why cannot Congressman Wilson recommend this locality for the free rural delivery system. Our voters look to him for such action. Include Moscow if you desire, but she would rather have the federal building.

CREAMERY MEETING.

An enthusiastic meeting was held Saturday for the purpose of discussing the skimming station proposition. Many farmers took part and it was plainly to be seen that they were anxious to do something beside exclusive wheat raising. Messrs. Brown and Armistead of the Spokane Hazelwood Co. endeavored to explain the workings of a skimmer, advantages, expense of operation, etc. They stated that a skimming station would net the farmers more cash than a creamery and cited the fact that where a few years ago there were more than twenty creameries in operation in the eastern portion of Washington now there are only three or four, skimming stations operating in their places. The reason for this, they stated was that the cream was shipped to Spokane and the Hazelwood Co. could transform it into butter at a less cost than the creameries as it handled so much of it. The gentlemen were asked many questions by the farmers and at the close of the meeting a committee consisting of five—M. J. Mervyn, John Halverson, Henry Herman, Geo. Tegland and Ingwall Smith—was appointed to secure figures from the Hazelwood Co. for a skimming station. This committee was also authorized to secure information and figures for a creamery plant and report at a meeting to be held Saturday afternoon, February 3rd. It is hoped every farmer favorable to dairying will attend this meeting. Farmers admitted that there was little in exclusive wheat raising except in years when the price ranged above the 45-cent mark, and many are willing to give dairying a trial as a side issue. No one advocated the abandonment of grain raising, but want to see mixed farming. The NEWS and people generally much prefer seeing a creamery established here to a skimming station if the profits are the same.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from pneumonia before morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at Kennedy's.

—Two deaths from smallpox occurred in Spokane this week, the only ones of the 125 cases in the city since last spring.

—A number of our people have their eye on the Colville reservation. The date of opening has not been made public.

—Nez Perce and Latah commissioners last week decided, after investigation, to jointly repair and build the bridge near Troy recently wrecked by the flood. This will be good news to the many Big Potlatchers who constantly travel the route. Commissioners make no mistake in improving and building highways for the convenience of our tillers.

—A Spokane man, J. L. Smith of the Hazelwood farm, says brome grass is the grass for this section—thrives on dry lands and yields prodigiously. He has experimented since '93 with seventy varieties. Increased his field of brome grass each year until last year he had 50 acres. He will increase this to 200 acres next spring. For three consecutive years Mr. Smith says he cut as much as four or five tons of hay per acre and the fourth year the grass was so thick that it could not be cut and was used for pasturage. Fine dairying grass and one acre will keep 2½ cows. Our farmers need not experiment any longer; buy this seed and push along dairying and stockraising.

The claim of other cough medicines to be as good as Chamberlain's are effectually set at rest in the following testimonial of Mr. C. D. Glass an employe of Bartlett & Dennis Co., Gardiner, Me. He says: "I had kept adding to a cold and cough in the winter of '97, trying every cough medicine I heard of without permanent help, until one day I was in the drug store of Mr. Houlehan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and offered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sore at this time, but I was completely cured by this remedy, and have since always turned to it when I get a cold, and soon find relief. I also recommend it to my friends and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines. Sold by all druggists.

The "Plow Boy Preacher," Rev. J. Kirkman, Belle Rive, Ill., says, "After suffering from bronchial or lung trouble for ten years, I was cured by One Minute Cough Cure. It is all that is claimed for it and more." Cures coughs, colds, grippe and all throat and lung troubles.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Rebellions in South America do not imply change by any means. It's no change for them to have rebellions there.

Further investigation seems to establish the fact that the reason so many rumors fly is because they haven't a leg to stand on.

When the American line rechristens the unfortunate steamship Paris after some American city it is safe to say the selection will not be Little Rock.

A Washington man who recently married has asked his license fee back. He claims the investment was not profitable. Probably the lady has the same opinion.

The women of Paris have decided that "rational dress," so called, is impossible, so long as it is the duty of the sex to look as pretty as possible. So say we all of us.

Another case of destitution in the family of a popular song writer. What becomes of the old theory of the Scot, who didn't care who made the laws of his country so long as he made the songs?

The secretary of the Children's Aid Society of New York announces that "the rich people don't want babies." This being the case, the rich people ought to be pretty well satisfied. They are not having many.

A St. Louis woman stole a loaf of bread and goes free, while a New York man who swindled hundreds of people with a "syndicate" scheme goes to jail. Here are two cases in which well-established precedents are violated.

This country is not the only one which is troubled with unwelcome immigrants. Here we have the winged gipsy moth in addition to the illiterate bipeds from Europe. The rabbit plague of Australia is an old story. Now the hamster has invaded Northern France and Belgium. The hamster is a rodent animal, resembling a rat but somewhat larger, which multiplies enormously and ravages grain fields. It came originally from Tartary, but now has a foothold in Europe. Let us hope it will never reach the American prairies.

Trained men for the diplomatic, consular and colonial service are certainly to be desired. Perhaps our interests have not greatly suffered in the past for want of such men, but our broadening relations will make an imperative demand for representatives and administrators thoroughly qualified for the duties. These the schools will supply as far as needed instruction is concerned, though they cannot give men the character and tact which are as essential as education. However, the new impulse is in the right direction, and therefore to be encouraged.

Personal reserve is sometimes lost sight of in the far West, as a famous sugar merchant from the East recently discovered. He had business in a Missouri town, and was lunching at a table with a native. "Hi, stranger," asked the other, "where you from?" The Eastern man, having a farm in Kansas City, mentioned that place. "What's your business?" "Well, horses," came the reply. "Say, what's your name?" "None of your business," rejoined the disturbed sugar dealer. Even in Ohio, settled largely by Massachusetts and Connecticut colonists, the Eastern man sometimes finds himself in an atmosphere of frankness. "You are all talking about your Western Reserve," such a one recently remarked. "Blessed if I see any."

The burglar and street thief will tell you that in the good old days of our grandmothers girls were brought up in the right way—in mortal dread of robbers, taught never to retire until a careful search had been tremblingly made under the bed for a concealed thief and murderer, and when found to promptly hand over the family jewels. Nowadays all that is changed. Recently a young woman looked under the bed, found the man, dragged him out and gave him a sound thrashing with a broomstick. Only a few days ago the young women in a certain girls' school heard a burglar, pulled their pistols and nearly shot one of the family. Just after this stirring event a thief in New York attempted to "hold up" a woman in the street, who promptly collared him and handed him over to the police. The fin de siecle woman is certainly rounding out the century in great style. The first we know she will learn to throw a stone straight at a mark and find her own pocket at will.

The attempt of the Russian Government to adopt in that country the Gregorian calendar, which is in use in nearly all the rest of the civilized world, has failed. The reason given is that it has been found impossible to establish an agreement between the dates of religious festivals appearing in both the Julian and the Gregorian calendars. That is to say, the people want to keep on celebrating Christmas and Easter and the other days on exactly the same dates as at present, and will not be reconciled to a change. Yet precisely such a change was made in the English-speaking world a century and a half ago, when the calendar was shifted twelve days, and what had been Christmas became Twelfth Day. There were popular protests against it, and in England not a few riots. But the authorities insisted upon the reform, and it was effected. It seems strange for the supposedly despotic Russian government to show itself more sensitive to popular prejudices than were the British and American governments.

The men in the life-saving service of the country are, most of them, heroes. But they are like all true heroes in not knowing it, and the country, contrary to its usual demeanor toward heroes, false as well as real, seldom applauds them. During the last year only 56 persons perished of the 3,903 on the 428 ships whose perils called forth their efforts. Forty of these were lost on the Atlantic coast during the fearful tempest in November, 1898. Besides this, 72 persons who had fallen into the water from wharves and piers were rescued. The life-saving crews saved and assisted in saving 387 vessels, valued, with their cargoes, at nearly $3,000,000. Yet the members of the life-saving crews receive pay so small that by comparison the salaries of the city firemen and policemen are of princely munificence. They are on duty day and night, ever on the alert, and ready to face the most appalling dangers. Weighed against the chance of saving the lives of others, they hold their own lives cheap. They embody the spirit of the Anglo-Saxon sailor—that noble spirit which impels the instant, stern shout of English and American seamen, when passengers aboard a sinking ship are to be rescued: "Women and children first."

Fifty years ago divorces were rare indeed. They carried a stigma with them. The man or woman who thus sought release from domestic obligations did so at the peril of ostracism, and even those separations which were obtained for the most valid cause left something of a stain. It is only within the life of the present generation that divorce has come to take its place as an element recognized in the "strenuous" social life of the day, to be availed of as any other process which may be found desirable for the gratification of a whim of the moment. One has only to regard the condition in which the wealthy and fashionable society of New York exists to-day to realize in the most impressive manner how great has been the deterioration of the moral tone in this respect. Our divorce courts are crowded with cases, the basis of a plea for annulling the marriage contract has become less and less substantial, and, however careful the courts may be and however judiciously they may endeavor to administer the law, it is a statistical fact that divorces are increasing in a far greater ratio than population. What is the remedy for this tendency of the social life of the present day? If it is not checked it will surely establish demoralization at a point where our system must be strong if the republic is to survive.

New Zealand has anticipated the rest of the world by enacting a law which deals so rationally with all trade disputes that it has actually prevented strikes for the last five years. It is impossible to present more than an outline of the plan. Both associations of employers and the trade unions may be incorporated. Those which are chartered, or registered, choose the members of their own board and also the members of the court to which disputes are referred. Whether registered or not the associations and trade unions are subject to the law. The colony of New Zealand is divided into industrial districts, for each of which there is a conciliation board elected for three years. It consists of two persons chosen by registered employers; two by registered trade unions; and one disinterested person elected by the four, who is Chairman. When a dispute arises between employers and the men in their employ either party may refer the matter in dispute to the district board, which has full authority to investigate the facts and to recommend a settlement. In case either party will not accept the decision, the matter is referred to the state court. This consists of one person representing the trade unions, one the employers, and a chairman, a judge of the Supreme Court, appointed by the Governor. The court has a three years' term and is wisely independent of politics. A decision by this court is final and must be accepted, under a penalty for violation, not exceeding five hundred pounds, or twenty-five hundred dollars. Moreover, when a dispute has been referred to the conciliation board, and until it is finally settled, a strike or lockout is illegal. That there have been about fifty cases referred to district boards or to the court in the past five years, that during that time there has been neither strike nor lockout in New Zealand, and that in every case the decision has been accepted by both parties, seems to prove, either that the law is excellent, or that it is excellently administered. Perhaps it demonstrates both propositions. The necessity for the passage of a similar law in this country is too apparent to require argument. Aside from the interests of the employers and the employed, the greater interests of the general public demand it.

NO BALD HEADS IN ALASKA.

Cold Climate Caused a Great Growth of Hair.

The experience of Roderick Dhu Smith, who recently returned from the Klondike region with a big budget of experience, quite a little sum of money and a head of hair which almost qualifies him to take an engagement as a Circassian girl in a circus—is of especial interest to a large contingent of his fellow men and women. For be it known that Roderick, before making his perilous way to the Arctic regions, though otherwise pleasing to look upon and still on the sunny side of forty, was the owner of a head which made theater ushers, whenever there was a ballet on the program, escort him down to the front row without even glancing at his seat check.

While this might have been considered an advantage by some people, it was not pleasing to Mr. Smith, who is an essentially modest man and averse to being made unduly prominent on any occasion. It is said, too, that his baldness was the real cause of his starting out in search of gold, since he spent all his patrimony in the purchase of hair restorers, and it was necessary for him to do something, no matter how desperate, to retrieve his fallen fortunes.

Be that as it may, he went to Alaska, and after a two years' residence there, has returned a modern Sampson, as far as chevalure is concerned, and he declares that the transformation is entirely due to the rigors of the climate in that quarter of the globe.

"The intense cold kills all germs and microbes," he asserts, "and stimulates the scalp and nature does the rest," and he proudly exhibits his lion-like mane as proof of what nature can do when she takes a fancy, unassisted by washes or oils or unguents of any kind.

P. J. McLeod, who has spent twelve years in Alaska and the Northwest, corroborates his story as to the virtues of that frigid clime as a hair producer.

"My hair was always thick," he says, "so I cannot speak from personal experience, but the way dogs put on hair up there is a caution. They get as shaggy as Shetland ponies, and now I think of it, I never saw a bald-headed fellow anywhere around there. To tell the truth they all look, after they have got to work, as though a razor and a pair of scissors were far more needed than a hair restorer, and I think a missionary barber could do good work among them."—San Francisco Call.

Saving to the Last.

"You have only an hour longer to live," said the physician, solemnly, to the wealthy miser on his death bed. "Is there anything you wish attended to before you pass away?"

"Yes," answered the stricken man, in faint, yet eager, tones. "I am glad you spoke of it. Send for the barber at once and have him shave me before I die. I only have to pay him 50 cents for coming in to shave me now, and the regular price is $1 for shaving a dead man. Might as well save that half dollar while I'm about it."—New York World.

WOMEN

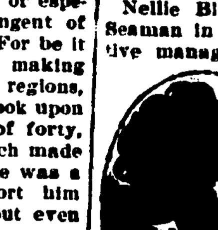
PHYSICAL AND MENTAL MISERY.

OUR American women are proverbially overworked. Many of them are of a slender, fragile build, not able to perform the herculean tasks demanded of them. Oftentimes it is the task of fabled Sisyphus, ever repeating a tedious routine; that is, rolling the never-ceasing stone. It makes one's heart ache, says a writer in the Woman's Home Companion, to think of all the rough work they do—work that sometimes their husbands know nothing about and think nothing about—tasks that are often done by the light of the lamp whose blaze is fed by the midnight oil. And this work is kept up until at last the tired nerves give way or a cough comes on, a sensible decline begins, the housewife falls down prematurely, and a husband is left wifeless and a family without a mother.

Somebody is at fault for all this, but who shall we blame? Life demands so much; society demands so much; your own ambition and pride and your husband's welfare and success are exacting constant surrenders of time and strength. No woman can afford to sacrifice her health and welfare of her higher nature at any price. Work thus becomes a Moloch; but why not refuse the terrible offering of life and blood and strength it claims? Take time to rest. Recreate, read, attend the quarterly meetings. A human life, a soul's happiness, is worth more than a few paltry dollars, the pleasures of outshining your neighbors, having a better house or better-dressed children. Tired, nervous, overtaxed wives, drop that work now and run out and breathe the fresh air of the fields. You will be the better for it, the children will be the better for it, and the work will not be the worse. An hour's ramble or rest, listening to the singing of the birds, the whirr of insects, watching the shadows play with the sunshine, and drinking in the reviving freshness of the balmy winds is cheaper than a doctor's call.

Nellie Bly in Business.

Nellie Bly—Mrs. Cornelia Cochrane Seaman in private life—has taken active management of her husband's large business, the Ironclad Manufacturing Company of Cliff street, and is putting new life and vigor into the concern, which for many years has been a big money maker. Every one remembers Nellie Bly, the newspaper writer, who traveled around the world in sixty days and did various other unusual things in order to write stories about her experiences. She is a brilliant little woman without fear and without reproach. Mr. Seaman, her husband, is an old man and rich. Her company has for years done a business of at least a million a year. The results of Mrs. Seaman's management are already apparent. The business has taken a spurt.



NELLIE BLY.

Women Who Work.

At the present time half of the adult women of England are self-supporting, and, as the same state of affairs is pretty general in other countries, it follows that women are all the world over trying to evolve new ideas by which to earn a living or to supplement their very scanty income.

A Frenchwoman who is endowed with artistic taste found herself with more time on her hands than she knew what to do with.

All of her friends envied her taste in the arrangement of her own home, and one day one of them begged her to take her house in hand and rearrange the furniture, for, though she had plenty of pretty things, everything looked so stiff that the effect was anything but pleasing.

So successful was this little Frenchwoman in her friend's house that she thought she might do well if she utilized her talent for strangers as a means of earning a little money. Accordingly she advertised to do dusting and artistic arrangement by the hour.

Her advertisement brought several answers, and soon she had various clients, who again recommended her to their friends, till now she has her time fully and remuneratively occupied.—Boston Traveler.

Talk Business Only.

"Never allow yourself to accept a personal favor of any sort from a business acquaintance," said one of the kings of the financial world to a young woman just entering upon a business career. "You cannot tell when it may seem an obstacle in the way of independent action.

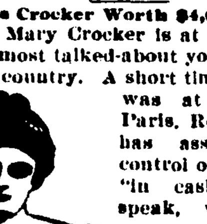
"Be courteous and affable with clients always, but limit your conversation in so far as possible to the definite business in hand, reserving the discussion of all outside matters to the domain of your social life."—Cincinnati Tribune.

Beautifying the Complexion.

A good complexion can be guaranteed to any girl who will wash her face properly at least twice a day. To do this the water must not be quite cold and the soap must be absolutely pure, for soap must be used, though once a day, preferably at night, will be sufficient. Discard all wash gloves, wash cloths and complexion brushes, and instead employ the fingers to rub and pinch every portion of the face, especially about the eyes, mouth and nose; use plenty of soap and water and be careful in rinsing the face to get every particle of soap off; accomplish this successfully and more than half your work is done; then be quite thorough with the drying process. When the face is thoroughly dry wipe it off with a soft silk handkerchief; if it has the least tendency to shine this last process will do away with it entirely.—Ellen Trenor in American Queen.

Miss Crocker Worth $4,000,000.

Miss Mary Crocker is at present one of the most talked-about young women in this country. A short time since she was at school in Paris. Recently she has assumed the control of $4,000,000 "in cash," so to speak, which she can spend in a day if she so desires, and coast reports have her as very lavish in her habits, never wearing the same pair of gloves twice, has a different set of jewels for every day in the week. Her hosiery is imported and comes in great bales.



MISS CROCKER.

Helping Others.

Some days ago these words were quoted by a practical progressive man: "Never morning wore to evening but some heart did break." Looking over the great wide world, journeying over countries old and new, the truth of these words comes to you with keenest force. In every home, in every city or town, in every country, some trouble is to be found. Many times it is carefully concealed, many times it is so terrible that it cannot be hidden, and what are we doing to alleviate this misery? The holidays are near at hand, and far and wide the joy bells will ring out their glad hosannas, but let us try to make every one appreciate their music and not feel that to them it is only a mockery. Do something to make life pleasant and hopeful for someone, and in just such measure shall your own life blossom into the beautiful flowers of hope and content.

About Baby.

Some mothers never seem to think it necessary to dress their babies any warmer in December than in August. Poor little blue things, no wonder they are cross and colicky, arrayed in the same amount of clothing that they wore the hottest day last summer, with the bleak winds of winter howling around. Remember, they are very sensitive to changes in the weather, says a writer in the Ladies' World. The proper way would be to have some cute little flannelette wrappers to slip on over dresses. Inspect their feet often and "toast" them by the fire, and keep their hands warm. A warm baby is almost sure to be a fat and good-natured one. It is utterly impossible for babies to thrive and be happy when they are chilly all the time. We all know how unpleasant that feeling is; so keep the baby warm.

New Field for Women.

Cleveland has a young woman druggist who is a pioneer in a field which she believes is a splendid one for women. There are plenty of women doctors and lawyers, but women druggists are scarce. MORMONISM IN CHICAGO.

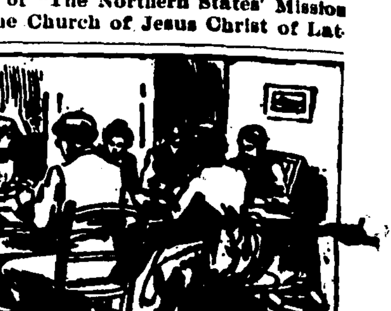
Where the Second Largest Mormon Missionary Society Has Its Seat.

Chicago is the headquarters for the second largest Mormon missionary society in the world. As a proselyting center for the Mormon Church it ranks next to Salt Lake City. From Chicago the disciples of polygamy direct more extensive and thorough missionary operations than those carried on by any orthodox church society in the city. Two hundred and thirty Mormon elders of "The Northern States' Mission of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints" receive their orders from an office at No. 143 Le Moyne street. Thirty of these elders are stationed in Chicago, and are distributing over a thousand tracts a day among the poorer classes and the foreign element of the city. They have three regularly organized churches, in which their doctrines are preached twice every Sunday. Forty thousand dollars a year is about the sum which the Mormon Church is paying out to extend its prestige in Chicago, and over a quarter of a million dollars to convert the people of the surrounding country. The eleven States in which Chicago's Mormon missionaries work are Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Indiana, Wisconsin, North Dakota and South Dakota and Kentucky.



MORMON LITERARY BUREAU.

The Mormon Church in Chicago was founded by Brigham H. Roberts. He saw that Chicago, with its heterogeneous elements, its foreign slum population of nearly 200,000, its liberal attitude toward apostles of all strange sects, and its central position, was by long odds the most available center from which the Mormon Church might carry on its proselyting operations. The story of his first visit to Chicago gives a curious insight into the workings of the church of the Latter Day Saints.

ELDER CURING THE SICK.

When Roberts first decided to enter national politics he did so without consulting the chief council of Mormon elders. He ran for Congress and was defeated by the votes of his own people. This was not from any dislike of Mr. Roberts himself or of his practices. The Mormon Council at Salt Lake City requires its elders to obtain permission of the church before taking an active part in politics. Roberts ignored the rule of the church, and all the ecclesiastical machinery of that body was set in motion against him. He was beaten by his own party, and after that was compelled to make an abject apology to the president and the council. They fixed his penance at a year's missionary work in the interest of Mormonism. He went to Chicago in the winter of '94 and '95 and preached for six months and founded the main Mormon Church.

Etiquette of Golf.

Here are some things which you will do well to remember when you go on to the golf links, either as a player or as an onlooker: Standing so that a shadow falls upon your partner's ball is not only impolite, but detrimental to th esuccess of his "drive." Standing on the putting green after you have "holed out," whether it is to gaze at the scenery or write down your score, will exasperate your best friend on earth if he or she happens to be playing behind you. To play first and to shout "Fore!" afterward is apt to add insult to actual injury. "Fore" is called as a warning that a "drive" is about to be made. It is not an expression of consolation after one has been hit. If you choose as a partner a woman who keeps you back by slow play, don't quarrel with her on this account. Abide by your choice and do what you can to help her to enjoy the game.

Awful Depth.

The depth of the Atlantic between the Canary Islands and the West Indies is something awful. A pretty level bottom runs right away from the African islands to the American ones, gradually deepening to nearly 19,000 feet.

Scent of Lobsters.

Lobsters can smell as well as animals that live upon the land. A piece of decayed meat suspended in the water in the locality where lobsters are abundant will soon be surrounded by a greedy, fighting crowd.

Alcohol in Lemon Extract.

Lemon extract has become a favorite beverage with the Poncha Indians, owing to the quantity of alcohol which it contains, and it is said that they have been able to get roaring drunk on a fifty-cent bottle.

The up-to-date man has no time for ancient history.

KEEP TO THE RIGHT.

"Keep to the right," is the law of the road—
Make it a law of your moral code;
In whatsoe'er you determine to do,
Follow the road of the Good and the True;
Follow and fear not; by day and by night,
Up hill or down hill, "keep to the right."

Doubt will assail you, temptation will woo—
"Keep to the right," for the right is the true;
Doubt is a traitor, temptation a shame;
A heart that is honest, a life without blame,
Will rank you far higher, in worth and renown,
Than the grandest of kings, with his scepter and crown.

"Keep to the right," in the journey of life,
There is crowding and jostling, trouble and strife;
The weak will succumb to the bold and the strong,
And many go under and many go wrong;
He will acquit himself best in the fight
Who shirks not his duty, and "keeps to the right."

"Keep to the right," and the Right will keep you
In touch and accord with the Good and the True;
These are the best things in life, after all,
They make it worth living, whatever befall,
And Death has not terrors, when he comes in sight,
For the man who determines to "keep to the right."

THE GLORIFICATION OF THE COLONEL.

BY R. CLYDE FORD.

WE all wondered how he could be a military man, he was so young, so aristocratic in manners, such a dandy, too—and to call him "Colonel!" It was incomprehensible. At the first opportunity I spoke to Miss Catherwood about it. She looked at me quizzically for a moment, then burst into a fit of laughter.

"I'm in earnest," I said, "explain the mystery."

"But you are in the South, now, you know."

"I did not know it was a question of geography," I rejoined, somewhat severely. "I supposed it was a question of war, that colonels were soldiers, and grownup men at that."

"'Colonel'—there it is again! My dear Miss Catherwool, is he really a colonel?"

"A sort of one, by brevet of Southern politeness, down here, you know, a man may become a colonel in several ways. In the first place he is called colonel when he is a fine-looking old gentleman with white hair, and a somewhat threadbare Prince Albert coat. But in the latter case he runs some chance of being called general. On the other hand, if he is young but of good family, fine appearance and manners, and has once commanded a local military company, he is also designated as colonel. Col. Whitmore is of the latter class, but hush, here he comes now."

She pointed over across the lawn where the "colonel" was to be seen promenading towards the hotel with Mrs. O'Hara, widow of "General" O'Hara, people said. To this day I don't know whether Gen. O'Hara won his spurs in battle or out of it, but no matter. As the colonel came up I viewed him somewhat more closely in the light of Miss Catherwood's information, and really I could not help laughing—he was such a grotesque figure. He might have been 30 years old, not any older, but walked with the pomposity of a sedate old man who had made a great mark in the world. He was rather heavy set, and wore a flowered waistcoat. I judged he was nearsighted, for he walked with a lean to one side, as if slightly out of balance, twisting his neck for better vision. He wore light flannel trousers turned up from a pair of handsome brown shoes and a yachting cap.

He was so much interested in one of his "inimitable"—the word is Mrs. O'Hara's not mine—stories that he hardly noticed us on the veranda. But, poor man, I don't think he could see us very well. At any rate he did not halt in his narrative. "I insisted," he was saying, "that I was an American citizen from the State of Virginia, but the police would not hear to me and I was hustled off to jail, without opportunity to prove my identity. However, I bribed the guard to carry my card with the one word 'Help!' on it to our ambassador and that same night he came over in person and secured my release. The matter threatened to sever the hitherto amicable relations existing between the two countries, but it was finally settled by paying me an indemnity."

"What an exciting experience, colonel," said Mrs. O'Hara, solicitously.

"O, a mere bagatelle, I assure you. One who has traveled as much as I have learns to put up with such trifling annoyances."

"I think I must go now," said Mrs. O'Hara, rising. "I hope we may have many more such pleasant walks." She rustled away and the colonel, lifting his cap, bowed low, at the same time laying his disengaged hand upon his heart.

When Mrs. O'Hara went the colonel turned to Miss Catherwood with a gracious salutation. He looked at me somewhat hesitatingly and I said, turning to my companion: "I don't think I've had the pleasure of being formally introduced to Col. Whitmore."

Miss Catherwood smiled. "Col. Whitmore, allow me to present Mr. Montgomery to you, one of those suspicious newspaper men from New York."

Again the colonel made a sweeping bow and then sat down by us.

"A fine day," said Miss Catherwood. I shall always think the question was addressed to me, but the colonel answered it.

"A superb day, a day when the soul of man expands and luxuriates in the midst of nature's charms. It reminds me of days in the Riviera or in the Taunton valley in Virginia. Upon my estate one has——"

But I interrupted. "A landowner, colonel? I congratulate you."

"In a mild way. Some paltry hundreds of acres in the garden of Virginia, sir; but what is land compared to power, intellectual influence? Why, sir, if I were not so engrossed by my landed interests I should repair to some metropolis and give my services over to the press. The journalist is the man of influence to-day, sir."

I was on the point of trying to say something to discourage him from this notion when dinner was announced, and we left the veranda. The colonel and I bowed chivalrously to each other at the door of the dining-room and parted.

That evening I took a stroll with Thompson, the manager of the hotel, who was an old friend. As we walked we fell to discussing Whitmore.

"A most egregious liar," volunteered my companion.

"How so! You surprise me."

"Why, haven't you heard him talk? Half of his so-called real experiences are pure inventions. Only yesterday he told me about being arrested in Germany for less majeste."

"I think he was telling Mrs. O'Hara the same thing to-day."

"Yes, well, I know positively he never was in Europe in his life."

"You don't say so!"

"And as for those hundreds of acres in 'the garden of Virginia,' I happen to know he doesn't own a foot of land. He's a big liar, but at the same time a delightful guest. I like to have him here—he's a capital hand at entertainment and very obliging."

"And a colonel," I added, maliciously.

"Colonel by the grace of God," remarked the landlord, irreverently, "but he likes the title, and I confess it seems to fit him."

Several weeks went by. Guests came and went at the hotel, but the colonel, Miss Catherwood and Mrs. O'Hara remained. Mrs. O'Hara liked the restfulness of the mountains, Miss Catherwood liked Mrs. O'Hara, and the colonel, well, at first we would not believe it, but finally we had to, the colonel liked Miss Catherwood. For a time we all thought it was his Virginia courtliness that made his attentions to her look like devotion, but at last we voted he was in love, deeply; hopelessly in love. We felt sorry for him, of course. He haunted Miss Catherwood constantly, strolled with her, rowed with her, played golf with her, and carried her books and wraps around like a slave. He even became more of a liar for her sake. Europe was drawn on daily to furnish startling experiences, and Taunton valley, "the garden of Virginia," became a paradise, an elysium, with his broad acres in the midst of it.

"MARRY YOU, COL. WHITMORE!"

We all felt sorry for Miss Catherwood, too, we thought it must be rather unpleasant for her to have so much pomposity, mendacity and rotundity in tow all the time, but we could no nothing. The colonel hovered around her with feverish anxiety whenever we tried to rescue her, and at last we gave it up. If she wouldn't kill him off, why should we?

One night I strolled down to a seat at the bottom of the lawn, where I intended to watch the moon rise over the Notch. It was a delicious evening, with just enough vigor in the air to make one lament that vacations did not last forever, an evening when one can enjoy solitude. As I sat pensively gazing across the valley toward the distant gorge, which was gradually lighting up with the first rays of the moon, I became aware of voices near me. My seat was screened off by a clump of bushes from the rest of the lawn and in my musings some one had taken possession of another bench close by. At first I paid no attention to the voices, but suddenly my interest was aroused.

"Marry you, Col. Whitmore! You surprise me."

The reply was inaudible, but fervent, and some minutes passed before I heard Miss Catherwood's voice again.

"I am sorry, Col. Whitmore, very sorry, indeed, but I didn't suppose your gallant devotion to me would lead you to marry me. I really do like you very well, but not in the way you desire. You have been kind and entertaining, and all that, have made my little sojourn here pass pleasantly and I'm very grateful to you, I'm sure; but marry you—what an idea!"

I confess I began to feel sorry for the colonel, she had such an airy, easy way of dispatching a fellow without mercy. Again he made some impassioned answer which I could not understand. Miss Catherwood greeted it with a ripple of laughter, yes, she actually laughed.

"I don't know but I might as well tell you, colonel, why I would not marry you—your remark about the Whitmore estate just now leads me to. Don't you know there is no Whitmore estate? There may be a 'garden of Virginia, sir,' with an imitation of poor Whitmore's pronunciation, "but there are no broad acres in it that you own. And then all your talk about Europe, your experiences in Russia, your gambling at Monte Carlo, your arrest in Germany—that's all very amusing as fiction, but it has no foundation in fact."

She paused as the colonel tried to stammer out a reply. Then she went on:

"And your pompous lordliness, your affected manners, even your title of colonel, as nicely as it fits you, annoy me. You are not a real man; you are a sort of summer man, created for resort places and lonely spinsters—or widows," she added, probably alluding to Mrs. O'Hara.

"I want a man to fall in love with me, and when I marry I'll marry a man. Come now, colonel, don't be mad at me"—I caught the sound of a swear word—"I may seem severe—but a woman has ideals like men, and it's hard to see them humbled or destroyed. We'll be friends, though, just the same, colonel, and you may lay my heartlessness to the fact that I am almost 30 years old, and cross and ugly."

She tripped away toward the house, and left the poor colonel wilted as a leaf. I felt sorry for him, upon my word I did, especially when I heard him sob. It's so pathetic when a man breaks down and sobs.

The next day Miss Catherwood and Mrs. O'Hara left the hotel and before the week was over the rest of us had gone.

When the next summer came I was with the other newspaper men with our army before Santiago. Frequently on some of those hot days I thought of the mountains up north, and the hotel, and once or twice I actually thought of Whitmore, but when I did I laughed, for he did not very much resemble the soldiers I saw around me, and I fancied his namby-pamby manners would not hold out long against rain, mud, fever and poor food.

One day I made a discovery that brought back the hotel very vividly again. Miss Catherwood was a nurse in one of the field hospitals, and the surgeon said a very valuable one. I visited her once or twice, on my way between headquarters and the front, and chatter with her for a moment. I was ashamed of it, but every time I saw her I could not help thinking of Whitmore and the way she had flayed him alive. No wonder she relished this army life, with plenty of men dead and dying.

Then came one of those bloody days when our lines were tightening in a death grip on Santiago. It was war with a vengeance and the hospitals were getting their quota fast. As I made my way through the jungle toward our firing line I had to pass the hospital tent. I looked in a moment to see how Miss Catherwood was faring, and to hand her a note from the surgeon.

As I stood there a Red Cross man and a soldier brought in a man on a litter.

"He's my captain," I heard the soldier say to Miss Catherwood, who met them, "and he's a regular devil. Why, he led us men right through that scrub and barb wire, and up the slope, the bullets plugging around like hail, and at the top of the hill they knocked him over, but he got up and swore, and yelled, and went in again. I saw him shoot a Spaniard not twenty feet from the blockhouse. And then he went over again."

Miss Catherwood did not pay much attention to the man, stories of such valor were common enough. But the soldier had to talk to some one about his captain, so he turned to me.

"After we carried him back to the rear he wouldn't let the surgeons touch him till they'd cut and sawed all the other fellows who needed it worse than he did. Just lay there in the hot sun and let the flies buzz over him and never a word. He's a perfect devil of a man to fight."

The assistants lifted the wounded man on to a cot, and turned to go. Just then he opened his eyes in a wild way, and in his delirium started to swear, I think, but caught sight of the nurse and stopped. Hearing him say something, Miss Catherwood came toward him. Close to the cot she stopped, moaned, held out her hands, then knelt down by him.

"O Colonel Whitmore, my colonel," she cried.

He turned his head uneasily. "In the garden of Virginia," I heard him say.—Detroit Free Press.

Outward Effects the Same.

Two reporters, slightly acquainted with each other, met one day at a lunch counter.

"You're not eating anything, Larkins," remarked one of the two, after they had exchanged a few commonplaces.

"No," replied Larkins. "I am so worked up over the scoop I got this morning on the Daily Cyclone fellow, about the bankruptcy of that big firm on Silver street, that I haven't any appetite. But you are not eating anything either, Hawkins."

"No," gloomily responded Hawkins. "I'm the fellow you scooped."

Where England Beats Scotland.

England takes the lead over Scotland in some things. The other day seven illiterate jurors got into the box together to hold an inquest.

Commerce of Philippines.

Washington.—The war department has made public the following summary of the commerce of the Philippines during the month of July, 1899: The total value of merchandise imported at all ports in the archipelago during said month amounted to $1,577,530, of which amount articles to the value of $192,192 were imported free of duty. Articles of food and animals imported amounted to $581,022, or 37 per cent of the total; manufactured articles to $479,231, or 30 per cent of the total. The total value of merchandise exported during the month amounted to $1,156,469. Products of agriculture amounted $1,019,881, or 88 per cent of the total.

A Tragic Death.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Word has been received here of the tragic death in South America of Ervin Hopkins, Jr., son of Ervin Hopkins, a veteran member of the Chicago board of trade.

While on an exploring expedition into the interior his boat ran aground on a sandspit. It is supposed that in trying to float his craft, standing in the water himself, he was bitten by a poisonous reptile, death resulting quickly. His body was found several days later by a native employed by the company. Indications of a terrific struggle were apparent.

Failed to Explode.

Leadville, Col., Jan. 26.—Another dynamite outrage—the fourth since Sunday—was committed when an explosion occurred in the rear of the Western opera house. The damage was slight. When the police arrived they found two sticks of giant powder that had failed to explode. The city is greatly excited and a force of night watchmen will be employed.

Thrown From His Buggy.

Gilroy, Cliff, Jan. 26.—Henry Miller, the California cattle king, was thrown from his buggy and sustained concussion of the brain. It is feared the injury is extremely serious. Miller is one of the richest men in California and conducted the enormous cattle business of Miller & Lux. The firm owns over 1,000,000 acres of land on the Pacific coast.

Remains of Ruskin Interred.

London, Jan. 26.—The remains of John Ruskin were interred at Coniston amidst universal signs of sadness and with a ceremony typically rural. All parts of the country were represented at the graveside.

San Francisco, Jan. 30.—James O. Gleason, a former member of the Twentieth Kansas volunteers, was shot and killed in a saloon here by an unknown man who escaped. The man had quarreled with a woman and Gleason, who was tending bar, went to her protection, when he received the fatal shot.

Deaths From Prostration.

Chicago.—The weather in the vicinity of Melbourne, Australia, has broken all records for heat recently. On New Year's day five deaths occurred from prostration, and as late as 5 o'clock in the afternoon the thermometer stood at 114 in the shade. In the sun the temperature was recorded as high as 156 degrees, and it stood at that point for several hours.

Bold Bank Robbery.

Madison, Wis.—The Bank of Deerfield, 16 miles east of here, was robbed of about $17,000 recently. The vault was blown open with dynamite. The robbers escaped.

Was Charged With Murder.

Seattle, Jan. 29.—The man who was killed at Lake Union was identified as Charles Marbacher, a waiter in a downtown restaurant. Charles Shomo, owner of a saloon in the tenderloin district of Seattle, was arrested charged with the murder. It is alleged that Marbacher has been annoying Shomo's wife by unseemly attentions within the last few weeks. It is further claimed that Marbacher is the man upon whose trail the police have been for several weeks for indecent exposure towards little girls. The description given by the little girls tallies with that of the dead man. When Shomo was arrested a rifle of the same calibre as the bullet which dealt the fatal shot was found. Shomo protests his innocence and says he was asleep when the shooting is said to have occurred.

Goebel Won.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 29.—The first actual test of strength between the republican and democratic forces in the Goebel-Taylor contest came and by the admission of the republican leaders proved a victory for Goebel. The democrats claim the result of the struggle as decisive, while the republicans, although freely admitting a defeat, declare they will fight to the finish, and have still strong hopes of retaining Governor Taylor in his seat.

THE GENESEE NEWS.

Subscription rates, one year, $2; six months, 50c.

J. W. HOPP, CHAS. POWER } Editors and Proprietors.

—Some 50 workingmen came down from Spokane on Tuesday's train and walked over the hill to Juliaetta to assist in the rebuilding of the road recently washed away. They resembled a small Boer army.

—The Tri-Weekly New York Tribune, launched two months ago, has made great strides forward in its circulation and is now greater than the weekly. A model, great and influential journal and the News would be pleased to send in a few more subscriptions for it. It fills the bill of a daily and can be had with this paper or only $2.50. Try it.

—Though the ice is not thick enough to the harvesters, on ponds it is thick enough to allow the young people to have lots of fun on skates, and they are having it.

A maiden fair with sun kissed hair
Came tripping down the street;
Her face severe, her age sixteen,
Gee whiz! but she was sweet!
On the ice so slick she came down quick
With a jolt that shook her curls.
But the words she used must be excused,

—Our wholesale paper house inform us again the price of goods take another advance. As we cannot advance our price our profit must necessarily be smaller. The simple fact is that the price of paper has advanced the same as almost every other commodity in the last year, in response to the economic law of supply and demand all over the world. The mills are paying higher wages, paying more for all ingredients, and for mill supplies, including sulphur and coal, and for transportation of his products. The rise is general and the wages are higher now than for 25 years.

—The market price for nearly all farm products is good. Eggs 20 cts.; pork 3¼ cents and beef 3½ cents on foot; potatoes 40 cents per sack; ranch butter 15 cents and creamery butter 22 cents per pound. Note the difference in butter. With a creamery the farmer would get more for his product. He would raise more hogs and cattle; he would feed his potatoes and 35 cent wheat to stock and double his profit on them. This would require no outlay of money for machinery and less hired help would be required. It is claimed by Prof. Bryan of Pullman that money is made by feeding 60c wheat to stock. It costs from 6 to 10 cents to produce a pound of butter and from 25 to 35 cents to produce a bushel of wheat. Consider this carefully. To be sure it is pleasanter to raise wheat, less work and so on, but in order to make anything at it the price must average higher than in has for the past seven years. At mixed farming the farmer has work the year round and cash in his jeans. An ordinary creamery alone pays out about $3000 to $4000 a month in small sums which circulates among all the people and accomplishes much good.

—The St. Paul Pioneer Press says the right way is "Porto Rico" and not "Puerto Rico." Editor Scott of the Oregonian holds the opposite view. Which shall we believe?

—The Colville reservation cannot be opened under six months and then only the north half and the settler will be required to pay $1.50 per acre, a third in two years and balance when proof is made.

—The senate committee on pensions has reported adversely a bill to pension ex-slaves. It has done this, instead of simply pigeonholing the bill and allowing it to sleep, because dishonest men are using the fact that it has been introduced as a means of obtaining money from the poverty-stricken southern negroes. An association has been formed under the name of The ex-Slave Bounty and Pension Association of the United States of America, with local associations in various parts of the country, and constitutions and by-laws have been adopted and membership certificates issued upon the hypothesis and promise that congress would certainly favorably legislate on the subject. It is estimated that already $100,000 has been taken from the poor and deluded victims. The promoters of the scheme know perfectly well, says the committee, that such a bill will never be passed.

—Under the settlement of the truce between the Northern Pacific and the O. R. & N. companies, as it is telegraphed from New York, the Oregon railroad will build 77 miles of track between Riparia and Clarkston, Vineland, opposite Lewiston. From present indications Clarkston is going to be the center of a good deal of railroad activity. A short time ago the O. R. & N. Co. paid $15,000 in cash for a right-of-way through Vineland, its depot grounds for Lewiston-Clarkston being in Clarkston just at the end of the Lewiston bridge, and central to the entire valley. The right-of-way is five miles long and sixty feet wide. The purchase seems to confirm the report that the road is to build up the west bank of the Snake river to the mouth of the Salmon, thence to meet the Pacific & Idaho Northern from Weiser, forming a complete line for the Union Pacific to the coast, and probably making a junction with the Northern Pacific in Clarkston.

A Convincing Answer.

"I hobbled into Mr. Blackmon's drug store one evening," says Wesley Nelson, of Hamilton, Ga., "and he asked me to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism with which I had suffered for a long time. I told him I had no faith in any medicine as they all failed. He said: 'Well if Chamberlain's Pain Balm does not help you, you need not pay for it.' I took a bottle of it home and used it according to the directions and in one week I was cured, and have not since been troubled with rheumatism." Sold by all druggists.

The three-year-old son of W. B. Evans, an engineer on the St. John's motor line at Portland, climbed into an engine which was standing in the yard, and opened the throttle. In a short space of time the engine was going at the rate of 20 miles an hour. When within 300 yards of the end of the line the steam died down and a heavy grade was encountered, which slackened the speed. The boy held onto the throttle all the way, and was not at all disconcerted over his perilous ride.

Proclamation to Filipinos.

Washington, Jan. 29.—It is stated on excellent authority that President McKinley is devoting much of his time to consideration of a plan to issue a proclamation to the Filipinos through General Otis. It is said that he proposes to give general amnesty to all who lay down their arms within a certain time under penalty of being declared bandits and that he will direct the institution of a form of civil government to supersede military authority pending action by congress transmitting the report of the Philippine commission, and recommending that definite action declaring for retention and arranging for the government be taken.

It is thought that General Otis will shortly be recalled and that a new commission, with Colonel Denby as president, will be sent to the islands with ample authority to arrange for civil government.

The American Anti-Imperialistic league, which was organized at the anti-imperialistic conference held in Chicago in September, claims to have an effective organization in 38 states, Oklahoma and the District of Columbia.

To Continue the War.

It has been learned by the Associated Press that the queen's speech at the reassembling of parliament will be colorless. There will be a short reference to the war, chiefly confined to regrets at the terrible bloodshed and encomiums for the men who have laid down their lives for their country.

The whole proclamation indicates that there is not the slightest idea of giving up the war until Great Britain's ends are gained.

LABOR NOTES.

In Kimberley, under the British flag, the mines are kept going seven days a week.

In the Transvaal the working day for both black and white men is eight hours by law.

In the Transvaal, Sunday labor is prohibited, and the authorities fine any employer who permits it.

A benefit ball in Rossland for two injured miners brought in $1,200, which was increased by subscription to $2,000.

Wages at the Kimberley mines under Rhodes & Co., and the British government are less by one-half than those at the Transvaal mines.

The coal mines at Scranton, Pa., are being closed down. Five hundred men have already been thrown out of employment, and there is serious trouble ahead. The mining companies have persistently refused to recognize in any way the Mine Workers' Union and have now locked the men out to avoid a strike.

BRITISH FORCED TO GO BACK

LADYSMITH'S FATE UNKNOWN.

General Buller in Close Quarters—Rumors From Berlin—Big English Loss—Reported Relief of Mafeking.

Spion Kop Captured.

London, Jan. 26.—The war office has received the following telegram from Gen. Buller:

"Gen. Warren's troops have occupied Spion kop, surprising the small garrison, who fled. It has been held by us all day, though we were heavily attacked especially by a very annoying shell fire.

"I fear our casualties are considerable, and I have to inform you, with regret, that Gen. Woodmate was dangerously wounded.

"Gen. Warren is of the opinion that he has rendered the enemy's position untenable. The men are splendid."

Situation at Kimberley.

Kimberley, Jan. 25.—Bombardments have ceased, but the Boers are perpetually engaged in sniping.

Is Warren in a Trap?

London, Jan. 26.—The jubilation over General Warren's achievement in capturing Spion kop is chastened by a realization that his success is only provisional, as it appears clear from Buller's dispatch that the Boers fully realize the strategical importance of Spion kop and at the time his message was sent off they had not abandoned the hope of recapturing the position. Nevertheless, a heavy load of anxiety has been removed from the nation and there is a general expectation that as the British have succeeded in keeping the hill all day long they will manage to retain it until General Warren plants guns enough on it to dominate the Boer trenches right and left.

There is the usual disposition here to exaggerate the importance of the point scored, but it is realized that Buller still has a task before him, calling for the most dogged persistence and untiring attack, and that the difficulties will increase as the position develops.

It is even suggested that the Boers inveigled the British into occupying Spion kop and have now surrounded them. It is evident that, in spite of the fact that the British hold Potgieters drift and the hills above, the Boers have succeeded in bringing up enough artillery to inflict considerable losses on the British force which seized Spion kop, although Lord Dundonald is supposed to have been scouting the country behind the ranges in order to prevent this very thing, and although General Lyttleton ough.. to get near enough to Spion kop to either intercept the retreating Boers or prevent a serious attack, once the British had taken possession of the hill.

The War Situation.

London, Jan. 29.—Spencer Wilkinson, in articles on the war situation, has attracted much attention here and abroad. He wrote the following review of the situation for the Associated Press after the war office had given out a telegram from General Roberts, dated at Cape Town, saying there was no change in the situation:

"The affair of Spion Kop appears very like a reverse at the decisive point of the decisive battle. According to General Buller's telegram, General Warren was determined to take the hill because it commanded the enemy's other positions. Having taken it Tuesday night he abandoned it Wednesday night, presumably because he was unable to hold it.

"The published words of General Buller's telegram have the tone in which a reverse is announced. Whether the mishap can be made good it is impossible to say.

London, Jan. 29.—The only news issued by the war office is a dispatch from Lord Roberts, stating that the situation is unchanged and that General French reports a reconnaissance of the enemy's position on Thursday when he found the Boers strongly posted at Pietfontein.

A special dispatch from Colenso says that Commandant Lucas Myers' commando surprised and surrounded a strong body of General Methuen's infantry, killing and wounding 23 and capturing 15.

Says Warren Was Lured In.

Berlin, Jan. 29.—Some of the papers here claim to have a telegram from Pretoria saying that General Warren was enticed into Spion Kop, where the Boers fell upon him.

That 17 of his cannon were captured and that Buller's hasty retreat over the Tugela river alone can save him.

The alleged Pretoria telegram adds that the British losses were 800 men killed and 1500 men wounded.

The dispatch comes through Brussels and does not receive much credence in this city.

It is said that the German foreign office has a confirmation of the report that General Warren's division has been crushed.

London, Jan. 29.—The war office has no news of the catastrophe to Buller's force, reported from Berlin, and discredits the story.

Canada's Brave Volunteers.

Halifax, N. S., Jan. 29.—The second detachment of the second Canadian contingent to South Africa have embarked on the Pomeranian, marching through the city on their way to the transport.

After inspection they were addressed by Lieutenant Governor Daly and Major Hamilton, who wished them godspeed.

Boers Tell of the Battle.

Boer Camp, Modder Spruit, Upper Tugela, Jan. 29.—The British are now endeavoring to force with 40,000 troops the Spion Kop route to Ladysmith. The firing on General Botha's position yesterday was terrific. The grass was fired, rocks dislodged and trenches pierced, but the battle was practically one-sided, the federals only firing 30 shots. A ball from a shell lended in General Botha's pocket. The only Boer casualties were some horses wounded.

The firing ceased at dark, but was resumed this morning in the vicinity of Ladysmith and here, but up to noon it lacked vigor.

Lorenzo Marquez, Jan. 29.—It is reported on good Transvaal authority that Mafeking was relieved on January 23.

British Retreated.

London, Jan. 29.—General Buller says: General Warren's troops have retreated south of the Tugela river. The Boers say the British loss was 1500 killed last Wednesday. It is believed here this includes the wounded. The Boers also claim that 150 of the English troops surrendered at Spion Kop.

General Buller's dispatch to the war office states that Spion Kop was abandoned on account of lack of water, inability to bring artillery there and the heavy Boer fire.

General Buller gives no list of casualties. His whole force withdrew south of the Tugela river with the evident intention of reaching Ladysmith by another route.

New York, Jan. 30.—A special cablegram from London to the Evening World says:

"It is learned from a reliable source that Lord Roberts has advised the abandonment of Ladysmith."

At the war office, the dispatch adds, no confirmation could be obtained of the advices said to have been given by Lord Roberts.

Defeat Is Acknowledged.

London, Jan. 30.—The usual airy attempts to minimize the seriousness of the situation in South Africa are entirely lacking and it is frankly acknowledged that the most serious effort of the present war has most dismally failed. There is no sign or wish of the leaders of public opinion to disguise the ugly facts, but on the contrary, there is every disposition to face the full difficulty and discover the best way out. In short, the policy voiced everywhere is a gathering up of the forces for more effective blows. All hopes of the speedy relief of Ladysmith have been abandoned and the consensus of expert opinion urges the immediate shifting of the theater of war from the rocky kopjes of Natal to the open veldt of the Free State. One thing is certain, another long pause is inevitable, because even in event of General Buller further attempting to reach Ladysmith, the planning of a new move will necessarily occupy time.

The Maine Disaster.

New York, Jan. 31.—The Herald publishes what purports to be the long-kept secret of the Spanish plot that led to the destruction of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor and the precipitation of the war between the United States and Spain. The Maine story is told in an affidavit made by Edward Jose de Martinez, who claims he was the secret agent of Spain and was directly concerned in the Maine plot.

De Martinez' motives are not clear, as he claims to be a son of a Spanish grandee, and appears to verify many of his statements. He married an American woman in Florida.

Resisted Capture.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Jan. 30.—A report has reached this city that a posse of Union Pacific detectives, headed by Tom Horn, had run down two of the Union Pacific robbers in the Hole-in-the-Wall, and after a desperate fight killed both of them. One of the pursuing party was shot, but it is thought not seriously. It is known that the robbers separated in two gangs after leaving the railroad, and the men reported killed were those who were trailed through the mountains so closely and afterwards escaped. It is supposed that they returned to the Hole-in-the-Wall when they thought the pursuit was over and the detectives have been watching the rendezvous ever since, until they got their men.

Noted Confederate Dead.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 30.—Major General J. P. Brander, past grand commander of the Virginia grand camp of Confederate Veterans, who was known throughout the south for his prominence in all confederate reunions, died here, aged 60 years.

Brakeman Was Killed.

Victoria, B. C., Jan. 29.—Richard Wilson, a brakeman on the Esquimalt & Nanaimo railroad, was killed at Russel Station, falling between the cars of the freight train from Wellington, and the entire train passing over him. Wilson leaves a widow and three children. He came here only six weeks ago from Toronto.

Salt Lake, Jan. 29.—In compliance with the revised statutes of the state of Utah Governor Wells has issued a proclamation calling an election to be held on Monday, the second day of April next, for the purpose of electing a representative in the 56th congress to fill the vacancy caused by the expulsion of Brigham H. Roberts.

PROCEEDINGS IN CONGRESS

SUMMARY OF THEIR WORK.

Several Resolutions Introduced—The Clark Investigation—Nicaragua Bill Sure to Pass—Senator Turner an Anti-Expansionist—Notes of the House.

The proposition made by the Filipino leader, Senor Mabini, for a civil commission to treat with the Filipinos will not be considered by the administration until Aguinaldo surrenders, and in official circles the general disposition is to regard Mabini's request as another play for delay.

It is the purpose of President McKinley to inaugurate a civil government to supersede the military rule in the Philippines at the earliest possible moment, and he is favorably inclined toward a commission in lieu of a governor general, and is discussing the question of available men for such a commission. If his present plans are carried out, the Filipinos will have all of the commissions they want to confer with for in addition to a commission for the government of the islands, it is not unlikely that congress will appoint a joint commission to investigate the islands next summer and report to the next session as a guide for future legislation.

A great deal of interest was manifested in congressional circles in the communication from Senor Mabini. There is some diversity of opinion over the proposition and its feasibility.

The Senate committe on Commerce Friday gave a hearing to the representatives of a number of business organizations throughout the country in support of the bill to amend the interstate commerce law.

The sub-committee of the senate committee on commerce appointed to consider the ship subsidy bill, agreed to recommend several changes in the bill. One of the amendments agreed upon limits the amount to be paid in any one year for 20 and 21 knot vessels to $2,000,000 in the aggregate. Another change places vessels of 11, 12 and 13 knots speed in the special premium class, this action being taken to encourage low-power freight vessels. A third amendment provides for the addition of foreign built ships of certain classes where a majority of the stock is owned by American citizens. The requirement in the bill as introduced was that 80 per cent of the stock should be owned in this country.

On Saturday the senate committee on Puerto Rico decided so far as it can decide that the island shall be known as Porto Rico and not Puerto Rico as fixed by a recent executive order. The committee went over the Foraker bill in detail, deciding upon many changes in phraseology and some alterations in the provisions of the bill. Probably one of the most important changes was to strike out the word "constitution" wherever it occurred, as it extended the provisions of the constitution as well as the laws to the island. Another important amendment provides for the retirement of the Puerto Rican coins and substitutes for them the coins of the United States.

After almost a week's respite, the senate committee on privileges and elections Monday resumed the investigation of the charges filed against Clark of Montana, in connection with his election to the United States senate. At the beginning of the session, Campbell, counsel for the protestants, made a brief statement, exonerating Hon. J. K. Toole from any unfair participation in the election of Clark.

Secretary of the Treasury Gage transmitted to the senate his report in answer to the resolution of January 23, calling for further information as to his dealings with the National City bank of New York. Secretary Gage quotes in full the senate resolution and adds that it might be considered as fully answered by his communication of January 10 in reply to the senate's first resolution of inquiry of January 3 on the same subject. He adds, however, that he will endeavor to supply to the best of his ability whatever may have been lacking in the first answer.

Manufacturers' materials, foodstuffs and manufactured goods formed, in order named, the bulk of the $165,000,000 increase in our importations of 1899. The largest proportion of the increase is in manufacturers' materials, which in 1899 were nearly 33 per cent larger than in 1898.

It is now considered as settled at the British embassy that Lord Pauncefote will retire as ambassador to the United States April 1 next.

The senate has refused to reconsider the vote on the Samoan treaty.

In the House.

The house committe on interstate and foreign commerce Friday reconsidered the Nicaraguan canal bill, which had been reported with an appropriation of $140,000,000, and changed the appropriation section so as to make $10,000,000 available, with authority to contract for the entire excavation and completion of the canal at a total cost not to exceed $140,000,000.

The greater portion of the session of the house was devoted to eulogies on the life and public services of the late Vice President Hobart.

The house committe on military affairs agreed to proceed with the investigation of the Idaho labor tdoubles on February 14th, and it was arranged that the Governor and Auditor of the state and General Merriam should be asked to appear at that time. Mr. Sulzer of New York and Mr. Lentz of Ohio, who had been urging the inquiry are to furnish the names of additional witnesses to be examined.

Secretary Hay has sent to Speaker Henderson for submission to the house copies of complaints of the German ambassador here, Dr. Von Holleben, against the existing customs regulations of the United States, applicable to merchandise imported from Germany.

Chairman Meyer of the house committee on public buildings and grounds has received from Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Taylor a detailed statement of the additional amounts required for public buildings now under construction throughout the country on account of the large rise in building material. The list shows the present limit of cost and the proposed limit as follows: Boise, Idaho—Present limit, $50,000; recommendation, $300,000. Butte, Mont.—Present limit, $200,000; recommendation, $300,000. Helena, Mont.—Present limit, $30,000; recommendation, $375,000. Oakland, Cal.—Present limit, $250,000; recommendation, $282,000. The statement of the chief of engineers, presented to the rivers and harbors committee of the house, shows balances available December 31, 1899, for improvements in Washington state and adjacent waters as follows: Mouth of Columbia river, $7806; Columbia, below Tongue point, $111,559; Columbia and lower Willamette, $140,924; Lewis river, $7804; Cowlitz river, $32; gauging waters of Columbia river, $853; Willapa river and harbor, $5601; Gray's harbor and bar entrance, $347,960; Chehalis river, $2928; Puget sound and tributary waters, $38,890; harbor at Olympia, $14,932; waterway connecting Puget sound with Lakes Union and Washington, $170,000; Everett harbor, $46,520; Swinomish slough, $16,858; Okanogan river, $7104; Pend d'Oreille river, $1571; Kootenai river, Idaho, between Bonner's Ferry and international boundary, $745; Upper Columbia and Snake rivers, $5218; Columbia river at Three Mile Rapids and construction of boat railway from The Dalles to Celilo falls, $220,360; canal at the cascades of Columbia river, $72,568; Columbia river, from Vancouver to mouth of Willamette, $10,204; Clearwater river, Idaho, $12,876.

Immediately after the reading of the journal in the house Monday Mr. Dalzell, from the committee on rules, reported back the Sulzer resolution for the appointment of a committee to investigate the deposit of public funds by Secretary Gage in New York banks and all transactions relating to the sale of the New York custom house, with the recommendation that it be referred to the ways and means committee. Mr. Dalzell explained that the response of the secretary to the Sulzer resolution of inquiry on the same subject had gone to the ways and means committee, and it was proper that the committee should have jurisdiction. After a lively debate the recommendation of the committee was adopted.

Escaped an Awful Death.

Mrs. Ellen Grosby has had a narrow escape from being buried alive in Crawford county, Ind. She had been pronounced dead and preparations for the burial were being made. While this was in progress her daughter, 19 years old, worn out by exhaustion, lay down to rest, but her eyes had scarcely closed before she sprang up and peremptorily insisted that her mother's body be returned to the bed. She remarked that her mother had called to her in her sleep, saying: "Mary, don't let them bury me alive." The undertaker complied with the daughter's request, saying it was but a dream, but the daughter stoutly claimed the contrary and would not be denied. Nearly eight hours passed, when Mrs. Crosby slowly opened her eyes and looked at her daughter, who had remained by her bedside constantly watching for a return to life. Mrs. Crosby is now considered in a fair way to recovery.

Favor American Rule.

George H. Medhurst, a prominent merchant of Hong Kong, while in Chicago on his way to London, said the commercial interests of Hong Kong look with favor on the American rule of the Philippines. In the past it has been the misfortune of these islands to have been most wretchedly governed. In general the conditions which have obtained there have tended to check progress on the part of the people and the development of the undoubtedly great natural resources of those islands. Under the rule of this country all those conditions will be changed, the resources of the islands will be developed, business will expand greatly and the policy of this country will make them inviting fields for commercial venture and enterprise. The business interests of Hong Kong will unquestionably be benefited by these changed conditions, and in other ways the advent of Americans into the Orient will be hailed.

Compliment to Dr. Leyds.

Dr. Leyds is blamed for the entanglements of the British over the seizure of German vessels and he is said to have caused false information as to the seized vessels' cargoes to be given the British authorities. It is said further that Dr. Leyds circulated the stories that vast quantities of war supplies were being landed at Lorenzo Marquez in the hope that Great Britain would become entangled in Delagoa bay and bring Russia and France down on her.

JAPAN IS READY FOR WAR

TO STRIKE A BLOW AT RUSSIA.

Japan Might Have to Fight Before She Is Ready—She Has a Powerful Navy—Will Be Ready for War in Six Months.

London, Jan. 31.—The new and powerful Japanese warship Shikishima will try to reach a home port through the Suez canal, but the interpretation that the departure of the Shikishima was directly due to the situation in China is incorrect, as the Associated Press learns that the date set for sailing was decided on many weeks ago and a party was held on board of her previous to the deposition of the emperor of China.

But though this incident was given exaggerated importance in the papers, the Associated Press is able to say that those in England most cognizant of the secret aims of Japan, especially those fulfilling her naval contracts, have for some time past thoroughly believed she meditated striking a blow at Russia. If this impression is correct, and there is the highest and most conservative authority on which to base it, it is not unlikely that Japan's hand may be forced and her intended coup will be attempted before her plans are completed.

It may be that Japan meditates only for the present administration to prevent Russia from accomplishing the designs which various correspondents have credited her with since the change in China's emperor. Two powerful war vessels built for Japan on the Clyde will soon be ready to sail, while others are under course of rapid construction. Their strength has not attracted much attention, but their importance as international factors can be judged from a statement made to a representative of the Associated Press by one of England's greatest shipbuilders, who declared that the vessels building for Japan were the most powerful in the world and could destroy the best British ships in 15 minutes. Several of Japan's vessels in course of construction would have been completed before now had not Japan encountered financial difficulties. The British builders would not let the vessels sail until paid for in cash. To accomplish this Japan induced a syndicate of English bankers to advance the money, and their action has been the subject of a good deal of private criticism in the inner admiralty circles, when it is realized what tremendous naval power Japan is accumulating, and though Great Britain's strength was not impaired, it was thought inadvisable for British capitalists to so materially assist Japan to become a dangerous rival.

A well known naval expert tells a representative of the Associated Press that if Japan puts in commission the ships scheduled for service in the near future, she will be ready for war within six months, and can then defy Russia, and as the Japanese and Russian ships at present in the far east compare, Japan's fleet would have an excellent chance of controlling the situation.

Russia Moving to the South.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 31.—The Herald publishes an article describing the recent experimental transfer of Russian troops to Kuskh, and says:

"Russia is obliged to take precautionary measures owing to the disturbance of the balance of power in consequence of recent events. It is unjust, therefore, to blame Russia if she is making preparations regarding the long strip between Persia and Afghanistan."

The Plague at Sydney.

Sydney, Jan. 26.—A wharf laborer here has been stricken with the bubonic plague and the attending doctors are of the opinion that he was inoculated with the disease through the bite of flies.

Dowager Duchess Dead.

Dresden, Jan. 26.—The dowager duchess of Schleswig-Holstein, mother of the Empress Augusta Victoria, who has been suffering from pleurisy is dead.

MINING NOTES.

Thirty tons a day is the amount of concentrates produced by the Sixteen to One mill at Wallace, Idaho.

The imports of gold were in excess of exports $135,000,000 last year. Thus the United States was best able to supply England when the demand arose.

At last reports the woorkmen in the Nine-Mile Mining Company's lower tunnel on the Speckled Trout, at Wallace, were finding some galena nearly all the time.

The Black Bear at Loomis, Wash., is rich as ever. For a week the drift at the 100-foot level has been running through ore showing free gold visible to the naked eye.

The Northwestern Sampling Works at Wallace, Idaho, now has a force of over twenty men employed and still cannot handle the ore as fast as it comes down from Canyon creek and Nine Mile creek.

Information from Weiser, Idaho, is to the effect that parties just in from the Heath district report that there is much excitement there over a strike made in the Ruth mine.

A strike is reported on Big Horn mountain at Sunshine, Colorado, which is said to assay $11 per pound, and if expectations are realized another shipper will soon be added to the list of Sunshine's productive mines.

The Leslie Mining Company at Wallace, Idaho, has reached the farther wall in its ledge, finding it thirty feet between walls. Most of the way it is highly mineralized, and part of it is good concentrating ore.

The mines at Goat Creek, a Methow camp are coming rapidly forward. Deserted by early boomers the camp is now attracting the attention of more practical men. Wide veins rich in copper and gold are now being opened.

The Tiger & Poorman mine at Burke will pay a dividend of $10,000 February 1 That is to say that the Buffalo Hump Mining Company, which is in possession of the mine, will make its first distribution of profits on that day. The dividen is a cent a share on the capital stock of 1,000,000 shares.

The Bull Frog is the sensation at Loomis just now. A crosscut from the 100-foot shaft has been run 137 1-2 feet, and has crosed four good veins. Each of these carries ore of milling grade, and each one encountered has proved richer than its predecessor. A conservative estimate of the value of the ore is $20 a ton, and the ore is of a milling character.

The richest strike yet made in Keller camp was that made in the Dewey mine last week. One wall was penetrated, but not much attention was paid to it until the following day, when some ore was brought in which opened the eyes of our people, and caused a general rush for the mine. The ore runs from $103 to $160 in copper. The Iconoclast, Copper King, Humbolt and Justice are all among the early shippers of this camp.

The Checkmate mine near Willow Creek near Boise, Idaho, has another strike to its credit. A new ore chute has been found. It has been penetrated 60 feet. The ore is of high grade and will be shipped without concentration. The rich is from 8 to 18 inches thick. This property has produced much high grade ore in the past, but the chute now opened is entirely new, not having been found before.

The average of the British soldier now at the front is nearly two years higher than that of the soldier who fought at Waterloo.

The largest filtration plant in the country is at Albany, N. Y., which purifies 15,000,000 gallons of Hudson river water daily.

AGRICULTURAL

Weevil in Wheat.

The director for the Oklahoma experiment station says: Considerable complaint is received at the experiment station that the weevil is injuring stored grain, particularly wheat. This can be stopped by the use of a liquid known as carbon bisulphide. The liquid evaporates readily at ordinary temperatures, and the vapor, being heavier than air, sinks, and is death to all animal life that breathes it, although a small amount taken into the lungs does no injury. The gas is also highly inflammable, and therefore not even a lighted tobacco pipe or a cigar should be brought into contact with it, for fear that an explosion might result.

To use the gas the grain to be treated should be in reasonably tight bins. The gas will not penetrate more than about three feet in depth in the wheat, and it should therefore be introduced into the central part of the bin by fastening a wire screen over the end of a pipe of sufficient length and forcing the pipe down and pouring the liquid into the pipe, when it may be withdrawn and forced into another place. If the weevil is working on or near the top, the liquid may be poured on to the grain and the bin covered with blankets or canvas for about twenty-four hours, when the gas will have nearly or quite all disappeared. The gas does not injure the grain for growing or milling purposes.

Cheap Winter Run.

The cut shows an easy way to make a sunny winter run for poultry at little expense, either of money, time or labor. Some old window sash is set up for the front and the top is covered with straw or corn stalks. Make the top strong enough to hold the weight of the snow that may fall upon it. If there is no tight board fence at hand, the back can be boarded roughly and then banked right up to and over the top with straw or other material.—American Agriculturist.

RUN OF SASH AND STRAW.

Carrots Stunted by Crowding.

All kinds of roots are much better if given plenty of room in which to grow. Probably no root suffers more from crowding than the carrot, for the reason that when it germinates the leaves are so small that it is hard to tell whether a cluster of leaves represents one, two or three plants. It is a great loss every way to allow the roots to crowd each other in the growing. The bulk of two or three roots growing together is not nearly so great as one good-sized carrot. The short-horn carrots, which grow partly out of the ground, can be seen much better than those whose roots are entirely below the surface. And perhaps because the short-horn carrot grows partly above ground it is not injured so much by growing in a clump. It is also more nutritious than the deep-rooted carrots, but it needs to be gathered before the soil freezes very deeply, else the root will not keep well. Parsnips can be allowed to stand in the ground all winter.

The Barnyard Problem.

There is nothing so repulsive as a wet and filthy barnyard, in which the animals are compelled to walk knee deep in filth. Such a condition is not necessary and can be prevented if the barnyard is kept well supplied with absorbent material. Throwing whole cornstalks into the barnyard is the old method, but cornstalks do not absorb until they are trampled to pieces, and in the meantime much of the liquids are carried off by rains. It will pay to shred the cornstalks or cut the straw for bedding, while leaves and dry earth may also be used in the barnyard with advantage.

Winter Work.

There is plenty of work to do in winter if the farm is rightly managed. It is the season of the year for all repairs and renewals. Every implement or piece of machinery should be overhauled and all repairs ordered, so as to be ready for spring work. An implement that is in good order saves labor and enables the farmer to hurry with the early work when every day is valuable. The farmer who does not place his implements under cover at this season may be forced to buy new ones much sooner than he expects.

Late-Plowed Gardens.

It is a good plan to plow the garden as late as is possible before the ground freezes so as to make this difficult. Some wait until the surface soil is frozen an inch or more in depth, and think that this frozen soil holds the furrow up and insures more thorough freezing to the depth it is plowed. In any case the furrows should be left rough, as the more it is harrowed the less will be the action of frost on the upturned soil. If the garden is underdrained, and all gardens should be, this fall plowing will put its soil in fine tilth for planting when spring comes.

Fertilizers Fully Up to the Standard.

Fertilizer manufacturers are held strictly to compliance with certain laws of the various States in order to protect the farmers, and chemists employed by each State must accept samples from farmers, and their work is spread broadcast in official bulletins. The faithfulness with which the laws have been executed, while no opposition has been shown by manufacturers, demonstrates that the States can protect its citizens against fraud. What the fertilizer manufacturers object to, however, is that the law singles them out as the only dishonest class, although fertilizers are as true to claims as any kinds of goods. The farmer needs protection more from fruit tree venders, impure seeds and flimsy implements than from fertilizers that are below the standard, for while nurserymen and seedsmen are reliable as a class, yet there are parties who will seek every opportunity to foist impure seeds on the public. Farmers now have less to fear from fertilizers than from anything else procured by them, and several stations report that of the various analyses made there has not been a single case in which the sample of fertilizer fell below the standard required by law—a fact which is very gratifying to the farmers.

Making Quince Trees Pay.

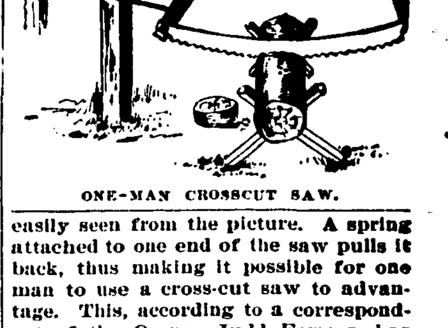
There is no kind of fruit that in localities that are adapted to it pays better than quince. It is an annual bearer, and it blossoms so late that its blossoms are never destroyed before setting. The greatest difficulty in growing quinces of late years has been the fungus which attacks leaf and fruit. This can, however, be kept down by cutting out and burning all diseased portions as soon as seen, and by free use of Bordeaux mixture to keep the foliage healthy. No cedar trees should be allowed to grow near quince trees. They furnish the spores that in the quince produce the rust of leaf and rot of the fruit. By destroying all cedar trees in the vicinity quinces may be grown with success in many places where this fruit is now a failure.

Parts of Tree Bearings.

There are many apple trees that bear from one-third to one-half a crop every year, the portions being barren alternately, so that the tree is never entirely barren. This is apt to be the case where different varieties are grafted on the same tree, and especially if the grafting is done in alternate years. In other cases cold storms or frost in the early life of the tree destroyed the fruit at blossoming time on the exposed side of the tree, and as in the years that a full crop is produced on the limbs in bearing there is little chance for fruit buds to be formed on those parts of the tree and the habit of bearing alternate years formed by accident becomes fully established.

A Wood-Sawing Device.

The accompanying illustration represents a device which greatly assists in sawing wool. The construction is easily seen from the picture. A spring attached to one end of the saw pulls it back, thus making it possible for one man to use a cross-cut saw to advantage. This, according to a correspondent of the Orange Judd Farmer, has been in successful use on my farm for a number of years.



ONE-MAN CROSSCUT SAW.

Root Vegetables for Stock.

Turnips, carrots and potatoes contain a large proportion of water, and though such crops are bulky, yet the actual proportion of solid matter taken from the soil is small. Containing such a large quantity of water, they are very succulent and are equal to ensilage for cattle, though ensilage is cheaper in cost. When cut or sliced or cooked these crops can be fed in connection with ground grain with greater profit than in any other manner, and they give greater value to the grain by assisting digestion and keeping the stock thrifty.

Removing Rubbish from Orchards.

During the summer a good deal of rubbish is apt to accumulate in orchards from the breaking down of limbs of trees from overloading or from storms. In such cases those limbs lying on the ground prevent the snow from lying closely on the surface and offer the most convenient harbors for mice. It is a good plan before heavy snow comes to remove all the rubbish from around fruit trees, and also the grass that often grows near the tree trunk while the tree is small.

POLITICAL TIPS.

We will grope around and see what we can bring forth in the ways of news in the political line. We find:

Bryan has not ceased making speeches since he started out four years ago; that he has moderated his silver song to please the eastern gold democrats and also eased up on anti-expansion to strengthen himself in the west.

Kentucky is a "bleeding" state. Goebel, candidate for governor, died Saturday from the assassin's bullet. He gave a life for a life. Though Gobel did not receive a majority of the votes as shown by the board of canvassers, yet he had the court and the legislature—the law—on his side and it would have been wiser for Taylor to have given away. In time the people would have righted matters. Now the outcome is hard to foretell.

McKinley is sure of a re-nomination without opposition, and that delegates from west of the Rockies will have to be sought for, not for the lack of interest among republicans, but because the convention will be a tame one, and the trip to Philadelphia is long and expensive, costing $400 or $500. Judge Warren Truitt and U. S. Att'y Cozier of Moscow are mentioned as suitable delegates, but neither care to go while there is nothing to be gained.

Dispatches say the Mormons are making peace with McKinley since Roberts' expulsion. These people as a rule vote with the winning side, but they did not do it three years ago as they thought Bryan would be the winner.

Gov. Steunenberg and Auditor Sinclair are saying nice things about the Mormons and think we cannot have prosperity without them. They are also fishing for the new voters in the Cœur d'Alenes, 80 per cent of them being Missouri republicans.

Populist L. N. B. Anderson is said to have his eye on the legislature with a view to giving the silver champion, Fred Dubois, a lift for the Senate. The names of J. W. Brigham and B. L. French are also mentioned for legislative honors.

About the only warm political spot in Idaho just now is Boise. Much shifting has been going on, mostly among silver republicans who are returning to their former associates.

Who the republicans will put up for governor we have not the slightest idea. Time he was being groomed.

A little early for announcements for county offices. Republicans in particular are a little shy on account of high taxes. While they hold they are not responsible for the raise, they realize that many will hold them responsible. Warrants are rapidly being paid off and in a short time they expect to make a better showing for Latah county than any of their predecessors.

The political editors who are out of a job just now, watched the ground hog last Friday and say the animal could not make a shadow. But have we a genuine ground hog in this western country?

—The woods in this vicinity are full of Boer sympathizers. The NEWS hopes the time is not far distant when all great questions can be settled without the use of gun powder, and deprecates the fact that this war was ever permitted to be brought to an actuality. It is one of the wars for which there is little or no excuse and for whose existence those controlling the governmental affairs of both countries are to blame. Wise statesmanship and a due regard for exact justice on the part of both parties to the diplomatic negotiations carried on prior to actual hostilities would have made impossible the resort to arms. The foremost thinkers of the country, notably among whom is ex-President Harrison, believe the time will soon come when enlightenment and religion will be the great leavening power between gigantic forces now so often arrayed in dispute and conflict. In the present conflict the British colonial secretary on the one hand and the president of the Boer republic on the other have committed a "blunder worse than a crime." Innocent men are slaughtered like so many cattle. Both sides are to blame. A writer in South Africa on this line says:

"I am free to confess that I do not agree with those who urge that Americans should sympathize with the Boers on the ground that they boast of a republican form of government. The Boer government is so far removed from anything like the U. S. that it is absurd to speak of it as a sister republic. It is an oligarchy pure and simple. Americans would not tolerate for a moment its methods as a mode of government for them selves. Neither would they with any degree of complacency witness large numbers of their own citizens within the sphere of its domain paying the largest share of governmental taxes without aiding them in securing the largest measure of representation and the greatest extension of rights. I should expect, however, to have them gain these things through the ways of diplomacy and not through the arts of war, as I believe the British government should have gained them. But the government of Great Britain having blundered in its diplomacy, and the war being on, with no apparent way of bringing it to a conclusion at present but by continuous battle, it certainly is better for all concerned that England's soldiery should win. I do not sympathize with the war as such, but I am a firm believer in the justice of the demand made for an enlargement of the rights of the English resident taxpayers in the Boer country. Greater good will flow to the nations at large through ultimate British success than can possibly result from their defeat."

—Hurrah for the Ruby Creek mining camp. Brighter days are dawning for this section which is particularly gratifying to the many Genesee people who have interests there. It has been known for several years that rich minerals existed there, but to get capitalists interested as in all new sections has been a hard matter. But capitalists are coming now and will continue to come. Recently the Gold Standard, Contact and Monte Cristo mines were bonded to the Boston Climax Gold-Copper Co., of Boston, Mass. These mines with two others adjoining will be extensively worked this year by this company which has unlimited means. The property adjoins the great Silver King owned by Jno. P. Vollmer. Opposite side of the summit, an extension of the Silver King are located four rich claims in which H. J. Bundy, Jos Moresch and others are interested—Providence, Black Bear, White Elephant and Mountain Side—lying between Ruby and Elk creeks. Mr. Bundy and others have been at work on the Providence for the past six weeks and made a great strike at a depth of 38 feet, finding a great body of ore, gold bearing quartz, assaying all the way from $5 to $300. This quartz is in black sulphate and found in great quantities. That the gentlemen have found something fabulously rich they verily believe. Every indication points that way. The specimens of ore exhibited here the past week look fully as rich as ore from our greatest mines. Double shifts will be put on and development work pushed as vigorously as possible. Mr. Bundy is selling a few thousand shares at 5 cents and after these are disposed of no more will be offered on the market. He is as sanguine this group of mines is as rich as any in the United States and only lack development to substantiate this belief. The NEWS and many friends are glad that Mr. Bundy is in a fair way to gain a fortune. The wealth is hidden there at Ruby and all that is necessary is for capitalists to uncover it. Keep your eye on this camp.

—The Pine Grove people meet every Saturday evening and discuss different questions, read papers, sing, etc. The Boer question will be settled tomorrow night. Young and old take part and warm times are had.

—The past two weeks successful farmers' institutes have been held at Garfield, Vineland, Moscow, Walla Walla and elsewhere. Experienced farmers made addresses before each of them and all came to the same conclusion: "No farmer can prosper long who does not plant a variety of crops and does not try to raise cows, cattle, hogs, sheep and chickens."

—Some bad blood in Lewiston since ex-Auditor Tannahill was arrested on the charge of forging Nez Perce county warrants. Ex-Auditor Barnett has been sued by the county to recover some $9000 in county warrants illegally issued by him while holding office. This is the outgrowth of the report of Expert Cunningham, and is similar to the suit against Tannahill.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from pneumonia before morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at Kennedy's.

The "Plow Boy Preacher," Rev. J. Kirkman, Belle Rive, Ill., says, "After suffering from bronchial or lung trouble for ten years, I was cured by One Minute Cough Cure. It is all that is claimed for it and more." Cures coughs, colds, grippe and all throat and lung troubles.

MRS. T. KENNEDY, Druggist.

The claim of other cough medicines to be as good as Chamberlain's are effectually set at rest in the following testimonial of Mr. C. D. Glass an employe of Bartlett & Dennis Co., Gardiner, Me. He says: "I had kept adding to a cold and cough in the winter of '97, trying every cough medicine I heard of without permanent help, until one day I was in the drug store of Mr. Houlehan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and offered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sore at this time, but I was completely cured by this remedy, and have since always turned to it when I get a cold, and soon find relief. I also recommend it to my friends and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines. Sold by all druggists.

Pres. King, Farmer's Bank, Brooklyn, Mich., has used DeWitt's Little Early Risers in his family for years. Says they are the best. These famous little pills cures constipation, biliousness and all liver and bowel troubles. MRS. T. KENNEDY.

BULLER AGAIN GOES FORWARD

LADYSMITH TO BE RELIEVED.

Review of the Situation—Roberts in No Hurry—Boers Are Active—Destroying Railroads—Ladysmith Has Plenty Provisions.

London, Feb. 5.—Spencer Wilkinson writes the following review of the situation in South Africa for the Associated Press:

"It is morally impossible for Buller's army, so long as there is any fight left to it, to sit still while Sir George White is invested at Ladysmith. Better than that would be to lose 10,000 men in an attempt at relief. Accordingly, it is probable that General Buller will try again and indeed, that he is on the move and fighting.

"As he has kept General Lyttleton's brigade north of the river the probabilities are that the next move will be an advance on Lyttleton's right. He would hardly go to Lyttleton's left because that would only lead to a fresh attack on Spion Kop and the range of which it is a part. He would not go to the east of Colenso except with his whole force less Barton's brigade. The retention of Lyttleton's brigade at Potgieter's Drift may, therefore, be taken as proof that the new move will not be east of Colenso.

"East of Potgieter's there are several drifts, one or two of which Buller's guns command, and he can therefore cross the river, but the Boers have had ample time to prepare positions beyond the river.

"A frontal attack would, as usual, be costly, but unless the general is prepared for a heavy loss he has little chance of breaking through the Boer defenses.

"The right plan would be that made by General Sherman when he pushed back Johnson from Chattanooga to Atlanta. Sherman entrenched along Johnson's front and then extended his line to one of the flanks. By the time Sherman was ready to move, he sent a force around behind his entrenched line to attack Johnson in the flank and threaten his retreat, and the confederate general withdrew. Such tactics are practicable with only a force numerically superior. We do not know the strength of the Boers in Natal. Winston Churchill estimates them at only 19,000, of which 7000 are investing Ladysmith. This would give Buller 25,000 against 12,000 and should render possible something like Sherman's maneuvers. But there is reason to believe that Buller's own estimate of the Boer force is much higher.

"Lord Roberts will certainly not hurry his move from the Cape. He will first complete the assembling of his forces, which will not all have arrived for another three weeks. Then he will have transports properly organized and in working order before he will start. After that he will probably make a rapid movement, but no outcry will induce him to start until he considers all is ready.

"Last week's report that Mafeking had been relieved seems to have arisen from Colonel Plumer's skirmish near Crocodile Pool. The report came from Boer sources and this origin of it seems to show that the Boers are not sanguine of success in the northwest. They have probably reduced their forces in that region in order to strengthen themselves against General Methuen and General Buller."

Boers Fire at Gen. Lyttleton.

Spearman's Camp, Feb. 5.—The Boers fire occasionally at the troops on the right flank. It is reported that they have dug up the roads leading to Ladysmith in order to make the progress difficult and made several trenches along the route and are busy strengthening those in front of their position.

Destroying a Railroad.

Modder River, Feb. 5.—The Boers have been busy destroying the railway between here and Langeburg, a point 2000 yards from the British advanced position.

Provisions at Ladysmith.

Durban, Feb. 6.—A gentleman named Gourton, who left Ladysmith after the news of the retirement of the British from Spion Kop had become known there, succeeded with the aid of Kaffirs in reaching Estcourt. He says the garrison is on the whole very quiet and hopeful. Provisions are ample to last for a considerable time and fresh meat is served out daily.

Boers Lost 1100.

Sterkspruit, Feb. 5. — Commandant Oliver of the Orange Free State, in a speech to the Boers at Ladygrey, said that his men were almost surrounded at Stormberg and unless recruits were forthcoming he would be compelled to abandon the position. It is admitted that in the recent fight at Ladysmith the Boers lost 1100 killed and 600 wounded.

Is Buller Fighting Again?

London, Feb. 5.—The war officer is silent regarding Buller, but there is every reason to believe that he is continuing his movement upon Ladysmith.

Forty Live Highlanders.

London, Feb. 5.—Field Marshal Lord Roberts has notified the war office that 40 Highlanders, who were previously reported killed at Magersfontein, are prisoners at Pretoria.

Can Not Be Confirmed.

London, Feb. 6.—A correspondent of the Associated Press learns from an official source that absolutely no confirmation has been received by the war office of the report that Buller has recrossed the Tugella river and is marching on Ladysmith. On the contrary, according to the information of the war office at the present moment, there is every indication that things are quiet at the front and that no immediate movement is anticipated.

Regarding the dispatches from Ladysmith saying that Buller's guns had been heard there, it is surmised that some practice may have been going on with the new batteries which have just reached the front.

Government's Finance.

The comparative statements of the government's receipts and expenditures show that for the month of January, 1900, the receipts from all sources amounted to $48,021,164, against $41,774,930 for January, 1899. The expenditures during the last month aggregated $39,189,096, against $51,122,770 for January, 1899, leaving a surplus last month of $8,823,068.

Internal revenue, $22,779,856; increase, $2,000,000.

Miscellaneous, $3,138,029; increase, $337,000.

Interest, $1,562,222; decrease, $4,000,000.

Since July, 1899, the receipts have exceeded the expenditures by $29,870,000.

The monthly circulation statement issued by the comptroller of the currency shows that at the close of business on January 31, 1900, the total circulation of national bank notes was $246,987,193, an increase for the year of $3,745,569, and an increase for the month of $791,670. The circulation based on United States bonds was $21,166,789, a decrease for the year of $874,510, an increase for the month of $406,804. The circulation secured by lawful money aggregates $26,820,404, an increase for the year of $4,620,302, and an increase for the month of $384,866. The amount of United States bonds on deposit to secure circulating notes was $235,830,170, and to secure public deposits $88,299,480.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NOTES.

The senate in executive session recently took up The Hague peace treaty. There was a brief discussion of it, but no opposition was developed. The treaty would have been ratified, but under the rule it had to lay over 24 hours after being read. The extradition treaty with the Argentine Republic was also read and considered, but went over for the same reason.

Charles H. Cole, formerly president of the Globe National Bank, who is charged with embezzling and misappropriating $900,000, the property of the bank, waived examination and was held in $50,000 bond for the grand jury of the district court, which sits March 20. Benjamin E. Smith and Benjamin Walls of Boston were accepted as sureties. Cole was brought here early in January from Los Angeles, Cal.

A cable from Manila was received by the quartermaster's department stating the Hancock sailed from Manila for San Francisco on January 29 with the bodies of 462 dead soldiers. The Indiana is expected in immediately with 200 bodies and the Ohio with 138 arrived today. These, in addition to the 159 which came in on the Peking, make an imposing total of nearly 1,000 soldiers who lost their lives in the Philippines and have been brought home to the United States for final interment.

After a joint conference lasting nearly two weeks at Indianapolis, Ind., the delegates from the United Mine Workers of America and the Interstate Operators' Association finally adopted a scale which is a compromise between the first demand of the former and the first offer of the latter. The scale adopted is a general advance of 2.21 per cent and is satisfactory to miners and operators of Ohio, Pennsylvania and Indiana and will be accepted by the Illinois miners and operators.

Sneers at Americans.

London, Feb. 5.—Mr. Cunningham-Grahame, a former member of parliament, inquires in an open letter what Great Britain has gained "by all our squirmings and grovelings before the United States," as he defines Great Britain's good will, and he thus answers:

"An open door. Yes. And a booted foot to kick us through it. It was ever the sneak's reward to be thus treated."

He assumes the sympathy of the United States is with the Boers. England has failed in receiving, not the sympathy, but almost the neutrality of the United States and that is Great Britain's reward for having thrown over Spain, her ancient ally, and coming magnanimously to the assistance of the United States.

"McLachlan—On Christmas, shot in Market square, Harrismith, Orange Free State, for refusing to fight against his own countrymen, John McLachlan, Jr., aged 30, eldest son of John McLachlan of Wordsworth and grandson of the late John McLachlan of Lambet."

The Spectator, commenting on the above, says that if the statement contained in the notice is true the whole English-speaking world should ring with denunciation of a crime so detestable.

"Especially," it adds, "should Americans speak out on such a matter, for they showed the true way in their treatment of technical rebels and set an example to mankind."

A St. Louis woman lost her baby in a department store waste basket while making purchases.

Another great opportunity for the development of new agricultural possibilities in this country is suggested by the present condition of the bean market. Beans is a staple that has an immense consumption in the northwest owing to the extensive operations in sections where all food products have to be imported. Only a small percentage of this amount is supplied locally, and the rest is imported from California.

The people of Livingston, at a city election, have just declared against municipal ownership by a majority of 70. A heavy vote was polled and the election created great interest.

Feed in Teton county is not at all good, as the heavy snowstorm of last October flattened the grass to the ground, and when the snow melted it thawed from the bottom, leaving the grass dead and without nourishment. It is said that many Teton stockmen are wintering their herds along the Marais and in the Pend d'Oreille basin.

Every indication points to a big price for wool this coming season and the wool growers are jubilant. Representatives of a Boston house are abroad and are eagerly picking up everything in sight at prices constantly increasing. Predictions are freely made that 26 cents or even 30 cents will be reached before the season closes, and it is getting more difficult to induce the growers to dispose of their clips at the prevailing prices.

Since then certain of the accounts have been collected, but the collector was never detected. The outlook is now that numerous creditors will soon receive another dividend.

The United Metals Selling Company, which was incorporated recently under the New Jersey laws, with a capital stock of $5,000,000, is a highly important organization. It is learned that the company will absorb the firm of Lewisohn Bros. of New York and that it will handle the entire output of the Amalgamated Copper Company, as well as the other large business now conducted by Lewisohn Bros. A member of the firm of Lewisohn Bros. confirmed the report that the firm would be absorbed by the new company. The new concern will, in effect, be an expansion of the business of the firm, with the difference that other capitalists in the Amalgamated Copper Company will also be interested.

The crosscut in the Golden Lion and Little Four was in 244 feet last night. A close estimate places the face of the drift as still being 56 feet from the ledge, which crops out on the hillside.

After various long continued experiments the Republic Company is satisfied that the ore must first be roasted and then leached. Major Leckie was some time since convinced that it was the proper method, and all the experiments have confirmed that belief.

At the Bull Frog each day's drifting on the ore bodies cut is giving stronger evidence that the vein will be 50 to 60 feet wide in stead of 20, as before stated. The Bull Frog by this latest development puts the property away beyond any prospect stage.

The Gold Hill people are now running in on the Golden Fleece vein in good ore.

It includes a 3 1-4 Rand drill, a duplex pump with a capacity of 200 gallons per minute, a 50 horse-power boiler and hoist. Thos. Parkinson, president of the company, says the plant will be enlarged long before the 400-foot level is reached.

Good progress is being made in running a tunnel on the Phil Sheridan claim of the Earthquake group, 12 miles north of this city. Frank Sears, secretary of the company, is confident that the main vein of the Golden Eagle mine will be encountered at a depth of 100 feet. The Phil Sheridan claim shows two parallel veins, which also extend across the Golden Eagle property.

The control of the Gray Eagle, Banner, Tiptop and Triangle in Phoenix camp has passed to Jay P. Graves of Spokane and eastern Canadian associates. These claims adjoin and surround the Old Ironsides and Knob Hill mines, and exploration work on these two has proved that the ledges pass through this new ground. Mr. Graves has completed the formation of a company in Montreal to acquire the group, which will also be developed on a large scale, adding quite a pay roll to Phoenix. The new 40-drill compressor ordered by him is to be used jointly by all the properties in Greenwood camp under his control.

The good ore in the 100-foot level in the Black Bear is still holding out and is proving to be the best body of ore ever encountered in the mine. It will average better than $50 a ton. At the 200-foot level the drifts are improving every day. The drift from the bottom of the shaft at 250 feet depth has been started, and the cutting of the three parallel veins will be watched with interest. The ore bins are fast filling up and the starting of the mill is becoming necessary to make room for the ore coming up each day.

Frank A. Launtz, a Monterey man who has spent the past three years prospecting in the Canada and Alaska mining regions in the interest of the St. Louis Mining & Development Company, has returned home with news of the discovery of an exceedingly rich platinum deposit in the Copper river district, which at the surface yields $13 to the ton, at 3 1-2 feet the yield is $18,000 to the ton, and at 6 feet it is $30,000 to the ton. Launtz, who is now in St. Louis, will return about the middle of February and will at once begin the work of developing his new discovery.

Mutiny in Egypt.

Berlin, Feb. 5.—The news from Egypt of mutiny among the Egyptian troops at Khartoum is regarded here gravely, especially as private dispatches confirm reports previously received. In circles close to the government it is considered that a spread of mutiny and an uprising like Arabi Bey's is within the possibilities. Here it is also believed that in such case France would be sure to actively intermeddle, probably backed up by Russia.

An article by Sir Edward J. Reed, chief constructor of the navy of the emperor, in the Deutsche Revue, is creating a pleasant sensation, the article being extremely appreciative and sympathetic, instancing a number of points from the writer's personal observation, showing his majesty's remarkably close and accurate information about naval and other difficult matters, and the emperor's freedom from prejudice.

The United States embassy is gratified at the fact that for months there has been a perfect lull in the complaints about German official seizures and vexatious delays of American meats and fruit. Except a few trifling cases nothing has been heard of that description.

Coal for British Cruisers.

New York, Feb. 5.—There is a rumor current to the effect that the British government has contracted with the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad company for 1,000,000 tons of coal. At the New York sales in the afternoon of Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company, Mr. John Edmonds, as agent, said that he had heard the rumor, but that he had no official verification. "While some such contract may have been made," he said, "there is no one in this city connected with the company who could speak authoritatively on the subject."

GOEBEL HAS PASSED AWAY

DIED LAST SATURDAY NIGHT.

A Monument to Be Erected—The Assassin Still Unknown—Taylor Enjoined—Trouble Expected.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 5.—The bullet fired by an unknown assassin last Tuesday morning ended the life of William Goebel at 6:45 o'clock Saturday evening.

The only persons present at the deathbed were Mr. Goebel's sister, Mrs. Brawnacker, and his brother, Arthur Goebel of Cincinnati, who have been in constant attendance at Mr. Goebel's bedside, and Dr. McCormack. Justus Goebel, another brother, who has been hurrying from Arizona as fast as steam would carry him, in a vain hope of reaching his dying brother in time for some token of recognition, arrived 40 minutes too late. Oxygen was frequently administered to the dying man in the afternoon, in an effort to keep him alive until his brother's arrival, but in vain. For, by the cruel irony of fate, the train on which Justus Goebel was traveling to Frankfort, was delayed several hours from various causes, and when Mr. Goebel finally reached here it was only to learn that his brother was dead.

Among bitter partisans of both parties deep grief is manifested, and already a movement has been started to erect a fitting monument for Mr. Goebel's memory on the spot in the state house grounds where he was shot.

It is understood that a request will be made on behalf of the citizens of Frankfort that Mr. Goebel's last resting place be in the cemetery here, where lie buried Daniel Boone and Vice President Andrew Johnson.

From an early hour until the hour of his death, Mr. Goebel's condition grew steadily worse. Shortly before noon, after hypodermic injections of strychnine and whisky and afterward of morphine, Mr. Goebel requested that Captain L. G. Wallace of the Kentucky penitentiary, an intimate friend, be sent for, and when the latter came the two had a short conversation.

"Lew," said Mr. Goebel, "I wish to announce to the world that I do not hold myself in open violence to the word of God."

An Injunction Against Taylor.

Frankfort, Feb. 5.—Judge Cantrill of the circuit court granted a temporary injunction restraining Governor Taylor from interfering with the meeting of the legislature and from removing the seat of legislation to London, Ky. He Knows Who Shot Goebel.

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 5.—A dispatch to the Dispatch from Wellston, Ohio, says: A stranger has arrived here and announced that he was in Frankfort the day Goebel was shot. He gave Rodman as his name and claimed to know all about the shooting of Goebel. He said: "A trap had been set for a long time and the opportunity was anxiously awaited to kill Goebel for his killing of John Sanford. The party who fired the shot was a near friend and intimately connected with Sanford. Politics had nothing to do with the affair."

State of Trade.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade states that this year starts with much of the year's business already done and all comparisons will prove misleading if that fact is not taken into account. Last year the certainty of great improvement had come before the year opened and there was a rush to get in orders before works became crowded and prices advanced. This year the works are already crowded for months ahead in most lines and prices had already advanced so far that recoil had already commenced in some branches and was thought probable in others.

With the exception of woolen manufactures the chief industries have met less new business in January than last year though deliveries on previous contracts have been larger than a year ago. In work turned out the past month probably surpasses all others and rightly considered the fact that new contracts for work already well supplied are smaller than last year is not of itself discouraging. The great burst of speculation last year swelled January payments through clearing houses far behind those of this year at New York and such payments at other (540) cities also averaged per business day a shade larger than this year. But a much greater decrease must have appeared in transactions connected with the formation of new companies.

Wheat rose 1 cent, but soon reacted. Atlantic exports, 1,462,462 bushels (flour included) for the week, against 942,436 bushels last year, had more influence than the decrease in eastern receipts which have been for the week 43 per cent and for five weeks 40 per cent less than last year, while the decrease in Atlantic exports for five weeks has been 57 per cent. Pacific exports have been 4,209,300 bushels in five weeks against 3,670,854 bushels last year.

Speculation in cotton has raised the price to 8 1-4 per cent without improvement in demand. The receipts from plantations still fall so far behind last year's that low estimates of yield are expected.

Wool is rather weaker in some grades, but stronger in others, so that the average of quotations is ready, notwithstanding some sales at concessions. The mills which have taken extraordinary orders for the heavyweight season without afterwards looking for wool obviously have on hand large stocks, so that the market depends upon the sufficiency of the supplies they hold. The goods are rising a little but are relatively lower than the material.

Boot and shoe manufacturers have passed all records in deliveries, nearly 20 per cent beyond those of January last year, but new orders have been greatly restricted. Recent sales of hemlock sole and of rough white hides at Chicago continue their gradual decline.

The iron and steel industry is so far tied up by contracts reaching through most of the year that production exceeding consumption is felt only in some instances. A little lower prices have been made for foundry iron in considerable transactions though Bessemer does not yield, but steel billets are offered by Pittsburg $33 per ton. The difference between producers and some of the largest consumers of steel blocks the market.

Failures for the past week have been 232 in the United States, against 224 last year and 34 in Canada, against 25 last year.

Gould's Butler Drunk.

New York, Feb. 5.—Howard Gould and his wife gave a dinner party recently to Senator and Mrs. John M. Thurston and a dozen other distinguished guests. The entire party went to the theater and the conduct of affairs at the house was in the hands of John Tibbs, butler in chief. Tibbs spent the evening trying choice wines, and was gloriously drunk when the guests returned. Other help tried to suppress him, but the noise he made reached the dining hall. Then Tibbs marched in among the guests and offered to whip the whole American nation. Tibbs is English, and resents the pro-Boer sympathy. Howard Gould tried to quiet him, but could not, and with a hasty apology to his guests proceeded to throw Tibbs out. It was embarrassing, but necessary. Tibbs was fined $5 in the police court.

London, Feb. 1.—A special dispatch from Cape Town says that 150 American scouts, who arrived there as muleteers, have enlisted in the British forces.

THE SITUATION AT FRANKFORT

GOVERNOR TAYLOR IS FIRM.

A Statement Is Given to the Press—Legislature Held in London—Liberties of the People to Be Protected—Democrats at Sea.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 6.—The following statement in regard to the position taken by the republicans in the controversy over the governorship of Kentucky has been made by one in authority in the republican party. The statement was made to a correspondent of the Associated Press with the full knowledge and personal approval of Governor Taylor, who heard every word and the interview may be regarded therefore as official:

"The legislature was convened at London under plain constitutional provisions. It cannot legally act anywhere else, and all attempted acts done by any rump legislature anywhere else are void. The matter must be amicably settled or there is no surrender. The republican majority is beyond question. The constitution provides that the one receiving the greatest number of votes shall be govenor and by that declaration we propose to stand.

"Republicans are denied trial, denied hearing. They were deprived of their rights at the ballot boxes; also at every election tribunal in the state. Notwithstanding all that, they won and every honest man in Kentucky knows this to be true.

"The liberties of the people must be upheld under the law if possible, but the liberties of the people must be upheld. No partisan court has the right to tie the hands of the chief executive of the state and any attempt to do so will be disregarded. The lives and liberties of the people are, in part, entrusted to the chief executive, inasmuch as it is his sworn duty to protect this liberty against fraudulent judgments written to overthrow the will of the people, as well as it is to protect them from the invasion of foreign foes."

Democratic View.

There has evidently been a decided misunderstanding between the leaders of the democratic and republican parties regarding the session of the legislature to be held at London. Democrats say they were given to understand that the session at London would be abandoned and the legislature would meet here tomorrow in the capitol building. Governor Taylor announces positively that the London session will not be abandoned, but declines to say whether or not the democrats of the legislature will be allowed to meet in the capitol.

LABOR NOTES.

Most of the journals of national organizations report increases of membership during January.

The carpenters employed on the exposition buildings at Paris have struck for a raise in wages from 18 sous to 1 franc per hour. About 5000 men are involved.

In Winnipeg the Bricklayers' Union has voted $100 to the campaign fund of a union carpenter candidate for the legislature. That's what we call practical politics.

A number of plants of the American Steel & Wire Company in Pennsylvania have been closed as a result of the strike of the Rod Mill Workers' Union at Cleveland, O.

The trouble between organized labor and the Pan-American Exposition Company at Buffalo has been amicably settled. Union wages will prevail and union labor be given the preference.

His Last Jump.

A groceryman caught a young fox, says a Philadelphia exchange, and not knowing what else to do with it gave it the run of the cellar. It was drowsy during the daytime, and although the door was then always open it made no attempt to peer out into the world that was only two bounds away. At night the closed door prevented its exit.

One Saturday after a busy day the clerk forgot to close the door and the fox got out. Over the grocery was an apartment house, and somehow the fox went up the stairs unobserved and out on the roof.

Then he looked down upon the busy street below, and the noise and the lights must have turned his brain. At any rate, he leaped from the roof and landed on the pavement, and the poor animal's breath was knocked out too far ever to return.

Filbert Crop.

In some districts of Italy the filbert crop is said to rival in commercial importance the produce of the vine. These delicious nuts are grown on bushes planted in groups that are from fifteen feet to twenty-five feet apart, so as to insure the access of plenty of light and air. They thrive best in a deep clayey soil, and the planting in Italy takes place in November and December of slips from the mother plant. The bushes fruit in the third year. They are pruned annually. Plantations are found nearly 100 years old and the bushes in good health. The filbert is not liable to disease like many other crops, but it suffers severely from hailstorms and cold winds.

—State Game Warden Arbuckle is finding Jordon a hard road to travel. That is, he is finding it up-hill business to convict violators of the game law in some of the mountain regions. Some of the toughs have a standing reward offered for game wardens and no questions asked.

—The next quarterly examination for teachers will be held in the court house at Moscow, Feb. 22-24 inclusive. Questions in School Law will be from Chapter 3, and in State Constitution from Article 6. So Supt. Mattie Headington informs the NEWS. Remember the date, teachers.

—Conductor Gunn, at one time a resident of Genesee but now on the Orofino construction train, with other railroad employes, drove up from the valley Monday and took the train next morning for Spokane. The coal supply the other side of the washout has been exhausted and the men are forced to take a lay-off until the wreck is cleared.

—The postoffice department is contemplating a new plan for issuing stamps, which is expected to be of great benefit to the people of the country. It proposes to issue them in little books, of a size to go into the vest pocket, and containing 12 each, separated by oiled paper. The book will be sold for 25 cents a piece, thus allowing one cent for the cost of the book. If they sell as is expected, the profit to the government will be large.

—Alfred Beit, of London, is said to be the richest man in the world. He is easily worth a thousand million dollars, and is, perhaps, the only living billionaire. He is a Kaffir king. Is only 46 years old, and yet he has accumulated a fortune beside which the dreams of the Arabian knights seem trivial. He is a power in South Africa and is as much responsible for the present war as Cecil Rhodes. His German father sent him to Kimberly when he was 22 to invest in diamond fields and backed him with abundant funds. He was soon joined by Cecil Rhodes who was backed by the Rothchilds and the two virtually control the output of the most precious stones in the world.

—The Poultry show at Moscow was a great success, Thos. Hewes, of Missouri, acting as judge. Mr. Hewes stated that he never saw a finer show of birds anywhere, not excepting at Madison square. Especially good were the Wyandottes and Brown Leghorns, the latter being owned by W. F. Rayburn and W. R. Ransom. G. A. Childers and Mr. Headley exhibited the former. All varieties were on exhibition and some of them were almost perfect. Genesee fanciers should have been represented. Mr. Herman with his Wyandottes and Messenger Owen with his Buff Cochins would certainly have secured prizes. Some extra fine poultry at Moscow.

Rope Walking at Niagara.

The man who wanted to walk across Niagara Falls on a rope was wisely restrained by the authorities. Probably he is thankful that such was the case. Death comes soon enough. Take the inroads of disease for example. Common ailments like constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, malaria and nervousness, do much to shorten life. There is a medicine that will cure these, if taken faithfully, and that is Hostter's Stomach Bitters. Set the stomach right, and good health is sure to follow. This peerless remedy has a record of over fifty years of cures to back it up. A continued war would mean much to Lewiston. Good things come slow, neighbor. You should be satisfied with your present situation—the down-hill pull.

—DAVID HARUM.

That philosopher, David Harum, had no doubt neglected an opportunity of his lifetime to buy desirable property and thus take advantage of a rising market. Some other man had evidently bought property and sold it to Mr. Harum at an advanced price. If you do not buy Vineland property soon, you will lose the chance to possess unimproved land and profit by the advance that is steadily going on. Vineland does not stand still for a single twenty-four hours. It is going ahead at a rapid rate. Ask any Vinelander if his property has decreased in value since he bought it. Ask him if he would take what he paid. See what has been accomplished in three years and delay no longer. Take a free carriage ride and assure yourself of what is being done. CREAMERY MEETING.

A meeting will be held at Burr's office one week from tomorrow, Feb'y 10, 1900, for the purpose of considering the creamery question. At that time the committee will report on a skimming station and a creamery. Farmers should turn out to this meeting and settle this question. Feb. 10.

—J. H. Gaffney spent a couple of days in Moscow this week.

—Harry Thatcher and Major McRoberts drove to Lewiston Wednesday.

—Geo. Hobson received a fine line of new goods—robby ties, shirts and dress goods.

—A. W. Conway was up from Culde-Sac Tuesday and enjoyed the gentle (?) zephyr prevailing here at that time.

—The K. P.'will celebrate their 37th anniversary on Monday evening, Feb'y 19. Grand Chancellor Erb will be present.

—The price of wheat has been hanging around the 40 cent notch the past week. Bushel of wheat is not worth a roll of creamery butter yet.

—Almost time for farmers to put their machinery in trim for the spring work. M. A. Means elsewhere presents pictures of some of his goods and figures on others.

—A lively debate took place at the school house Wednesday evening. It was decided that nature is more pleasing to the eye than art. Spurbeck's debate with the cow, the kids say, was eloquent.

—If you want to develop a little muscle and prepare for spring work just step in at the Genesee Exchange Bank and hit the punching bag suspended this week. Mr. Brewer will show you how to perform.

—The Woodmen of the World lodge will hold an open meeting, to which the public is cordially invited, at their hall in the Steltz block, February 10, at which time Special Organizer Wheeler will be present.

—Miss Pearl Follett went down to Pullman Wednesday to act as best lady at a wedding, the contracting parties being well known in Genesee—Miss Myrtle Proctor and Mr. Henry Sullivan. The NEWS extends hearty congratulations.

—Sanford Evans returned from his trip to Portland, Tacoma and Seattle. He thinks the Rumrock mill will be able to do business with the coast people. The mill is turning out flour now and Sanford will start out with a carload or two next week.

—A petition is being circulated among the Idahoans urging the passage of a bill now before the senate granting the volunteers mileage from Manila to San Francisco. If the bill passes each of our soldiers will receive about $350, or about $160,000 to this state.

—Trains will not be running to Lewiston for a week yet, and it may be longer. The Clearwater bridge is making trouble and just when the first train will pull through is not known at this writing. Our trainmen do not seem to be in any hurry for the change. It is different with Mr. Seymour; he wants to come back.

—Henry Samsel has explored the new reservation country and about concluded to give it a trial. Thinks he will rent some land and invest his money in cattle. His friend Frank Adams, who struck out for his Missouri home in December, writes that he may show up here in the early spring again as there are worse places than Idaho.

—A surprise was sprung on Miss Minnie Stamps Wednesday evening by the Misses Mochel, Burgess, Young, Hodgins, Nebelsieck, Messrs. Vollmer, Cool, Wilkinson, Beechler, Moore, Wells, Kennedy, Delander, Burr, McGregor. Taffy pulling, high five, singing and lunching occupied the attention of the young people till after midnight. It was a complete surprise to Miss Stamps. Wallace was the champion.

—M. A. Means returned from Orofino the first of the week and reports that town thrifty, getting trade from the Pierce camps, North Fork, Snake Creek and elsewhere. Thinks work of construction on the Butte cut-off will commence in the early spring as the contractors and laborers of the Clearwater extension are still in the country. If Steuart is to remain at the end of the Orofino branch, which seems probable now, it will make a fine trading center, a supply point for Dixie, Elk City, Hump, Grangeville, and other places.

—Pullman has diphtheria.

—Colton and Uniontown are sending many $100 horses to Seattle.

—Fine lot of new goods received at Follett Bros. & Larrabee's the past week.

—Robert McGregor came home from college Tuesday for a visit of three or four days.

—North Carolina furnishes the only colored representative in congress. He is black but his name is White.

—People who have not heard of the assassination of President Lincoln can read the article elsewhere with interest.

—The Cong'l S. S. will dedicate their new basement with appropriate exercises Sunday morning, February 18th. This basement will be very convenient for socials.

—A new mail-carrier is to assist George Vowel in carrying Boer news to the hungry Lenvilleites. The chap is three days old today, and Dr Beck says he's good looking.

—L. F. Smith, who went to California a few weeks ago, returned last week with a bride. The couple have gone to housekeeping in the Al. Harris residence lately vacated by Rev. Heuer.

—Hardware Herman is putting in considerable time at Troy. Says that is a live town now, owing to the repairing of damages caused by the late flood. The town is full of railroad people and woodchoppers.

—Geo. Vennigerholz sold his quarter section near town to John Killen, a late arrival from the east. Consideration $4000. George takes to clerical work in county offices better than he does to farming.

—The body of Ole Hagberg arrived at Moscow Sunday and was buried with military honors Monday. Six of the comrades who served with Ole Hagberg in the Philippines were pall-bearers. Rev. Ghormley delivered the sermon.

—Hogs are in good demand. Eli Hickman is scouring the country for swine for the Seattle market and is paying 4½ cents on foot. When we get our creamery started the country will be alive with hogs and money will be found on every bush.

—There will be preaching at the Congregational church next Sabbath both morning and evening. Subject in the morning, "The graciousness of Christ." In the evening, the pastor will commence a course of sermons on "God's method of seeking his lost ones."

—Mrs. Anna B. Williams, who has been visiting her parents in Asotin, Mr. and Mrs. Baumeister, for some time, received a telegram yesterday announcing the death of her husband, Dr. H. S. Williams, at Douglas, Wyoming. None of the particulars have been ascertained at this writing.—Asotin Sentinel.

—Mr. Soden made a sale of his horse and saddle to some old Potlatcher with gray beard, slouch hat, etc., but when the money was to be forked over the aforesaid buyer was not to be found. At any rate the horse got a currying, a couple of big feeds, etc. McNeill will give you a fuller account of the deal than will Mr. Soden if you will ask him about it when he is not busy sawing wood at home.

—"Hot time in the old town" last Friday night. It was Joe Wells' turn to entertain the circle of friends he is running in. He hired Geo. Steltz' hall, secured a barrel of grub, tables and cards and invited in enough young and married people for four tables. Cinch was the game and after three hours of uninterrupted amusement it was discovered that Mr. Cool had the cinch on the head prize and Miss Burgess on the foot prize. Refreshments followed. All voted Mr. Wells a success as an entertainer.

—Senator Shoup has introduced an amendment to the Indian appropriation bill extending the time of payments due from settlers on Indian reservation lands and sold to settlers, for another year, or until July 1, 1901. This no doubt will be appreciated by many of our Nez Perce settlers. He also introduced an amendment to increase the appropriation for support and civilization of the Nez Perce Indians from $1000.00 to $2500.00. He has also introduced a bill appropriating $100,000 to sink artesian wells in Idaho, under regulations to be prescribed by the secretary of the interior and at such points as he may direct for the purpose of testing whether the force of the subterranean water flow in this state can be made available for irrigation of arid lands.

Another Pioneer Gone.

Died, in Genesee, on Friday, February 2, 1900, Mrs. Anna Thomas, after an illness of only a couple of days, aged 66 years. This news came as a surprise as only the week previous she attended a church social and was as lively as any person in attendance. The lady went to Mr. Platt's home for a visit and was taken ill. The death angel visited her at 2:30 on the above date.

Anna Davis was born in Pennsylvania February 26, 1834. Moved with her parents to Wisconsin when a child. Was married to Simon Thomas in November, 1857. Her husband died February, 1862, leaving two children, William, and Mrs. McMahon. Came to Idaho in 1888 with her daughter with whom she has since made her home.

The funeral took place from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Platt Saturday afternoon, Rev. W. C. Fowler delivering the sermon. The remains were followed to the Genesee cemetery by a large number of sympathizing friends.

—Farmers, business men and all should pull for a creamery.

—St. Valentine's day next Wednesday. Who said anything about a valentine party?

—That was a pretty stiff breeze that passed this way Tuesday morning, leveling signs, outbuildings, and tearing down a portion of the brick wall of the Conant store projecting above the roof. It was the severest blow our people have had in this valley. But from accounts this was mild in comparison to the storms occurring east and south.

—Results of "mixed farming" were noticeable in Genesee the past week or two, Mr. Thompson buying hay right and left, paying $12 per ton for timothy and $7 for wheat hay. Hogs sold on foot for $4.50. Oh, no, mixed farming don't pay. Any scrub of a calf is good for $12. Keep on with exclusive wheat raising if you want to remain poor.

—Chas. Lambert, the creamery man, is with us again and is explaining the best he can the workings of a creamery. As there will not be a fortune in it for him for a couple of years he is not very particular whether he makes a go of it or not. Farmers must take hold of the proposition with him or the matter will be dropped very soon. Let there be a big meeting tomorrow and the matter thoroughly discussed. If the matter is dropped now it may be some time before another opportunity as favorable presents itself.

To Be Prepared

For war is the surest way for this nation to maintain peace. That is the opinion of the wisest statesmen. It is equally true that to be prepared for spring is the best way to avoid the peculiar dangers of the season. Absent-mindedness has seldom been a fame or money-making venture to its possessor. Nevertheless, the poem, "The Absent-Minded Beggar," which Mr. Kipling contributed to a London newspaper for sale, brought in a fund of $50,000 for the needy families of the soldiers sent to South Africa. The poem was recited nightly at ten music halls, and sung to Sir Arthur Sullivan's music at half a dozen more.

Scientific men predict that pathogenic bacteria, or disease-breeding germs, are destined to be exterminated in civilized lands, along with man-eating beasts and venomous serpents. And why not? Already the progress of medical science has gone far to eliminate or cancel the poison of typhoid and diphtheria; the bacillus of consumption is being hunted to its lair; and in cities where sanitation is duly regarded the scourge of cholera and yellow fever need no longer be feared.

Phillips Brooks said, in the last Thanksgiving sermon he preached: "I defy a man to put his finger upon any page of history when it was clearer than it is to-day that man has something to do with his brethren and that they are his brethren. Yes, it belongs to nations, too. No nation dare act in sublime selfishness." Whether the restraining motive be high or low, the fact of greed, envy, hate, under some control, is a ground of hope for individuals and governments.

It is but a poor compliment to a soldier—or, rather, it is not a compliment at all—to say of him that he was absolutely ignorant of fear. It is the overcoming of fear, not the entire absence of it, which constitutes bravery. In other words, the man who has never experienced the sensation of fear—if such a man ever lived—is lacking in relative judgment. He cannot reason from cause to effect far enough to see that if he does a certain thing he is sure to be killed. And such a mental composition, so far from constituting greatness, is merely a sign of weak intellect. Hence we may be sure that Gen. Lawton, despite the assertions of his injudicious friends, knew very well what fear was, but he did not allow it to influence his conduct or his judgment. That is the real bravery which marks the gallant soldier. The other type—the disposition to rush at any antagonist without reasoning or reflection—is the mere brute instinct of the bulldog and it doesn't win battles.

The year nineteen hundred offers a considerable range of choice to persons interested in anniversaries pertaining to literary men whose claim to remembrance is indisputable. Scholars have the five hundredth anniversary of the death of Chaucer in mind, and repair with fresh delight to that "well of English undefyled." Richard Hooker, the English divine, has been dead three centuries. His distinction had the added felicity of winning Izak Walton's pen to record its fullness. The centenary of Cowper's death is numbered with the notable days in the year. Many to whom his works may not otherwise appeal will be grateful for the spiritual refreshment which they owe to his devotional writing. On the other hand, the centenary of Macaulay's birth is commemorated, at least by special recollection, by the large company who are his debtors because, when he wrote history, the poet's imagination kept dullness at a distance. There are other days and names for end-of-the-century mention which good readers and good listeners will not forget.

One of the matters now discussed by the Iowa teachers is the making of the township the unit of organization. Under the present system each independent school district, says the Chicago Tribune, has a board of directors and a secretary, making more than twenty-five officers in the average township. Many teachers believe better results could be had by abolishing these district boards and centralizing control of the schools in township boards. The experience in other States would bear out this view. In Philadelphia the schools are managed in a most wasteful fashion, there being a board of school directors for each ward in the city with great powers. The result is an extravagant management. Whenever there are many boards, each consisting of many members, then there are a large number of persons whose personal interests must be looked after and whose friends must be provided for. By reducing the number of directors these influences are reduced and economy follows. The Legislature will do well to reorganize the school system with the township as the basis of organization.

The highwayman robs a man—perhaps two men, if he is lucky—and that is the end of it so far as the extent of damage is concerned. But the promoters of inflated enterprises based on slender prospects start in to rob the public at large. All goes well for a while, perhaps, as it did with the Franklyn syndicate. But the time comes when the bubble bursts or shrinks to a poor semblance of its former self, and the damage is widespread. When the hour of collapse or contraction arrives we have all the troubles of a financial panic so far as these securities are concerned. Sometimes when the smash comes those who are really responsible have escaped. Sometimes the guilty go down with the innocent, the promoters with the investors. The punishment of wrongdoing falls upon the innocent, upon the public at large. Even those who have had no share in the game, who have not touched or handled the perilous thing, are caught in the pinch with those who have taken the risk. Real values are the only values that count in the long run. Dishonesty incorporated is just as much dishonesty as if it were practiced by individuals. And in the end it is about as sure to suffer the penalty.

The chartering of two steamers to carry cargoes of corn from Philadelphia to Reval, in Northern Russia, taken in connection with the fact that several cargoes have already been shipped to the same port from other Atlantic coast seaports, shows that Russia begins to realize the value of American corn as a cheap food for its people, especially those living in the northern and colder sections of that country. The difficulty heretofore has been to convince European consumers that corn could be utilized as a nutritious food for human beings. Large quantities have heretofore been shipped abroad for brewing purposes, but the prejudice against it as a food product was extremely hard to eradicate. Little by little, however, American corn has been making headway in Europe, and the Russian importations now in progress give promise of an extensive demand from that country in the near future. The sections of Russia in which corn can be grown profitably will also grow wheat, and the Russian farmers are likely to continue to raise wheat, leaving American corn to be imported as a cheap food for those who cannot afford to pay the prices wheat will bring in the European market.

WHY HE HAD TO MOVE.

Unfortunate Lived Next Door to a Doctor with Night Calls.

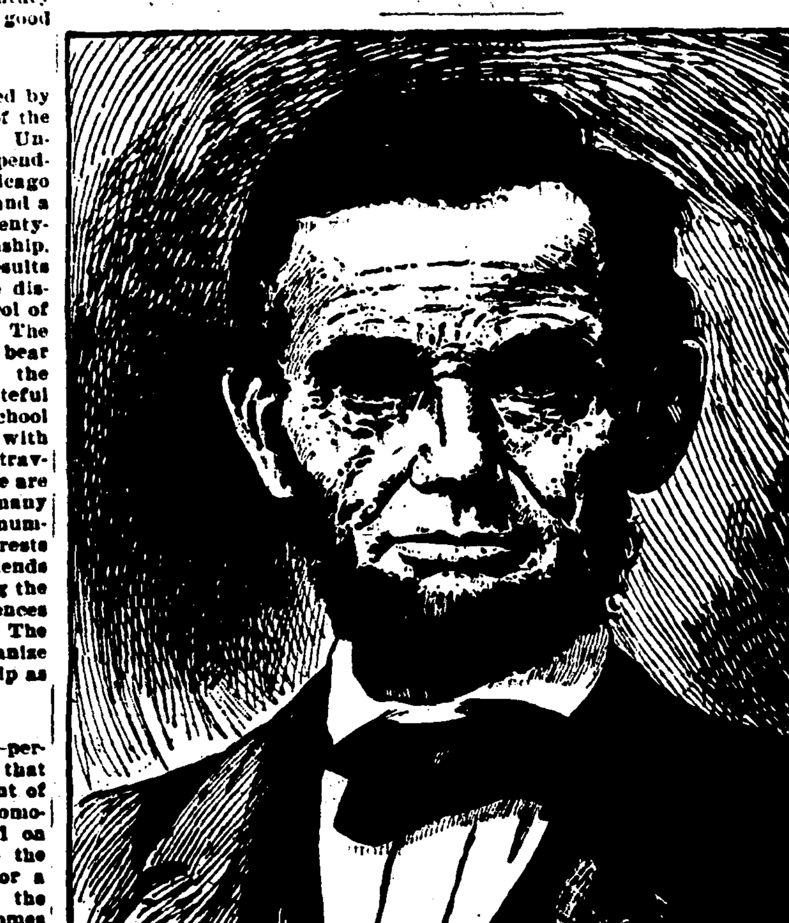
"Why, man," said the landlord to a tenant whom he had recently secured for a house that had been unoccupied for several months, "you're not going to vacate so soon? You've only been there a month."

"I know it and a month more would be the end of me. I am going to get a house way out in the suburbs and in the centre of a big lot. You'll never get me into a double house again as long as I live. I'd rather take the family and camp out."

"The place is all I told you it was, sir; good house, good neighborhood and everything in good repair. I'll look to you for the rent until the end of the term.

"That's all right, and I'll pay it. I'm not mean enough to try to sublet it, either. One thing you didn't tell me, that the man in the other end of the house is a doctor and that he seems to have trained his patints to call on him at night. I haven't had any sleep worth speaking of in the whole three weeks. Coming up on the porch they reach my door first. They ring the bell as though it were a fire alarm and then begin pounding on the door. When I'm forced to go to the door to prevent its being broken in and to give the rest of the folks a little show to sleep, it's 'Get into your clothes, doc, and come right over to the house,' or, 'Jimmie has the croup,' or, 'Baby's having an awful time with his teeth,' or, 'Why didn't you call this evening as you agreed to?' If I put my head out of the window and try to explain they get hot, tell me I had better take in my sign, better retire from business, or something worse. I'll bring you the keys this evening."—Detroit Free Press.

The Assassination of President Lincoln.



ON April 14 just thirty-three years will have passed since President Lincoln was shot down in Ford's Theater, Washington, by John Wilkes Booth. The excitement all over the United States to-day, caused by the war scare, brings to mind the thrill of horror and excitement that passed over the country thirty-three years ago, when, just as the minds of the people had become settled after four years of war, the country was startled by the announcement of Lincoln's assassination.

Announcements had been made in Washington papers that President Lincoln and Gen. Grant, accompanied by their wives, would visit Ford's Theater (now a pension office) on the evening of April 14.

Gen. Grant found it necessary to visit Burlington, N. J., on that memorable 14th of April, and he accordingly sent to President Lincoln a note of regret at his inability to accompany him to the theater that evening, leaving Washington on the 6 p. m. train.

To Schuyler Colfax, then Speaker of the House, the President extended an invitation to attend the theater as late as 8:15 p. m., for it was not until then that the President's party left the White House. President Lincoln manifested a curious reluctance to going, but stated that the papers had advertised that himself and Gen. Grant would both attend, and, since Gen. Grant had left Washington, he did not want to have the audience disappointed, as the people would expect to see at least one of them.

The theater was crowded. The box reserved for the presidential party was the double box forming the second tier on the right-hand side of the stage. The front of the box was decorated with flags and in the center, on the outside, hung an engraving of Washington.

As the Grants had declined an invitation to attend, Mrs. Lincoln invited, in their stead, Miss Harris, daughter of Senator Ira Harris, and Maj. Henry R. Rathbone, the Senator's stepson.

The play presented was the original version of Tom Taylor's "Our American Cousin," as it was always given before the late E. A. Sothern's changes in it, afterwards made to elaborate his still remembered character of Lord Dundreary.

The assassin, Booth, familiar with the theater, visited the box about 9 p. m., looking in for a last survey of the various positions of its occupants. It was supposed, at the time, that it was due to a mistake or the exercise of an impertinent curiosity. Unknown to the presidential party, Booth had, during the day, bored a hole through the door of the box for observation or perhaps to fire through.

At 10 p. m. Booth again entered the box, quietly holding a pistol in one hand and a knife, or dirk, in the other. Maj. Rathbone rose and asked this intruder his business. Booth rushed past the Major without making a reply and, placing his pistol close to the President's head, actually in contact with it, fired, and instantly sprang upon the cushioned baluster of the box, when he made a backward plunge with his knife, aimed at the face or breast of Mr. Lincoln. Maj. Rathbone, springing forward to protect the President, received the stab in his arm.

It was towards the latter part of the play. Perfect stillness reigned throughout the [illegible]. The audience listened to the dialogue between Florence Trenchard and May Meredith, when the pistol shot rang through the theater. It was apparently fired behind the scenes on the right of the stage, and it was accepted by the audience as an introduction to some new passage, several of which had been interpolated in the early part of the play.

Booth had been noted as a leaper, having become habituated to sensational leaps in his repertoire of characters. He leaped nine feet down on the stage, but his spur caught in the flag decorating the front of the presidential box and as he reached the stage he fell, recovering himself in a wonderful way, though his leg was broken. He bounded across the stage, pushing past Miss Laura Keene, who stood near the prompter's desk, striking her on the hand with his own, still holding the dagger. As he crossed the stage Booth cried out, dramatically, "Sic semper tyrannis!" and "I have done it!" Once through the side scenes Booth quickly escaped by the rear door of the theater, where a horse awaited him, its bridle held by an employe of the theater whom Booth rewarded with a kick, his agony from his broken leg being intense.

INTERIOR OF FORD'S THEATER.

Meanwhile the shrieks of Mrs. Lincoln made clear to the audience the nature of the horrible crime that had just been perpetrated. Pandemonium reigned. Women cried, men hollowed and children screamed. Miss Laura Keene advanced to the footlights and called out: "For God's sake, have presence of mind! Keep your places and all will be well!"

Miss Harris called to Miss Keene to bring some water, which the actress did, and afterwards accompanied Mrs. Lincoln to the house opposite, to which the unconscious President was at once removed. It was found that he had been shot through the head, above the back of the temporal bone, and that some of the brain was oozing out and that death was inevitable.

Within a comparatively short time the terrible news had spread all over Washington, and by midnight every member of the cabinet, except Seward, whose own life was attempted, had gathered at the bedside of their dying chief. Mrs. Lincoln was present, prostrated with grief, and other members of the family, Senator Sumner, Speaker Colfax, military officials of the War Department, several generals and physicians, the latter including Surgeon General Barnes, who had from the first assisted Dr. Stone, the President's family physician.

President Lincoln never recovered consciousness. As day dawned his pulse failed and a look of perfect peace overspread his features. At 7:22 a. m. he ceased to breathe. Rev. Dr. Gurley knelt down and prayed and Secretary Stanton broke the silence which followed with the remark: "Now he belongs to the ages."

The South lost, in Lincoln, one who would have proved to be its best friend, as is, perhaps, now realized. In a letter written to Gen. Van Alen on the last day of his life, Lincoln wrote words that strike the keynote of his character. In it he said:

"I thank you for the assurance you give me that I shall be supported by conservative men like yourself in the efforts I may make to restore the Union so as to make it, to use your language, a union of hearts and hands as well as of States."

Over all the members of that presidential theater party a black and awful fate hung menacingly.

The fate of the assassin, John Wilkes Booth, is too well known for repetition—shot down like a dog, as he was, in a burning barn.

Many have not followed the end of others indirectly associated with the tragedy. The stricken widow of the martyred President passed the balance of her days in melancholia and madness. Of the guests who were with her in the box that night, one slew the other and ended his own life a maniac.

By a curious coincidence, even Sergt. Boston Corbett, who shot Booth in the barn, became insane and was afterwards confined in a Kansas asylum.

VALENTINES OUT OF DATE.

Original Verse, Flowers or Candy Are Now the Proper Gifts.

Valentines are out of date. That is the edict of society. When the 14th of February comes around now the proper caper is to write to your lady fair a few choice stanzas of valentine verse, or, in case of your inability to construct proper rhyme, send around a few bunches of violets or sweet roses or a nice box of candy—a heart shaped box preferred, of course—all tied up with pretty silk ribbons. The flowers and the candy may not last as long as the poetry, but the flowers will be prettier, the candy will taste better and both will be more appreciated.

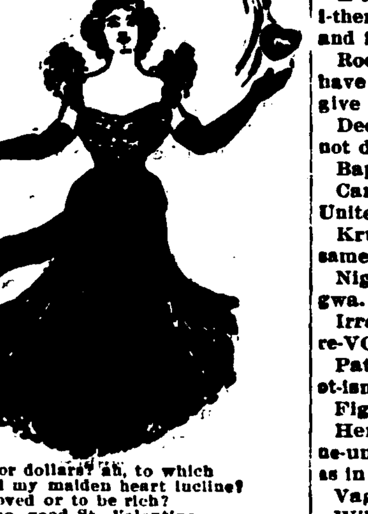
When it is said that valentines are out of date the statement has to be made, of course, with some reservation. They are out of date as gifts between fashionable adults, but among children they are popular still. Every little lad and lassie watches for the postman on the morning of St. Valentine's day, of course, and is disappointed if the mail brings no love message, no little embossed and painted Cupid. What is meant by the statement that valentines are out of date is that the day of the three-story, fussed and fuzzy, hand-painted, lint and nonsense creation, over which young ladies used to go into ecstasies of delight and young men used to go into bankruptcy, has long been passed. The custom of sending that sort of remembrance is as dead as the custom of New Year's calling. It was never a sensible custom anyway, for no young man felt really repaid in putting a week's salary into a gift to a young lady when, because of the mystery and secrecy that have to be observed in sending valentines, he could not accompany it with his card. It was altogether too discouraging to have his hated rival get the credit for sending a sentimental lot of poetry all done up in fluffy expensiveness for which he had cheerfully emptied his pockets and "gone broke." Valentines of that sort have had their day and belong now to the sweetly remembered past.

Lincoln's Fondness for Grant.

An amusing and possibly instructive anecdote, in which Lincoln and Grant figure, and showing the latter's estimate of cavalry, is related by Mr. William O. Stoddard, for some time one of the former's private secretaries. The general had not long been in command of the Army of the Potomac, when one day Mr. Stoddard asked Lincoln's opinion of him. "Grant," replied the President, "is the first general I've had. He's the general!" Remembering the high esteem in which McClellan, Burnside, Hooker and Meade had been held, Mr. Stoddard asked Lincoln to explain, and this is what he said:

"You see, when any of the rest set out on a campaign they'd look over matters and pick out some one thing they were short of and they knew I couldn't give 'em, and tell me they couldn't hope to win unless they had it; and it was most generally cavalry. Now, when Grant took hold, I was waiting to see what his pet impossibility would be, and I reckoned it would be cavalry, as a matter of course, for we hadn't horses enough to mount even what men we had. There were 15,000 or thereabouts up near Harper's Ferry, and no horses to put them on. Well, the other day, just as I expected, Grant sent to me for those very men; but what he wanted to know was whether he could disband 'em or turn 'em into infantry! He doesn't ask me to do impossibilities for him, and he's the first general I've had that didn't."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

PRAYER TO ST. VALENTINE.



Hearts or dollars? ah, to which
Should my maiden heart incline?
To be loved or to be rich?
Tell me, good St. Valentine.

Should I scorn the shining gold?
Is a heart a richer mine?
Here I'm waiting to be told—
Tell me, good St. Valentine.

PHOTOGRAPHY IN LAWSUITS.

Difficulties in Presenting Evidence Materially Lessened by Camera.

"Photography has reduced the difficulties in lawsuits and trials to a minimum," remarked a member of the bar. "In times past it was the universal custom in murder trials to take the juries to the scenes of the crime, so that they could get a better understanding of the testimony and the facts in the case. Besides the time involved, there was considerable expense in this. there was considerable expense in this. grams, drawings and sketches constantly used in important trials. All this is now done away by the photograph, which is always accurate. In making copies of exhibits in civil causes, notes, deeds, wills and the like the blue print has done away entirely with the services of the draughtsmen who were employed to reproduce the same.

"I remember well the celebrated trial of General Daniel Sickles, then a representative from New York, for the murder of Philip Barton Key, who was the United States districtattorney. The pictorial exhibits in this trial almost filled one of the walls of the courthouse. The clubhouse in the front of which the shooting occurred, now the site of the Lafayette Square opera-house, was, of course, the principal picture. Then there was a drawing of Lafayette square, showing how Key signaled over to Mrs. Sickles, who resided on the opposite side of that square, and a big drawing of the house on Fifteenth street, between K and L streets, where the meetings between Colonel Key and Mrs. Sickles took place, as well as the signals which were displayed on the house indicating to Key whether or not Mrs. Sickles had arrived there. Besides these, there were other pictures and diagrams which were prepared by William Forsyth, the city surveyor. They cost considerable money, but the whole thing could now be better represented at the expense of a couple of dollars and ten minutes' use of a kodak. I have known of hundreds of dollars being expended in the preparation of facsimiles of exhibits, forgeries, etc., all of which can now be reproduced in a half hour by the blue print process and at a very trifling expense comparatively."—Washington Star.

AUTOMOBILE HOSE WAGON.

AUTOMOBILE HOSE WAGON.

The curious-looking piece of apparatus pictured here has recently been added to the equipment of the fire department of Paris, France. Experiments with it have been so satisfactory that a number of the automobile hose carriages are to be installed at once. The machine carries a crew of from six to eight men and a full equipment of life-saving apparatus, chemical extinguishers and hose. It is said to be faster and more easily controlled than any horse apparatus.

School Boys as Barometers.

It looked like rain, and naturally he had on a pair of light shoes and carried no umbrella. The car stopped on the far side of Girard avenue and a young lady got in. She bowed, and sat down beside the Saunterer, who recognized in her a school teacher friend.

"What do you think of this beastly weather?" queried he, disgruntledly. "Is it going to rain, or isn't it?"

"I can't tell you to-day," answered the young lady, smiling an acceptance of whatever might come. "If it were a school day, and you were willing to come to school with me, I could tell you in a very few minutes with absolute certainty. It'll sound funny to you, but it's true. I have noticed that you can always tell what the weather is going to do by the children. They're regular barometers. If there's going to be a storm they get restless, and I have the hardest kind of work to control them. Particularly the boys. The girls aren't so bad, but there seems to be some mysterious quality about approaching rain that always affects the former. I've got so now I don't blame them, because I don't believe they can help it. So you see," she concluded, as she got out at Chestnut street, "children have their uses, after all."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

POLLY'S VALENTINE

Polly by the oaken newel;
Moses, thinking no one nigh;
O to catch the dainty jewel—
Kiss her on the sly.

"Very cautiously and still I
Tiptoe, making not a sign,
And I hear—" I wonder will I Got a valentine?"

"Faith, she's sure to have one proffered!
What will winsome Polly say?
Will she scorn my heart if offered

Grandma's Valentine

"THE postman! the postman!" cried Dorothy, dancing excitedly about the nursery. "He is coming here; I hear his whistle! Oh, nurse, please may I go down and see if he has brought any valentines?"

"Not with your cold, dearie," said nurse, shaking her head, and so Dorothy had to be content with peering over the stairs, while Donald clattered down and came back again with his hands full of envelopes, large and small.

"One, free, six for me!" he panted, "and one, free, seven for Dorothy!" And how happily the children were as they tore open the envelopes and explained the pretty cards and verses which they contained. And then Sister Nell came in to show them her valentine, a great bunch of beautiful roses, and when Dorothy asked her if she could guess who had sent them (for guessing is half the fun on St. Valentine's day), she grew quite red, and said: "Why, no; of course she couldn't; how should she?"

And just then dear grandma came in to see what the children were making such a racket about. And, of course, they showed her their valentines, and Nell pinned one of her most beautiful roses on grandma's black dress; and then, quite unexpectedly, Dorothy looked up into the sweet, placid old face, and asked, gravely: "Grandma, did you ever get a valentine?"

Grandma did not reply for a moment, and then she stopped and kissed Dorothy on the forehead, and something very bright and glistening fell among the brown curls. "Yes, dear," said grandma, softly, "lots of them, but I had one which I think I must tell you about some time."

"Oh, tell us now," cried all the children at once, and Nell, who had been placing her valentine in a vase of water, joined in the general coaxing.

"Nell," said grandma, "if you really want to hear I will tell you about it, but wait a moment, I can show you my valentine."

She left the room, and she was gone so long that the children had time to wonder greatly what grandma's valentine could be, and they were all gathered around the chair, with eager, expectant faces, when she returned. She carried in her hand a small, old-fashioned work box, whose covering, once bright and gay, was worn and faded now. She smiled into the upturned faces as she resumed her place among the children, but there were tears in her eyes as she said:

"Now, children, I will show you my valentine, but, first, I must tell you part of the story. And I must also explain that when I was young people made their own valentines, and, although they may not have been as pretty as the modern ones, perhaps, yet, I think they were a great deal nicer, because, you see, nobody would take the trouble to make a valentine unless it were to send to somebody that one was very fond of indeed. But Donald is growing impatient for the story! When I was a young girl I lived in a dear old country town, which some of you have seen. My father and mother both died when I was a very little child, and so I lived with my grandparents, and very kind and good they were to me, and I loved them very dearly. Nevertheless, they were very old, and, somehow, they seemed to have quite forgotten how it felt to be young and full of life, and grandma did not understand why I was not always content to sit quietly in the house, reading or sewing all day, when all my young friends were out skating or sleighing, if it were winter, or picnicking or rowing on the river if it were summer. The old people had one amusement, however, of which they never wearied, especially in the long winter evenings; they dearly loved a rubber of whist. I could play, too, and any of my young friends who would consent to make up a game by taking a hand was always a welcome guest. 'I think your friend Benjamin Worrell is a very fine young man,' grandpa would say, and then he was sure to add, 'He plays an excellent game; a little reckless, perhaps, at times, but he has a good head.' Once I repeated this praise to Ben——"

"Why, that was grandpa's name," interrupted Dorothy. "I remember—Col. Benjamin Worrell, it says so under his picture in the library."

"Yes," said grandma, smiling, "he was your grandfather; but he did not seem much like a grandfather then. He was very tall and straight, with flashing black eyes and dark, curling hair, and he had a fine way of throwing back his head when he talked. People used to call him 'Handsome Ben,' which annoyed him very much, but when I told him what grandpa had said he was quite pleased. 'But what a hypocrite I must be, Kate,' he said, laughing, 'to make the dear old gentleman think that I come here just to play whist, when my real reason for coming is to see you.' Your grandfather was always bold as a young man," said grandma, apologetically.

"Well, your grandfather used to come, evening after evening, and he played long games of whist with the old people, but he used somehow to get in a little talk about our own affairs, although we seldom had a chance to see each other alone. And then the 14th of February came around, and I had scores of valentines, and great sport it was, for each young man had to deliver his own, and it was no easy task to do this without being seen, which would have spoiled the fun. Well, just toward dusk, I happened to be looking from an upper window, and I saw a tall figure creeping along by the garden wall. He had his hat drawn well down over his face, but I caught just a glimpse of a dark mustache, and, I assure you, my dears, it was all I could do to behave with becoming dignity, when Sophie, our old colored servant, came upstairs with a square envelope addressed to me."

"Oh! I know!" cried Dorothy, clapping her hands. "It was grandpa's valentine!"

"Yes," said grandma, "and here it is," and she drew from the box an old-fashioned envelope addressed in faded ink and in an elaborately disguised hand, to "Miss Katharine Onderdonk."

She handed the envelope to Nell, who, almost reverently, drew forth the valentine. It was a playing card, the queen of hearts, and over the back had been neatly pasted a sheet of white paper, on which were writen the following lines:

"My Kate is surely Queen of Hearts,
And I will swear she's queen of mine.
Let's play a game where Love is trumps;
Sweet Kate will be my valentine."

The children all declared the poetry to be very beautiful.

"But grandma," cried Donald and Dorothy together, "what is that queer round hole right through the middle of the card?"

Sure enough, there was a hole which had pierced card and envelope just as the children had said.

"Wait a moment," said grandma, "we are coming to that. It was very soon after St. Valentine's day that your grandfather spoke to my grandfather about making me his wife, and grandpa was very much surprised, although our lovemaking had been going on for some months right under his eyes. And he hesitated a good deal, but finally, as there was no real objection, he gave his consent."

Grandma paused here for a few moments, thinking, I suppose, of those dear, happy days, now so long past; and the children had to remind her that they were waiting for the rest of the story.

"It was just after that," continued grandma, "that Ben had to go away on business for a few weeks, and he begged me to have a picture made of myself to give him on his return. I dearly loved to tease him in those days, and shortly after he had started on his journey I wrapped the valentine he had sent me very carefully in several thicknesses of paper, so that he would think it contained the stiff case of daguerreotype, and sent it to him by mail. Meanwhile I had a fine picture made for him with which to surprise him on his return, but he would not give me back my valentine. 'Do you think,' he said, laughing, 'that I am going to return the first present you ever gave me? No, indeed! though I did make it myself.' And he declared that he should always carry it next his heart.

"Well, the following spring we were married, and then we began our housebuilding. Ben planned the house himself, and I went with him to Boston to select the furniture. It was while we were there that we heard the news that made our heart stand still.

"Fort Sumter had been fired upon! We read the announcement in the paper, with white faces, and Ben kept saying all day, 'Oh, Kate! this is too terrible! I never thought it would come to this!' We went home with sad hearts, in spite of our car load of household treasures, for those were days when private joys and sorrows seemed as nothing in view of the danger which threatened the whole country. The Governor of our State had ordered the State troops, and the militia as well, to be in readiness; and Ben mustered quite a company of his friends (the finest and bravest young men in town), and they drilled night and day to be in readiness for the call. And I encouraged him in this work, God knows, with what a sinking heart, but Ben never suspected that I was half a coward. Your dear mother was a tiny baby then, and I used often to sing her to sleep with patriotic airs to keep up my own courage. And then at last it came—the call for troops—we were expecting it; but, oh! how weak I was when I heard Ben's voice shouting upstairs, 'Kate, Kate, the President has sent for us.'

"I was putting baby to sleep (your mother, you know, dears), and I knelt by her cradle just one moment, praying for strength. And it came, for when Ben entered the room I was able to smile quite bravely and to help him pack his knapsack, for they were to start that very night."

Grandma paused here for a moment, but no one spoke, and she went on in a low voice:

"How well I remember that night! It was raining, and very cold and damp; but every mother and sister and wife and sweetheart in town were at the station to see them off. Most of the women were crying bitterly, but I could not shed a tear, and when Ben took me in his arms to say good-by his lips moved, but he could not utter a word, and I could hear the beating of his heart. As the train pushed out there were shouts and cheers, of course, to keep up the courage of the men, and somebody shouted, 'Three cheers for Captain Worrell!' and the crowd took it up with a will. And then I looked up and saw my husband for the last time on this earth. He had climbed on top of the rear car and was raising his cap to the crowd (they were all lifelong friends), his own face was convulsed for a moment, and then he tried to smile, and pointed upward, when he saw me raise my head (with anguish written all over my face, I suppose), meaning, I suppose, that we were in God's hands. And then the train was swallowed up in the mist."

Again she paused, and again no one spoke.

"I heard from him many times after that," she continued. "Sometimes not for months, and then a whole batch of letters would come at once—always bright and cheerful, those letters, and full of little incidents and anecdotes which he thought might amuse and interest me, seldom a word of his own privations and even sufferings. I do not know how we women endured the long strain of that waiting for news. If it had not been that your mother was such a very young infant, I believe I would have followed my husband as some wives did, preferring anything to the terrible suspense of waiting quietly at home.

"And then the dreadful slaughter began. But you, children, must wait until you are older to hear about that.

"One day I was walking restlessly up and down the piazza of my little home, my baby in my arms, trying to put her to sleep as best I could without a lullaby (for I could no longer sing), when a soldier came up the path leading to the house. I knew him well, although he was greatly changed, for he was a neighbor and had been in Ben's company. I knew at once that he was the bearer of bad news, and as he approached nearer I could not speak, but just held out my hand. He laid a small package in it, saying, 'God pity you!'—and that was the last I knew for many hours. When I came to myself I still held the package in my hand, and when I had the courage to open it, the first thing I saw was—my valentine, torn as you have seen, by the bullet which had pierced one of the bravest hearts that ever shed its life blood for our country."

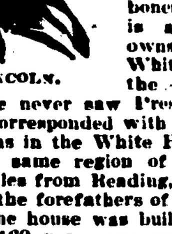
There was silence when grandma had finished speaking. Sister Nell was crying, and Donald whispered:

"I say, Dorothy, let's put away our valentines until to-morrow."—Georgia Custis in New York Ledger.

PRESIDENT LINCOLN'S COUSIN.

Lives in Pennsylvania and Bears the Same Name as the Martyr.

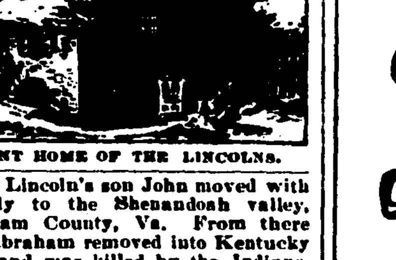
In Churchtown, Lancaster County, Pa., a cousin of President Lincoln still lives. He is also named Abraham Lincoln and is now 90 years old. In general appearance he is not unlike his distinguished relative, having the same large, erect, gaunt form and high cheek bones. Mr. Lincoln is a farmer and owns an estate, White Hall, near the Berks County line. He never saw President Lincoln, but he corresponded with him when the latter was in the White House.



A. LINCOLN.

In the same region of Pennsylvania, a few miles from Reading, is the ancient home of the forefathers of President Lincoln. The house was built by Mordecai Lincoln 160 years ago and is still well preserved. Not far distant is the house in which Daniel Boone was born. Living within hailing distance of these two places, before both the Lincolns and Boones moved southward to Virginia and thence to Kentucky, where the future President was born, was the Hanks family, from which sprang Nancy Hanks, the mother of the President.

In 1750, at the same time when the Boones and the Hankses set off from the same neighborhood for the South,



ANCIENT HOME OF THE LINCOLNS.

Mordecai Lincoln's son John moved with his family to the Shenandoah valley, Rockingham County, Va. From there his son Abraham removed into Kentucky in 1782, and was killed by the Indians, leaving three sons, of whom Thomas, the youngest, was father of the President. Nancy Hanks, the wife of Thomas Lincoln, and the mother of the President, was a descendant, a granddaughter, of that John Hanks who left Berks County in 1750.

LINCOLN'S EASY-GOING WAY.

Would Consent to Be Swindled Rather than Contest a Fee.

The fee which Lincoln received in the McCormick case, including the retainer, which was $500—the largest retainer ever received by Lincoln—amounted to nearly $2,000. Except the sum paid him by the Illinois Central Railroad, it was probably the largest fee he ever received. The two sums came to him about the same time, and undoubtedly helped to tide over the rather unfruitful period, from a financial standpoint, which followed—the period of his contest with Douglas for the Senate. Lincoln never made money. From 1850 to 1860 his income averaged from $2,000 to $3,000 a year. In the forties it was considerably less. The fee-book of Lincoln & Herndon for 1847 shows total earnings of only $1,500. The largest fee entered was one of $100. There are several of $50, a number of $20, more of $10, still more of $5, and a few of $3.

If a fee was not paid Lincoln did not believe in suing for it. Mr. Herndon says that he would consent to be swindled before he would contest a fee. The case of the Illinois Central Railroad, however, was an exception to this rule. He was careless in accounts, never entering anything on the book. When a fee was paid to him he simply divided the money into two parts, one of which he put into his pocket, and the other into an envelope which he labeled "Herndon's half."

Drawing Down the Disease.

At the very outset of the war, sundry wise men from New York urged Mr. Lincoln to keep away Confederate armies from Washington by naval attacks upon Southern seaports. It reminded him, he said, of a New Salem, Ill., girl who was troubled with a "singing in her head," for which there seemed to be no remedy, but a neighbor promised a cure if they would "make a plaster of psalm tunes and apply to her feet, and draw the singing down."

April in Lincoln's Career.

April 21, 1832, elected captain for service in the Indian war.

April 15, 1861, issued a call for 75,000 three months' militiamen.

Another Lincoln Story.

Of Lincoln a tale is extant and believable that when he was informed of Stanton's referring to him as a "d—d fool," he replied: "If Stanton says so, there must be something in it. He's generally right."

Stamps for the Vest Pocket.

Postage stamps in books convenient for pocket use will be put up and sold by the postoffice department at the rate of 25 cents for a book of 12 two-cent stamps if the plans of Postmaster General Smith and Third Assistant Madden materialize. It is proposed to make the books of a size fitting one's vest pocket, place wax paper between the layers of stamps and to print on the outside of the book postal rates and other information. Among the advantages of preparing stamps in this form are that they will not crumple in the pocket, the purchaser has stamps always at hand in convenient form, the wax paper keeps the stamps from sticking, there is a supply of stamps available without carrying a box or opening one's pocketbook in public, and that the postal regulations always are ready for instant use. It is estimated that the one-cent profit charged for the 12 stamps in book form would net $6 for each 1,000 books sold, or would produce about $230,000 profit annually for the department.

New California Senator.

Sacramento, Feb. 5.—At present it looks very much as though Thomas Bard, the nominee of the republican caucus, will be elected to the United States senate on Tuesday. After the 33 who are supporting Daniel Burns had bolted the caucus 52 remained, who give it as their intention to stand by Bard to the end. They claim that the 33 bolters are bound by the terms of the call to vote for Bard and that even though they do not enough democrats will vote for him to secure his election.

The iron and metal workers' union of Sweden are discussing the advisability of joining the socialist party.

Leyds Is the Sensation.

Berlin, Feb. 5.—Dr. Leyds, diplomatic agent of the Transvaal, continues to be the sensation here. The officials of the British embassy are amazed at the warmth of his reception and the interest taken in the war, which is most intense. Dr. Leyds, the correspondent is reliably informed, had another long conference with Count Von Buelow, the minister of foreign affairs, yesterday at the foreign office. Dr. Leyds refused to make any statement on the subject.

It is said the Transvaal special commercial representative, De Ward, who is now in Holland, has been summoned to Berlin where he will give authentic information about a number of commercial details touching upon the Transvaal imports and exports.

From a good source it is learned that a number of leading German industries in machinery and other branches met at the foreign office during the week, and received inside information about the subject above indicated. The German government believes no matter which way the war is finally decided there will be a splendid field for German exports to the Boers, and steps accordingly were taken.

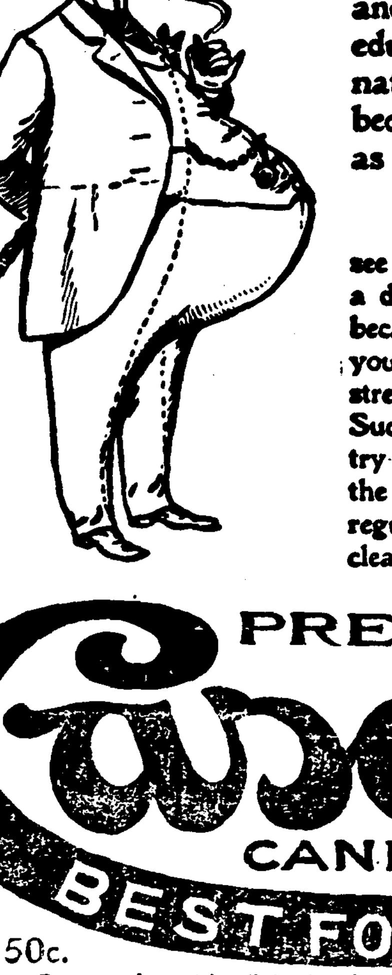
BOWEL BAY-WINDOWS



When a man gets one, he becomes a slave to his bowels. Every person ought to have control over the different parts of the body, and it is the easiest thing in the world to educate the bowels, make them do their duty naturally and regularly, and keep them from becoming a source of misery and a deformity as well.

Don't neglect the slightest sign of irregularity but see that you have at least one natural easy movement a day. Pills, salts and black draughts are dangerous because they strain and weaken the bowels. What you want is a mild but sure laxative, that tones and strengthens the bowels and stimulates their movements. Such a laxative is CASCARETS, and when you try them, you will find that it is the easiest thing in the world to make and keep your bowels clean and regular, strong and healthy. Vineland is said to have made more rapid progress in the past three years than any like section of the entire northwestern country.

—At the farmers' institute at Garfield last week, Hon. C. L. Smith, of Minnesota, a practical farmer, said many good things. He deprecated the tendency of farmers to become discontented and constantly seeking for new locations and countries where fortunes may be made with little work, and declared that no such country exists. Of dairying he said: "I do not say that dairying is one of the most profitable methods of farming, but I do say, without fear of successful contradiction, that farming is never thoroughly successful without a more or less extensive production of live stock. Dairying is nearly always profitable and the conditions here are quite similar to the conditions in my state. There we had been growing all wheat until, in the older settled portions of the state, the land was worn out and until the production per acre was very low and the farmers were dissatisfied and discouraged. Some of us preached diversified farming and met with the same opposition you meet here. We might have been preaching yet had not the Lord or the devil (I have never known which) sent us a flock of chinch bugs, which ate up every bit of wheat for two years." He then described how farmers were forced to do something else and described in detail how the first co operative creamery was started by a Danish colony. He traced the difficulties of the new industries, which thrived despite the opposition, until today there are over 800 co-operative creameries in the state, and Minnesota creamery butter holds the world's prize for creamery butter. He said: "When the creamery and dairy industry first began in Minnesota the farmers were nearly all borrowers of money, and when a number got together they talked about the rate of interest and declared it too high, but now the dairy farmers are nearly all lenders of money and declare the interest rate too low." The speaker told of one county where, 15 years ago, wheat averaged seven bushels per acre and land was worth $10 an acre. Last year there were 20 co-operative cremeries there and $650,000 was paid to the farmers for cream alone. The land has been enriched. Last year that county shipped more beef cattle, hogs, poultry eggs, butter and wheat than ever in its history and the farmers were all wealthy. He advised the farmers to go slow as the change could not be made in one year. It will take several years. Thought the conditions here similar to those in Minnesota.

Just The Blues.

Many a woman dresses to go out, feels irresolute, sits down, and falls into a fit of despondent musing. Ask her what's the matter, and she'll probably answer "Just the blues." And what are the blues? Only another name, in general, for a disordered liver and a diseased stomach. Cleanse the liver, heal the stomach, purify the blood, and there'll be no more blues. It can be done by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This medicine puts the diseased organs of digestion and nutrition into a condition of sound health. It eliminates from the blood all impure and poisonous substances, and cleanses the clogged liver. It contains neither alcohol nor narcotics.

"I had liver complaint for the past fifteen years, complicated with dyspepsia and gall stones," writes Mrs. N. Bernier, of 461 Elm St., Oshkosh, Wis. "I doctored with seven of our prominent doctors, and not one or all of them have done me the good, nor begun to do what your medicines have. I have used three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, one vial of his 'Pleasant Pellets,' and one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and have gained about eighteen pounds since I first began to take these remedies."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure biliousness.

—Manufacturers were apparently the busiest people in this country of ours in 1899. They increased their importation of materials for use in manufacturing, 33 per cent over the busy year '98, and actually increased their exportations of manufactures 25 per cent, so that the grand total of manufactures exported during the year reaches 380 million dollars and seem likely to touch the 400 million line with the fiscal year ending June 30 next.

—The topics editorially treated in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for February are the Nicaragua Canal proposition now before Congress, the Canadian and Erie Canal projects, underground transit in New York and elsewhere, the currency and business situation, the Treasury and the banks, the popular election of Senators, Mr. Beverage's speech in the Senate on the Philippine question, our tariff policy in Puerto Rico and Cuba, the meaning of "neutrality" in the Boer war, and the strength and weakness of the Boer position.

"It did me more good than anything I ever used. My dyspepsia was of months standing after eating it was terrible. Now I am well," writes S. B. Keener, Hoisington, Kan., of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It digests what you eat.

THE republicans of south Idaho meet at Boise tonight. Willis Sweet is among the speakers.

THE Mount Idaho Mail is the latest journalistic venture in Idaho, by C M. Gilkey & Co. It's newsy and deserves liberal patronage.

THE Blackfoot News acknowledges it was in error regarding the attitude of the silver republicans of Fremont and Blaine counties, but Brothers Scott and Lockwood somehow failed to say how they happened to be deceived—mum as oysters. Col. Jones need lose no sleep, the returning lads—as brainy as any in the state—will receive at least as much from their former associates as from the pretended fusion conglomeration. Yes, the boys have all returned to camp.

ONE-HALF of the bills introduced in congress are bills for pensions to people who have been refused by the pension bereau. Perhaps one in ten is valid. They take up the time of the committees and of the two houses, and are a general nuisance. A bill recently introduced by Mason is designed to do away with this. It provides for the creation of a court of pension appeals, to consist of five members, of which three, at least, shall be lawyers and one a member of the G. A. R. The court will determine all claims for pensions.

IT looks as if another cabinet officer would be added, as the committee has reported favorably, department to be known as Commerce and Industries. The Bureaus which it is proposed to transfer from the old departments to the new one, are the life saving service, the lighthouse board, the marine hospital service, steam, navigation, shipping, coast and geodetic survey, statistics, labor, immigration, and all consular offices, including Consuls General, Consuls, commercial agents, and all offices of the government resident in foreign countries charged with the duty of facilitating and promoting commerce.

THE house committee on interstate commerce is trying to decide whether the government shall build a cable line to connect our new possessions in the Pacific, or whether we shall pay a subsidy of $400,000 a year to a private corporation which offers to do so on those terms and send free of cost all messages relating to government business. Surveys have already been made, and the naval authorities recommend that a cable be laid from San Francisco to Honolulu, 2,100 nautical miles; to Midway, 1,600 miles; to Gaum, 2,280 miles, and to Luzon, a land line from Lingayen bay to Manila, making a total distance of 6,912 nautical miles. A nautical mile is 6,087.15 feet, while the ordinary geographical mile is 5,280 feet. The cost of laying a cable at present prices is $1,050 a mile, which would make this cable cost $7,257,600. To this must be added many other expenses attending the work, including the purchase and equipment of not less than two steamers to lay the cable and keep it in repair. The corporation that offers to lay the cable estimates the expense to be $10,000,000, and wants the government to guarantee it 4 per cent upon the investment for at least twenty years.

"I HAVE always favored the acquisition of the Philippines The United States should stand with the administration in all that is being done to hold the Philippines; they are worth retaining," said Arthur Sewall, former democratic candidate for vice president, who recently returned from Honolulu where his son is special agent for the U. S. "Mr. McKinley will be renominated and re-elected," says Sewell; "the country is too prosperous to warrant any hope of a change in the national administration."

THERE is only one Pettigrew in the United States, and he was bred in South Dakota —Pocatello Advance.

You're off, Horace Greeley Perry; bred in Wisconsin near Windy Chicago. Senator Depew last week took several kinks out of the gentleman after he had recuperated from the castigation received the week previous Poor man is without friends now, save now and then a mongrel will stick up for him. No one wanted to father the bill permitting packages weighing up to 60 pounds to go through the mails at a rate of 20 cents, so Pettigrew introduced it. The senator has been a great deciple of crankism and opposed to anything monopolistic in its tendencies. We know him pretty well. This bill of his will aid department stores, catalogue houses and other large institutions such as South Dakota has not, and just where the senator gets his inspiration for it we cannot cipher out. Wannamaker must have given him a pair of jeans for this act.

—The Designer for March presents the feminine public a most tempting array of fashions and millinery depicted in black-and-white and in color. Nearly a hundred patterns are illustrated, and in addition there are numerous helpful hints for the dressmaker and seamstress, not least among which is the illustrated series "Points in Dressmaking," this month's instalment treating of "insertions and Edgings." Aside from the fashion department this number of The Designer contains a page of household hints entitled "All Around the House." "The Kindergarten in the Home," "The Evolution of a Contented Woman" and other articles are worthy articles.

—Tom Tierney, west of Genesee, receives 67 cents for his wheat by feeding it to hogs, says Uniontown Gazette. Feeding hogs and cattle next to keeping a number of cows is one of the most attractive features on the farm. The farmer is like the business man, Bro. Herman, he must have something to do the year round to keep him advancing.

—After summing up the testimony of experienced farmers given at the various institutes in the northwest the past six weeks, the Oregonian advises the grower who can produce wheat at a cost of 30 cents or less to stick to the business. There will be seasons like '94, when, even at this small cost of production, he will be obliged to market his grain at a loss or else carry it over, but they will prove rare exceptions, and all the attendant loss of a season like that mentioned will be recouped in the years of comparatively high prices, which greatly outnumber those of low prices. From the fact that Argentine will always be a competitor of ours in the wheat business, now garnering a 75,000,000 bushel crop, the paper advises the tillers to raise wheat as cheaply as possible and feed it to hogs. At the institutes farmers held that from 40 to 55 cents a bushel could thus be realized. A failure in foreign countries, or a Leiter, is about the only thing that will send the price of cereal above the 50 cent notch. The shipments to the Orient is on the increase, amounting to 5,500,000 bushels during the past six months. The enlargement of the market with our new possessions, China and Japan included, loom up as the only promising field for an increased demand. With increased transportation facilities as President Hill of the Great Northern contemplates giving us our market would be firmer and better. It would seem that the Philippines which will be soon settling up with bread eaters of this country and Europe, and the civilizing of the natives, would offer an enlarged market for everything produced in America. Let us raise wheat as cheaply as we can, raise hogs, and fight for lower freight rates.

"I had dyspepsia for years. No medicine was so effective as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It gave immediate relief. Two bottles produced marvelous results," writes L. H. Warren, Albany, Wis. Digests what you eat and cannot fail to cure.

Working Night and Day.

The busiest and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Dr. King's New Life Pills. These pills change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, brain-fag into mental power. They're wonderful in building up the health. Only 25c per box. Sold at Kennedy's.

—It is not surprising that Missouri mules stampede upon reaching Ladysmith. Those pesky flies take off the tail of an animal in three bites.

—Wren & Greenough, the railroad contractors on the reservation, are corraling relays of horses every few days and some of the other contractors are buying new work horses. The significance of all this is encouraging for railroad work on the prairie in the near future.

—No one doubts but sheep raising is the most profitable of all the live stock industries at the present time, says Blackfoot News. But how long it will hold up is a question the best informed cannot answer. Our American people are prone to go wild over any business that promises to pay well for a time. In the short life time of the News we can remember when horse raising was the thing. Then cattle, now it's sheep and possibly the next will be hogs. The NEWS cannot sea anything wrong with the price of all meats—hogs, 4½ cents, cattle 3½, work horses $100.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from pneumonia before morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at Kennedy's.

Geo. Barbe. Mendota, Va., says "Nothing did me so much good as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. One dose relieved me, a few bottles cured me." It digests what you eat and always cures dyspepsia.

MRS. T. KENNEDY.

The claim of other cough medicines to be as good as Chamberlain's are effectually set at rest in the following testimonial of Mr. C. D. Glass an employe of Bartlett & Dennis Co, Gardiner, Me. He says: "I had kept adding to a cold and cough in the winter of '97, trying every cough medicine I heard of without permanent help, until one day I was in the drug store of Mr. Houlehan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and offered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sore at this time, but I was completely cured by this remedy, and have since always turned to it when I get a cold, and soon find relief. I also recommend it to my friends and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines. Sold by all druggists.

John Dirr, Poseyville, Ind., says, "I never had anything as good as One Minute Cough Cure. Never without it." It quickly breaks up coughs and colds and cures all throat and lung troubles. Its use will prevent consumption. Pleasant to take. MRS. T. KENNEDY.

A bride, according to her husband, sleeps with a razor under her pillow. The trouble is that he doesn't—sleep.

A good many persons would not object to "one-man power" in the schools or elsewhere if they could be the man.

China has about come to the conclusion that its role in the festivities is that of the Christmas tree yet to be plucked.

England's recent seizure of flour brings up the fact that the only important barrels in war are not those of the rifles.

Concentration is not always what it's cracked up to be. Who has more of a single purpose in life than the confirmed old bachelor?

New York has weighed the boy trust President scheme in the balance and paid the difference. Once has satisfied the experimentors.

France is going to increase her navy. This will make it necessary for England, Russia, Germany and Italy to build a few more ships.

A New York man boasts that he has killed 1,520 woodchucks in nine years. And thus we see unto what glorious ends ambition still may lead.

They call Emperor William the war lord, but Germany is almost the only country of any consequence that hasn't been mixed up in an ugly war of some kind for almost thirty years.

The lady who, after capturing a burglar, sat on him and prodded him with a hatpin whenever he moved will find it difficult to learn anything further about the "refinement of cruelty."

The gondolas of Venice are to be given up and electric launches will take their places. Venice evidently is determined that if she can't have the trolley car she will have the next best thing.

The presiding officer in the French Senate rings a bell to suppress disorder instead of tapping with a gavel, as in America and England. From all accounts of parliamentary proceedings in France he ought to be equipped with a brace of six-pound rapid-fire guns.

A pleasant bit of recent news reported a man's deliberate destruction of a house valued at thousands of dollars rather than have the fine trees around it cut down. A contrary practice is too common. Stately and venerable trees are cut down to make place for flimsy and ephemeral structures, and thus in a day the work of many years is undone. The example cited is to be commended for the widest possible emulation.

There will come a day when the world will be birdless and then the pest insects, big and little, will begin. Whether the women who used some of the 1,500,000 birds that were killed in Venezuela last year to secure feathers for hats and bonnets ever think of this we do not know, but they should think of it. If the craze for "tips" and "wings" that are now used for headgear keeps up the pretty feathered creatures will be totally destroyed in this country, and in South American countries, too. Of course this is a long look ahead, but it is nevertheless a sure outlook.

Those who give the promptest answers are not always the most correct, but the habit of arriving at a personal opinion on a controverted question is both soldierly and statesmanlike. Mr. Reed, who—so to speak—abdicated the speaker's chair, says that his examination for admission to the bar consisted of two questions. The first was whether he had studied law; the second: "Is the legal tender act constitutional?" "Yes, sir, it undoubtedly is," was the reply. "That is all right," said Judge Wallace. "You may consider yourself admitted to the bar. Anybody who can answer offhand a great question like that, upon which so many mighty minds are divided, ought to be able to practice in any country."

A syndicate has been formed to back a Brooklyn inventor who thinks he knows how to build a ship that will cross the ocean in three days or less. But who wants to cross the ocean in three days or less? The very few persons who insist upon getting seasick on a first-class ship may desire something of the kind at starting, but they get over their seasickness about the third day out, and are then prepared to enjoy that greatest of all delights, an ocean voyage. If their ship makes port at that time they are cheated out of the best that they have paid for. As for reasonably healthy humanity, the threat of a three days' voyage is very disturbing. When one sails "for the other side" he plans a period of peace for a week at least, with absolute freedom from care, responsibility, telegrams, bills, district messengers, telephone calls and all the rest of the annoyances of civilization. He reflects upon the deck chair with delight, the main saloon as a haven of rest, the smoking room as a reposeful resort and the voyage itself as a vacation from vexations. Is he to be cheated out of all this by some pestilent inventor's improved screws that can drive his ship across in three days? The thought is discouraging to a generation that needs rest far more than it needs speed in ocean transit.

Heroism may select the battlefield as the scene of its doing and enduring, or it may choose the stillness and seclusion of a sick-room, and there manifest itself in one of its varied forms. The vision of daring and suffering in the South African strife ought not to prove so absorbing as to leave no room for the thought of the heroes of peace. A physician who recently died in Portugal bravely bore the pain incident to death from the plague, having contracted the disease in the course of his investigations. When he found himself in the grasp of the malady he forthwith studied and recorded, for the benefit of the human race, the symptoms and general course of the fatal attack. Nor was he content until he had arranged for his funeral, in order to secure the exercise of every precaution. As he lay dying, he still endeavored to indicate to those about him the details of that final experience. Medical science will profit by the analysis and record he made, while the courage he showed will make fortitude easier for sufferers who know what he did and what he endured.

W. D. Howells, in Literature, warns those who are addicted to the use of other's literary ideas that plagiarism is invariably detected. You can take a man's hat and coat and pawn them, you can take a man's horse out of the stable, ride away on it, and sell it; or steal a purse in a crowd, pass it to a pal and prove your innocence; but if you take a sermon, essay, poem or a bit of literary work of any kind you cannot hope to escape. "The world is full of idle people reading books," says Mr. Howells, "and they are only too glad to act as detectives; they please their vanity by showing their alertness and are proud to witness against you in the court of parallel columns." But the curious phenomenon in plagiarism is the fact that detection and exposure have few terrors. Plagiarism instead of being what the dictionary calls it, "crime" or "theft," is often more of a disease and the plagiarist is often honestly convinced when the case is proved against him that he is the injured person. There lives in this city a highly respected old gentleman who is perfectly convinced that he is the author of the "Bohemian Girl." As nobody pays royalties for Balfe's work the delusion is a harmless one. In modern literature, however, the pleasant habit of borrowing another person's literary work is more annoying. Perhaps the most extraordinary defense of plagiarism was that offered by a friend of Hall Caine. Concerning the appropriation of a given passage in "The Christian" without crediting it to its real author, his defense was that Mr. Caine was so in the habit of using material in the rough that he could not bother to answer critics on such a score. And so calloused is public opinion to plagiarism that its defense will probably be generally accepted and Mr. Caine's book will not suffer in the least thereby. Literary theft seems to be the only form of peculation in which it is not a crime to be found out. It carries with it little stigma, except in the minds of the hypercritical bookworm. Will someone explain the causes of such looseness of literary conscience?

Stevenson and the Samoan Exiles.

One of the features of the Barnum & Bailey show when it was at the Madison Square Garden several years ago was a dozen Samoans, who were picked specimens of their race. They talked no English, and one evening there was a great commotion among them because a spectator had asked them a few questions in their own language. They crowded around him and chattered away at a rate too rapid for him to follow. He proved to be William Churchill of Brooklyn. Mr. Churchill had been in Samoa and he obtained the permission of the show people to entertain the Samoans at a dinner in his home. The menu was made to correspond as nearly as possible with a Samoan menu, and the South Sea Islanders had a lively evening with their host until he happened to speak casually of the death of Robert Louis Stevenson. To his surprise, several of his guests had known Stevenson personally, and none of them had heard of his death. Mr. Churchill said afterward that their grief at his death was great. Mr. Churchill was later sent as consul general to Apia because of his knowledge of the Samoan language.—New York Sun.

Gold Fillings No Longer Fashionable.

Fashion's new fiat is that there shall be no more gold in teeth. Gold in the midst of a "row of pearls," the leaders say, is horribly conspicuous, and it is very bad form. None of the yellow metal should show when one laughs, and such a thing as half a front tooth of gold must no more be seen.

It is still allowable to use gold where there is no possibility of its showing, but in any other case the new rule of fashion is exceedingly positive.

It is not proposed that where gold is already in place it shall be taken out, but the "orders" are to use the other materials from now on, especially in the case of the upcoming generation.

In the place of gold the fashionable dentists are now using a white metal that hardens very quickly, and when hard looks precisely like the tooth itself.—Philadelphia Press.

CUPID'S DECADENCE.

In ancient days, when all was young,
And Love and Hope were rife,
Dan Cupid fed on rustic fare,
And lived a country life.

He rose betimes at break of day,
And round the country harried;
Upstirring hearts that were unwed,
And shooting down the married.

But then, on wider mischief bent,
He hied him to the city;
And finding much to suit his taste,
He stayed there—more's the pity.

Men built him there a golden house,
Bedight with golden stars;
They feasted him on golden grain,
And wine in golden jars.

They draped his pretty nakedness
In richest cloth of gold,
And set him up in business,
Where Love was bought and sold.

And thus he led a city life,
Forgetting his nativity;
Since then he's gone from bad to worse,
From Cupid to cupidity.

ONLY A QUARTER.

"PLEASE, sir, will you buy my chestnuts?"

"Chestnuts! No!" returned Ralph Moore, looking carelessly down on the upturned face, whose large brown eyes, shadowed by tangled curls of flaxen hair, were appealing so pitifully to his own. "What do I want of chestnuts?"

"But, please, sir, do buy 'em," pleaded the little one, reassured by the rough kindness of his tone. "Nobody seems to care for them, and——"

She fairly burst into tears, and Moore who had been on the point of brushing carelessly past her, stopped instinctively.

"Are you so very much in want of the money?"

"Indeed, sir, we are," sobbed the child; "mother sent me out and——"

"Nay, little one, don't cry," said Ralph, smoothing her tangled hair. "I don't want your chestnuts, but here's a quarter for you, if it will do you any good."

He did not stay to hear the delighted thanks the child poured out through a rainbow of smiles and tears, but strode on his way muttering between his teeth: "That cuts off my supply of cigars for the next twenty-four hours. I don't care, though, for the brown-eyed object really did cry as if she hadn't a friend in the world. Hang it! I wish I was rich enough to help every poor creature out of the slough of despond."

While Ralph Moore was indulging in these very natural reflections, the dark-robed little damsel whom he had comforted, was dashing down streets with rapid footsteps, utterly regardless of the basket of unsold nuts that still dangled upon her arm. Down an obscure alley she darted, and up a narrow wooden staircase to a room where a pale, neat-looking woman was sewing as busily as if the breath of life depended upon every stitch, and two little ones were playing in the sunshine that supplied the place of the absent fire. "Mary! back already? Surely you have not sold your chestnuts so soon!"

"Oh, mother, see!" ejaculated the breathless child. "A gentleman gave me a quarter! Only think, mother, a whole quarter!"

If Ralph Moore could only have seen the rapture which his small silver gift had brought into that poverty stricken home he would have grudged still less his privation of cigars.

* * * * * * * *

Years came and went. The little chestnut girl passed entirely out of Ralph Moore's memory, but Mary Lee never forgot the stranger who had given her the silver quarter.

* * * * * * * *

The crimson window curtains were closely drawn to shut out the storm and blast of the bleak December night. A fire was glowing cheerily in the grate, and the dinner table was in a glitter with cut glass, rare china and polished silver. Everything was waiting for the presence of Mr. Audley.

"What can it be that detains pa?" said Mrs. Audley, a fair, handsome matron of about 30, as she glanced at her tiny watch.

"There's a man with him in the study, come on business," said Robert Audley, a pretty boy of 12 years, who was reading by the fire.

"I'll call him again," said Mrs. Audley, stepping to the door. But as she opened it the gas light fell on the face of a humble-looking man in threadbare garments, who was leaving the house, while her husband stood in the doorway of his study, apparently relieved to be rid of his visitor.

"Charles," said Mrs. Audley, "who is that man and what does he want?"

"His name is Moore, I believe, love, and he came to see if I would give him the vacant position in the bank."

"And will you?" she eagerly asked.

"Don't know, Mary. I must think about it."

"Charles, give him the situation."

"Why, my dear?"

"Because I ask it of you as a favor, and you have said a hundred times you would never deny me anything."

"And I will keep my promise, Mary," said her lover husband with an affectionate kiss. "I will write the fellow a note this very evening."

An hour later when the children were tucked snugly in bed, Mrs. Audley told her husband why she was interested in the fate of a man whose face she had not forgotten in twenty years. "That's right, my little wife," said her husband when the simple tale was finished, "never forget one who has been kind to you in the days when you needed kindness most."

Ralph Moore was sitting that self-same night in his poor lodgings, beside his wife's sick bed, when a liveried servant brought a note from the rich and prosperous banker, Charles Audley.

"Goodness, Bertha!" he exclaimed joyfully, as he read the words. "We shall not starve. Mr. Audley has promised me the position."

"You have dropped something from the note, Ralph," said Mrs. Moore, and pointed to a slip of paper on the floor. Moore stooped to pick it up. It was a $50 bill neatly folded in a piece of paper on which was written:

"In grateful remembrance of the silver quarter that a stranger bestowed on a little chestnut girl twenty years ago."

Ralph Moore had thrown his morsel of bread upon the waters of life, and after many days it had returned to him.—Philadelphia Item.

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY QUESTION.

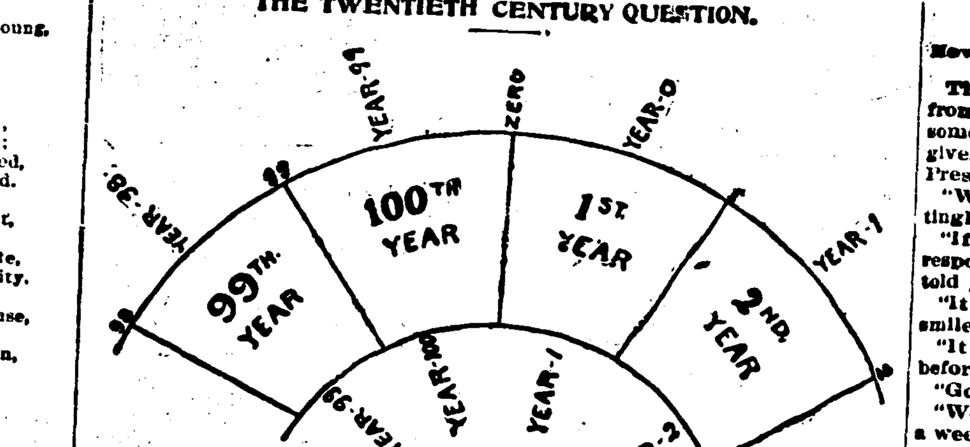

DIAGRAM ILLUSTRATING BOTH ARGUMENTS.

THE above diagram does not settle the question as to when the twentieth century began or begins, but it is given merely to show how both sides may be right. The whole question hinges on one point, whether the first year of time, A. D., was the year 0 or the year 1.

The 1901 advocates claim that, according to all common sense, reason and logic, the first year, from its first instant to its last, was the year 1. The 1900 people contend that time began at zero, not at 1, and that there was no year 1 until a complete unit, composed of 12 months, 52 weeks, or however the component parts may be designated, had been reached. They argue that time cannot begin at 1, any more than the figures on a thermometer, or a groceryman's scales, could begin at 1.

The advocates of 1900 insist that a difference between the use of cardinal and ordinal numbers must be observed. Six ounces of butter, say these reasoners, is 0 pounds and 6 ounces, and the first six months of time were year 0 and 6 months, not one year. The 1901 people do not regard the divisions between the years as governing the name of the year, but call the whole first year "year 1," the second year "year 2," etc., the 99th year being "year 99," and the 100th year "year 100."

The 1900 people, however, first designated the line marking the beginning of time "0," just as would be done on a thermometer or scale, the next division line "1," etc., by which process they arrive at 99 for the last division line before zero, or the point of beginning over again. These cardinal numerals, they contend, must govern the naming of the years, not the ordinal numerals used, by the 1901 people. The first year, they claim, is not the year 1, but the year 0, and whatever fraction may have passed; the second year the year 1 and a fraction, etc. The first century began with 0, they claim; the second with 100, and the 20th will begin with 1900. And there you are.

Commissions of Express Companies.

The express companies attend to purchases and sales, and to every variety of legal business, from searching a title to suing for a debt. They file models of inventions and get out patents, and have been known to stake out a properly described mining claim and attend to its development. The suburban lady, whose husband is disobliging or color blind, can safely entrust them with a piece of silk to match, and they will send an expert to match it for her and make the desired purchase. The actress who is forced by bad business to pawn her diamonds for money to get back to the Rialto can commission them, when prosperity has returned, to redeem her jewels, or pay the interest and have the pawn tickets renewed. In their C. O. D. departments they deliver goods for stores and collect for them, and they also attend to the collection of insurance benefits, payment of lodge dues and taxes. A young man can order an engagement ring through them, and the bride can order such parts of her trosseau as she cannot secure from local dealers. They will cheerfully attend to the engraving of card plates, with neatness and dispatch, will have clothes pressed and cleaned, and make themselves useful in almost every way the mind can conceive. These things are mentioned simply to give some idea of the surpassing things that express companies do. To describe their business in all its ramifications would be to describe practically every line of business in which one man commissions another to do anything for him.—Ainslee's.

WAS IT AN ACCIDENT.

Dragon Fly Securely Held by the Tendril of a Living Vine.

A most unusual occurrence is illustrated here. Mr. P. G. Lechen, of Milwaukee, Wis., who sends the photograph to an exchange, vouches for the following statement. He says: "One of the prominent citizens of this town while walking in his garden one morning was attracted by the futile struggle of a huge dragon-fly endeavoring to free itself from the tight grip of one of the tendrils of a wild cucumber vine. Apparently the tendril had twined itself so securely around the fly's body that the poor insect became a prisoner. It struggled for two days, and finally died of exhaustion. The question suggests itself: Was it an accident, or did the tendril act as a trap, after the manner of certain species which are recognized as insect-catching plants?"

Anecdote of a Dog.

Many years ago my wife and I made up our minds to possess a dog, and after much debate and long search purchased a fox terrier in the dog market. We named him "Tip." Tip was a most intelligent animal; indeed at times his evident comprehension of conversation and discussion of events in the family circle was startling. My wife was not so assured as I was that "Tip" really understood speech with the intelligence of "humans," so I planned the following to convince her.

I arranged that one evening the dog should be on the hearth rug between us (a favorite position with Mr. Tip) and that I would begin talking about him to her. I did so, and found considerable fault, among the phrases I used being, "he is getting useless, and I shall have to sell him."

The effect was startling, and caused me great surprise as well as remorse. Tip stood up, the great tears came into his eyes, and with an indignant look at me, slowly went out of the room and house, and it took a long time for him to recover his old trust in me.—J. W. Monk.

A LARIAT SWING.

How Bill Saved a Woman and Her Child.

The drummer had just come back from Texas, and, of course, he had something to tell, but as yet he had given no sign, says the Detroit Free Press.

"Well," said the hotel clerk, insinuatingly, "what did you see in Texas?"

"If you hadn't asked me pretty soon," responded the drummer, "I should have told you anyhow."

"It must have been something big," smiled the clerk.

"It was something I had never seen before."

"Go on with it," urged the clerk.

"Well," went on the drummer, "about a week ago I was in one of the country towns and it seemed to be a cowboy holiday, for the town was full of them. They were raising Samhill, too, and I was pretty thoroughly tired of the whole gang. Just about when I was ready to hide myself in my room to get away from them, I heard a terrific shout in the street, and I stepped to the window to see what it was. It was a horse in a light wagon coming at breakneck speed down the street, with a woman and child in the wagon. At the end of the street was a ditch fifteen feet deep and it was plain that when the runaway got there a tragedy would occur. Everybody seemed to be powerless, and the few who tried to do anything only made matters worse. Then I heard a shout, and a cowboy came around the corner fifty yards behind the wagon. He was on a big, lungy kind of a horse, but he was making him go his best, and he was gaining on the runaway. But not much, and the interest seemed to change from the danger of the woman and child to which horse was faster. I thought the chasing would make the other horse run faster, and perhaps it did, but in a minute I saw the cowboy swing a rope or something in his hand, and as I was wondering what in the mischief he was going to do with that thing he gave it a sling and a twirl, and the next instant his own horse settled back on his haunches, and the runaway went over on his side, not a dozen feet from the ditch. I didn't understand it even then, and rushed out on the street, as everybody who had been watching the exciting chase from the windows was doing, and at the door I met a big fellow coming in. As he passed me I heard him say: 'Bill is h—l with the lariat. I bet $20 he'd throw him afore he got to the ditch.' That explained matters," continued the drummer, "and when Bill came back with the woman and child safe, but somewhat shaken up, I invited him in and broke a bottle in honor of himself and his lariat."

Things Forbidden in War.

It is perhaps not generally realized that the game of war is hedged around by as many restrictions as a boxing match under Queensbury rules. These regulations, which are under the sanction of all the civilized countries of the world, are designed to insure fair play for the combatants.

When it is intended to bombard a place, due notice should be given, so that all women and children may be removed to a place of safety, and every care must be taken to spare churches and hospitals, as well as all charitable and educational buildings.

All chaplains, doctors and nurses are protected in every possible way, and are not to be taken prisoners or in any way injured.

Any soldier robbing or mutilating an enemy is liable to be shot without trial, and death is the penalty for wounding or killing a disabled man.

The bodies of the enemy are to be carefully searched before burial, and any articles found on them which might lead to their identification are to be sent to the proper quarters.

Explosive bullets must not be used, and quarter must be given to the enemy whether he asks for it or not. In an attack on the enemy there must be no concealment of the distinctive signs of the regiments, and the use of poisons for polluting drinking water is strictly forbidden.—Boston Traveler.

One of Those Dress Pockets.

She was quite a well-dressed woman waiting for the 10 o'clock train, and it was then 9:30.

"How long will it be until that 10 o'clock train goes?" she asked at the ticket window.

"Thirty minutes, madame," replied the clerk suavely.

"Will I have time to go out and buy something?"

"That will depend upon circumstances,, madame."

"I just want to go across the street."

"Where is your money?"

This was a queer question to ask, and the lady rather resented it.

"In my pocket, of course," she answered somewhat testily.

"Then you have scarcely time, madame," said the clerk with gravity, and the lady flirted herself away from the window in a dudgeon.—Detroit Free Press.

Most Expensive Thermometer.

The most expensive thermometer is in use at the Johns Hopkins University. It is known as Prof. Bowland's thermometer, and is valued at $10,000. It is an absolutely perfect instrument, and the graduations on the glass are so fine that it is necessary to use a microscope to read them.

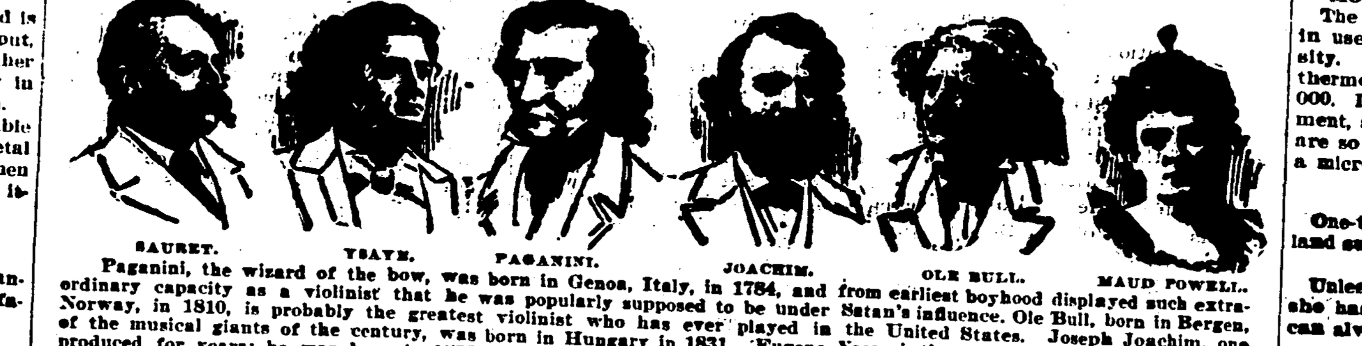
GREAT VIOLINISTS OF THE PAST AND OF THE PRESENT DAY.



SAURET. YSAYE. PAGANINI. JOACHIM. OLE BULL. MAUD POWELL.

Paganini, the wizard of the bow, was born in Genoa, Italy, in 1784, and from earliest boyhood displayed such extraordinary capacity as a violinist that he was popularly supposed to be under Satan's influence. Ole Bull, born in Bergen, Norway, in 1810, is probably the greatest violinist who has ever played in the United States. Joseph Joachim, one of the musical giants of the century, was born in Hungary in 1831. Eugene Ysaye is the greatest musician Belgium has produced for years; he was born in 1858. Among modern violinists Emil Sauret is well known in America, he having visited the United States in 1872-73; he was born in France in 1852. One of the greatest woman violinists of the world is Maud Powell of Chicago. She was born in Aurora, Ill., in 1868. Her father is American and her mother German. In 1885 she made her debut in Berlin, at the Philharmonic concerts, when she played the Bruch concerto.

MINES AND MINING CAMPS

NEWS OF THEIR DEVELOPMENT

Another consignment of gold from the wonderful discovery near Elk City, Idaho, is worth $4,500. This makes $17,000 taken from a claim which was discovered only 10 days ago. The ledge has been stripped for 300 feet and the same rock is seen all the way. The mineral is a quartzite, and the vein matter is said to be as liberally sprinkled with pellets of gold the size of a pinhead as a plum pudding is with raisins. The walls of the formation are of rock closely resembling birdseye maple. Lemro, the owner, has been away several days. He says he has a ton of the rock in his cabin. Men who saw the first rock say the wheelbarrow load from which the $12,500 was extracted contained about 150 pounds of mineral, and one-third of the weight was gold. The claim has not yet been surveyed, and this fact has given rise to hope in the minds of W. H. Young and Mike Murray, who own adjoining claims, that part of the rich ledge is on their properties. There is little snow in this section and the trails to Elk City are good. Four more prospectors left here today for the scene.

REPUBLIC.

The amount of development done on the mines in January was somewhat less than in December, which had the lowest record for the year. There are many reasons to assign for this. The Republic mine has heretofore driven several hundred feet of drift per month. Now the mine is in such shape that to take out the ore would be a positive loss to the company, as there is no place to store it, and even if such a place were available it would not be good business policy, as the ore would have to be rehandled at a cost of perhaps $2 per ton. The same state of affairs exists at the Mountain Lion. Every pound of ore taken out at this time would have to be dumped at a point where it would have to be hauled up a steep hill to get it to the mill. For this reason no work has been done during the past month except in raising a working shaft.

By the beginning of March there will be a considerable increase in the number of men employed in the mines, and as a result there will be a marked increase in the number of feet of development. There is no doubt of this, as a number of mines are now equipped with machinery that will enable much more development to be done than has been possible in the past. Among those that will be thus equipped can be mentioned the Quilp and Chico. Steam plants have taken the place of horse power on the Gopher and Tom Thumb within the past few days. The Princess Maud is equipped with machine drills, and of course the development will be rapid. It now seems probable that before the close of summer there will be more feet of development each month than ever.

The development work on the Black Tail mine during January was 70 feet.

Work on the San Poil is confined to the north drift on the lower level. The ore body is still about five feet in width and is of high grade. The development for the past month consisted of 65 feet of drift.

Good progress is being made on the Ben Hur drift. The north drift is now carrying richer ore than the south drift. The ledge is five feet in width. The work is being done about 250 feet below the surface.

About 30 feet of shaft was sunk on the Tom Thumb last month. During the same period 30 feet of drift was run. The face of the drift is 140 feet south of the shaft on the 150-foot level.

Drifting is progressing on the Rebate at the rate of about two feet per day. There were 60 feet of drift run during the month of January.

The Gopher shaft was sunk 30 feet in January. It is 128 feet in depth. It was equipped with a steam hoist the past month. Work will now progress rapidly.

The total work done on the Republic last month consisted of 187 feet of drift and 34 feet of raise. The south drift is in 312 feet.

Drifting has been carried on upon the Golden Lion and Little Four Consolidated during the past month to the extent of 80 feet.

The work on the Lone Pine for January consisted of running 28 feet of cross tunnel and 75 feet of drift.

The Quilp is the only mine in the camp that made a better record last month than in any previous one.

The Quilp made 140 feet of drift and winze last month.

The Hercules shaft is 30 feet in depth.

The Knob Hill drift was extended 130 feet during January. There was also 30 feet of shaft sunk.

Only 60 feet of crosscut from the bottom of the winze of the Stray Horse was run last month.

The tunnel on the Golden Harvest is moving forward at a good rate of speed. It is now in 270 feet.

The Copper Mountain tunnel was driven nearly 60 feet in January. The tunnel is in 500 feet.

The Butte & Boston was developed during the last month to the extent of 50 feet of shaft.

The North Star tunnel is going on favorably.

The shaft on the Mud Lake was sunk 30 feet in January.

Thirty feet of drift was run last month on the Morning Glory.

There was 125 feet of shaft raised on the Mountain Lion last month.

Chesaw Camp.

Another big strike has been made on the War Eagle. This property is three miles west of Chesaw and joins the Wisconsin group. The strike was made Feb. 3 in a drift running northwest 30 feet from the bottom of the 140-foot shaft. Twelve feet of ore was encountered and assays give an average of $100 per ton in gold. A picked sample gave $13,000 in gold. The quartz shows free gold in large quantities and resembles the character of the ore found in the Republic. One striking feature of the ore just opened up is the presence of a rich galena streak which carries gold in large qauntities and makes it fine concentrating ore.

The Copper Queen, one and a half miles west of Chesaw, continues to improve with depth. At the bottom of the 60-foot shaft the ledge shows values running from $60 to $90 in gold and 8 per cent copper. Fourteen men are employed on this mine.

Work is progressing on the Diadem group, one mile south of Chesaw, on Meyers creek.

MINING NOTES.

Senator Depew has introduced a bill granting to the public land states a percentage of the proceeds of the sales of public lands for the encouragement of mining interests.

The Buffalo Hump Syndicate, controlled by Clark & Sweeny of Spokane, suffered the loss by fire of its bunk house and store house. The loss is estimated at $15,000. The syndicate had a saw mill and a 10-stamp quartz mill stored in the houses that were destroyed, beside other machinery, tools and supplies and 200 pounds of giant powder, which exploded with a terrific report. The fire was caused by a defective stove setting fire to the floor. The loss is quite serious, occurring at this time of year, as it is almost impossible to get supplies in, and it was the intention to set up and operate both mills this winter.

At a recent session at Victoria Henderson submitted the promised amendment to the placer mining act. This goes further than before indicated, and not only permits aliens to acquire mining property by purchase, but by altogether repealing the act of the last session it makes them eligible as before to take out free miners' certificates and stake and hold property. In consequence of this announcement, Joe Martin withdrew his bill to the same effect, of which he had given notice.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Development has been resumed on the Morrison and the company is reorganized.

The Northport smelter interest is sold and now the British America Corporation is sole owner of the Northport plant.

The St. Eugene concentrator at Moyle, in East Kootenay, is to be enlarged to 400 tons daily capacity. R. K. Neill of this city will design the mill.

They have struck the Boundary vein after a long search. The group adjoins the Reservation group and the company thinks the Reservation vein has been opened big and strong on the Boundary ground.

The Le Roi mine has stopped stoping and shipments and is waiting for the big hoist. The present equipment is found inadequate, and a breaking down of the hoisting engine led the management to decide to lay off 160 men in the stopes.

C. B. Strong, who has recently returned to Spokane from a trip to the coast and British Columbia, reports that the new copper mining district on Howe Sound, near Vancouver, is attracting a great deal of attention and gives promise of developing some of the best copper producing mines in the world.

Fred M. Cummings of Greenwood, who has just returned from a visit to Camp McKinney, says that the camp is active and that much development is being done. He says: "In the face of the west drift on the first level of the Waterloo they are working in a breast of four feet of solid quartz. This level is being continued to under the old or No. 1 shaft, where a connection will be made, and in time the No. 1 shaft will be made the main working outlet. The Cariboo Consolidated Company is working 59 men. The 10-stamp mill on the Minnehaha is about completed and should be pounding on ore in a few days. The Kamloops, on the same ledge as the Minnehaha, is also being developed by a shaft. The Mammoth is looking well. The Camp McKinney Gold Mining Company of Greenwood has resumed work on the George Heart claim. In East Camp McKinney, about three miles from Hugh Camerons place, 36 claims have recently been surveyed.

Later.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 13.—The republican house and senate met at noon Monday. The senate appointed a committee to inform Governor Taylor that it had convened in Frankfort and was ready for business. The committee replied in a few minutes that Governor Taylor had received it, and replied:

"Well, go ahead."

The house appointed a similar committee and both houses then adjourned for the day.

Killed His Wife.

Tacoma, Feb. 12.—Mrs. Louise Boyce, a cashier in Shuh & Ryder's "Domestic" bakery, was shot by her husband three times, and died shortly after being taken to the hospital. The couple came to Tacoma a few weeks ago from Seattle. Prior to that they resided in San Francisco.

An important element of the voting population of the cosmopolitan city of Buffalo is composed of the Polish voters.

PROCEEDINGS IN CONGRESS

SUMMARY OF THEIR WORK.

Several Resolutions Introduced—The Clark Investigation—Nicaragua Bill Sure to Pass—Senator Turner an Anti-Expansionist—Notes of the House.

In the Senate.

More than usual interest was manifested Monday in the senate debate on the financial bill. It was known that the opening day of the last week of the financial discussion was to be marked by the delivery of at least three speeches by Senator Wolcott of Colorado, Butler of North Carolina and Elkins of West Virginia, and in addition to a large attendance of senators the public galleries were well filled.

Senator Allen's resolution introduced last Saturday expressing sympathy with the Boers went over without losing its place.

The financial bill was then called up and Elkins addressed the senate. His opening sentences were in reference to a speech delivered on Saturday by Chandler. He said that was a speech which would be "distributed by hundreds of thousands, not by his own political associates, but by his political enemies."

When Elkins had concluded, the bills on the general calendar were taken up and a number passed, including the following:

Appropriating $300,000 for the establishment of joint lighthouses and fog signal stations on the Alaskan coast; appropriating $80,000 to provide for the construction of an additional lightship for use on the coast of California, Oregon, Washington and Alaska, as exigencies may determine; appropriating $5000 for the purchase or construction of a launch for customs service at and in the vicinity of Astoria, Ore.

At 2 o'clock the consideration of the currency bill was resumed and Wolcott addressed the senate.

Thirty-five private pension bills, which were favorably acted upon by the committee of the whole at last Friday night's session, were passed.

At the opening of the Clark case Senator Chandler again brought up the question of the whereabouts of "Swede" Murphy, who is wanted as a witness. Chandler also wanted to know the whereabouts of E. P. Woods and D. G. Werner. He desired them all to be summoned.

Hartman said he understood that Murphy returned to Butte and the other two men were in California.

A bill was introduced in the senate by Senator Foster of Washington providing for the construction of a government cable line from the United States to the Philippines. The distinguishing feature of the bill is that it requires the cable to be laid from some point on the coast of Washington and that it shall run via Alaska and north of the Aleutian islands to the island of Attua, and thence to the boundary between Russia and Japan, thence, with several stops, to the Philippines. An independent cable from San Francisco to Hawaii is provided for.

In the House.

A new cabinet officer to be known as secretary of mines and mining is provided for in the bill favorably acted on Monday by the house committee on mines and mining. The bill creates an executive department, which shall have the entire charge of all affairs relating to mines, including the geological survey.

The proposed secretary of mines is to have the same rank and salary as the other cabinet officers.

Another mining measure favorably acted upon establishes mining experiment stations in each of the mining states, similar to the agricultural experiment stations, and provides for the appointment of a government geologist at $3500 and an assayist at $2500 in the several mining states. These officers are to furnish assays, issue public bulletins and conduct the explorations of mining regions.

Intervention Possible.

New York, Feb. 8.—A special to the Times from Washington says:

It is learned that under the terms of The Hague treaty which has just been ratified by the senate an effort will be made before long to exert such offices as may properly be extended to the belligerents to bring about a termination of the war in South Africa.

Before this treaty was adopted it was maintained that the United States could not, without exposing this government to the suspicion of unfriendly motives, venture to suggest the use of its good offices to both parties to the war. Even now there may be some hesitation about declaring by advances, made even with the best intentions, that the Transvaal is or is not a vassal state, but it is beginning to be appreciated here that the sympathy for the Boers is widespread and increasing and that it may not be wise to defer too long the offer of friendly intervention to save life on both sides.

It has been discovered here that while there is no loss of appreciation of the attitude of Great Britain toward the United States during the war with Spain and a strong inclination to let the British go on and settle their own difficulties in their own way, there is making for the Boers a strong feeling of sympathy because they have at least a nominal republic.

On the republican side the feeling is not so strong as it is on the democratic side, where almost every man is a Boer sympathizer. The situation undoubtedly arises from a desire on the part of the republicans to avoid pressing a course that will conflict with Mr. McKinley's policy. The democrats may take advantage of this knowledge to press the Boer side in order to embarrass the administration.

MOLINEUX WAS FOUND GUILTY.

Murder in the First Degree Was the Jury's Verdict.

New York, Feb. 12.—After deliberating seven and a half hours the jury returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree against Roland B. Molineux, charged with the murder of Mrs. Katherine J. Adams by poison, on December 28, 1898.

Barlow S. Weeks, counsel for the defense, made the usual motion, and Recorder Goff adjourned court until February 16, when he said he would hear the motion and sentence the defendant.

From the time the jury went out at 3:15 p. m., the crowd in the court room watched the door by which the jury left the court room in silent expectancy. It was almost two hours before there was any noise. The solemnity of the occasion has affected court officers and visitors alike.

The jury came in shortly after 9 o'clock to ask for exhibits of handwriting, and again at 10:30 they came in for instructions. Fifteen minutes later there was no doubt that the jury had agreed. Court officials shouted for silence. Doors were locked and the gray-haired clerk of the court took his seat below the recorder's bench. General Molineux sat straight in his chair, a glassy look in his eyes and his hands folded on the table in front of him, trembling a little in spite of himself. Then there was a hush. The jurors walked to their chairs between a file of court officials. There was no sign of cheer in any of their faces. As soon as they had taken their seats a deputy sheriff brought Molineux from the prison. There was no sign of apprehension on the young man's face. His step was light and springy, and he smiled as if he had not a care in the world. Then he sat down, looked for a moment straight at the recorder's bench and then whispered to Mr. Weeks, who was showing signs of nervousness. A moment later the recorder entered. The names of the jury were read and the clerk said:

"Gentlemen of the jury: Have you agreed on a verdict?"

"We have," replied the foreman.

"The jurors will please rise. The defendant will rise."

General Molineux sat with his hands clasped in front of him. His face never flinched as the clerk asked: "What is your verdict?"

Hunting for New Writers.

Eight thousand manuscrips were received by The Ladies' Home Journal during the year just closed, but out of the entire number only eighty were found worthy of publication. The Manuscript Bureau of The Ladies' Home Journal is operated at a large expense, but the hope of discovering new writers or some aspirants with undeveloped talent warrants the outlay. It can be seen that the articles secured by such a careful winnowing process brings the cost of each up to and above the remuneration paid our best writers.

These facts bring refutation to the oft-repeated but none the less erroneous assertion that only well-known writers of established literary reputation are able to find a place for their work in the magazines. Exactly the contrary is true. The Ladies' Home Journal, through the manuscripts considered, has discovered three or four new writers of excellent merit and great promise, and this "find" its editor regards as fully warranting the large outlay of maintaining an expensive bureau for reading all the manuscripts submitted.

A Bold Holdup.

It was about 3 o'clock in the morning when three masked men entered Sheep Ranch, one of the most notorious gambling houses in Salt Lake City, Utah, and with revolver in each hand, ordered the inmates to throw up their hands. Dealers' and players' hands shot skyward and they were then forced to line up against the wall with their backs toward the robbers. One of the men took from under his coat a small sack, which he proceeded to fill with all the coin in sight. He seemed to be in no hurry, for he went from table to table in the most collected manner. After taking every cent in sight—about $1,000—the leader informed the man with the sack it was about time for him to say farewell and his exit quickly followed. Then peace and quiet reigned for a space of one minute, with the expiration of which the second man took an affectionate leave of the distinguished assembly. Then another minute passed away and warning the terrified players and dealers to be good little boys and not make a sound on penalty of being sent on "cloud pushing excursions," the leader of the robbers disappeared in the darkness of the night. Officers were notified at once, but no clew has thus far been obtained.

PORTUGAL IS FOR ENGLAND

OFFENSIVE AND DEFENSIVE.

It Was a Daring Stroke to Protect the Lisbon Government—It Will Take a Vast Army as Well as a Navy.

London, Feb. 14.—There exists what practically amounts to an offensive and defensive alliance between Great Britain and Portugal. For the past week and longer there has been circulating through the English press, irrespective of party lines, a nervous apprehension of European opposition and still more nervous apprehension of the fact that Great Britain at the present moment is unable to face it with honor to herself.

Constant editorials in the most unsensational papers have almost developed this phase of the agitation into a national nightmare, which is not at all justified by the tenor of the continental news published in the English papers. If the demands for an increase in the active naval and military strength, openly urged, to enable Great Britain to cope with the most aggressive movements that could possibly be credited to Russia, France or Germany, were only co-relative with the extent to which Great Britain has been drained in order to support her South African war, these manifestations of the press and constant public anxiety would be understood, but the clamor for a greater standing army and naval mobolization so much exceeds the comparatively slight deficiency in the defensive potentiality caused by the war in South Africa that an impartial observer can scarcely help coming to the conclusion that there is more under the surface than news from the continent conveys, and after careful investigation the Associated Press learns that this impression is quite correct. In the first place, much of this press clamor for a tremendous armament in order to meet unforseen emergencies is originally inspired with a view of compelling parliament to pass quietly any financial measures proposed by the government and to make the same popular with the people who, through additional taxation, may be called upon to add their mites toward the stupendous plans now pending to place the British empire upon a military eminence so supreme as to be beyond the fear of opposition. Lord Salisbury himself is perhaps more independent and more regardless of newspaper influence and the aid of advertising than any statesman of the day, yet at this crisis he has not disdained to use his immediate subordinates as direct agents to foster among leading London dailies, public agitation, magnifying the possibilities of foreign interference and minimizing the capabilities of home defense.

Russia's activity in China and Persia and French and German antagonism are freely paraded before the nation as an incentive to be up and arming, even if it needs be to the point of putting into operation the militia ballot act, which is almost synonymous with conscription.

Portugal to Be Protected.

Yet the acounts of anti-British activity all the world over, as dished up for the British readers, are not causing the foreign office any serious anxiety, and they do not include the real reason for the tremendous military activity, which is a determination to convince Portugal that it is advisable to meet Great Britain's demands regarding the ports essential for carrying on the Boer war, namely: Delagoa Bay and Beira, and at the same time having secured Portugal's assent to every proposition made, to be in a position to support that country against united European opposition. No word of this is printed or hinted of here, but a representative of the Associated Press learns that immense pressure is being brought to bear upon Portugal by continental powers to prevent her from giving aid to Great Britain. Portugal's minister here, Senor Pinto De Soveral, is almost as much an Englishman as a Portuguese, and his government is only too willing to do everything far beyond the bounds of neutrality to help Great Britain to protect Portugal. Lord Salisbury is determined that this shall be done, and is counting on the co-operation of his countrymen to put the nation on a footing to defy European opposition.

Goebel's Funeral.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 9.—As early as 6 o'clock people began to arrive from the country for the purpose of attending Goebel's funeral and by 7 o'clock there was a stream of them pouring through the room in which the body lay, so great that the police had great difficulty in handling it. The crowd grew rapidly and judging by the numbers that came early in the morning, there was no less than 10,000 people at the funeral exercises.

Taylor Still Hesitates.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 9.—Governor Taylor announced that he had as yet taken no action regarding the Louisville agreement and did not know whether he would do so today or not. He said that there were some things he desired to consider further, and it would be some time before he made up his mind as to the best thing to do.

Democrats Sticking Together.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 9.—But few of the democratic members of the legislature ventured away from Louisville today. The stories from London of a possible attempt to arrest enough democratic members to make a quorum and take them to the seat of the assembly caused most of them to refrain from venturing to Frankfort to attend Goebel's funeral. The usual formal session was held, an immediate adjournment being taken until tomorrow.

—There has not been a shooting scrape in Kentucky for four days and the inhabitants say it is getting so quiet that life is not worth living. It is not necessary to carry more than one revolver now.

—Horticulturist Russell of this county has propagated a new variety of apple, which he has named the Gano. It is what he calls an improved Ben Davis, but is much larger and of better flavor, and an excellent keeper.

—To be sure there are a number of farmers who do not take kindly to the creamery project—think there is too much work in it for a shilling. No denying that there is work attached to this industry; lots of it and the whole year round, Sundays included. Study this before you go into it. Almost any proposition has its drawback and enemies. It is not the selling of the milk alone that we advocate the establishing of a creamery. Cattle and hog raising will be more extensive. As much or more should be realized from this source. With good grain crops, and plenty of milk, the raising of a few hogs and cattle would be an easy matter, and the wealth would roll in! During last year hogs and cattle, other than milch cows, rose in value 19 per cent; milch cows 10 per cent, horses 12 per cent and sheep 8 per cent. We give this to show that the market for all meats are pushing higher, while the wheat market is very weak. Wheat raising is pleasant, and easy, and when the price is above the 60 cent notch is profitable.

—The great Burlington railway will take a hand in bringing westward the heavy immigration we are promised the coming year. Beginning May 1, by agreement with the Northern Pacific, the Burlington will run a through train from Portland to St. Louis by way of Billings, Mont. The Burlington press agent says of this: "To maintain this through service 10 trains will be required, and orders for the new equipment have already been placed. The new trains will carry sleeping, dining, tourist and smoking cars, as well as first and second-class coaches. The Burlington route is becoming a big factor in the passenger situation in the northwest, and the arrangement now being perfected will undoubtedly have a tendency to make the Billings gateway even more popular than it has been in the past." No road is better equipped to carry passengers than the Burlington and it passes through some of our finest country. This will make Spokane a live center. The Northern Pacific R'y threatens to put on three daily passenger trains beginning May 1, instead of one now, and the Great Northern will have two passenger trains instead of one.

—The creamery meeting of last Saturday afternoon was well attended by farmers who are showing greater interest in this movement than ever before. It was plainly evident that the tillers of the soil have come to the conclusion that they must do something beside raising wheat exclusively; must produce cattle, hogs, hay, milk. Mr. Lambert, the creamery projector, was present and made a proposition to the farmers which was considered by them very liberal. It was so liberal that they at once took favorable action on same. His proposition was this: Forty farmers sign agreement to give $25 each, total $1000, for the construction of the building, and the citizens to donate a lot or building site. This money is to be paid back to the farmers whenever they deliver to the factory 8,000 pounds of milk daily for 30 days. In short all that Mr. Lambert wants is the building site and a guarantee that the farmers will stay by him after he has money invested in the plant. A committee was appointed, consisting of Henry J Herman and Peter Johann, for the purpose of soliciting signatures of farmers on the above proposition. It was thought at the meeting that there would be no trouble in securing the required number of farmers for this most liberal proposition. The two gentlemen are now at work and in a short time we shall know to a certainty whether Mr. Lambert will manufacture butter for Genesee people or let some one else later on. He is indifferent whether our people take up his proposition or not. If they fail to he will secure land here and stock it and manipulate a creamery on a small scale. In fact he would rather do this for a couple of years, believing there would be more money in it for him. He would aim to breed and sell blooded stock, and his grown up boys manage the creamery.

—The Great Northern's four steamers for the Oriental trade are to be the largest afloat—730 feet long and 74 feet beam; the deck of each will be 50 feet above the water line and its capacity 22,000 tons. These large ships will greatly reduce the price of freights.

—Hicks says a dash of cold weather the 17th. From the 19th to the 21st high temperature and more storms of rain, wind and snow need not surprise anyone from about the 25th to the 26th, all to be followed by high barometer, boreal gales, and a cold wave from the northwest. The month goes out with growing restlessness of the atmosphere, and tendency to electrical storms.

Photographs of the ladies—taken when hoops, bonnets, bustles and big feet flourished, were passed to the gentlemen for partners Such homely pictures! But when the real thing was located the faces of the gentlemen were soon wreathed in smiles. Happy termination put the people in good humor for the balance of the evening. Mrs. F. K. Bressler and Mrs Wallie Owen tied for lady's head prize, but the former won it at cutting the cards. The same first prize winner won the gent's prize—his name is Mike Driscoll. Lunch followed where all proved themselves worthy to wear the ribbon.

—Miss Ella Walby came up from Lewiston for a visit with her people and many friends.

—Pretty chilly rolling out of bed yesterday morning with zero weather and no fire in the stove. Sun-dogs looked at us from the east, but the warm rays made the air comfortable by ten. The coal barons were active during the early hours. Too bad we have not enough snow for sleighing.

—Cool, Wells, Boliou and Wilkinson and ladies took a drive out to the Beechlel home Friday night—the only night that we had good sleighing—and surprised Miss Sophia. They put their horses up where Dan usually does and proceeded to have a time. Miss Mochel still laughing about how they nearly tipped over at the edge of a deep gulch.

—Lecturer Wheeler will be in Genesee tomorrow night and lecture on "Fraternity" at the Congregational church. In addition there will be vocal and instrumental music and recitations. Mr. Wheeler is an interesting talker and a rare treat is promised all who come out. After the meeting the Woodmen will hold a banquet in their hall.

—The Christian Endeavorers had a jolly time at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Easterbrooks last Friday evening with Mrs. Easterbrooks and Miss Edna Pickering as hostesses. It was a "Prophecy" party. Almost all the Endeavorers were present with their pictures taken when "small shavers." All prophesied the future career of each child which proved interesting and entertaining. Some remarkable prophecies were made and many of the originals are anxious to have them come true while others are not at all anxious about it. Marvelous instances of second sight were shown by some of the waiters. Mr. Brewer was voted the prettiest baby and Mr. Easterbrooks, well, just opposite from sweetness, from the pictures. Charges of bribery in voting were made but they could not be substantiated. Delicious refreshments were served, and all went home before midnight, voting Mrs. Easterbrooks and Miss Pickering delightful entertainers.

—The 34th anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. L. Jain occurred last Wednesday and that evening many friends with well filled baskets filed in on them unannounced. The fine home was soon lighted up and the surprisers made things jingle for a few hours. A most enjoyable time was had and the event will long be remembered, particularly by Mr. and Mrs. Jain who were the recipients of a fine lamp and framed picture. The intruders were Rev. and Mrs. Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Owen, Mr. and Mrs. Daggett, Mr. and Mrs. R. Pickering, Mr. and Mrs. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Larrabee, Mr. and Mrs. Herman, Mr. and Mrs. Nulph, Mr. and Mrs. Hollister, Mrs. Kennedy, Mrs. Glidden, Mrs. Lisne, Mrs. R. R. Gray, Miss Follett, Miss Pickering, Miss Coombs, Misses Swank, Miss Myrtle Lisne, Mrs. Mary Gray; Mr. McMahon, and Chas. Hough. Saturday being Mr. and Mrs. Daggett's wedding anniversary they were also presented with a picture and a dozen figured dishes. Rev. Fowler made the presentation speech for both events. After the high school literary Clarence Jain and a dozen other young people rushed in and participated in the games, music and singing. A great time.

—The debate tonight takes place at Steltz hall and the question of governmental ownership of railways will be definitely settled. From discussions the past week it is believed there will be a warm time.

—C. W. Wheeler, head camp lecturer Woodmen of the World, spoke on Woodcraft at Steltz hall Saturday night and greatly pleased the members of that order. Mr. Wheeler is a journalist and is well up in lodge matters, being a member of three or four of the best orders.

—The bachelors who have not appeared in society up to date, have effected an organization of their own with "Red" as president. The name adopted, we are informed, suggested itself, "The Dirty Dozen." Handsome Pete and Bashful Jim engineered a birthday surprise on the president last Tuesday evening and made away with all the Limburger in town.

—The trains commenced to run to Lewiston Tuesday and the citizens are correspondingly happy. We hope there will be no more accidents on the Kendrick line, but somehow the people expect to hear of some sort of a smash up any day. The railroad men would much rather come to Genesee than to take the shoot down the big hill. Conductor Seymour is all smiles since his return to this place, and the people are glad to see him, but his iron cayuse is too slow to suit the hustling people of this valley.

—A teacher's institute for Latah county will be held in Genesee March 3rd. The leading instructors of the county and the president and the professors of the State University will be present. Special invitation is extended to directors and patrons of the schools. Look for program in next NEWS. Let the citizens brush up and give the educators special attention so when they go to their homes they will have kind remembrances of our town and people. The school ma'ms should have the best in the land.

—The Congregational Sunday school people are much pleased over the result of their Book Social last week. The people brought or paid for 63 books, and more are promised. During the evening several interesting contests took place, Carroll Conant winning the advertisement contest, Mrs. Cecelia Spurbeck the engagement contest, and Prof. Cobbs was judged to have drawn the best representation of the title of a book. The Sunday school is growing nicely, having an average attendance of 123 since the first of the year. Now that the large basement room is completed it is believed the attendance will be larger.

—The Peter Steltz vs. the City of Genesee case was tried before Acting Judge J. C. Elder at Moscow Tuesday. Judge Steele having been a lawyer in the case at the time of its origin could not preside. S. S. Denning appeared for Steltz and Forney, Smith & Moore for the City of Genesee, Messrs. Stamp, Burr, Steltz and Means were present at the trial. Mr. Elder has not rendered an opion as yet, having taken the matter under advisement For the benefit of a few town readers who are not acquainted with the case we will state that suit was brought by Mr. Steltz to compel the city to pay city warrants held by him aggregating about $400 which were issued to him for services as chief of police and street commissioner during the year 1895. These warrants were signed by the president of the council but not by the mayor. A. Stamps was also acting as chief of police and street commissioner at the same time and for his services was paid by the city.

"I hobbled into Mr. Blackmon's drug store one evening," says Wesley Nelson, of Hamilton, Ga., "and he asked me to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism with which I had suffered for a long time. I told him I had no faith in any medicine as they all failed. He said: 'Well if Chamberlain's Pain Balm does not help you, you need not pay for it.' I took a bottle of it home and used it according to the directions and in one week I was cured, and have not since been troubled with rheumatism." Sold by all druggists.

GENERAL BULLER GOT AWAY

AVOIDED A DEADLY TRAP.

The Balloon Gave Great Help to the British—Boers Tried to Fool Them—A Rumor That White Is Trying to Get Out of Ladysmith.

London, Feb. 12.—A special dispatch from Springfield Bridge, gives a new explanation of General Buller's retirement. According to this dispatch, a balloonist on Wednesday discovered the fact that the Boers had developed extraordinary and unexpected artillery strength on Doorn Kloof, to the British right, where they had managed to draw up a dozen heavy guns, some fitted with disappearing mountings, and all cunningly masked. These, but for the balloonist, would never have been discovered in time to save the British from falling into the deadly trap, as they commanded the road the British would have had to take in order to reach Ladysmith. These guns rendered the actual positions of the British untenable and a further advance impossible, except at the cost of a terrible and useless loss of life.

London, Feb. 11.—The war office still maintains silence regarding the situation at the seat of war, announcing at 11:30 last evening that no further news had been received, and none has come from other sources which would give a clew to General Buller's movements since he recrossed the Tugela or to the present positions of the forces.

From a Boer Laager.

Boer Head Laager, Ladysmith, Feb. 11.—It is reported from upper Tugela that in yesterday's fight, while driving the British across the river with a heavy loss to them, the Boers had four men killed and eight wounded. On retaking a kopje 22 Boers were found killed. An alarm was given at midnight that the Ladysmith troops were trying to force a passage in the direction of the Free State laager. Heavy firing was heard, but no particulars have been received.

Boers Are Not Surrounded.

A dispatch from Rensburg, reports aggressive activity against all British reconnoitering and says the Boers are in no sense surrounded at Colesburg, but are simply set in check by a series of camps forming a semi-circle from east to west. The Boers, it is added, are still in full possession of their lines of communication at the Free State and hold strong positions around Colesburg.

During the morning of February 9 a bombardment with lyddite occurred at Rensburg, and the Boers' Maxim and Vickers guns are believed to have been silenced. A dozen dead Boers were found in the kopjes.

Lord Roberts has addressed another letter to Kruger and Steyn complaining of the wanton destruction of property in the Natal.

Boers Are Aggressive.

Durban, Feb. 12.—It is rumored here that Gen. Joubert is marching with a column of 6000 men to outflank Gen. Buller.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The Pietermaritzburg correspondent of the Daily Mail, telegraphing yesterday, says: "The Boers have occupied Bloy's farm, south of the Tugela, which is under an hour's ride from Chieveley, and have turned the homestead into a hospital. On the farm are hills commanding both bridges over the Tugela, as well as Forts Wylie and Molyneux, from which a view of Buluwana and Ladysmith is obtainable. There is much apprehension here regarding the Boer movement and the authorities are on the alert."

Outflanked Rensburg British.

Rensburg, Feb. 12.—The Boers outflanked the British here. A considerable force of the enemy was threatening the British communications between Rensburg and Slingersfontein, 12 miles away, and during a reconnaissance by some Inniskillens and 20 Australians from Slingersfontein, the Boers were discovered attempting to get a gun into position to shell the British camp. The Australians having come into very close contact with the enemy, took cover under a hill about 9000 yards from the camp. Thereupon the Boers took up a position with a view of preventing their retirement. Some burghers got within 200 yards of the Australians and called upon them to surrender. They replied by fixing bayonets and shouting defiance.

Kimberley Bombarded.

Modder River, Feb. 12. — Apparently the Boers have brought all their big guns from Mafeking to shell Kimberly. Our naval guns shelled Magersfonteiz today, but the Boer guns were silent. It is supposed that the enemy have withdrawn their artillery. They are blowing up the permanent way beyond Moron Siding. The Boers still man their trenches, but their numbers are apparently reduced. The bulk of their force has gone to Kimberly or toward our flank.

British Lost Pickets.

Rensburg, Feb. 12.—A picket of five Victorian rifles, after holding a post for some hours yesterday was forced to retire, the Boers getting on a hill and firing down upon them. Three were slightly wounded, one is a prisoner and one escaped unhurt.

Out of a patrol from Tjofontein under Capt. Hamilton, composed of eight Tasmanians and eight of Gen. French's scouts, only two Tasmanians and three scouts returned. The others were captured by the Boers.

Later.

London, Feb. 13.—Not a line of war news having been received since yesterday, Great Britain remains waiting anxiously to hear which side will succeed in striking first. The feeling, however, is much more confident than at the opening of last week, in consequence of the widespread belief that the hands of Lord Roberts and General Kitchener are now firmly gripped at the helm, and that whatever happens the campaign will now be waged under careful, comprehensive plans, in which all the forces will co-operate. Both sides seem to be collecting themselves for the attack.

Boer Aggressiveness.

The left horn of the Boer army is creeping through Zululand and threatening the British right, and at Chieveley General Joubert, with 6000 men, is reported to be endeavoring to attack Buller. Boer aggressiveness has already developed and has met with repulse at Rensberg, while from what now becomes the most important point of campaign—Modder river—comes news of ceaseless activity and redoubled vigilance. These reports create a hopefulness in Great Britain rather than anxiety, for the impression exists that Boer aggressiveness will give the British troops their long looked for opportunity and tend greatly to assist the broad plan of the campaign which Roberts may shortly be expected to set in motion at Modder river.

Ladysmith Must Wait.

In the meanwhile Ladysmith must wait exigencies attendant upon the more important military movements now on foot. It is said positively that MacDonald's withdrawal from Koodoesberg was ordered by Methuen under Roberts' instructions.

Decision Came Too Late.

New York, Feb. 13.—The appellate division of the supreme court has handed down a decision restraining Senator Clark of Montana and the directors of the United Verde Copper Company from selling the mines and other property belonging to the corporation. As a matter of fact the sale took place January 9 last, just one month before the decision of the appellate division was handed down, so that its ruling is practically valueless.

Lincoln's Day in New York.

New York, Feb. 13.—The 91st anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln was celebrated in this city Monday by patriotic services by republican clubs and social organizations. Business was generally suspended. Exchanges, public schools and most of the courts were closed. At Delmonico's the republican clubs celebrated with a dinner in the evening.

Mutiny in the Soudan.

New York, Feb. 12.—The New York Sun publishes the following:

London, Feb. 12.—It is nearly a year since trouble for Egypt and England with the black troops of the Soudan was predicted. It has come at last and the outlook admittedly causes anxiety. The official censor has been playing havoc with newspaper dispatches and the full truth is not likely to be known until letters get here from Khartoum. Thanks to the censor the Soudan may be full of rebellion before the British public receives any warning. Kitchener always admitted that there was danger in recruiting the Soudan army largely from ex-dervishes, but as a soldier he thought it little less than a sin not to avail himself of the best fighting material on the spot and he believed the British of course would be able to manage the Mahommedan troops of Soudan at least as well as they had always done in India.

As a second string he relied on the loyalty of the purely Egyptian troops. To the latter end he discouraged intimate relations between Egyptian and Soudanese soldiers. He forbade all men to marry women not of their own race and encouraged rivalry between the chiefs of leading Soudanese troops.

Now it is said the Egyptian troops are taking the lead in this incipient mutiny and the dervishes are displaying an unwelcome tendency to forget past feuds and to coalesce against their white superiors.

Had Kitchener remained in the Soudan he doubtless would have nipped the mutiny in the bud and it remains to be seen whether the new sirdar, General Wingate, is as good a "man of blood and iron" as his predecessor.

Contractors Weakened.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Of seven thousand building tradesmen who took their half-holiday Saturday afternoon in defiance of the new rules of the building contractors' council, one-half, it was announced by labor leaders, have resumed work as usual on the big buildings. This is regarded by the labor interests as indicating a weakness in the building contractors' agreement to stand by one another. At the headquarters of the contractors it was declared that the men still at work were doing so under special agreements in order to complete certain portions of the work. Operations on numerous smaller structures are at a standstill and will remain so, the bosses said, until the places of the locked-out men are filled. To prevent others taking their places union men have 1000 pickets stationed about the city.

Broke the World's Record.

San Francisco, Feb. 14.—I. C. Gorman of the Golden Gate Pistol and Rifle Club has broken the world's 50-shot record with pistol at 50 yards at the Shell Mound ranges. The record was 461 points, but after having made four attempts to break it, Gorman succeeded with a score of 471. Some time ago he broke the 100-shot American record, and he now claims to be the champion pistol shot in 100 and 50 shot contests in America.

Shot in a Quarrel.

Medford, Ore., Feb. 13.—Edward Armstrong, a brick mason, was shot and fatally injured by A. J. Hamlin, a farmer living near here. The men had been drinking together and became involved in a quarrel.

The Godly man is he who acts divinely to his fellows.

Stars and Stripes Waving.

Manila, Feb. 13.—It is reported that the gunboat Princeton visited the Tatanes and Calagan islands, which were omitted from the Paris treaty of peace, being north of 20 degrees latitude, raised the American flag and appointed native governors. It is added that the Princeton found the Japanese flags at Bayal island and refrained from landing there pending orders. The Princeton occupied the northern islands under a government order. The report that the Japanese flag was found flying is not confirmed, but there are rumors that Japan intended to take the islands.

The natives willingly substituted American for insurgent officials and took the oath of allegiance. The natives of Samar and Leyte are returning to their towns and normal conditions are being resumed.

Her screams were heard by her husband, who shot the negro twice and beat out his brains with the gun. Mrs. Rollins died in a few minutes.

Before the paving in Anaconda begins a most important matter is the decision as to the style of paving to be selected. Thus far all the paving in Butte consists of granite blocks. Vitrified brick, asphalt and cedar blocks are among the styles advocated for this year.

Rack for Feeding Corn Fodder.

Feeding unshredded corn fodder is hard work, on account of the difficulty of handling. There is also a great part of the stalks that the cattle will not eat. This accumulation under the cattle's feet or about the feed lot soon becomes a nuisance. Accompanying this description J. L. Irwin sends to the Orange Judd Farmer a sketch of a rack that will be easy to fill and which will retain the stalks, allowing the cattle to strip off the leaves, corn and tender, eatable portions. The uneaten portion can be cleaned out before filling anew, and the useless stalks piled up for hauling away or mixed with the accumulating manure heap, where the refuse of barn and stable is piled before being hauled to the fields.

The rack is to be built against the fence, so that the filling can be done from the outside, the outside of the manger at a being only high enough to retain the fodder. The frame of the rack should be made of 2x4s. The rack b should be made of four-inch fencing lumber, the slats about four inches apart. The outside rack, c, should be set out far enough so the cattle can easily reach down inside to pick up the chaff. To guard against any waste here, it is well to have the bottom, e, floored, and the floor surrounded by a six-inch board. The rack can be made any length, according to the amount of stock to be fed.

Variation in Seedlings.

The law of variation operates in everything. In no one particular respect do individuals resemble absolutely their parents. Even in the time of flowering there is a variation. Some individuals will bloom earlier and some later than others. This has been more particularly marked in the more showy-flowered of our ornamental trees. In the Koelreuteria this particular variation is striking. In 100 trees, all raised from the same package of seeds, there will be as much as three weeks of difference in the time of flowering. Possibly the sexual variation may have something to do with the difference in the flowering time, as certainly it has to do with the showiness of the blossoms. As it is the case with so many American and Japanese trees, there is a great tendency to a division of sexes. Some Koelreuteria trees are wholly barren, while others are abundantly productive. The barren trees have rather larger flowers, and are more showy in every respect, and, so far as our somewhat limited experience in this respect goes, are among the first to flower. This little difference in this respect has not been noticed by cultivators as it deserves to be.—Meehan's Monthly.

A Philippine Harrow.

It is curious at times to identify some modern improvement with ancient methods. This thought will occur to all who compare the semi-barbarous Philippine harrow shown in the illustration, with the latest improved elastic tooth harrow, which is a weeder as well as an implement for preparing the soil for the seed. Another idea in this line, which will interest not a few, is that the similarity between the most modern weeding harrow and the common horse hay rake is so close, that one may be made a substitute for the other.

The Potato Crop.

The potato crop last year was estimated at 242,000,000 bushels, with a yield of 181 bushels per acre. The average price may be placed at about 50 cents a bushel, which is a considerable addition to the income of the farmers in certain sections. While the value of $90 per acre is not equal to that of many crops which are grown by gardeners near large cities, it is a fairly remunerative one, and has the great advantage to many people that it does not need to be taken to market every day, like strawberries, nor at just the moment it is fit for use, like many garden crops, but it can be stored and sold when the owner is ready to attend to it after his hurry of harvesting is over.

Drainage of Roads.

"Water is the great road destroyer," and too much attention can not be given to the surface and underdrainage of roads, says the Drainage Journal. The surface of the road should be rounded sufficiently and made smooth to give the water falling on the travelway of the road a flow to the storm ditches on the sides of the road. The traveled surface should be kept smooth and even by frequent scrapings, so that the water from rainfalls will flow off quickly. Depressions in the road where the water gathers should be filled up by all means. A puddle in the roadway will soon make a mudhole, so it is a matter of much importance that the travelway be kept smooth and even to maintain a good road. It is one thing to make a good road—a road well underdrained and surface drained—and it is equally important that timely repairs be made and well made, otherwise much of the work of construction will be lost. Again we say keep the roads in good repair; it is more than half the battle.

Corn to Russia.

Two steamers have recently been chartered to take cargoes of corn from Philadelphia to Reval, in Northern Russia, and several cargoes have been shipped from other ports. This is an indication that the Russians begin to realize the value of corn as cheap food especially for those living in the northern and colder parts of the country. Russia raises more wheat for export than any country in Europe, but yet the peasant farmers of Central and Southern Russia live largely on rye and other coarse food products, so as to sell their wheat. And if they can get any cheaper nutritious food than the wheat they must have it. This is what they can get in our maize.

Of late years great quantities of corn have been shipped abroad for brewing purposes. But thus far it makes its way slowly as food, the prejudice against it being deep and strong. Efforts will be made at the World's Fair at Paris to push knowledge concerning corn as food and doubtless something will come of it. We could probably do nothing for the more general diffusion of prosperity than by establishing a large corn export, for corn is the one grain that can be grown in all the arable parts of the United States, and in all varieties of soil. This insures a large and steady supply. The shipments to Russia, it is to be hoped, are the beginning of a large export movement not to Russia merely, but to all Northern Europe.—Indianapolis News.

Loss of Fertility from Soils.

When a plant is consumed it is reduced to a very small bulk, which is termed ashes. A large proportion of the plant goes into the air, consisting of water, carbon and nitrogen. The real loss is the nitrogen, as the carbon only returns to the original source from whence it came—the air. While a portion of the nitrogen also comes from the air, yet some of it is derived by the plant from the soil. A plant may cost but little, owing to the fact that it is mostly water. Water, therefore, enters more largely into the composition of plants than does any other substance. When a farmer sells a ton of clover hay he sells about 250 pounds of water in the hay. This proportion of water is much greater in green clover. The ashes of plants contain phosphates, lime, potash, soda, magnesia and traces of other minerals, and these substances come entirely from soil. If the ashes of plants could be returned to the soil there would be little or no loss, as the soil, through the agency of certain plants, could regain its nitrogen.—Farm and Garden.

Making Hens Lay in Winter.

There are many reasons why hens do not lay in winter, but all are summed up in the cold and darkness and lack of exercise which it induces. This causes all sorts of troubles. The fowls in cold, stormy weather remain on the roosts until nearly noon. Then they get up and fill themselves with food and then go back to the roosts again. If the henhouse is dark, either from snow outside or from lack of windows, the fowls will stay on their roosts most of the time, and if fed well with corn will fatten rather than begin laying. Make the henhouse as light as possible. Provide double windows so that they will not be steamed up with ice from the bird's breath. These double windows will also make the henhouse much warmer, as the space of air between them is one of the best non-conductors of heat. Then feed mainly with wheat, giving little corn except in the very coldest weather, and fowls will lay some eggs at the time when eggs are always the dearest.

American Grapes.

The ancestor of all our native outdoor grapes is the original wild grape which the Norsemen found on the shores of Vineland. The Concord is supposed to be the wild grape changed through cultivation. Curiously enough, the seedlings of the Concord often turn out white grapes, and a dozen or so varieties, white, red and dark, originated in this way.

LATE NEWS OF THE ORIENT

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT TO A JUNK

Twenty Are Reported Lost—Big Fire in Japan—Another Reported From China—A Freak of Nature.

Victoria, B. C., Feb. 9.—The steamer Empress of Japan brings the following Oriental advices:

A terrible accident is reported from the Wuhu river. A junk was caught in a snow squall and turned over with all on board. Twenty in all were drowned.

From Nago-Ya, Japan, comes news of another terrible accident. A fire broke out January 23 in a large spinning mill at Koryo Muna, in the Owari prefecture. Two buildings were destroyed and 31 factory girls were burned to death. Six were injured badly and a number slightly injured.

The Fleur de Lutus, as the junk being sent from Hong Kong to the Paris exposition is called, has started on her adventurous trip from the China seas to the French capital. The junk, which is one of the common Chinese kind, is 72 feet long and 28 feet wide. She will stop en route at Saigon, Signapore, Colombo and Aden. The junk will be towed through the Suez canal. Captain Bourdonnel, who is in charge of her, is accompanied by his wife, one French sailor, nine Annamitos and nine Chinese.

A great conflagration occurred at Kiuang December 29. In all 300 buildings were destroyed. The cause of the fire is not known. The damage will exceed $1,000,000. Most of the buildings destroyed were big shops.

At Saigon an Anamate woman has given birth to twins joined together, after the manner of the famous Siamese twins. The infants were placed on exhibition immediately after their birth and it is intended to send them to the Paris exposition. The French paper at Saigon protested against this treatment of the newly born infants on the ground of inhumanity. An injunction was applied for but was refused by the courts.

The Mystery of Dust at Sea.

It is a puzzling fact that the decks of sailing vessels show dust at night, even if washed in the morning, and no work is done during the day. This is like indigestion and dyspepsia, which creeps on one unawares. The only way to cure them is by the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which also prevents malaria, fever and ague.

Homeward Bound!

In the February instalment of "Sailing Alone Around the World," Captain Slocum tells the readers of the Century how he brought the Spray from Cape Town to Fairhaven, Mass., where he had built and launched her. This concludes the narrative of his single-handed voyage of over 46,000 miles, but in March he will describe, for navigators, the construction, gear and rig of his adventurous sloop.

THE OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Tells How He Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters by Using Peruna.

Mr. Isaac Brock, Born in Buncombe Co., North Carolina, March 1, 1788. Says: "I attribute my extreme old age to the use of Peruna."

Isaac Brock, a citizen of McLennan county, Texas, has lived 111 years. He now lives with his son-in-law at Valley Mills, Texas.

In speaking of his good health and extreme old age, Mr. Brock says:

"After a man has lived in the world as long as I have, he ought to have found out a great many things by experience.

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper remedy for ailments that are due directly to the effects of the climate.

"During my long life I have known a great many remedies for coughs, colds, catarrh and diarrhoea. I had always supposed these affections to be different diseases, but in reading Dr. Hartman's books I have found out that these affections are the same and that they are properly called catarrh.

"I had several long sieges with the grip. At first I did not know that Peruna was a remedy for this disease. When I heard that la grippe was epidemic catarrh, I tried Peruna for la grippe and found it to be just the thing.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Pe-ru-na, I have found it to be the best, if not the only, reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my standby for many years, and I attribute my good health and extreme old age to this remedy.

Very truly yours,

Isaac Brock.

Butte, Feb. 12.—Virginia Godin, aged 7 years, daughter of Harmisidas Godin, was killed by the accidental discharge of her father's revolver in her own hands. He had laid the gun down and left the room. When he returned she had it in her hands playing with it. He tried to grab it away when it was discharged.

Test of Newspaper Advertising.

Between the acts recently at Wallack's New York theater, ushers distributed among the audience slips with a brief printed statement politely asking the recipient to indicate by a check mark in the list of various advertising forms employed which one had attracted him to the performance—newspapers, bill boards, window lithographs or something else. Eleven hundred slips were handed to the ushers, and of that number 991 had been attracted by the newspapers solely.

—Sam Alexander will put in time in the lower country for a few weeks, sliding down the hill Tuesday for that purpose.

—A kop is a high hill, a kopje a small hill, a veldt a stretch of level country, Oom Paul is a man with whiskers giving J. Bull more than he bargained for.

—The beautiful snow spoken of in the last NEWS remained only about twenty-four hours. Just as the people were getting a good ready for a ride the measley chinook stole the fleece.

—NEWS has been favored with copies of bills introduced in the senate by Senator Shoup, one of them relating to the extension to July 1, '01, of the payments by settlers on the Nez Perce reservation.

—Several of our neighbors at Uniontown, according to the Gazette, will take advantage of prosperity and visit their native country and the Paris exposition this year. Among those thinking of going are Mr. and Mrs. Martin Meuli and son, Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leuer, W. E. Smith, and Jos. Anderhalden.

—Father Time, says Charles Dickens, is not always a hard parent, and though he tarries for none of his children often lays his hand lightly upon those who have used him well, making them old men and women inexorably enough, but leaving their hearts and spirits young and in full vigor. With such people the gray head is but the impression of the old fellow's hand in giving them this blessing, and every wrinkle but a notch in the quiet calendar of a well-spent life.

—The merchant endeavors to conduct his business in such a manner that his son will become a partner and continue the firm name even after his demise, because of the value that attaches to a long established business enterprise. Until such spirit permeates the business and occupation of farming it will not be accorded the confidence and respect which it ought to merit. If the boy has talents which are needed in the professions or in mercantile life he will be found in them; but from the moment the primer is put in his hand don't teach him that the farm and farm life are not the best, and that he must be taught things that will enable him to earn bread and butter in some other way. Educate the boys and girls of the farm home and then impress the fact that education is as much needed on the farm as in the office or store. Railway service, telephones, rural mail delivery, make possible many of the desirable luxuries of the city home; these added to the true pleasures of the country home, give the ideal place for a home, and it is around this center—home—that the real delights converge. Then take as much pride in the career of "Farmer Jim" as in that of "Senator Ben."

—It is a popular form of amusement to manufacture jokes about the dime novel and to poke fun at the Deadwood Dicks and Calamity Janes who riot through their pages, says a Westerner, but the doings of those fantastic heroes and heroines (Calamity Jane, by the way, was a character in real life, a camp follower with a face that would curdle milk and a flow of billingsgate that would have turned a London fishwife a deep sea green from pure envy, so diffuse and widespread was it), when they single handed stood up barrooms full of infuriated men, or alone rode in and rescued beautiful maidens from the clutches of bloodthirsty savages, were not more wonderful than some of the things that did happen in the checkered career of many a frontier bad man of real life. Take Wild Bill, for example; some of his escapades read like fairy legends, yet reliable men say they are true, and one of these was present in a barroom when Bill was playing cards with a man who, with another, had resolved to kill him. The other man was behind Bill, but when the trap was sprung he killed both, shooting the other man over his shoulder, with only a looking glass some distance away to assist his aim. At another time, after having been given the customary notice that he would be shot on sight, Wild Bill walked into the square of the town, to find himself between the man who had served the notice and a crowd of his friends. So short was his time and so dangerous his position that he was compelled to fire at the single man from his hip, but without a glance he swung around and covered the crowd with his guns before they could take action against him; but he knew his skill, and his opponent was dead even before he began to turn.

DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION

MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG AND SICK WOMEN WELL

—Plants, like animals, tend to adapt themselves to their environment. Plants do not do well when they are dry. The more the soil is worked the more moisture it holds and the heavier the crop is. Not enough water falls during the growing season to supply growing plants, so their roots must go down into the subsoil, for water. If the ground is uncultivated it is hard and dry and the plant is stunted. A gentleman says nature has given us a soil rich in plant food, also rich in humus, or vegetable mould. The latter has in many instances been exhausted, and we must supply the loss with vegetable growths that will absorb and hold water. The clovers are valuable for this purpose. Alfalfa and crimson clover are valuable for green manure. In Iowa and other states timothy is sown on old ground, two or three big hay crops are taken off and the soil is again rolled over for other crops. Cow peas grow in localities where clover will not and is the salvation of southern agriculture. Canada pea is great to add fertility to the soil.

The great danger from colds and la grippe is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. It will cure a cold or an attack of la grippe in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all druggists.

—The Nez Perce jury for the district court is called for March 12. J. Rosenstein of Lapwai is drawn. Rim Rockers escaped entirely. Two or three ladies have been selected.

—Mr. Keeley, inventor of the "Keeley cure" for the liquor habit, died in San Francisco last week of heart disease. He was 86 years old, leaves a wife, but no children. Worth $1,000,000.

—Niles & Vincent of Walla Walla are preparing to work their Snake river granite quarries quite extensively. The Teller says it is the intention to place the Snake river product in all Pacific coast markets in the near future.

—Lime is being burnt on Snake river to supply the Lewiston markets. There is an endless quantity of good limestone near the mouth of Grande Ronde river, which will be manufactured into commercial lime in the near future.

—Representative Levy, of New York, is ready to announce the details of his tax-reduction bill, by which he hopes to bring about a horizontal cut in the internal tax imposed for war purposes. As there is a prospect that there will be a surplus in the U. S. treasury at the end of the fiscal year, he thinks the money now unnecessarily taken from the people ought to be left in their hands and many annoying and burdensome taxes removed.

—Mr. Macrum's stories that his correspondence with this country while at Pretoria was hindered and tampered with sounds fishy to say the least. Since his return home the department of state has received cablegrams almost daily and voluminous reports by every mail. The Macrum charges should be investigated and if mails were tampered with his neglect to report same is the gravest violation of the regulations and discipline of the consular service and should be treated accordingly.

—A most success farmer near Eugene, Ore., dairyman, is Sam Douglass. He is milking 70 cows and promptly rejects from the herd any animal which will not produce 300 pounds of butter per annum. He is a thorough up-to-date dairyman, and makes it a rule never to sell wheat unless he can get 50 cents per bushel, figuring that it is worth more to feed to his stock than to sell for a less figure. Mr. Douglass commenced dairying about 9 years ago with common cows, and by continuous breeding he now has herd of seven-eighths and fifteen-sixteenth Jerseys. In consequence the herds in this vicinity have been improved, as Mr. Douglass is turning off about 25 heifer calves each year. Conditions around Genesee are just right now for mixed farming and dairying. Keep up the interest as conditions will never be any more favorable than they are today.

—The month of March will be similar to February according to Hicks, the weather prophet.

—The Wallace Press estimates that there are 20 miles of new tunnels now in course of construction in the mines of the Cœur d'Alene district.

—The Grangeville Standard says about six feet of snow fell in the Florence country early last week. Two inches here and rain at Lewiston.

—A water pipe in a Walla Walla building was plugged up a few days ago by the lodgment of a live eel five inches in length. Another argument against waterworks.

—Mark Means of Genesee came down from Orofino yesterday. He did not depend upon the railroad but navigated his own bateau. Mark has been in the west long enough to be resourceful in time of emergency.—Teller.

—A dispatch from San Francisco says: Eleven soldiers will be sent from this city to the government hospital at Washington, and it is probable that about thirty more will go east during the week. During the last three months nearly 250 demented soldiers have been sent across the continent, and it is said that 200 more will soon arrive here from Manila. In nearly all cases the men are violently insane, and the reputed cause of their trouble is the ceaseless vigilance required by outpost duty in the Philippines.

IN MEMORY OF LETTIE FOLLETT.

Her unsefish morning betokened a beneficient noonday. Hers was one of those lives, the good of which we perhaps but meagerly know and estimate; for such of their influence for good is known only in the inspiration for higher ideal, of those who come under their impress.

Your hearts are near broken with sorrow,
For the loved one that has gone from home,
And many a sad and lonely tomorrow,
We know in the future will come.

You will hasten almost to the door
To meet her with outstretched arms,
But, oh, she will come to you never more,
Never return to the well loved home.

Her love for the home was strong
And for friends who were waiting for her,
She never could tarry away from you long,
Nor her home coming footsteps defer.

But now she has crossed to the other shore,
To the mansion her Savior had gone to prepare,
Has entered with triumph the wide open door,
The glories of heaven to share.

Though you scarcely can see for the tears
That will be blinding your dear loving eyes,
Oh, cast upon Jesus, your sorrow and fears
And soon all the mist will be cleared from your skies.

And there will be Lettie at Jesus' feet,
Sitting all clothed in raiment of white,
Her sickness all gone, her victory complete;
Her suffering forgotten in Heavens delight.

Oh, can you not bear the burden a while?
Then cast it, my friends at the dear Master's feet
And he will so kindly on you look and smile,
Then your trust in his love will be ever complete.

All in sweet loving kindness, we know,
He keeps gathering your treasures above
And in the near bye and bye you may go,
And join their sweet anthems of love.

MRS. WM. HARRIS.

—A young man at Franklin, south Idaho, was treated to a uniform of tar and feathers last week. He was charged with betraying his sweetheart who died from the result of an operation. When presenting himself at his home, covered from head to foot with feathers, his wife was so frightened at the strange figure that she fell in a faint.

—Ex-Senator Fred T. Dubois is a very sick man says the Blackfoot News. He is suffering from laryngitis accompanied with a high fever. The NEWS and his many personal friends in north Idaho hope the senator will speedily recover. Mr. Dubois is in the prime of life and one of the best men of the state, and we cannot let him go yet.

—Senator Clark of Montana derives $30,000 a day, $1,255 an hour, or $20 a minute from his copper mine, the United Verde. If the mine should last 50 years his heirs will find a bank account unequalled by that of any in the world. If the expectations of Mr. Clark in regard to the output of the United Verde mine are realized, 996,000,000 pounds of copper a year, his income alone from this source will be $17,280,000 a year, or $46,000 a day. At this rate Mr. Clark's mine is worth $580,000,000. A great mine—the marvel of the age.

—An unique suit for damages has been filed by a tramp in south Idaho against the Oregon Short Line. The tramp recites that he was stealing a ride, being located on the brake rods underneath a car; that he sustained the injuries received owing entirely to the fact that servants of the corporation knew he was there without right and did not put him off, as was their duty, and that through their gross negligence he sustained the injuries for which he claims damages. Owing to the peculiar claim the attorneys of the road are deeply interested in the case.

—Porto Rico is to have a delegate in congress, with the same rights and privileges as territorial delegates. The governor is to receive a salary of $8,000; secretary, attorney, auditor, judge, $5,000 each. All silver coins are to be redeemed at the rate of 60 cents on the dollar and recoined into the money of the United States. The internal revenue laws and the customs laws of the United States are applied to Porto Rico, and 25 per cent of the duties imposed by our tariff shall be charged upon articles of commerce passing between these two countries, the proceeds to be expended under the direction of the president for the island inhabitants.

"I had dyspepsia for years. No medicine was so effective as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It gave immediate relief. Two bottles produced marvelous results," writes L. H. Warren, Albany, Wis. Digests what you eat and cannot fail to cure.

MRS. T. KENNEDY, druggist.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.—"Knowledge is power" according to the old adage, but it is also said that a man never knows a thing until he can tell it, and he who can express his knowledge in language more terse, vigorous and appropriate than others becomes a leader of men. In gaining this power of expression as well as knowledge itself there is no aid so helpful, from which so much may be obtained, and for so small an outlay as Webster's International Dictionary. This work is the universally acknowledged standard for the derivation, spelling, pronunciation, and meaning of words, and with its numerous tables of useful and reliable information it quickly and satisfactorily answers the thousand and one questions which are constantly arising in our reading and study. The purchase of this source of knowledge and power will prove a profitable investment for every household, and for every teacher, scholar, professional man, and self-educator.

A Fiendish Attack.

An attack was lately made on C. F. Collier of Cherokee, Iowa, that nearly proved fatal. It came through his kidneys. His back got so lame he could not stoop without great pain, nor sit in a chair, unless propped by cushions. No remedy helped him until he tried Electric Bitters which effected such a wonderful change that he writes he feels like a new man. This marvelous medicine cures backache and kidney trouble, purifies the blood and builds up your health. Only 50c at Kennedy's drug store.

A Good Cough Medicine for Children.

"I have no hesitancy in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says F. P. Moran, a well known and popular baker, of Petersburg, Va. "We have given it to our children when troubled with bad coughs, also whooping cough, and it has always given perfect satisfaction. It was recommended to me by a druggist as it contained no opium or other harmful drug." Sold by all druggists.

Geo. Barbe, Mendota, Va., says "Nothing did me so much good as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. One dose relieved me, a few bottles cured me." It digests what you eat and always cures dyspepsia.

MRS. T. KENNEDY.

He Fooled the Surgeons.

All doctors told Renick Hamilton, of West Jefferson, O., after suffering 18 months from Rectal Fistula, he would die unless a costly operation was performed; but he cured himself with Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the best in the world. Surest pile cure on earth. 25c a box at Kennedy's.

John Dirr, Poseyville, Ind., says, "I never had anything as good as One Minute Cough Cure. Never without it." It quickly breaks up coughs and colds and cures all throat and lung troubles. Its use will prevent consumption. Pleasant to take.

He rushed Choynski, sending his right to the stomach and left to the head at will. In the first round Choynski was floored five times.

State of Trade.

Bradstreet's Review of Trade for the present week says:

General distributive trade is of good volume, although affected by weather conditions and holidays. Spring business is enlarging at many markets East and West, the presence of buyers being encouraged by special passenger rates. A softening of prices of speculatively dealing staples is to be noted, but the reactions are of narrow extent. Money is steady as a whole, and no higher than a week ago. In bank clearings comparisons are less favorable, partly because of a less pronounced speculative activity at this time than last year. Gains in railway earnings for the first two weeks in February are of absolutely phenomenal proportions, but it must be remembered that there were exceptionally severe weather conditions experienced last year. In spite of this, however, it is to be said that east-bound tonnage is of unparalleled volume, while shipments of spring goods to the country are very large. That railroad rates are being badly cut is confidently asserted. The earnings of 60 roads for the second week of February aggregate $7,941,000, an increase of 30.4 per cent over the same period a year ago. Business, as a whole, continues on a large scale, encouraging alike to distributors and consumers.

Foreign demand for wheat remains small. American stocks are larger, farmers are reported holding supplies back, and crop damage scares are discounted by mild weather. The strength of corn has been a feature, foreign demand being of good proportions, and this has furnished a supporting element in the wheat market. General complaint of the low grade of offerings comes from primary markets. High prices for flaxseed are expected to encourage the planting of much land ordinarily devoted to spring wheat in the Northwest.

There is a larger volume of business in pig iron at some markets, but less at others, and prices of that product are quite steady.

The floating of the new sheet combination has imparted strength to that branch of trade. Heavy engagements have relieved the pressure in that line somewhat.

Structural iron continues active, indicating heavy building operations the coming spring and summer. Foreign markets retain their old strength and lower ocean freights would, it is argued, bring about a great enlargement of our export trade. Copper is quieter but steady in price and tin notes a further advance in sympathy with foreign speculation. Hardware is improving in distribution at the West.

Business failures for the week number 163, as compared with 199 a week ago and 220 in 1899.

The strength of staple values is a feature of Canadian trade. Retailers will carry over some stocks of winter clothing. Industrial activity is very marked, Canadian factories running to their fullest capacity. Business failures for the week number 28, against 35 last week and 39 in this week a year ago.

Pigeon Shot Is No More.

New York, Feb. 27.—George Work, the clubman and pigeon shot, died at Doves-Platz, Switzerland, of consumption, aged 42.

CRONJE IS SAFE AWHILE.

WILL NOT SURRENDER NOW.

Cronje's Troops Have Burrowed Into the River Bank for Protection—Roberts Must Take His Time—Buller's Losses Are Heavy.

London, Feb. 27.—If the latest dispatches from Paardeberg throw any light on the situation, they show that General Cronje's forces have far more protection from Lord Roberts' fire than the first dispatches indicated.

A dispatch from Paardeberg published in the second edition of the Daily Chronicle, dated Saturday, says:

"A balloon has discovered the enemy well covered by a system of burrowing in the river bank which resembles a rabbit warren and affords a shell proof position."

This, perhaps, more than any other circumstance, explains why what is looked upon there as Cronje's death struggle is prolonged. Thus it will not be much of a surprise if today or tomorrow, which is the anniversary of Majuba Hill, pass without being marked by the surrender or annihilation of the gallant band so overwhelmingly hemmed in, though the closeness of the investment appears open to criticism. Small bodies of Boers apparently are able to make their escape, which causes a comparison between the Boer method of investment, with their quickly surrounding trenches, impassable barbed wire, etc., and those of the British.

Roberts Is Waiting.

The military critics, though little better informed as to the commander-in-chief's motives than the public, are inclining to the view that though the main cause of the prolongation of the Paardeberg tragedy consists of Roberts being unwilling to risk the great loss of life which an assault would entail, his delay is also prompted by the subsidiary motive of attracting to Paardeberg as many reinforcements and relieving Boer units as will come, feeling strong enough to treat them as Joubert treated General Buller's attempts to relieve Ladysmith. In other words, Roberts holds a position almost analogous with that held so long by the Boers at Ladysmith.

No Danger of Starving.

As General Cronje is reported to have plenty of food, the plan of starving him out can scarcely avail, so Roberts must either wait until his ammunition, which is said to be short, runs out, or those of Cronje's forces who are counselling surrender prevail. So indefinite is the information that either of these alternatives may occur at any moment.

Meanwhile Lord Roberts' engineers are sapping steadily towards the Boer laager and according to a special from Paardeberg, dated Sunday, the cordon is gradually drawing closer.

Buller's march on Ladysmith is being marked by sharp fighting. A Pietermaritzburg dispatch of today's date says he is still heavily engaged in fighting. In Grobler's Kloof Buller seems to have discovered a hornet's nest in Cape Colony. The British armies are steadily advancing. Barkley East is now in their possession according to a dispatch from that district, the Boers evacuating the place, retreating on Lady Ray and wiring President Steyn for reinforcements to prevent their surrender.

The Pretoria government has proclaimed February 25 and 27 as days of thanksgiving and prayer, presumably in memory of the battle of Majuba Hill.

A dispatch from Kimberley says its inhabitants have planned to erect a statue of Cecil Rhodes in recognition of his services during the siege.

General Buller in a dispatch from Colenso, dated Sunday, reports that the British casualties February 20 were 12 killed and 90 wounded among the Somersets and Dorsets, and that February 22 and February 23 12 officers were wounded.

London, Feb. 27, 9:57 a. m.—The war office announces that Cronje has surrendered his whole force unconditionally.

Wrecked by an Explosion.

Platsville, Wis., Feb. 26.—The Platsville powder mills were wrecked by an explosion, killing three men and badly injuring another. The dead: Thomas Bass, William Rottiger, Fred Genthe. H. S. Beck, a machinist of Bethlehem, was badly hurt. The cylinder mill exploded first, and this was followed by the two presses, the shock being heard for miles around. The mixing mill took fire and was burned to the ground. Several of the other buildings were badly wrecked.

The Mill Boiler Blew Up.

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 25.—At 5 o'clock yesterday evening the boiler of the Pullman Lumber company's sawmill at Pullman, Ark., 40 miles north of Texarkana, exploded with terrible results. The following is a list of the known dead: Hoover Thompson, fireman; Al Hutton, smashed to death. Seriously injured, J. W. Dickus.

Broke a World's Record.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 25.—Charles E. Dvorak of Chicago broke the world's indoor record for pole vaulting by one inch, vaulting 10 feet 10 inches at the University of Michigan gymnasium.

Germany now occupies the position which the United States for many years enjoyed, that of being second to England in ocean steam transportation. Germany has obtained this position in the short period of 10 years.

The election of part of the members of the senate of France resulted in a net gain of 17 seats for the progressive side, embracing radicals, socialists, etc.

MONTANA.

The art department of the University of Montana is gradually extending its scope.

A large buffalo wolf was caught in a trap by Edward M. Lyon of Lyon, one day last week.

Joseph Gannon, a miner, was shot and killed by John Kahoe, in the latter's saloon on Main street, at Butte.

Attorney Burt Marsh was denied the right to practice in the Butte police court for conduct unbecoming a gentleman.

The Montana Pulp & Paper Company expects to have its plant in running order by about the middle of March or the 1st of April.

A number of sportsmen of Kalispell have subscribed money enough to purchase 20 dozen quail, to be set free in Flathead county in the spring.

Judge Sullivan's agitation of the subject of enforcing the anti-cigarette law, prohibiting the sale of tobacco and cigarettes to boys, has already borne fruit.

A report from Dupuyer says that Bert Waddell, a trapper, was frozen to death in his cabin about 15 miles west of the summit, at the head of Birch creek. His partner, Ben Hale, returned from the mountains and reported the death.

In attempting to remove a loaded gun from a wagon at Belt, John Kulofkoski, a miner residing at Sand Coulee, had his right arm blown off by the accidental discharge of the gun. He died a few hours later from the effects of the injury.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction E. A. Carleton has issued an address to county and city superintendents, principals of high schools and teachers, directing them to pay more attention to the physical needs of the pupils.

On the new extension of the Bitter Root railroad, the grading is all completed between Grantsdale and the river, the work on the other side being ready for the rails.

C. E. Conrad has bought a portion of the Allard herd of Buffalo on the Blackfoot reservation, those bought belonging to Mrs. Stinger, formerly Mrs. Allard, in the division of the herd. The exact number is not known, but it will be about 25. It is Mr. Conrad's intention to put them on one of his ranches near Creston.

Five of the six teachers who recently took the examination for state and life certificates have been successful and are granted diplomas. They are E. H. Murray of Missoula, Francis I. Cunningham of Lima, Amy Lee Madden of Butte, and Anna B. Kane of Elkhorn, who were granted state diplomas, and Prof. T. J. Troy of Fort Benton, who received a life certificate.

Great Falls came nearer to being blown sky-high recently than most of her citizens dream of. A car containing 20,000 pounds of dynamite was wrecked on a switch about opposite the Burlington hotel, and turned completely over and upside down, yet none of its contents exploded. It was more good luck than good management, and the reason that no explosion occurred is probably on account of the cold weather recently, in which the dynamite was frozen and rendered comparatively harmless.

GETTING READY FOR WAR.

Persia Assumes a Threatening Attitude Toward Great Britain.

New York, Feb. 27.—A dispatch from Teheran, Persia, says:

"British influence and prestige in Persia have completely vanished. Russia is victorious in the diplomatic contest so long continued, and the shah, whose health is no better than for some time, is making hasty warlike preparations in his anxiety to demonstrate his antipathy toward Great Britain. The grand sirdariat has ordered the speedy completion of the recruiting of soldiers throughout Persia, according to plans the carrying out of which has been delayed for years. The reservists will also be enrolled, and all officers and privates now on leave of absence will be recalled."

Plague in India.

London, Feb. 26.—The plague in India continues virulent. There were 583 victims in Bombay City during the week ending February 16. With over 61,000,000 of people affected by the famine and only about 4,000,000 in receipt of relief, India seems in a bad plight, though the death rates over the 550,000 square miles of the famine area are decreasing. The Indian government has issued a resolution approving Professor Haffkins' anti-plague innoculation, and the viceroy, Lord Curzon, is advocating it throughout India and is paying high tribute to the professor.

A Receiver in Charge.

Milwaukee, Feb. 27.—Judge Jenkins in the United States court has appointed a receiver for the United States Milling company, otherwise known as the flour trust. The collapse of the company was due, it is said, to its inability to float its securities on the open market.

Murder and Suicide.

Brock, Neb., Feb. 27.—Wilson Wakelin, a prominent farmer, murdered his wife by cutting her throat with a razor. He then went to the graveyard where his first wife is buried and, standing on her grave, cut his own throat, falling forward dead. Mrs. Wakelin was at one time president of the W. C. T. U. of Nebraska.

The Jewish actors of New York won their strike. They were backed by the unions, the socialist labor party and social democratic party.

MINES AND MINING CAMPS

NEWS OF THEIR DEVELOPMENT

The Coeur d'Alene camps are hives of activity. Mammoth undertakings are in progress to reach the deep levels of the never-failing fissures.

REPUBLIC.

The Delta drift is showing up ore that fills the face.

Some excellent rock is being taken out of the Hercules shaft.

The ledge in the bottom of the winze in the Princess Maud remains at a width of four feet.

The shaft on the Gopher is 140 feet in depth. The ground has become so hard that all of it has to be blasted.

Superintendent Eugene Sullivan says that the shaft on the Insurgent has been lowered some 40 feet since the resumption of work a short time since.

On the Morning Glory deep development is to be the new order, and a working shaft will be sunk. Recent sampling of the pay ore in sight yields an average of better than $30.

The officers of the Quilp have selected and staked out the spot where the buildings for the compressor plant are to be erected. The site chosen is on the east side of the gulch at the mouth of the tunnel.

Work has been suspended on the south drift on the 600-foot level of the Republic. The work now in progress on that level is more in the nature of exploring the ground near where the big swell in the ledge occurred.

Everything is going smoothly at the Tom Thumb. The new working shaft is down to a depth of 60 feet. The south drift on the 150-foot level is carrying the same high-grade ore that has been encountered for more than 100 feet.

D. M. Synder, superintendent of the Zala M., is quite enthusiastic over the outlook in Sheridan camp. "We are going right along with the work on the Zala M." he says. "We started up the compressor again Feb. 12. We are raising a shaft for air. It will take about 160 feet of raise to connect the lower workings. Thirty feet of the raise is completed and progress is being made at the rate of four feet each 24 hours. We are also drifting on the ledge and taking out a large quantity of high-grade ore. There is little work going on in the camp outside of what we are doing. What is being done can scarcely be called mining. A few owners of prospects are doing a little work to hold title to their claims."

The Mountain Lion mill is nearing completion rapidly. The two 100 horse power boilers are in place and walled in. Three engines are in place, and so are the four Huntington mills. The numerous tanks that will be used for cyanide and other purposes are complete with the exception of putting false bottoms into some of them. There are 19 of these, ranging from 10 to 24 feet in diameter and from 5 to 10 feet in depth. The boiler that is now used to drive the compressor machinery will in time be removed to the mill building, but at present the two boilers already in place will furnish the steam that will be necessary for running the machinery. The compressor will be removed to the new building during the week.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Operations will be resumed shortly on the Emma claim in Summit camp.

A big strike is reported from Skylark camp. On the Blue Jay for a depth of 100 feet the footwall of the ledge was followed by an incline, and then drifting was started.

The Majestic and City of Paris mines in Central camp, owned by Jay P. Graves and associates, have let a contract for hauling the ore on the dump, amounting to 7,000 tons, to the Grand Forks smelter.

A lockout is feared, and the mutterings of labor troubles are heard in Rossland. The merchants are much alarmed and have given notice to customers that all credit will instantly stop "if the calamity occurs."

Manager Kirby tells of the War Eagle's condition. The upper levels are worked out and the lower levels are not ready for stoping. Development must have its day in the mine before another dividend can be paid.

Jay P. Graves, manager of the Knob Hill, Old Ironsides, City of Paris and Majestic mining companies, in a recent communication from Montreal, gives a quietus to the reports that these properties would close down in order to hasten the repeal of the 8-hour law.

The machinery for the St. Eugene air compressor has arrived and the work of installing it is nearly completed. A pipe in connection is being made between the St. Eugene compressor and the line leading from the Lake Shore compressor, and as soon as the St. Eugene plant is in operation the Lake Shore plant will be closed down and the air for all the workings of the mine will be supplied from the St. Eugene plant.

In the Slocan.

The Slocan country is becoming the scene of as great activity as it had formerly been a scene of depression.

The Emil Edith also has enough ore in reserve to employ 150 men, and will erect a concentrator this spring.

The Bosun has 30 men, and is making daily additions and shipping ore.

The Galena Farm, which was bought by Mr. McCune last fall, is starting and will have a concentrator this season.

The Black Prince at Slocan City is shipping, having had a carload on the wharf on Monday.

The Ivanhoe, near Sandon, which is owned by Minneapolis men, has been working all winter, so has the Whitewater Drop.

The Whitewater is starting, and so is the Enterprise, which had 25 men at the beginning of the week, and will increase its force to 125 men.

The Payne has 100 men at work and is putting on more as fast as they come in. It is shipping ore, five carloads having come down to Trail on Monday.

The Arlington has shipped six cars in the last two weeks and has 10 cars ready for shipment. It has 33 men at work, and is putting up larger buildings to accommodate 60.

The new 200-ton concentrator at the Wakefield mine on Four-Mile creek, near Silverton, has started. Development of the mine has been in progress for three years, and it has immense ore reserves, enough to employ 150 men. The working force is being increased as fast as men apply.

MINING NOTES.

A great strike on Blacktail mountain shows that the Blue Bird, situated on the shore of Lake Pend d'Oreille, is rich.

Okanogan's big mine, the Palmer mountain tunnel, is in 2800 feet. Seventeen veins, said to average $20 in gold, have been cut to date. Even the waste is mineralized. Great things may be expected when the new railroad is built.

The Black Bear, an Okanogan mine, is near the dividend stage. It is well equipped with machinery and well supplied with ore. Stoping is in progress and the mill is soon to start its stamps dropping. The veins have been proved at great depth.

The New York Commercial says that there is a movement under way among the independent copper mining interests, scattered principally throughout Montana, Arizona and California, and backed by the Calumet & Hecla Company, to form a combine in opposition to the gigantic Rockefeller-Rothschild alliance.

Advices from Keller, on the South Half, are to the effect that the new town is growing fast and that all the persons doing business at the old town are preparing to move to the new. There are already under construction buildings that will be used as a general mercantile establishment, a hotel, a livery stable, a saloon and a printing office.

W. H. Leasure, manager of the Blue Grouse, is at Wallace, Idaho, from the property, and brought a few samples of ore with him. It is shipping ore, and he says there is more or less of it all the time. The tunnel has followed the vein for over 100 feet, and has been in ore all the way, there having also been a gradual improvement in the quality. The final payment of $10,000 is due on the claims on April 1, a like amount having already been paid, and he says that the payment will be made promptly when due.

George Kennie, the well known mining man, has returned from the new Camp Russell, on Huckleberry mountain, six miles from Cascade City, on the reservation. Mr. Kennie has been in charge of work being done on the Moonlight claim, owned by G. A. Stewart and associates. He brings news of a great strike recently made in the Waterloo.

For the first time in its history the owners of the Gettysburg at Mullan, Idaho, have decided to give information regarding the property to representatives of the press. The property is located up Mill creek but a short distance from town, and is being opened up by a tunnel now in over 900 feet, and which will cut the ore body within the next 250 feet. In order to save distance, the tunnel, which was commenced considerably south of the lead, was run directly for the ore body, so that it has been crosscutting all the way, approaching the vein gradually. It is 415 feet lower than the No. 5 tunnel of the Morning mine, and when it is under the highest point of the ore chute will furnish 1300 feet of stoping ground. Mr. Hanley says that the cost of development thus far will exceed $100,000, and that the ore body will be reached within 60 days, the expectation being that within six months it will be a regular shipper. C. K. Boydon is the superintendent.

HAS GEN. CRONJE ESCAPED?

GENERAL ROBERTS IS SILENT.

Meanwhile Buller Is Steadily Forcing His Way Toward Ladysmith—Has Met Severe Losses—The Boers Claim to Be Holding Their Own.

New York, Feb. 25.—A cable dispatch from The Hague to a prominent Dutch resident of New York, printed in the Evening Journal, says:

"Dr. Leyds has received the following dispatch from President Kruger:

"'Free State and Transvaal forces together south of Paardeberg. Reinforced and well entrenched.'"

Cronje's Band of Spartans.

London, Feb. 25.—General Cronje and his spartan army still hold out in that terrible valley of death on Modder river. Their numbers have been sadly reduced. None, indeed, knows how many survive of that brave 8000 who almost a week ago chose death rather than surrender. All Europe looks on in mingled horror and admiration at the magnificent but heartrending tragedy. Already a mighty voice of protest is rising up from one end of the continent to the other. French and Germans and Russians unite in crying:

England herself is aghast at the spectacle. She suddenly realizes that she will have no friend left on earth, least of all America, if she permits the deliberate slaughter of these 8000 helpless patriots. No Boer victory, however great, could so damage the British cause in the eyes of mankind as the completion of this wholesale execution with lyddite.

Some realization of this fact has reached Roberts and Kitchener, for the bombardment at last accounts had slackened and become almost perfunctory.

Report From Berlin.

Berlin, Feb. 25.—Several newspapers announce that they learn from private sources that Cronje had succeeded in forcing his way through the British lines.

Gather in Boer Prisoners.

Paardeberg, Feb. 25.—There is still no change in the situation. There was intermittent shelling today and during the night a large supply column arrived. It is reported that 2000 Boers are operating northwards of this place.

After the last gun had been fired the Shropshires rushed forward 200 yards farther towards the head of the river and found a number of Boer dead.

General French captured 75 more prisoners who had previously escaped the cordon and a patrol on the westward side took 30 more.

Roberts Maintains Silence.

London, Feb. 25.—Since 2:15 o'clock Saturday afternoon nothing has been received from the scene of what London papers call "General Cronje's death struggle," the war officials announcing at midnight that they had nothing to give out. They stated that they believed it impossible for Cronje to escape the grip of Lord Roberts. The report circulated in Berlin that Cronje had succeeded in making his escape came from the Boer headquarters in Brussels, where it was stated that details were still lacking.

The only news from other parts of the seat of war received during the night is a special dispatch from Colenso, under date of February 24, stating that the British, in spite of strong opposition, were advancing slowly but surely and driving the Boers from the kopjes between Grobler's Kloof and Hlangwane hill.

Ladysmith reported by heliograph on Friday that the Boers were retiring northward in large numbers. Meanwhile the certainty of relief is so strong at Durban that the authorities are actively preparing train loads of provisions, luxuries and medical comforts for dispatch to the beleaguered town as soon as communications are restored.

Operations on the Tugela.

Boer Head Laager, Natal, Friday.—Yesterday the British crossed the Tugela in large numbers with cannon and over 60 wagons. They attacked the Ermelo and middle burghers' commandos, but were forced to retreat under a heavy Mauser fire.

A renewed attempt on Ermelo men was made this morning, but the British were driven off. The fighting continues. The British losses were heavy. Eight ambulances were employed in collecting the dead and wounded. The generals report that the commandos are fighting bravely.

Ladysmith fired a few shots this morning at our outposts till silenced by "Long Tom."

Fighting on the Modder.

London, Feb. 25.—A war bulletin published in Pretoria said communication with Cronje was still open, and that reports of heavy fighting which occurred east of Cronje's laager have been received.

Colony Dutch More Tractable.

London, Feb. 25.—The retreat of Cronje seems to be having an effect on the Cape Boers, as a Dordrecht dispatch, dated Thursday, says they have opened negotiations for submission. General Brabant is treating with them, and in deference to the wishes of the governor of Cape Town, is offering lenient terms, meanwhile ceasing operations.

Buller Tells of Casualties.

London, Feb. 25.—The war office today received from Buller a list of casualties resulting from the fighting of February 22 as follows:

Killed—Lieutenant The Honorable R. C. Cathcart (son of Lord Cathcart), of the rifle brigade; Lieutenants Coe and Parker of the Lancashire regiment.

Wounded—Fourteen officers, including Major General Wynne and Colonel Harris of East Surreys.

Buller concludes: Owing to the continuous fighting it is impossible at present to give the number of men killed or wounded.

Cronje's fate almost sealed as his position is more helpless than ever. His foes closing in on him and his reinforcements from the Natal were scattered by General French's brigade. Men are deserting and every day's bombardment deals death to the stubborn Federalists on the Modder.

Buller has to fight for every inch as the advance of British is stubbornly opposed. The recent stand at Grobler's Kloof brought on an artillery duel at the river crossing. The Somersets were the first over and were subjected to a galling bombardment.

This Little Life.—This little life, as we call it, is the preparation for the life that never ends.—Rev. Dr. Holderby, Presbyterian, Atlanta, Ga.

Light.—Light is used as the sublimest expression in figures of speech and is properly so used in the Bible in connection with the grandest idea known to man.—Rev. Dr. Buckley, Methodist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

In Trust.—The thought Paul makes clear is: All things a man has are to be held "in trust" for God and humanity—even to that splendid piece of property, life.—Rev. Ira Billman, Christian Church, Evanston, Ind.

Man.—God has given man a soul and brains that he may traverse the remotest region and scale the highest altitude of human accomplishments in this world of knowledge.—Rev. Dr. Adams, Methodist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Church.—The church, with all its faults, never was so intelligent, so benevolent, so consecrated as now. The church has lifted the world to a higher plane than formerly.—Rev. Dr. MacArthur, Baptist, New York City.

Reforms of the Ages.—All the reforms of the ages have been consummated only after strenuous agitation and patient waiting. If the next century brings reforms our hopes will be realized.—Rev. Dr. Roberts, Methodist, Chicago, Ill.

Unification.—The supremacy of wealth might be maintained over labor for a time in this country, but the only basis upon which unification could go on would be the basis of eternal right.—Rev. Dr. Thomas, People's Church, Chicago, Ill.

Wisdom of the Just.—The eyes of the world are looking to the conditions in South Africa. It is not military knowledge that is now needed by the British empire, but the "wisdom of the just."—Rev. W. F. Nichols, Episcopal Bishop of California.

Divine Love.—Just as clouds of vapor and the dense black smoke obscure, in a metropolitan center, the bright rays of God's sustaining sunshine, so the multitudinous cares and strife shut out spiritual smiles of divine love.—Rev. Dr. Williams, New York City.

Our Father.—God is our Father and we are his children, by gracious adoption. As his children, it is ours to ask and him to give us blessings. He is willing to bestow, but he makes conditions with which we must comply.—Rev. A. C. Peyton, Maryland, Tenn.

Charity.—Very few of us can work for an abstraction. We must have something real, something tangible. Therefore, faith is nothing if there be not charity. That is why all faith tends to charity, and is enlightened by it.—Rev. Father Yorke, R. C., San Francisco, Cal.

Vibratory Forces.—The vibratory forces are potent in the physical as well as in the spiritual man. These are the forces which man employs to create causes, but the effects of the causes he creates make quite another proposition.—T. B. Wilson, Theosophite, Kansas City, Mo.

The Path of Humanity.—Jesus was the first to make clear that the path of humanity rather than any philosophical system is the mode of approval of the Most High. This is why we call him Master and own his leadership.—Rev. Morgan Miller, Unitarian, San Francisco, Cal.

Prayer.—The heart of one who prays must go out in sympathy for the object for which he prays, in order that his prayer may be heard in heaven. Sympathetic hearts will lead to prayer, and prayer will arouse the sympathy of the heart.—Rev. J. L. Barton, Congregationalist, Bangor, Me.

PROCEEDINGS IN CONGRESS

SUMMARY OF THEIR WORK.

Several Resolutions Introduced—The Clark Investigation—Nicaragua Bill Sure to Pass—Senator Turner an Anti-Expansionist—Notes of the House.

In the Senate.

C. W. Clark, the son of Senator Clark, was the chief witness before the senate committee Thursday. He said he had taken an active part in the Montana campaign in 1898 and in the senatorial fight which followed. He was the treasurer of the Clark campaign fund. The first effort of the committee was to take the state convention from the Daly people and next the election of the democratic state legislative ticket, making practically two campaigns. The money placed in his hands was for the purpose of covering both of these campaigns. Witness denied all incriminating testimony given by Whiteside. Rev. Martin, principal of a female seminary at Deer Lodge, was the next witness.

Throughout the session Saturday the senate had under consideration the Hawaiian government bill. The discussion took a wide range but the basis of it was an amendment offered by Senator Platt of Connecticut as to the appointment and tenure of office of the courts of the Hawaiian government. Senator Tillman embraced the opportunity to make a characteristic speech, in the course of which he made an attack upon Senator Morgan, and vigorously opposed many provisions of the bill, particularly those which related to suffrage.

Senator Clark and Marcus Daly, the rival millionaires of Montana, faced each other during the greater part of Saturday in the senate committee on elections in the investigation of Mr. Clark's election to the senate of the United States. Senator Clark sat in the rear of his attorneys, and Mr. Daly on the opposite side of the room. Mr. Daly wore a pleasant smile throughout the day, and Mr. Clark maintained an unruffled countenance. It had been expected that Mr. Daly would be called to the witness stand during the day, but he was not. The day was given up to J. R. Toole, a close friend of Mr. Daly. Mr. Toole's testimony covered the senatorial contest from the Daly side of the question. He also related many particulars concerning the capitol contest, placing the total expenditure in behalf of Anaconda in that contest at from $350,000 to $450,000. Hon. W. G. Conrad also testified during the day. He was a candidate for the senate in opposition to Mr. Clark. He said that he had spent no money in the senatorial campaign proper.

It was officially announced that four of the five members of the new Philippine commission have been selected. They are Judge Taft of Ohio, Luke T. Wright of Tennessee, H. C. Ide of Vermont and Dean Worcester of Michigan. The fifth member will be announced later. It is generally believed he will be Bernard Moses of California.

At the opening of Monday's session of the senate, Senator Frye reported from the committee on commerce the shipping subsidy bill. He announced that a written report would be presented later to accompany the bill. When the senate had concluded its routine business, Senator Turley called up the resolution reported from the privileges and elections committee to the effect that Quay was not entitled to a seat in the senate as senator from Pennsylvania. Turley prepared the majority report of the committee on the resolution and spoke therefor in opposition to the seating of Quay. In opening his argument he said that no case exactly similar to the present one was ever before the senate. He recited the well known and admitted state of facts regarding the Quay case.

Marcus Daly was the first witness in the Clark case Monday. During the course of his testimony he admitted to having contributed $7500 to the campaign when it was organized. He had, he said, never sought to influence the vote of the miners employed by him. As to Whiteside, the witness had never given him anything for the purpose of defeating Clark.

The United States court of claims has rendered a decision in the claim of Admiral Dewey for prize money on account of the destruction of the Spanish fleet in Manila harbor. The court decided against the admiral's contention that the enemy's force was superior to his and awarded him $9750.

The senate committee on commerce, by a vote of 10 to 6, has agreed to report the shipping subsidy bill.

In the House.

The house began holding early sessions Thursday, meeting at 11 a. m., owing to the pressure for time in the Puerto Rico debate. Mr. McClellan opened the debate, speaking in opposition to the bill, which he characterized as the most outrageous opportunism that has been submitted to a government body, at least since the days of that prophet of opportunism, Leon Gambetta. Mr. Brantley spoke against the bill and particularly on the future of the Philippines. He pointed out that a year had elapsed since the treaty of peace and yet congress had failed thus far to lay down a policy for the Philippines. Grosvenor followed in support of the bill.

When the investigation of the Idaho labor troubles was resumed Thursday before the house committee on military affairs, Chairman Hull stated that Governor Steunenberg of Idaho, who is attending the investigation, had protested against the line of procedure, which impugned state officials. Hull said the governor held that the testimony in effect placed the state officials on trial, and if that were the case they were entitled to be present and be represented by counsel. The chairman called Steunenberg to make his own statement. Representatives Lentz and Hay of the committee energetically opposed this procedure, and the governor's statement was deferred. Considerable feeling developed among the members as the inquiry proceeded. Lentz sought to introduce an affidavit seeking to show that intimidation of miners had been resorted to by the governor of Idaho in order to gain his personal ends. The committee refused to admit the affidavit.

At Saturday's meeting of the house committee on military affairs which is investigating the Coeur d'Alene mining troubles, William Stimson, former commissioner of Shoshone county, resumed the stand. He said he had had a fair trial in the Idaho state courts, but information against him was not filed until 14 days after his arrest. Robert B. Cozier, who prosecuted miners for interfering with United States mails in the capture of the train at Burke, which was a mail train, told the story of the trials, but said he knew nothing about the conduct of the military forces under General Merriam. In 10 cases out of 13 tried, he stated, convictions were secured.

When the house met Monday to resume the debate on the Puerto Rican bill, Mr. Payne, floor leader, announced that no compromise has been made with the dissatisfied republicans. Republican leaders after an hour's consultation with Speaker Henderson over the Puerto Rican tariff announced emphatically that the bill would be modified, but that as modified it would pass. The changes decided upon are the further reduction of duties to be levied upon American goods imported into Puerto Rico and upon Puerto Rican goods into the United States from the 25 per cent American tariff as provided in the bill to 10 per cent. The bill is only to continue in force until a general law raising the revenue for the island can be framed.

Levi R. Miller continued his evidence before the house military committee in reference to the Idaho labor troubles, which developed little in addition to his previous testimony. One of the questions brought out the statement that several men were arrested for talking with those unfriendly to the mining companies. After a brief session the investigation went over.

Fighting Was Severe.

Paardeberg, Feb. 23.—A Boer kopje has been captured with 50 prisoners. Cronje's position is unchanged.

Commandant Botha has been attempting to relieve General Cronje. There has been severe fighting. General Botha's force is scattered with heavy losses.

One of the costliest actions of the war occurred at Paardeberg drift, Sunday. General Kelly-Kenny in his pursuit of Cronje caught his rear guard at Klip drift and followed the burghers to the Boers' laager at Koodoosrand. The drift action began at daybreak, mounted infantry driving the Boers' rear guard up the river towards the main body, while another body of the mounted infantry maneuvered on the right front and flanked the Boers.

The British main body advanced to outflank the Boers' laager on the bank of the river. Kelly-Kenny, having seized two drifts, found the Boers strongly entrenched and ordered an attack with the Highland brigade on the left and General Knox's brigade on the center and right, while General Smith-Dorrine's brigade crossed the river and advanced along the north bank. On both the north and south banks the ground is level and the advance across this was deadly and the British losses were heavy.

The battle was an exact replica of Modder river.

The soldiers were under heavy fire all day and all the fighting had no definite result, as the Boers' laager was well barricaded and they remained therein.

The British guns shelled the laager vigorously and the Boers confessed to a loss of over 800 men.

The terrific shelling was resumed Monday, when Cronje asked for an armistice. Shelling was continued Tuesday, over 50 guns pouring lead into the Boer camp.

More Guns Are Needed.

London, Feb. 23.—Artillery officers received hurry orders today to proceed to South Africa with 50 one-pound Maxim-Nordenfeldt guns.

Buller Still Advancing.

Chieveley Camp, Feb. 23.—The steady progress of the relief column is uninterrupted. The Boers Tuesday were forced from their last position south of the Tugela, resulting in the evacuation of Colenso, which was promptly reoccupied by the Dublin Fusileers and Thorneycroft Horse. A Transvaal flag was captured, as was a handkerchief inscribed with General Botha's name. This is treasured as a great trophy. The Boers heavily shelled Hlangwane hill and Colenso Wednesday. The British advanced infantry was subjected to a severe musketry fire, but they had excellent cover and the casualties were few. The Boers had the railroad running from Colenso to Bulwan.

The British continue to discover large quantities of ammunition. The Boers are well supplied with food and a quantity of provisions was left behind. It is expected that further resistance will be half-hearted and that Ladysmith will be reached in a few days.

Losses at Colenso.

London, Feb. 23.—Buller reports that his casualties were: Killed—Captain Thorburn of the Fusileers. Wounded—Two officers and 14 men.

British Loss at Rensburg.

London, Feb. 23.—An additional list of the casualties sustained by the British troops during the retreat from Rensburg, February 15, shows that 14 men were killed and 158 members of the Wiltshire and Worcestershire regiments are missing. The latter fact confirms Boer reports that a number of prisoners had been captured by them.

THE ENTERTAINMENT.

The entertainment given last Monday evening by the pupils of St. Joseph's School, whilst financially successful, was enjoyed and appreciated by a large audience. At 7:30 the curtains rose and, as an introductory, a martial song, "Unfurl the Flag," was creditably rendered by some of the young ladies of the school. Little Mary Kries recited her "Welcome" very sweetly and won the first laurels and applause. Thereupon the Junior Department of the school gave proof of their proficiency in recitation and singing. Young Amedee Bibeau was as sober and earnest as any judge in town, whilst young Peter Johann, notwithstanding his German blood, took off the Irish valet with much credit. Any person familiar and acquainted with the instruction and education of the youngsters will credit and appreciate the laudable efforts and patience of their instructors; and the most skeptical father or mother will have to admit with the little drummers:

> "So you big boys; if we are small
> On our toes you need not step
> There is room enough for all,
> Give the little boys a chance."

This closed the program of the Junior Department. As an "intermezzo" Miss Gussie Rosenstein entertained the audience with a brilliant piano solo, which the esteemed young lady rendered with much accuracy and "fineese." "Don't fret" was the pleasant advice of little Dorothy Driscoll, and everybody took it. Of course nobody liked the Dutchman "By Jemmez!" "Little Housekeepers" explained to us their week's doings, whilst Joe Kern held it in for the "Book Elves. The larger boys gave us a "Farce" in which they made it decidedly clear that "New Brooms do not always sweep clean." The Henglish Coachman, the Irish valet and even the individual from China made life very unpleasant for Uncle Noah. Mrs. Willis' Will was good and approved in every particular and fell to the right heir indeed. All the young ladies taking part in this "Comic Drama" did splendidly; nor do we intend to arouse jealousy if we ask the privilege of handing a "special bouquet" to little Dorothy Driscoll and her sweet little brother Peter, who could not keep his nose clean. The little Letter Carriers—I wished Senator Shoup had been here—showed us the many advantages of a rural delivery system. And then came the "Cup of Coffee." Miss Mathilda Ryan and her faithful Jenny, as well as the molesting visitors, gave proof of more than ordinary proficiency in the dramatic art, and whilst no doubt the cobbler's wife got her money from "Mrs. O'Brien, upstairs," and dear Mrs. O'Brien gave vent to her ire very naturally against the empty coffee pot and Miss Ryan the hostess, Miss Mathilda won the largest laurelwreath and Jenny the maid got the coffee. The skill and understanding of the rudiments of music, as exhibited by the young fellows and teacher of "The Music Lesson" was enough inviting to start any band in Genesee. Hurrah for the niggars! "The Gypsy" cantata was very pleasing and entertaining whilst the last number, "Topsy Turvy" brought the audience in a roar and on their feet and the young lady performers on their heads. Bully!

Still More Counterfeiting.

The Secret Service has unearthed another band of counterfeiters and secured a large quantity of bogus bills, which are so cleverely executed that the average person would never suspect them of being spurious. Things of great value are always selected by counterfeiters for imitation, notably the celebrated Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has many imitators but no equals for indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, nervousness and general debility. The Bitters sets things right in the stomach, and when the stomach is in good order it makes good blood and plenty of it. In this manner the Bitters get at the seat of strength and vitality and restore vigor to the weak and debilitated. Beware of counterfeits when buying.

—Rue Burdic made a trip to the reservation country this week.

—F. B. Ball sent out some hogs for the Seattle market this week.

—J. A. Gulberg, the tailor, was down from Pullman last week.

—Martin Sullivan, the Troy sawmill man, was a Genesee visitor this week.

—Miss Josie Johnson left for the Cœur d'Alenes to join her sister who is established in the millinery business.

—Major Manning and others of Nez Perce county desert the sinking craft of silver republicanism and return to the old party.

—M. Matheson went to Spokane the first of the week, accompanying his daughter who returned to her home at Tacoma.

—D. R. Davis is figuring on a fruit dryer and evaporator for his fine farm near Genesee, the power to be furnished by a gasoline engine.

—Our home paper in Dakota notes the arrival there of John McMartin, one of Genesee's citizens. He is back on a month's visit with his people.

—Rimrock Mill shipped a carload of flour to the coast this week and imported from down the line some five or six thousand bushels of fine milling wheat.

—A. B. Jackson, the hustling traveling agent of the Burlington system, came down from Spokane this week to look up business for his road. The Burlington is not asleep and gets after business in all directions.

—The construction train now crosses the railroad bridge at Kamiah, but the bridge is not permanently built. About 200 men are at work between the bridge and Stuart and it is said that all work will be completed by another week.

—Geo. Jamison, the pioneer blacksmith, is now in the old Craig & Oliver shop in the eastern part of town. The roof of the brick shop leaked so that Mr. Jamison was obliged to move to other quarters. He will have an assistant in a day or two. Announcement next week.

—M. A. Means came down from Orofino and reports everything lovely in the new country. He has purchased his partner's interest in the store and is going it alone. Ernest Miller has been installed as manager. The people of Orofino will find in Mr. Miller a square, honest and reliable business man.

—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Standish have a home of their own now, thank you. Mr. Standish traded his horse, harness, buggy and two lots north of the McKenna house for the Charles Hough residence. The building will be enlarged and improved. The Standish people will occupy the Waverly this spring and summer.

—Lewiston has been without trains the past ten days owing to more high waters in the Kendrick and Vollmer country. Heavy slides covered the track for a considerable distance, the new grade softened, but the check on the rains has prevented more slides occurring. It is expected the trains will go over the line today on time. Another loss to the Northern Pacific R'y of several thousand dollars.

—Wes Dorchester and W. J. Mervyn are taking their cattle to the Salmon river ranges—some 150 head—where they have already a band. Wes is devoting his whole time to cattle-raising, and if he meets with no great reverses, in six years time he will be able to clean up a snug fortune. With no outlay or expene to speak of in caring for cattle on the Salmon there should be big money in it. Wes has been buying calves for $11 and $12, yearlings for $17, and by herding them two years can more than double the investment. Beats farming and a great deal easier.

—An attempt will be made to organize a local "Direct Legislation League" in Genesee tomorrow evening, according to circulars distributed by Henry Nelson this week. The intention is to organize throughout the county and hold a convention in July for the purpose of nominating county officers. The circular states: "Believing it to be the supreme desire of all the reform forces of Latah county to unite, regardless of past political affiliations, for the establishment of pure legislation, economic government, and rid themselves of the burden of unlawful taxation, we take this method of inviting the co-operation of all silver republicans, populists, democrats and all others believing with us, in one grand organization under which the will of the people will become the supreme law." T. E. Miller is committeeman for this precinct.

ANOTHER SUICIDE.

Again it is our painful duty to chronicle the suicide of another Genesee citizen. Last Tuesday about noon the report flashed over town that another man had taken his life with a razor and that it was Eugene Moss, who came here from North Carolina last summer with a wife and seven children. Men rushed to the residence and saw the horrible sight of a man covered with his own blood and gasping for breath. People were greatly shocked, this following so close to the Mochel affair. Every effort was made to save the life of this man. It was discovered that Mr. Moss had made seven slashes at his throat. The loss of blood was so heavy that the man grew weaker and weaker until six o'clock when he passed away. During the afternoon the man did not realize the seriousness of his act and stated that he knew no reason why he did it. He and Mrs. Moss and the children liked Genesee, the people and the country, were contented and happy. Three or four days prior to this time Mrs. Moss discovered for the first time that he was somewhat weakened in intellect but gave it no further thought. A day or two later he went to the country home of Fred Hampton, a personal friend, and told him he was fast losing his mind, and upon returning to town secured two ounces of laudnum and swallowed it. The dose did not have the desired effect, and on recovering stated he was ashamed of what he had done and would brace up and be a man. The following day he cut his throat.

Eugene Moss was born near Spartanburg, South Carolina, September 1857, and died at the age of 43 years, leaving a kind wife and seven bright children. Last week he became a member of the local lodge of Woodmen of the World. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon from the Methodist church, Rev. C. R. Howard delivering the sermon. Members of the lodge and friends followed the remains to the cemetery and gently lowered them in the grave.

Hon. J. B. West, register of the U. S. land office at Lewiston and a wheelhorse in the republican party, honored the NEWS with his presence Wednesday morning. Mr. West came up in response to the message that Mr. Moss had committed suicide, his first wife being a sister to Mrs. Moss. Attorney Herren, of Moscow, called at the same time and both gentlemen informed us that Mrs. Moss is from the best families in the state of North Carolina, influential in financial and political circles. They were well acquainted with all the people and had nothing but words of praise for them. Too bad. All deeply regret this misfortune and join the NEWS in offering sympathy.

CHARLES MOCHEL.

The particulars of the death of this man were given in our last issue. It is still a mystery why Mr. Mochel took his own life and it may never be positively known. He was in very easy circumstances, doing an excellent livery business and had accumulated considerable property. When Mr. Mochel was himself there was no more accommodating man in Genesee. Social, agreeable and delighted in making things pleasant for others.

The deceased was born in Marysville, Nodaway Co., Missouri, forty-two years ago the 25th of March. He came west and for several years lived in Pomeroy and Big Bend countries, Washington state. About nine years ago he moved to Genesee and about five years ago embarked in the livery business. He leaves a mother aged 74 years, and two sisters and two brothers—Mrs. Evans of Walla Walla, George, Mrs. Chas. Vennigerholz of Pataha, Benj. Mochel of Nezperce. All were present at the funeral.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon in charge of the K. P. lodge of which the deceased was a member, from the Congregational church, Rev. W. C. Fowler delivering the sermon. The remains were followed to the cemetery by many people and consigned to the last resting place.

—George Coverdale, who had the smallpox at Lewiston last fall, was in Genesee yesterday. His face is pitted considerably.

—Mrs. Jennie Bell, daughter of H. B. Hodgins, left for her home at Hoquiam, Wash., yesterday morning much improved in health.

—Cashier Brewer has been a very good boy the past week while in the care of his mother, Mrs. Reed, who came down from Spokane last Thursday and returned this week Wednesday. The lady likes Genesee and will come down more frequently in the future.

—Mr. and Mrs. Henry De Bow attended the funeral of Mrs. Button, mother of the blind lady who visited here a year or so ago. The funeral took place last week at Pomeroy and before returning home one of Mr. De Bow's horses died compelling him to borrow one to haul them back.

—Those who ventured out to hear J. Frank Fouche, the impersonator, congratulated themselves for so doing. The recitals were all very interesting and pleased all and in particulrr the local Shakespearans. The arena scene in "Quo Vadis," Kipling selections, Wilcox's "My Ships," "Daddy's Little Boy," and "Katie an' Me," illicited applause. The entertainment was well worth the price of admission.

—The "Hilarity" by the Shakespearans Saturday night proved to be very hilarious. After an hour's reading the evening was given over to social games and tricks, although a pleasant diversion was had in a story writing contest on twenty words given by the guests. The stories were read and compared and it was decided that Mrs. Gaffney was the biggest story teller and was awarded the prize. A banquet followed.

—The "Bobs" stole the traps of the Boers and after some fine maneuvering the latter fell into them. The poor Boers, about 3000 strong and in command of Gen. Cronje, were surrounded by a superior force and compelled to surrender. The prisoners are Orange Free Staters and citizens of the Transvaal and will be kept at Cape Town until the British conquer other fields. Many guns were captured. It was Alexander the Great, we believe, who sat down and wept because there were no other worlds to conquer. It will be the same with Roberts in a short time. Gen. Cronje fought a desperate battle against overwhelming odds and succumbed to the inevitable. He has the reputation of being not only a brave soldier but one of the ablest of living strategists. In the Jamison raid it fell to him to take the leading part in the capture of these men. During this late war Cronje penned up the Britishers several times. A typical Boer in appearance, a man of undaunted courage, an expert horseman and an excellent marksman.

TIMELY TOPICS.

Why not make every microbe wear a fender and carry a headlight?

It is well to keep out of a business when there are millions in it—too much competition, don't you see?

It is fortunate that in the dispute about when the twentieth century begins there can be only two opinions.

A Michigan doctor has fallen heir to a title and $5,000,000. It will probably be useless now to try to get him out on a night call.

Russell Sage says young men should not hesitate to marry rich girls. They don't. It is the maidens with money who are coy.

The new light weight champion pugilist doesn't drink, chew nor swear. Now if he would quit fighting he might turn out to be quite a man.

A French court has declared a man to be mad because he wrote poetry. Possibly the judge has himself tired to make a living that way.

Some philosophers claim character is shown by taste in color. This is no doubt true of the dark-brown taste in the mouth the following morning.

Prison statistics show that thirteen out of every thousand people in the United States are in jail; which certainly shows that thirteen is an unlucky number.

It would have been indeed the sarcasm of destiny if Gen. Greely, after surviving all the perils of his Arctic explorations, had died as the result of the brutal assault on him by an expressman on a spree.

The latest thing in healers announces that he can raise the dead if they have not been dead "too long." And once more a skeptical public will inquire at what point the line must be drawn that refuses the spiritual power over the material.

Baled hay for the Philippine Islands and for South Africa is now being put up in the United States in a new way. Extra pressure is applied and 160 cubic feet of hay are compressed into fifty cubic feet. An army mule that takes an overdose of this hay will be more dangerous than a lyddite shell, and runs great risks of blowing out his cylinder head.

No one doubts the courage of General Braddock, and no one questions his singular indisposition to profit by the common sense of the Provincials in fighting Indians. His name has been more on human lips in the past few weeks than in years before, and for a reason not complimentary to the British officers in the Boer war. Bravery and brute force are not enough to defeat a sagacious foe full of resources.

Casuistry worthy of the schoolmen develops at Washington in a recent investigation. "A lie," declares one witness, "is when you state a falsehood to a man who has a right to know the truth; if he has no right to the truth it is not a lie." A distinction indeed, and one not unworthy of Kaunitz, who, being asked to defend lying in diplomacy, replied: "There is no such thing as lying in diplomacy. A lie undetected is not a lie. The man caught in a falsehood is not a diplomat." It will be observed that there is some resemblance between the two ideas of diplomacy.

The man who says, "I don't pretend to be honest; no man is, and a lawyer cannot be"—as a lawyer was recently reported as saying—does injustice both to himself and his fellows. He is doubtless himself honest in his declaration concerning himself, if in nothing else. But to say that no lawyer can be honest is to malign a noble profession whose surest basis of success is honesty, and to say no man is honest is a libel upon the human race. If men—the majority of men—were not honest, the world would not and could not be growing better, as it is to-day. There is much hypocrisy, pretending to be better than it is. There is probably more cynicism, pretending that the world is worse than it is. There is, most of all, simple truth and honesty.

Americans are fond of abbreviations. They desire to express their thoughts tersely, and that desire often results in uncouth or inaccurate forms. It is perhaps allowable to write 'buss for omnibus, but it is absurd and meaningless to write '00 for 1900. One zero means nothing and two zeros fail to mean more than nothing. If a merchant should advertise that he had changed the price of a special make of overcoats, for example, from $18.99 to '00, would he be greatly gratified at the results? Doubtless the two zeros would in this case convey some sort of an idea, but it assuredly would not be the idea the merchant had in mind. Perhaps a young lady who had just passed out of her 19th year might glow over the notion that she could say she had entered her '0 year, but mature reflection would finally convince her that she had proved too much. On the whole, it would seem to be good sense for people to write the 1900 in full, and for college graduates of this year not to put themselves down as nonentities of the class of '00.

The Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage now and then in his discourses hits upon a practical topic and utters sound wisdom. As a considerable portion of the community regards him as a Sir Oracle the Chicago Tribune says it is glad to note that in a recent Sunday address he devoted himself to the folly of early rising. The old adage, is not only illogical and unwise, but has been the source of many of the ills to which flesh is heir to. A man should go to bed when he is sleepy and not before. He should get up when he is obliged to and not before. No specified time can be set for any one. Circumstances must govern cases. When a person wakes up for good and can no longer sleep is the natural time to get up. If he wakes up and finds himself irresistibly inclined to turn over and take another nap he is doing violence to nature if he does not yield to the desire, provided all other things are equal. The early rising habit is an old superstition which should be abandoned with the beginning of the new century, at midnight Dec. 31, 1900, if not sooner. It has never made a man healthier, wealthier or wiser. There is another senseless adage that the early bird catches the worm. But if the worm had not been out early he would not have been caught.

Early to bed and early to rise
Makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise,

The United States Treasury has a curious account upon its books. This is known as the "Conscience Fund." The sums entered to its credit are repentance-money received from persons who at some time or other have defrauded the government, and whose consciences have compelled them to restore their dishonest gains. No questions are asked when a penitent declares his sin in this practical way. Some penitents return the amounts unlawfully taken, and leave them to tell their own story; but oftener letters of confession accompany the money. These are kept on file. A letter from a clergyman, who signed his name and inclosed four dollars and a fraction, stated that the money was owed the government as duty and accrued interest on several cheap watches smuggled into this country a number of years ago by a man who confessed his wrong to him. "The man who pays this money," writes the clergyman in substance, "entered upon a religious life a few weeks ago. This act attests the genuineness of his purpose to live in obedience to both human and Divine law." Another letter from an old veteran reads: "Sir: Please find my thirty dollars, to be placed to the credit of the Conscience Fund, from the awakened conscience of an old veteran, who has been laying aside a little at a time for some time, and who has not been able to figure yet just what it is, but who hopes to light on the data yet, and restore it before he is called to meet his God." The simplest fact in an upright character is its acute sense of right and wrong, and the honesty that pays secret as well as open debts.

It has been said that much of the modern willingness to get rid of the mortal coil is due not so much to tangible woes as to that intangible state called ennui. There is no apt English equivalent for this French word, and that state of mind called the blues is much too active a condition to express the apathetic torpor whose tone is a prevailing gray. John Stuart Mill, in his remarkable "Autobiography," confesses to having been subject to such attacks when the fountains of vanity and ambition were dried up and when "neither selfish nor unselfish pleasures were pleasures." Coleridge, says Mill, best expressed this condition in the lines in the "Ode to Dejection:"

A grief without a pang, void, dark and dear,
A drowsy, stifled, unimpassioned grief,
Which finds no natural outlet or relief
In word, or sigh, or tear.

The philosopher believed that with him such a mental state was due to a premature habit of self-analysis, and no doubt analysis does tend to destroy feeling and capacity for enjoyment. A modern poet, Stephen Phillips, utters the same cry and protest:

My senses all like weapons rust
And lie disused in endless dust.
I may not love, I may not hate;
Slowly I feel my life abate.

Many people have confessed to having endured these visitations of the ennui microbes on a Sunday afternoon when, either because of unwonted feasting or lack of mental stimulus, they become mere clods. After all, both the blue and the gray states are but mother nature's way of getting even with the nerve-exhausted individual who has taxed her too heavily. The best remedy lies in physicial activity and effort, though effort at such times is difficult to command. Yet, as Mathew Arnold says:

—— Tasks in hours of insight will'd
Can be through hours of gloom fulfill'd.

Nest Built of Watch Springs.

The museum in Soleure, Switzerland, recently received a birds' nest made entirely of steel watch-springs. Soleure has a very important watch industry, and it frequently happens that lots of the fine steel shavings are thrown out in the sweepings. One day a workman noticed a swallow carrying brilliant threads towards the nest. Upon further examination it was found that the nest, almost four inches in diameter, had been built almost entirely of steel springs and shavings. When the young ones had left the nest for good, and started with the parents upon their annual southern trip, the nest was carefully taken down and offered as a curiosity to the local museum.

A Standard Measurement.

"There's no doubt about it," said the man with a large diamond in his necktie; "that man is a genuine patriot."

"How do you know?"

"Why, he can get up as much enthusiasm over an election as he does over a prize fight."—Washington Star.

THE U & I R. R. CO., LIMITED.

What though between thy heart and mine
The long miles stretch, my dear,
Since we have a private railway line
And Love is the engineer;
Love drives the engine straight and true,
And the trains in an instant fly,
Bearing sweet thoughts from me to you
Over the U & I.

The U & I is a wonderful road,
For the stations are in our hearts,
And the train is due in thine with its load
The moment from mine it departs;
It runs through the land of lovers' dreams,
That has ever a starry sky,
And fairies welded the soft moonbeams
Into rails for the U & I.

The cars are words that we fain would say,
Sweet words that all lovers prize.
And the engine is lighted upon its way
By the light of your fair blue eyes;
The boiler is fed by the gentle tears
You shed when we said "Good-by,"
And our trustful hope and our tender fears
Are the freight of the U & I.

And never an accident, never a wreck,
Nor washout, nor strike, nor blockade,
Has come to our dear little railway to check
The trains, since the last rail was laid;
But back and forth, 'twixt your heart and mine,
Each moment the trains still fly,
Bearing sweet messages over the line
Of the wonderful U & I.

Reggie's Love Letter

DIRECTLY he saw the envelope lying on the breakfast table he guessed whence it came. There was an unmistakably lady-like look about the handwriting, while the postmark confirmed his suspicions, and the pretty blue monogram left him no possible room for doubt. M. C.—Mary Chichester. Reginald Trevor had got up late, his razor had been blunt, his shaving water had been cold, and everything had combined to annoy him and upset the placidity of his temper; that dear little note with the pretty monogram was a magic wand that suddenly changed the whole aspect of life.

He took up the letter with a thrill of pleasurable expectation such as only lovers can experience; he fingered it tenderly, turning it over and over, and admiring it from every point of view. How delightful his name looked in the delicate handwriting! He had never realized before what a pretty name it was—"Reginald Trevor, Esq." How daintily she turned her T's—how gracefully she formed her R's! Reggie kissed the pretty blue monogram, and, although there was no one to see, blushed as he did so. Kissing it gave him no very definite sensation of pleasure, but it seemed the correct thing to do in the circumstances, for love is an exacting divinity and demands any number of these antiquated little ceremonies. When in love for the fourth or fifth time one becomes more careless about such trifles, but Reggie had never—well, hardly ever—been in love before, so naturally he was anxious to comply strictly with all the orthodox forms.

He opened the envelope very carefully, cutting it with a paper knife along the top so as to leave intact the pretty blue monogram. The letter ran as follows:

"Dear Mr. Trevor—We are inviting a few friends to go with us to Henley on Wednesday next, and it will give us much pleasure if you will be one of the party. I hope you are disengaged and will be able to come. Yours sincerely, MARY CHICHESTER."

To anyone else the letter would have seemed prosaic enough, but to Reggie there was a wealth of new meaning in the customary "Dear," and poetry in every word. "I hope you are disengaged and will be able to come;" he emphasized the "I" with delight, and rapturously kissed the signature. He had understood that lovers usually lost their appetites, but he was not going to follow tradition blindly, so he proceeded to eat his breakfast. After all one must eat to live, and was not life now doubly worth living?

Before he had finished breakfast he knew the letter by heart. This should not have been a great strain on his memory, but he looked at the note several times during the day in order to be quite sure he remembered it correctly. The "Yours sincerely" depressed him a little at first; he could have wished it had been "Yours very sincerely." Then he reflected that he had often heard that a girl's feelings were in inverse ratio to the warmth of their expression, so that "Yours sincerely" obviously meant more than "Yours very sincerely." Q. E. D.

He called on the Chichesters the next day and accepted the invitation in person. Mary looked more charming than ever, and he felt a glow of proud satisfaction as he thought of her dear little letter nestling in his breast coat pocket. When a man is in love he is an easy prey to superstition, and Reggie cultivated a habit of carrying the note about with him, as if it were a species of talisman.

Love flies fast when on golden wings, and Reggie being a man of means fortune smiled upon his suit, so that it was not long before he found an opportunity of putting the momentous question.

Is it not strange how fate throws people together and gives them that needful opportunity? Quite by chance mamma happens to suggest that Edwin might like to look at the currant bushes, or the rabbit hutch, or the new garden roller, or anything in fact that most people would find thoroughly uninteresting, and off he goes with Angelina, and when they come back, looking dreadfully shy, and Angelina confesses that Edwin has told her how much he adores her, could anyone be more surprised than dear mamma? But, between you and me, should they come back looking dreadfully bored, with nothing to confess but their admiration of the currant bushes or whatever it was they went out to inspect, mamma is more surprised still, only she succeeds in disguising her feelings a good deal better.

By just such a happy chance Reggie and Mary went out one afternoon to look at a wonderful well that had lately been sunk in the garden; but, oddly enough, they got no farther than a particularly shady summer-house, where they looked into each other's eyes instead, and there they made the remarkable discovery that they were both exceedingly fond of one another.

"When did you first know you cared for me?" asked Mary.

"The moment I first saw you," said he boldly.

"That's not true. You first saw me at the Fosters' ball, and you danced nearly the whole evening with that tall Miss Johnson."

Reggie could not very well deny the imputation, but he protested vehemently that he could not imagine how he had ever been so blind as to prefer the ungainly Miss Johnson to the lovely Miss Chichester.

"Anyhow," he said, "I fell in love with you very soon afterward."

"But now, how am I to believe you?"

"Why," he cried exultingly, recollecting his precious leter, "do you remember the letter you wrote to me last July?"

"What letter?" she asked.

"Why, surely you remember asking me to go to Henley?"

"I remember your coming with us, so I suppose we asked you."

Reggie was seized with a momentary panic lest he should have forgotten the note in his pocket, but he drew it out triumphantly.

"There!" he cried, kissing the note once more, "I've carried that dear little letter about with me ever since I got it."

He had looked forward to this moment; he had pictured the sweet wonder in her pretty eyes as she would glance up at him and murmur: "Oh, Reggie, all this time!" But, to his great consternation, she did nothing of the kind. On the contrary, directly she saw the letter she burst out laughing. Reggie was dismayed; such conduct showed an utter want of proper feeling.

"Well," he said, reproachfully, "I don't see what there is to laugh at."

Mary took the letter out of the envelope and laughed still more. Reggie remembered how sacred that letter had been to him, and how often he had pressed it to his lips, and began to grow angry at her frivolity.

"Well?" he said again.

"Why," she cried, as soon as she could speak for laughing, "you poor dear boy, don't you see, this is mamma's writing; her name's Mary, too."

And little Tommy Chichester, who was out of earshot, but who had watched the whole affair with breathless interest from the shelter of a neighboring holly tree, has never understood to this day why his sister should have laughed so much, and his brother-in-law should have looked so excessively foolish.

Provided Against a Famine.

When old Jacob Willoughby died recently Kensington lost one of her unique characters. Previous to the Centennial Exposition of 1876 Mr. Willoughby was seized with a fear that the millions of visitors who were expected in the city would deplete the food markets of Philadelphia, and that a famine would ensue. So firmly did he become convinced of the truth of his prediction that he immediately laid in an enormous stock of edibles, mostly canned goods. The cellar of his house was piled high with preserves, potted meats, canned vegetables and nearly every other article of non-perishable foods.

Of course the anticipated famine did not materialize, and Mr. Willoughby was left with his stores on his hands. He might have disposed of them, but that would have meant admitting his mistake, and so kept them. For twenty-three years, according to a well-authenticated report, he has fed his family and his guests on the aftermath of his centennial stock, and when company came there was great rejoicing in the family, for then the stuff went faster. At the time of the old gentleman's death there was still a portion of it left.—Philadelphia Record.

A Large Rocking-Stone.

Buenos Ayres seems to have the largest "rocking-stone" yet discovered. It is situated on the slope of the mountain of Tandil, in the southern part of the province, and measures 90 feet long by 18 feet broad, and is 24 feet high. Its bulk is 5,000 cubic feet, and it weighs at least twenty-five tons. Nevertheless, it is so beautifully poised that a single person can set it rocking. When the wind blows from the southeast, the stone, which is pyramidal in form, sways to and fro on its foundation like the branches of a tree.

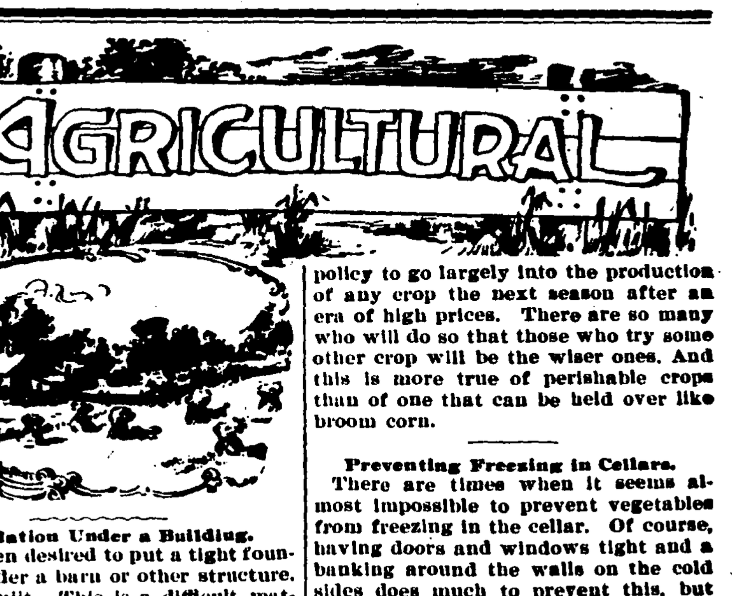
A Wonderful Floor.

An extraordinary floor has been laid in the London Coal Exchange. It is constructed of inlaid wood, and the pieces are arranged so as to represent the mariner's compass. Some of the slabs of wood, of which there are altogether 4,000, have interesting historical associations. Thus the one forming the haft of the dagger in the city corporation arms is a portion of a tree planted by Peter the Great, when he worked as a shipwright at Deptford.

An Eccentric French Poet.

Beaudelaire, the French poet, used to dye his hair green, and wore winter garments in summer and summer garments in winter. He was in the habit of throwing flower pots at windows opposite for the pleasure of hearing them break.

AGRICULTURAL



Foundation Under a Building.

It is often desired to put a tight foundation under a barn or other structure, already built. This is a difficult matter, particularly if the building is close to the ground. The foundation should extend down below the frost line. How shall the ditch be dug under the edge of the barn? The illustration, from the New England Farmer, shows an excellent plan. Dig a trench close to the barn, and then dig in under the barn to the required distance to accommodate the foundation stones. Exactly under the edge of the barn, at the bottom of the wide trench, drive stakes and put down a rough board. Now fill in behind the board with loose stones, put on another old board and continue to fill in the loose stones until they stand level with the surface of the ground. The part of the trench outside the boards can now be filled in with earth, packing it down solidly, leaving the old boards where they are. The flat stones above the ground can then be put in and cemented. Perhaps they can be put in more conveniently before filling in the outside trench.

PUTTING IN A FOUNDATION.

Winter Work.

There is but little to do in the fields during this season, but the time for planting corn will soon arrive, while such garden crops as onions and peas go into the ground very early. If the weather permits the manure should be hauled and spread on the ground before spring, and the application of fertilizer should not be delayed, especially if potash is to be applied. It is better to put fertilizer on the strawberry, raspberry and blackberry locations while the ground is cold than to delay, as to apply too late may cause injury in some cases. This is the time for using crude petroleum on fruit trees as a remedy for the San Jose scale, and grapes, raspberries and blackberries should be given attention while the weather is cold. Sometimes the spring opens early, and it will then be too late to cut back the grape vines. The old canes of blackberries should always be removed in winter. The manure heaps should now be worked over so as to get the materials in as fine condition as possible. Well-rotted manure gives more immediate benefit to plants than does coarse litter, and the winter is the season for preparing it.

The Wheat Harvest.

We scarcely realize that the wheat harvest lasts the year through, yet such is the case. In January they are harvesting it in Australia and in Argentine. Through February and March they will be busy in the East Indies and in Upper Egypt. April will find them busy at it in the wheat belts of Asia Minor, India, Persia and in Mexica. One might finish in Mexico in time to help his neighbors in Texas or Florida in May, but he could scarcely reach Japan or northern Africa in time to do much. From June to September he could, and many do, work northward within the limits of the United States, and even into Manitoba. Peru and southern Africa harvest it in November, and Burmah in December. So says a writer in one of our magazines.

Growing Broom Corn.

Waldo F. Brown in the Prairie Farmer gives good advice to farmers in saying that they should not begin the growing of broom corn unless they can arrange to grow quite a quantity and hold it for from one to three years for a rise when the price is low. He predicts that when the crop for 1900 is ready for market the price will be below the cost of production. He has known it to sell for $300 one year and $40 the next, and at the latter price there was no profit. It is never good policy to go largely into the production of any crop the next season after an era of high prices. There are so many who will do so that those who try some other crop will be the wiser ones. And this is more true of perishable crops than of one that can be held over like broom corn.

Preventing Freezing in Cellars.

There are times when it seems almost impossible to prevent vegetables from freezing in the cellar. Of course, having doors and windows tight and a banking around the walls on the cold sides does much to prevent this, but when that "coldest day since we can remember" comes unexpectedly, as it does so many times, the chances are that many are not well prepared for it. A small oil stove, or even one or two lanterns, lighted and burning, will do much to give a warmer temperature, and one or two tubs of water put down there will do nearly as much. The first throw off an active heat and the water a latent heat. Not until the water is frozen will anything else freeze there. Set the stove or lanterns on the bottom of the cellar, as heat rises, and see that they cannot set fire to anything.

Reclaiming Abandoned Farms.

A writer in the Farmer's Review of Chicago says: A farmer in Paxton, Worcester County, Mass., who settled upon an abandoned farm about two years ago, is reported to have raised on eight acres 7,500 bushels of potatoes, 25,000 cucumbers—the latter from a single acre—800 barrels of cabbages, 700 bushels of tomatoes, 350 barrels of carrots, 600 bushels of parsnips, 1,100 bushels of turnips, 400 bushels of beets and 1,100 heads of cauliflower, besides squashes and some other truck ad libitum, and all the vegetables used by the family. Of course it is presumed that these products were marketed at a profit, and, that being the case, it is easy to see why many of New England's abandoned farms are being reclaimed.

Destruction of Birds.

There is a complete failure of the olive crop in Southern Italy and in Sicily this season, owing to the ravages of the oil fly, which appeared in unusual numbers on account of the prolonged drouth of last summer and fall. The loss to the provinces of Bari and Lecce alone is estimated at 60,000,000 lire, or $12,000,000. There will be a corresponding scarcity of oil, of course. The country people are having their eyes opened to the consequences of the wholesale destruction of insect-devouring song birds.

Whitewashing Peach Trees.

Those who have peach trees will do well to remember that in Missouri they have decided that spraying peach trees two or three times during the winter is an efficient protection for them against the early starting of the buds, and killing afterward by frosts. Use a thin whitewash and cover trunk, branch and twigs, and renew when the weather had washed it off. They say that it makes the fruit but little, if any, later, but makes a sure crop of it, which is what peach growers most want.

Ashes for the Aphis.

For treating root aphis in the orchard tobacco dust has been found very effective. In some sections wood ashes are used with good results by removing the soil from about the tree and apply one-half bushel of wood ashes and then returning the soil. With fruit trees it is the general opinion that ashes can be applied freely without any danger of injury. The effect of bone meal is also beneficial.

Value of Reputation.

It is just as necessary for a farmer to "get a reputation" as for the merchant to get to the top with a certain line of goods. When the farmer makes a specialty of butter, eggs or any other article, he should seek to introduce the goods himself. It may not be encouraging at first, but his products will in time become known.

Dairy Suggestions.

In the winter keep the cow warm and dry.

Don't keep a hard-milking cow, if you value your time.

Always milk as quickly as possible, and do it with clean, dry hands.

Cream should be taken off the milk while it is still sweet, if possible.

Clean, bright food, in sufficient variety, is what is needed for the dairy.

Two or three degrees of temperature will make a great difference in churning.

Be on friendly terms with the calves from the very first. Talk to them and pet them.

Never disturb milk when cream is rising or the butter globules will sink never to rise again.

The good-looking, round-bodied cow is never a good one. The best dairy cow is hardly pretty.

Whenever a cow drinks water that you would not drink yourelf she is robbing you of profits.

The cow can have no better food than shredded corn fodder, if it is good fodder, or ensilage.

First rinse cans in cold water, then wash them in warm water, then scald with boiling water and dry.

A cow is both a machine and a very sensitive, delicate organism. Do not make the mistake of supposing that she is simply an inanimate machine.—Western Plowman.

Common Sense Talk with Women

If a person is ill and needs a medicine is it not wise to get one that has stood the test of time and has hundreds of thousands of cures to its credit?

A great many women who are ill try everything they hear of in the way of medicine, and this experimenting with unknown drugs is a constant menace to their already impaired health.

This seems to us very unwise, for there are remedies which are no experiments and have been known years and years to be doing only good.

Take for instance Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; for thirty years its record has been one unbroken chain of success. No medicine for female ills the world has ever known has such a record for cures.

It seems so strange that some people will take medicines about which they really know nothing, some of which might be, and are, really harmful; while on the other hand it is easily proved that over one million women have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

We have published in the newspapers of the United States more genuine testimonial letters than have ever been published in the interest of any other medicine.

All this should, and does, produce a spirit of confidence in the hearts of women which is difficult to dislodge, and when they are asked to take something else they say, "No, we want Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which has been tried, and never found wanting, whose reliability is established far beyond the experimental stage."

We have thousands of letters like the following addressed to Mrs. Pinkham, showing that Monthly Suffering is Always Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, also Backache and Bearing-down Pains.

"I suffered untold agony every month and could get no relief until I tried your medicine; your letter of advice and a few bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have made me the happiest woman alive. I shall bless you as long as I live."—Miss Josie Saul, Dover, Mich.

"Four years ago I had almost given up hope of ever being well again. I was afflicted with those dreadful headache spells which would sometimes last three or four days. Also had backache, bearing-down pains, leucorrhœa, dizziness, and terrible pains at monthly periods, confining me to my bed. After reading so many testimonials for your medicine, I concluded to try it. I began to pick up after taking the first bottle, and have continued to gain rapidly, and now feel like a different woman. I can recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the highest terms to all sick women."—Miss Rosa Helden, 126 W. Cleveland Ave., Canton, O.

Two Letters which Prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Will Remove Tumor and Cure Other Female Weakness.

"Two years ago I was a great sufferer from womb trouble and profuse flowing each month, and tumors would form in the womb. I had four tumors in two years. I went through treatment with doctors, but they did me no good, and I thought I would have to resort to morphine.

"The doctor said that all that could help me was to have an operation and have the womb removed, but I had heard of Mrs. Pinkham's medicine and decided to try it, and wrote for her advice, and after taking her Vegetable Compound the tumors were expelled and I began to get stronger right along, and am as well as ever before. Can truly say that I would never had gotten well had it not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound."—Mary A. Stahl, Watsontown, Pa.

"After following the directions given in your kind letter for the treatment of leucorrhea, I can say that I have been entirely cured by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies, and will gladly recommend them to my friends."—A. B. Davids, Binghamton, N. Y.

Another Case of Womb, Kidney and Bladder Trouble Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Dear Friend—Two years ago I had child-bed fever and womb trouble in its worst form. For eight months after birth of babe I was not able to sit up. Doctors treated me, but with no help. I had bearing-down pains, burning in stomach, kidney and bladder trouble and my back was stiff and sore, the right ovary was badly affected and everything I ate distressed me, and there was a bad discharge.

"I was confined to my bed when I wrote to you for advice and followed your directions faithfully, taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Liver Pills and using the Wash, and am now able to do the most of my housework. I believe I should have died if it had not been for your Compound. I hope this letter may be the result of benefiting some other suffering woman. I recommend your Compound to every one."—Mrs. Mary Vaughn, Trimble, Pulaski Co., Ky.

England Is Gay.

London, Feb. 26.—The fierce fighting that has made the past week memorable in the history of Great Britain, has, in spite of the heavy casualties that accompanied it, acted as an exhilarating tonic upon the nation. It is almost with cheerfulness that the people of Great Britain are taking their punishment, for now there is something to show for it, in pleasing contrast to the weeks of waiting and suspense that scarcely ever passed without largely adding to the death roll and never seemed to bring Great Britain's forces nearer to the goal. Hand in hand with the relief of Kimberley and the daily expected relief of Ladysmith, has come the relief of London. With the fate of those beleaguered places off their minds, with the national honor free once more to take its chances on a fair fight in the field, London has evolved itself from the depressing gloom that for months overhung it. There is now talk of balls, dinners and entertaining; there are brighter looks in the faces of the crowds that throng the streets, and even the women seem to have brought out gayer gowns.

Apart from the dramatic condition that came over the situation in South Africa, the event of the week was Joseph Chamberlain's vigorous, almost vicious, self-defense in the house of commons. The colonial secretary met the accusations and demands with one of those terrible fighting speeches for which he is noted. With venomous retort and scorn he once more denied complicity in the Jameson raid, denied the so-called revelations of the Indépendence Belge, and with strong phrases resented the opposition's agitation as a personal attack upon his much persecuted self. In the heat of the debate, and with an overwhelming majority ready to cheer every bitter phrase, Mr. Chamberlain carried all before him. But after reflection many of those who thoroughly believed Mr. Chamberlain to be absolutely untainted, and who place no importance upon the letters stolen from Mr. Hawkesly, counsel for the British South African company, regretted that the colonial secretary took up the matter in such a personal spirit.

Steamer Is Ashore.

Portland, Me., Feb. 26.—A steamer, believed to be the California of the Allan line, is ashore off Fort Williams, Portland harbor. A telephone message from Fort Williams says the steamer is a large one, and is about 2500 yards from shore, with all her lights out. The sea was rough.

New York, Feb. 26.—Mrs. E. P. Hayes, the wife of Dr. E. P. Hayes, a dentist, formerly of Chicago, but now with offices at the Hotel Endicott, in West Thirty-first street, was shot and killed in her apartments in that hotel by Dr. Frank D. Caldwell, an assistant of Dr. Hayes. Caldwell then shot and killed himself. Nothing was found that gave any idea as to the cause of the shooting, so far as is known.

Paid in Three Millions.

New York, Feb. 25.—Nearly $3,000,000 was paid into the sub-treasury here by the Southern Pacific company for the Central Pacific railroad in liquidation of a note of the latter company that does not fall due until August, 1901. The actual payment was $2,946,194.79. Checks for this amount were turned into the subtreasury and their receipt gave the institution a credit balance of $2,346,770 at the clearing house.

Nineteen new railroad associations were added last year to the Young Men's Christian Association in this country, and 12 new buildings were erected especially for railroad work.

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

FUEL SCARCE AT CAPE NOME.

They Have a Sufficient Supply of Provisions to Last Through the Winter—Diggings Reported as Being Very Rich.

Seattle, Feb. 26.—The first news of the winter from Nome has reached here in Dawson papers, reporting the arrival there of Carl Von Knobelsdorff and Charles D. Campbell, who left Nome December 10 and reached the Klondike. They report that there is plenty of food at Nome to last through the winter and until the first steamers arrive there next summer. The only scarce article is wood, which was selling at $85 a cord when they left. The supply of wood along the beach was consumed for a distance of 10 miles up and down from Nome city and the prospects were for a practical famine in this fuel before spring. The coal price for sale was 7 cents a pound, though there was little of it on hand and it was being refused to buyers. The large transportation companies, however, had enough coal on hand to last them, so there was not considered much likelihood of suffering from the cold.

Cost of Living.

Flour was selling at $6 a sack, bacon at 30 to 40 cents a pound, ham 45 cents, dried fruit 45 cents, rice 15 cents, oatmeal 20 cents, beans 15 cents, canned meats $1 a can, canned fruit 75 cents a can, fresh meat $1 to $1.25 a pound, baking powder $1, meals $1 to $1.50, and lodgings $1 to $4 a night. Eggs, fresh potatoes and onions were out of the market by December 1, when eggs sold for $3 a dozen and onions and potatoes $15 for a hundred weight.

Stampedes are reported to have been of frequent occurrence during the winter. The latest extreme was above Cape York and opposite in the interior along the Anakovik and Linden rivers and their branches. The York beach sand was believed to be very promising, but the prospects on the creeks were excellent.

Number of Strikes.

Below and southwest of Nome furnished the best reports in the bonanza district, there having been reported a rich strike in coarse gold. Outside of Anvil, Glacier and Dexter creeks and Snow gulch, the prospecting was only superficial. No. 1 below discovery on Anvil creek, a tributary of Snake river, showed $192,000 as the result of four months sluicing. The largest nugget was found in this claim, valued at $418. Men were sinking holes through the ice off the beach in December to find if there was gold in the bottom of the ocean. Cummings took the biggest nugget pile from the beach a quarter of a mile from Nome. He is said to have realized $15,000 for his season's rocking. The rich spot on the beach, the split within a mile of Snake river above Nome, was all worked out and the best pay of the entire beach for a distance of 14 miles was taken out. Little development work has been done in the tundra, so its value was unknown.

February 5, 51 teams left Dawson for Nome and up to noon the next day 28 more had started.

Fire at Montreal.

Montreal Feb. 27.—The Theater Francais and nearly the entire block on St. Catherine street, between St. Dominique and Cadieux street, was burned. Five business properties were destroyed besides the theater. The loss is about $100,000.

Destroyed by Fire.

London, Feb. 27.—The Grand theater, Islington, where Henry Irving and other actors have been in the habit of beginning provincial tours, was gutted by fire. Arson is suspected. The theatrical wardrobes and properties were lost.

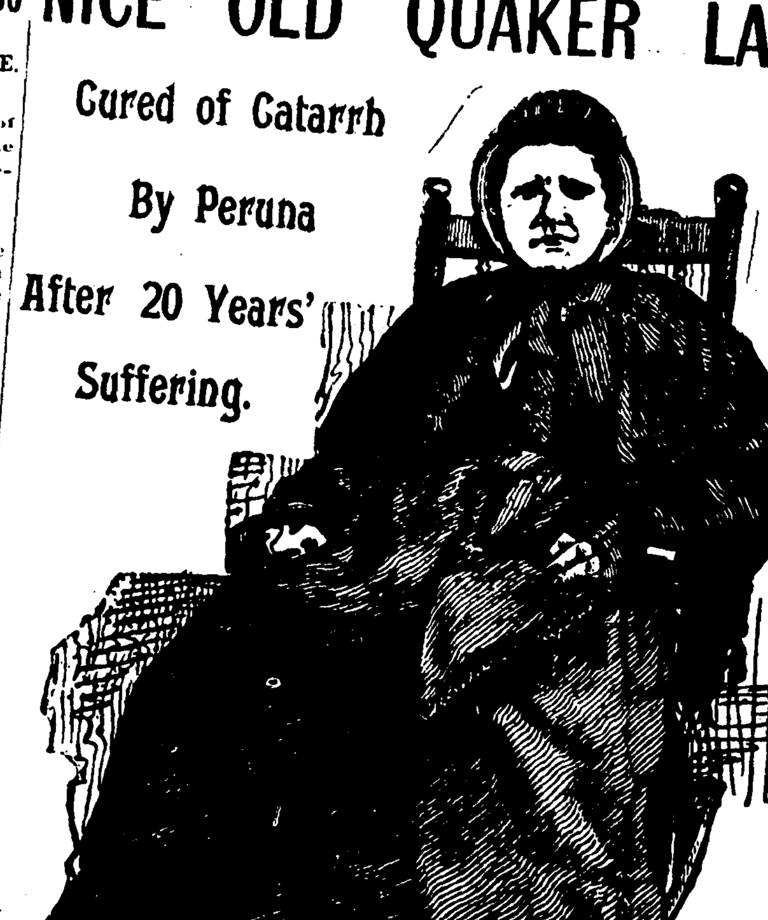
NICE OLD QUAKER LADY

Cured of Catarrh By Peruna After 20 Years' Suffering.



MRS. POLLY EVANS, A LIFE-LONG FRIEND OF PERUNA.

"My wife (Polly J. Evans), says she feels entirely cured of systemic catarrh of twenty years' standing. She took nearly six bottles of thy excellent medicine, Peruna, as directed, and we feel very thankful to thee for thy kindness and advice. She did not expect to be so well as she is now. Twelve years ago it cured her of lagrippe. I want to tell thee there has been a great deal of Peruna used here last winter. Peruna does not need praising. It tells for itself. We can and do recommend it to anyone that is afflicted with catarrh."
As ever, thy friend, John Evans, South Wabash, Ind.

When catarrh has reached the chronic stage, of course it has gone beyond the reach of all local remedies. Nothing but a systematic remedy can reach it. Peruna is the only remedy yet devised to meet such cases. Peruna eradicates catarrh from the system. It does its work quietly, but surely. It cleanses the mucous membranes of the whole body. It produces regular functions. Peruna restores perfect health in a natural way.

No one should neglect to procure one of Dr. Hartman's free books on catarrh, sent to any address by the Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio.

The doctors insist on her taking "5 Drops" and assure her that it is now only a matter of a few days and she will be entirely cured, and as we are very well known here, the "5 DROPS" is receiving considerable attention and praise. F. E. PRICE, Jersey City, N. J. Oct. 13, 1899.

SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE CO.: I suffered terribly with Kidney Trouble for years, and after using less than two bottles of "5 DROPS" I am now entirely well and I give "5 DROPS" the praise for my cure. —The porch around the Clark building on the corner of Third and C street is being removed. It has been in place 35 years Time has made changes in the old building, and more in the city. This structure was built for a dance hall and a saloon. The principal hotel, the Luna House, stood just across the street. Even the Clearwater river has encroached upon the business portion of the city in that time. One street, A, was washed into the river years ago. The railroad takes B street and Main street has changed from C to D and now to E street.

—Twenty-one cargoes of wheat for Europe, Africa and Japan, two steamship cargoes of flour for the Orient and a steamship cargo of flour for Siberia is not a bad record for the new year to start in with. This is Portland's record for 1900 to date, says the Oregonian, and is more wheat and flour than has been shipped from all other Northwestern ports combined since last October. The 21 grain ship was the County of Merioneth, clearing Saturday for Cape Town, South Africa, with 60,520 bushels of wheat valued at $33,500. This is the sixth vessel clearing Portland for South Africa this season.

—The North Dakota man, Senator Roach, who purchased 2500 head of cattle on Camas prairie a couple of weeks ago, is now in Oregon after 5000 more of young cattle. He will ship the cattle in May to his ranges along the Yellowstone and Missouri rivers in Montana and Dakota. He usually pays $18 and $26 for yearlings and 2-year-olds, and when they are 3 years of age ships to Chicago getting from $50 to $60 per head and often more. Of the Pacific slope he says: "Cattle raising here is a very profitable industry as each cow earns $18 a head in raising a calf. No feeding is required here and so this $18 is almost clear. In Montana and Dakota we can't raise cattle so cheaply, as the seasons are too severe, and the calves are liable to die of cold before becoming strong enough to travel about."

—We are to have, according to the forecasts of Elder Hicks for March, a little warm weather and some moisture and snow about now, followed by a cool spell. Stormy between the 6th and 10th. Electrical storms on the 11th or a little later followed by equinoctial hurricanes and gales along the coasts. A blizzard and boreal storm may happen in some sections along about the 17th, and more storms a day or two later. If the weather should be warm and sultry some violence and danger may arise in localities. Rain and snow will likely appear around the 25th. Some wicked tropical storms over wide areas the 29th, and may be accompanied by one of the most destructive sleet storms of the winter. April and May, upon the whole, will be favorable weather, but some Venus frosts and floods are to be feared in May.

—There is a great famine in India, and 59,000,000 of people are effected, of whom 22,000,000 are in British territory, and 27,000,000 in the native states. There are now about 3,200,000 people on the relief lists, and the cost of relief work to the end of March will not be less than $13,000,000. The rains will not come until July, if they come then. Between now and then, in spite of all the authorities can do, there will be an immense mortality, especially among children and old people. It is safe to say that there will be more actual suffering and probably much greater loss of life in the famine regions of India than in South Africa because of the war now raging there between Boers and British. Yet few outside of India are giving any thought to what is going on there, while nearly everybody is taking a deep interest in events in South Africa, and is affecting painfully by the continuing reports of men killed in battle which fill the dispatches. Pestilence and famine may slay their thousands where war slays its hundreds, but a greater measure of sympathy is given the smaller number who die on the field of battle. During the last Indian famine, four years ago the Chicago Tribune says hundreds of thousands of pounds were subscribed in England to relieve those effected by it. There are no subscriptions now. He who has any money to spare gives it to be expended in caring for the British soldiers in South Africa. So the British authorities in India have no resources save their own with which to make their fight against famine, an enemy as formidable as the Boers and ignorant of any of the amenities of modern warfare. It the hoped-for July rains should not come the situation in India will be frightful, and may have more serious consequences for the British Empire than the Transvaal war can have.

A Country Lass,

Health in her beaming eyes, health in her glowing cheek, health in her merry laugh. Yet country air and country hours can't save her from the common experience of women—an experience which dulls the eye, pales the cheek, and turns the laugh to a sigh. Womanly ills come to almost all. But for these ills there is help and healing in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It regulates the periods, stops unhealthy drains, cures inflammation, ulceration and female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

"Miss Ella Sapp, of Jamestown, Guilford Co., N. C., writes: 'I had suffered three years or more at monthly periods. It seemed as though I would die with pain in my back and stomach. I could not stand without fainting; had given up all hope of ever being cured, when one of my friends insisted upon my trying Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. With but little faith I tried it, and before I had taken half a bottle I felt better—had better appetite and slept better. Now I am happy to say I am entirely cured, and all done in two months' time, when all other medicines had failed to do any good at all."

Biliousness is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

—The grading of the new portage road at The Dalles will be completed by the first of April. The steel will be laid immediately thereafter. Lower rates will then be made to Spokane and Snake river points in order to secure the grain of this Inland empire. Attorney Graves, treasurer of this company, Columbia River & Navigation Co., says: "We already have one boat on the river and two more building. The road will be ready for operation by June 1. Our grain rate to Umatilla Junction is $2 50, the present rate is $3.30; from Blalock our rate is $2 25, the present rate $3; from Riparia, Snake river, our rate is $2 85, the present rate $3.80. Ultimately our road will haul the bulk of the cereal products of the country."

If troubled with rheumatism, give Chamberlain's Pain Balm a trial. It will not cost you a cent if it does no good. One application will relieve the pain. It also cures sprains and bruises in one-third the time required by any other treatment. Cuts, burns, frostbites, quinsey, pains in the side and chest, glandular and other swellings are quickly cured by applying it. Every bottle warranted. Price 25 and 50 cts. Sold by all druggists.

NORTH COAST LIMITED.

Title of the New Train Arranged by the Northern Pacific--It will Carry an Observation Car Between Portland and St. Paul--Modern Improvements.

General Passenger Agent Charles S. Fee of the Northern Pacific railroad, who reached Portland Thursday, announces that April 29 his company will establish a double daily passenger train service between Portland, Puget Sound and the Twin cities, St. Paul and Minneapolis.

The morning train from St. Paul will leave at 8:55, after the arrival of the fast trains from Chicago, St. Louis and the east, running by the way of Butte, and will reach Portland at 7 a. m. The corresponding train will leave Portland at 11:30 a. m. by the way of Butte, and reach at St. Paul at 2 p. m. and will be known as the "North Coast Limited."

Train No. 3 will leave St. Paul as at present, 10:35 p. m., arriving at Portland at 8 p. m. Train No. 4 will leave Portland at 11:30 p. m. and arrive at St. Paul at 7:45 a. m. Both 3 and 4 will run by the way of Helena. The schedule will continue in effect until November 1, and longer if the business justifies it. Trains 3 and 4 will carry the same equipment as present 1 and 2, first and second-class coaches, Pullman first-class and Pullman tourist sleepers and dining cars, with the usual mail, express and baggage cars. These trains will carry standard and tourist sleepers from and to St. Louis by the Billings route, the "Burlington," thus offering the public a service to the Missouri river country, St. Louis and intermediate territory superior to anything heretofore established.

The "North Coast Limited" will be one of the handsomest and most complete passenger trains in the country. With its new 70-foot baggage and express cars, combination smoker, new first-class coaches, new Pullman tourist sleepers, handsomely upholstered in dark green leather, thoroughly modern first-class sleepers and elegant dining cars, all wide vestibuled, the train might be considered complete. Its chief attraction however, will be the thorough lighting of the train throughout by electricity, including two berth lights for reading in each section and an observation car more complete than anything of the kind heretofore constructed. This car will be 70 feet in length, with a wide and handsomely railed rear platform, will have 14 upholstered plush chairs, with writing desk and reading table in the rear end; a carefully selected library of 125 volumes; bath room, barber shop and buffet in the center, while in the rear, in addition to toilet rooms for men and women, there will be two smoking and card rooms, each furnished with six comfortable chairs and a folding table. These smoking or card rooms will be shut off from the remainder of the car and so thoroughly ventilated that those addicted to the weed may indulge at leasure without attracting undue attention.

The Northern Pacific management realize that for short night runs, as for instance between St. Paul and Chicago, where there is no opportunity to enjoy the really interesting scenery, a library car meets the wants of the traveler, but on a transcontinental journey of 2000 miles or more, where the passengers hope to see something of the country through which he is passing, perhaps for the first time, they hold that the observation car is the car par excellence and that nothing else will take its place. The "North Coast Limited" of the Northern Pacific will be run exclusively in the interest of passengers, and, as a consequence, the observation car will be kept on the end of the train for the benefit of the passengers who have paid their money and to the disgust possibly of the "private-car" tourists and railroad official who is so frequently in evidence. President Mellen says that neither his own private car nor the private cars of other officials or people will be hauled on this train.

Thus for the first time the transcontinental traveler is to have, and without extra fare or charge, daily transcontinental passenger service absolutely superior to anything heretofore offered him either in the West or in the East.

The Northern Pacific people feel confident their enterprise will be appreciated by the public, and that the large business they have heretofore enjoyed will be greatly increased.

The Northern Pacific passenger business of the past year has been very satisfactory, and it is showing a good increase right along. It will not seem out of place that the Northern Pacific railway should inaugurate this service, as they did the dining car service especially when it is borne in mind that the earnings of the passenger trains for the past year show a greater revenue per train than any other train.

THE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

Latah County Institute was held in High School Room, Genesee, March 3, 1900. The afternoon session was called to order by Mrs. Mattie Headington, president of the association. Miss Maude Burdic was appointed secretary of the meeting.

All were made to feel at home by Prof. Cobbs' address of welcome, which was responded to by the president.

The body of the program was opened by a paper on "How I Interest Parents in My School," written by Mrs. Cecelia Spurbeck. It was a well written paper, worthy the consideration of every teacher present.

Mr. R. C. Robbins then brought out some excellent points in favor of the new readers. The general verdict of the teachers present was that "The Stepping Stones to Literature" is the best system of readers ever placed in the Idaho schools. F. D. Hasbrouck added a few thoughts.

"How to Teach Composition Effectively" was discussed in a spirited paper by Mr. Ben. C. Camp. Mrs. Headington and Dr. Padelford added valuable suggestions.

Mr. W. M. Welch gave an interesting address on "How Much the Teacher Should Use the Text Book," favoring the use of the text book as a guide but not as a master. This elicited a vigorous debate from several. The participants were: Miss Duthie, Miss McFarland, Prof. Cobbs, Mr. Hasbrouck, Mr. Camp, and Mrs. Headington.

Miss Burdic read a paper on primary work, "How Can We Interest Little Ones."

A paper on "The New Course of Study," was written by Mr. Oylear. The writer having been taken sick after reaching the association, the paper was read by Prof. Cobbs. The value of a course of study was well set forth.

"The Schools From a Trustee's Standpoint" was responded to by the president of the Genesee school board, Mr. Krum. He advanced the idea of a state system, and advocated pensioning teachers the same as soldiers, which was heartily received.

"Where Does the Teacher's Supervision End," was taken up in an interesting talk by Mr. F. D. Hasbrouck. He made plain the idea that a teacher's supervision did not end in that of the lessons only, but extended to every phase of character building and every act of life, and that the fate of our nation is effected more or less by the teacher's supervision.

President Blanton of the University then favored the association with a general talk relative to some of the preceding topics and discussions. He advocated one good central school, supported by the money which now supplies several surrounding smaller schools; children conveyed to and from school.

Announcement was made and a hearty invitation extended by the president to all to attend the evening session.

We were then favored by an instrumental solo by Miss Gussie Rosenstein, which was received with hearty applause. Adjournment was taken until 8 o'clock.

The evening session was held at the Cong'l church. It opened with a paper by Miss Duthie on "Language Work in the 3rd, 4th and 5th Grades" The paper was well prepared and met the approval of the educators present. This was followed by a duet by Mess. Brewer and English.

Paper by Miss French giving some interesting points in regard to "Number Work in the 4th and 5th Grades," was then read. Gussie Rosenstein again rendered an instrumental solo, followed by a baritone solo by Mr. A. P. Hamlin.

Dr. Padelford, teacher of English in the University, read a well prepared paper on "Some Evils and Their Remedies." The paper showed wide reading and great care in compilation. Chorus by home choir.

Pres. Blanton held his audience enrapped while delivering his practical and scholarly address, "The Gospel of Labor." It is to be regretted that many, owing to the inclemency of the weather, were unable to be present, thus failing to glean the many gems of thought presented in this address.

The program was closed by another baritone solo by A. P. Hamlin, and all departed feeling they had gained much.

A STOREHOUSE OF INFORMATION.—This is an age of Encyclopedias, and their value is not to be questioned, but the average person is far too busy to spend time in pouring over encyclopedias, and will consult a dictionary a hundred times to an encyclodedia once. Nor will much be lost either, if the dictionary is Webster's International Dictionary, which contains a wealth of information, making it really an encyclopedia, condensed, it is true, but all the more valuable for that very reason. In fact, the International should be considered a necessity in every family (though the style in which it is presented makes it a luxury as well), and a saving of three cents a day for a year will provide more than enough money to purchase it. The publishers, G. & C. Merriam Co., of Springfield, Mass., cheerfully send free a prospectus containing specimen pages, in itself well worth a careful reading.

A Fiendish Attack.

An attack was lately made on C. F. Collier of Cherokee, Iowa, that nearly proved fatal. It came through his kidneys. His back got so lame he could not stoop without great pain, nor sit in a chair unless propped by cushions. No remedy helped him until he tried Electric Bitters which effected such a wonderful change that he writes he feels like a new man This marvelous medicine cures backache and kidney trouble, purifies the blood and builds up your health. Only 50c at Kennedy's drug store.

A Good Cough Medicine for Children.

"I have no hesitancy in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says F. P. Moran, a well known and popular baker, of Petersburg, Va. "We have given it to our children when troubled with bad coughs, also whooping cough, and it has always given perfect satisfaction. It was recommended to me by a druggist as it contained no opium or other harmful drug." Sold by all druggists.

He Fooled the Surgeons.

All doctors told Renick Hamilton, of West Jefferson, O., after suffering 18 months from Rectal Fistula, he would die unless a costly operation was performed; but he cured himself with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. the best in the world. Surest pile cure on earth. 25c a box at Kennedy's.

MARCH AND THE LION.

Something Better Than the Old Saw.

The saying about the lion and the lamb in March often proves false, but there is another and better one which is litterally true. When March comes in and finds you taking Hood's Sarsaparilla to purify, enrich and vitalize your blood, you may expect when it goes out, that it will leave you free from that tired feeling and with none of the boils, pimples and eruptions which manifest themselves because of impure blood in the spring. If you have not already begun taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for your spring medicine, we advise you to begin today. We assure you it will make you feel better all through the coming summer.

The Moxee artesian basin, lying about seven miles east of North Yakima, is the scene of activity not noticeable in many sections of the United States. There are 20 flowing wells spouting forth great volumes of warm water, and many parties are working to secure additional flows in the district. The wells average 600 feet in depth and have been drilled at great expense. They constitute an independent water supply, which, to an irrigation farmer, means permanent crops, increase in land values, and freedom from corporations in the matter of annual rental on water. In most of the irrigated districts of the arid west water is worth $25 to $50 an acre for a right to use it, and from $1 to $3 an acre per annum for rental. Under the independent artesian well system the original cost of sinking the well is all the expense, hence numerous farmers of the Moxee are trying to secure this precious boon. The water has a uniform temperature of 77 degrees, and is relished for culinary purposes as well as by animals.

France in Amity.

Paris, France, beyond a doubt, is sincerely anxious for the handgrip of friendship of the United States and not only is this true of the government, but of all responsible French politicians as well. The presentation of the Lafayette dollar to President Loubet today furnished another unmistakable proof of the existence of this feeling. Reference to the event in the French journals of all political shades has been invariably of the most sympathetic character.

Another expression of the feeling in the official world has appeared in the government's mouthpiece, which after reviewing the inception of the idea, concluded by saying: "All these demonstrations form a veritable cult, consecrated by the Americans to the illustrious citizen who aided them to win their independence, which does the greatest honor to the people of the United States and deeply touches the French people. If there are in the world two peoples made to love and comprehend one another, it is surely those of the greatest republics which exist on the face of the globe."

The news of the capitulation of General Cronje arrived on Mardi Gras and served as an occasion for a demonstration against the British.

The turn of the tide in favor of Great Britain in the Transvaal has produced a painful impression here, although all of the best organs, while eulogizing the heroic conduct of Cronje's army, also pay tribute to the splendid soldierly qualities shown by Lord Roberts' and Lord Buller's troops. A majority of the newspapers urge England to seize the present opportunity, now that her military prestige is restored, to make peace on the basis of the independence of the Transvaal.

Alabama Negroes Stirring.

Montgomery, Ala., March 6.—Race trouble is feared near Letchatchie, 25 miles south of this city. It is reported that 1000 negroes are congregated and are threatening. It is said that some white men went to the house of Jim Cross, a negro, called him to the door and shot him. Afterwards the crowd shot his wife, son and daughter. Only a few days ago Sam Powell, white, was shot by a negro in the same neighborhood. The negro was taken from the sheriff and hanged by a mob.

Robbery Is Legalized.

New York, March 6.—Comptroller Coler has attacked the office of the corporation counsel in a way that is likely to create a storm. He charged wholesale robbery and did not hesitate to say that bribery is rampant among the city office-holders who he avers seem to have made the trade of theft respectable, and thereby avoid the fate of the late William Tweed. He said: "Robbery of the city of New York is now perfectly legalized."

Mrs. Stanford Is Quite Ill.

New York, March 6.—Mrs. Leland Stanford is dangerously ill at the Fifth Avenue hotel. Mrs. Stanford came to this city from the west two weeks ago to attend to business affairs. Ten days ago Mrs. Stanford contracted a cold while out driving, and the next day was confined to her rooms. Physicians were sent for and advised caution, although at the time the illness was not thought to be serious. Mrs. Stanford, in spite of remedies, however, grew worse.

Four Feet of Snow.

Rochester, N. Y., March 6.—Forty-three and one-half inches of snow in 63 hours is the new record established here. The railroads are recovering from the biggest fight against the elements they have had in many years.

Socialists in the Transvaal, composed of all nationalities, including Englishmen, are reported as fighting with the Boer armies.

MINES AND MINING NEWS

OUR NORTHWESTERN MINES.

Items Gleaned From the Late Reports—All Districts Are Being Developed—A Prosperous Year Is Predicted—Mining Notes and Personals.

An effort was made last week in Butte to blow up a shaft being worked by Isaac Brown on the Washington placer claim, which is owned by the Butte & Boston. A box of dynamite was found in the shaft, and near it lay some burned fuse. It is thought that the parties who tried to blow up the shaft forgot to put the cap on the fuse. The watchman of the property ran a man off the ground last night, but was unable to identify him. The Butte Boston is fighting Brown in the district court.

REPUBLIC.

The Princess Maud winze is still being sunk in high-grade ore.

The east drift on the Gold Ledge is in 125 feet, and machinery is to be put on.

The winze in the Sain Poil mine below the No. 2 tunnel is down about 16 feet.

At the Quilp native gold leaf has again made its appearance on the 100-foot level.

Water is coming in at the face of the drift in the lower level of the Golden Lion and Little Four.

The big boiler for the Tom Thumb hoist has reached the claim and is being placed in position.

At the Quilp there is considerable activity in preparation for the installation of the machinery.

James J. Hill of the Great Northern says that Republic mines can undoubtedly be worked at a profit.

The hoist at the new Butte & Boston shaft was steamed up last week. The shaft is now down about 50 feet, with the bottom in hard ground.

The ore chute on the 150-foot level of the Tom Thumb mine still continues on the pay chute, which is reported from the mine to be about 190 feet long.

The shaft at the Gopher is now down 153 feet of vertical depth from the collar of the shaft, and it is supposed will strike the vein at a depth of 220 feet.

The contract for building the new 200-ton mill for the Republic Consolidated Gold Mining Company has been let to a Salt Lake man, and the grading for it has begun.

Superintendent Miller of the Ben Hur states that the north and south drifts from the crosscut on the 230-foot level were being pushed slowly ahead. The rock is very hard.

At the Republic reduction works mill the roof is completed and the walls are nearly so. Many of the windows are in, and the structure has already a fine appearance. The rear is divided into three stories.

The tunnel on the Knob Hill is in almost 400 feet. It is expected the ledge will be cut in about 40 feet. The winze is down to a depth of 60 feet. The ledge is four feet in width and the ore averages $30 per ton.

The smokestack on the Mountain Lion mill has been placed in position. It is 60 feet in height and six feet in diameter. The Mountain Lion has one of the most complete and convenient assay offices in the state of Washington.

Better days are dawning for Republic. The camp is waking to greater activity. Mines are resuming development, machinery is starting, companies are announcing that new machinery is to be purchased. The busy time that had been expected this winter, but which failed to materialize, is coming at last, and spring and summer will see the camp again making long strides toward prosperity and dividends. Everything of late has tended to encourage the mine owners. Mills are to be built upon such large scales as positively indicate the confidence which men of large capital have in the camp. When the big ones become confident the little ones follow suit. So it is that mines are starting which a few weeks ago seemed to have become permanently idle. Development is bringing every property upon which depth has been attained rapidly to the front. All things point positively to the fact that Republic is a camp of happy destiny.

MINING NOTES.

The Silver King of Kellogg, Idaho, has stopped for lack of water.

In the Warrens district, Idaho county, an important strike is reported to have been made on the Iola.

Stratton's Independence, the famous Cripple Creek mine, paid a $480,000 dividend Feb. 15, making a total to date of $1,440,000.

Work on the North Franklin at Mullan has been suspended for the time being. This is the new claim near the Morning mine which was located a few weeks ago.

The announcement has been made on excellent authority that the Speculator mine at Butte has passed into the hands of the Amalgamated Copper Co. for the stated consideration of $2,000,000.

It is reported from Sumpter that the main ledge of the Diadem has been cut on the 80-foot level, 40 feet from the shaft. It is said to be seven feet wide and carries values of $300 to the ton in gold.

W. H. Fulmer, a miner employed by the Bunker Hill Company, was killed recently in the Stemwinder mine. The accident was caused by a falling body of rock weighing several hundred pounds.

One of the results of an important mining deal which has just been negotiated by Thomas Maloney, secretary of the Drummers' Development Company, will be the erection of a smelter at Curlew, where the company's properties are located.

A rich strike has been made on the Iowa at a depth of 10 feet, of ore that assays $19.80 across a 7-foot ledge. This claim is one of a group of 10 owned by Henry Murray of Grangeville, and is located on Lightning creek, about two miles down the south fork from the Dewey and on the east side of the river.

Samples from the Golconda, exhibited in Levinger's drug store at Baker City, are attracting wide attention. The largest is about the size of a man's head and is valued at $300. It contains two streaks of free-milling ore with gold plainly visible to the naked eye, and is pronounced by experienced mining men as the richest ore ever exhibited in Baker City.

The annual report of the United Verde mine, owned principally by Senator W. A. Clark, for 1899, shows a profit for the year of $3,735,522. The dividends paid aggregated $3,000,000.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

The St. Eugene compressor has started up, with an increased force.

The ore in the Butcher Boy, in Deadwood camp, is improving as depth is being reached.

Shipments from the North Star have begun, the tramway is completed and East Kootenay's bonanza is a producer.

Recent work has demonstrated that the Grey Eagle at Phoenix has the same ledge as the Knob Hill and Old Ironsides.

A buoyant feeling prevails in the Slocan since the labor war ended. Many mines are resuming and Slocan Lake district development and shipments will soon be in full swing.

In Boundary district are found some of the largest copper-gold ore bodies in the world. They measure ore by the acre. Greenwood City is the center of the district, and is rapidly growing in importance.

At Sandon the Miners' Union says they "declared the strike off." Mine-owners say they "ended the lockout." But no matter which is right the feeling of satisfaction is general that the labor difficulty is settled. The mines are employing men whom they know to be good and reliable miners without regard to union affiliations, and the wage scale is $3.25 per day. The unions have indorsed that price as the union scale. All told there may be from 800 to 1000 men employed before June, which will be less than half the number that would be required if the properties all had on full forces.

Manager Frank Robbins of the North Star mine, in East Kootenay, says that the new branch line of the Crow's Nest Pass Railway is completed to the mine, a distance of 21 miles from the main line. The North Star has commenced shipping, and is sending 75 to 100 tons of ore daily to the smelter at trail. The ore is silver-lead and 40 to 50 ounces of silver per ton. It is one of the largest mines in East Kootenay, and carries a blanket lead similar to those of Leadville, Col. The completion of the road is equally beneficial to the Sullivan mine, which will shortly commence shipping. The Sullivan lies on a hill opposite the North Star.

LABOR NOTES.

Bookbinders have started a monthly magazine, published at Washington.

A butchering machine has been invented by which 30 men can cut up 30,000 sheep and 100 cattle in 60 hours.

Four thousand cigarmakers are on strike in Cairo, Egypt. Employers have formed a combine and refuse to yield.

Trade unionists of South Omaha have placed a municipal ticket in the field under the name of Independent Labor party.

The Tribune, a non-partisan newspaper, has been established at Newcastle, Pa., as the organ of the Trades Assembly in that city.

Amalgamation of the socialist labor party and the social democratic party is becoming more assured each day. Practically all of the leading workers as well as newspapers in both parties have declared in favor of union, and, besides Cleveland, a united front is presented to the common enemy in Clinton, Mass., and Milwaukee, Wis., the parties having combined in those cities.

Razor Was Too Dull.

Oakland, Cal., March 6.—With his throat gashed to the windpipe and both wrists nearly severed by self-inflicted wounds, Ethelbert F. Smith, who has wealthy relatives in New York and Japan, was found on a West Oakland flat. He had attempted suicide with an old razor. His wounds are serious, but he will recover. He recently returned from the Orient and was en route to his brother's home at St. James, Long Island. Dissipation was the cause of his act.

Highbinder War Renewed.

San Francisco, March 6.—The war of the Tongs in Chinatown has been renewed by the murder of two prominent Chinese merchants in this city and the wounding of a third man, all members of the Sam Yup organization. The victims of the outbreak are Poon Gee, Low Soon and Long Chou, members of the pork packing firm of Tuck Wo & Co. The two first named were killed and the third seriously wounded.

Soldier Dead Aboard.

New York, March 6.—The United States transport McClellan has arrived from San Juan de Puerto Rico, Santiago, Guantanamo and Baracao with 21 cabin passengers, 15 undertakers and civilians and 101 bodies of dead soldiers. The bodies of the soldier dead were collected at Guantanamo, Santiago, Manzanillo and other ports.

THE WAR IN SOUTH AFRICA.

NO BIG BATTLE IMMINENT.

A Rumor That the Boers Opened Peace Negotiations Denied—General Buller Makes a Statement—War Interest Declining.

New York, March 6.—The Tribune's cable says:

London, March 6.—There is no confirmation of the Lorenzo Marquez rumor that President Kruger has joined President Steyn and is on the point of opening peace negotiations. The Times in its afternoon edition yesterday announced that Kruger has left Pretoria for an unknown destination, and that it was conjectured that a conference between the presidents of the two republics would take place. There was no official information respecting overtures for peace. Members of parliament were not disposed to attach importance to the rumor, and military men said that the probable object of the presidential conference was the adoption of measures of defense against the advance of Roberts' army.

Bloemfontein can not be defended, but there are lines of hills at Vet and Valsh rivers where a strong stand can be made and passage of the Vaal river can be contested on the way to Pretoria.

Colesburg district has been entirely abandoned by the Boers, and Clements' scouts are now near Orange river.

Gatacre's forces are moving toward Stormberg, and there has been renewed skirmishing near Dordrecht. Fighting is reported to be imminent in the Free State on the line of Roberts' advance, but the extent of Dutch concentration is unknown.

Leyds denied that he had received any news to the effect that the siege of Mafeking has been lifted by the Boers, or that Bloemfontein has been occupied by British.

Roberts is at Osfontein, preparing to continue his advance eastward. It is generally understood that his first objective will be Bloemfontein, but he keeps his own counsel, and his plan of operations may prove to be quite different from that fixed upon by popular opinion.

The Boers are apparently rallying with their accustomed ability to repair a temporary reverse and Great Britain has yet to test their force as a defensive power under the new conditions of warfare.

Outside the meeting of the presidents there is no new indication of any change in the situation. Telegraphing from Osfontein today, thanking the lord mayor of Liverpool for his congratulations in behalf of that city, Lord Roberts says:

"I trust her majesty's soldiers in this country will gain such further successes as will speedily restore freedom and prosperity to South Africa."

Boers Left Two Guns Behind.

New York, March 6.—A dispatch to the Tribune from London says:

General Buller in a dispatch from Ladysmith makes it clear that the Boers decided to raise the siege of that town immediately after General Cronje was at the mercy of Roberts at Paardeberg. The advance in the Natal was then only opposed to allow time for the big guns and ammunition and stores to be safely removed north and west. That the Boers were not completely successful in carrying out this intention was owing to the fact that they were more or less demoralized by Buller's victorious attack on Tuesday. After that battle, orders were evidently given for a hasty retreat to the passes with the result that a large quantity of ammunition and two guns were left behind. Virtually speaking, the Natal is now clear of the republic forces.

Public interest in the war is already declining since the end is considered a foregone conclusion. Tedious as may be the process by which it will be reached, the relief of two garrisons and a complete collapse of the Dutch plan of campaign leaves Roberts at liberty to concentrate his forces, with transportation the chief difficulty to overcome.

Review of Trade.

R. G. Dun & Company's weekly review of trade for the past week says:

Besides the 881 commercial failures for $9,931,048, which are reported, there were in February six banking failures for $620,121, and receivers were appointed for the United States Flour Milling Company with $25,000,000 of stock and $15,000,000 of bonds authorized at its organization last April, and for the Third Avenue Railway Company of New York, after liens for several millions had been placed upon the property. Unless separated from such events commercial failures could not be compared with benefit. In most of the branches the comparison with previous years is encouraging and analysis brings out in strong light the remarkably low average of liabilities in the smaller failures which constitute the great majority, indicating sound business conditions and unusually satisafctory collections.

The rise of cotton to 9 1-2 cents, the highest point since January, 1893, has done much to stimulate business, drawing from southern plantations and country towns more than double the quantity marketed last year, distributing millions to producers, whose purchases of supplies are thus increased, and swelling beyond all expectation the purchases for export.

Heavy selling of cotton by people who had none, but felt certain that 9 cents would mark the limit of the rise, had placed them quite at the mercy of holders. But the markets both for goods and for cotton have been affected all over the world and the country will reap some benefit in a larger excess of merchandise exports over imports. The market for goods has been pushed to greater activity though they have risen only 3 per cent since the year began, while material has risen over 25 per cent.

Except across the ocean, where events in South Africa caused nearly all business to be forgotten, changes in the stock market rank next in financial interest to the rise of cotton. It was a revelation of the appreciation in which American railway stocks are held to see them strongly supported, with the Third Avenue falling to about 50, and Flour Milling dismissed to the hands of receivers.

A small rise in wheat, though the price is quite low, sufficed to call from the farms 4,105,661 bushels, against 3,195,437 last year, so as to indicate that supplies are not nearly exhausted. Exports from Atlantic ports were small of the past week (flour included), only 1,306,386 bushels, against 4,096,984 last year, and in four weeks from both coasts exports have been 11,639,260 bushels, against 14,823,373.

Corn rose 3-4c during the past week, while wheat declined 1 1-4c.

The iron and steel industry continues the greatest weekly output ever known, even while men speak of it as waiting for more definite assurances about the future. Prices of pig yielded a little. Billets have been sold at $33 at Pittsburg. For most finished products prices are stronger than a week ago, bars and sheets being strengthened by large business, while only plates appear weaker, $21 being quoted for sizes not the widest.

Coke is scarce and higher in spite of the largest output ever known, and the wages of hands have been raised 12 1-2 per cent to the highest ever paid.

The decline in hides at Chicago continues, being over 2 per cent the past week, and 9 per cent from the highest point in December. Leather has declined only 3 per cent from the highest point and part of it only in exceptionally large transactions, presumably meant to be private. Boots and shoes have yielded little and many dealers ended their eastern trip without buying, and intend to wait until April, as they did last year, when they paid rather less than the price asked in February.

In the Senate.

The bill providing government for Hawaii passed the senate on viva voce vote Thursday.

The Spokane building bill has a good place on the senate calendar. The favorable report, which was submitted by the committee on public buildings and grounds, was written by Senator Turner, who is a member of that committee.

The senate held a brief session Saturday, adjourning on account of the death of Representative Epes of Virginia. During the session Senator Ross spoke in opposition to the seating of M. S. Quay and Senator Teller spoke in criticism of the conference report upon the currency bill. A number of private pension bills were passed during the day.

The senate committee on the Philippines decided Monday to report the bill introduced by Senator Spooner for the control of the Philippines. Senator Lodge, chairman of the committee, made a report to the senate. The bill is as follows: "That when the insurrection against the sovereignty and authority of the United States in the Philippine islands acquired from Spain by treaty concluded at Paris on the 10th day of December, 1898, shall have been completely suppressed by the military and naval forces of the United States, all military, civil and judicial powers necessary to govern the said islands, shall, until otherwise provided for by congress, be vested in such person and persons and shall be exercised in such manner as the president of the United States shall direct for maintaining and protecting the inhabitants of the said islands in the free enjoyment of their liberty, property and religion."

Hon. Thomas R. Bard, recently elected Senator from California, was presented to the senate by his colleague, Senator Perkins. Later the oath was administered by President Pro Tem Frye.

When the routine business had been concluded, Senator Aldrich called up the currency bill conference report and Senator Teller resumed his speech begun last Saturday. It was his opinion that the proposed legislation would be disastrous to the country.

At the conclusion of his arguments, Senator Gallinger called up the pension appropriation bill. The measure appropriates $145,245,230.

In the House.

Wilbur Stewart, a newspaper publisher of Mullan, Idaho, Thursday continued his testimony before the house committee on military affairs concerning the labor troubles in Idaho. Asked as to the death of one Johnson, a prisoner in the "bull pen," he said Johnson was taken before the "inquisition" and an effort was made to learn from him the names of those who had participated in the riot. When Johnson returned to the pen he expressed fears that he would be hanged. He tried to kill himself with Indian clubs, and later, while fleeing from an imaginary foe, he was shot through the head and killed by a guard. The witness said that Johnson was mentally sound before being put in the "pen" and was pronounced insane after being there. Other prisoners, he said, were in fear of being shot and many thought the place was to be set on fire. There were about 350 prisoners and about 1000 to 1200 soldiers in the Coeur d'Alene district. He expressed the opinion that there had been no occasion for declaring martial law.

Investigation as to the conduct of the military in the Coeur d'Alene district occupied the entire day. Representatives Sulzer, Hay and Dick were absent. Justice Flanagan resumed his testimony. He said he had been a member of the state legislature of Idaho and introduced an arbitration law.

Moses M. Simmons continued his testimony before the house committee on military affairs in the Coeur d'Alene investigation Monday. He testified to the circumstances of his removal from office shortly after the mining demonstration, and his arrest and imprisonment in the county jail for five days.

Saving Rough Fodder.

A few years ago not many farmers in the corn-growing States thought of saving their corn stover, though perhaps they turned cattle in among it, to eat a little and tramp it down. Where small grain was grown, the straw was thought to have very little food value, though some kept their stock half starved on it. Eastern farmers, who were thought to be very saving, seldom fed out bean straw or pea straw. Now all these are saved, and while they need more grain with them than does clover or other good hay, it is thought economy to feed any or all of these, and by adding grain, keep the animals in better condition at less cost than when hay is fed, and at the same time add to the value of the manure made on the farm. Many varieties of weeds also make good rough forage if mown down and cured before they have ripened their seeds, and to do so helps to keep the land clean, and preserve the fertility in it for more useful crops.—Exchange.

Barrel Carrier.

The cut shows a very handy device for carrying barrels of apples, vegetables or of any farm produce. When barrels must be handled carefully, two men must take hold of each barrel, for it is an unhandy thing to get hold of. The holder is made of iron rods by a blacksmith, with handles and straps. It can be opened wide and slipped down over a barrel, then brought together under it, as shown in the figure. It can then be picked up and carried away with ease. Where there are large numbers of barrels to be handled such a device will prove very effective.—New England Farmer.

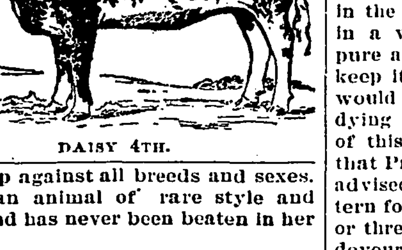
HANDY BARREL CARRIER.

Wire Fences.

The extraordinary demand for iron and steel products, and consequent high prices, is making wire fences cost much more than a few years ago, but we are not sure but they are even now the cheapest fences one can build, considering durability as well as first cost. Many use second-hand gas pipe for posts, and we think there is nothing better if they can be bought direct from companies who take them up because of pinhole leaks that make them unfit for conveying gas, but in no way injure them for use as posts. They can be found in almost all sizes, from the inch pipe, large enough for the wire netting for poultry yards, up to a size that will carry a heavy wire for cattle fence, and if painted occasionally are neat and durable. They would help to remove a danger sometimes feared from wire fences, the conduction of lightning. The first iron post would be very likely to ground the current.—American Cultivator.

Shorthorn Heifer.

The Shorthorn heifer, Daisy 4th, is a roan, calved Jan. 1, 1897, her sire being Prince Victor 69324, dam Daisy by Crown Prince 60564. She is owned by Mr. Wm. Heaton, Lostock Junction, Bolton, England. At the Royal Show at Birmingham, she was first in her class, and reserve for the championship as best cow or heifer. At the Durham County show she was first in her class, and won the 50 guineas challenge cup against all breeds and sexes. She is an animal of rare style and merit, and has never been beaten in her class.



DAISY 4TH.

Eight-Hour Days on the Farm.

The use of machinery on the farm is very nearly reducing the hours of labor to eight hours a day. Very few ask hired help to work over ten hours now, and when at work with horses and machinery eight hours of labor is as much as ought to be expected of the team, and the teamster expects to do but little more excepting to give the team the care it should have, and to keep the machine in order. Even this last is sometimes delegated to some other person, if there are knives to sharpen, as on the mowing machine and reaper, for not every good teamster is handy at the grindstone and some have but little mechanical ingenuity, so that though they may learn to run a machine while it is in good order, they can not put it in order if anything goes wrong.

Facts to Think About.

"Think of this for a moment, you who ship butter, and wonder what all this racket about oleo means," says the Atlanta Market Reporter. "Including 1888 and 1898 and half of 1899, just eleven and one-half years, the sale of oleo has reached over 619,000,000 pounds. The first six years the total was 250,000,000 pounds, the last five and a half years 368,000,000 pounds, or an average of about 62,000,000 pounds a year. When you count up the number of cows replaced on the basis of 200 pounds of butter a cow, you can see where the dairy interests will be in another year or two. Butter gets one freight and express rate, oleo gets a much lower one. Every item of economy in getting it on the market is in favor, of course, because a "trust is behind the imitation, and the producers of genuine butter are scattered from Maine to Mexico."

Charcoal.

One of the little things which are not absolutely essential, but which the keeper of a flock of hens will be well paid for preparing, is charcoal. The hens will not consume a great quantity of it, but they seem to need a certain amount of it, and the good effects of it are admitted by all.

Charcoal is not usually kept for sale in the villages, and the majority of poultry-keepers are put to the necessity of sending away for it or of manufacturing it. An article which will fully answer the purpose can be made from corncobs, and this is the material which generally is made use of in the West.

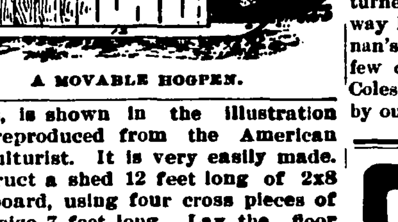
Rake a lot of cobs in a loose heap where they will burn freely. Let them burn until they are charred through, but before they are reduced to ashes smother the flame with oats. Use no water for putting out the blaze. The half-burned oats will not be wasted, as the hens will eat it with as much relish as that which has not been touched by the fire. Crush the charcoal and constantly keep up a small box of it in the poultry house.—Farmer's Voice.

Stock-Raising Farmer Successful.

Corn, oats and wheat are the main crops grown in Illinois. Corn is grown one year perhaps in a field, and oats are put in the next year. Some fields are devoted almost exclusively to corn. Now this rotation of two crops may do very well, but clover should be sown with the oats in the spring if the soil is thin. Every farmer should be a stock raiser, and one or more of his fields should be for grazing purposes. For such a farmer it will be an easy matter to prevent land exhaustion by a continued growing of one crop on the same ground. Not only can he change the grain crops, but he can change his land under cultivation to pasturage, and the reverse, equally as well. The soil, when this is done, is never injured, which it is when used for the exclusive growth of one crop. The land is being constantly enriched, especially by the addition of the refuse of the fodder which is fed, and of the stock. The stock-raising farmer has every advantage to raise big crops.

Portable Hogpen.

A movable shelter for shoats or brood sows, which can be drawn from one part of the farm to another by two horses, is shown in the illustration here reproduced from the American Agriculturist. It is very easily made. Construct a shed 12 feet long of 2x8 inch board, using four cross pieces of same size 7 feet long Lay the floor lengthwise. Side one side with inch board six feet high; opposite side for four feet. For plate to nail to boards to use 2x4 inch scantling. Use a 2x4 at each end for rafters, to which end boards are nailed. Roof with matched flooring. The runners are sloped at each end, and there is a door in each end of pen. This portable shelter will be found of use to every farmer, and will cost little to make.



A MOVABLE HOGPEN.

Keeping Well Water Pure.

It used to be an old-fashioned custom in the country to put one or two trout in a well to insure the water being pure and wholesome. If they did not keep it so it was supposed that they would give warning of its impurity by dying themselves. We are reminded of this by seeing in an English paper that Prof. Sobrero, of Turin, has lately advised the use of eels in the house cistern for the same purpose. He says two or three not large but lively eels would devour anything in the water in the shape of animalcules, infusoria, bird dropping from the roof or vegetable matter of any kind. We think they would also take any animal matter like toads or rats that might fall in and drown.—American Cultivator.

Angora Goats.

It is said that this country imported the skins of 16,266,621 goats and kids in the year ending June 30, 1898. But the Angora goat, or its cross upon our common goat, has other value besides its skin. The fleece is about as valuable as that of a sheep, although weighing less, as it sells at a higher price per pound. The flesh of the kid or that of a young doe or wether is pronounced equal to the best lamb, while of the older animals it is said to be as good as Southdown mutton. They seem to thrive in all sections, from Texas to Manitoba, but are especially adapted to a mountainous country, and are much better at destroying bushes and shrubs. They are also able to defend themselves against dogs. Shall we see the mountains and hill districts of New England covered with Angora flocks?

BOERS ABANDON LADYSMITH

BULLER ENTERED THE CITY.

Found Garrison in Bad Shape—London Went Wild Over the News—The Next Move Is Uncertain—England Calls for Men.

London, March 2.—Following is the text of Buller's latest dispatch:

"Nelthrope, March 1.—I have just returned from Ladysmith. Except a small guard north of Surprise hill, the whole of the enemy lately besieging the town have retired in hot haste, and to the south of the town the country is quite clear of them.

"The garrison was on a half pound of meal to the man per day and supplementing the meat ration of horses and mules. The men will want a little nursing before being fit for the field."

London, March 2.—When the relief of Ladysmith became generally known London literally went mad with joy, and throughout England the scenes witnessed have no parallel in the memories of this generation. Pent-up jubilation at the relief of Kimberley and the defeat of Cronje could no longer be controlled, and with today's crowning triumph the trait of self-restraint was thrown to the winds. The lord mayor of London immediately telegraphed his congratulations to Generals White and Buller.

When the queen received the news at Windsor the bells on the curfew tower of the castle were rung in honor of the event.

More Troops.

Melbourne, March 2.—Secretary of State for the Colonies Chamberlain has cabled to the Australian government asking whether they would be able to send additional troops to South Africa in the event of the imperial troops being required elsewhere.

Kept Up All Day.

London, March 2.—All day long the cheering thousands kept up the incessant roar before the Mansion house and all traffic in what is London's busiest section ceased. Tons of fireworks are being bought in preparation for an elaborate celebration for tonight. In several provincial towns effigies of Kruger and Cronje were paraded through the streets and maltreated. At Glasgow an effigy of Kruger was subjected to indignities at the foot of the queen's statue.

Has French Reached the Capital?

It is reported in London, but the news is not confirmed, that French has already reached Bloemfontein, as the Boers are scarcely expected to make a stand there. The significance of Kitchener's presence at Arundel is not yet explained, but wherever he goes something is likely to happen and development may shortly show strategic plans as interesting as those which culminated in the defeat of Cronje.

British Occupy Colesburg.

London, March 2.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Roberts:

"Paardeberg—General Clements reports that on hearing that Colesburg had been evacuated, he sent a force to occupy Colesburg Junction and rode into Colesburg, where he received an enthusiastic welcome. He secured a certain amount of ammunition, arrested several rebels and then returned to Rensburg. He reported the railway line clear and working to Lanewelewnan's Siding. He will report as to the few culverts which have been blown up. Colesburg and Colesburg Junction are held by our troops."

TRIAL BY FARCE

In Dreyfus Case Found a Parallel in "Alice in Wonderland."

There is a delicious bit of court nonsense in "Alice in Wonderland" that bears a striking similarity to the serious but almost as peculiar trial of Dreyfus. A recent writer has made the clever parallel:

"There's more evidence to come yet, please your majesty," said the White Rabbit, jumping up in a great hurry. "This paper has just been picked up."

"What is it?" said the Queen.

"I haven't opened it yet," said the White Rabbit, "but it seems to be a letter written by the prisoner to—to somebody."

"Who is it directed to?" said one of the jurymen.

"It isn't directed at all," said the White Rabbit. "In fact, there's nothing written on the outside." He unfolded the paper as he spoke, and added: "It isn't a letter, after all; it's a set of verses."

"Are they in the prisoner's handwriting?" asked another of the jurymen.

"No, they're not," said the White Rabbit, "and that's the queerest thing about it."

(The jury all looked puzzled.)

"He must have imitated somebody else's hand," said the King.

(The jury all brightened up again.)

"Please, your majesty," said the Knave, "I didn't write it, and they can't prove I did; there's no name signed at the end."

"If you didn't sign it," said the King, "that only makes the matter worse. You must have meant some mischief, or else you'd have signed your name like an honest man."

"Let the jury consider their verdict," the King said, for about the twentieth time that day.

"No, no," said the Queen; "sentence first—verdict afterward."

Turkey Dressing.

No Gentleman Would Take It.

A member of one of the great political clubs of London recently lost his umbrella and put up a notice in the hall requesting "the nobleman" who had taken it to return it when he had done with it. The committee, in due course, desired to be informed why he had ascribed its possession to a peer. The member blandly referred them to the rule which said that the club was composed of "noblemen and gentlemen," and added that no gentleman would have taken his umbrella.

A Cup of Water.

A cup of hot or cold water taken on rising in the morning is of much value with some people, for the mucous coat of the stomach is washed away, and its juices are more quickly brought into contact with the food.

J. W. HOPP, CHAS. POWER } Editors and Proprietors.

—The Burlington route is now the second longest railroad in the world. Recent extensions and the absorption of several small Iowa lines, have increased its mileage until it is now 7788 miles long.

—Roach, the Dakota cattle man, bought 2000 head of stock at Asotin, consideration being $23,000, making $75,000 he has invested in cattle in this vicinity this winter. The stock will be shipped from Lewiston about May 1.

—Don't sleep too much. Brain workers live long. Dr. Edson of New York says longevity is due to unusual powers of assimilation. Eight hours of sleep is enough, as too much sleep makes the sluggard—results in degeneration from disuse of the mental faculties. Irregularity of living takes storekeepers, butchers and doctors off early in life. Rapid thought leads to longevity and if farmers' minds were more active they would live longest owing to their open-air-life.

—Farmer Mitchell Stevens at Ellensburg, Wash., states in the Ranch and Range, that during January he fed his ten cows on an average 9 lbs. per day each of a mixture of chopped oats and mill feed worth $13 per ton mill feed and $20 per ton for oats; this with clover and wild hay at $7 per ton, makes the total cost for feed for the herd $1.58 per day. After all expenses were paid he had over $100 left for January. The average test of entire herd was 5.83 per cent.

—Early spraying is advocated for fungus diseases of trees. When the young leaves are unfolding the fungi causes the greatest damage. A thorough spraying should be given just before the buds begin to unfold. The early treatment is especially beneficial for the following diseases: Leaf Spot or Pear, Apple, Cherry, Gooseberry, and Currant; Apple Scab, Peach Curl, Pear Blight, Anthranose of Grape, etc. Formula—Copper sulphate 6 lbs., Quick lime 4 lbs., water 40-50 gallons.

—Representative Wilson is kept busy at Washington looking after Idaho's interests. He has with Shoup introduced bills relative to matters of interest to our people. Mr. Wilson is rightly endeavoring to prevent the enactment of legislation authorizing the leasing of the public grazing lands of the United States. An effort is being made by some large interests in California and Texas to lease large tracts of the public grazing lands These tracts will, of course, be fenced and enclosed. As soon as this is done, the small cattle and stock owners will be at a serious disadvantage, as they will not be able to make these large leases; and citizens of Idaho undoubtedly desire that the public grazing lands remain open and free to all, just as they now are. Mr. Wilson believes he will succeed in defeating this measure.

—Messrs. Elder and Travis, Moscow and Palouse, were Genesee visitors this week. Likewise Horen, the Pullman grain dealer.

—The Direct Legislation League meeting Saturday evening organized by the election of a set of officers. Mr. Welch was chosen committeeman for this precinct. The democratic leaders in town were conspicuous by their absence. They are not strong believers in fusion and besides do not want to give up the name democracy for the purpose of boosting a few into office. A genuine democrat is like a republican—will not give up the party name for any side issue.

—Shortly after the Hon. Carl Shurz cast in his lot with the United States he was afforded an opportunity to hear the great debate between Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas. He gives his impression of it in an article to appear in The Youth Companion for this week. He describes Lincoln's homely simplicity in dress and speech, and contrasts the strange earnestness of his eloquence with the power of his rival's oratory.

—The common eastern insect has caused some damage to apple orchards in Idaho the past season, reports Prof. Aldrich of the Experiment Station, Moscow. The mature insect is a dark colored beetle about half an inch long. It becomes adult in the early part of the summer, and deposits its eggs on the bark of apple trees, usually on the south side in a spot where the tree has been sun-scalded or barked. The young borer works under the bark, and trees one and two years old suffer more than others and many die the same year they are attacked. Good culture and the usual measures to prevent sun-scald are the best preventatives, and will usually prove sufficient. Young trees should be watched through the first two seasons and the worms cut out at their first appearance, which is made known by little masses of sawdust pushed out of a small hole in the bark.

Still More Counterfeiting.

The Secret Service has unearthed another band of counterfeiters and secured a large quantity of bogus bills, which are so cleverely executed that the average person would never suspect them of being spurious. Things of great value are always selected by counterfeiters for imitation, notably the celebrated Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has many imitators but no equals for indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, nervousness and general debility. The Bitters sets things right in the stomach, and when the stomach is in good order it makes good blood and plenty of it. In this manner the Bitters get at the seat of strength and vitality and restore vigor to the weak and debilitated. Beware of counterfeits when buying.

Millions of dollars is the value placed by Mrs. Mary Bird, Harrisburg, Pa., on the life of her child, which she saved from croup by using One Minute Cough Cure. Cures all coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles. MRS. T. KENNEDY.

—Saturday's St. Paul Pioneer Press states that 75,000 people will move to the northwest this spring—to the Dakotas, Montana, Idaho and Washington. April 1st a special train will come west over the Northern Pacific loaded down with homeseekers headed for Idaho and Washington.

—The Boers are again routed. The English will fight hard now and push matters to the end. They have the advantage of arms and money and by crushing the enemy speedily hope to gain everything. Should the war continue many months they might lose all.

Banker Routs a Robber.

J. R. Garrison, cashier of the bank of Thornville, Ohio, had been robbed of health by a serious lung trouble until he tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. —Liveryman Hickman took a drummer to Uniontown Monday. Said an empty hack was about all the horses could pull through the mud.

—Dr. John Beck, who has been taking lessons in surgery at Chicago the past few months, is on his way to Salinas, Cal., where he will hang out his shingle. Success to him.

—Napolean Blanchard and Miss Laura Corbett were married in Genesee last Thursday by Justice R. Pickering. They at once went to housekeeping in the McMunegle house.

—At the Cong'l church, Sunday evening, March 11, 7:30, Mr. J. W. Brigham will speak upon the subject, Reform in Law and its Practical Application to Existing Conditions. Everybody invited.

—J. H. Houghton, family and mother returned from Milton, Ore., to make Genesee their home. Mr. Houghton and Mr. Jamison have formed a partnership to carry on general blacksmithing.

—City council should instruct the marshal to kill off about 300 dogs in Genesee. The curs roam the streets day and night and are a nuisance. The country dogs brought in should be looked after closer.

—Now for the skimming station. Attend the meeting tomorrow. The skimming stations are rapidly supplanting the creameres east and west. They are the thing—more real cash for the farmers in them than in the creamery as the Hazelwood people have a market established.

—The city election officers are: 1st ward—Judges, Bob Gray, C. F. Burr, Fred Follett; clerks, Geo. Raymond, Frank Standish; distributing clerk, W. M. Follett. Second ward—Judges, D. Spurbeck, W. D. Rogers, H. F. Krum; clerks, Rev. Howard; Geo. Mochel; distributing clerk, Antone Mertes.

—Mrs. Anna Mary Johann, mother of Peter and John Johann, living just west of Genesee, died Tuesday noon at the advanced age of 75 years, after several weeks illness of dropsy. The lady came to Idaho thirteen years ago from Carroll county, Iowa. She was born in Prussia. Mrs. Johann was a kind lady and her death will be mourned by a wide circle of friends. The funeral took place from the Catholic church yesterday morning, March 8, 1900, and was attended by a large number of sympathizing friends.

—The protracted meeting at the Methodist church has run into the 5th week, with the same interest that has prevailed from the beginning. Last Sunday eight candidates were baptized by immersion and those who had not been received were received into church fellowship. One of the number, Johnnie Spencer, has been called to preach the gospel, and in answer to his call preached for the congregation last Saturday evening. Those present speak well of his first effort. Rev. W. O. Miller of Leland arrived on Tuesday's train and will assist the pastor over Sunday.

—Some of the boys had a high old time at a mock serenade the other evening. They secured $2.50 from the groom and returned to town and proceeded to spend the cash. So far all went well, but when the money was gone a portion of the crowd decided to go back and make the gent "come down" more liberally with his change. The man refused and the boys proceeded to tear down the premises. Knocked door and window in, smashed dishes, scarred furniture, mounted the house, tore down the fence, in short, made night hideous for all in the neighborhood. The lady of the house came to town next day to arrest the gang but somehow failed to find an officer who would make out the papers. About now the participants got uneasy and were only too glad to repair damages which they proceeded to do. They should have been severely punished. A list of names of those who took part in the destruction of property was hand the NEWS by Coffey and Mochel for publication, but as it is not a correct one we omit it as we do not wish to wrong an innocent person. Don't do it again, boys; the next time it might not be so very funny.

—Miss Mattie Walby went to Spokane last week to care for the sick.

—Wm. Brown has improved his front—shop front—for Jeweler Walters.

—Hardware Driscoll is loading up with machinery and implements for the farm and garden.

—J. L. Goodnight has returned from his coast trip where he visited parents and acquaintances.

—H. C. Tweedt, J. H. Gaffney, Rev. Fr. Keyzer and others visited Moscow the forepart of the week.

—Mrs. C. E. Hibbs returned Wednesday afternoon from her visit at Cœur d'Alene city. Reports a pleasant time.

—J. E. Grow and family of the reservation country, near Chicago, Ilo postoffice, visited with Genesee people the past week.

—W. F. Curtiss, the handsome bachelor of the Clearwater, visited Genesee early last week. He is still in the market but will not be much longer.

—The attendance at the Cong'l Sunday school last Sunday was 158, the largest in the history of that organization. The basement collection the previous Sunday amounted to $28.65.

—D. Spurbeck is improving his residence. His neighbor across the street, Mr. Jain, has been doing likewise. These retired ranchers are setting a warm pace for the city chaps to pattern after.

—The Mochel people desire to extend thanks through the columns of the NEWS to the Knights, friends and all who took part in the burial of Charles Mochel. The kindness shown will ever be remembered.

—Sam Davidson had a birthday last Saturday and that evening a number of his young friends gathered and had a time at the Nulph home. Fourteen couple who failed to come that night came Monday night and had a most enjoyable time.

—The NEWS is instructed to inform the farmers and all cow owners that a representative of the Hazelwood Co. would arrive from Spokane today to arrange for a skimming station. A meeting will be held tomorrow at which it is hoped all interested in dairying will take part.

—Frank Grierson, deputy under ex-Auditor Jay Woodworth, died in Spokane last week. Frank was a genial fellow and had many personal friends who mourn his death. He leaves a wife who is the daughter of the late Judge Piper. He was insured in the Woodmen of the World for $3000 and in the United Workmen for $2000.

—Chas. Lambert, the creamery man, has purchased the 640-acre ranch west of Vineland. Last Monday he started east after his family and will bring a few blooded cows for the dairy he will establish on the farm. Mr. Lambert is a good citizen and we hope he will never regret the action he has taken, though we sincerely believe the Genesee country is much better for the business he desires to follow.

—The contract for the construction of three wagon road bridges on the Potlatch creek, flooded away some weeks ago, went to Oliver of Spokane, Comm'r Tweedt informs us, for $2836. This is much cheaper than the former price of the building of these bridges and the structures will be greatly improved. Latah and Nez Perce county commissioners held a joint session in Lewiston Tuesday and let the work. McLeod & Starr of Kendrick may build one of the bridges.

—Rev. Paul Kruger, who claims to be a nephew of Oom Paul Kruger, told our people what little he knew of the disputed territory in South Africa. Stated he was never there, that his father was killed in the Franco-Prussian war when he was a boy and that Oom educated him and kept him posted on that country. Said the Boers could hold out for two years at Pretoria as they had enough provisions in refrigerator—2000 oxen and several tons of ice. He made a good talk but failed to secure much cash, about $11.

—Al Harris sends the "rocks" for the NEWS and best wishes to friends from Spokane. Glad to know he is prospering in the metropolis. The same mail brought us an order on Uncle Sam from the irrepressible Charley Kays of Pullman for this great family paper. May your shadow never grow less, Charles. Same train brought like tidings from our friend and postmaster at Ahsahka postoffice, E. E. Harris. We have been so elated over these contributions that we have had no time since to look at the bills coming in against us.

—Mrs. Dr. Ehlen visited at Uniontown last of last week.

—M. A. Means transacted business in Spokane this week.

—The W. C. T. U. will meet in the basement of the Cong'l church Saturday, March 10, at 2:30 p. m.

—L. F. Darr, Genesee's live lumber merchant, takes space in this NEWS. He is offering farm machinery cheap.

—Jamison & Houghton are settled in their new location and are fitted out to do general blacksmithing, wagon repairing, etc. See advertisement.

—Mrs. A. B. Moss and family wish through the NEWS to thank the many friends and the Woodmen people for assistance rendered during the burial of Mr. Moss.

—L. Jain accompanied Mr. Wilbur to Spalding Monday. Says many of the buildings of that burg are nailed up—buildings that a year ago were too small to accommodate the rush.

—The Direct Legislation League at Thorn Creek on March 5 had a good attendance and elected officers. Big turn out is expected on May 12 when good speakers will be present.

—Some talk now regarding the approaching city election. Trot out your candidates. NEWS is not caring who is elected to the various offices as long as they are progressive men and have the best interests of the town at heart.

—W. F. Morrison has a force of men at work seeding his grain in the Asotin country, says the Sentinel. The paper also states that Lincoln Meador has gone to Waitsburg where he has leased a farm. Link peddled Asotin fruit here in years gone by.

—Chas. F. Craig, Chicago's famous impersonator, will hold forth at Elliott hall next Monday night, under the auspices of the Woodmen lodge. Of him the Grand Forks Herald says: "The house was packed to the doors, and Mr. Craig proved himself capable of being the 'whole thing' and pleased the large and fashionable audience." The St. Paul Press says: "Mr. Craig delighted his audience with sketch succeeding sketch. He is certainly a talented artist." Reserve seats 35 cents, general admission 25 and children 15.

—Genesee will have a farmers' institute soon. Nearly every prominent town around has had one this winter. This shows the right spirit, shows that farmers want to progress along with the business man. The institutes are gradually growing in favor. Their usefulness is no longer doubted by the progressive man. It brings men together from different localities with their experience and store of information upon the various branches of agriculture, horticulture, stock raising, dairying, etc. This information is freely given for the benefit of all. The information received at the institutes furnishes a short cut to many useful reforms on the farm. The most progressive farmers and professors take part. They teach us many things of value that might take us years to find out by experience. We can hardly estimate the advantages derived at these institutes by those who attend and then put in practice what they learn. We get valuable information along the line of breeding and raising stock of all kinds. How to rotate our crops so as to keep up the fertility of the soil and secure best results. Let the institute be a rousing one—every farmer in the Genesee valley should be present. NEWS wants to see every farmer out. Conditions are right for mixed farming. In addition to all the valuable information brought out by discussion and an interchange of thought at these gatherings, they have a tendency to broaden the views of the farmer. Makes him more intelligent, more social, a better farmer and citizen.

It is probably true that a good many fireproof buildings are so only in name, but there are buildings which are actually fireproof, and in which fire has started several times without getting beyond the room where it originated.

When one nation annexes part or all of another nation's territory the best way to hold it is to pin it down with a railroad. England's title to the Soudan has not been questioned since Kitchener built his railroad across the desert, Russia's railroad through Manchuria fixes her claim upon that part of the Chinese empire, as the extension of her rails to Merv and Samarcand confirmed her title to Turkestan and Bokhara, and now France is about to build a line across the Sahara to link her possessions on the Mediterranean coast with the French Soudan and the heart of Africa. No doubt it will make permanent her hold on this large section of the African continent.

Scores of men are now occupying highly responsible and lucrative positions with the leading railroad companies of the United States who have climbed from the lowest rung of the ladder to the top. H. U. Mudge, who has just been made general manager of the Santa Fe system, first obtained employment with that company in 1872, as a water boy, when he was 16 years of age. He was successively telegraph operator, brakeman, conductor, baggageman, road boss and superintendent, his original purpose being to learn all branches of the railroad business, and to fit himself for any duty he might be called upon to perform. A leading railroad man was once asked what qualifications a man must possess to get ahead in the railroad business. "Push and energy," was his reply. "I began as a brakeman. All the division superintendents on this railroad have come up from minor positions." That was ten years ago; but the same opportunities exist to-day. What is true of the railroad business is true, moreover, of many other lines of effort. The boy who pays strict attention to business and tries to be honest, is sure to succeed if he has the natural ability.

That California judge who ruled that husbands are not obliged to furnish their wives with plans and time cards of their route when they stay out of nights and therefore dismissed a divorce suit the ground for which was that the husband's nocturnal absences were not properly explained was at first hailed by the benedicts of the land as a friend in need. It is plain that the effect of the decision appears to be to relieve the male invention from being overtaxed. It has long been painfully borne in upon the heads of families that lodges cannot well be expected to meet more than twice a week, that an epidemic of sickness among friends is not to be perpetually enjoyed, nor can stock-taking be prolonged through all seasons of the year. Therefore the judicial rule that the head of the household can stand on his privilege was received as an emancipation until the vice president of the Woman's Suffrage League of California intruded her comment. It was that sauce for the masculine gender should also be sauce for the feminine gender, and if wives were not to be advised of the nocturnal whereabouts of their lords the wives themselves might take evenings out and decline to exhibit their logbooks in the morning. This has sicklied o'er the masculine rejoicings with the pale cast of thought. Husbands are beginning to fear that this judge is entirely too radical and in his haste to declare their independence from wifely supervision has enunciated a doctrine that may jolt the pillars of society.

The death of Ruskin naturally invites inspection of the English literary zenith, and one is inclined to question whether there are at present any stars of the promised magnitude of the vanished Ruskin and Carlyle in prose and of Tennyson and Browning in poetry. In America who is the Emerson of today and who the typical poet? In both countries there are young aspirants who have revealed some divine sparks, but whether these will be kindled to a blaze remains to be proven. On the face of it, says the Chicago Tribune, there seems to be to-day more men who combine the literary art with some other important activity, and of whom it might be said, as Henry James has recently so admirably said of Stevenson: "Almost the last word about him would be that he had, at any rate, supremely written, were it not that he seems still better characterized by his having at any rate supremely lived." It has been said that the early sterility in American literature was due to the fact that men were living rather than reflecting in those days, and when the time for reflection same there rose up an Emerson and his kind. Men seem to have gone back to the "living" again, or if they combine the two it is in such men as F. Hopkinson Smith or the late George W. Steevens, who have the instinct for adventure combined with the artistic instinct for writing, and who, according to their own lights, live "supremely." But whatever be the cause there seems at present no promise of English Ruskins and Carlyles or American Emersons.

Out When Queen Called.

There is a story of Joseph Jefferson which, although it is not entirely new, the actor himself is fond of repeating. He was asked, some ten years ago, to spend a week with a Scotch peer. Among the guests was a haughty and brilliant lady, who was the daughter of an earl.

"I suppose," said Mr. Jefferson, "there must have been a homespun flavor in my American manner that amused her, for she made a dead set at quizzing me. I did not detect it at first, and answered some of her absurd questions about America quite innocently.

"She kept her countenance so well that I might never have discovered I was being made game of were it not for the idiotic grin on the smooth face of one of her boyish admirers. And then I felt, for the honor of my country, that if ever she made another thrust at me I would parry it if I could. I had not long to wait, for emboldened by her success, she turned upon me and said:

"'By the by, have you met the Queen lately?'

"'No, madam,' I replied with perfect seriousness. 'I was out when her Majesty called upon me.'

"She colored slightly, and then turned away and never spoke to me again. But I was revenged."

The Boy's Discovery.

He was a jolly little boy, 2 years old. He was on a trolley-car going through fields and woods and groves. He crowed and laughed, and called everybody's attention to the things that interested him. He was a city baby, and many of the things he saw were known to him only through pictures. At last he got to his journey's end. As he stepped or was lifted off the car, a bantam rooster on a lawn near by crowed, stretching his wings as if to help his voice. The small boy looked at the rooster a moment, put his hands on his hips, and imitated the rooster's crow. He tried to say rooster, but could not. He had never seen a live rooster before. He recognized this one from his picture-book. Now, if you ask him what the rooster says, he will get his picture-book and crow, holding his hands on his hips, and moving his elbows as wings.

A theory that has neither faith nor trust in its foundation doesn't amount to very much.

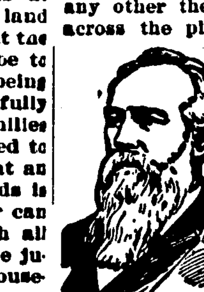
PONY EXPRESS LINE.

COL. ALEXANDER MAJORS ORIGINATED THE SERVICE.

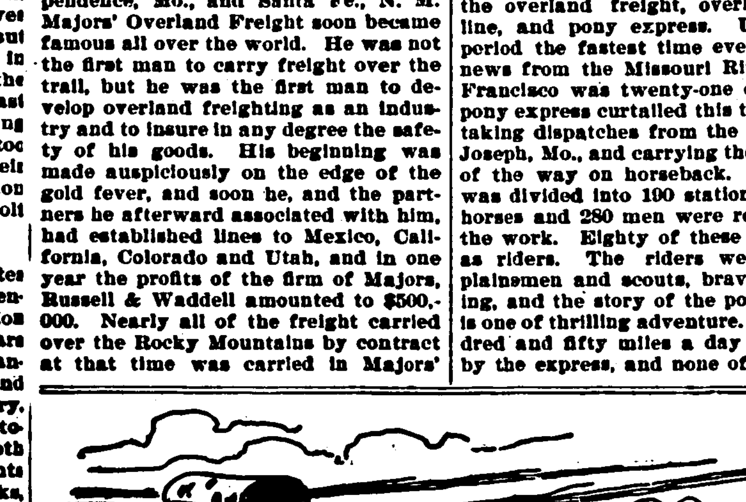
He Began to Transport Freight Across the Plains in '48, and Did a Remarkable Business—Employed Five Thousand Men and Forty Thousand Oxen.

The man to whom was due more than any other the advance of civilization across the plains of the great West and who became world-famous as the originator of an overland freight line and pony express was Col. Alexander Majors, who died in Chicago not long ago. At the time of his death Col. Majors was 86 years old. Seventy years of his life he had spent on the plains and into this time had been crowded events which are history.



COL. MAJORS.

It was in 1848 that Col. Majors began his freighting on the old Santa Fe trail, running a line of wagons between Independence, Mo., and Santa Fé, N. M. Majors' Overland Freight soon became famous all over the world. He was not the first man to carry freight over the trail, but he was the first man to develop overland freighting as an industry and to insure in any degree the safety of his goods. His beginning was made auspiciously on the edge of the gold fever, and soon he, and the partners he afterward associated with him, had established lines to Mexico, California, Colorado and Utah, and in one year the profits of the firm of Majors, Russell & Waddell amounted to $500,000. Nearly all of the freight carried over the Rocky Mountains by contract at that time was carried in Majors' wagons, and the Government contracts were all intrusted to him.



FREIGHTING ACROSS THE PLAINS IN 1848.

When Col. Majors began operations the Eastern terminus of the freighting trails was Independence, Mo. He started in business with a little outfit of six wagons and forty oxen, for it took six oxen to draw one of the wagons. His first trip was made to Santa Fe, and the run of 800 miles and back was made in ninety-two days. This was unprecedented at the time, and the fact that Majors brought his oxen in as fat and sleek as when they started out gave him a reputation among the traders. Up to that time it had been conceded that no man could manage a yoke of oxen without swearing. A teamster was hired more on his reputation for swearing and shooting than for driving. Col. Majors was a religious man and for a long time conscientious scruples stood in the way of his going into the freighting business. He would not employ men who swore, and he would not haul freight on Sundays.

As traffic increased it fell gradually into the hands of Majors' overland freight, and he took in two partners and changed the name to Majors, Russell & Waddell. They soon increased their teaming outfit to 40,000 oxen and 4,000 wagons, dividing them into "outfits," or "trains," moving out of Independence, Mo., on a certain date, and scheduled to reach Santa Fe or Salt Lake or Denver, as the case might be, on a certain date. The organization of a freight train for crossing the plains consisted of twenty-five wagons carrying from three to three and one-half tons each, the merchandise being protected by sheets of ducking. Each wagon was drawn by twelve oxen, and the train was provided with thirty or forty extra animals, in case some of those drawing the wagons went lame. The whole train consisted of from 320 to 350 cattle, a half dozen mules, for herding and riding. The force of men consisted of a wagonmaster, his assistants, the teamsters, a man to look after the extra cattle, and three or four reserves.

Oxen almost altogether were used in freighting, because they were more reliable for long trips, and because they foraged for their own food, and, with proper care, could travel 2,000 miles between April and November, and still be sleek and salable.

The business done by the freight line established by the Colonel was enormous. In one year he carried 16,000,000 pounds of Government supplies to United States troops in Utah. Forty thousand oxen, a thousand mules, and over 5,000 men, under his supervision, once carried freight and mail from the Missouri River across the Rocky Mountains.

The Pony Express.

Col. Majors' greatest enterprise, from a spectacular point of view, was the establishing of the "pony express." In the days of the California gold fever this was to the coast what the flying mail trains are to the people to-day. From the terminus of the eastern telegraph lines there was a stretch of 2,000 miles to the coast. Majors had already established an overland stage line, operated by the firm of Majors, Russell & Waddell. But up to 1859 mail from the Atlantic seaboard was carried by steamer to the Isthmus of Panama and then by steamer again up the western coast, and at the least the trip required twenty-two days. Senator Gwin, of California, believed that the establishment of an overland express would lead to increased immigration, and finally lead to the building of railroad and telegraph lines, which it did. He persuaded Col. Majors and his partners to start the pony express, and Col. Majors at that time became the virtual head of the overland freight, overland stage line, and pony express. Up to that period the fastest time ever made by news from the Missouri River to San Francisco was twenty-one days. The pony express curtailed this to ten days, taking dispatches from the wire at St. Joseph, Mo., and carrying them the rest of the way on horseback. The route was divided into 190 stations, and 500 horses and 280 men were required for the work. Eighty of these men acted as riders. The riders were all old plainsmen and scouts, brave and daring, and the story of the pony express is one of thrilling adventure. Two hundred and fifty miles a day was made by the express, and none of the riders carried an extra ounce of weight. The horses were wiry mustangs used to the trail, full of endurance, and as surefooted as mountain goats.

The work done by the pony express was the marvel of the day and the feats of horsemanship then accomplished are still talked of. However, it never paid running expenses and was eventually sold.

For some years past Col. Majors had been living a quiet life, his time being occupied in the writing of a book of his experiences. In many respects he was a wonderful man and history will claim him as a most remarkable figure.

Ready with the Retort.

The following story is attributed to Marshall P. Wilder: Some evenings ago a man was seated in the corridor of one of the large hotels smoking a fragrant Havana cigar. On the lounge next to him were seated a woman and her daughter, the latter being immediately next to the smoker. The draft in the corridor blew the smoke from the cigar across the younger woman's face, to which, although it annoyed her extremely, the smoker remained seemingly either oblivious or else wholly indifferent. Finally, after several quite audible remarks to her mother apropos of the rudeness of men in general in smoking in the presence of women, which passed rapidly into a somewhat hectic comment on this smoker in particular, the frayed string of her temper broke, and, turning savagely to the tormentor, she said: "If you were my husband, do you know I'd poison you?" Her neighbor, removing his cigar from his lips, promptly responded: "And do you know, madame, were you my wife, I'd take that poison?"—New York Tribune.

Her Literal Explanation.

A few days ago a boy was missing from schoolroom in one of the uptown public school buildings. The teacher looked around and failed to see the familiar face.

"Does any pupil know why Tommy McGregor isn't in school to-day?" she inquired.

There was no answer.

The teacher repeated the query.

Then a little girl slowly lifted her hand.

"Please, ma'am," she said, "I know."

"And why does he stay away, Mary?"

"Please, ma'am, it's because he's got 'measles inside.'"

Mary had read the contagious disease card that was tacked on the front of the house.—Baltimore Herald.

MY FIRST SWEETHEART.

I must have been six when I met her,
And she was a sweet miss of five;
I stumbled across where they'd set her,
To wait for the nurse to arrive.
With modesty I thought unpleasant,
The lady could not be induced
To deign to take note I was present,
Until I had been introduced.

But, one minute after, between us
Acquaintance was ripened so fast,
That could you who read this have seen us,
You'd said we'd been friends for years past.
And not alone friends, nay, but lovers;
My heart went at once to Bo-Peep;
And half an hour after our "muvers"
Discovered us, arms clasped, asleep!

Then age came, and with it new faces;
As grown-ups, we drifted apart;
I found in new sweethearts new graces;
She gave to another her heart.
The Bo-Peep of childhood is wedded,
Her children may now read this rhyme;
But firm on my mind is imbedded
Her picture—first sweetheart of mine.

MISS THORNE'S WILL.

LAWYER NORTHBROOKE had just driven away from Glenthorne and Elizabeth Everill stood for a moment on the broad terrace, and then, with a sigh, turned and entered the house. Only that day her aunt, Miss Matilda Thorne, had been buried, and Mr. Northbrooke had come down from London to read the dead woman's will. It was simple enough, and those who had known Miss Thorne intimately hardly wondered at its wording:

"To my niece, Elizabeth Everill, provided she marry a man of title, I will and bequeath all my worldly possessions."

"And if I do not marry?" Miss Everill had asked.

"You retain your inheritance," the lawyer answered with a smile. "Miss Thorne drew up the will herself, and it is deficient on that point."

Elizabeth's mother, Miss Thorne's sister, had run off with Paul Everill, the organist of the church, before she was 18. Her father had forbidden her name to be mentioned in his hearing, and at his death Glenthorne had passed to Matilda unconditionally. She had held no communication with her married sister till she read in a newspaper of the death of Paul Everill, and then she had paid one visit to the dismal London lodging where Mrs. Everill lay dying. There had never been much love between the sisters, but Miss Thorne was willing to take her sister's daughter under her care. So, when the organist's wife was laid beside him, their only daughter had been brought to her mother's home. Masters and governesses had been employed to perfect her education, and her aunt had never wearied of instilling a love of wealth and power and a horror of poverty into the girl's mind. That her words had not fallen on barren ground she would have understood could she have known her niece's thoughts that evening.

She was thinking of a scene that had taken place there just five years before.

Some old paintings had been sadly in need of the attention that only a skillful hand could give, and Miss Thorne had heard Ralph Crosby favorably spoken of, and had asked him to do the work. Elizabeth had been much in the long portrait gallery while Ralph Crosby talked and painted, and at length he had forgotten that he was only a struggling artist and she the niece of the wealthiest woman in the county and had spoken his love. Miss Everill could still remember the haughty stare and mocking smile of her aunt when she spoke of her love for Ralph.

"Love! Your mother loved Paul Everill, I suppose, and you know something of her life. But make your own choice. Marry this young man if you will, but not one farthing of mine will be yours."

And the girl had lain awake till daybreak thinking of the sordid surroundings amid which her childhood had been passed, and of the poverty for which she had such a horror, till at last she was resolved to answer "No" to her lover's pleading.

She winced even now as she recalled the grief that struggled with a contemptuous pity for her reasoning when she told him the next day that she could not be a poor man's wife, and remembered the few bitter words that fell from his lips as he turned away without seeming to see her outstretched hand. In the last few days she had thought once or twice, in a vague way, that if Glenthorne should chance to be hers she would find a way of letting him know that she loved him still, that she had loved him always.

"And now—and now," she said to herself, while the shadows grew deeper in the corners of the wide library, "an insurmountable barrier divides us." She clasped her hands tightly, and, with eyes that were dimmed by tears, gazed into the glowing embers. "Oh, Aunt Matilda, your very kindness is but cruelty. I wonder where Ralph is now? Oh, I almost wish I were a poor girl today. And yet, no—I couldn't bear that!"

And the latter reflection was constantly passing through the girl's mind as time wore an. It was very pleasant to be mistress of the great house and to have money at command. Under her rule Glenthorne became a very pleasant place indeed; and before the year was ended it was whispered that Lord Arthur Kendal was very much in love with her.

Elizabeth heard Ralph Crosby's name mentioned several times later, when she went to London. He was occupied upon a work that was to make a name for him, some said. Others hinted that he was ill; and Miss Everill wondered that her heart should beat so quickly at the sound of his name. She had resolved to accept Lord Arthur. He was rich—much richer than she—and quite at the top of the social ladder. Certainly she did not love him; he was hardly a man whom any woman could respect. Anyhow she did not respect him, and yet she would marry him. They were uncongenial spirits, she knew, but what of that?

In such a mood she was going one night to a great ball given by one of the most fashionable women in London. Lord Arthur would be there, and probably she would say "Yes" to his pleadings that night. She rather thought she would as she stood before a mirror when her maid had given the finishing touches to her toilet. She had on a white dress, and pearls were on her neck and amid her dusky hair; she was radiantly beautiful.

"Six years ago!" she muttered. "Six years and more since the day Ralph Crosby said——"

She turned away. Now and again a feeling came over her that she could not understand—a feeling that her wealth and her beauty were not to bring her happiness; and she had grown impatient with herself for feeling so. Generally at such times she was even gayer than usual, and when, some hours later, Lord Arthur sat by her side in a convenient recess in Lady Javenell's conservatory, he felt that he could almost die for her. There was something in her beauty that night—a sadness in the dark eyes behind their mirth—that he could not understand.

"Elizabeth," he whispered, "say 'Yes!'" and just then the sound of voices reached them.

"And Crosby, the artist, you know, is blind."

"Blind!"

"Quite. He consulted Reynolds yesterday; his case is hopeless."

"Poor beggar! What will he do?"

"I don't know. He hasn't a penny. He has never steadied himself to work for years. Somebody told me of a girl who jilted him, or something."

Miss Everill rose.

"Lord Arthur, I hope you will never speak to me like this again!"

Lord Arthur bowed. He knew that further pleading would be useless.

Very early on the following morning Miss Everill's carriage stopped at Ralph Crosby's chambers, and Elizabeth was informed that he was at home. She gave no name, but entered the room where he was.

"Ralph!"

"It was a voice that he had not heard for six long years, but he recognized it at once, and turned his sightless eyes toward her.

"Elizabeth!" he cried rapturously, opening his arms, and in an instant she was folded in them.

"But you must not, Elizabeth," he said later, "you must not sacrifice all for me."

"It is no sacrifice," she replied, composedly; "but I am dreadfully afraid that I had to ask you to marry me! I wonder what Mr. Northbrooke will say when he hears of this?" and she laughed.

"What fools women are!" was what the old lawyer said on being apprised of it, and he drew a large envelope from among a number of papers that were in a large box before him.

It was addressed, in Miss Thorne's very masculine caligraphy, to himself, and written in one corner were the words:

"To be opened in the event of my niece's marriage."

Inside was a will, properly signed and witnessed, and the old lawyer's face cleared as he glanced at it. There was also an open letter addressed to Miss Everill.

"If you have sold yourself, my niece, take the price of your slavery. If you have been honest enough to marry for love, take your reward. In either case Glenthorne is yours."

"Heaven bless me!" the lawyer exclaimed. "Heaven bless me! There's no understanding a woma! I'm heartily glad, anyhow; and now I must go and tell these two that they won't be beggars after all."

Banana Is a Prolific Plant.

A banana stalk yields but one bunch of fruit, and would die if it were not cut down when the fruit ripens or matures. One mat will produce from one to three bunches a year, growing continuously, as fast as one stalk is cut another taking its place. A remarkable thing about this plant is that if you cut into a half-grown stalk near the root, or any part of the stalk, a small blossom, or bunch of bananas, fully formed, will soon shoot through the cut, but if allowed to grow will never reach any market value.

Many people affirm that the banana and the plantain are the same fruit, but this is incorrect; although they grow like the banana an experienced person can readily distinguish the difference by the color as well as by the size of the small ribs in the leaf. The plantain grows in a bunch, but with only two or three hands to the bunch, and each finger or individual plantain is as large again as the banana and is more of a crescent shape. They are never eaten raw. The natives cook both the plantain and the banana, but prefer plantain.—National Magazine.

Divorced Thirty-five Times.

The case is mentioned in a Chinese paper of a native, aged 40, who has married and divorced thirty-five wives, and is now married to the thirty-sixth. He was first married at 18, and the reason assigned for this extraordinary example of inconstancy is that he has a younger sister of extremely jealous and rancorous disposition, who, from the moment that a bride enters the house, institutes a system of persecution, which soon drives the unhappy woman to ask her husband for a divorce.

The wonderful genius of some men prevents them from earning a living.

Women Who have the Blues

Despondency in women is a mental condition directly traceable to some distinctly female ill. Well women don't have the blues, but comparatively few people understand that the right medicine will drive them away.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

It regulates the entire female organism as nothing else does. When the dragging sensation and the backache go, the blues will go also.

Cronje Sent to Cape Town.

London, March 1.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Roberts:

"Paardeberg, Feb. 28.—General Cronje, with his family, left here in charge of Major General Prettyman and under escort of the City Imperial volunteers and mounted infantry. Later in the day the remaining prisoners went in charge of Earl Erroll and escorted by the Gloucesters and 100 Imperial volunteers. The women and children are being sent to their homes.

BOERS WILL FIGHT IT OUT

THEIR CAUSE IS RIGHTEOUS.

Says That Past Victories Have Shown It—Kruger Appeals to the Burghers to Stand Fast "in the Name of the Lord."

London, March 6.—A special to the Times from Lorenzo Marquez says that persistent reports continue that the Transvaal republic has opened negotiations looking to the securing of peace. On the other hand it is asserted that the Boers will make a stand at Glencoe and Laings Nek and that in the meantime the entrenchments at Pretoria are being extended in anticipation of a siege. A conference between the Boer presidents, it is added, and the generals commanding the Boers in northern Natal was hurriedly arranged on account of the news of Cronje's surrender.

Boers Trust in the Lord.

Until Thursday night official confirmation of the surrender was withheld from the public. Kruger sent a religious appeal with orders that it should be read by all officers to the burghers, urging them to stand fast and strive in the name of the Lord, for unless they had faith in Him, cowardice would set in and their position would be hopeless the moment they turned their backs on the enemy. Their past victories, he declared, showed that the Lord was on their side. The president beseeched the burghers not to bring destruction on their progeny.

Last Stand in the Transvaal.

Continuing, the special says that a high authority in Bloemfontein declares that in the event of the repulse of Free State forces, the latter will retire towards the Transvaal and, united with their brethren there, maintain the struggle to the last.

The Boer casualties at Colenso during the week ending February 25 are reported to be 31 men killed and 130 wounded.

Next Move in Doubt.

London, March 6.—There are now practically three British armies in the field, one in the Free State, one in Cape Colony and one in Natal. All that is known about the first and most important is that it is in close touch with a body of Boers, estimated to the number of about 6000 men. Speculation as to the direction and method of Roberts' advance into the Free State is quite worthless, so carefully are the plans concealed.

In Cape Colony.

In Cape Colony General Brabant and General Clements command two horns of the army, while Gatacre holds the main Boer force in check. Gatacre and Clements will probably combine and advance on Bloemfontein with Brabant, guarding the right flank with the mobile colonials. This movement will be subsequent to securing a line of communication along the lines of the Free State railroads, which, according to the latest dispatches, seems almost accomplished.

Relief of Mafeking Comes Next.

As incident to the British main objective, which at least is clearly outlined to be Pretoria, the relief of Mafeking by force from the south may be expected any day, Colonel Plumer's force on the north seeming incapable of accomplishing it.

The unexpected activity of the Cape Dutch and the reported likelihood of fighting between them and the Basutos aided by other tribes having a grudge against the Boers, is regarded as rather ominous.

Commerce of Philippines.

The war department has published some statistics of the Philippine commerce for the quarter of last year ending September 30, which throws new light on the export trade, so far as it relates to the United States. It is shown that of the total exports of raw sugar, amounting to $1,143,349, only $85,002 went to the United States, while Japan and Great Britain took nearly all of the remainder. Also as to leaf tobacco the exports to the United States were trifling in amount, Spain taking the largest part, $294,818, and England $38,947. The United States also took only $5032 of Manila cigars out of a total export of $240,299 and none of the other manufactures of tobacco came to the United States. In fact, cigars and cigarettes to the amount of $2360 were imported from the United States. Even in Manila hemp the United States was second, while Great Britain took $1,147,424. The total value of hemp exports was $2,776,907 and the amount was 19,945 tons.

The imports of merchandise into the islands were valued at $6,043,077 and the exports $4,884,057. Silver coin to the value of $588,001 was imported.

The total imports from Europe were valued at $2,295,520 and from North America $331,375. The exports to Europe were $2,400,396 and to North America $1,036,598. The total collection of import duty was $1,022,187 and of export duty $165,424.

Loss by Forest Fires.

Washington, D. C.—The former official estimate of the wooded area of the United States, placed at 26 per cent, has been raised to 37 per cent by the latest computations of the division of geography and forestry of the United States geological survey. That office has issued a bulletin containing new figures on American forests, some of which tend to prove the national timber resources greater than is supposed.

The two latest states to be examined are Oregon and Washington. The former is estimated to contain 234,653 million feet, B. M., in standing timber; the latter, 114,778 million feet. Destruction by fire has been exceedingly serious in Washington. On the assumption that the burned areas contained on an average as much timber as the untouched portion, 40,000 million feet have been destroyed since lumbering began. This amount would supply all the saw mills of the United States for two years, and at a value of only 75 cents a thousand, means a dead loss to the state of $30,000,000. The amount actually logged in the same period has been 36,000 million feet, making the estimate by the same comparison of areas. Oregon has suffered less from both fire and lumbering, owing to the smaller facilities for marketing the product.

Investigation of the causes, effects and means of prevention of forest fires in the west, will be carried on this summer in Washington, Oregon, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, South Dakota. Besides field study, designed chiefly to discover means of preventing the evil, the division is making a historic record of all important fires which have occurred in the United States since 1754. Although yet incomplete, this indicates that the annual recorded loss by forest burnings in the United States, is, at the very lowest, $20,000,000. It will probably run far above this sum, as the Pacific coast states have been only partially examined. Accounts of over 5500 disastrous fires have been obtained in the 17 states already examined. Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin have suffered the most severely. These records are taken chiefly from newspapers, and where it has been possible to compare them with the figures of practical lumbermen, it was been found that the tendency of the press is to underestimate the damage.

McKinley Was the Honored Guest.

New York, March 6.—The Ohio Society of New York held its fourteenth annual dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria. William McKinley, president of the United States, was the guest of honor. More than 400 covers were laid.

Before the banquet President McKinley held a reception and shook hands with the members of the society and guests. Among those at the president's table were Governor Roosevelt, Governor Nash, ex-Governor Morton, Mr. Bliss, Senator Mark Hanna, Lieutenant Governor Woodruff, General Swayne, General Corbin, H. Clay Evans, General Thomas H. Hubbard, John Barrett, T. G. Bergen and Julian T. Davies.

The list of speakers on the program was: President McKinley, Governor Nash of Ohio, Solicitor General of the United States J. H. Richards, Lieutenant Governor Woodruff and James H. Hoyt. There were no fixed toasts, the speakers having subjects allotted to them as they were called upon.

Governor Roosevelt was late in arriving at the dinner and was loudly cheered as he came in at 8:30.

At 9 o'clock Mrs. McKinley, accompanied by Mrs. Abner McKinley and Dr. Rixey of Washington, took seats in a box. Mrs. McKinley was loudly applauded and she bowed, the applause being renewed. All the galleries were filled with ladies, many calling on the president's wife.

It was 10:30 when Mr. Southard, president of the society, introduced the president. When Mr. Southard mentioned Mr. McKinley's name there was great cheering, Governor Roosevelt leading. Three cheers were given when Mrs. McKinley's name was mentioned, the guests rising.

The toast, "The President," was drunk standing.

President McKinley then arose amid tremendous applause and delivered his speech.

Russian Papers Are Bitter.

St. Petersburg, March 1.—The newspapers here outdo the rest of the continental press in bewailing Cronje's defeat and in violently abusing Great Britain. They declare that the Transvaal has fully demonstrated its right to a complete political independence with an outlet to the sea. They suggest that the best help for the Boers would be to create a diversion against Great Britain elsewhere and maintain it is the duty of Europe to intervene and "end the most infamous of the wars England has ever waged for predatory purposes."

Must Not Cross.

San Francisco, March 6.—A special from Benson, Ariz., says:

Rumors have reached here that a large body of Yaqui Indians are headed for the international line. Orders have been issued by General Merriam to the commanding officer at Fort Huachuca to hold his troops in readiness for immediate field service to be used to repel any attempt to cross the line into the United States.

It looks as though the Granite Cutters' Union will not have smooth sailing to introduce the eight-hour day this spring. The employers of New England held meetings last week and decided to resist the demands of the workers. The latter, however, are a unit in standing out for their original demand of eight hours at $3 a day, and from present appearances it looks like fight.

AFFAIRS IN THE PHILIPINES

FILIPINOS PLAN A WARFARE.

Plot in Secrecy—Native Officers Believed to Be Agents of the Insurrection—American Armies Busy—Section From Manila to Dagupan Has Been Cleared.

Manila, March 6.—Reports reach the Associated Press from various sources, including army officers and the heads of commercial houses with agents throughout the islands, of continued activity among the insurgents, who are endeavoring to keep alive the armed opposition to the United States, and are planning to continue the insurrection with guerrilla warfare on a larger scale when the rainy season begins. A person holding a position second only to that of the governor general, tells the Associated Press he is convinced the insurgent organization has been remarkably rehabilitated during the past month, particularly in the northern provinces. He says the insurgents have a secret organization even in the strongest garrisoned towns, affording perfect means of communication, and that the machinery is managed from Manila, some of the leaders being Filipinos pretending to be supporters of the American administration, many of the municipal governments installed by the army forming part of the machinery.

Two correspondents of leading American weeklies who have been traveling for a month in Benguett and Ilocos, with letters to insurgent chiefs, going alone 50 miles from garrisons, and being everywhere hospitably received, say the people make no secret of their sympathy with the insurgents. Though admitting that the Filipino soldiers abuse them, they still protect these soldiers from the American scouting parties. They claim to have communication with Aguinaldo. Palerno, in the northern mountains of Luzon, is full of civil and military officials of all ranks of Aguinaldo's government, who were captured or surrendered, and who were brought here and released on promises to refrain from agitation.

While many of the insurgent municipal officers were continued in office on taking the oath of allegiance, residents who are acquainted with them have little faith in their adherence to their promises. All the leading citizens of Tarlac, capital of the province of that name, numbering 11 persons, have been arrested and charged with plotting, and two insurgents have been captured at Malabon with incriminating papers and $4000 collected from the natives. Some of the municipal governments seem loyal and efficient. On the other hand, an American general declares he believes the majority in his province are agents of the insurrection.

A fresh issue of insurgent pamphlets is being circulated asserting that the American promises of good government are merely a mask for commercial exploitation of the Philippines, quoting Senator Beveridge's speech and an editorial from a Washington newspaper headed, "Let Us Be Honest."

The trial of the guerrilla charged with murder is finished and it is believed the commission's verdict will be guilty. Indictments against others have been prepared.

No report has been received from General Bates' expedition. He has probably moved inland, where communication with him is impracticable.

The army throughout the island of Luzon is working hard, scouring the country for insurgents and killing a few daily. The section from Manila to Dagupan has been thoroughly cleared, the scouting parties being unable to find any insurgents.

General Funston and Colonel Keenan took 200 men through the mountains to Baler, on the eastern coast, without meeting any insurgents. But they are active along the northern coast from Dagupan to Aparri. Occasional reports come of an American soldier being killed or disappearing. In the southern provinces the insurgents continue to harass the American garrisons by night demonstrations.

Coming West.

St. Paul, Minn., March 6.—Fifteen hundred persons, the families of farmers from Pennsylvania and neighboring states, have secured transportation to St. Paul for themselves and 250 cars of household effects. Here they will divide and go west over the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, settling on those lines from North Dakota to the coast. They are expected to leave her April 1.

The Grant Is in Port.

San Francisco, March 6.—The transport Grant has arrived, 27 days from Manila. The Grant brought 201 sick soldiers, 27 discharged men and 27 cabin passengers. Six deaths occurred during the voyage. Short stops were made at Nagasaki and Kobe.

Sharkey and Fitzsimmons.

New York, March 6.—Tom Sharkey and Bob Fitzsimmons have signed articles of agreement for a 25-round bout before the club offering the largest purse during the first week of August, the winner to take all the purse. Queensberry rules will govern.

Miss Anna Wheeler, daughter of the noted southern general, is engaged to marry Lieut. W. W. Fiscus, who, as acting captain of Company K, 19th regiment, is now fighting in the Philippines. The young couple met in Manila.

An insurance risk is a chance of a lifetime.

To Coin the Silver.

It is the intention of the treasury department as soon as the pending financial bill becomes a law to expedite as fast as possible the coining of the silver bullion purchased under the Sherman act still in the treasury. There is still on hand bullion purchased under this act costing $78,000,605, and represented by that amount of treasury notes outstanding. The department has been coining this bullion into dollars at the rate of $800,000 a month. The financial bill authorizes the coinage of enough of this bullion into subsidiary coins to bring the total subsidiary coinage up to $100,000,000. This will require about $25,000,000 in subsidiary coins. In addition to this the department proposes to increase the coinage of silver dollars to $4,000,000 a month, and the effect will be to have all this bullion coined and all treasury notes retired within a year and a half.

How to Write Advertisements.

The most successful policy which can be adopted in writing any advertisement is to so word it as to win the confidence and respect of the reader. If you can make such an impression upon the reader's mind that he will believe that you are in earnest in what you say, that you really believe it yourself, and that you are laying the case before him in a plain, business like manner, without any exaggerations or attempts to mislead him, you are nearly sure to get that person's trade.

Laws Regarding Cigarettes and Liquors.

Owing to the alarming spread of the demoralizing cigarette and liquor habits among the boys and youths of our town, it behooves us to assert our manhood and womanhood in counteracting these great evils, existing in our midst, contrary to the laws of our state.

We, the W. C. T. U., submit the following laws in behalf of those that have violated them ignorantly, earnestly hoping they will take timely warning. For the time has come when they can no longer be violated with impunity. In the enforcement of these laws, we hope to have the hearty cooperation of all loyal, law abiding citizens.

Passed at the 15th session of the territorial legislature.

PROHIBITING THE SALE OF CIGARETTES TO MINORS.

Sec. 1. It shall not be lawful for any merchant, trader, peddler, pharmacist, druggist, apothecary, or saloon keeper, or any other persons, male or female, in this Territory, with or without a license after the passage of this act, to sell by wholesale or retail, or give away, directly or indirectly, to any person or persons, male or female, under the age of twenty-one years, cigarettes for smoking or the compounds of tobacco used in the filling or make-up of cigarettes for the purpose of chewing or smoking.

Sec. 2. Any merchant or saloon keeper, trader, peddler, pharmacist, druggist or apothecary, or any other person or persons in this Territory violating the provisions of Sec. 1 of this act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined in the sum of one hundred dollars and the cost of prosecution.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its approval by the governor.

Approved Feb. 7, 1889.

INTOXICATING LIQUORS—SALE OF.

An act to regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors. Passed at the first session of the State Legislature.

Sec. 6. Any wife, mother, father, son, daughter or sister of a person who is a habitual drunkard or in the habit of getting intoxicated or the county commissioners, or the mayor of any city, or any county officer, may make complaint to any justice of the peace of the precinct where such person resides or may be staying, alleging the name of such person, the fact of his being a habitual drunkard or in the habit of getting intoxicated, and the name or names of the person or persons from whom the person having such habits obtains his liquor, or such relative or officer believes, which complaint shall be verified by the person making the same; whereupon said justice of the peace or said probate judge shall issue a notice in writing to such person or persons so named, notifying him or them that no intoxicating liquors of any kind must be sold or given away by him or them, or at his or their place or places of business to such person having such habit, and which notice must at once be served upon such person or persons as summons are served from justice court. After the service of such notice if any person or persons so notified shall sell, give away, or permit any person at his place of business to sell or give away, any intoxicating liquor to such person about whom he or they have received notice as aforesaid, his or their license to sell liquor shall, from that time, be deemed and held to be cancelled and annulled; and said person, and each of said persons, if more than one, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be liable in a civil action brought in the name or for the benefit of the person making such complaint, in the sum of two hundred dollars for each offense, and the wife, if there be one, may bring such suit without uniting her husband as a party to the action.

Sec. 9. Every person with or without a license who shall sell or give away to any person already intoxicated any spirituous, malt or fermented liquor or wine, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than three hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail not to exceed six months.

Sec. 19. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to sell or give away, any spirituous, vinous or malt liquors to a minor. Any person violating this section is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sec. 20. It is hereby made the duty of the district attorney, sheriff, and all constables and peace officers of the county or municipality, knowing of any violation of this act to make complaint thereof before the proper tribunal.

Sec. 21. The words "intoxicating liquors," as used in this act, shall be deemed and construed to include spirituous, vinous, malt and fermented liquors, and all mixtures and preparations thereof, including bitters that may be used as a beverage and produce intoxication.

Approved Feb. 6. 1891.

By order of the W. C. T. U.

E. SPURBECK, Secretary.

—L. A. Porter, the fruit king of the valley, estimates that 1100 carloads of fruit, valued at $500,000, were shipped from Idaho last year to the eastern states.

—A slide took place along the new grade between Stuart and Kamiah during the recent flood, about 25000 yards of dirt changing location. As a large force of graders are near by the obstruction will soon be lifted. Trains are due at Stuart now.

—An accident occurred on the Salmon last week in which a Grangeville blacksmith lost his life. While at the forge he was filled with copper by the explosion of dynamite caps in a bottle. Mr. Weare was the man's name, and although he was literally torn to pieces he lived long enough to make the trip to White Bird, a distance of 25 miles.

—M. L. Goldsmith, the Rimrock rancher, writes from Croyden, England, that people there say they will whip the Boers if they have to draft a million men. Says times are much better now than when he left there 28 years ago, wages higher and much building going on. Living is cheap. Says they are behind on railroads and street cars—the latter being doubledeckers. The freight cars are not much larger than an American wheelbarrow.

DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

"I have been thinking of writing to you for some time," writes Mrs. W. D. Benson, of Maxton, Robeson Co., N. C., "to let you know what a wonderful thing Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery did for my little boy. He was taken with indigestion when he was a year and a half old, and he was under the doctor's treatment for five long years. We spent all we made for doctor's bills, and it did no good. He could not eat anything only a little milk and cracker, and sometimes even this would make him sick, and he got very weak; could not sit up all day, and I gave up all hope of his ever getting any better. Looking over one of your books I noticed Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery recommended for indigestion. We bought some and gave to our boy. Two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cured him. He is well as can be, and can eat anything that he wants and it does not hurt him. He has not been sick a day since, and it has been three years since he took your medicine. I pray that God will always bless you and your medicine."

FOR DISEASES OF THE STOMACH BLOOD, NERVES AND LUNGS

—The hog association for Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana will meet at Moscow March 21-23. Hog committees have been appointed and it is believed every owner of a handful of bristles will be present.

—Another great strike has been made in the Cœur d'Alenes on property adjoining the Blue Grouse in which several Genesee parties are interested. This locality bids fair to rival Canyon creek says the Wallace Press. The Press also says had this strike been made a few years ago it would probably have changed conditions in the Cœur d'Alene materially, changed railroad building with the probable building of other towns and centers of population. The Moscow Star says "the strike has made the stockholders of the Blue Grouse raise their expectations, although they have been serenely confident at all times of the ultimate success of their enterprise."

Mrs. Harriet Evans, Hinsdale, Ill., writes, "I never fail to relieve my children from croup at once by using One Minute Cough Cure. I would not feel safe without it." Quickly cures coughs, colds, all throat and lung diseases.

NEW HOMES IN IDAHO.

Railroad officials say at least 100,000 people will come west to locate year of 1900. The advance guard is here. The season is favorable, the earth is taking on its garb of green, cattle could not look better on winter range and the fruit trees never gave brighter promise of a bountiful crop. The mining outlook too was never as bright in Idaho as at present. Would it not be a good plan to let the homeseeker know something about our favored locality? People rush west over the main line roads and see nothing of the richest spot in all the west. Descriptive circulars should be sent out over the roads.

No spot on earth is richer than the Genesee valley. Its deep soil teem with fertility; millions of dollars lie within its depth; it only requires a patient tilling to bring forth forty bushels of wheat per acre, 300 bushele of potatoes, oats, barley, flax, beans, early corn, and berries and vegetables of every description. And following close upon the heels, and allied with the richness of soil, comes the fat stock—cattle, hogs, sheep, etc.

We have large farms in this neighborhood that should be made into small tracts, and several of the owners have signified their willingness to part with a portion of their holdings. This land can be had from $15 to $30 per acre according to distance from town. There is not a foot of waste land in the Genesee valley. Free land can be had by going back some distance. Register West of the land office informs us that there is over five million acres of land in this district—comprising the counties of Latah, Nez Perce and Idaho counties—unclaimed. Much of this land is as fertile as the soil of the Palouse.

If the newcomer desires cheaper lands than ours and close to a railroad let him follow along the Clearwater where a branch of the Northern Pacific is now being constructed. No section in the Union holds greater and more varied natural resources than this newly opened empire. Here you will find coal mines, placer and gold mines, timber, valleys full of stock, new grain fields—everything. A harvest of twenty millions of gold was gathered in that vicinity in the '60s. Now that the engine is snorting in this new section we may expect much from there the next few years. The wealth of the forests, the virgin soil and new mines are many times greater than the gold harvest of the past. Many new towns are springing up. Take the advice of the NEWS and come to Idaho.

Search the broad continent from the frozen shores of the Artic to the gaping mouth of the Mississippi; from the rocky shores of the Atlantic to the golden shores of the Pacific, and where will you find a climate equal to that of Idaho? It can't be found, it does not exist. It is a land of sunshine, of flowers, of great crops, of beautiful rolling prairies of soil more prolific than the valleys of the Nile—and it is here you will find the finest timber in the world. The sick who come to Idaho get well, the poor become rich, and the shiftless acquire habits of industry. Nature has lavished her choicest gifts upon this state, and invites the young men of the poverty stricken east to come and enjoy her free will offerings. And they do come! They come by rail, by wagon, afoot and on horseback. They come from all points of the compass and are happy when they get here, and are happier "as the years creep slowly by." There is room for a great many more and they are welcome. There is land for the landless, homes for the homeless, and friends for the friendless. Come and you will be glad to stay.—X.

—Mrs. Virginia Meek, of Mountaindale, Ore., a full fledged Nez Perce Indian, mother of Mrs. Jennie Newhard and Joseph L. Meek, formerly of this place but now of Fletcher, died last week at the age of 80 years. She was born in this community and married Jos. L. Meek one of the most unique and daring characters in the early history of the Pacific Northwest. The famous trapper was a cousin of President Polk. The aged lady lived in Genesee one winter a few years ago with Col. and Mrs. Newhard.

—Charley Westinghouse, the smallpox patient, is reported quite sick with that disease, but in no danger. The city dads fixed up a comfortable isolation hospital for him in Becker's field across the railroad track at a safe distance from town. Dr. Wilson was here from Pullman in consultation with Dr. Harris and both unite in pronouncing it a case of genuine smallpox. Dr. Stevens of Uniontown was called in and also concurred in this opinion. Agent McDougall and family, who have been exposed, are kept in strict quarantine, and there is no reason to believe that the disease will spread.—Colton News-Letter.

—No one questions the democracy of the New York World, and therefore anything it might say favorable to things under republican rule should have weight. Read:

"At the end of December, 1898, 27.2 per cent. of all the working people in all the trades were unemployed. At the end of March, 1899, the unemployed amounted to 18.6 per cent. At the end of June the percentage was 10.9 per cent. At the end of September it had sunk to 4.7 per cent. At present it is incalculably small. How much these simple figures mean of prosperity! How much they mean of happiness in the home lives of hundreds of thousands! How much they mean of welfare for the country! What a warning they hold for politicians who would start another "calamity" campaign.

—H. Halvorsen and family arrived from Kingsbury county, S. Dak., last week to make the west his home. He is a brother to our John and Soren Halvorsen. Mr. Halvorsen is delighted with Idaho and was not long in securing a foothold here, buying the Cornwall store and other property. He says the people here do not appreciate our climate and productive soil. Mr. Halvorsen lived in Dakota since '82 and sold his well improved half-section of land for $3,200.

—F. R. Reed is in New York from Boise and is telling of the riches of the northwest. He came west 22 years ago and since that time all the vicissitudes that fall to a pioneer's lot have been his. Cowpuncher, tracklayer, miner, prospector and speculator, with side dishes into politics, entitle him to speak ex cathedra on our affairs: "Agriculturally they are rich, but in minerals they are far richer, and they only need intelligently directed capital to prove this latter assertion. We have, like other sections, had our lean years with the fat ones. Prosperity has come to us in full measure, and it is needless to say we are enjoying it to the full."

—The Idaho State Dairy and Pure Food association organized last week with Prof. French as president. J. W. Bailey, Oregon's food commissioner, addressed the body, saying: "From what I have seen of your state I can say without successful contradiction that Idaho can produce butter fat as cheaply or perhaps cheaper than almost any place on earth, but prime fresh creamery butter cannot under any conditions be made to compete with the cheap process butter and oleomargarine of the large packing houses. Self preservation is the first law of nature, and it is not only your privilege and right but it is a duty that you owe your state that you pass such laws as will protect her interests and your citizens from being imposed upon by buying and paying for something they do not receive and that which is often times positively harmful. The development of this great northwest in the near future will be almost beyond belief and there will be markets opened up for your products long before you are ready for them. There are at the present time carloads of dairy products going by your door to supply the markets of Alaska and other points of the northwest. You will soon have a market in our new possessions in the orient that will take more than can be thought of, and Idaho with Oregon and Washington should be prepared to supply that market, as it justly belongs to us. You have here conditions for producing fruit that is not enjoyed by scarcely any place in the Union, and yet I have seen on sale in your stores jellies put up in Omaha that scarcely contains a trace of fruit product."

—Geo. Vennigerholz, of Genesee, Ida., is at present looking over Vineland. He lately sold a ranch in the Palouse for $4000 and thinks he will invest some of it in Vineland dirt, says the Journal.

—Col. Bryan is coming west and will speak at Walla Walla March 29, Spokane 30, Yakima 31, Seattle April 2, Tacoma 3. The stock and sheep men will not listen to his tale of woe. Nor will the laborer.

—Another gold excitement is on. The new field is 100 miles from Cape Nome, just opposite, on the Siberian coast. Reports of fabulous wealth are circulated and a great rush from Nome to the new fields will commence as soon as the weather will permit.

—Nampa's pearl mines are being quite extensively worked now. Seven tons of concrete and ore per day is hauled daily running over $40 per ton. There is a good percentage of fine milling gold ore, people cleaning up from $50 to $100 daily from the battery plates. Other mines will be worked where samples of ore run as high as $350 in gold.

—About the first of the year ex-Senator Dubois prophesied that if the Boer British war lasted three months this country would be compelled to adopt the free coinage of silver, owing to the inability of shipping gold from South Africa. The fusion papers swallowed this. The war has been on five months and no free coinage in sight. What's the trouble, Fred?

A Fiendish Attack.

An attack was lately made on C. F. Collier of Cherokee, Iowa, that nearly proved fatal. It came through his kidneys. His back got so lame he could not stoop without great pain, nor sit in a chair unless propped by cushions. No remedy helped him until he tried Electric Bitters which effected such a wonderful change that he writes he feels like a new man. This marvelous medicine cures backache and kidney trouble, purifies the blood and builds up your health. Only 50c at Kennedy's drug store.

A Good Cough Medicine for Children.

"I have no hesitancy in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says F. P. Moran, a well known and popular baker, of Petersburg, Va. "We have given it to our children when troubled with bad coughs, also whooping cough, and it has always given perfect satisfaction. It was recommended to me by a druggist as it contained no opium or other harmful drug." Sold by all druggists.

He Fooled the Surgeons.

All doctors told Renick Hamilton, of West Jefferson, O., after suffering 18 months from Rectal Fistula, he would die unless a costly operation was performed; but he cured himself with Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the best in the world. Surest pile cure on earth. 25c a box at Kennedy's.

TIMELY TOPICS

The Bible trust has nothing whatever to do with the trust in providence.

Talking of Roberts, sometimes even one wife makes trouble for a man trying to get into the house.

It is time for the ladies, God bless 'em, to be getting their ages in order for the curious census enumerator.

A New York man eloped with his wife after she had begun suit against him for divorce. This is taking a mean advantage of the lawyer.

As a principle of human action, efforts to rise in the world are commendable, but few men really elevate themselves by getting on their ear.

Gen. Buller may well call it "difficult work" to fight an army of sharpshooters all up hill. The soldiers on both sides in our civil war had a good deal of it to do.

In Norway a girl must have a certificate that she can cook before she can get married. The groom should also have a certificate that he can provide something to cook.

A "personal" advertiser in a New York paper wishes to secure "one who appreciates a true husband and considers home a paradise." Yes—but suppose a serpent should come around?

The man whose wife has run away for the thirty-seventh time ought to take the period for sober reflection instead of importuning the police to bring her back again. Possibly she needs a vacation.

A New York paper is offering prizes for the best answers to the proposition "Why I have failed." The best and truest answer, if it is to contain the experience of nine out of every ten who have not succeeded, must always be, "Because I didn't try often enough."

The board of geographical names has decided that the people of one of our neighboring acquisitions are to be called Puertoriquenos. As the name is of their own selection, it must be assumed that it will be satisfactory to them, but Uncle Sam may have trouble in twisting his tongue to meet the occasion.

Andrew Carnegie advises young men to try to cultivate a "stand in" with their employers by beating them in an argument. Any discreet young man who thinks of putting the advice in practice will do well to arrange for a non-partisan referee before beginning the debate. Most bright, capable and enterprising young men have no doubt whatever of their ability to out-argue the "old man" in regard to almost any detail of his business, but the wise ones realize that there is always a whole lot of difficulty in getting the "old man" to realize that he has been beaten.

Should it be a rule of life to get all you can, or to give all you can? That question is just now under discussion. Well, how much can one give unless he first gets? The men who are laying thousands or millions on the altars of education, humanity or religion have generally been successful as captains of industry, princes of commerce, or leaders of large business enterprises. Possibly also their chief benefaction has consisted in creating profitable employment—which is a kind of giving—especially if they have been just and considerate in their dealings, and have paid fair wages. To get honestly is quite as legitimate as to give generously, and ought to take equal rank.

An intelligent master printer is quoted as saying to the men of his own trade, "Whether we wish it or not, the eight-hour day is bound to come; and instead of wasting our strength in vain resistance we shall find it wiser to consider how we can adjust our business to the inevitable change." Without accepting or rejecting this prophecy, we may say with truth that the present agitation seems to follow in the track of the movement of sixty years ago, which reduced the working day from twelve or more hours to ten. It is urged by the same reasons; it is met by the same objections; it wins by the same zigzag advances. In eight States there has already been friendly legislation; in Boston and Worcester it has been approved by popular suffrage as a standard for all city employes. It is for the interest of both capital and labor that so serious a change should be made—if it is to be made at all—with the least possible disturbance to business.

"There are tricks in all trades," is an adage that is year by year becoming more out of date. And for two reasons. Business men more and more generally are coming to recognise the truth of the proverb, "Honesty is the best policy." Greater and ever greater is the number of concerns doing business on the merit of its products or merchandise. Possibly the subtle influence of the department store is here traceable—the enforcement of the "money-back-if-you-want-it" policy. Again, retail merchants cannot be deceived or fooled, as in the good old days. Competition has forced them out of the old, easy-going rut. They take nothing on trust. Quality, cost and all other factors of value are relentlessly sifted. The buyer, except in rare instances where style enters largely into the question of price, is apt to know pretty nearly as well as the seller what the merchandise ought to bring. Thus, to-day, goods are usually found to pretty nearly answer their descriptions.

The folly of cheap and hasty railroad construction has been demonstrated in the result of the hurried and economical building of the great Siberian railroad. The Siberian railroad, let it be understood, is to develop the trade between China and Russia and to reduce the time and expense of traveling from London, Paris, Berlin and Russia to the ports of the far East. The general cost of the road was $180,250,000 and, while part of the construction was by joint stock company, most of the shares are in the Russian Government's possession and the greater part of the money came from the Government treasury, as will that needed for the reconstruction deemed absolutely necessary. Light rails and wooden bridges were used in the original construction and, under the conditions resulting from the haste and economy observed, quick and safe travel is impossible. Twenty miles an hour is the maximum speed attained and this at great risk to the patrons and property of the road. The heavy locomotives necessary to climb the steep grades have spread the light rails and disturbed the foundations of the poorly ballasted tracks until the committee has concluded that complete reconstruction must be had. It is estimated that this will cost not less than $25,000,000, and the Russian Government will be asked to make this appropriation. Had the work been properly done at the outset the development that the road would have accomplished would have been accelerated and not impeded.

The commerce of the Great Lakes is so vast that the lake waterway has become almost as important as the path across the Atlantic. In the lake navigation season of 1899, more than eighty million bushels of grain, nearly seven million barrels of flour, thirteen million tons of iron and a billion feet of lumber passed through the Sault Sainte Marie Canal, bound toward the East and Europe. Practically all this traffic, and an additional amount from Lakes Michigan and Huron, pass through Lake Erie. Erie is the shallowest of all the lakes, and the fact is apparent that its level is lower than it was formerly. The possibility of its falling still more, as a result of the diversion of some of the water of Lake Michigan through the great drainage canal from Chicago to the basin of the Mississippi, leads to an apprehension that sooner or later the effect will be harmful. Now a project has been devised, and a bill introduced in Congress to carry it into effect, to meet the diminution of the water of Lake Erie by constructing a dam in the Niagara River near Buffalo, and raising the level of Lake Erie by about three feet. Such a dam would deepen the water of the Detroit and St. Clair Rivers, and would render more secure and easy the navigation of this great waterway along which so important a part of the food supply of the nations is borne. But to raise the level of Lake Erie means to flood lands along its shores. It means to flood certain Canadian lands, as well as American; and this would necessitate international arrangement and costly compensation. For this reason, as well as for the reason that great public enterprises always move slowly, the conversion of Lake Erie into a vast mill-pond will probably be deferred for a long period.

One Reason Why.

"I'm not surprised," remarked the debonair dry goods drummer, "that those people down in Kentucky don't drink any more water than they do. I have just heard from a customer of mine in Eminence, a pleasant town not far from Louisville, that a well-known citizen there, who has been troubled for a long time with a hacking cough, had a severe spell of coughing the other day and raised two square blocks of some kind of hard substance. His son sent them down to a Louisville chemist, who reported that they were blocks of limestone, caused by the limestone water the cougher had been drinking. I may add that the cough doesn't trouble him any more, but just think of the liability a man is subjected to down there of having his bronchial tubes and his alimentary canal macadamized from Dan to Beersheeba. I'd rather drink moonshine than run such a risk as that. I shore would."

He Rose to the Occasion.

There was a bit of fence opposite Rowley's drug store in T——, Kan., and as it proved convenient to loungers it was broken down more than once. The owner, after putting it in order a second time, fastened a barbed wire on the top. There was fun for the clerks for a while watching those who, when just about to sit down, suddenly concluded that business called them elsewhere. One day a farmer in from the country lounged up to the fence, and, without noticing the barber wire, drew himself up and sat down squarely. He didn't jump, he didn't swear; he merely got up and remarked coolly: "I think I've dwelt on that point long enough."—Harper's Bazar.

Flowers Needed for Perfumery.

Vast quantities of flowers are gathered for perfumery purposes. It is estimated that each year 1,860 tons of orange flowers are used, besides 930 tons of roses, 150 tons each of violets and jasmine, 75 tons of tuberoses, 30 tons of cassie, and 15 tons of jonquils.

Onions Strong with Them.

The onion was worshiped by the ancient Egyptians. The cauliflower is a patrician among vegetables, and was taken from its Cyprus home in Italy to England in the reign of Elizabeth.

One-Half Farmers.

Nearly 50 per cent. of the people of France and Germany are engaged in farming pursuits.

ROCKING THE BOYS TO SLEEP.

I sit me down in the twilight cool
  Of a busy summer's day,
And close my eyes, and live again
  The time so far away,
When Eddie and James and John were here,
  And the tears to my eyes will creep,
For I seem to sit in the old brown chair,
  A-rockin' the boys to sleep.

I bring John back from a home of wealth,
  Where fame and honor dwell,
And sing and rock him to sleep once more,
  More happy than tongue can tell.
I brave the storms on a shoreless sea
  Where tempest and surges sweep,
And James is here and I rock again
  "My wandering boy" to sleep.

I build a stair to the heavens tall,
  And reach in its sweet domain
For little Eddie and bring him back
  To my lonely home again;
My throbbing heart is heavy now
  With a yearning strong and deep,
As I smooth the curls of my only babe
  And rock him once more to sleep.

They say the old chair is useless now,
  'Tis creaking, and dull with age,
And must be forever put aside,
  Like a well-learned, worn-out page.
But the old brown chair sings a song to me,
  As it whispers of other years,
And it tells of the roughened places smoothed,
  And murmurs of childish tears.

Yes, the old chair tells in an undertone,
  In a voice so creaking and old,
Of the comfort it gave through summer's heat,
  As well as in winter's cold;
How those little dependent lives were soothed
  Through their childish sorrows deep,
As it did its best to ease each pain,
  While rocking the boys to sleep.

The Lost Bracelet.

MYRA KENT was sitting in a low chair on the balcony, her head leaned back, her eyes lowered to the face of the young man who lounged on the steps near her—a handsome young man, the "second Adonis," the ladies were wont to call him.

"What an awful pity that Tom Rowen has no money," they said to themselves, with the most pathetic emphasis. "His face and his manners are perfect."

"They like to flirt with me," he said, with a smile of self-disdain, "but they know better than to say 'Yes' to me."

To an observer, her eyes seemed resting on his now, but he knew they were only idly glancing.

"Do you value the trinket so highly?" Rowen had just asked.

"The trinket?" she exclaimed, indignantly. "I do not call it a trinket. It is a most precious relic; it has been in the family almost 200 years. I would give anything to have the bracelet back again—anything!"

"Let us be practical. What would you bestow upon the man who will restore your bracelet to you?"

"Anything—anything!" cried Miss Kent, sitting upright, her eyes sparkling. "You have no idea how much I want that bracelet! Besides my affection for it, do you know there is a legend connected with it, to the effect that so long as it is kept in the family, good luck will never desert the Kents?"

"But the reward?" quietly persisted the young man.

Myra Kent laughed—the sweet, sincere laugh which Rowen had come to know so well, and which was so different from that of most girls of fashion.

"There is little I would not give," she said, half in earnest. "I believe I would give my hand, if the man did me the honor to want it."

Tom Rowen rose to his feet. Though his eyes glowed peculiarly, though his face was pale, he yet commanded his voice, so as to say, mockingly:

"Of course, Miss Kent, you are safe enough in adding that last clause to your offer of reward. You know the bracelet is gone irrecoverably. You lost it on the highway more than a week ago; you have yourself looked over every foot of the road. Some tramp has found it; it is probably in some obscure pawnbroker's shop by this time."

He added a few more words on some other subject, and then he sauntered slowly away down one of the walks of the garden and disappeared among the trees.

As soon as he was out of sight his whole appearance changed. He looked alert and alive. He stood still a moment, glancing about him.

"It is all folly, I know, but I am going to try to find the bracelet for her. I should like to do that. Of course I cannot ask her to be my wife; she is the last person under the sun to be a poor man's wife. Her father would disinherit her, and how am I going to get her the fol-de-rols which are necessary to her existence?"

While he walked he was looking among the dust-covered golden rod and grasses along the roadside. He went on thus for half a mile, then he reached a turn, and retraced his steps on the other side of the way. He gave up the next three hours to a thorough examination of the space of road where the bracelet had been lost.

Like all people who are looking for some lost article, it seemed to him that underneath every shrub, secreted behind every stone, he should find the treasure. There is a wonderful fascination in such a search.

It was not until dusk that Rowen gave it up for that day, and returned to the hotel in the village where he was staying.

For the next two days he was engaged in the same way, and he did not see Miss Kent, who wondered at his absence.

But why should she remember him? Was not rich young Townsend, who was said to be "dying for her," ready at her call? And were there not picnics and parties, and excursions, in which Myra Kent was the principal figure?

Rowen often asked himself if the girl knew that she had not seen him. It was in vain that he scoffed at himself, for every hour in the day he must own that he loved her—that the thought that he must live his life without her was so unbearable to him that he fought against it.

On the fourth day from that on which the conversation on the balcony had been held, Rowen said that he would give this one day to the search, and, if the bauble was not found, he would summarily cut short the fascination which bound him—he would take the evening train to London.

"I think I am losing my senses," he said, as he strolled down the road, his eyes fixed on the ground, his cigar forgotten between his lips.

There was a rustle in the bushes, a shrill bark sounded, and then out dashed a little Skye terrier, who flew at Rowen in an exuberance of gladness at sight of him.

Rowen stopped to caress the creature, which belonged to Myra Kent, and was her constant companion.

The young man's eyes glanced about, hoping to see the dog's mistress; but no one appeared, and at last Rowen was sure she was not near.

Instead of going back in a few moments the dog kept near, and at last, when Rowen tried to drive him away, Alfred persisted in remaining.

"You are not at all like your mistress," said Rowen, with some bitterness. "She would not manifest such delight at being with me."

The man and dog went on slowly, and it was not until some minutes had passed that Rowen noticed that the terrier continually turned back and looked at him as if asking him to come.

Idly at last Rowen turned and followed Alfred, who leaped a stone wall and flew across a field covered with faded golden rod. He uttered short barks of satisfaction as he went, and was constantly turning about to see that Rowen followed. He went faster and faster, so that finally Rowen was nearly running to keep him in sight.

Suddenly the dog leaped and scrambled down the steep bank of a dry water course, and when Rowen came to the edge and looked down he uttered an exclamation of alarm and surprise and then swung himself down from a birch tree and fell rather than walked to a place where lay a figure whose blue dress and bright scarf were familiar to his eyes.

"Myra!" he cried, as he flung himself down by her.

All his love and agony were in that word. He had feared to find her senseless, dead, but she looked at him, and a faint smile came to her white lips. As she met his eyes, as the fire in them poured down upon her, a tinge of color came into her face.

"I think most of my ribs are broken, and perhaps the rest of my bones," she said, with an effort at speaking as lightly as her words sounded. "But I've found my bracelet."

As she spoke the last words her face turned deathly white, and she sank still further back in unconsciousness.

A quarter of an hour later, when life returned to her, she found herself supported in Rowen's arms, and before she opened her eyes she felt a pair of trembling lips pressed passionately upon her own.

"Forgive me! Forgive me!" murmured Rowen. "I was wild—I thought you dead! May you never suffer as I have."

She tried to withdraw herself, but he held her fast; he could not let her go. There was something in her face that emboldened him, that made his hopes rise intoxicatingly.

"And now that I am not dead?" she whispered, at last.

"Ah, now—now I will never let you go!" he exclaimed, holding her yet closer. "Have you ever guessed how I love you?"

"Yes—I half fancied—but——" was the low response.

"But what?"

"I dared not think of it because—because I was afraid I should discover that I loved you!" was the delicious reply.

A few moments after he said:

"I intended to have found that bracelet myself."

"It's all the same," she said, shyly smiling, "since I have found it."—Spare Moments.

Hindoo English.

The following is taken from a hotel advertisement in the Calcutta Times: "Gentlemen who come in hotel not say anything about their meals they will be charged for, and if they should say beforehand that they are going out to breakfast or dinner, etc., and if they say that they not have anything to eat they will be charged, and if not so they will not be charged, or unless they bring it to the notice of the manager of the place, and should they want to say anything they must order the manager for one, not any one else, and unless they bring not it to the notice of the manager they will be charged for the least things according to the hotel rate, and no fuss will be allowed afterward about it."

First Blood for Boers.

First blood in the Transvaal war fell to the Boers on Oct. 12, an armored train on the way to Mafeking being attacked and disabled, and the little British force captured.

Lots of men might acquire fortunes if they didn't waste so much time in figuring how to make money without work.

Thin Seeding.

A correspondent of the New York Tribune writes that having been informed by one whom he knew to be a good farmer that he had planted wheat sixteen inches between the rows and three inches apart in the rows, one grain in a place, and had harvested eighty-four bushels to the acre, he planted a small plot to wheat on Sept. 22, 1898, on hard clay soil that was manured in the spring and planted to strawberries. The planting was six inches apart in the row between the strawberry rows. Two rows he planted one grain to the hill; one row two grains to the hill. He gave the wheat one cultivation on April 24. The average number of heads to the hill in the rows planted one grain to the hill was eighteen large heads. The largest number of heads to a single grain was thirty, which gave a yield of 2,097 grains. The row with the two grains to the hill gave an average of nineteen heads to the hill. The greatest yield was thirty-six heads to the hill, which gave a yield of 2,035 grains—sixty-two less than the one grain hill. The yield was at the rate of 106 bushels to the acre, providing the planting was twelve by six inches. I planted a small plot to oats on the same kind of soil to the hill, and cultivated four times. The yield was at the rate of 175 bushels to the acre, providing the planting was done twelve by six inches. He has raised as many as forty-five large heads from a single grain, when planted six by six inches apart one grain in a hill, and in 1897 he had two hills of rye, one of which yielded 126 heads and the other 127 heads, each grown from a single grain. The plants have more room for their roots and are abundantly and constantly fed at such distances while in close seeding they have periods of starvation.

Southern Cotton Factories.

Commissioner Patten, of North Carolina, told the Louisiana Sugar Planters' Association that the establishment of cotton factories in his State was not only advancing the price of cotton there, as the home factories would pay from one-fourth to one-half per cent. more than English agents could afford to pay for it to ship abroad, and giving employment to laborers there, but it is creating a greater demand for other farm products, chickens, eggs, butter, vegetables and fruits, and thus leading to a more diversified farming. They have now from 170 to 175 cotton factories, and will probably spin the entire product of the State this year, about 450,000 bales. They employ white labor altogether as yet, but a factory is being built mostly by capital subscribed by negroes, which is to employ a negro manager and be run by negro labor. Mr. Culver, of Alabama, said many of the cotton mills in his State were doubling their capacity, and thus far Japan has taken their entire product, but they anticipate also a large trade in China when they are ready to meet the demand there.

Shire Mare.

The Shire mare Barrow Lassie 28852, the property of Mr. B. Hutchinson, Eckington, near Pershore, England, is a celebrated specimen of the breed. She was got by Valesman of Willington 14913, dam Marston Princess by Albert Edward 5467. She has had a distinguished career in the showyard, having been first at the Royal at Birmingham, as well as winning many other first and special prizes.

Oleomargarine Sales.

Recent frequent convictions of persons in New York State found with oleomargarine in their possession are taken to indicate that traffic in that commodity continues in the face of the laws of the State Board of Agriculture. Some idea of the extent of the oleomargarine trade may be gained from the statistics just published at Washington, which give the quantity made and sold during the fiscal year ending July 1, 80,495,628 pounds, an increase of 25,106,901 pounds over the previous year. This is in spite of the fact that the "anti-color" law exists in thirty-four States. It is on the point of color that the legality of oleomargarine sale hangs. In its natural state, that of a pearly white, there is no law against it.

Tile Draining.

Tile drain should be put from five to six feet below the surface, not only to prevent any danger of freezing, but to prevent them from being choked up by grass roots, which would soon fill them at a depth of two to three feet from the surface. Deepening the drainage also deepens the soil, and makes the land dry earlier in the spring, resist drought better and available for many crops which would not grow if the water was within three feet of the surface.

When Horses Go to Sleep.

It is not generally known that at least four out of every ten horses do not lie down to sleep. The horse that sleeps in a standing position rests on leg at a time, depending on the other three to sustain the weight of his body. The habit is a very dangerous one. Only a short time since a fine horse in the stables of a big manufacturing concern went to sleep while standing in his stall and fell heavily to the floor, breaking one of his legs. A great many horses are permanently injured as a result of accidents of this nature, and there is no way of curing them of the habit.

The Strawberry.

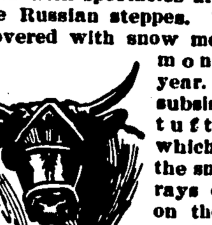
When it is considered how easy it is to grow the strawberry and what a delicious and healthful article of food it is, the wonder is that it is not more generally grown.

A plat of ground 40x20 feet will hold 500 plants, set in rows one foot apart in row, with two feet walking between each series of the rows. This plat set in early, medium and late varieties, will supply an average family lavishly with this exceedingly delightful and wholesome fruit during the strawberry season of four weeks or more.

The cost, counting the purchase of plants, need hardly amount to 1 cent a quart. Even this might be covered, or much more than covered, by the sale of surplus berries. Fresh, well-ripened berries of the large improved varieties rarely go begging anywhere, but sell readily at fair prices, often at high prices.—Exchange.

Cows Wear Spectacles.

Cattle with spectacles are to be seen on the Russian steppes. The steppes are covered with snow more than six months of the year. The cows subsist on the tufts of grass which crop above the snow, and the rays of the sun on the snow are so dazzling as to cause blindness.



To obviate this calamity it occurred to a kind-hearted man to protect the cows' eyes in the same way as those of human beings, and he manufactured smoke-colored spectacles which could be safely worn by cattle. These spectacles were a great success, and are now worn by upward of 40,000 head of cattle, which no longer suffer from the snow-blindness which once caused such suffering among them.

Fattening Cattle.

A fat steer of 1,000 pounds weight is said to have in it 500 pounds of water, about twenty-five pounds of nitrogen, eighteen pounds of phosphoric acid and two pounds of potash. To buy this nitrogen to return to the soil would cost about $3.50, and the phosphoric acid would cost about $1. In selling such an animal raised on the farm and farm products about $4.50 worth of fertilizing material is taken. If bran, linseed meal or other grain is bought to feed it, more than this would probably be added to the farm, and it would be growing richer, while if the hay and grain it consumed had been sold off the farm, it would have been robbed of much more.

Science of Feeding.

In a warm climate fruit is sufficient to sustain life, but up in the Arctic regions oil and fat are essential. In the feeding of live stock the temperature of the atmosphere should always be considered. Hundreds of farmers feed the same ration the year round. So much corn or oats is given whether the season is winter or summer. The animals may eat all that is allowed, but they become fat in summer and do not gain in winter. During severely cold weather a large proportion of grain should be given, especially of corn, while the supply of hay should not be reduced.

Poultry Pointers.

Flocks of poultry are sometimes unprofitable because the laying hens are compelled to support those that produce nothing. If the young pullets are hatched early in the year and kept in a growing condition they should begin laying by November. But it seems that with many flocks only a few begin laying so early in the winter season. This is due to not culling out the flock and disposing of those that have not made suitable growth with the others. When hatching early pullets only, eggs from selected hens should be used, so as to improve the laying qualities of the members of the flock.

Warming Food for Stock.

Most of the advantages of cooking food, and especially of food containing much water, come from feeding it warm. If grain of any kind is fed, it will do more good if ground and fed dry than if cooked. Heat expands all substances that contain starch. If fed dry, the animal eats more than it supposes it is eating. The expansion occurs in the stomach, and the animal, if a ruminant, lies down to chew its cud and indulge in the long sleep that insures good health and good digestion. If horses are fed too much, it often causes colic.

Sheep on the Farm.

Millions of dollars' worth of material is wasted every year on the farms of this country that might be saved by using sheep during the summer months. The large growth on pastures and fields of weeds and other unsalable vegetation will provide an abundance for sheep, as they will consume many plants that the cows and other stock reject.

An Invitation to Women

All the world knows of the wonderful cures which have been made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, yet some women do not realize that all that is claimed for it is absolutely true.

If all suffering women could be made to believe that Mrs. Pinkham can do all she says she can, their suffering would be at an end, for they would at once profit by her advice and be cured.

There is no more puzzling thing than that women will suffer great pain month after month when every woman knows of some woman whom Mrs. Pinkham has helped, as the letters from grateful women are constantly being published at their own request.

The same derangements which make painful or irregular periods with dull backaches and headaches, and dragging-down sensations, presently develop into those serious inflammations of the feminine organs which completely wreck health.

Mrs. Pinkham invites women to write freely and confidentially to her about their health and get the benefit of her great experience with the sufferings of women. No living person can advise you so well. No remedy in the world has the magnificent record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for absolute cures of female ills. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass.

Three Letters from One Woman, Showing how She Sought Mrs. Pinkham's Aid, and was cured of Suppression of the Menses and Inflammation of the Ovaries.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I have been in bed a year. Doctors say I have female weakness. I have a bad discharge and much soreness across my ovaries, bearing-down pains and have not menstruated for a year. Doctors say the menses will never appear again. Hope to hear from you."—MRS. J. F. BROWN, Holton, Kans., April 1, 1898.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I received your letter. I have taken one bottle and a half of your Vegetable Compound, and used two packages of your Wash, and feel stronger and better. I can walk a few steps, but could not before taking your Compound. I still have the discharge and am sore across the ovaries, but not so bad. Every one thinks I look better since taking your Vegetable Compound."—MRS. J. F. BROWN, Holton, Kans., Aug. 13, 1898.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I think it is my duty to let you know the good that Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound has done me. After I took three bottles, menses appeared, and I began to feel stronger and all my pain was gone. Yours is the only medicine that ever helped me. I am able now to work around the house, something I did not expect to do again."—MRS. J. F. BROWN, Holton, Kans., Jan. 25, 1899.

Three More Letters from One Woman, Relating how She was Cured of Irregular Menstruation, Leucorrhœa and Backache.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I am suffering and need your aid. I have pains in both sides of the womb and a dragging sensation in the groin. Menstruation irregular and painful; have leucorrhœa, bearing-down pains, soreness and swelling of the abdomen, headache, backache; nervousness, and can neither eat nor sleep."—MRS. CARRIE PHILLIPS, Anna, Ill., July 19, 1897.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I want to thank you for what you have done for me. When I wrote to you I was a total wreck. Since taking your Vegetable Compound, Liver Pills and Sanative Wash, my nerves are stronger and more steady than ever before, and my backache and those terrible pains are gone. Before I took your medicine I weighed less than one hundred and thirty pounds. I now weigh one hundred and fifty-five pounds. Your medicine is a godsend to poor weak women. I would like to ask you why I cannot have a child. I have been married nearly three years."—MRS. CARRIE PHILLIPS, Anna, Ill., Dec. 1, 1897.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I did just as you advised me, and now I am the happy mother of a fine baby girl. I believe I never would have had her without your Vegetable Compound."—MRS. CARRIE PHILLIPS, Anna, Ill., Jan. 27, 1899.

Proof that Falling of the Womb is Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—When I wrote to you some time ago, I had been suffering from falling of the womb for many years without obtaining relief. Was obliged to wear a bandage all the time; also had bad headache and backache, felt tired and worn out. After taking six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and four boxes of Liver Pills, I discarded my bandage and have not had to wear it since. I am entirely cured."—MRS. J. P. TROUTMAN, Box 44, Hamilton, Ohio.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—For nearly two years I was unable to work. I was very weak and could not stand on my feet but a few minutes at a time. The doctors said I had falling and inflammation of the womb. I began to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after using five bottles I feel like a new woman."—MRS. P. M. BLAKE, Confluence, W. Va.

Addison Rand Is Dead.

New York, March 13.—Addison C. Rand, president of the Rand Drill Company and president of the Laflin & Rand Powder company, is dead in this city, aged 59 years.

BLIND FROM INFANCY.

This Girl Is Now Widely Known as a Writer and Lawyer.

Although handicapped by blindness from infancy, the accomplishments of Miss Blanche Fearing, of Chicago, in the world of letters and the legal profession, have given her a name that would be an honor to one endowed with all his faculties and possessed of all facilities for pursuing an education from early childhood.

MISS FEARING.

Miss Fearing is a dual success in her dual professions of author and lawyer. She began to be an author before she turned her attention to the pursuit and knowledge of the legal trade and what she once began she quickly carried to a successful issue.

Miss Fearing was born and passed her childhood in Iowa. She wrote her first poem at the age of 8, and when 12 years old had composed a sufficient number of verses to fill a good-sized volume. Miss Fearing decided to add the lawyer's laurels to her author's chaplet. She left Iowa for Chicago and immediately entered upon a course of instruction in preparation for legal practice. She entered Union College as a student of law and her skill in acquiring the rudiments of knowledge quickly brought her into prominent notice. Upon completing her course, she opened an office in Chicago and has met with success. Her literary labors have not been neglected for the cares and requirements of the law, and she recently placed before the public a novel which has met with high approval from the critics.

NEWSPAPER READING

Room that Is Said to Be the Largest in the World.

The reading room for newspapers and periodicals in the library of Congress, under the direction of Superintendent A. B. Slawson, is said to be the largest newspaper reading room in the world. Five hundred American daily newspapers and 100 foreign papers, mostly dailies, have been subscribed for. The files are being arranged alphabetically by States and countries for the benefit of visitors from different parts of the United States and from other countries, so that they can find their home papers without difficulty. Heretofore the newspapers were not open to the public and had to be called for and sent out like books.

Every State in the Union is represented, with all the colonial possessions. The Manila Freedom has not yet arrived, but the Hawaiian Gazette is on file, with newspapers from Cuba and Puerto Rico. South and Central America are liberally represented because of the frequent demands of Congressman for newspapers from those sections. Trade papers are included in the South American assortment.

The papers are kept on a newspaper file invented expressly for the library by Bernard R. Green, superintendent of the building, by means of which the latest issue is slipped in and back numbers slipped out by releasing a metal band, and without tearing or creasing the papers. The weekly and monthly periodicals number about 2,000.—New York Times.

It Was Cruel.

She was really very timid.

And was he quite sure it would not hurt her?

It was so annoying to be suddenly frightened.

A dead open and shut brace game of security from harm?

How nice! No, she did not understand exactly, but, as she had never, never seen a real, live, red bat, she might take just one peep, just a peep, into the cute little box he had in his hand.

Would the bat really wink its twinkling, batty, beady bugles at her, and squeak a little squeaky squirt of a squeak! How funny he was.

Mercy! Don't open the box yet.

Give her time to prepare herself.

Yes, he could hold her hand as an assurance of his presence, and support, if necessary.

No squeezing, though.

Now, open the lid so carefully that the little bat cannot fly out, and tear her fluffy fluffets.

And she was sold as a Greek slave in the market place of the streets of Cairo by a brickbat.

An Engineering Triumph.

One of the latest triumphs in the engineering world consists in the construction, shipment by steamer, and subsequent transfer to railway transportation of a steamer of 4,200 tons' displacement, which was finally put afloat in Lake Baikal, Siberia, not less than 5,000 miles from St. Petersburg.

Australian Opal Mines.

Opal mining is one of the latest Australian mineral industries. The principal opal mining center is White Cliffs, where the gem has been found in highly paying quantities and of the richest quality, within a radius of ten miles, and a population of 1,500 or thereabouts is settled there.

Water Hard to Heat.

Water is the hardest of all substances to heat, with the single exception of hydrogen gas. The easiest two are mercury and lead, which stand in this respect on nearly the same footing.

When a man fusses, his wife doesn't care so much that he is displeased as she fears that the neighbors will hear him.

Wheat Unsold.

Washington.—The March report of the statistician of the department of agriculture will show the amount of wheat remaining in farmers' hands on March 1 to have been about 158,800,000 bushels, or 29 per cent of last year's crop, as compared with 198,000,000 bushels, or 29.3 per cent of the crop of 1898 in hand March, 1899. The corn in farmers' hands is estimated at 773,700,000 bushels, or 37.2 per cent of last year's crop, against 800,500,000 bushels or 41.6 per cent of the crop of 1898 on hand March 1, 1899. The proportion of the total crop of last year shipped out of the country where grown is estimated at 16.8 per cent, or about 348,000,000 bushels. The proportion of the total crop of last year that was of a merchantable standard is estimated at 86.9 per cent. Of oats there are reported to be about 290,000,000 bushels, or 36.5 per cent of last year's crop still in farmers' hands, as compared with 283,000,000 bushels, or 38.7 per cent of the crop of 1898 on hand March 1, 1899.

Major Ward Is Wounded.

Manila, March 13.—Advices received from Aparri, province of Cayagan, say that while Major Ward of the Sixteenth regiment was leaving that place his troops were attacked at a landing on the river bank opposite the town. A persistent fight followed, resulting in eight Americans, including Ward being wounded. The natives in Cayagan valley presumably instigated the attack.

The dispatches add that the Tagalans are harassing the Americans.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out, and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

WAR AFFAIRS IN LONDON

QUEEN'S PARADE—BIG WAR TAX

British Taxpayer Is More Heavily Burdened—The Parade for Effect—Lord Salisbury Was Consulted First—Queen Has Given Up Trip to Italy.

London, March 12.—The past week that opened with a budget increasing the burden of the British taxpayer to an almost unprecedented extent and ended with the queen stirring hundreds of thousands of her subjects to enthusiastic demonstrations of patriotism and war fever, can scarcely be said to be barren in interesting circumstances. It would perhaps be giving Lord Salisbury and his cabinet too much credit to say that the sudden springing of the budget with this enormous deficit and the quickly planned visit of the queen to London almost before the people had time to realize how much the war was costing them, were part and parcel of a masterly understanding of politics which under the cloak of academic lethargy is keenly alive to every chance of the moment. But, whatever were the motives prompting the government's actions—and the queen never moves without consulting Lord Salisbury—they resulted most favorably.

No suspicion of political premeditation has marred the heartiness of the queen's welcome, though the Irish have not proved quite so ingenious in commenting on her proposed visit to their shores. Still, on the whole, the recent actions of the queen, her decision to remain home instead of going to Italy, her projected trip to the Emerald Isle and her generous recognition of the gallantry of the Irish troops, combined with the victorious progress of Lord Roberts, have once more put the United Kingdom on excellent terms with itself.

Indian Population.

Washington.—The annual reports of Indian agents which have been received by the commissioner of Indian affairs, will be printed in the form of an appendix to the report of the commissioner. They show that the entire Indian population is 297,905, of which number 95,697 wore citizens' dress. Those who can read number 59,397 and 53,314 can carry on an ordinary conversation in English. There are 25,236 dwelling houses built for Indians, 1153 of which were built within the last year. The number of births were 4237 and the deaths 5253. Twenty-six Indians were killed by whites and seven whites by Indians. One Indian was killed by other Indians. The number of Indian criminals punished was 1269. There were 31,655 Indian church members and 348 church buildings upon the various reservations. The amount of money contributed during the last year by religious and other societies was: For education, $261,515; for general church work, $119,407, and $16,016 from New York for the support of the school established by that state.

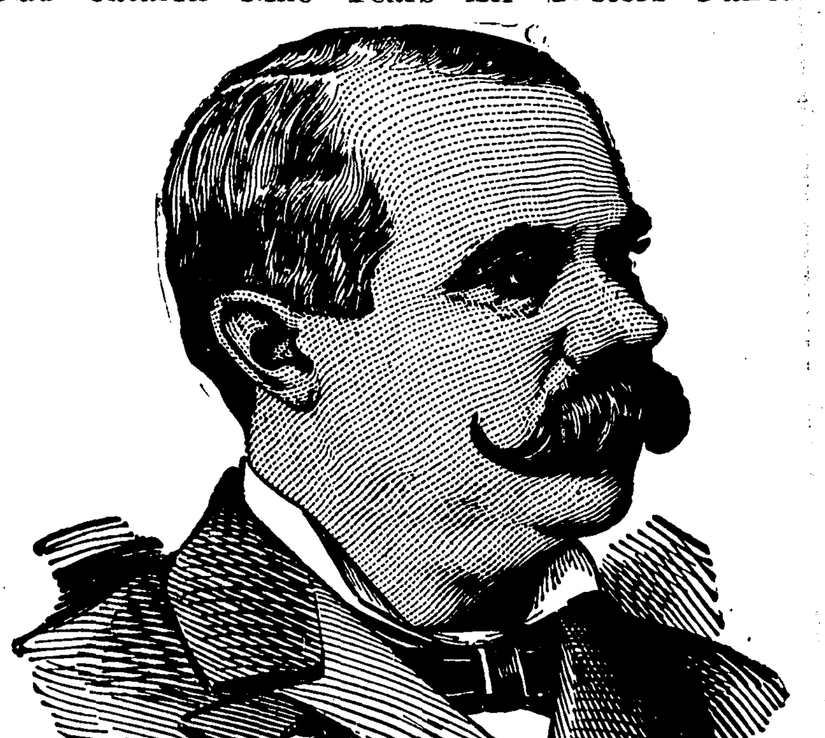
A NOTED JUDGE SAVED BY PERUNA

Had Catarrh Nine Years---All Doctors Failed



HON. GEORGE KERSTEN, OF CHICAGO.

Hon. George Kersten, a well-known Justice of the Peace, of Chicago says:

"I was afflicted with catarrh for nine years. My catarrh was located chiefly in my head. I tried many remedies without avail. I applied to several doctors, but they were not able to cure me. I learned of the remedy, Peruna, through the daily newspapers. After taking the remedy for 18 weeks I was entirely cured. I consider my cure permanent, as it has been two and a half years since I was cured."

Any man who wishes perfect health must be entirely free from catarrh. Catarrh is well-nigh universal; almost omnipresent. Peruna is the only absolute safeguard known. A cold is the beginning of catarrh. To prevent colds, to cure colds, is to cheat catarrh out of its victims. Peruna not only cures catarrh, but prevents it.

All families should provide themselves with a copy of Dr. Hartman's free book entitled "Winter Catarrh." This book consists of seven lectures on catarrh and la grippe delivered at The Hartman Sanitarium. It contains the latest information on the treatment of catarrh diseases. Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

Neuralgia! RHEUMATISM

I do not know how to express how wonderful I think your "5 DROPS" medicine is. I was suffering intensely with NEURALGIA and thought for a month that I would have to die. One day a lady called to see me and brought me an advertisement of your "5 DROPS." I resolved to try it and sent for a sample bottle. Have been taking it for three weeks and have not had an attack of suffering since I took the first dose. I believe it has saved my life. This statement is positively true. I shall also take pleasure in recommending your "5 DROPS" for the cure of NEURALGIA.
L. R. SMITH.
El Dorado Springs, Mo., Nov. 27, 1899.

Your "5 DROPS" came to hand on the 11th of last month and was glad to receive it for I was suffering at the time with untold agonies. The first dose helped me out of my pain on short notice. Bless the name of God for it. It will do all you say it will, and more too. I had severe pains all over my body, when night came I could not sleep. The worst pain was in my left leg. I could not put my foot to the floor without suffering great pain. Have used four different kinds of medicine for RHEUMATISM and got no relief until I got your "5 DROPS," which gave me immediate relief as above stated.

The fishermen of British Columbia are to be organized.

The bill against injunctions before congress is already being declared unconstitutional by the lawyers. Even some of its friends fear that it would not stand the attacks of corporation lawyers, and they express doubts that any law can be passed to curb the courts in issuing injunctions in times of strike. Of course, capitalistic courts will interpret constitutions and laws in the interest of capitalism. That's natural. Class interests compel such action.

Still More Counterfeiting.

The Secret Service has unearthed another band of counterfeiters and secured a large quantity of bogus bills, which are so cleverely executed that the average person would never suspect them of being spurious. Things of great value are always selected by counterfeiters for imitation, notably the celebrated Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has many imitators but no equals for indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, nervousness and general debility. The Bitters sets things right in the stomach, and when the stomach is in good order it makes good blood and plenty of it. In this manner the Bitters get at the seat of strength and vitality and restore vigor to the weak and debilitated. Beware of counterfeits when buying.

EVERYTHING!

—AT—

VOLLMER'S.

New Goods Arriving Daily!

—The fruit buds are bursting.

—A stock company is being formed at Caldwell for a woolen mill.

—The Lapwai country is green as nature can make it. Let's go fishing.

—Mrs. Vine Favor of Moscow has been visiting the F. K. Bressler and G. N. Hollister families the past ten days.

—The gardeners about town have been tickling the earth this week. They will be closely followed by the energetic biddies.

—Five hundred families, mostly from Iowa and Indiana, have located in and around Nampa the past six months, says the Leader.

—Messrs. Hodgins and Wood are making extensive improvements on their premises. They have ordered ornamental trees, shrubbery, lawn-grass, and so on.

—W. M. Welch's term of school in the Tweedt district closed last Friday with a sort of review. Many patrons were present. Mr. Welch will open the spring term in the Ingle district next Monday.

—Ed. Peterson and H. A. Thomas over northeast, the Hasfurther boys and X. Henry out west and Fred Pickering on the southeast, report fall grain looking extra fine—good for forty bushels with a fair season.

—A number of our farmers will experiment with the new cereal, cornwheat, this year. It is sown the same as any grain, 1½ bushels per acre, and it is claimed will yield double that of wheat, or about 75 bushels per acre.

—The bicyclists are dusting and oiling up their steeds and getting their paraphernalia—not bloomers—in readiness. A few of the ladies ventured out this week, but found the sidewalks preferable to the roads for wheeling.

—The hog buyers are quite numerous in this locality. Five cents for live swine is all right and is putting many of the farmers in comfortable quarters. Mixed farming pays best, for then you always have something that will bring the top price.

—Genesee is a good point in which to do your trading. The merchants carry good stocks, have little if any rent to pay and can and do undersell merchants of surrounding towns. The merchants delight to show you goods and prices whether you buy or not.

—A new survey, we are informed by the railroad boys, is being run in the Kendrick country, higher up the bluffs, by the N. P. It is said the road will replace the wooden bridges between Kendrick and Troy with steel structures this summer owing to the numerous winter washouts.

—Jacob Leitch and wife, Allen Leitch, Geo. Black and Miss Sadie Mercer arrived here over the Burlington Friday from Campbell, Illinois, to give Idaho a trial. The former gentlemen are relatives of John Leitch living east of Genesee. They are delighted with our country and will at once secure land and raise mixed crops, cattle, etc. They will attempt to raise broom corn, having brought the seed with them from the east. Dr. Leitch, who was here last summer prospecting, will be here in a few weeks to roam the mountains.

—We are informed that former Congressman Jame Gunn of Idaho, has made application for admission into the National Soldiers' Home at Washington. During the last year of his congressional term Mr. Gunn's mental grasp was rapidly slipping away from him. During the past year both his physical and mental condition have grown worse and it will be a source of satisfaction to all his friends to learn that he has found a haven of rest in the institution at whose doors he is now knocking.—Pocatello Tribune. Mr. Gunn's many friends here will be very sorry to hear of the misfortune.

—A number of young people assembled at the Rosenstein residence last Friday evening and perpetrated a pleasant surprise on Miss Gussie. Going to the door upon hearing a startling ring, Miss Rosenstein almost fainted when greeted by a mob yelling "surprise." A very pleasant evening was spent with games, songs, and music. At 9 o'clock and 11:30 a delightful repast was served and the ice cream, cake, candy, nuts, oranges and lemonade soon disappeared. There were some thirty guests present and Miss Gussie was assisted, in entertaining them, by Misses Teresa Walby and Ople Swank. At midnight the guests dispersed, telling their young hostesses that they had spent one of the most enjoyable evenings of their lives.

—M. A. Means is in Orofino.

—Harry Lydon was up from Lewiston the first of the week.

—Mr. and Gilbert Crawford are here visiting their people.

—Geo. Northern comes up smiling with a boy, a horse jockey.

—D. B. Grant had that "tired feeling" first of the week. Good as new now.

—Christian Freng has been visiting the farmers and jotting down notes in the assessor's books.

—C. H. Murphy was the first over northeast to start up the plow. He is cultivating that liberty-pole.

—James Dermott sends us the cash and wants the NEWS to visit him weekly at Salem, Ore., without fail.

—The Rimrockers are busy plowing and seeding. Everything is in prime condition down that way

—Miss Edna Pickering has been "holding down" her claim on the reservation a few miles from town the past week.

—Matt Fuchs has two girls and two boys now, a young lady arriving last Sunday. Pretty good hand to bluff with, Matt.

—Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Jain are the happy parents of a bright girl baby, born March 8th. Grandma and Grandpa Jain say she's a bird.

—Earl Morse and Claud Mochel visited Nezperce this week. Report Sam Johnson and Bob Near opening up fine farms and doing well.

—Ira Ebenezer Cadwell, now occupying a high position with the First National Bank of Lewiston, and Silver Darwin, assistant manager of Vollmer's Lewiston store, were in the city Sunday.

—According to the truthful Asotin Sentinel a yearling steer was sold last week there which weighed 930 lbs. The price paid was 4½ cents and brought the owner $41.85. It surely pays to raise stock.

—The case of Judson Ford, charged with arson, came up for trial before a jury at Lewiston Wednesday. He is the gentleman that destroyed F. D. Hasbrouck's house by fire last summer. Mr. Hasbrouck, Marshal Driscoll and Mike Glover attended court. The gentleman was found guilty in the second degree.

—John McMartin returned from South Dakota on Wednesday's train and is pleased more than ever with our mild climate. Says they had a fine winter in Dakota, people are quite contented and the town of De Smet is as "pretty as a picture." Grain raising does not cut much of a figure since the people have turned their attention to creamery and stock-raising.

—The census enumerators just appointed for Latah county, are: W. D. Pemberton, W. R. Crawford, J. G. Vennigerholz, Herman Nebelsieck, J. V. Brown, W. C. Lauder, Chas. S. Barnes, C. F. Godfrey, Rodney P. Drury, Louis G. Peterson, C. B. Sanders. For Nez Perce: H. L. Swift, L. D. Schattner, R. B. McKissick, F. D. Hasbrouck, J. M. Williams, J. C. Wait, P. M. Harding, A. W. Lee, H. J. Taylor, W. P. Parker.

—J. W. Brigham held forth at the Cong'l church Sunday evening and pleased the hearers with his talk on the opium question. He stated that the opium habit was one hundred per cent worse than the liquor drinking habit. Cigarettes and cheap tobacco contained much opium. Boys in the towns and on the farms are daily, and during the dead of night, shortening their lives by smoking opium; their brains become dull, seared, and the nerves unstrung, body lifeless—in short, the boy becomes worthless. The harm from this source, Mr Brigham stated, was appalling.

—A letter from the general superintendents of the Northwestern Home Finding Association reports work done during the past six months as follows: Twenty homeless children placed permanently in select families, nineteen neglected children given temporary care, homes provided for two mothers with their babes and employment given to one released prisoner, making a total of 41 children and 3 adults provided for by the association. The superintendents report a bright girl fourteen years old needing a good home. Applications for children or others under the care of the association, may be made to any member of the local board at Genesee, or Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Williams, general superintendents, 119, E. 3rd Ave., Spokane. Funds to assist the work may be given to any member of the local board or sent direct to the treasurer of the association, Prof. H. C. Blair, principal of the Blair Business College, Spokane, and due acknowledgement will be made.

MRS. W. C. FOWLER, Pres.
MRS. LEON FOLLETT, Secy.

—Mr. and Mrs. Higgins, of Nezperce, visited in Genesee this week on their way to Colfax.

—Charming weather; flowers in bloom, no fires in the parlor, chicks are rolling out, sleek cattle.

—The ladies' aid society of the Cong'l church will meet with Mrs. Standish Wednesday 2 p. m.

—Subject at the evening service at Cong'l church will be, "The prodical son." No preaching in the morning.

—The farmers are feeding squirrels now. "A stitch in time saves nine" is the way the enterprising toiler figures it out.

—Prof. Swidensky has gone to Denver to accept a position as leader of the orchestra at the Tabor Grand opera house in that city.

—Mrs. Elizabeth Jacobs, west of Genesee, came into possession of the Nels J. Visby quarter section east of town, consideration $3,475. R. Pickering made the transfer.

—Orchardists tell the NEWS that the promise for a fruit crop was never better since the first trees were planted. The mild winter has brought the trees through in the pink of condition. Looks like this will be a great fruit year—a record breaker.

—Chas. Craig, the impersonator, held forth at Elliott hall Monday night to a fair audience. Mr. Craig is a good actor, but being without stage scenery or music, the play rendered did not seem to suit the auditors. All admit he is a good performer.

—The attendance is so large at the Genesee public schools that the board deemed it advisable to hire the sixth teacher. At the meeting Monday evening Cecelia Spurbeck was hired and will start in next Monday. Miss Duthie has over 70 scholars in her room and it is impossible for her or any one else to do justice to so many. Many parents cannot properly look after three or four children let alone a roomful.

—Guess it is going to be a skimming station. At the meeting Saturday the farmers showed considerable interest. The proposition submitted to them by the Hazelwood Co. on this day was not quite as generous as the one given at a previous gathering. The Hazelwood people now say they will put in a station upon a guarantee of 2000 pounds of milk daily. It is thought the guarantee will be forthcoming. It is undecided yet whether the company will collect the cream from the farmers in the country or in town.

CLOSING IN ON THE BOERS.

British Move on the Federals From East to West.

London, March 12.—The only important change in the general situation in South Africa indicated by the news, is that General Buller is again on the move. The news comes in a dispatch from the Boer camp at Biggarsberg, dated Thursday, saying: "Twelve thousand British are threatening the Boer positions from the direction of Helpmaaker, while a party of British scouts was encountered at Waschbank March 8."

This force was probably General Hunter's division, and it is considered quite possible that an attempt may be made to traverse the neck of Zululand into the Transvaal, thus effecting the double purpose of outflanking the Boers at Biggarsberg and threatening Vryheid and Utrecht. The Boers are reported to be at Biggarsberg in considerable numbers, but it is said they are already sending their stores to the rear.

General Joubert appears to have left active service to take charge of the war office at Pretoria. Lorenzo Marquez stories attribute his action partly to the alleged fact that he has lost both control over and the confidence of the burghers, and partly to his wish to push the preparations for the siege which is supposed to be beginning to be made at the capital.

Lord Roberts has not reported up to this hour today, but the military authorities are of the opinion that General French must be nearing Bloemfontein. In some quarters General French is credited with the design to corral both presidents, whose exact whereabouts, however, are difficult to ascertain at this distance. The war office is unable to confirm the rumors of the relief of Mafeking, but the trend of belief is that the relief will be effected within a few days.

Kruger at Pretoria.

Pretoria, March 12.—The president has returned from Bloemfontein. General Joubert is expected here shortly. Fighting commenced in the direction of Helpmaaker this morning.

Rebellion in the Colony.

Flanking Force Through Zululand.

Boer Headquarters, Biggarsberg, Friday, March 12.—Shots were exchanged this morning near Helpmaaker with a small body of British, who retired hastily. Scouts report that the British main advance is coming from Ladysmith towards Sunday river.

Boers Resist.

Driefontein, O. F. S., March 12.—Broadwood's brigade advancing on Bloemfontein unexpectedly found the Boers in a strong position in the Driefontein kopjes Saturday. General Kelly-Kenny division arriving severe fighting ensued. The Boers resisted stubbornly, but were driven from their position, leaving a number of dead and 40 prisoners. The British force is moving forward today. During the fighting, in which five regiments took part, with military, the Boers, though forced from their center position, clung tenaciously to the other kopjes, shelling the British freely with three guns and two Vickers-Maxims. The British cavalry begun to turn the Boer position, but night fell before the movement was completed. The Boers retired during the night.

A large number of Australians were engaged Saturday. The First Australian horse brigade, with the Scots Greys, advanced within 800 yards of the Boers under heavy fire.

The New South Wales mounted infantry joined in pursuit of the Boers northward.

For Intervention.

London, March 13.—The Daily Mail has received the following dispatch from from Pretoria, and censored by the Boer government:

"President Kruger and President Steyn have wired to Lord Salisbury peace proposals on condition that the independence of the two republics be respected and the rebel colonials amnestied. Yesterday the foreign consuls were called into conference and were requested to invite the intervention of the powers they represented in order to prevent further bloodshed."

MINES AND MINING CAMPS

NEWS OF THEIR DEVELOPMENT

Items From the Rich Regions of the Pacific Northwest—News From All the Principal Districts—Mining Notes and Personals.

Samples of ore from the Blue Bird mine in the Pend d'Oreille district show a banded, dark-looking quartz, and some of it is extremely rich in native silver and gray copper. In many respects it resembles the rich silver ore found in the Goldbug mine near Greenwood, B. C.

REPUBLIC.

Work has ceased on the Stray Horse.

A compressor has been ordered for the Chico.

The North Star tunnel is in 450 feet. It is still a matter of speculation as to when the ledge will be struck.

The Golden Harvest tunnel is in 240 feet. It is being pushed along with all possible speed. The ledge is about six feet wide on an average.

C. F. Porter, superintendent of the Golden Lion and Little Four Consolidated, stated that his company would use diamond drills in future on that mine.

The custom mill building is nearly completed. A large part of the machinery is on the ground and the management is now confident that the remainder will get in before the roads break up.

The excavating for the big Republic mill is making good progress. A large part of the rock for the foundation has been quarried and some of it is on the ground. A considerable portion of the lumber for the building is also on the ground.

The Mountain Lion mill will be in working order about the middle of this week. The machinery will be in motion at an earlier day, but not to run at the full capacity. That which has been started is working smoothly and to the satisfaction of the management.

So far no prospecting has been done with diamond drills in Republic camp, or in Ferry county; but if they prove successful on the Golden Lion and Little Four the probabilities are strong that the plan may be used to demonstrate the value of many other mines in the camp, and will materially aid in demonstrating the proper point to sink permanent shafts.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

The St. Eugene air compressor was started up last week and is now doing the work of the Lake Shore compressor, which has been shut down.

The quantity of ore in the Sullivan, East Kootenay, is enormous, and like most big veins, the ore is of low grade. The quantity, however, is such that it will stand the high tariff on lead and still yield a handsome profit.

The new tramway between the Wakefield mine and the concentrator at Silverton is complete and has been turned over to the company by the builder. It is a very complete plant and runs to the satisfaction of the company.

Col. Hayes principal owner in the Nanahmint Mining Company, closed the sale of his property on the Alberni canal for $400,000, to D. O. Mills and Chester Lee. The former is of New York, a prominent director of the Treadwell mines, while Lee is from Spokane and acts as the new company's expert.

MINING NOTES.

Baker City announces a big mining convention for next June.

The Atlin district requires capital to open it up, and is no place for small miners.

There is a mineral belt formation near Weiser, Idaho, on the east side of the Snake river.

The first two months of the year have been progressive ones for the Palmer Mountain district.

Encouraging reports come from the White Cross mine, located on the Moscow mountain, seven miles east of Moscow.

The Poland China mine, four miles and a half north of Chesaw, near Mary Ann creek, continues to improve with depth.

Every indication points to a rush to the new Mascot mining camp in the Hoodoo district as soon as the snow leaves the ground.

The Ibex mine, six miles from Sumpter, the sale of which for $300,000 to Col. W. S. Ray, a Canadian banker, was recently chronicled, has reverted to its original owners, Arthur Hill of Michigan and Simcoe Chapman of Sumpter.

Encouraging reports have been received from the Silver Plate mining Company's property in the Seven Devils district, Idaho.

The sensation of the past week in Butte circles has been the sale of the Speculator mine to the Amalgamated company for $2,000,000.

While much prominence has been given to the Review and Poland China mines, in the Meyers Creek mining district, there are many others which have been under steady development for several years and have most valuable showings.

Mining companies operating in the Pierre Lake district all state that they can feel the effects of the reports circulated of the richness of the First Thought, it being now easier to raise development funds, and several new camps that have been idle are preparing to resume development.

The Hunter mine at Mullan has been absorbed by the Morning Mining Company. The deal has been pending for several months past, and when the announcement was made it caused no surprise. The price paid is not known, but will go into the six figures. With this addition the Morning will be one of the greatest producers of silver in the district.

Deer Creek district is located on the southwestern slope of Craig mountain, in Nez Perce county, Idaho, and the original discoveries are located about two and a half miles from Salmon river on Deer creek. About 40 men are now actively engaged in developing properties in the district.

The Diadem and Brindle Horse claims, at Sumpter, owned by Charles Warren and J. K. Pardee of Philipsburg, Mont., are reported to have shown rich and increased values with late development work. The property is located in the rich Bonanza district. The development is under the supervision of Charles C. Bonner, a well-known mine superintendent and operator of Butte, Mont.

Several deeds were filed for record recently conveying fractional interests in the Alhambra group of claims to John A. Finch of Spokane, who is acting as trustee for the Alhambra Mining Company. The property of this company consists of about a dozen claims up near the summit of the St. Joe range of mountains, a short distance east of Wardner, and presumably carrying a continuation of the veins that have made the Bunker Hill and Sullivan famous.

Drifting on the various veins in the Palmer Mountain tunnel for the past month has been particularly satisfactory, and the past week has opened up in the 15th vein a fine body of ore, filling the face, and how much wider as yet undetermined. At the Bull Frog they continue to hoist good ore. The Black Bear is continuing in high-class ore in the 150-foot stopes and drift, and the mill and flume are nearing completion.

In 1898 there were 112,500 tons of concentrates and crude ore shipped from the Cœur d'Alenes, but this year will show an enormous increase over that if the estimate made by one of the leading mill superintendents. The estimate of the monthly output by this authority after the newer mills are all running is as follows, in tons per month: Standard, Mammoth and Gem, 4000; Buffalo Hump (Tiger-Poorman), 2000; Hecla, 1000; Frisco Con., 2500; Morning, 3000; Hunter, 600; Sixteen to One, 900; Bunker Hill and Sullivan, 2500; Last Chance, 100; total, 17,500. To this must be added the shipments from minor properties. The Silver King alone is shipping from 250 to 300 tons per month, and there are a number of others.

W. A. Clark is driving his long crosscut tunnel on Sunset peak ahead steadily, and will probably have his concentrator between Wallace and Mullan built before the end of the year, but it will not be in time of produce much concentrates until the end of the century.

Baker City, Ore., is destined to become in the next year or two a great gold and copper producer. Near Baker City there are more than 65 mines in operation, many of which are already on a paying basis, and these will probably be augmented this year by double that number. Flattering reports are received daily from Sumpter, Blue Canyon, Granite and other points tributary to the city of "new finds" and rich strikes. The gold ores of the district are, as a rule, free milling, or amenable to cyanide treatment. There are also occasional pockets of telurium, nagyagite and sylvanite ores to be found. The copper bearing zones, of which there are several, have not received as much attention as the gold bearing veins. It is beyond question, however, that there are immense lodes and deposits carrying native carbonates, oxides and sulphides of copper in paying quantities, and capital will find Eastern Oregon a richer field for investment today than anywhere else in the United States. The country abounds in fine water and timber, and the prospector and operator are not confronted with serious difficulty in these respects as they are often in New Mexico, Arizona and Southern California.

PROCEEDINGS IN CONGRESS

SUMMARY OF THEIR WORK

Number of Bills Pass—The Investigation of the Coeur d'Alene Troubles—A New Philippine Bill—Notes of the House.

In the Senate.

When the routine business was concluded in the senate Thursday, Senator Mason, in accordance with the notice he gave yesterday, moved to discharge the committee on foreign relations from further consideration of his resolution expressing sympathy for the Boers. Under the rule the motion went over

Lord Pauncefote, the British ambassador, was in conference with Secretary Hay for half an hour at the state department Saturday. The officials have nothing to say touching the future of the pending Hay-Pauncefote treaty. It is plain, however, that the action of the senate committee in bringing in the amendment yesterday is regarded by the officials as greatly endangering the life of the treaty. If the senate first adopts the amendment and then ratifies the treaty, a conclusion by no means certain in the official mind, it is said that the president will feel obliged to sign it, placing the responsibility upon the senate and then leaving it to the British government to accept or reject. The officials believe the British will reject the treaty, and in that case the Clayton-Bulwer treaty will prevail again, its force having been recognized according to the officials, not only by the executive branch of our government in preparing this pending treaty, but also by the senate of the United States, as evidenced by the report which accompanied the treaty yesterday when it was presented to the senate.

While the senate had the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill under consideration a lively debate was precipitated by an amendment proposed by Senator Hoar, proposing to give former Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii $20,000 and an annuity of $10,000. The amendment was tabled finally without division. Cockrell says the pension doors should be locked. "If we are to pension all the monarchs dethroned from our islands," he asserted, "we are likely to have our hands full."

Under a special order senate convened at 10 o'clock Monday, two hours before the regular hour of meeting, to be consumed in the reading of the Alaskan civil code bill. During the two hours the clerks read 123 pages of the bill.

The routine business being completed, Senator Rawlins of Utah addressed the senate on our relations with the Philippines.

Baron Gevers, the new minister from the Netherlands, will be officially received tomorrow. He brings authenticated copies of the three treaties embodying the agreements of The Hague peace conference, which he will file with the state department.

The vote on the substitute resolution to allow Young, the sitting member, to retain his seat resulted: Yeas, 130; nays, 129. This caused a great excitement. Speaker Henderson announced his vote in favor of Wise, thus making the vote a tie, 130 to 130. On recapitulation the resolution allowing Young to retain his seat was defeated 128 to 132. Mr. Richardson then moved to reconsider the vote and Mr. Weeks moved to lay the motion on the table.

An important bill reported last week from the public lands committee to extend the placer mining law of the United States, with certain modifications, to shore rights, beaching, working, etc., in Alaska was passed. The bill is designed to meet the conditions obtaining at Cape Nome. Mr. Lacey, chairman of the committee, said the bill was endorsed by the Alaska authorities and miners generally. An amendment was adopted prohibiting corporations from locating claims.

In the House.

At the opening session of the house Thursday Mr. Overstreet, in charge of the conference report on the financial bill, gave notice that he would call up the report next Tuesday. By unanimous consent it was agreed that the vote on the report should be taken at 4:30 Tuesday afternoon.

Debate on the contested election case of Aldrich-Robbins was then resumed under an agreement that the vote should be taken today.

Mr. Hamilton addressed the house in behalf of Aldrich.

James R. Sovereign continued his testimony in the Coeur d'Alene case. Owing to Representative Lentz's absence in New York, Representative Slayden of Texas directed the examination and the cross-examination was participated in by all the members of the committee. Mr. Sovereign testified that the miners' union was not responsible for the publications written by him which had been introduced as evidence.

In the course of the Coeur d'Alene riot inquiry before the committee on military affairs of the house Saturday vehement contention occurred between Mr. Mondell of Wyoming and Mr. Lentz of Ohio. Considerable acrimony was displayed. A colloquy arose because of objection to the admissibility of certain testimony on the ground of irrelevancy made by the representative from Wyoming. Witness Martin said but few of the Idaho militia went to the late war; more were home. He made the astonishing statement that only fifteen guardsmen enlisted.

L. J. Simpkins, an electrical engineer of Wardner, Idaho, testified in the Coeur d'Alene investigation. He said he did not participate in the riot, but that soon after that event was arrested by a squad of United States troops, who went about the streets arresting those persons pointed out by the Bunker Hill mine spotters. Two spectators on the street who stopped to see the soldiers and their prisoners were promptly arrested and put with the other prisoners.

Witness said that one of the prisoners, a Swede, was taken with a fit, whereupon a negro soldier struck him senseless with the butt of his gun. The corporal of the guard came up and turning over the fallen man, said: "I guess you fixed that fellow all right." Simpkins said that one of the prisoners was robbed of $90.

One of Simpkins' recitals caused something of a sensation. He said he was taken from the "bull pen" by a squad of four soldiers and marched to the open enclosure where he was placed with his back against the building. The soldiers stepped back and cocked their guns, apparently making ready to shoot him. At this point he said a high official of the Bunker Hill mine appeared and said they had evidence enough to hang the witness or send him up for many years, but if he knew who blew up the mill he would be turned loose. Simpkins said he protested that he did not know who the guilty parties were and the effort to get evidence from him was finally given up.

Raising Sugar Beets.

The approximate cost per acre of raising sugar beets varies according to the location and condition of the land and the yield, but these figures are applicable to all ordinary circumstances:

Plowing and subsoiling in fall	$ 2.50
Plowing in spring	1.00
Harrowing and rolling	.50
Seed and sowing	3.00
Cultivating	2.00
Thinning	6.00
Pulling and topping	6.00
Hauling	7.00
Total	$28.00

As the land is furnished to the beet raiser ready for seeding, the cost is reduced to $24 per acre. Deducting one-fourth of the crop for rent of ground, the renter has remaining nine tons of beets per acre, which bring him $4.50 per ton at the factory, or $40.50 per acre. As the total cost of raising the beets is $24 per acre, there is a net profit of $16.50 per acre for the producer. In addition to this profit he has employment during the season at good wages and is his own master.

It is estimated that under ordinary circumstances one man is able to take care of 10 acres of beets. A great deal of the work can be performed by boys, as well or better than by men. During the past season all the boys between 10 and 16 years of age who desired work were employed in thinning, pulling and topping beets, and paid from $1 to $1.25 per day. A man with a family of growing boys who wishes to keep them out of idleness, can do nothing better than to engage in raising sugar beets.

Kentucky's Civil War.

Frankfort, Ky., March 13.—The war scare here has again apparently flattened, although the leaders on both sides still express grave fears as to the ultimate outcome. A belief among the republicans that attempts will be made to arrest the republican legislature in connection with the assassination of Goebel has resulted in several of the leaders leaving town. Democratic officials refuse to either confirm or deny the accusation. The reports are that such warrants have been issued, and it is admitted that more arrests will take place in a few days. It is asserted that Taylor is being urged to move his executive office to London, where he will be safe from possible arrest, but that so far he has refused to entertain the idea.

Both houses of the legislature met in the state house in the morning.

In anticipation of a possible attempt by the state troops to prevent the meeting, quite a crowd gathered around the state house square at the hour of meeting, but the members of the legislature were allowed to meet without molestation. The squad of militia under Lieutenant Peack, which started for London Saturday as an escort for Secretary of State Powers and Captain Davis has returned to Frankfort. Outside of this, however, no reinforcements have arrived and it is stated now that no more are expected.

New York Banks.

New York.—The Financier says: A curious feature of the statement of the clearing house banks of New York city ending March 9, is that the decreases in cash holdings and surplus reserve almost balance the gain in loans, while deposits actually fell off $491,300. In other words, the statement seems to imply that if loans were made they were in the form of cash balances, which were taken out of bank. This is not the solution, for it is pretty generally understood that the demands are due to treasury operations and interior shipments account for the loss in cash. It may be assumed, therefore, that the cash thus diverted decreased deposits, a loss made up in large part by bonds which are credited to borrowers as deposits. The result of this is witnessed in a stationary deposit account while cash holdings have fallen off $8,088,600 and the reserve has suffered a decrease of nearly $7,000,000, bringing the present surplus reserve fund in banks down to $5,676,375, the lowest sum reported since November 25 last.

Removal of Lincoln's Body.

Springfield, Ill., March 12.—The remains of Abraham Lincoln have been transferred from the crypt of the national Lincoln monument to a temporary vault just north of the monument and on the brow of the hill overlooking Oak Ridge cemetery. The removal of the body was made necessary by the demolition of the monument preparatory to its entire reconstruction on a different plan, for which $100,000 was appropriated by the legislatue. The ceremonies attending the transfer were informal.

The Ymir mine and mill, in Ymir, B. C., is the only one of the twenty mining properties that has refused to deal square with labor and pay the compromise scale of wages.

EXCITEMENT IN KENTUCKY.

POLITICAL ROW BREAKS OUT.

State Militia and Civil Authorities Clash—The Men Escaped First, but Were Captured at Lexington—Troops Again Ordered Out.

Frankfort, Ky., March 12.—The situation here reached a point of extreme tension Saturday, almost approaching that of the trying times immediately following the assassination of Goebel. The reinstatement of the military power in complete control of the state executive building and the refusal of the military authorities to allow the local police and civil officers to enter the buildings for the purpose of arresting Secretary of State Caleb Powers and Captain J. W. Davis, charged with being accessories to the Goebel assassination and the probability of a conflict between the civil and military authorities made the situation look serious during most of the day. In the morning City Marshal Richardson applied at the executive building and demanded to be admitted for the purpose of arresting Powers and Davis, but was turned back and the warrants were turned over to Sheriff Suter. The latter also presented himself at the executive building and demanded admittance. He was referred by the officer in charge to Colonel Morrow, and the latter being found, said: "I am sorry, Mr. Sheriff, but it is against Governor Taylor's orders to let anyone into the building today."

Sheriff Suter then held a consultation with County Attorney Polsgrove, the commonwealth's attorney, Mr. Franklin and other officers. Meantime the police had been doubled and a detail of the police guarded the entrances to the state house grounds to prevent the men from escaping if they should attempt to do so. At the conference between the officials it was decided the sheriff should summon a large reserve force of deputies to be called into use in the event it was decided to attempt to enter the building in force to make the arrests, and in pursuance of this the sheriff swore in 50 men, who were stationed in the neighborhood of the sheriff's office during the afternoon. Sheriff Suter made another attempt to get an audience with Governor Taylor in the afternoon, but was unsuccessful. The streets were fairly blocked with people in the vicinity of the statehouse, but there was no open demonstration, though it was evident the populace was on the side of the civil authorities.

They Escaped From Frankfort.

Frankfort, Ky., March 12.—The escape of Secretary of State Powers and Captain Davis from this city to Lexington was so neatly laid and executed that it took the police and a big force of deputy sheriffs appointed to guard the entrances to the capitol grounds and prevent their escape off their feet when they realized what occurred.

While the police were guarding the state house and expecting Powers and Davis to emerge from there, it is probable from the developments that they were quartered elsewhere during the entire day.

At any rate, when the Chesapeake & Ohio train (eastbound) pulled in from Louisville tonight a dozen policemen and half as many deputies were there to see if either of these men attempted to board it. "All aboard," called out the conductor and the train started off. A soldier dashed from the corner on the opposite side from the station, and throwing himself upon the platform of the second car, jerked the bell cord and the train came to a stop. Then 30 soldiers, with Powers and Davis in their midst, each in regulation uniform, rushed upon the cars. Lieutenant Colonel Morrow was in charge of the squad.

"Anything the matter?" inquired the conductor, as he peered out and saw the bluecoats piling on the train.

"No, nothing the matter unless you delay this train here," responded a soldier, and with another jerk of the rope the train was off and the men were speeding toward Lexington.

Escape Discovered.

When the train first pulled out, most of the crowd, including the police, thinking that no effort was being made to take Powers and Davis out of town, turned and started to leave the station, and it was several minutes before the truth of the escape of the men was definitely known. Persons who were on the opposite side of the train, however, and who saw the soldiers as they made the rush on the train, recognized both Powers and Davis, and in a few minutes the city was inflamed with the information. Chief of Police Williams immediately sent telegrams to Lexington and all stations along the road notifying officers of the escape, and ordering them to be on the lookout.

The Capture at Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., March 12.—Almost without warning the storm center of excitement in the present gubernatorial struggle shifted to Lexington and up to a late hour the town was in an uproar. The 8:40 Chesapeake & Ohio train from Frankfort brought with it in one car to themselves Secretary of State Caleb Powers, Captain John Davis, capitol square policeman, and Lieutenant F. W. Peake of Covington. Intelligence had preceded them that they were on their way to Lexington and were trying to make their escape. When the train pulled into the depot the entire police force of the city under Chief John McD. Ross and Sheriff Henry Bosworth, with a large force of deputies, boarded the train. On entering the coach the officers found about 25 soldiers and Powers and Davis, the soldiers being under command apparently of Lieutenant Peake. Lieutenant Peake sprang to his feet at once and commanded the soldiers to clear the car.

In an instant 20 revolvers were drawn by the officers and they all leveled at Peake, who gamely tried to pull his own revolver, but as he drew it from the scabbord a policeman smashed him across the hand with his club and thus prevented what would have undoubtedly resulted in a tragedy. The sheriff commanded the conductor to cut off the car. The conductor remonstrated, stating that the train carried United States mail and the demand was then not pressed.

A local attorney recognized Powers and also pointed out Davis. They were seized and hurried to jail. As the procession swept toward the jail some people started the report that there was to be a lynching and soon the streets were packed with people, an enormous crowd gathering about the jail. Davis, Powers and Peake were hurried to the upper cells, but Peake was later released on bond on a common warrant on a charge of resisting arrest.

Davis and Powers were both disguised. Both wore the regulation soldier uniforms complete, even including the leggings. Davis had shaved off his mustache and goatee. He had $215 in money on his person and a revolver. There was found on Powers $1300. In the inside coat pocket of each man was found a pardon from Governor W. S. Taylor, duly signed and sealed.

Taylor Calls on the Troops.

Barbboursville, Ky., March 12.—The local militia company has received orders from Assistant Adjutant General Dixon to make ready to move to Frankfort at once.

One Company Will Ignore It.

London Depot, March 12.—A telegram was received here signed by Assistant Adjutant General Dixon, ordering Captain Parker to order out his company and stand ready to move to Frankfort. In the absence of Captain Parker, Lieutenant Sparks refused to move unless ordered by both governors.

Chicago's Big Strike.

Chicago, March 12.—Fifty thousand Chicago workmen, idle because of the big strike in the building trades, are dependent for their daily bread on what money they have saved or a weekly allowance per capita of $5, which comes out of the treasuries of their unions. The situation is rapidly approaching a critical point. The idle carpenters, according to good authority, have been drawing their $5 each week for the last four weeks. The structural iron workers also have been receiving financial aid from their organization, and it is said the hod-carriers emptied their strong box last week in payment of "strike benefits."

The total amount of money thus disbursed during the last four weeks is said to aggregate $500,000, if reports have been accurate as to the number of idle union workmen.

It has been estimated that, including all trades, at least 50,000 men were in a state of enforced idleness, of whom 10,000 were non-union workmen in the employ of material manufacturers who were shut out in the closing of the plants.

This would leave 40,000 union workmen idle, and a conservative estimate of the proportion receiving financial help is reported as not much below 30,000. Thirty thousand men at $5 a week each makes a payroll, big enough to stagger the largest corporation, of $150,000 a week.

The best information to be obtained on the subject today was that the funds of a number of unions had been exhausted and that the workmen were beginning to be apprehensive of the future. The idle workmen have become anxious to see the troubles ended, a number of the business agents admitting they had been called on by workmen and asked to use all their influence to bring about a settlement.

Butchers, grocers and coal dealers in districts inhabited by the workmen have noted the fact that purchases of their regular customers have grown smaller, and many of the shrewdest storekeepers have refused the customary credit.

Important Ruling.

Port Townsend, March 12.—Advices from Washington say that the treasury department has taken a decided stand relative to shipping American goods via Canadian points into Alaska in British vessels, and has instructed the collector of customs to collect duty on all goods arriving in Alaska on British vessels, even if they are accompanied with export certificates. Many shippers to Alaska obtain export certificates and send their goods to Vancouver and other points and thence to Alaska in British vessels, thereby working an injury to American vessels. This order will practically debar British vessels from entering the Nome trade in freight carrying business.

The Toledo, O., board of aldermen has unanimously decided that none but union bricklayers shall be employed in sewer construction.

Not a union bricklayer in North America is now working more than 9 hours a day, and in 130 cities the eight hour day prevails.

Last week Debs filled engagements in Norfold, Newport News and other towns in conservative old Virginia. As everywhere, the audiences that greeted him tested the capacity of the halls, and the working people were enthusiastic to a marked degree.

There is a pessimistic tone in English labor affairs owing to the demand of the railway workers for an eight hour day. A great national strike is expected.

The Pittsburg printers' strike, like that in New York, has settled down to a contest of endurance. The boycott is proving effective against the scab newspapers.

UNITED STATES GIVES AID.

HAS ASKED ENGLAND'S TERMS.

No Direct Intervention—Will Simply Step in as a Means of Transmitting Negotiations Between the Belligerents—Kruger Has Applied to the Powers—Rumors Afloat.

Washington, March 13.—There is reason to believe that the United States government is using its good offices to restore peace between Great Britain and the South African republics. This has not taken the shape of proffered mediation. That would be distinctly repugnant to Great Britain, and according to the rule of international law, which has without exception governed the state department in the past, could not be volunteered by the United States unless it was known to be acceptable to both parties to the war.

But the United States might very properly serve as intermediary to transmit an appeal for peace and terms upon which peace can be secured. The United States has successfully served in this capacity in the past, notably in the interior of China, during the Chinese war, and it is believed that good offices in this line are now being extended. It is believed to be well founded that Adelbert Hay, United States consul to Pretoria, has been the instrument of transmitting to the British government through the double intervention of the state department and Ambassador Choate, in the anticipation of an appeal from Presidents Kruger and Steyn, a request to be informed as to the terms upon which the war can be ended. The facts in the case will be fully developed in a day or two.

Kruger Asks for Intervention.

The Hague March 13.—It is learned from a reliable source that President Kruger, through the consuls at Pretoria, has appealed for the intervention of the great powers in the Transvaal war. He has also appealed to the governments of Belgium, Holland and Switzerland.

Nearing Bloemfontein.

London, March 13.—At the present rate of progress, Lord Roberts should be in Bloemfontein March 14, though all calculations may be upset by the development of a more strenuous resistance than the Boers have so far attempted. The distance between Roberts and the Free State capital is now so small—only about 25 miles—that it is apparent the Boers either contemplate making a determined stand on the outskirts of the town or for strategy reasons best known to themselves are allowing Lord Roberts to occupy it after merely harassing his advance. The numerical superiority of the British troops leaves no doubt in the minds of the critics here that Lord Roberts will accomplish his immediate objective, the occupation of Bloemfontein.

MET DEATH IN THE FLAMES.

Fifteen Lives Lost in a Tenement House Fire at Newark, N. J.

Newark, N. J., March 13.—Fifteen persons, the majority of whom were children, perished in a tenement house fire at Morris and Fourteenth avenue. The building was a three-story frame structure, formerly used as a church, but transformed into a tenement house with small rooms opening into narrow hall-ways on both the second and third floors, forming a veritable fire trap. It is in the heart of the Italian district and great excitement prevailed.

When it became known that the fire was of incendiary origin, men and women, well nigh crazed with grief, ran tearing around the streets looking for the man who was responsible for the frightful tragedy and threatening dire vengeance.

There were at least 12 families in the place, 60 persons in all, of whom perhaps 50 were children unable to care for themselves.

Four men jumped from the front windows. Several were hurt. The flames spread with frightful rapidity and the wind sent the sparks to the southeast, threatening all the frame tenements in that direction.

The place was like a roaring caldron when the firemen arrived. Ladders were quickly put in position and then began the work of rescue. One after another the women and then the men were taken down while other firemen devoted their attention to drowning the flames. This they succeeded in doing in less than an hour, but during that hour a frightful sacrifice had been offered. Nearly every room in the house contained its victim. Few were really burned to death. Most of them were smothered.

Vito Credavo, one of the tenants, is locked up on suspicion of having set fire to the building.

For codlin moth the best solution is Paris green. This is composed of one-third of a pound of Paris green, dissolved in a quart of milk of lime (the liquid made by dissolving unslacked lime in water) and mixing with 50 gallons of water. I find this amount sufficient to spray about 40 trees.

The first spraying should be given the trees when the blossoms being to fall. Use a spray pump which will throw the liquid to all the branches. About two weeks later spray the trees again. A third spraying again two weeks later will be advisable. I shall spray my trees three times this year.

—Flying Fox, England's greatest race horse and winner of the Derby in '99, sold last week for $196,000. It would take several of our cayuses to bring that sum. Another point in favor of blooded stock.

—The Dalles portage navigation and railroad enterprise means much to Lewiston according to the Tribune. Says every pound of produce raised within fifty or a hundred miles around will be hauled there and farmers will secure four or five cents per bushel above market price for grain.

—Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for March is fortunate in its leading feature, "The British Army, at Home and in South Africa," by Major-General Nelson A. Miles, commanding United States Army. Gen. Miles reviews and analyzes the imperial British military organization in all its branches, and with particular reference to the obstinate war now engaging all its energies in South Africa. The Truns-Siberian Railway, one of the great engineering enterprises of the world, and which is practically built in the United States, is interestingly discussed. "Famous West Pointers as Draughtsmen," the article by Capt. R. D. Evans, "Fighting Bob," "Women in Washington," by Mrs. John A. Logan, "The Room on the Roof," are worthy of perusal. An elegant number for March.

—Not much fighting of late in South Africa. Looks like Oom Paul has had enough. Pretoria dispatches say Kruger and company have sent peace proposals to the British government, based on conditions that the independence of the two republics be respected, and amnesty be granted to the rebellious British subjects in Cape Colony and other British South African possessions. Of course such proposals will be rejected as the Britishers will undoubtedly make a clean sweep of it this time. Great Britain will so shape the governmental affairs as to do away with future struggles. General Miles in Frank Leslie's Magazine, says: "Whatever may be the minor reverses of the English troops, and however bravely and tenaciously may the little army of Boers define their laagers, there appears to be no wavering or faltering in the policy of her Majesty's government now, as there was in Gordon's time and after Majuba Hill. The United Kingdom stands ready with her treasure and her soldiers; the scattered colonies stand ready with their contingents; the whole British Empire is on review and 'ready at every point on land and sea to keep alike her martial drum-beat sounding, and her peaceful commerce moving, and her vast realm intact all around the crimson circle of the globe.'"

—The westbound trains are said to be loaded with people in search of homes, a large portion of them being farmers. It is said as a class more farmers are subject to the disease of discontent than are men in other lines of business. We have some doubts as to the truth of this statement. A study on this question will reveal the fact that there are always some men in any given profession who think their lot not so filled with happiness as it might be if they were otherwise employed. Business and professional men would be happier, so they think, if they could change places, have a tender feeling for the farm, and some are ever dreaming of a time when they may retire to the quiet of the country. People want to make money quick. Particularly is this true with the western class. Take the whole northwest country from Chicago to the Pacific coast the settlers are industrious, wideawake and want to accumulate wealth in a few years. Ten to fifteen years ago when this country boomed it was an easy matter to turn your hand at anything and make money, but that time is past. It takes steady knocks now to get ahead. Many believe they can yet find localities where money "can be picked off the bushes." In fact, the pasture over the fence seems to some men the sweetest of any in the world. This longing for different surroundings or for a better country has fastened itself on many until they become discontented anywhere and everywhere. Many farmers, however, are reasonably well satisfied with a little headway and in the end are best fixed financially. They think, all things considered, they are as comfortable and just as happy as they would be anywhere else. This is a productive country and people manage wisely will gradually get on top. The farm can be made an ideal spot. Some of our best men came from the ranks of the farmer—Lincoln, Grant, Blaine, Whittier. Let the boy on the farm be taught to love the farm—it is the most healthful and independent life to live.

Women Wonder Why

They are doomed to so much suffering. But are they doomed? Is not the suffering the result of conditions which under skillful treatment might be entirely cured? Thousands of women who had been great sufferers, have learned that suffering was unnecessary after using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It heals diseases of the delicate womanly organs and banishes the headache, backache and other aches which are the consequence of these diseases.

"Favorite Prescription" is absolutely a temperance medicine in the strictest meaning of the term. It contains no alcohol and is free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

"I wrote you for advice February 4th, 1896," writes Mrs. Lonia Halstead, of Claremore, Cherokee Nat., Ind. Ty. "I was racking with pain from the back of my head down to my heels. Had hemorrhage for weeks at a time, and was unable to sit up for ten minutes at a time. You answered my letter, advised me to use your valuable medicines, viz., Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and 'Pleasant Pellets,' also gave advice about injections, baths and diet. To my surprise, in four months from the time I began your treatment I was a well woman and have not had the backache since, and now I put in sixteen hours a day at hard work."

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter free. All correspondence private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y

MATTERS POLITICAL.

Now that the monetary bill has become a law it will be impossible for any president to carry the nation to the silver standard by executive action alone. Even the election of Bryan will not endanger the maintainance of the gold standard. Both branches of congress must be changed. Under such circumstances the silver issue cannot cut much of a figure. Enough republican senators are already seated to make a majority in that body during the term of the next president, whoever he may be. The silver question has been eliminated from politics for four years at least. Now we are on the gold basis, but the prophets of evil as well as the prosperity shouters would have hard work showing the people where the difference comes in.

***

Senator Shoup has announced his intention to enter the race for re election. This gives his friends several rods the start of others who may aspire for this position. The senator has advantages over his adversaries—his familiarity with every corner in Idaho, his office and the pull he has with the departments at Washington. The relegating of the silver question is a help, and we believe a smaller quota of the party are antagonistic to Mr. Shoup than to almost any other prominent man mentioned for the place.

***

Teller says the delegates returning from the republican committee meeting at Boise express the opinion that Chairman J. T. Morrison seems to have the call for the republican nomination for congress. Judge Stanrod of Pocatello and A. B. Moss of Payette are both mentioned as likely material for the gubernatorial honors. Mr. Moss created a favorable impression here two years ago.

***

This week the silver committees of Idaho will decide on dates for holding their conventions. Then it will be known who are the aspirants for office on this side of the fence. Though Gov. Steunenberg has enemies in his own camp, he seems to have clear sailing for the U. S. senate so far.

***

We still hold to our statement in a recent issue regarding the attendance at the Direct League meeting held in Genesee, the correspondent of the Democratic-Times to the contrary notwithstanding.

If Governor Steunenberg will work his permit system at the polls next November he will be sure of election to the U. S. Senate, says the populist Idaho World. To issue permits to citizens to vote would be just as justifiable as to issue permits to men to work. A man's right to work without Steunenberg's permission is just as sacred as his right to vote without his permission. If the permit system is a good thing its field of operation ought to be extended. Idaho cannot have too much of a good thing.

The democrats are not entirely hopeless as to the result of the approaching presidential election, but base their chance of success not upon the strength of their candidates nor the popularity of their platform, but rather upon the dissatisfaction with the government and the policy of the present administration. There is some discontent among the republicans and the "outs" will take every advantage of this. The war policy will be attacked—the expenditure of money, killing of our soldiers, the appointment of officers and the "sons of their fathers," the Porto Rico government, the trusts, etc. Mr. Bryan's plan to tax trusts under the jurisdiction of the internal-revenue bureau and require them to publish quarterly statements of their earnings, expenses and profits seems to be popular.

—Misses Montgomery and Fulford have neat and new dressmaking parlors now second door north of NEWS office.

—Merchant Pollok was a Genesee visitor from Leland last week. Frank seems to be as happy as when he lived here years ago.

—Some of the Genesee people have the Cape Nome fever. Cape Nome stories already discount Klondike yarns. If one-half the reports are true the new district is the most wonderful since the discovery of gold in California. The NEWS received a letter from a friend on the coast this week which reads: "The first run of boats out will carry 12,000 to Nome, nearly all who are in Alaska now will be there, Dawson is being deserted, and it is believed by men posted that there will be 100,000 people scattered over the new territory—from Galovin Bay to Cape Prince of Wales near Asia. The boats leave about the middle of May." He sends us a map of the new fields which may be seen at this office by any one desiring.

—The wheat crop is looking unusually well—we mean the fall sown grain. A NEWS man visited the reservation country Sunday and found fields green and pretty. Lees and Wells, Mike Glover, Fred Pickering and T. Driscoll each have promising grain. The most successful farmers have put their grain in well and will soon commence harrowing the mantle of green to prevent the ground from baking. They assert that this causes a yield of from five to seven bushels more to the acre. A fair price for the cereal is the only thing that the farmers are worrying about. The fields that were green last fall with wild oats have been browned by the frosts of February. While the farmers smile at the way Jack floored the wild oats, they say there is plenty of the seed in the earth yet to make a good stand, but as the grain has a big start the damage will not be so great.

SCHOOL NOTES.

250 is the attendance in the schools at this date.

The attendance in the High School remains quite large, the enrollment being only six less than during the winter months. This is as it should be. We ask for the cooperation of all parents in keeping their children in the schools during the closing weeks.

The schools have been enjoying visits from several of late. We extend a welcome to all.

GRAMMAR DEPARTMENT.

Miss Minnie Stamps had charge of this department two days last week.

Webster Jamison a 7th grader, will study agriculture this summer under the instruction of James Willows of Rimrock precinct.

Barney Ingle, an 8th grader, will put in 80 acres of spring wheat.

Edward Kempf of the 6th will follow the plow this spring in Rimrock precinct.

Herbert Moss has 80 acres of wheat to put in this spring and will probably return to school when the work is finished.

Roy Bowman of the 8th grade will take his vacation at home this spring farming.

Jesse Gage will attend school in the Ingle district this spring, when not busy plowing or seeding.

Richard Gunnerson of the 8th some time ago departed for Pine City where he has friends and will secure work.

On account of the early spring quite a number of the large boys have quit and gone to work on the farm. We are glad to see that kind of metal in the boys, when necessary go to work with a will.

We are anxious that all who can will attend regular for the remainder of the term as it will aid the pupil a great deal in the final examination for the year, to pass to the next grade.

FIRST PRIMARY DEPARTMENT.

All classes have been doing very heavy work, especially "A Grade."

Some time ago I promised to put the names of those who got 100 in every lesson of the month in the school notes. They were: Carrie Bressler, Bernice Conant, Myrtle Gray, Clay Swank, Bennett Erickson, Frank Bashaw. Those missing but one word: Orin Beck, Anton Kambitch. Those who did not miss any words during the entire time they have used the tables, which is nearly three months, are: Marie Scroggins, Myrtle Gray, Clay Swank, Carrie Bressler.

The "A Grade" has nearly completed its yearly grade work. About 14 of them are very strong and will no doubt make the next class above work hard to keep ahead of them.

The grade remaining in my room will receive special attention from this on and rapid advancement is hoped for. Parents will be able to do their children a great service by seeing they are well supplied with pencils and paper. Little ones must have something to work with if they do good work.
MAUDE BURDIC, Teacher.

—Drayman Biram's team tested the strength of the new wagon the other evening and found it o. k. The horses took a run on gospel butte—from the front of the Cong'l church west to the Wood residence thence to the M. E. church, running smack up against the residence back of the Rosenstein store. The tongue of the wagon was plunged through the side of the building, one horse was thrown to the ground, the fence made into kindling wood, and a child narrowly escaped instant death. It was a very wicked runaway. Luckily no one was hurt, not even the horse that was so violently thrown to the ground.

Chicago labor troubles are responsible for the disagreement which is expected to precipitate the general machinists' strike.

Japan Not Yet at War.

Yokohama, Japan, via Victoria, March 19.—The persistence with which the western press clings to the imminence of war between Russia and Japan is attracting much attention here. Thus far there has seemed to be no foundation whatsoever for the rumor. The fact which now impresses the public is the arrival of representatives of some of the prominent New York papers, they having been sent for the express purpose of being upon the spot when the outbreak comes. This, together with the activity prevailing in the Russian squadron in eastern waters, assembling in force as it is in the Korean straits, and the reports constantly coming in of extraordinary doings at Port Arthur, has at last forced the conviction that where there is so much smoke there must be some fire, and the people and press are correspondingly on the qui vive. In official circles, however, the utmost calm is manifest while everybody is wondering what it all means.

St. Patrick in London.

London, March 19.—Most of the government offices hoisted the Irish flag Saturday and the clubs were similarly decorated, the officials all wearing the green, in honor of St. Patrick.

In the churches the preachers referred to the occasion, thanking Providence that the English had learned to love and respect their Irish fellows, just as if they never knew them or respected them before. The lord chief justice, Lord Russell, set the example in the law courts and all the judges followed his example of wearing the shamrock below their ermine collars.

The theaters were all prepared to mark the day in the same way tonight.

On the stock exchange great enthusiasm was shown in celebrating the day. The shamrock was everywhere and there was more toasting of healths than work. As a result prices were better, though nobody knows why.

New Land Laws Proposed.

Washington.—The house committee on pubic lands has reported a bill abolishing the payment of $1.25 an acre on land taken up by settlers under the desert land act. The committee also reported favorably a bill to refund $1.25 per acre to persons who have located under the pre-emption or homestead laws and who have commuted their entries by cash payments at $2.50 per acre, where the lands located were within a railroad grant and the railroad was never built.

Calder, with his brother and James Ell Fisher, killed McRae and his herder last September, loaded their bodies in a wagon and started for the Northern Pacific railway, driving McRae's band of 1700 sheep as they went. They proposed to sell the sheep at Forsyth and then leave the country. After carrying the bodies of the murdered men for eight days, camping with them each night, they creamated them on the banks of the Musselshell river, throwing the ashes into the river, and proceeded. THE WAR IN SOUTH AFRICA

ROBERTS' WORK HALF DONE.

Free Staters Disheartened—Prisoners Sent to the Island of St. Helena—Some Boer Positions Impregnable—Mafeking Reported Relieved.

London, March 19.—Amidst the festivities of St. Patrick's day, London was listening for word that Mafeking is relieved. It is remarkable that the revival of this holiday, which puts St. Patrick's hereafter on an equality with Primrose day, has been the occasion of the first real gala day since the declaration of war. Christmastide was gloomy, indeed, in comparison with today's merrymaking.

There is much in the situation in South Africa to justify the joy, however, for the rapid pacification of the Free Staters leads Englishmen to believe they have a statesman, as well as a strategist hero, in "Bobs."

With railway communication open to the Cape and the morale of his army at its highest, England is now ready to trust the commander-in-chief to complete the remainder of his task in his own way, confident of his ultimate success.

The Transvaal officials are said to have vacated Laing's and Vryburg, but the rebels are unwilling to enter the Transvaal, being anxious to trek homeward. No one would be much surprised if a great spread of this contagion occurred in the next fortnight.

Lady Randolph Churchill, who started homeward on the hospital ship Maine, cabled to the committee that she regards it a compliment to the United States that the Maine was the first ship to leave since Ladysmith was relieved. There were 12 officers and 153 non-commissioned officers and men aboard the Maine.

The peaceful conquest of the Orange Free State progresses so evenly that it is now believed that there will be little or no fighting until Lord Roberts reaches the Vaal river. When the move comes it will doubtless be accomplished with the secrecy and swiftness which have characterized all the British advances since Lord Roberts assumed command. In the meanwhile the fate of Mafeking remains unknown. The revolt of the Cape Dutch in the northeast seems to have its back broken, and it is likely General Kitchener will soon resume his place beside his chief.

The lull that lets the British troops in the Natal and the Free State recuperate brings no rest to the engineers and transport service.

Girord, the young Canadian officer who rules supreme over the railroads, is now putting his system to the most severe test in an endeavor to pour supplies from Cape Town to Bloemfontein.

Dr. Leyds, who disappeared from Brussels, according to a Globe special, is believed to have come to London, but nothing is known here about his arrival. It seems scarcely likely that he would jump into the lion's mouth, and the energetic Boer representative is more likely to be heard of at one of the European capitals.

It has been decided to send only the Transvaalers to St. Helena, the authorities finding it difficult to prevent conflicts between the Free Staters and the Transvaalers.

Colonel Schiol, who was captured in Natal in the early part of the war, has a special sentry at his door to prevent him from doing himself bodily violence.

Captain Johnson and Third Officer Boltege of the steamer Mashona, captured by a British cruiser, and subsequently released, were drowned in a gale last night. Four others were drowned, and a boat's crew from the Cheshire is missing.

Strong at Van Reenan's Pass.

Ladysmith, March 19.—Lord Dundonald's cavalry patrols reconnoitered the Free State border of Basutoland to the Debers pass, where a slight skirmish occurred, in which two British were wounded. The Boers were also encountered in some strength at Van Reenan's pass and Tintwas pass.

Kaffirs arriving here report that the Boers are manifesting a vindictive mood owing to their defeats and many kraals heretofore respected have been devastated.

A unmber of ambulances attached to the Boer forces were found near Modder Spruit, having been abandoned by the Boers because they were unable to keep pace with the retreat. They were brought into camp, where the wounded were cared for. Transports were subsequently supplied and the ambulances were sent to the Boer lines.

Burghersdorp Bereft of Boers.

Burgersdorp, March 19.—Commandant Olivier evacuated his position on the hill in front of the British during the night. Several Boers of his force have surrendered. Dr. Dewitt, a member of the Cape parliament, and his brother have been arrested.

Nearer to Mafeking.

Lobatsi, Bechuanaland, March 19.—The railroad is open to this point and there is wire communication as far as Pitsani. The Boers who were at Sequania have returned to Ruskonburg. The relief of Mafeking is expected at any day.

Positions Are Impregnable.

Glencoe, March 19.—The Boer defenses along the Biggarsberg have been completed and are said to render the positions impregnable.

New Route Chosen.

London, March 20.—Neither the advance by way of Fourteen streams nor Colonel Plumer's movement has yet resulted in bringing news of Mafeking's relief.

From Bloemfontein and Natal there are apparently no serious developments and public interest remains centered in Colonel Baden-Powell's force. However, it appears likely that the converging of the troops toward Mafeking indicates a much more serious purpose than merely its relief.

Judging from Lord Methuen's presence at Warrentown and the capture of the nearby passage of the Vaal at Fourteen Streams, keen observers believe Lord Roberts meditates an advance in force on Pretoria by way of Rustenberg. This might start either from Fourteen Streams or Klenksdorf and would probably coincide with an advance by way of Bloemfontein and Natal. Thus Lord Methuen may be given the chance to redeem his reputation as has been the case with General Gatacre.

Commandant Oliver has accomplished another feat in his retreat from northern Cape Colony, evacuating Rouchville and going toward Kroonstaadt, where President Steyn is.

Coming Events.

PROCEEDINGS IN CONGRESS

SUMMARY OF THEIR WORK

Number of Bills Pass—The Investigation of the Coeur d'Alene Troubles—A New Philippine Bill—Notes of the House.

In the Senate.

In the senate Thursday Senator Jones of Arkansas offered the following, which was adopted: "Whereas, Frequent complaints are being made from many sections of the Indian territory that townsite commissioners are incompetent, inattentive to their duties and are not discharging the duties incumbent upon them; Resolved, That the committee on Indian affairs be directed to inquire into the truth of these allegations and report to the senate."

When the morning business had been finished Senator Sullivan took the floor to deliver his announced speech on our relations with the Philippines, but at the request of Senator Allison yielded for the immediate consideration of the bill appropriating for the benefit and government of Puerto Rico the revenues collected on the importation therefrom. Senator Jones offered the following substitute for the bill: "That the duties collected to this date on articles imported into the United States from Puerto Rico since the 18th day of April, 1899, the date of the exchange of the ratifications of the treaty of peace between Spain and the United States, be returned to the persons from whom they were collected, and that after the passage of this act no duties shall be collected on articles coming from Puerto Rico." The amendment offered by Senator Jones precipitated a lengthy discussion of the whole Puerto Rico subject relating to the right of the United States to collect tax. Cockrell opposed the amendment and thought there should be nothing more than an appropriation bill passed at this time. Other senators who participated in the debate were Spooner, Lindsay, Stewart, Foraker, Kenney and Bacon.

In the senate Monday Senator Beveridge offered a substitute for the tariff section of the Puerto Rico bill and gave notice that he would address the senate next Thursday on the amendment and pending measure. The substitute follows: "All articles coming into the United States shall be admitted free of duty, but this act shall not be construed as extending the constitution of the United States or any part thereof over Puerto Rico, and it is hereby declared that the constitution of the United States is not extended over Puerto Rico." The bill authorizing the secretary of the navy to furnish additional naval equipment to military schools was passed. The senate then proceeded to the consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriations bill, Senator Cullom being in charge of the measure. As reported to the senate the bill carried $24,155,800. The reading of the bill was completed at 1:40 p. m., the committee amendments having been agreed to as the reading proceeded. The bill as amended was passed without division. The senate concurred in the house amendment to the bill granting to the state of Kansas the abandoned Fort Hayes military reservation, thus passing the measure.

In the House.

Without peliminary business the house Thursday resumed consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill.

The final drafts of the amendments to the ship subsidy bill, agreed upon by the house committee on merchant marine and fisheries, have been completed. One of these amendments declares the Snerman anti-trust law to be "specifically applicable to the builder, owner of either or both of them, of any vessel entering into any contract provided for by this act, and any such vessel is hereby declared to be properly in the course of transportation within the intent of said law."

The most interesting testimony against the military authorities yet introduced in the Coeur d'Alene investigation was given Saturday by Allan F. Gill. Gill, who formerly was police commissioner of Spokane, was master mechanic of the Tiger-Poorman at Burke during the stormy days of last spring. The evidence heretofore presented by Lentz in behalf of the miners' union has chiefly related to conditions in the bull-pen and the alleged misconduct of Bartlett Sinclair. On the theory that it was the military authorities and not state officials who are under investigation the republicans forming the majority of the committee have been inclined to treat such evidence lightly. The testimony, however, of Gill related almost entirely to the action of federal troops, and on that account was of more serious importance than the stories of preceding witnesses.

In the house Monday the pension appropriation bill was sent to conference, and Messrs. Barney, McCleary and Bell were appointed conferees.

Mr. Cannon then called up the Puerto Rico appropriation bill and moved that the house non-concur in the senate amendments. Mr. McRae moved concurrence.

The motion to concur was lost, 86 to 116. The motion to non-concur then prevailed without division. Messrs. Cannon, Moody and McRae were then appointed conferees on the part of the house.

The remainder of the day was devoted to District of Columbia business.

The Coeur d'Alene investigation was resumed Monday by the house committee on military affairs with J. H. Forney, special prosecuting attorney at the scene of the disorder, on the stand. Mr. Hay of Virginia directed the examination with a view to disclosing how far the United States troops were under the direction of Governor Steunenberg and his executive official in Shoshone county, Auditor Sinclair. Mr. Hay asked if General Merriam was the responsible commander not only of the troops, but also of the affairs of the district in general. The witness said that General Merriam was not the responsible commander, as the governor and Mr. Sinclair directed the affairs. To a certain extent they controlled the United States forces. Mr. Forney said the troops were sent there to aid in suppressing the insurrection and they did this by co-operating with and by assisting the state officials. Mr. Hay stated that while he did not question the right of the governor to call for troops or the right of the president to send them, he maintained that the president had no authority to place the United States troops in the control of the state authorities. Questions by Mr. Lentz brought out that Sinclair was a civil officer under the law, but that he exercised certain military authority in order to make effective his civil authority.

Trade Report.

Bradstreet's last week's report says: Trade advices are as a whole cheerful and the strength of values is apparently abated, though some soft spots still present themselves. A permanent feature the past week has been the increase in strength of values of farm products and cotton advancing, while materials for manufacture and the products thereof have generally remained steady or unchanged. The government report on the quality of corn in farmer's hands showed a smaller than expected supply and quite an outbreak of speculative interest occurred, sympathized in by wheat, and both cereals reached the highest point touched on the crop of 1899. Liquidation on the advance brought about some reaction in prices, growing wheat crop advices proving rather depressing as a whole and the statistical position remaining as bearish. The close finds quotations above those of a week ago. It seems evident that the weather and the growing crops will constitute price making features for some time to come.

Manufacturers of shoes are busy and weather conditions have rather favored the retailer by enabling him to dispose of some carried-over stocks. Copper has been stronger in tone; lead, owing to large receipts, is firm, but slightly lower than a week ago.

Wool is fairly steady, but manufacturers are out of the market and concessions can be obtained, though London advices are better. Anthracite is lower in keeping with advanced stage of the season, while bituminous grades of coal are firm. Though quiet the iron and steel situation has developed a rather more confident tone. Less is heard about shaded quotations, though on the other hand the volume of new business has not been very large. Some low grade pig iron has been moved by concessions. By the taking of orders for Bessemer pig at Pittsburg this week the entire production for the first half of the year in that district has been placed. Southern iron advices are of steady prices and of rather more inquiry on export account.

Except immediately in Chicago, where the idleness of many thousands of men has made for dullness in the machinery and kindred trades, the western iron situation seems a strong one.

Reports of coming building in railroads multiply, but it is possible that a false construction may be put on the reports that 59,000 miles of new road are projected. The heaviest mileage was in 1887, when less than 13,000 miles were constructed, and it is of course safe to say that not as large a total will be built this year as is reported projected, more particularly new railroad building will be largely a matter of extension of existing lines, rather than the building of new roads. Structural material is in better request and some very large contracts will shortly be placed.

Wheat (including flour) shipments for the past week aggregate 2,277,450 bushels, against 4,280,758 bushels last week, 4,114,046 bushels in the corresponding week of 1899; 3,678,056 bushels in 1898; 1,629,434 bushels in 1897, and 1,392,123 bushels in 1896. Since July 1, this season, the exports of wheat aggregate 141,206,936 bushels, against 175,225,,741 bushels last year, and 172,620,750 bushels in 1897-98.

Business failures in the United States for the week numbered 190, as compared with 189 last week, 205 in this week a year ago, 233 in 1898, 233 in 1897 and 300 in 1896. Business failures in Canada for the week number 28, as compared with 33 last week,21 in this week a year ago, 23 in 1898, 36 in 1897, and 40 in 1896.

BLOEMFONTEIN IS CAPTURED

BRITISH FLAG FLOATS THERE.

Boers Were Preparing to Remove the Seat of Government to Kroonstadt—Relief of Mafeking Next—Quiet in Natal.

LONDON, March 15.—It is officially announced that Lord Roberts has occupied Bloemfontein and that the British flag is flying from the top of the capitol.

Pretoria, March 15.—A dispatch from Bloemfontein says that in view of the military situation the seat of government may be removed to Kroonstaadt.

Fight at Abraham's Kraal.

Commander Delarey's report of the fight at Abraham's kraal Saturday says: "The British were estimated to number 40,000 men. The first assault was repulsed. Only two Boers were wounded. The second assault was made on the hills to the left of our position. These hills were of great strategic importance. Appreciating this, I and 300 men defended the position from 9 in the morning until sundown. The burghers fought like heroes and three times repulsed masses of the British who kept relieveing their tired men. Every attempt to storm was defeated. At sundown there were not 50 yards between us. The British lost heavily. No accurate returns of our losses are available."

Judging from the lack of news everything is quiet in Natal, while from Herschel comes the statement that the total collapse of the insurgent colonists is imminent.

Advancing on Mafeking.

Cape Town, March 15.—Colonel Plummer is now within 40 miles of Mafeking.

Cronje Sails for St. Helena.

Satisfaction With Salisbury's Reply.

Natal dispatches recount that the greatest satisfaction is felt there at Lord Salisbury's reply to the Boer presidents' peace overtures. A dispatch from Pietermaritzburg published in the second edition of the Times, says: "The reply, especially the last paragraph relating to independence, has been received in Natal with a feeling of great relief and is dispelling all doubts."

Johannesburg Rumor Denied.

A private dispatch from Johannesburg has been received in London, dated Saturday, March 10, contradicting the reports that the mines are flooded and all the machinery broken and asserting that all is well.

War Rumors Quieted.

London, March 19.—The mouths of the panicmongers have been stopped, and by a Frenchman. It is a curious commentary upon a certain side of the British character which has lately been much in evidence. Several papers of fair standing have seriously been putting forward the probability of war with France and their sensations have been gulped down eagerly by a small section of the British public, though well informed people are only amused. France, however, was not the only nation which, it was asserted, meditated an immediate invasion of England. Russia, Germany and Austria, according to the manufacturers of panics, had designs to take advantage of Great Britain's troubles in South Africa. With the cries for home defense in the ascendant, Great Britain might have duplicated the scenes when the island awaited the prospective invasion of Napoleon. But M. Delcasse, the French foreign minister, spoke and the bogey of European hostility and interference vanished. The hand of the Frenchman restored calm to Great Britain.

Census of Manila.

Washington.—The war department has received a report from the sanitary corps which has been making a census of Manila. It places the population actually living in houses within the police district at 150,000. The territory included in this census does not embrace the suburban district or take into account people living in bancos or those who are inmates of convents and seminaries. The Chinese population was turned in as 8852. This is said to be far out of the way. It is estimated that at least 50,000 Chinese live in the city.

Bishop Potter Returns.

New York.—Bishop Henry Potter has arrived on the Campania from Liverpool. Speaking of the condition of the Philippines, which islands he visited in his absence from home, he said that on the whole they were satisfactory. He believes the war in the Philippines to be practically over. He paid a strong tribute to the American soldiery. Bishop Potter said he went to the Philippines on an ecclesiastical mission, and added some advance had been made toward the establishment of the Episcopal church in the Philippines.

There are now affiliated with the American Federation of Labor 74 national and international unions, 11 state branches, 134 city central unions, and 716 local trade and federal labor unions. WOMEN

MUST WORK TOGETHER.

BEFORE giving a command a mother should ask herself if it is necessary, and also whether she is prepared to enforce it in case of disobedience; if she is not, the command had better not be given. The authority of one parent must be upheld by the other if the best results are to be secured in the government of their children. Whatever their private differences of opinion may be, neither should ever, by word or look, question the decisions of the other in the presence of the children. The word of either should be law in the household, and this cannot be if the partner who should be the most loyal in upholding it is an opposing power. The line of conduct to be followed should be decided between them, and in unexpected emergencies the private judgment of one should give way to the expressed wish of the other.

The fullest liberty is found within the limits of law, and children who are trained to obedience can be permitted far more freedom than those who cannot be trusted out of sight for fear the liberty permitted them will degenerate into license. The child whom experience has convinced that his parents' prohibitions are not arbitrary, but are founded on kindness and justice, will not often disregard them. Lapses there may be, as no human beings are perfect. But the lapses will not be many, and from the nature of the case they will bring their own punishment, convincing the offender, as nothing else will do, that the path of obedience is not only the safest but the pleasantest to walk in.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Wants Men to Stand.

The Woman's Municipal Ownership League, of Chicago, under the direction of Mrs. Minano Stearns Fitts, has started a crusade against men who monopolize car seats when women are standing, says Leslie's Weekly. Cards are distributed to men who are seated in street cars while women are standing. The cards bear the following legend: "Gentlemen, stand up and give the women seats. You can vote for municipal ownership and stop this thing—they cannot." Mrs. Fitts is credited with being the originator of this original scheme, which created quite a sensation. The idea was to call the attention of the men to the fact that voters were responsible for existing conditions, and to show both men and women that if men claim that women are a protected class, women, some of them at least, have sufficient courage to demand that protection. Many men confessed that the card was the first reminder they had ever had that men are, indeed, responsible for evil civic conditions, and that women are not responsible, yet suffer equally with them the injury done.

MRS. FITTS.

The Girl with a Temper.

The girl with a temper can be very fascinating when she likes. She usually has nice little ways and can perform certain acts with grace and cordiality. But she has no idea of proportion in important and unimportant matters. You may devote your life to her, but if you are clumsy or stupid before strangers she will electrify you by telling you how unbearable you make life for her. She usually repents of this in an hour, says she did not mean all she said, and that it was her dreadful temper that spoke. If you love her very deeply you forgive her, of course, but the ache of that and similar strokes will persist in remaining.

If the girl with the temper is plain in feature she has less excuse made for her, and her circle of intimates becomes more restricted as the years grow. The pretty girl with the temper has more immunity from blame, especially when she is young. The chances are, however, that she will plunge some man and herself, too, into life-long misery. The habit of tempestuous fits strengthens with the years. The girl with the temper scarcely ever gains much through knowledge, for knowledge to sink deeply requires calm, restful soil, which it cannot find in the mind given to upsetting itself and others on all occasions.

One means of gaining happiness is the art of laying aside in the evening all the work and duties of the day.

Every person ought to have some simple evening diversion as a relaxation, even if it is only the pleasure of having a good magazine to read aloud, or some simple pleasure to share with others. J. W. HOPP, CHAS. POWER } Editors and Proprietors.

—Five train loads of homeseekers reached St. Paul Monday bound for our country. As many more arrived there the following day. During next week 5000 more settlers will arrive for the same destination. The people are mostly from Iowa and farther east. It will require several hundred cars to carry their household freight. We should turn some of the people in this direction from Spokane.

—Very quiet over in South Africa. While there is a lull in military operations, the present surroundings show interesting developments. As delays always favor the defeated side, it need not surprise any one if the Boers should make a hot fight at some point. Because of the lull it does not necessarily follow that the fighting is nearly finished. The hardest battles of the war may yet be fought.

—Some below zero weather around Chicago and on south last week, doing some damage to the fruit crop. The people of this country have something to be thankful for. The weather has been charming, and people coming from the east are carried away with it. Idaho has had considerable wet weather the past six months, but when she gets down to the real article of mild, clear atmosphere, it can't be beat. Think of twenty inches of snow in some of the eastern states.

—Lord Roberts is England's latest hero. Though he is an old soldier General Roberts was allowed to pluck the brightest roses at the age of 68 years. Kitchener is also a great man. General Grant, our greatest general, on his return home from a trip around the world, said that Sir Frederick Roberts impressed him as being by far the ablest general in the English army. Several people in this vicinity, among them J. J. Keane and Dan Healey, are acquainted with some of these great men.

—Assistant General Passenger Agt. Charlton, of the Northern Pacific says a mixed train will run to Stuart for the present. Continuing he said: "The section of country through which our Clearwater branch runs is as fine as can be found anywhere. It is rapidly being developed in its mineral resources, and in the near future we expect wonderful results from the mines in the Buffalo Hump and other districts. The settlement in the Clearwater country during the last year has been very large and is still increasing at a rapid rate. Farmers and fruit growers are arriving from all parts of the east, and a big change is being worked in the appearance of the whole district. Much new land is being broken up and planted to wheat, grapes, peaches, watermelons and kindred fruits. Peach trees are already in bloom, and it has been decided to hold a watermelon day at Lewiston soon after the fruit is ripe."

—A successful dairyman writes: "A good cow, properly fed and intelligently handled, will produce 300 lbs. of butter in a year, but to bring her up to this standard, there must be a change of haphazard methods pursued in the past. A good breed of cows is not the only requisite. Feed must correspond, and heifer calves must be raised for the express purpose of making dairy cows. The true dairy cow must be raised from birth, developed for the pail while young and must be fed such food as will give bone and muscle. The farmer of the future who desires the best of herds must raise his own cows, hold closely to one line of breeding, whether it be Jersey, Shorthorn, Guernseys or Holstein Friesian. There are good milkers in all of these herds. Are farmers going to continue farming 40-cent wheat, or drift in the line of dairying? They are not only farming at a loss, but their land is becoming poorer all the time, and at the rate things are going it is doubtful in my mind if, 20 years hence, they can raise one-half as much wheat per acre as they do at present. Continued farming year after year will bring down the production of land until it must have rest. The dairy business, it seems to me, would have a tendency to bring up the production of the soil, as a routine of crops is necessary. The outlook for dairy products has not been so good for several years as at present. With wheat at the fabulous price of 38 cents per bushel, it seems strange that the farmers do not take hold of dairying more than they do. While corn may not ripen as a usual thing, it advances so far to maturity that it can be practically siloed, which makes the best of succulent food for cows. A good fair crop of wheat can be grown on the ground after a crop of corn, and, in this way, being able to have a rotation of crops, we may be able to keep our lands productive."

Still More Counterfeiting.

The Secret Service has unearthed another band of counterfeiters and secured a large quantity of bogus bills, which are so cleverely executed that the average person would never suspect them of being spurious. Things of great value are always selected by counterfeiters for imitation, notably the celebrated Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has many imitators but no equals for indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, nervousness and general debility. The Bitters sets things right in the stomach, and when the stomach is in good order it makes good blood and plenty of it. In this manner the Bitters get at the seat of strength and vitality and restore vigor to the weak and debilitated. Beware of counterfeits when buying.

—Many hundred squirrels turned up their toes the past ten days. Great sport for those handy with a gun R. Pickering bored holes into 70 one day, and Emma Nebelsieck knocked over four without moving an inch.

—The Indians will not consent to the removal of their graves above the town of Stuart, where the N. P. graders are at work, and threaten war. The railroad men have been given authority by the government to construct the road and ask for peaceable possession.

—Mr. and Mrs. Lee Lockridge, relatives of Mrs. Fred Follett, arrived in Genesee this week from Iowa to make this their future home. Westbound trains are crowded now with homeseekers. We have room for many more toilers, and as we have the most productive spot in the west, it is hoped several will find their way to Genesee.

—Genesee is to have a new brick yard. Joe Troutman and Mr. Kimball are the enterprising gentlemen. They have already commenced operations—sheds are up, ground broken, and before we are aware they will be burning brick. The location is in the northwestern part of town. The clay is the best and with the right sort of energy these gentlemen can work up a fine business.

—W. M. Howland, our cadet who accompanied Company D to the Philippines and came back to San Francisco with the boys, arrived in Genesee Saturday, having spent the intervening time with friends in California—at 'Frisco, San Jose, Sacramento and elsewhere. —Mr. and Mrs. Geo. F. Higgins, formerly of Chicago but late of Nezperce, have purchased of J. J. Johnson the Barringer property in the eastern part of town and will make Genesee their future home. Their son will arrive soon from Chicago. They have a daughter married to Mr. Finch, a wealthy miner in the Cœur d'Alene country. We welcome these people to our midst.

—The St. Patrick social given by Messrs. Brewer, Cobbs and English in the church basement on the eve of Pat was attended by about 60 Endeavorers and friends. Irish games were played. In the potato race Mr. Cool loomed up as the biggest Irishman, securing first prize. As a team Mrs. F. Follett and Harry Nelson made the best record. Fred Follet and Miss Burdic failed to scoop up a single spud and secured the booby. Guessing of the profiles of the C. E. members created considerable fun. Miss Pickering was the best guesser, telling 24 of the 29. Rev. Fowler proved almost a failure at guessing and secured the consolation prize. Refreshments came next. People hurried home before it was St. Patrick's day in the mornin.'

Marie Nebelsieck secured the head prize—something useful—and Miss Jamison had her usual luck in corraling the booby.

—Dr. J. L. Conant, Jr., returned from his trip to south Idaho. He visited the towns of Boise, Mountain Home, Pocatello, Payette, Caldwell, Weiser, Cambridge and reports them in a very prosperous condition. They are not dependent on one thing—they have mining, sheep and cattle industry, dairying, fruit and grain. The towns are growing, many people are coming in from the east seeking new homes, and there is an air of prosperity on every hand. Our country is unknown to the people down there. The Genesee valley can be made the equal of any spot the doctor visited, but the people must pursue a different course than they have in the past. The doctor reports Baker City as a very lively burg.

Mrs. L. Culbertson is expecting a fine line of Millinery goods soon. It will pay you to wait, see goods and get prices before buying elsewhere.

How a Little Boy Was Saved.

Washington, D. C.—"When our boy was about 16 months old he broke out with a rash which was thought to be measles. In a few days he had a swelling on the left side of his neck and it was decided to be mumps. He was given medical attendance for about three weeks when the doctor said it was scrofula and ordered a salve. He wanted to lance the sore, but I would not let him and continued giving him medicine for about four months when the bunch broke in two places and became a running sore. Three doctors said it was scrofula and each ordered a blood medicine. A neighbor told me of a case somewhat like our baby's which was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I decided to give it to my boy and in a short while his health improved and his neck healed so nicely that I stopped giving him the medicine. The sore broke out again, however, whereupon I again gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla and its persistent use has accomplished a complete cure. I do not think there will be even a scar left. I cannot speak too highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla and I recommend it everywhere I get a chance." MRS. NETTIE CHASE, 47 K St., N. E.

Like Magic.

"A complication of troubles, dyspepsia, chronic catarrh and inflammation of the stomach, rheumatism, etc., made me miserable. Had no appetite until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acted like magic. I am thoroughly cured." N. B. SEELBY, 1874 West 14th Ave., Denver, Col.

If you have failed to get relief from other remedies try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It cures when all others fail, because it is Peculiar to Itself.

The papers in the East are laughing t some eccentric genius who is concentrating his energies on an effort to write a novel without "a woman in it." The difficulty to be surmounted looks to be considerable, for it is hard to conceive of any part of the game of life with which women are not more or less intimately connected at this present period of progress. When the story is written the chances are long that it will not be worth reading.

The cheerful, even facetious, citizens of Cleveland who have formed an appendicitis club are strictly up to date. We presume it is the intention of the club members to wear conspicuously a surgeon's certificate that they have already undergone an operation for the fashionable disease in order to prevent mistakes in future emergencies. But the precedent thus established may prove to be embarrassing to the noble army of Esculapians who are always ready to relieve our miseries for a sordid equivalent. If it becomes the fad for afflicted ones to thus make common cause we may soon have a startling succession of grip clubs and even toothache clubs, not to mention the Patriotic Order of Rheumatics.

An Eastern journal, devoted to hygiene and physical culture, highly recommends peanuts as a school luncheon for boys and girls. It sets forth their great value as food, being both wholesome and nutritious, and also good for the blood, when properly masticated. In addition to these properties, unlike other nuts, they may be eaten at the end of a hearty meal without overtaxing digestion. The attachment between the child and the plebeian peanut has long been notorious, and now that a health journal has recommended it for the school lunch there will undoubtedly be a speedy clamor in every household for its liberal provision, and the schoolhouses of the land will be pervaded with its decided odor. Just at this time, however, comes the depressing news that the peanut crop is short, and prices are rapidly advancing. It is not unlikely when the news of its healthfulness gets abroad that a peanut trust will be formed and the unassuming ground nut will soon be such an object of luxury that its use may be confined to the attendants of the fashionable and wealthy private schools.

The cynical non-church attendant finds in the new and approved method of taking stock of souls a kind of invoicing of celestial goods, and believes that, just as a recently published religious appeal took the novel form of an insurance policy, with a promise of "low rates" and "heavenly premiums," so all churches have come to adopt the ways of the mercantile world. These scoffers declare that salvation must be bought by the pound, and that you cannot get first-class godliness without paying first-class prices. But to count ... to desire to know the actual elements of a constituency, is certainly natural and desirable, and no one will be disposed to question the fact that a church with expenses and a salaried minister must be conducted on business principles. It is perhaps the floating congregation, the religious tramps, that give the commercial air to a church. For these so often assume the attitude of the shopper, of one who is "sampling" or "just looking," and who, though pleased and inspired, never chooses to become a constant patron. These no doubt gain much, and churches as a rule are generous and charitable to such nomads. To actually sift these from the permanent elements would be a step towards the comprehension of the true attitude of society towards the church, and might lead to a better understanding on both sides.

In an address before the Irish Literary Society on "John Philpot Curran," Lord Russell of Killowen, the Chief Justice, declared the value of oratory to a lawyer is overrated. He asserted that it is an important vehicle for argument and for the enunciation and enforcement of great principles. "But," he said, "there is a tendency to run to seed in this regard, and to look upon fluency of speech as if it were oratory." Gifts of speech could never attain to their real momentum and power until founded upon a substratum of carefully acquired knowledge and upon solid argument. The opinion of the Lord Chief Justice is that of most men who have considered the subject. The art of oratorical flights is, in the opinion of the Chicago Tribune, less practiced, not so much because men are less able to make such speeches, but because they have lost their value. They are of slight use before juries and of no use with judges. There is a popular disposition to distrust the man who makes too great a display of his gifts of speech when he makes an address. The public, being more enlightened, has come to weigh arguments more carefully. When the orator is able to appeal to the passion of the moment he is sometimes influential, but there his power ends. This is why the leaders of the bar to-day are not great orators, but rather men with the carefully acquired knowledge which they are able to present logically to the Judge or jury they would convince.

The American author can no longer complain of neglect, according to the statistics furnished by the Bookman, which publishes a monthly list of the books most generally in demand as shown by the reports of news dealers. These reports prove that in November, 1895, the five most popular books were all by foreign authors. A year later two Americans had found their way into the list. The same condition prevailed in 1897, showing that the American authors were able to hold their own. In 1898 the leading sales embraced three works by American authors, Kipling's "Day's Work" and Weyman's "Castle Inn" alone representing the English authors. The final triumph came in 1899, when the five books with the greatest sale were all of American authorship. These are "Richard Carvel," "Janice Meredith," "David Harum," "When Knighthood Was in Flower" and "Via Crucis." It is especially noteworthy that of these five books three are on American subjects, in which the keenest interest is now being taken. One of the healthiest signs of the times is that each book which is included in the list is wholesome, clean and untainted with that French realism which was so much in demand a few years ago. Books of that character no longer find an enormous sale in the United States. The public sentiment demands something of a different character. Whether the time has come for a distinctive American literature is problematical, but no one can deny that with the close of the century we are laying a substantial foundation for it.

Under the advice of the best and most courageous of the friends of the Indian, an act for the allotment of their tribal lands in severalty to the Indians, under certain conditions, was passed by Congress in 1884. Since that time many of the tribes have apportioned their lands to their individual members, and have given up the tribal life. As the Indians to whom lands were so allotted were forbidden to sell or otherwise alienate their land under twenty years, and as steps were taken to start them as farmers, it was supposed that the measure would do more to civilize and make them self-supporting, under existing conditions, than anything else has done. Fifteen years have gone by since the first allotment of lands, and the public men who were the authors and most earnest advocates of the severalty law have lately expressed deep discouragement with the result. Although the Indians cannot yet sell, they can and do lease their allotted lands to white men. There are reservations in the West where practically all the farms are rented to white men, while their owners and their families retire to unassigned parts of the reservation and live in the old wild way. Meantime the vices of the white men are communicated to them more readily than ever before, and they are without the tribal government and the restraint of strong men of their own race which often went with it. As a whole, the condition of the Indians is undoubtedly improving, but there are some cases in which, under the allotment system, they have actually retrograded. The fact is now apparent that it is difficult to make a self-supporting farmer of the Indian in one generation. The Indian still needs safeguards against corruption, and above all he needs practical and ... instruction, at his home, in ... trial occupations which ... to follow.

A LITTLE FARTHER ON.

Just a little farther on—just a little farther on—
Oh, the happy days that lure us, when these days of stress are gone!
Days of restfulness and pleasure, days of garnered joy and treasure,
All the harvest-homes of dreamland—just a little farther on.

What a hope to keep them smiling, faces wistful, faces wan!
What a spur to faint endeavor, till the crushing task is done!
Ah, 'twould be a sorry showing life would make for God's bestowing
If the good time did not beckon—just a little farther on.

In the joy we've almost tasted, is the crown we've almost won.
Ply the task a little stronger, stay the arm a little longer;
We shall grasp the shining guerdon—just a little farther on.

Ah, the fleeting Farther On! ah, the cheating Farther On!—
Fairy lantern in the twilight, when the summer day is done.
Though we never overtake it, we can never quite forsake it;
While it glimmers it beguiles us—just a little farther on.

But there is a Farther On, aye, there is a Farther On
In the uttermost sweet country, where no mortal foot has gone.
By-and-by, beyond all seeming, we shall come to life's redeeming,
Come to all that faith has promised—just a little farther on!

—Orange Judd Farmer.

THE LAKE RACE.

RANDOLPH was paddling with strong, even strokes through the placid waters of the little harbor. The wooded hills rose round him on three sides, while out before him lay the open lake. There were no sounds but the dip of his paddle and the melancholy cry of a distant loon, until suddenly came the slip and quick rush of falling rocks and earth, and at the same moment the cry of "Boy, boy, help!"

Randolph turned his canoe and paddled rapidly toward the shore whence these sounds had come, and there he found a laughing girl, already shaking herself free from the dirt and debris that had accompanied her fall.

"No, I'm not hurt," she said, merrily. "But when I called I was sure I was going to be! I was enviously watching you paddle, from the Indian's Head up there, and suppose the recent rains have undermined the old fellow's constitution so that my weight proved too much for him. His nose and I tumbled off together. I don't see how I'm ever to get back to the road from here—it's just straight up!"

PASSING THE BUOY.

"If you are staying over Woodhaven way, I can paddle you around; it's just the other side of this long point."

"Oh, how lovely—for I've never been in a canoe—and haven't had a chance till now! Yes, we're at the Woodhaven Inn. I've learned to swim this summer, and I have a rowboat, but there isn't a canoe anywhere around the lake that I can get—and I did want one dreadfully!"

"Then perhaps you'd like to try paddling now? If you would, I'll go back for an extra paddle. I'm one of the boys at Professor Williams' camp, just over there."

The girl was delighted at his suggestion, and soon Randolph had returned with another paddle, and the two started out slowly and at first quite cautiously. But the girl immediately took the motion with the easy grace of one used to out-of-door sport, and the boy behind her regarded her with the honest admiration that he would have felt for another boy.

"Randolph Murray," read the girl from the paddle that she was using. "Is that your name? Mine is Teresa Whiting, but everybody calls me Terry."

"And they call me Rand," said the boy. "Say, Terry, if you and I could get some good practice together, and enter the races week after next, I believe we could win the cup! You have a fine stroke; you paddle just like a boy."

"Oh!" cried Terry, "if papa were here he'd let me! And I really think mamma will not object, for I've never done anything in my life I liked half so well as this."

And in the sudden exuberance of her spirits Terry came near upsetting the canoe.

"Say, you mustn't do that!" said Rand; and Terry promised to restrain all such ebullitions of delight in future.

When Mrs. Whiting saw her daughter, who had started out for a "tramp over the hills," returning in a canoe with a strange boy, she wondered what Terry would be doing next. And when the strange boy and her own "odd little girl," as she called her, came to her with their startling request, she fairly gasped for breath.

But before she gave an answer either way Mrs. Whiting asked the boy a number of questions, and when she had learned that he was the son of an old acquaintance and that his mother was boarding at a farm house not far from Prof. Williams' camp, she was very much inclined to give her consent at once. However, she told Randolph to come around in his canoe the next morning, and if she had decided then to let Terry enter for the race, he would find her ready to practice with him.

That afternoon Mrs. Whiting called upon and renewed her acquaintance with Mrs. Murray, and the ladies paid a short visit to the professor's camp.

Needless to say that upon her mother's return Terry received the desired permission, and then "the fun of her life" began. Every day Randolph paddled around from the camp, and they practiced together long and faithfully. As the day of the contest drew near Terry became more and more confident, while her mother grew more nervous.

"Terry, remember that you and Rand are going to compete with older boys and girls, who have been in these races before. And then, too, Rand is going to compete in the first race, and that will tire him; so you have only a very little chance of winning."

"We have every chance of winning, mamma! You don't know what we can do! Just wait and see."

At last the great day came. The sky was cloudless, and the quiet lake, long before the appointed hour, began to take on a gala-day appearance. Little boats arrived from everywhere, bringing spectators and participants by threes and fours. Teams drove in from all the country round, and the pretty wooded shores were lined with groups of pleasure seekers and eager lookers-on.

There was some delay before the first race was caled. Then, "Canoe race, single," was announced, and four canoes went swiftly to the starting place. Through a glass Randolph could be plainly seen, his canoe being the second from the left.

And now the race began. The four dark specks shot forward, growing larger and more distinct as they advanced.

Rand was a little in the lead, but the next canoe gained upon him, and the thrid was but a paddle's length behind. One had dropped back so far that it had no chance at all.

Rand leads them still. Terry's eager eyes are fixed upon him; he has never paddled so well as now. But what is the matter with the next boy to him? He has changed his course; his canoe shoots forward obliquely; he is getting in Rand's way! Their paddles clash; the rival canoe darts forward; the one just behind has gained, and Rand, recovering his stroke, come in third. With his hand upraised to the judges he cries, "A foul!" But his protest is unheeded, and last year's winner, through transparent trickery, has carried off the prize.

Great was the indignation of Mrs. Murray over the manner of her boy's defeat; bitter was Mrs. Whiting's self-reproach that she had consented to her daughter's taking part in these races.

But Terry, with blazing eyes, had left her mother's side and gone to Rand.

"Unfair, unjust!" she cried out hotly, "and the winner and the judges know that it is! You ought to have that cup—but never mind; we'll win our race; we'll show them what we can do; and not one of them can touch us!"

Rand looked at her, and the color slowly came back to his white face. Unconsciously he straightened himself up and his weariness and discouragement left him.

"Yes, Terry; we shall win!" he said.

The afternoon wore on. Some of the races were very amusing, and the spectators were still laughing over the tubs, which had upset, and the wet boys were splashing merrily in towards the shore when "mixed double canoe race" was called.

Six canoes were soon in line, each with its crew of girl and boy. Terry's scarlet waist could be seen from the very start by all on shore. And now Mrs. Murray could hardly control her anxiety and nervousness, while Mrs. Whiting seemed on the verge of tears.

Forward came the canoes—in an even line it seemed—but no, for Terry's scarlet waist was ever so little in the lead. Their paddles flash in unison; clockwork is not more true! But the next canoe is gaining steadily upon them—and they have almost reached the line.

Oddly enough, Terry is the coolest one of all the contestants, and just as she has talked to Rand when the two were practicing together, she is talking now.

"We can do it, Rand! That's fine! Keep right on! Don't change till the very last minute! You know the words we agreed on—all ready, now——"

"Then!"

They have made the change; their paddles dip and flash now on the opposite sides; their tired muscles are relieved, fresh ones come into play; their canoe shoots forward half its length beyond its nearest rival—

And the line is crossed!

A shout of applause rises from the shore, and Terry raises her paddle above her head with a little cry of triumph.

"First prize won by Miss Teresa Whiting and Randolph Murray!" is announced, and two silver cups are handed, one to each!—Philadelphia Times.

FARM AND GARDEN

A Land Leveler.

The cut shows a handy, homemade contrivance for grading about one's premises, or for leveling rough fields, that are to be laid down to grass. It is very important that grass fields be as smooth as possible, to make machine work in haying as easy as possible. This leveler is a plank twelve feet long, mounted on two shoes six inches wide, to keep the plank from cutting down into the soil with its thin edge. A single horse should pull this leveler without difficulty, but, of course, one longer and heavier could be constructed which would require a two-horse team, doing faster and heavier work. Two old plough or cultivator handles can be utilized for this leveler, while the shoes can be made from two planks from a worn-out drag or stone-boat. A triangular piece of plank nailed into the angle between the plank leveler and the shoe at either end keeps all the parts united and in their proper place. The "dead furrows," that leave a field so unsightly and inconvenient to mow, can be leveled out by letting one end run ahead of the other, using a long chain in one ring.—New York Tribune.

Steeping Oats for Horses.

The nutritive power of oats, Herr Kalff, a German agriculturist says, may be considerably augmented by steeping the grain in water before giving it to horses. This is his plan: He has three troughs, each of which holds as much oats as will be required for one day's feeding. The first day the first trough is filled with oats and water at a temperature of 8 degrees C. poured over it, and the whole mass is well stirred. The water is left in the trough about six hours, after which it is strained off through a hole in the bottom of the trough. The next day the operation is repeated in the second trough, and again on the following day the third trough. The oats thus steeped in hot water get up fermentation, and at the expiration of forty-eight hours are ready to be given to the horses, and will then, according to Herr Kalff, produce the maximum nutritive effect.

Removing Small Stumps.

Attach a stout piece of timber to the stump by a chain and twist it around in a circle until the chain is taut. Then hitch a pair of horses or a yoke of oxen to the outer end of the timber and twist the stump out of the ground. It will be necessary to stand by with an ax and chop off the roots as they appear when the earth is disturbed in the twisting process. Enormous power can thus be applied to stumps, and for this reason the chains and timber must be stout.

Pruning in Winter.

Some successful fruit growers hold that fruit trees should not be pruned in winter, while others pay little attention to the season and "prune when the knife is sharp." About one point, however, there can be no doubt, and this is that it is not advisable to prune when the wood is frozen. Other conditions being equal, winter pruning is practiced by many for the reason that more time and care can be given to the work in winter than is practicable in the hurry of the spring work. Grapes can be pruned any time during winter. If the wood is wanted for propagation, it should be cut just before the severe frosts arrive.

The Value of Rotted Manure.

While during the winter is one of the best times to haul out and apply manure in the garden, care always should be taken to have it thoroughly rotted and fined before applying.

There are three reasons for this—one is that if the manure is well rotted it will be free from weed seeds that will germinate. If it is thoroughly fined it can be readily and thoroughly incorporated with the soil; and, being rotted, it will be in a more available condition for the use of the growing plants, with the additional advantage that it will not interfere with the thorough preparation of the soil before planting or in the cultivation of the growing plants afterward.

There is no danger of making the garden too rich, hence manure can be applied liberally.—Farmers' Voice.

The Age of a Horse.

To tell the age of a horse,
Inspect the lower jaw, of course;
The six front teeth the tale will tell
And every doubt and fear dispel.

Two middle "nippers" you behold
Before the colt is two years old,
Before eight weeks two more will come,
Eight months the "corners" cut the gum.

The outside grooves will disappear
From the middle two in just one year,
In two years form the second pair;
In three the "corners" cut are bare.

At two the middle "nippers" drop,
At three the second pair can't stop;
When four years old the third pair goes,
At five a full new set he shows.

The deep black spot will pass from view,
At six from the middle two;
The second pair at seven years;
At eight the spot each "corner" clears.

From middle "nippers" upper jaw
At nine the black spots will withdraw;
The second pair at ten are white;
Eleven finds the "corners" light.

As time goes on the horsemen know
The oval teeth three sided grow;
They longer get, project before,
Till twenty, when we know no more.
—Blacksmith and Wheelwright.

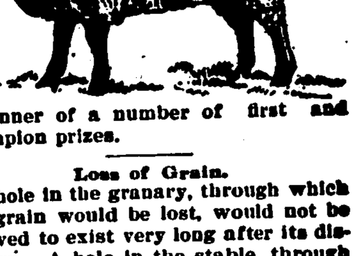
Protect the Birds.

It is much easier to destroy birds than insects, but as the number of birds is reduced the insects multiply. The wren is a very useful bird and may be induced to remain near dwelling houses if boxes are provided for them, but as they are unable to contend against English sparrows the entrances to the wren boxes should not be over an inch in diameter, as the wren is very small, and can protect itself by going where the sparrow cannot follow. Every encouragement should be given birds by feeding them and providing suitable places for their protection and accommodation.

Baling Clover Hay.

It is claimed that clover hay may be baled in the field, but the experiments made are not sufficient to show the benefits derived compared with storing clover in the mow. The clover is cut in the morning, after it is free from dew or rain, and when well wilted the hay tedder is used, so as to give it every chance to cure. In the afternoon the hay is baled and hauled to the barn. If this method is practiced care must be exercised in having the hay properly cured and in just the proper condition for baling, as baled clover is more liable to heat than timothy or other kinds.

English Cross-Bred Lamb.



Winner of a number of first and champion prizes.

Loss of Grain.

A hole in the granary, through which the grain would be lost, would not be allowed to exist very long after its discovery. A hole in the stable, through which the cold air enters and chills the animals, causes a loss of grain just as surely as the hole in the granary, as more food will be required to assist the animals in maintaining warmth. It is the things that are unobserved which sometimes cause loss. When the flow of milk is reduced, or the animals do not make gain proportionately to the food allowed, there is always a cause, and it should be sought.

Feeding Pigs.

Fattening the pigs demands care as well as corn. To derive the most in the shortest period of time the pig should be comfortable and contented. Food may be given three times a day, and, in addition to corn, a mess of bran and milk or cut clover hay, scalded and sprinkled with bran, may be allowed. If a variety of food is the rule the pig will make greater gain, because its wants will be satisfied. If the pen is kept clean and dry there will be a gain in weight, as dampness causes cold, and more warmth from the food will then be required.

Marketing Apples.

If the warm weather has injured the apples it will be of advantage to overhaul them. Examine each apple and reject all that are not perfectly sound. If it can be done conveniently, wrap the apples in tissue paper, singly, and place them on shelves. If the apples are for market they should not be disturbed unless necessary, when they may be assorted, the imperfect ones rejected and the sound ones repacked in the barrels. They should then be sent to market as soon as the weather permits. It is a waste of labor to send apples to market that are in the least degree injured.

OUR NORTHWESTERN MINES.

Items Gleaned From the Late Reports—All Districts Are Being Developed—A Prosperous Year Is Predicted—Mining Notes and Personals.

L. S. Quimby, a prospector who was grub staked about two years ago, has just returned to Tacoma with a story of marvelously rich quartz deposits in southeastern Alaska, in the vicinity of Ketchikan district, the exact location not being disclosed at the present time. The discovery also includes some rich placer ground. The story is that Quimby panned out $400 in a few days.

The veins are large and the discoverer says that they extend for miles. Assays of the rock brought down run from $150 upwards into values like some of the wonderful samples brought down from Ketchikan.

REPUBLIC.

The new Mountain Lion mill is now fully equipped.

The Princess Maude is fast proving itself a great mine. Seventy feet the drift has run through high grade ore.

The machinery for the Chico compressor has not yet arrived and it is uncertain when it will. The roads are getting worse every day.

The Insurgent shaft is making good progress. It has been sunk about 60 feet under the new management. The assay values are about $30 per ton.

In the Morning Glory indications of wedge-shaped pay shoot, big end down prevail, assays for four days as shown at company's office average over $200.

There is three and one half feet of ore in the winze of the San Poil. There is no perceptible change in values. It goes about $30 per ton. Six men are employed.

Big mine in Belcher, a district ten miles east of Republic camp. Veins said to be of great width, with shipping values plentiful in copper, gold. Long overlooked by the boomer, but showing up under steady work.

There is six feet of ore in the Black Tail drift. It is rich. From a reliable source it is learned that the assays of this ore body for 30 days past have averaged $30 per ton. This is a conservative estimate. There is a pay streak which goes much higher.

Excellent progress is being made on the double compartment shaft on the Tom Thumb. The ledge in the south drift maintains its width and the values have not in any wise diminished. Every foot of development confirms the predictions that have been made that it would become a great mine.

The development on the Quilp continues as rapidly as is possible without the aid of machinery. The mine never looked better and at no time have the average values been larger. There is considerable porphyry scattered through the quartz, but the quartz will undoubtedly soon come in larger bodies and will be less mixed through the porphyry.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

For several days negotiations have been pending for a bond on the Blue Jay group of claims, in Skylark camp, the amount involved being $34,000.

A vein of good shipping ore has been struck quite by accident in the shaft of the Nickle Plate at Rossland, one of the B. A. C. properties, placing it on the list of prospective shippers.

The shipments of ore from the B. C. mine in Summit camp to the Trail smelter amount thus far to 1500 tons. The new plant being installed comprises two 80-horse power boilers and half of a twenty-drill compressor.

The work of enlarging the St. Eugene concentrator goes steadily along, and at the present rate of progress it will be ready to run by April 15th. The St. Eugene air compressor, which was started up four weeks ago, is working alone.

The Taylor Air Compressor Company has put up one of its patent 500-horse power compressors on Coffee creek, near Ainsworth, and expects to deliver air to the neighboring mines this year. The air is compressed by a column of water falling into a shaft sunk in the bed of the creek.

The final payment has been made on the Banner claim, owned by the Grey Eagle Mining company, the new corporation organized by the Miner-Graves syndicate to operate the Grey Eagle, Banner, Tip Top and Triangle fraction, all of which properties adjoin the Old Ironsides, Knob Hill and War Eagle.

Parties interested in the Pontifex group of mines on Huckleberry mountain, have known for some time that work which has been steadily prosecuted all winter on the claim known as the Phoenix has been in a great body of ore. Assays recently had show that the average values run up to something over $30 per ton.

The miners are leaving Rossland rapidly for Butte, Cripple Creek, Sumpter, the Coeur d'Alenes, and other points in the United States. Not a few are going into the Slocan, Boundary creek and east Kootenai sections. Some are awaiting the opening of navigation, and will go north to Nome as soon as the steamers commence to leave the coast cities for the north.

The North Star and St. Eugene mines are preparing to ship over the new Burlington branch which connects the Great Northern with the Canadian Pacific. The North Star formerly shipped its ore by boat down the river, but to do this it was necessary to have all the ore sacked, as it had to be transferred. Lately the mines have not been shipping, but it is stated that they will begin at once.

Reports from Franklin, the new camp on the East fork of the North fork, 60 miles from Grand Forks, are to the effect that a great deal of development work has been done during the winter months. On the Banner, a rich gold-copper claim, bonded last fall by Henry White, the locator of the Knob Hill and Old Ironsides, a tunnel has been driven 150 feet to catch the lead. The work is still in progress. The assay values obtained from Franklin camp are the highest ever obtained in this district. A big influx is expected there in the spring.

MINING NOTES.

Another big ledge, No. 19, has been opened by Palmer Mountain tunnel at Loomis, Wash.

The report has been rife for some time that important developments have been showing up in the Tiger-Poorman mines at Burke, Idaho.

The possibility of the Boers destroying the mines is causing some anxiety among French financiers, who hold one-third of the shares.

The Dewey mine near Grangeville, Idaho is forging ahead. The threatened litigation has been settled and 8 men are at work.

The crosscut tunnel by which the Canyon Creek Mining Company is going to reach its vein from the old Union tunnel, is in over 100 feet.

The warm weather has taken the frost out of the ground and started the water until the placer miners are finding it a good season for work in Idaho.

The directors of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company declared its regular dividend of $1.25 per share, and an extra dividend of 75 cents per share, payable April 30.

Another deal has been made by which the property of L. W. Nelson, who for nearly a quarter of a century has worked the Nelson placers, six miles west of Baker, has been sold to Baker City people.

A fine lot of ore from the Leslie group was shown in Wallace, Idaho, last week. It is situated just over the summit in Montana, it is about on the dividing line between the copper and lead belts.

Mayor Comstock, of Spokane, appointed W. J. Thompson as delegate from Spokane to the trans-Mississippi commercial congress, to be held in Houstin, Texas, from April 17 to April 21, 1900.

At the Northport smelter blast furnaces Nos. 1 and 2 are running steadily but the crusher is closed. No ore is coming in now, but there is plenty on hand to run the smelter for 60 days at least, and it is nearly certain that shipments will be resumed by that time.

Sumpter, Or., mining camp, while not unusually lively last month, still maintained a good mining and milling average. A total of 166 stamps pounded throughout February, and the ten mines in complete operation produced a round $200,000 for the month.

The total output for the month, $196-000, does not include the value of the ore shipped to the Selby smelting works at San Francisco by the Golconda mine.

Altogether the camp has maintained during the month its position in the front ranks of dividend payers of the northwest.

One of the most important mining deals which has been consummated within several months was the sale of the South Cougar group, consisting of five full claims, adjoining the now famous Cougar mine at Granite, Or., and on the same ledge within a few hundred feet of the workings of the big mine The purchasers are all Baker city people.

Suit for $1,650,000 has been brought in the district court of Butte by the Montana Ore Purchasing company against the Boston and Montana and the Butte & Boston Mining companies, the Lewisohons, G. W. Hyams and others connected with the defendant corporations. It grows out of the proceedings of the case involving ownership to the Johnstown and Rarus claims.

At 47 feet from the shaft on the 250 foot level the Black Bear people have struck their No. 2 vein, at Loomis. They had three and one-half feet of quartz, and were not across the vein. It is a singular coincidence that at exactly on the 250-foot level, veins Nos. 1 and 2 have been cut. The cutting of these two veins puts the Black Bear into 150 feet of ore on each vein over the level, upon which they can drift at least 500 feet west and 1000 east, while there is 1200 feet below them to the level of the Palmer Mountain tunnel, where the same vein will be cut in the adjoining claim, which is owned by the big tunnel company.

CONGRESS IS TO BLAME

SUFFERING IN PUERTO RICO.

It Demands Immediate Relief—A Public Meeting Held—Many People Are Starved, Barefoot and Ragged—A Huge Petition.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, March 19.—At a special meeting of the chamber of commerce recently it was decided to close all business houses to enable the merchants to attend an open air meeting on the plaza, with the object of drawing up a petition to Governor General Davis demanding immediate congressional decision on the tariff one way or the other. The agreements were sent to all towns throughout Puerto Rico, requesting like demonstrations. The feeling of uncertainty regarding the tariff holds business practically at a standstill, the merchants beinfi afraid to order goods or to advance funds on the planters' accounts. The meeting was conducted in a calm and business-like manner. The merchants will be satisfied to accept any decision of congress—either free trade, the 25 per cent or the 15 per cent tariff—but they ask for a settlement of the question so that business activity may be resumed. They decided to take this unparalleled step only after mature deliberation.

Begging for Food.

Sixty country women marched from Narantjito last evening and petitioned General Davis to save them from starvation and to provide work and food.

The women presented a most pitiable sight. They were barefooted and ragged, half naked, dust covered and weary from their journey.

The petition which they presented to the governor general tells the story of the depressing times, no work and the price of rice, beans and bread beyond reach, fruits destroyed and the relief supplies discontinued, bringing them and others where they came from almost to starvation. General Davis promised relief to the party, and requested the mayor to provide them transportation. His reply was that there was not a peso in the treasury, and that the police were yet unpaid for their last two months' work.

Similar parties are expected from other towns.

All Machinists May Strike.

Chicago, March 19.—President O'Connell of the International Machinists' union, declares that 100,000 machinists in all parts of the United States and Canada will be ordered on strike within the coming month, as the result of a disagreement between the manufacturers and machinists, who closed a joint conference in Chicago. All members of the machinists' committee and manufacturers from all parts of the United States were present.

Zero Weather in Chicago.

Chicago, March 19.—The temperature Saturday morning beat all records for this late in March since 1888. At 2 o'clock in the morning the thermometer registered one below zero. The cold wave, which originated in the northwest, had its center in this district. Chicago, Milwaukee and Green Bay were the only places where the temperature reached zero. The frost filled the Chicago police stations with lodgers and there was a good deal of suffering among the poor families.

Riot Narrowly Averted.

Chicago, March 19.—The presence of strikers, sympathizers and spectators numbering more than 100, in the vicinity of the Western Electric company's factory Saturday resulted in a riot call being sent to the Desplaines street police station. A wagon load of policemen hurried to the scene and prevented, it is believed, a serious attack on the non-union men employed by the electric company. The crowd, which completely filled the streets, hooted at the police and declined to budge until the bluecoats made a vigorous charge.

Portland Boy in Jail.

Portland, Ore., March 19.—Otto Brown, a 10-year-old boy, is in jail on suspicion of having caused the death of Fritz Hepfur, aged 13, last week, by pushing him into the river. The coroner's jury which has been investigating the case today returned a verdict finding that the circumstances and the testimony of the witnesses point to Otto Brown as having caused the drowning.

Died in Holland.

New York, March 19.—Word has been received here that Gifford Fords Parker died recently at The Hague, Holland, of locomotor ataxia, after an illness of six years. He was 59 years of age. He was for several years engaged in business in this city as an importer with large interests in San Francisco, New Orleans and China.

Anti-Trust Law Is Legal.

Washington, March 20.—The supreme court of the United States has rendered an opinion in the case of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company against the state of Texas, affirming the decision of the court of civil appeals of Texas. The case involved the constitutionality of the anti-trust law of Texas, which was sustained by today's opinion.

Coal Oil Lamp Exploded.

Kalispell, Mont., March 18.—The store of G. H. Adams, who carries a general stock of merchandise, caught fire Saturday by a coal oil lamp exploding and setting some dry goods on fire, which soon spread to other parts of the store. After hard work by the department, it was extinguished with a loss of about $9000 to stock and a trifling loss to the building, which was a two-story brick structure The fire was confined to the lower floor About $11,000 of insurance was carried which, it is thought, will cover loss.

The Trotter Maud S. Is Dead.

New York.—Maud S., the famous trotter, died at Schultz's farm, Port Chester, N. Y., St. Patrick's day. She was brought to the farm from New York a week ago and it was intended to use her for breeding purposes. She was sick when she arrived here and had been under the care of a veterinary surgeon. She gradually became worse, however, and all efforts to save the life of the valuable animal were fruitless. Maud S. was owned by the Bonner estate and was 26 years old. Her trotting record of 2:08 3-4 was made in 1885.

M'Kinley Has a Job in Sight.

Millville, N. J., March 20.—Bishop Hurst in his sermon at the opening of today's session of the New Jersey Methodist Episcopal conference in speaking of the American university at Washington said that President McKinley would, at the conclusion of his service as a public officer, accept the position of professor of international law at the university.

Commission Coming Home.

Panama, March 20.—The United States canal commission has left Colon for Costa Rica and will proceed from that republic to New York.

The strike of the employes on the power plant building at Cameron, Col., is settled, and work has been resumed. The strikers were successful. The iron workers will receive $3.50 for a day of eight hours, the laborers $3.00 for eight hours.

—One hundred and thirteen varieties of potatoes have been shipped from the Moscow Experiment Station to the industrial agent of the O. R. & N. Co. at Walla Walla. They will be used to make tests regarding yield and quality on the company's experiment farm. The Station also sold a few steers raised there which netted $24 per head profit.

—Old Bill is dead. This is the noted horse which carried the message to Lapwai of the Indian outbreak on Salmon river in June 1877. The old horse lived to the ripe old age of 38 years, and has been for the past six years on the ranch of D. A. McKinley on the Cottonwood side, where he has been tenderly cared for. Peace to his ashes.—Grangeville Press.

—Now and then a farmer will plant potatoes on land to be summer fallowed the coming season. It is desired to be seen whether a potato crop can be grown at a profit or not, on land that would otherwise be idle. The following year this same land will be sowed to wheat. This will permit of comparisons subsequently being made with lands not thus treated, but summer-fallowed in the usual manner.

—The new currency bill is now a law. Provision is made for the establishment of national banks with $25,000 capital in cities of 3,000 or less, and national banking currency may be issued to the full amount of government bonds held, instead of 90 per cent., as heretofore. These are the salient features of the revenue law, the most important piece of legislation enacted by congress this session. It provides for the refunding of bonds bearing a higher rate of interest with a 2 per cent. issue.

—The question is often asked whether it is most desirable in developing a good dairy herd to use a full-blooded sire or to buy a number of full-blooded young stock. The quickest way undoubtedly is to buy the young stock, but if you have a number of first-class individual cows, no matter if their breeding is not gilt edge, an exceedingly fine herd can be built up after a few years by buying a full-blooded sire. The dairyman is more apt to be satisfied with the final results, as in buying young stock there is always danger of getting poor individuals.

—It is believed by high authorities that the price of wheat will rule considerable higher another fall. The government report March 1, this year, shows a total of 158,000,000 bushels of wheat on hand against $198,000,000 one year ago. Bradstreet's show a shortage of only about 6,000,000. Argentine is still sending out immense quantities of cheap wheat, and Russia, with large apparent reserves, acts as a retarding feature, but the loss of the Indian crop, French crop damages, and the prospective increased European purchases, as the season advances, continues to buoy up holders with the idea that improvement must come in the course of time. The wars are drawing to a close and vessels should be more plentiful in a few months when the price of tonnage should take a decided tumble. Besides, coast points continue to ship a million bushels or more to the Orient monthly and the shipments in that direction should increase from this on.

He Can't Believe It.

He's blowing with all his might and can barely stir the recording hand from zero. There's many a big, healthy looking man who is weak in the lungs. Probably half or two-thirds of his lung surface barely knows the contact of oxygen. He's the kind of man, who, when a cough attacks him, goes galloping down the road toward consumption. Many such a man has found strength and healing for weak lungs and tissues lacerated by coughing and drained by hemorrhages, in the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The healing power of this medicine in pulmonary diseases seems little short of marvelous at times, so extreme are the conditions which it cures. The "Discovery" contains no alcohol, and no narcotics.

"When I started to take your 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" writes Mr. A. F. Novotny, of New York, N. Y., Box 1437, "I had a regular consumptive cough, of which I was afraid, and everybody cautioned me and warned me concerning it. I was losing weight rapidly, was very pale and had no appetite, whatever. Now my condition is changed entirely. I do not cough at all, have gained eight pounds in weight, have recovered my healthy color, and my appetite is enormous. I can recommend your medicine to everybody who may be in need of the same, as it is a sure cure."

—The April number of Pearson's Magazine is a gem. The leading position is given to an article on "Bismarck Bonfires." On April 1, the anniversary of Bismarck's birth, and on every succeeding 1st of April, bonfires will be lighted throughout the whole of Germany on the tops of great towers specially built in honor of the Iron Chancellor. "New York Underground Railway" is a picturesque account of the work entailed in constructing the new rapid transit tunnel in New York. Lord Roberts and his scouts receive attention. "Historic Mysteries," "The Admiral of the Fleet," "Night Road Romances" are worthy of perusal. This fine magazine with the NEWS $2.25.

PLANT TREES.

Beautify the streets of Genesee by planting shade trees along the sidewalks in the residence portion of our town. The most important and good improvement that can be made in our city without cost or nearly so, is tree planting. If the owners of property would consider for one moment that it has not only a sentimental advantage but a true commercial value. Every one can aid in the good work by looking after the strip of land in front of his own door. The example would be quickly followed and we should in a short time have many fine streets and avenues, such as few towns in the Palouse can boast of. The planting ought to be uniform. This is important. Have a straight line say eight feet from the fence line; that would give ample room for sidewalks six feet wide, the four foot walk being too narrow for comfort.

The committee on streets and public property, or city engineer, could stake out the line. By the way this work should be done by the city engineer as it comes directly in his line, and I think there is much that could be done by that now apparently useless official. There are many different varieties of trees that could be planted. The Russian poplar is a rapid grower and makes a beautiful tree. I would suggest that some streets be planted entirely to one variety. Many of the fruit trees make handsome trees for shade, such as have an upright growth. In the cherry and pear trees we have this to a marked degree; also some apple trees grow straight up. I would not plant any low branching trees. W. J. H.

—March came in like a sheep and of course will go out like a lion or cougar. Prophet Hicks says the first days of April will be similar to the last days of March, resulting in considerable rain, sleet and snow in localities, followed by cool weather. Reaction to warmer about the 5th. Some storms and possibly some violence about the 11th. Hot, humid air, with low barometer and restless clouds, should be regarded as admonitions of dangerous storms now. Cool, frosty nights follow. Reactory storms the 17th, followed by April showers and perhaps some hail. Frosts about the 19th and 20th. Warm, hot spell about the 23d to 25th, accompanied by vicious rain, thunder, hail and frosts. Reactory storm period during the last three days of April. Seismic shakes probable. Hicks is going to shell out a few tornado monsters during May and wants people to get his almanac forecasts and dodge them—thus "take the strain of dread and danger off the heads and hearts of your wife and children by preparing a convenient and safe refuge from the tornado." Thanks, brother; Idaho is unacquainted with these animals.

—Damaging drouth over the great grain belt during the present season is predicted by Hicks.

—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dubois rejoice over the advent of a twelve pound girl at their Blackfoot home.

—Make Genesee a good place to live in. Plant trees, shrubbery and flowers. Paint your buildings and fences.

—Fully 1500 people have located in Fremont county during the past year and indications are that as many more will come during 1900.

—The southern cotton growers have several lapse the start of the northern wheat growers at the present writing. The ruling price for cotton now is a fraction over 9 cents which is said to be equivalent to $1.25 wheat.

—An engine was wrecked at Kendrick last week through a mischevious person turning the switches. Had the freight train been running at full speed some of the trainmen would undoubtedly have been seriously injured.

—Glanders has appeared at the bar racks at Boise. The animals had to be inocculated and two were killed. The veterinary also removed a bullet from one of the animals that was shot during the campaign in Cuba, in which troop H, Sixth cavalry, participated.

—The railroad has made amicable settlement with the Indians near the new town of Stuart who had objected to the building of the road through the cemetery. The company paid $100 and agreed to fence the new cemetery. The fifteen graves have been moved and the road is now being graded.

—The silver parties have selected Lewiston and Pocatello in which to hold their state conventions. The democrats will gather at Lewiston on June 19 to select delegates to the national convention. The silver republican executive committee was instructed to appoint the national delegates and the populist committee was instructed to appoint their delegates. The state nominating convention will be held at Pocatello July 17, the same date the republican convention will be held in Boise. May the best men secure the prizes.

—Do not permit the children to form the habit of disputing and quarreling with each other. It may be prevented, like other bad habits, by watchfulness, particularly if the training is begun when the children are very young. Separation is the best punishment, breaking up the play and taking away the cause of the dispute. Children are social beings and do not like to play alone. They dislike solitude, and if they find it is invariably the result of quarreling they will take pains to be more amiable so as not to be forced into it, says the Ladies' Home Journal.

—Judson Ford, convicted of Arson in the second degree at Lewiston, was sentenced by Judge Steele to three years in the penitentiary at hard labor. Mr. Ford is the gentleman who burned Mr. Hasbrouck's house last fall. S. T. Dunbar, tried for stealing a watch from a vest hanging in the Hotel de France, was found guilty in the second degree and sentenced to two years and a half in the penitentiary at hard labor.

—The cattle thieves, Wm. Barker and Bert Beeman, found guilty at Lewiston, were sentenced to five years each at hard labor in the penitentiary at Boise. Judge Steele stated that cattle stealing had reached the stage that cattle were stolen by the carload and run out of the country, thieves not being satisfied with stealing a few head. A warning to others. The gentlemen are now pounding rock at the state capital.

—The state has become the owner of the David Fouch farm near Star, comprising 105 acres. In the adjustment of the mortgage held by the state Mr. Fouch last fall executed a deed to the property which was placed in escrow. He had no privilege of redeeming it at any time up to the 15th of March. In this he failed and the deed was taken out by the state and placed on record. The property has cost the land board a little over $3700.—Statesman.

—The Northwest Dairy Association held at Moscow last week, though not as largely attended as it should have been, resulted in disseminating much useful knowledge that every farmer should possess. C. L. Smith, an experienced dairyman from Minnesota, delivered an able address entitled "Brains on the Farm." He said: "I took a trip through Minnesota and found dairymen equally situated as to soil and climate, etc., and receiving all the way from $12 to $60 apiece from their cows for the year. The $60 man mixed brains and muscle, and got five times as much money for the same amount of work. We used to educate our brightest boy and make a doctor or preacher of him, and keep the fool on the farm. Now we should reverse the thing. The farm requires it. In much of the drudgery on the farm the man who uses his brains will evolve an easier way." Several prominent men were present and gave their experiences. It was plainly shown that farmers can make money at something besides exclusive wheat raising. These gatherings teach us many things and farmers are changing their methods. With the improved methods that will before long be in vogue, it is not unreasonable to predict that the next few years will find the farmers of the Palouse supplying the home market and the coast with most of their needs instead of having the east supplying our wants. Welcome the change.

—F. E. Cornwall and D. M. Eckman have decided to go to Cape Nome to search for gold, expecting to leave Moscow about May 1st. The hundreds of miles of beach where gold can be washed out at little expense is the attractive magnet. And of course the mountains back must be filled with the yellow metal. Great, rich country according to the reports.

—A change in the road bed of the N. P. a short distance below the Little Potlatch will be made as soon as possible, reports the Juliaetta Register. Messrs. Wren & Greenough, the noted contractors, have the contract to construct an entirely new grade around near the bluff so as to avoid crossing and recrossing the treacherous Potlatch as the road is now located. Implements and men are already on hand and work will be commenced which will consume at least two or three months time.

A Fiendish Attack.

An attack was lately made on C. F. Collier of Cherokee, Iowa, that nearly proved fatal. It came through his kidneys. His back got so lame he could not stoop without great pain, nor sit in a chair unless propped by cushions. No remedy helped him until he tried Electric Bitters which effected such a wonderful change that he writes he feels like a new man. This marvelous medicine cures backache and kidney trouble, purifies the blood and builds up your health. Only 50c at Kennedy's drug store.

A Good Cough Medicine for Children.

"I have no hesitancy in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says F. P. Moran, a well known and popular baker, of Petersburg, Va. "We have given it to our children when troubled with bad coughs, also whooping cough, and it has always given perfect satisfaction. It was recommended to me by a druggist as it contained no opium or other harmful drug." Sold by all druggists.

He Fooled the Surgeons.

All doctors told Renick Hamilton, of West Jefferson, O., after suffering 18 months from Rectal Fistula, he would die unless a costly operation was performed; but he cured himself with Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the best in the world. Surest pile cure on earth. 25c a box at Kennedy's.

Judging Seed Corn.

At the University of Illinois the students were tested in judging several varieties of corn according to the standard adopted by the Illinois Corn Growers' Association. As many people have never seen corn judged in that way, though they may have seen it exhibited and premiums awarded at the county or town fairs, we will give the various points to be considered and their value. The standard of perfection demands that the ear shall be 10 inches long, 7½ inches in circumference, and have 90 per cent. of grain to cob. The scale of points as follows: Uniformity of ears in samples shows five points, shape 10, color of corn and cob 10, ripeness 5, filling out at ends 15, perfection and uniformity of grain 8, length of ear 10, circumference of ear 5, space between rows 10, per cent. of grain 22, in a total of 100 points. Perhaps we could not frame a better scale of points, though the late Dr. E. L. Sturtevant taught us to attach much importance to the uniform color and shape of grain, and but little to length and circumference of ear. See if you can select seed corn next year that will score well by this scale of points.—American Cultivator.

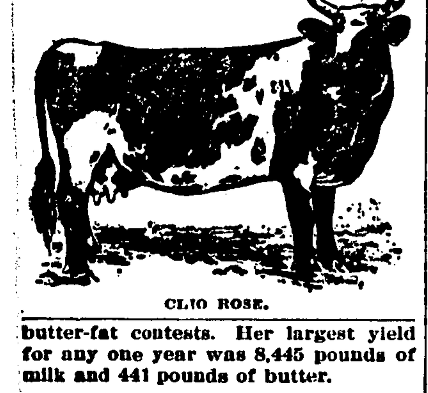
Seedless Fruit.

L. H. Callaway, of Bethel, Ill., has been growing seedless persimmons for several years, the quality of which he says is good. Further, he says: "For many years horticulturists have sought—but have found it not—a seedless persimmon. I have found one which is practically seedless. Rarely a specimen can be found containing one seed and very rarely a specimen containing two seeds, but most of the fruit is absolutely seedless." If there are seedless persimmons, why not have seedless apples, peaches and plums—and cherries, damsons, and, in short, all kinds of fruit? There are seedless oranges, and certain kinds of apples have but few seeds.

Pomological experimentation and genius may yet perfect seedless fruit of several kinds—an accomplishment that would greatly please the ladies who seed the cherries and plums. There is practically no use for seeds of a great many kinds of fruit, since all the trees are made by grafting and budding, and who knows that nature long since of her own accord furnished seedless fruit in order to show man what is possible?—Farmer's Voice.

Ayrshire Cow.

The cut, reproduced from the Rural New Yorker, shows the Ayrshire cow, Clio Rose, 7525, the property of C. M. Winslow & Son, of Brandon, Vt. This cow is fifteen years old this spring and is said to be still hearty and strong, and up to her average milk last year. She has never been the heaviest milker, but a very persistent one, having never been dry since her first calf, always giving a fair yield of milk of high quality. Since her first calf she had given 80,424 pounds of milk to Jan. 1 last. She has won a good many prizes at fairs, both in the show ring and in butter-fat contests. Her largest yield for any one year was 8,445 pounds of milk and 441 pounds of butter.



CLIO ROSE.

Food for Hens.

Every farmer knows that when a mild spell of weather occurs in the winter the hens begin to lay, and then cease when the temperature is low. This fact demonstrates that warmth has much influence on laying, and that warm quarters are essential to egg production. When the hens can go on the fields in the spring and forage they secure a large amount of insect food. During the winter a substitute for such foods may be allowed in the form of cut bone, ground meat, fresh meat and a change of grains. Corn and wheat make excellent foods during cold weather, but a variety of foods must be given in order to have the hens produce eggs.

To Tan Skins with the Hair On.

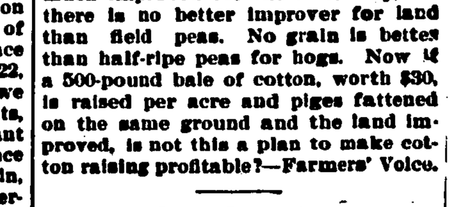
A subscriber, who omits both name and address, asks us to give a method by which he may tan skins and pelts without removing the fur or hair. There are several methods, more or less complex, for the purpose, but the following will be found simple and efficacious: Take a spoonful of alum and two of saltpeter; pulverize and mix well together, then sprinkle the powder on the flesh side of the skin, and lay the two flesh sides together, leaving the wool outside. Then fold up the skin as tight as you can and hang it in a dry place. In two or three days, or as soon as it is dry, take it down and scrape it with a blunt knife, till clean and supple. This completes the process, and makes you a most excellent saddle cover. If when you kill your mutton, you treat the skins this way, you can get more for them from the saddler than you can get for the wool and skin separately disposed otherwise. Other skins which you desire to cure with the fur or hair on may be treated in the same way."—Journal of Agriculture.

Raising Cotton.

A cotton grower tells about his success this year. When he was laying by, or giving the crop the last cultivation, he drilled peas between rows on a part of his field. The peas grew and made a fine crop. Instead of injuring the cotton, the part where the peas were planted was a much better crop; and now to crown the success with his pea crop experiment he is fattening his Poland China pigs on the peas in his cotton field. His land is, of course, much improved for the next crop, for there is no better improver for land than field peas. No grain is better than half-ripe peas for hogs. Now if a 500-pound bale of cotton, worth $30, is raised per acre and pigs fattened on the same ground and the land improved, is not this a plan to make cotton raising profitable?—Farmers' Voice.

Plant Supports.

These should be made in the winter, that they may be ready when needed. Knock out the bottoms from grocery boxes and saw them through again and again, as suggested in the dotted lines. All that then remains is to nail in the corners the pointed stakes that hold up the rails. Nothing better can be devised for tomatoes than supports made in this way. The same kind of supports are also exceedingly useful for putting about rose bushes or small shrubs that one may be starting upon the lawn. Such small growths need this protection until they are big enough to look out for themselves.



SUPPORTS FOR PLANTS.

Breed Will Tell.

The advantage of breed as tending to increase prices may be shown in the fact that an Illinois farmer received from the Chicago stock yard packers $8.50 per hundred-weight for two Aberdeen-Angus steers which weighed 1,750 and 1,680 pounds. The steers were only 2 years old, yet they brought their owner $148.75 and $142.80. They were fed on the ordinary food of the farm from the time they were calved, being kept partly on pasture and finished on ground corn, ground oats and bran, mixed. It will be noticed that these steers were large for 2-year-olds, but in addition to their size they brought an extra price per pound for quality.

When to Spread Manure.

All the manure that is being leached every time it rains or the snow melts is greatly deteriorating, until by spring, when it is to be hauled out and spread, it will have about half or two-thirds its proper value as a fertilizer. The most valuable constituent of it, the nitrogen, is the part which is being most largely wasted. Authorities agree that manure is best conserved and most profitable to the land when hauled out immediately. If it is very strawy and contains but little excrement, it should be composted, but then it will not do so much leaching.—Farm Journal.

Wheat in Spring.

If the wheat does not look well after spring opens apply 100 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre, and the effect will be noticed immediately. Nitrate of soda always gives good results on wheat if applied in the spring, and many crops have been saved by its use. The cost of the nitrate should not exceed $2.50 per acre, and the increase of straw and grain will not only pay for its use, but leave a profit as well. Should the frost throw some of the wheat plants up use the roller as soon as it can be done.

Killing Insects.

The fruit grower who expects to have fair crops of fruit must begin with the use of insecticides early. He must not delay too late into the spring, as the first spraying is sometimes the most important of all. Paris green will not destroy the enemies that live on sap nor will kerosene injure those that feed upon the leaves. In using remedies, therefore, it must be done with an object in view and with a knowledge of the habits of the parasite or insect to be destroyed.

After Benefits from Manure.

It takes time for manure to show full effect in the soil, and but little benefit may be noticed the first year, but gradually the materials will decompose and return to the soil the original elements derived therefrom. Some farmers are occasionally disappointed with the use of manure, but the benefits from manure the first year depend largely upon its condition when applied to the soil.

THE AVERAGE MAN.

His face had the grimness of granite;
It was bleached and bronzed by the sun,
Like the coat on his poor narrow shoulders;
And his hands showed the work he had done.
His dim eyes were weary and patient;
And he smiled through his pallor and tan
A wistful, sad smile, as if saying:
"I'm only an average man.

"I can't be a hero or poet,
Nor a dictator wearing a crown,
I'm only the hard-working servant
Of those set above me. I'm down;
I'm down, and it's no use complaining;
I'll get on the best way I can;
And one o' these days'll come morning
And rest for the average man."

He wages all battles and wins them,
He builds all turrets that tower
Over walls of the city to tell
Of the rulers and priests of the hour,
Without him the general is helpless,
The earth but a place and a plan,
He moves all and clothes all and feeds all,
This sad-smiling, average man.

Then I lifted my hand in a promise,
With teeth set close, and my breath
Held hard in my throat; and I uttered
A vow that shall outlive death.
I swear that the builder no longer
To me shall be less than the plan,
Henceforward be guerdon and glory
And hope for the average man.
—Hamlin Garland.

HARD TIMES.

"SO HE'S gone at last, has he?" said my wife, with a little piquant elevation of her pretty brows. "I began to think he was somehow gifted with immortality."

"Dead at last," said I. "And what do you think, Jenny? He has left us a hundred dollars."

"A hundred dollars!" echoed my wife, clasping her hands together. "Oh! Charles—a hundred dollars!"

Now all this may sound like a two-pence-half-penny sort of affair to some of my readers, as I am very well aware. But as I am only a clerk on a salary of nine hundred a year—a hundred dollars drifting, as it were, out of the sky, seemed a very neat sum to me.

Jenny and I were both young people, just beginning the world, with no particular riches, except one apple-cheeked baby. Jenny did her own work, made my shirts and cut and fitted her own dresses. I walked to and from business every day to save the twenty cents omnibus fares. We did our best to make both ends meet—and a tight pull we found it.

So that you will easily see that this hundred-dollar bill represented considerable more to us than its mere face value. Old Uncle Moses Manson was mortally offended when his niece, Jenny Clifford, chose to marry me instead of a wizened, bespectacled, old contemporary of his own. He had never spoken to her since, and we naturally entertained no very exalted hopes of any testamentary recollections on his part. And the hundred-dollar bill, therefore, possessed the charm of an agreeable surprise into the bargain.

"Charles," said Jenny, under her breath, "what shall we do with it?"

"That is the very question," said I. "Do you know, Jenny——"

I hesitated a little here.

"Yes?" she responded, interrogatively.

"Every fellow in the bank, except me, has a gold watch. I've been ashamed of this old silver concern more than once. And Seymour has a very nice second-hand one for sale that he will let me have for ninety dollars if——"

"And turn the hundred dollars into a mere useless ornament!" cried Jenny, with a strong accent of disapprobation in her voice. "Charley, that isn't a bit like you."

"Well, then, what do you suggest?"

"I should so like to give a social party with it," said Jennie, coaxingly. "Only think how often we've been invited out since we were married, and never have had a chance to return any of the hospitalities of our friends. The musicians, the supper, and all, would come within the hundred dollars."

"And you are absurd enough to wish to eat, and drink, and dance up a sum like that!" I cried. "No, no, Jennette, it is entirely out of the question."

"A new velvet suit for the baby?" suggested Jenny, pouting a little at the emphasis of my words.

"How would it correspond with the rest of our surroundings?" I asked, not without an accent of bitterness. "You had a great deal better suggest a new winter suit and overcoat for me. You never seem to observe how shabby I am getting."

"Nobody notices a gentleman's dress," said Jenny. "I can make your overcoat look very nice with fresh binding and new buttons—but how I should like a sealskin jacket!"

"Jenny," said I, somewhat disgusted, "I had no idea you could be so selfish."

Jenny colored and tossed her head.

"Selfish, indeed!" cried she. "I would like to know whether you have yet suggested anything which was not for your own special benefit and use?"

We were both silent. I don't suppose either one of us had felt so vindictive before, since our marriage. Clearly, the hundred-dollar bill had worked no great benefit as yet.

"I'll tell you what, Jenny," said I; "let's compromise. Let's buy a new sitting-room and stairs carpet. I saw a beautiful pattern at Moody's yesterday—pearl-gray, with a vine of scarlet moss all over it."

"I don't care very much for new carpets as long as we live on a second floor," said Jenny. "And you don't seem to remember, Charles, that I haven't had a silk dress since we were married. Black silk is suitable for all occasions, from a wedding to a funeral, and I really think——"

"I believe a woman's thoughts are always running on dress," muttered I, somewhat contemptuously. "I'm sure that black alpaca of yours is beautiful."

"That's all you know about the matter," said Jenny, elevating her nose. "Well, I don't care. Spend the money as you choose. Only, Uncle Moses was my relative."

"And the money was left to me, Mrs. Evarts," said I.

Jenny looked at me with her eyes full of tears.

"Oh, Charles," said she, "how can you speak to me so?"

"Because I'm a brute, Jenny," said I, fairly melted. "Forgive me, and we'll fling the paltry old hundred-dollar bill into the fire before we'll let it scatter the seeds of division between us."

"No, Charley, don't do that," said Jenny, laughing through her tears. "Let's—put it in the savings band."

"Agreed," said I, sealing the bargain with one of our old-fashioned kisses. "And apropos of savings banks, did I tell you about Greene?"

"No. What about Greene?"

"Why, he and his wife have just moved into the prettiest little Gothic cottage you ever saw, just the other side of the Harlem Bridge, with a lawn and a garden, and space to keep a little Alderney cow."

"Rented it?"

"No, bought it."

"Why, Charles, how can that be? Greene has only two or three hundred a year more than you, and it takes money to buy places in the country."

"All savings banks, my dear," said I. "Greene tells me that he and his wife have been saving up for years, with special reference to this country home for their children. They commenced with a fifty-cent piece."

"We can do better than that!" said Jenny, with sparkling eyes. "Please God, dear Charley, our little fellow shall have a green and sunny place to play in before he is many years older! And I'll do without the silk dress."

"And I'll make the old overcoat last another season, at the very least," I added.

"And we'll give up all such nonsense as new carpets——"

"And gold watches."

"And foolish suppers and wines and everything else that isn't absolutely necessary," added Jenny, comprehensively.

The next morning, bright and early, as soon as business hours would permit, I went and deposited the hundred dollars in the nearest savings bank.

A week afterward Mr. Manyply dropped in, in a friendly way. Manyply is the lawyer who transacted Uncle Moses Manson's financial affairs—a plump, bald-headed, deep-voiced old gentleman, who always dresses in spotless black and wears a big seal-ring on the little finger of his left hand.

"So," said Mr. Manyply, "you've invested that hundred dollars, have you?"

"Yes," said I, with the complacent air of one who has an account in bank. "But how did you know it?"

"Oh, I know a good many things," said Mr. Manyply, oracularly. "But what's the idea of it?"

"Economy," struck in Jenny, proudly. "We are saving now, Mr. Manyply. We mean to have a home for little Charley—a garden full of roses and pinks and strawberries one of these days."

"And a very laudable ambition," said Manyply in that smooth, oily way of his. "How much would such a place cost now?"

"Charles thinks if we waited for a bargain we could secure it for about $7,000," Jenny answered, promptly.

"Buy it now, then," said Mr. Manyply. "Here's a check for eight thousand."

"Eh?" cried I, breathlessly.

"A check," the old lawyer went on, "signed by your Uncle Manson, payable to the order of his niece, Jane Anne Evarts. Ah! you may well look astonished. He was an eccentric old chap, this uncle of yours, Mrs. Evarts—and I have his written instructions to keep an eye on the manner in which you invested that hundred-dollar bequest of his. 'If it is squandered in any foolish way,' he writes, 'there is an end of the matter. Put my money all in the Hospital for Hunchbacks. If they show any disposition to save help them along with this check for eight thousand dollars, to be expended only in the purchase of real estate.' My young friends, I congratulate you."

And Mr. Manyply's spectacles beamed upon us like two full moons.

This is how we became possessed of our lovely little country home, where Charley thrives like a growing flower and Jenny flits about in a broad-brimmed gardening hat, trimming roses, pruning gooseberries and planting lily-bulbs. And the hundred-dollar bill lies untouched in the savings bank.

"It shall be Charley's fortune," says my wife. "It would be a shame to touch it after it has wrought us so much good."

And I quite agree with her.—New York News.

A Republican Hat.

The story below, taken from the New York Tribune, proves that when poetry is in, wit is not necessarily out:

Michael Joseph Barry, the poet, was appointed a police magistrate in Dublin. An Irish-American was brought before him, charged with suspicious conduct, and the constable, among other things, swore that he was wearing a "Republican hat."

"Does your honor know what that means?" inquired the prisoner's lawyer of the court.

"I presume," said Barry, "that it means a hat without a crown."

The average man would be satisfied if he could only get the earth, but Alexander the Great wanted to get up a collection.

BUSINESS WOMEN.

"NO, SHE is not as capable as the woman we had before, neither is she as intelligent and well up in the business, but she is absolutely reliable, and for that reason much more valuable to us than the other." This remark was made by a prominent business man when speaking of changing employes, and though it is generally supposed that this virtue of absolute reliability is of special importance to the young man who is endeavoring to rise in his business or profession, it is also found to be the key to a great deal of the success of womankind in the business world. No matter how brilliant, competent, far-seeing or comprehensive the feminine employe may be, if it is understood that she cannot be counted on in emergencies or that at any time she is likely to be absent or incapacitated, her market value drops at once. The women who have achieved the greatest success in the business and professional world are those who were constant in season and out of season and ever ready for duty, ever on the alert for new ideas and avenues of usefulness or the acquiring of knowledge. It may be questioned whether reliability is not, first, last and all the time, the best recommendation for an employe, for with it all other qualities become of fourfold value; without it the best talent and most intelligent service are cheapened and become merely accidental factors in the general summing up. One of the first lessons that the young girl should learn on entering the business world, no matter what her position may be, is faithfulness to duty and trustworthiness in small matters, and when this lesson is thoroughly learned and practiced she will have no fear of encountering the frequent taunt: "No girls or women in my office, if you please; they are so unreliable, you know."—Philadelphia Record.

Death of a Noted Beauty.

Strangely pathetic was the short life of Lady Alice Montagu, whose death at a Swiss resort was announced recently. She was a twin daughter of the late Duke of Manchester and his Duchess, formerly Miss Consuelo Ysnaga, of New York. From childhood Lady Alice and her twin sister were noted for their exquisite beauty. At the same time they were both extremely delicate. Lady Mary, the other sister, died several years ago. Lady Alice made her debut in London society only two years ago, and was one of the toasts of the season. Her hair was red-gold, and her complexion pink-and-white. She had wealth, beauty and a place in the highest society of England as her birthright. But within the last two years she has been forced to travel almost continually in what has proved after all to be a vain effort to find good health.

LADY MONTAGU.

Wives, Remember!

That Adam was made first.
That "he pays the freight."
That "blessed are the meek."
That nine men in ten detest gossip.
That all angels are not of your sex.
That confidence begets confidence.
That men sometimes have "nerves."
That there should be no place like home.
That it takes two to prolong a family jar.
That the least said is the soonest mended.
That with all his faults you love him still.
That you should have no secrets from him.
That husbands have troubles of their own.
That he's "all right" when you know him.

Brushing Clothes.

Most girls do not use their clothes brushes half enough and in consequence their frocks always look untidy and old. To look well all skirts, bodices and jackets should be brushed as soon as taken off. Silk should never be brushed in the ordinary way, only with a clothes brush covered tightly with crepe. Hats must be brushed with a soft brush and a tiny whisk. When clothing gets wet it should be dried far from the fire, as if it dries too quickly it is apt to shrink at the same time.

Sleep on Your Back.

"To grow younger you have only to sleep upon your back and avoid pillows," says a physical culturist. Her theory is that since during the day the muscles of the face are inclined to drop we should counteract the drooping with the head on a level with the body or even lower than the body. This practice is warranted to do away with that arch enemy of woman, the wrinkle.

Characters in the Hair.

Women who are the possessors of fine black hair are emotional and of very sensitive nerves. Coarse black hair is said to denote great energy, but an unenviable disposition. Women who have brown hair are the ones to select as wives, for they are almost invariably full of sentiment, impassioned, "high-strung," loyal and easily affected. In brief, they are supposed to possess all the desirable qualities that a woman can have without the undesirable ones. Red-haired people are nearly always seen in business transactions, quick of perception, high-tempered and witty. Trust not the woman who has the pale blonde hair, so runs the prophetic warning, for it seems that they are impulsive and loving, but fickle, although gifted and agreeable companions.

Schools for Brides-Elect.

A New York wife who has a happy home has aimed a blow at the divorce courts. She says she has solved the problem of "how to be happy though married," and is willing to give up her secret to a generation that needs it if sufficient funds can be collected to found schools "for the education of women who would be wives." There are six facts to remember. She says: "First—That men are human beings, not angels. They are likely to err and must be forgiven. Second—That the dollar is the standard of happiness as well as of finance, and you must learn to respect it for its full worth. Third—That the home is the unit which stands for matrimonial success; it should be made and regarded as the dearest place on earth, not the place to go when all else is exhausted. Fourth—Good nature and good sense are a combination never found in homes that are failures. Fifth—Economy means wealth, not only in finances but happiness and contentment. And, lastly—System is the keynote of it all."

MRS. WILLIAMS.

Hygenic Bathing.

An authority on hygiene says that systematic use of salt baths will prevent one from taking cold, and avert chapping and roughness of the skin. A handful of common coarse salt dissolved in a basinful of water as cold as one's vitality permits is sufficient for a sponge bath over the entire body. No soap should be used in this bath. It is better to use cold water for the face and neck, adding a little hot for the remainder of the sponging, if desired.

Children's teeth require special attention. A spool of dental floss should be kept in a convenient place, and a piece of the silk passed between the teeth after eating. If the first teeth are defective, or decay quickly, a dentist should be consulted and his advice followed in the hope that the permanent set may be benefited by it.—Ladies' Home Journal.

These are dangerous days for the bottle-fed baby, unless the greatest care is exercised in the cleansing of his bottles. Even the most carefully prepared food may be poisoned if carelessness is permitted in the washing of baby's utensils. Very few people know how to wash a bottle clean. "I don't call a bottle clean," says Mrs. Bolton in her new book, "Baby," "unless it shines like new glass. It can not be made clean enough for baby's use with hot water or soap, and especially if one of the 'wapsy' things usually sold for a bottle brush is used. The bottle brush must have good bristles and a strong handle. After all the milk has been rinsed from the bottle that can be with cold water, then put in some powdered borax, and with the strong brush it can be made to shine. Now place the bottle in cold water to completely cover it, and let the water heat slowly and boil for twenty minutes. Then let it cool enough so that you can comfortably handle it. The day's supply of food being ready, it can be put immediately into the bottle and tightly corked with absorbent cotton. About ten minutes before baby's meal time place the bottle in a pitcher of warm water. When warm enough remove the absorbent cotton, put on the nipple, and it is ready for the baby.

Encouragement, Indeed.

A small but plain young woman, whose ambitions have kept her unmarried, went to the farm of a girl friend to spend the summer vacation. The girl had a brother, an industrious young man, who worked day and night to lift the mortgage on the property. The ambitious young woman watched him and sympathized with him, even going so far as to put an edge on the family ax. About the time she was ready to go home he took heart and proposed. "Marry you," said the damsel. "How could I think of marrying a man with neither money nor prospects?" "You do not love me?" he asked sadly. "What encouragement have I ever given you?" she asked, in genuine surprise, for she did not forget she was a practical woman. "No encouragement?" he whimpered. "Then why did you turn the grindstone for me?"—San Francisco Wave.

Facts for Women

Any article, whatever its merit, must be made known to the public by means of advertising. Advertising, however, though it can do much for a thing, cannot do everything. It may create a sale for a time, but in order to insure a lasting demand the thing advertised must have solid worth.

This is the case with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has solid worth.

Women everywhere have learned this fact, and the result is that there is a lasting and absolutely unequaled demand for it. It has the largest sale of any remedy for female ills in the world, and this has been the case for years.

The reason for this is that Mrs. Pinkham claims nothing that she is not entitled to claim. She can do all that she says she can do, and her twenty years of experience make her advice invaluable. Her experience has been not only long but world-wide, and she has helped more women back to health than any one else in the world. These facts should, and do, have immense weight with all sensible women. Remember these are not wild statements but solid facts.

Facts About the Good Being Done by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in Cases of Change of Life, Bearing-Down Pains, Etc.

"I had falling, inflammation and ulceration of the womb; backache, bearing-down pains; was so weak and nervous that I could not do my own work; had sick headache, no appetite, numb spells, hands and feet cold all the time. I had good doctors, but none of them did me any good. Through the advice of a lady friend I began the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after taking one bottle I felt greatly relieved, and by the time I had used several bottles was completely cured, so that I could do my work again. I am now passing through the change of life and using your Compound. It helps me wonderfully. I want every suffering woman to know what your medicine has done for me."—Mrs. W. M. Bull, New Palestine, Mo.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved my life and gave back a loving mother to eleven children, which was more than any doctor could have done or any other medicine in the wide world. My trouble was child-bed fever. The third day after my babe was born I took a chill, which was followed by a high fever. I would perspire until my clothes were as wet as though dipped in a tub of water. The chills and fever kept up for three days. My daughter got me a bottle of your Compound. The fourth dose stopped the chills, and the fever also disappeared. My life was saved. My age at this critical time was forty-nine."—Lydia E. Bougher, Etna, Pa.

Facts About Two Cases of Falling of the Uterus Recovered by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I suffered for fifteen years without finding any relief. I tried doctors, but nothing seemed to do me any good. I had falling of the womb, leucorrhœa, pain in the back and head, and those bearing-down pains. One bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did me so much good that I sent for four more, also two boxes of Liver Pills and one package of Sanative Wash. After using these I felt like a new woman."—Mrs. G. A. Winter, Glidden, Ia., Box 220.

"I was suffering with falling of the womb, painful menstruation, headache, backache, pain in groins, extending into the limbs; also a terrible pain at left of womb. The pain in my back was dreadful during menstruation, and my head would ache until I would be nearly crazy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has given me great relief. I suffer no pain now, and I give your medicine all the praise."—Mrs. J. P. McSpadden, Rosenberg, Tex.

A Grateful Woman Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Every Wife and Mother.

"I have taken eight bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with most gratifying results. I had been married four years and had two children. I was all run down, had falling of womb with all its distressing symptoms. I had doctored with a good physician, but I derived very little good from his treatment. After taking a few bottles of your medicine, I was able to do my work and nurse my seven-months'-old babe. I recommend your medicine to every wife and mother. Had I time, I could write much more in its praise. I bid you Godspeed in your good work."—Mrs. L. A. Morris, Welaka, Putnam Co., Fla.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham—When I commenced the use of your remedies I was very badly off. Every two weeks I was troubled with flowing spells which made me very weak. I had two of the best doctors, but they did not seem to help me. They said my trouble was caused from weakness and was nothing to worry about. I felt tired all the time; had no ambition. I was growing worse all the time until I began the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now able to help about the house, and am much improved in health."—Mrs. A. Trade Report.

New York, March 24.—Bradstreet's report for the past week:

Some of the irregularities are visible in the general trade and industrial situation, the results of the working of counter currents in various lines, but taken as a whole the general outlook retains most encouraging features, noted for some time past in these columns. Favorable reports as to retail distribution and as to collections come from southern, western and northwestern markets, due to better weather.

Continued good railroad returns, record-breaking merchandise exports from New York, with signs of a resumption of heavy shipments of iron to Europe, and good wheat and fruit crop reports, except from the central west, are also features. An unfavorable element is the prediction of a general strike of machinists, but it is possible more than its proper weight has been given this threatened trouble. As offsets to this threatened struggle might be cited the settlements of differences among the lake ore handlers, a vital point in the immense business looked for the coming spring and summer.

Advances in wages of soft coal miners, of stove moulders and of other workers allied to the iron and steel industry would seem to point to labor conditions retaining most of the favorable features which made them subjects of favorable remark on the prosperity wave.

Foreign demand seems likely to play a most important part in the iron and steel industries, judging from the reports of advancing foreign markets and of increasing inquiries upon manufacturers. Some lots of pig iron are being negotiated for at New York and at Birmingham, Ala., and southern iron prices would appear to be on a parity with those abroad.

While some slight concessions might secure much of the business, nothing like a general easing of values is to be reported. Bessemer pig is in fact firmer than ever at almost the top price reached in the present boom. Foundry irons, chiefly of low grade, are cheaper, but finished products note little if any change. Anthracite coal reflects the advanced season in weaker quotations, but bituminous sorts are in demand. The famine in coal in Europe seems to be growing more pronounced, but some rumored very large contracts for southern coal have yet to be placed.

Copper is in good demand, and some large sales are reported for export demand, and firmer on the week, as are also hog products on smaller receipts and a reported squeeze of shorts. Sugar is higher, owing to the growing strength of raw material.

Wheat and corn, among the breadstuffs, have been weaker, reflecting another one of those short skings in prices which have been such a feature of the former market, but also expected heavy shipments from Argentine and good estimated crop reports from the south and west.

In the central west the wheat crop advices are disappointing, complaint of winter-killing more than offsetting increased acreage.

Wool remains one of the soft spots in the market, and though a little more business has been done this week than last, concessions are easier to obtain and prices are quotably lower. Leather, on the other hand, retains a better position than for some time past, quotations for hemlock are higher and business has been larger at several markets.

The boot and shoe industry notes improvement in demand and prices for hides remain rather dull.

Wheat (including flour) shipments for the week aggregate 2,903,395 bushels, against 2,727,450 bushels last week, 3,746,761 bushels in the corresponding week of 1899.

Business failures for the week in the United States number 192, as compared with 190 last week. Business failures in Canada numbered 23, as compared with 28 last week.

Lynching in Virginia.

Richmond, Va., March 26.—The series of exciting events in Greenville county the past week culminated in a double lynching at Emporia. Bob Cotton, the negro, who according to his confession killed Sanders and Weller, and O'Grady, the white man who was with him in the cabin when the murder occurred, were hanged by a mob variously estimated from 1500 to 2000 strong. This morning the sheriff of the county discharged from duty the military that had been sent from this city at his request and Major Cutchings, in command of the troops, notified Governor Tyler, stating at the same time he thought if the prisoners were left unprotected by the military they would be lynched. The governor replied as follows:

"If he orders you to withdraw, you can do nothing but obey. We have done everything possible to uphold the law and prevent mob violence and are still prepared to render every aid necessary."

Accordingly Major Cutchings entrained his men and started for Richmond. This was about 11 o'clock. Hardly was the train out of sight when a mob entered the jail, took Cotton, hanged him to the limb of a tree and fired 40 bullets into his body. Later, despite the protests of cooler heads, who claimed that the guilt of the white man had not been established, another crowd, composed largely of negroes, hanged O'Grady.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

The doctors insist on her taking "5 Drops" and assure her that it is now only a matter of a few days and she will be entirely cured, and as we are very well known here, the "5 DROPS" is receiving considerable attention and praise. Colonies of England.

London, March 26.—Three questions involving endless controversy and speculation have been rife during the past week. They are the possibility of the dissolution of parliament in the summer, imperial federation and the reported method of treatment of the so-called rebel prisoners in South Africa. It is a curious travesty upon the truth that imperial federation and the formation of some great council of the empire have been brought more to public notice by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Canadian premier, in his speech at Ottawa, than even by the presence in London of the federation delegates from Australia.

Punch's chief cartoon is devoted to depicting Sir Wilfrid Laurier in pleasing contrast with Sir Wilfrid Lawson, the English liberal, who insists that the war is not justified. Yet those who know the undercurrents thoroughly are well aware that the Canadian premier's attitude and unwillingness to send out Canadian troops caused the colonial office more anxiety than almost any recent occurrence. However, the imperial federation movement grows daily. The imperial federation committee has secured from Lord Salisbury a promise to seriously consider its proposals for an imperial council to watch over the interests of the empire as a whole. On all sides articles appear debating the ways and means by which the colonies who have participated in the defense of the empire may have a voice in its councils. What difficulties stand in the way of this are apparent from the proceedings of the Australian delegates daily visiting the colonial office in the interests of their federation bill.

All sorts of unexpected hitches have come up and it is feared the federation may have to be submitted ad referendum to the Australian people in consequence of the changes which, after the closer inspection by the imperial authorities, appear necessary, although the bill has already been passed in Australia and the referendum would delay action for almost a year.

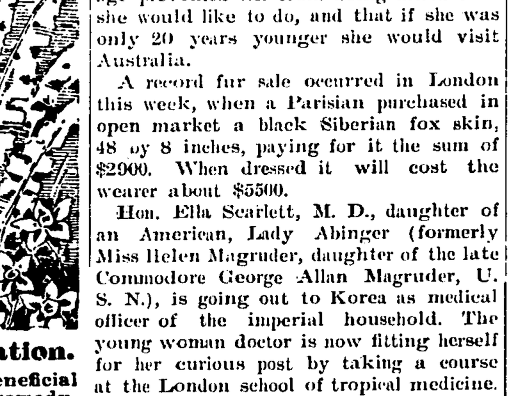
It is reported that the Duke of York meditates paying complimentary visits after the war to all the great colonies.

So far as parliament is concerned it might as well dissolve at once for all the interest that is being taken in its proceedings. Many apparently inspired articles appear forecasting dissolution at various dates, but as a matter fo fact the existence of the present house depends entirely upon the progress of arms in South Africa.

Queen Victoria is quoted as saying at Windsor this week that she regretted her age prevented her from doing much that she would like to do, and that if she was only 20 years younger she would visit Australia.

A record fur sale occurred in London this week, when a Parisian purchased in open market a black Siberian fox skin, 48 by 8 inches, paying for it the sum of $2900. When dressed it will cost the wearer about $5500.

Hon. Ella Scarlett, M. D., daughter of an American, Lady Abinger (formerly Miss Helen Magruder, daughter of the late Commodore George Allan Magruder, U. S. N.), is going out to Korea as medical officer of the imperial household. The young woman doctor is now fitting herself for her curious post by taking a course at the London school of tropical medicine. Her brother, Lord Abinger, has just gone to South Africa as a trooper in the imperial yeomanry.



An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

Six Caught by a Cave-In.

Pittsburg, March 26.—One man was killed and five injured by a cave-in at Whitehall, on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, 10 miles south of here.

The killed:
Antonio Debono, Italian laborer.
The injured:
Frank Aliter, Italian.
John Lee, colored, Philadelphia.
Thomas Clark, colored, Charlottesville, Va.
Unknown American.
Unknown colored man.

The men were engaged at excavating when the timbers gave way. All were taken out alive, but Debono died a few minutes later. Aliter, Lee and the unknown American are unconscious and it is thought they will die.

Sympathy soon forgets, but envy has a good memory.

Strike May Be Settled.

Chicago, March 27.—The machinists union claims to have made such progress in the settlement of its differences with individual firms as to have practically broken the back bone of the machinists strike in Chicago. The new form of government adopted by the machinists which does away with nearly all the objectionable features has been signed by 22 firms, and it is expected that today 700 of the 6000 striking machinists will be back at work under the new agreement.

About 3000 laborers are now employed on the Panama canal.

ALABASTINE Is a durable and natural coating for walls and ceilings, made ready for use by mixing with cold water. It is a cement that goes through a process of setting, hardens with age, and can be coated and recoated without washing off its old coats before renewing. Alabastine is made in white and fourteen beautiful tints. It is put up in five-pound packages in dry form, with complete directions on every package.

ALABASTINE Should not be confounded with kalsomines, as it is entirely different from all the various kalsomines on the market, being durable and not stuck on the wall with glue. Alabastine customers should avoid getting cheap kalsomines under different names, by insisting on having the goods in packages properly labeled. They should reject all imitations. There is nothing "just as good."

ALABASTINE

Prevents much sickness, particularly throat and lung difficulties, attributable to unsanitary coatings on walls. It has been recommended in a paper published by the Michigan State Board of Health on account of its sanitary features; which paper strongly condemned kalsomines. Alabastine can be used on either plastered walls, wood ceilings, brick or canvas, and any one can brush it on. It admits of radical changes from wall paper decorations, thus securing at reasonable expense the latest and best effects. Alabastine is manufactured by the —Patronize home industry is a good slogan all the year 'round.

—Thos. Anderson went to Spokane yesterday to get a housekeeper.

—Mr. and Mrs. Lindol Smith will visit Indiana and the east this spring and take in the national G. A. R. encampment at Chicago in August.

—James Graham of Kootenai county aspires for the nomination of congressman at the democratic convention. A good man and may get the northern delegations.

—W. H. and Geo. W. Oakes sold their 320 acres of land on Asotin creek for $2250. The Oakes brothers will go to the Yakima country where they will probably establish a permanent location.

—Conaway, the Seattle horse buyer, was in this vicinity the past week. There is a strong demand for draft horses and prices range from $80 to $125 per head. Cœur d'Alene mines are creating a demand for horse flesh as well as the Sound timber country.

—The Northern Pacific is working a large gang of Italians near Kendrick riprapping the roadbed in the dangerous places that the river threatens with a rise, says the Patriot. The rock is being taken from a precipice along the track above the town. A work train is also being used at the mouth of the Potlatch to make fills and protect the roadbed. It is thought the work of repairing the road between Moscow and the Clearwater will take about three months.

—All the state conventions have now been arranged for—populist, silver republican, democratic and republican. To be fair to all parties the NEWS asks all committees to send it their calls for county conventions and precinct meetings. They will be published free and as news. NEWS intends to keep its position as the leading local newspaper of Idaho and with that end in view publish news for all the people. Hand in the calls or any other news.

—John L. Samsel received a few days ago a Labor Map of the state of Missour from Labor Commissioner T. P. Rixey. An inspection of this map is the best official proof that we have ever seen that diversified farming pays. It shows that the export of eggs and poultry is $10,250,000; more than the total export of wheat, corn, oat and flax crop. Although Missouri produces more mules than any other state, the fruit crop yields more cash than the total sales of mules and horses. The export of cob pipes amount to $250,000. It takes 800,000 pounds of cobs to make these pipes. The total lead, zinc and coal output amounts to nearly ten million dollars, lacking two hundred and fifty thousand dollars of amounting to the sale of the poultry yard. Who says that the hen isn't a gold mine in herself?

—C. V. Johnson returned from San Francisco Friday where he has been since December.

—Thiessen and Coffin shipped 2500 head of sheep to St. Paul—lambs and yearlings—to be fed for 60 days and then sold, expecting to realize from $6 to $7 per head.

—Farmers have been active plowing and putting in their grain for the past two weeks or more. Spring came upon many unprepared and such a hustling was never before experienced. The farm is a gigantic enterprise, and some men who can successfully conduct mercantile ventures might utterly fail on the farm, because there are so many more places in which leakages may occur. Merchandising requires concentration of thought on but few important issues compared with those exacted from the successful farmer. It takes a "big man" mentally to be known as a prosperous farmer, and many a man in business circles in the city as a man of means might not be big enough to farm. Only the man of large and broad conceptions can prevent the financial losses occurring from the leakage by waste and neglect. Waste from improper feeds and feeding, caring of stock, machinery, fences, proper cultivating of crops, and a hundred other things. Our Genesee farmers have much to learn and perform.

Still More Counterfeiting.

The Secret Service has unearthed another band of counterfeiters and secured a large quantity of bogus bills, which are so cleverely executed that the average person would never suspect them of being spurious. Things of great value are always selected by counterfeiters for imitation, notably the celebrated Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has many imitators but no equals for indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, nervousness and general debility. The Bitters sets things right in the stomach, and when the stomach is in good order it makes good blood and plenty of it. In this manner the Bitters get at the seat of strength and vitality and restore vigor to the weak and debilitated. Beware of counterfeits when buying.

—The great wall of China was completed 211 B. C., and had been ten years building, but it united several existing works of like character, and when the oldest of these was begun is not known. It was 1255 miles long, 20 to 25 feet high, with towers 40 feet high about 100 yards apart, and six horsemen could ride abreast on its op. It was a fortification for defense against the barbarians in those times.

Bressler; for alderman first ward, Chas. Kennedy; for alderman second ward, Joseph Geiger. Some twenty-five men were nominated for city engineer but all respectfully declined. A number of the ladies took part. The only contest was on the mayoralty, it requiring three ballots to decide the contest, Beck winning over Dr. Conant, Sr., by six votes. The following day Dr. Conant was put up for mayor by petition, M. L. Johnston for alderman first ward, and W. L. Biram for city engineer. From present indications it looks as if election day was going to be very quiet.

Denning and John Mathews of Pullman and the defendant by ex-Att'y Gen'l R. E. McFarland of Lewiston, and John L. Samsel of this place. The suit was for the recovery of $175, the price of an organ sold to Scharnhorst by Wallis. The defendant set up the defense that the organ was not delivered and a tender of price of organ and refusal by plaintiff. The court took the case under advisement until Friday morning at 10 o'clock when he rendered judgment for the amount asked for, together with costs. We understand that the case will be appealed. Another case was filed by Mr. Wallis but was not allowed to come to trial.

—Immigration Agent Bassett has published a book entitled "Idaho." It contains much information concerning our young commonwealth. The average temperature is 52 in spring, 73 in summer, 53 in autumn and 34 in winter. No severe storms, cyclones or blizzards in the state. It is a land of sunshine, fruit and flowers, averaging 260 clear days per year.

—Dr. Conant says the sections he visited in southern Idaho are growing more prosperous with each succeeding year, coming out into the full sunshine of prosperity after having been under a cloud of low prices. The mines are rolling out the wealth and making a home market for the products of the farmer. Farmers raise cattle, hogs, sheep and grain and in consequence have excellent bank deposits. Not a farmer who had exercised ordinary judgment but what is in a prosperous state. The Genesee valley farmers are gradually following in the footsteps of the prosperous farmers of the south. Small flocks of cattle, hogs, horses and chickens can be seen now where three years ago not a hoof showed up. Mixed farming is far ahead of exclusive grain raising.

PASSED TO THE OTHER SIDE.

Died, at her home five miles east of Genesee, after a long and lingering illness, Mrs. Meta Hampton, wife of Fred Hampton. She was born in Driftsethe, Provinz Hannoveria, Germany, on the 5th day of April, 1873, and died on the 24th of March, 1900, having reached the age of only 26 years, 11 months and 19 days. In her infancy she was baptized in the Luthern church in which she was in later years also confirmed. She came to this country with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Meyer, in 1882, remaining with them until her marriage on the 19th day of July, 1893, to Mr. Fred Hampton. During her long illness she was hopeful to the last and, until a few days before her death, hopes were entertained for her recovery. At different times during her trying, yet almost painless illness, it was evident even to her that death was not far off, and she expressed her willingness to abide by the decision of Him, on Whom she had placed her trust.

The funeral which was very largely attended, took place from the local Lutheran church at 2:30 P. M., Sunday, March 25, Rev. Jos. Sittler officiating. Owing to the extreme inclemency of the weather the interment was postponed until Monday, 10 A. M. She leaves to mourn her early departure four small children, her husband, father, mother, three brothers, one sister, and a host of friends and relatives.

CARD OF THANKS.

I desire to express my thanks to the many friends and kind neighbors, who stood by us so unfalteringly during the illness of my wife. Especial mention is due the Drs. Ehlen and Conant for their untiring efforts.

—D. Spurbeck is feasting on new potatoes. The other day he dug a hill containing 70 good sides spuds.

—Hugh Fulton, the penitentiary guard at Boise, was a guest of the T. Driscoll people Saturday. He left Lewiston the following day with four prisoners to serve terms in the pen.

—Dr. J. A. Beck will read the NEWS at Salinas, Cal., for a year at least it he lives. He has joined forces there with a classmate and stepped into a good practice. Salinas has a population of several thousand people. Many friends wish John success.

—Ed. Dahlke is busy with the spring work on the Scully ranch, recently purchased by Chas. Lambert. Mr Dahlke has sown 240 acres of barley and will sell his product to the breweries.—Lewiston Tribune. We hope the breweries will not be disappointed and that Dahlke will at least get his seed back.

—The Indian Commissioner at Washington under date of March 3, 1900, writes Assessor Spekker that the lands allotted in severalty to the Indians cannot be taxed during the period for which they are held in trust by the United States—twenty-five years—and such exemption extends to the improvements on such lands, of a fixed and a permanent character, attached to the soil, and also to cattle and their increase, farming implements, etc., which may have been issued to the allottees by Uncle Sam. This ruling or law cheats Nez Perce county out of a big pile of revenue and shoves taxes up on the balance of the county.

A single microbe contains the germ of the most malignant maladies. The blood is the means by which microbes are sent on their deadly mission. Small at first, the microbe soon becomes a giant. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the arch enemy of all germs of whatever nature. Its small doses master these microbes by dissolving and passing them off as refuse of the system.

Transvaalers Holding Out.

Ladysmith, March 26.—The scouts frequently engage the Boers beyond Meran, under the Biggarsberg, but no important fighting has taken place. The Free Staters continue to enter our lines, surrendering under the proclamation issued by Lord Roberts. They declare that the Transvaalers are determined to fight to the bitter end.

The majority of those who have hitherto taken part in the fighting have been Free Staters. The Transvaalers have been held in reserve. The Boers are preparing for another campaign and will occupy a strongly fortified position in the Transvaal, necessitating heavy fighting before they can be driven out. The Boers are not expected to make a stand at Johannesburg, but to concentrate at Pretoria.

Floor Fell in Upon Them.

New York, March 26.—Through the breaking down of the first floor in a factory building at 123 and 125 East Forty-fourth street, which was totally destroyed by fire, three firemen were killed and two injured. Bank Closed Its Doors.

Rutland, Vt., March 27.—The Merchants' National Bank of Rutland has closed its doors and Cashier Muzzy is under arrest charged with misappropriation of funds. The exact amount of the shortage will not be known until a thorough examination of the books has been completed.

It is later announced that the shortage of Cashier Muzzy of the Merchants National Bank amounts to $145,000. The cashier had left the state and was arrested in Albany, N. Y.

Death With a Chisel.

Owosso, Mich., March 27.—Charles Scott, a boiler maker, broke into the home of his wife from whom he had been separated, and furiously assaulted Mrs. Scott and her mother with a heavy chisel. He then drew a revolver and killed himself. Mrs. Scott is fatally injured and her mother, Mrs. Ferguson, is seriously injured.

A British division on the march along an ordinary main road without an advanced guard would be five miles in length.

BOER LEADERS SEE DEFEAT

THEY KNOW THEY ARE BEATEN

Think They Can Hold Out Six Months More—Expect Germany or the United States to Intervene—British Officers Killed and Wounded.

Durban, March 26.—It is learned from an authentic source that the Boer leaders are aware that they are beaten, but think they can hold out for four or six months, in which time they firmly believe foreign intervention will force England to grant favorable terms, including independence.

They expect Germany or the United States to intervene. The mission of Messrs. Wolmarens, Fischer and Wessels to Europe is to hasten this, so far as Germany is concerned. The Boer plans include a stand at Kronstadt, the Vaal river and other points, culminating in the defense of Pretoria, which has been preparing for a siege. The range of the guns have been tested; mines have been laid and the forces in the field have not allowed themselves to be cut off from their heavy guns which are needed in the forts at Pretoria. The majority of the Transvaalers are ignorant of the gravity of the situation, and though tired of remaining so long from their farms, will fight hard, believing that their liberty and property are at stake and confident of ultimate success.

Mafeking in Distress.

London, March 26.—The Daily Mail publishes the following from Mafeking:

We are still being heavily shelled. There have been several casualties. Skirmishing continues in the trenches. The native food question is a problem. The Boers have broken the Sabbath agreement not to fire on Sunday, and have seized the opportunity to extend their trenches.

Lady Sarah Wilson, in a dispatch from Mafeking, dated March 14, says:

"We have received news of the relief of Ladysmith, but it serves to increase our disappointment, as there is no prospect of our relief. The town remains closely invested. The Boers are reported to be very numerous and strongly intrenched between us and Colonel Plumer. Some of the natives are dying of starvation, owing to their prejudice against horse flesh."

British Officers Shot Down.

Bloemfontein, March 26.—Lieutenant Colonel Crabbe, Captain Trotter and Lieutenant the Hon. Elygon, of the Grenadier Guards, and Lieutenant Colonel Codrington, of the Cold Streams Guards, rode eight or nine miles beyond their camps up the Modder river without escort, except one trooper. They were fired upon by a party of Boers and Lieutenant Elygon was killed and Lieutenant Crabbe, Lieutenant Colonel Codrington and Captain Trotter were seriously wounded. The trooper also was wounded. One of the wounded officers held up a white handkerchief and the Boers came to their assistance and did all they possibly could, attending to their wounds. The Boers then conveyed the wounded to the nearest farm house where they were taken care of.

Loyal Dutch Are Dissatisfied.

Ladysmith, March 26.—Lord Roberts' proclamation is causing much dissatisfaction among the loyal farmer Dutch in this neighborhood, as it is taken to mean that he has morally pledged himself to preserve life and property of the rebels who lay down their arms and return to their homes.

Austria Replies to Boers.

Vienna, March 26.—It is semi-officially announced that the government of Austria-Hungary has replied to the South African appeal for mediation in the war that it was only possible to take such a step when both belligerents desired it, and the present conditions to accede to the request made.

French's Force Is Resting.

Bloemfontein, Friday, March. 26.—Advices from Thabanchu, between Bloemfontein and Ladygray, on the Orange Free State border, dated March 21, say that General French's force is resting there, and distributed Lord Roberts' proclamation.

More Canadian Troops.

Cape Town, March 26.—The transport Milwaukee, with Canadian trops aboard, has arrived here.

Kipling at Bloemfontein.

London, March 26.—A special dispatch from Bloemfontein, dated March 24, says: Rudyard Kipling has arrived here. The Boers are reported retiring from Kroonstadt, after having blown up a bridge.

Steyn Is Out of Luck.

Springfontein, Friday, March 26.—It is reported here that Mr. Steyn has been deposed from the presidency and that the public affairs of the Free State are being administered by a committee at Kroonstadt.

Woodgate Died of Wounds.

London, March 26.—Advices received here announce the death in the Mooi hospital yesterday of General Sir Edward Woodgate, who was wounded in the engagement at Spion Kop January 24.

Little Hope for Mafeking.

General Methuen appears to be awaiting transportation and with Colonel Plumer's forces on half rations there seems little likelihood of the immediate relief of Mafeking, though neither from this quarter nor from Roberts or Buller is there any direct news.

Fire at Cape Town.

The government buildings at Cape Town narrowly escaped destruction by fire last night. The state papers after being much damaged were removed.

Boers Recruiting.

A Lorenzo Marquez special says the Transvaal authorities are evidently recruiting actively and large numbers of French, Dutch and Belgian volunteers are constantly passing through that place to join the Boer forces.

FIFTY THOUSAND MEN IDLE.

Labor in Puerto Rico an Art Almost Forgotten.

San Juan de Puerto Rico, March 26.—The recent strike of 700 men employed on the Ponce Adjuntas Utado government road, their demand for five cents (gold) per hour, an advance of two cents per hour, and the more recent strike of 600 men working on the same road under a New York contracting firm, their demand being for a uniform rate of 50 cents per day, instead of 40 and 45 cents, have served to accentuate the fact that there are, at the very lowest estimate, 50,000 laborers on the island without employment. Though their demands were refused, the strikers remained quiet and orderly and made no attempt at demonstration.

On account of lack of funds to keep up the estates, many plantations are idle and are being fast overgrown with wild vegetation. Thousands of workmen are out of employment on this account.

Governor General Davis says that in his estimation 300,000 of the inhabitants of Puerto Rico are dependent on labor. It was thought the country was in such a condition as to allow the distribution of relief supplies to be stopped, but immediately after this was attempted the cities and towns began to fill up with beggars, and instances may be recorded where whole families have died of starvation. As a consequence, General Davis has suggested to the authorities at Washington that the supplies be continued.

About 600 natives have immigrated from Ponce to Cuba, but from letters received by their families here they have found conditions in Cuba even worse than in Puerto Rico.

The Murder of Goebel.

Frankfort, Ky., March 26.—"John Powers told me they had two negroes to kill Goebel. They were Herker Smith and Dick Coombs."

This statement was made by F. Wharton Golden, a frail, consumptive looking Kentucky mountaineer, while on the witness stand at the preliminary examination of Secretary of State Caleb Powers, charged with conspiracy to kill Goebel. Golden told a story of the events leading up to the murder, that, if substantiated, will in the minds of those connected with the prosecution at least probably go far toward proving the contentions of the commonwealth that the murder was the result of a plan in which several prominent men were involved.

Whether the defense will seek to impeach Golden's testimony in this preliminary examination is not known, as the attorneys for the defense will not talk on the subject, but unless such an attempt is made the commonwealth will rest its case, both County Attorney Polsgrove and Attorney Campbell being satisfied that enough evidence has been presented to hold the defendants on the charges.

Golden, who claims to have been a friend of Secretary Powers and his brother, John Powers, for years, gave testimony that was particularly damaging to John Powers, but he also brought in the names of W. H. Coulton and Governor Taylor, in his story of the bringing of the mountaineers to Frankfort previous to the assassination. Governor Taylor, however, was not directly implicated, and the attorneys for the commonwealth today intimated that they do not expect to have his name brought forth prominently in the story of the alleged conspiracy.

Mr. Golden was not cross-examined today, and adjournment was taken at an early hour this afternoon on account of his physical condition, the witness having a slight hemorrhage during the morning, becoming so weak under the strain of the examination in the afternoon that he begged to be allowed a respite. He was quite nervous at times. Golden's testimony tended to show that a plan was made to bring to Frankfort several hundred "regular mountain feudists," who would, if necessary, as Golden expressed it, "go into the legislative hall and kill off enough democrats to make it our way."

The testimony did not show that the alleged plot to kill Goebel was part of the original plan, nor did it contain the names of those who conceived the idea. But the commonwealth sought to show by Golden's conversations with various people that not only John and Caleb Powers, but others as well, had full knowledge of the alleged plan of assassination.

The Underground Railway.

New York.—The construction of New York's great underground rapid transit system is under way. With brilliant and impressive ceremonies, Mayor Van Wyck turned the first shovel of earth and declared the work begun. The scene of the ceremonies was City Hall park, which was thronged with a great crowd of invited spectators who loudly cheered the mayor as he tossed the first bit of earth into the air. The work was performed with a shovel having a blade of pure silver, with the coat of arms of the city engraved thereon. Mayor Van Wyck made a brief address appropriate to the occasion, which was followed by speeches delivered by the rapid transit commissioners and others.

Head Was Torn From Body.

Butte, Mont., March 26.—Jerry Murphy, acting station tender of the Parrot mine, fell a distance of 700 feet in the shaft of the mine and met instant death. At the 500-foot level, while on the top deck of the cage, and after letting a miner off from the lower deck, he tried to lift the safety doors after the cage started up, He was struck by the cap and was thrown from his position, alighting on a bulkhead at the 1200-foot level. His head was torn from the body and he was otherwise mangled. Deceased was a single man.

We believe that any one can pick out a married woman or a school teacher as far off as they can be seen in the road.

MINES AND MINING CAMPS

NEWS OF THEIR DEVELOPMENT

A mining suit between the rival copper kings, Marcus Daly and United States Senator Clark is on trial in the United States court at Butte. There are three suits in all, but the trial on all will determine contentions. The mines involved are the Never Sweat of the Anaconda company and the Colusa and Parrot, owned by the Colusa-Parrot Mining Company, of which Senator Clark is the head. The question of apex is involved and the determination of the matter will mean a great many millions of dollars to the company securing a favorable decision. Both sides have been preparing for the trial for a year past and every section of the country has been scoured for mining experts to give testimony. Mine models costing thousands of dollars have been constructed for the purpose of the trial, which will be one of the most notable tried in the west. Some of the best known geologists and mining men are arrayed on either side.

REPUBLIC.

One picked sample of the Morning Glory went $10,000 in gold.

The Mountain Lion mill is again crushing ore, and works to perfection.

A larger mill is needed on the Sixteen-to-One plant at Wallace, Idaho, and it is to be increased at once.

It is reported that another 100 feet of tunnel will be run immediately on the Black Horse. The property lies near the Tom Thumb. A tunnel has been driven on it 70 feet.

The machinery for the Chico mine is all on the ground and the boiler has been set in position. Masons are at work on the rock and brick work. The engine will be installed immediately.

Six feet of fine looking quartz has been exposed in a 10-foot shaft on the Wild Horse. Plans are being perfected to develop the property in a systematic manner. Fair values have been obtained from the ore.

The mill floors are being taken up and burned and the ashes from them sacked for tne recovery of gold dust which the boards had absorbed. This, it is said, will realize for the company a hundred dollars per day towards the expense of building the new plant.

The new working shaft on the Butte & Boston mine is down 85 feet, and sinking continues at the rate of 10 feet per week. The company is employing six miners on two 10-hour shifts, three men working on each shift, two in the shaft and one on top, landing the bucket.

At the Princess Maud there are 20 men on the pay roll. The mine is worked on three 8-hour shifts. The winze is down 118 feet. The south drift is being pushed ahead as rapidly as possible. Superintendent Lane thinks the mine is now good enough to stand on its own bottom.

The Wauconda is about 14 miles west of Republic, at the head of Granite creek, on the summit of the divide that separates the waters of the San Poil from the Okanogan. Specimens of ore have been encountered in the crosscut that is being driven at a distance of 215 feet from the mouth of the tunnel, were assayed and showed $2.10 in silver and $47.53 in gold, or a total value of $49.63 per ton. The Wauconda has always been held in high esteem by mining men, and it now looks as though their predictions that it would develop into a great mine will shortly be verified.

The Republic Consolidated Gold Mining Company's old mill is being torn down and the grading for the new structures—the mill and sampling works—is nearing completion. The framing of the sampling mill is getting well under way and the laying of the retaining walls for the main mill building has been started. If all the building has been started. If all would be only a matter of three or four weeks before an the framework would be set up. In the meantime the ground is being sluiced from underneath the tanks of the old mill for the recovery of quicksilver and amalgam which had leaked from the tanks during their operation.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Southeast Kootenay is all right, and it is growing better every year.

Spokane capital is developing the Butcher Boy at the north end of the camp. Recently water was coming in pretty freely into the shaft, which interfered with the sinking.

Silverton mines are busy, as snow is disappearing and activity is beginning. The strike was not altogether an injury, as idleness of the big mines brought about favorable development of some that had been mere prospects.

One of the busiest camps in the Boundary is Deadwood. Some good looking ore is being taken out from the bottom of the shaft on the St. Lawrence. The ore shows plenty of iron and copper pyrites is coming in freely. The shaft is down 66 feet, all timbered.

The Buckhorn mine is also being developed by a shaft, which is down 200 feet, and a station is now being cut before further sinking is resumed. At the 100-foot level the crosscut to the ore body is in over 100 feet and there is every indication that it is rapidly nearing its objective, as stringers of ore are coming into the face of the crosscut very plentifully.

At the Sunset the work of cutting down the old shaft is progressing rapidly now that the machinery plant is working. The old shaft was sunk to a depth of 185 feet. It has been enlarged to a double compartment, and this work is down 140 feet, all timbered. The plant is working to perfection. The Sunset has the honor of having the largest machiney plant in the district at the present time.

Take the mines around Moyie. Already arrangements are being made for exploring many of the promising prospects this season. The same is true in the vicinity of Kimberley and the North Star hill. At Fort Steele deals are being consummated at this time that means the investment of large sums in the development of the many rich properties tributary to that town. In the Sand Creek district the prospects were never brighter, while every property in the Cranbrook district will be worked this summer by local companies or outside owners.

This unanimous movement toward development and the readiness with which capital is being invested means that the district is forging rapidly to the front, and that there will be many prospects developed to the stage of paying mines within the next fifteen months.

The present mecca of the mining men, if one may judge from the large number registered at the hotels, is Greenwood. Today there is a party, composed of E. L. Sternberger, Jackson, Ohio; W. A. Stephens, Jackson, Ohio, and George W. Van Dyke, Lima, Ohio, registered at the Hotel Armstrong. These gentlemen are taking in the district, and have also been visiting properties at Myers creek. J. C. Ralston, the well known Spokane mining engineer, and Major R. C. Edwards-Leckie, manager of the Republic Gold Mining Company, are here. Superintendent J. P. Keane of the Cariboo mine has returned from a trip to Spokane.

MINING NOTES.

The Amazon-Manhattan, at Wallace, Idaho, is proving a wonder.

Colonel S. W. Ray, of Port Arthur, Canada, has made the final payment of $4,500 on the White Elephant mine, near the Bonanza, 16 miles southwest of Sumpter, Ore.

A good strike in the Bonanza, near Bossburg, Wash., has been made, as the long sought ore was found on the fifth level. Manager Wolf received news that seven feet of shipping ore had been opened at the end of a crosscut 142 feet long. Two lower levels have been opened.

Beside working on the lower tunnel in the Amazon-Manhattan, at Wallace, Idaho, where lead was found a few days ago for the first time on that level, a number of men are also working on the crosscut from which the raise was made in which the wonderful strike was made a month ago.

The Blue Bird mine, on Lake Pend d'Oreille, is a wonder. Ore encrusted with native silver has been found in a drift.

The new Hunter mill, at Mullan, Idaho, is working like a charm and the force of miners has been increased to 50 men to keep the mill supplied with ore. The mine is not opened up to a very large extent yet, and in order to work enough men to furnish the ore, in the scant room which is open for them, it is necessary to work two shifts. During the time that the mill was building considerable ore was taken out of the mine in doing development work, and as long as that lasted only a small force was needed in the mine.

Rumors are afloat concerning a pending big deal involving the great E. & E. and North Pole mines on Cracker creek. It is reported that a wealthy Chicago syndicate, whose representative is known to have been in this camp for some time, is negotiating for both these properties that new underground workings are to be inaugurated upon them, and that a modern concentrator of sufficient capacity to handle the ores of the entire Cracker creek and Cable cove districts is to be erected. The North Pole mine is owned by Baring brothers, bankers, of London, England, who, in 1895, paid $10,000 cash for it. It is said an offer of $300,000 was recently refused. It is equipped with 10 stamps and a 25-ton cyanide plant, producing from $20,000 to $25,000 every month. The E. & E. is owned in St. Louis, was operated for a number of years by John H. Longmaid, as lessee, and has become one of the most notable mines in Oregon. It is opened with a 1200-foot tunnel, showing an ore body varying from 20 to 200 feet in width. With a 20-stamp mill and concentrators, 70 tons per day have been handled at a total cost of $2.90 per ton. It has shipped about $250,000 a year in concentrates and is known to have paid a profit of 50 per cent. The consolidation of these two big mines under one management, and the provision of satisfactory process of treatment of their ores, will result in great things for Sumpter camp. Development of the Evening Star mine, six miles northeast of town, is progressing rapidly. The tunnel is in 200 feet and has reached a vertical depth of 90 feet. The ledge has been crosscut 25 feet and shows a body of ore carrying values ranging from $5 to $90 per ton.

Corbett to Tour the World.

New York, March 26.—After his fight with Jeffries, Corbett is to make a tour of the world, accompanied by his wife. The trip is for pleasure, and is undertaken with the idea of bettering the health of Mrs. Corbett. In preparation for the trip, Corbett today sold his house on West One Hundred and Nineteenth street. The price received was $40,000. Corbett will make the trip, win or lose with Jeffries.

The crank has but one idea—the fool none.

WEATHER BUREAU'S ORDER

MAKES WAR ON CIGARETTE

Chief Moore Gives Orders—Says They Make the Men Careless—The Entire Service Included—Says Pipes Are All Right.

Chief Willis T. Moore of the Weather Bureau has issued an order prohibiting persons connected with the service from smoking cigarettes during office hours, and stating further that those who smoked cigarettes at any time would be mentioned in the confidential reports which are made quarterly to him by chiefs of the service and divisions throughout the entire service.

Chief Moore said today: "The order was issued after careful consideration and a thorough investigation of the evils resulting from cigarette smoking. It will stand. In this service we are compelled to maintain a very strict discipline, in order to secure satisfactory service.

"Some of our men who are regarded as the most thorough and competent, doing every detail of their work with the utmost promptness and accuracy, gradually became careless and lax. I sent inspectors to investigate, and in a number of cases it was found to be directly attributable to the use of cigarettes. I am not prudish, nor do I wish to assume any authority whatever over any privilege which the employes of the service should have; but, as a public servant, I feel that it is my duty to correct any evil that may exist, even if in attempting to make this claim I am overstepping my authority. The order applies to the entire force of the bureau throughout the entire service. Cigarette smoking must cease. Cigars and pipes are not barred."

France.

Paris, March 26.—The Waldeck-Rousseau ministry sustained another assault from its nationalist opponents in the chamber of deputies last week and came through the ordeal without much difficulty. Indeed, the only result the nationalists achieved is to accentuate the fact that the government has come to stay through the exposition.

The organs heat the air with violent and ceaseless strictures upon the government's policy and with attempts to embroil France in foreign complications, but parliament seems determined to leave the reins of power in M. Waldeck-Rosseau's hands.

The opposition having failed in frontal attack tried a flanking movement on Friday and again came to grief. They brought forward two interpellations which were pistols levelled at the head of M. Millerand, and both missed fire. The interpellations would have involved the resignation of M. Millerand and a cabinet crisis, which the opposition hoped would lead to the defeat of the ministry, to overthrow the government, as M. Millerand himself described their actions in defending his action.

Boers Can Prolong the War.

The Times in its second edition published a dispatch from Lorenzo Marquez, which quotes President Steyn as saying at Kroonstaadt that the Boers could continue the struggle for six months longer. The Boers in Orange Free State are taking advantage of the period of inactivity to take a rest, while those on the border are planning to show activity.

A special dispatch from Durban says the town of Pomeroy, 30 miles east of Ladysmith, has been burned by the Boers. A British detachment arriving at Pomeroy as the Boers evacuated the place, shelled the burghers, but they succeeded in taking up a strong position in the hills with a force estimated to number 5000 men.

Funeral of Col. Wallace.

Helena, March 26—The funeral of the late Col. Robert Bruce Wallace on Sunday was an imposing affair. Local military organizations were reinforced by members of the Montana volunteer regiment and United States regulars. Col. Wallace was wounded at the battle of Caloocan, but was thought to have recovered and was appointed colonel of the Thirty-seventh volunteers. His wound never fully healed and he was invalided home last November. He was the youngest colonel in the army, being but 31 years old.

Yankees Won at Chess.

New York, March 26.—For the third time America won the Anglo-American chess match out of the five matches played. The score of six wins to four is the same as was made last year. The international chess championship cup, donated by Sir George Newnes will remain here for another year, and it takes only one additional victory to make it a permanent possession. The contest was spirited throughout.

Wreck of a Fast Mail.

During the last month the Brooklyn Cigar Makers' Union issued labels for 1,022,000 union-made cigars.

Love laughs at locksmiths, but the majority of them marry just the same.

Love isn't blind; it usually sees double.

ODDS AND ENDS OF EARTH.

Many Regions of the Globe Are Yet Unknown to Civilized Men.

Young men with a taste for travel, adventure and discovery have been lately in the state of mind indulged in by Alexander, who sat down and wept because there were no more worlds to conquer. For the comfort and edification of such Henry M. Stanley, the distinguished ex-traveler, publishes an article on the odds and ends of earth, which are still left open, or rather closed, for exploration, and which, with industry and economy, could be made to yield something to the traveler.

Mr. Stanley begins with the continent of Africa, which still offers certain parcels of ground, one of them 700 miles long and fifty miles wide, which have never been thoroughly explored or, indeed, explored at all. Besides the work of original exploration there is in Africa an immense amount of supplementary exploration to be done. There are mountains 15,000 feet high to be climbed and written up in detail. These mountains all have names which may be found in any good central African lexicon. The great African lakes, all discovered since 1850, are known only, as it were, in outline. Their depth or their altitude above the sea level is unknown as yet. The Nile has a few more sources yet to be discovered and so has the Congo. There are believed to be active volcanoes in Africa which have never yet been studied by white men. There are scattered around in the forests and mountains of Africa whole tribes who have never seen a white face. These are all to be looked up.

Besides Africa, the continent of South America offers great tracts of almost unknown country. An American steamer occasionally ascends the Amazon, but the vast forest on the head waters of that stream—its tributaries themselves great rivers—is still a mystery. The great chain of the Andes has been crossed in many places, but has not been traversed lengthwise. A great part of the Andean Cordillera is completely unknown, says Mr. Stanley, both as to its topography and geology.

The Cape and Cairo railroad has been spoken of as depending on circumstances, but one great explorer's railroad is open for business already. It is the great trans-Siberian all through route from one side of Asia to the other. South of this road lies one-fifth of the continent of Asia, stretching away to the Himalayas, which is good and fruitful ground for the explorer.

Thus Africa, South America and Asia are yet to be explored in large sections. The arctic regions still present their hidden attractions and the traveler may still seek them, cheered on by the hope of freezing and starvation.—Kansas City Star.

RECENT INVENTIONS.

Gardeners will appreciate a new tool designed for their use, consisting of a sharp disk carried at the end of a handle, to trim the sod around walks and flower beds, the weight of the tool being supported by a smooth shoe which slides on the sod.

Railway tracks are easily brought to the proper level or elevation by a new track sight, in which levels are used in connection with graduated sight standards to adjust them in relation to the rail and indicate the grade at which the rail should be set.

A Southerner has designed a game apparatus similar to tenpins, differing only in having the ball suspended on a cord over the pins and adapted to swing out from the balls and around a post set in one corner of the board, knocking the pins down as it swings back.

Deaf persons will appreciate a new telephone designed to aid their hearing, having a small receiver to be attached to the coat lapel, with wires running to a small generator in the pocket and thence to the ear, ending in an artificial drum to be placed inside the ear.

Tooth and other powders can be easily distributed from a newly designed can, which has a wheel mounted in the neck, with its teeth extending below the lower end and above the top, causing it to revolve when drawn over the article on which the powder is to be deposited.

Hard Names.

In one of the Western cities where there is a considerable sprinkling of Polish inhabitants a couple came before a justice of the peace one morning to be married.

The young man handed him the marriage license and the pair stood up before him.

"Join hands," said his honor.

They did so, and the justice looked at the document which authorized him to unite in the bonds of matrimony Zacharewicz Perczynski and Leokowarda Jenlinseika.

"Hem!" he said, clearing his throat. "Zacha—h'm—h'm—ski, do you take this woman," and so forth.

"Yes, sir," responded the young man.

"Leo—h'm—er—ah—wicz, do you take this man to be," and so forth.

"Yessir."

"Then I pronounce you husband and wife," said his honor, glad to find something that he could pronounce, "and I congratulate you both on having reduced those two names to one."

Rare Books in Vatican Library.

The oldest library now existing is that of the Vatican, and it probably contains more literary treasures than any other. It belongs always to the reigning Pope and only he can give permission to enter. Though there are only 225,000 volumes, they are the rarest in the world. The Vatican library has the only known copy of the New Testament written before the end of the fourth century; the original Dante, the oldest existing copy of Virgil and a Terence which goes back to the fourth century.

PROCEEDINGS IN CONGRESS

SUMMARY OF THEIR WORK

Number of Bills Pass—The Investigation of the Coeur d'Alene Troubles—A New Philippine Bill—Notes of the House.

In the Senate.

After a brief and spirited debate the house Saturday took the last step in completing the Puerto Rico bill, agreeing to the conference report by a vote of 135 to 87. The bill turns over to the president for the use of Puerto Rico about $2,000,000 of customs receipts collected upon Puerto Rican goods up to January 1, last and such amounts as may hereafter accrue until otherwise provided by law. The debate lasted only an hour, but in this time the whole range of Puerto Rico legislation was discussed. An important bill passed during the day, appropriating $10,000 for designs for a suitable memorial in Washington to U. S. Grant, this being the first step in a movement to secure an arch similar to the arch of triumph in Paris, commemorating the illustrious soldier-statesman. A resolution was passed asking the secretary of state for information on the "open door" negotiations concerning China.

Assistant Secretary Vanderlip, Treasurer Roberts and other treasury officials were before the house committee on coinage relative to the several bills proposing the establishment of mints at various points in the west—five in all. Mr Vanderlip said that one additional mint would suffice for all government needs.

Representatives Cushman and Tongue inquired of Treasurer Roberts as to the probable product of Alaska and the Klondike during the present year, and were informed that it would probably reach $30,000,000, a material increase over last year.

In the senate Monday morning, Senator Hanna, who is chairman of the republican national committee, rose to a question of personal privilege. He directed the attention of the senate to an article published in a Washington newspaper to the effect that a member of the house of representatives had said to a representative of the paper that the Puerto Rican tariff bill had been agreed upon as a part of a "deal" by which the republican party was to receive a large campaign contribution.

"I don't believe," said Hanna, "that any republican member of the house ever made the statement attributed to him."

He said the statement carried on its face the evidence that it was false.

"I hope measures will be taken to investigate this statement. I brand it as a malicious lie."

The resolution offered by Senator Allen calling on the secretary of war for information relative to casualties in the American army in the Philippines was then taken up.

Senator Allen supportd the resolution in a brief speech, after Senator Gallinger suggested that it ought to go to the committe on military affairs.

Senator Gallinger intimated that the resolution would have the effect of discouraging enlistments in the army.

Senator Allen declared that to send the resolution to the committee on military affairs was to destroy and smother it. He said that owing to the climatic and other conditions in the Philippines, the American army could not remain there for two years. He was credibly informed, he said, that the whole American army would have to be withdrawn within six months. He said that illness and suicide among the troops were on the increase. He believed the American people were entitled to the facts. He was prepared, he said, to go so far as to advise men not to enlist for duty in the Philippines.

In the House.

Unusual interest attached to the Coeur d'Alene investigation Thursday as the prosecution, after presenting testimony almost uninterrupted for five weeks, closed its case and gave way to the defense. Governor Steunenberg of Idaho was the first witness called in rebuttal of the charges made. As he took the stand he spread before him several hundred telegraphic dispatches. The examination was conducted by J. C. Cheney. Steunenberg said he had cautioned Sinclair not to align himself with either side, employers or employes. Sinclair had made speeches in New York for Henry George, so that the governor said he regarded him as qualified to give a fair consideration to the labor situation. Representative Lentz objected at this point to the line of inquiry by Cheney and questioned the propriety of having private counsel direct the investigation. Chairman Hull replied that the prosecution had selected Lentz to direct its side. Robertson, an attorney for the entitled to have counsel. The committee voted to permit the question to stand as the attorney propounded it. As there were frequent objections to the questions the committee agreed to a motion by Mr. Sulzer that the governor be allowed to tell his story in his own way without interruption. Steunenberg then related in detail the steps taken to carry out the proclamation. Arrests were made of those reasonably suspected of complicity in the disturbance.

The 146 pension bills favorably acted upon by the house in committee of the whole last Friday were put through their final stages at the opening session of the house Monday, and the army appropriation bill was then taken up.

Governor Steunenberg's cross-examination was continued in the Coeur d'Alene investigation before the house committee on military affairs. Representative Sulzer directed the cross-examination, inquiring how the governor justified the continuation of martial law.

The Chicago situation is still unchanged, having developed into a test of endurance. It is estimated that nearly 65,000 men are idle in the city, distributed among the several crafts as follows: Building trades, 40,000; brick makers, 3000; machinists, 7000; wood workers, 6000; glass workers, 200; tailors, 300; pantaloon trimmers, 3000; brass molders, 400; metal workers, 600; miscellaneous, 4000.

President Henry Fisher of the National Tobacco Worker' Union states that in one of the factories of the American Tobacco Company in the east, 1800 girls between 14 and 16 are employed at 3 cents an hour. In the strike at Scranton, Pa., Pinkerton detectives were not called to fire upon them, but the company had the fire department called out and water was turned on them.

AT DAWSON.

Chas. Harris, who accompanied his father, M. C., and Frank Jones for Alaska, writes a letter from Dawson, from which we extract:

We left Genesee December 23; purchased a large black dog in Spokane for $5.50; arrived in Seattle on the 24th and left January 5th on the City of Topeka passing through the Gulf of Georgia. Had some heavy sea. We stopped at Naniamo and took on 400 tons of coal. Laborers here are all Chinamen. Arrived at Juneau January 7 and cast anchor at Milkbanks for the night. Here is a dangerous pass when tide is out. Starting on we passed 7 or 8 vessels on their way south; arriving at Catchyowcan on the 8th, at 11 p. m., a British port. Arrived at Port Wrangle on the 9th, a town with U. S. troops and 2000 inhabitants.

Our boat makes about 11 knots an hour, a knot being a little more than a mile. We have a couple of musicians on board, 75 dogs and about 100 passengers. We have an enjoyable time. The captain decided to go to Juneau through the Narrows and open sea than to Douglass Island. We visited the famous Treadwell mines owned by the Rothchilds. The ore is of low grade—$5 to $6 per ton. Here are the largest stamp mills in the world.

On January 11 we arrived at Skagway, being followed by a great school of Porpoise. They played about in great fashion. This is a nice little city of about 3500 inhabitants and a great dog town. The ladies are out sleighing with them. Dogs sell at $10 per pound. Here the custom officers go through all our baggage in search of dutiable goods. The White Pass & Youkon railroad runs from here to Bennett, the fare being $10, $3.25 per cwt. freight, distance 40 miles. Fare on dogs $2 each. The train is now snowed in. The rotary snow plow broke down three times yesterday and we are getting tired of waiting. A blizzard is on.

Quite a number of the boys started out on foot on the trail with light loads but all came back satisfied to wait. The winds? Blows the hair off a man's head. The Idaho winds are mere zephyrs in comparison. It stormed Jan. 15; stormy 16; storm still raging 17th; ditto 18. People say it is unusually stormy this winter. Many venture out to cross over the trail, only to return with frozen feet, faces, ears and hands. Over 400 men went up to dig out the train and later on 1000 shovelers were at work. In snow the 25th. Decided to take our freight out of car and haul it over the pass. Left on the 26th and reached Porcupine hill, meeting many people returning disgnsted, claiming they could not cross the pass. Met six ladies on the trail today. Made White Pass on the 27 and put up at the hotel where we secured good meals at 50 cts. Going five miles farther we reached the summit with half of our goods and very tired. Went back after balance of goods, dogs working fine, team worth $120. Snow here 50 and 60 feet deep. Bought a dog for $10 and got the worst of it. Moved on to Frazier where we paid $1 each for stabling dogs. Arrived at Log Cabin Jan. 30 where custom officers relieved us of $16.75 duty on 2 weeks provisions. Followed snow plow into Bennett. Dull here—has 600 people. Traded our bum dog and $15 for a good one; paid 25c each to sleep on the floor in our own blankets and moved on to Island City and pitched camp at Lake Toggish Feb. 3; make from 20 to 30 miles per day here and pay from $1 to $1.50 for bunks. Buy fish and horse meat for the dogs. Met people coming from Dawson and secured flour at $9 per sack, bacon 50c, sugar 30, corn meal 50c per lb. We experienced much cold weather, 20 to 40 below zero; old Jack has kissed the most of us. Met two more ladies going to Dawson. We arrived in this city feeling very good. The city has electric lights and a population of 3500. A great many people are leaving daily for Cape Nome. We have taken quarters in a snug little cabin for a few days until we find out just what we will do.

Tears

Many a woman has periodic crying spells. She meets her husband with eyes red and swollen and he cries out: "What has happened?" "Nothing" his wife replies. "I don't know what is the matter with me, but I just had to have a good cry." Men don't have crying spells. It would seem therefore that an affection confined to women must have its cause in the womanly nature. There is no doubt that a diseased condition of the delicate womanly organs, is in general responsible for feminine nervousness and hysteria.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes women happy by making them healthy. There are no more crying spells. "Favorite Prescription" cures inflammation, ulceration and female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

There is no medicine "just as good." Accept no substitute.

"For three years," writes Mrs. Mary A. Sasser, of High, Lamar Co., Texas, "I suffered with falling of the womb, also ulceration of the womb. After using three bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription,' four of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two vials of 'Pleasant Pellets,' I found relief. I am able to do my work with ease. I recommend your wonderful medicine to all my friends, for I truly believe it saved my life."

Free. Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only. Cloth binding 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

—Towns in south Idaho are sending good sized delegations to Cape Nome. Blackfoot recently sent out 20 and other points are doing equally as well. On to Cape Nome is the cry now.

—Beware of using the personal pronoun "I" too freely in your talk when you are talking in a room full of people, says Ladies Home Journal. Egotists are often amusing and entertaining, but as often they are very much out of order.

—Our esteemed fellow-townsman, Mr. C. B. Holt, met with a painful accident on Tuesday. While riding a colt home from a watering trough it became unmanageable and threw him with considerable violence against a telephone pole, breaking his left arm, bruising his head and shaking him up internally. Mr. Holt is able to be out now but it will be some time before he can use the broken arm, says the Moscow Star.

Remarkable Cures of Rheumatism.

From the Vindicator, Rutherfordton, N. C.

The editor of the Vindicator has had occasion to test the efficacy of Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice with the most remarkable results in each case. First, with rheumatism in the shoulder from which he suffered excruciating pain for ten days, which was relieved with two applications of Pain Balm, rubbing the parts afflicted and realizing instant benefit and entire relief in a very short time. Second, in rheumatism in thigh joint, almost prostrating him with severe pain, which was relieved by two applications, rubbing with the liniment on retiring at night, and getting up free from pain. For sale by all druggists.

Mrs. Harriet Evans, Hinsdale, Ill., writes, "I never fail to relieve my children from croup at once by using One Minute Cough Cure. I would not feel safe without it." Quickly cures coughs, colds, all throat and lung diseases.

KENNEDY'S PHARMACY.

If troubled with rheumatism, give Chamberlain's Pain Balm a trial. It will not cost you a cent if it does no good. One application will relieve the pain. It also cures sprains and bruises in one-third the time required by any other treatment. Cuts, burns, frostbites, quinsey, pains in the side and chest, glandular and other swellings are quickly cured by applying it. Every bottle warranted. Price 25 and 50 cts. Sold by all druggists.

Lewis Ackerman, Goshen, Ind., says: DeWitt's Little Early Risers always bring certain relief, cure my headache and never gripe." They generally cleanse and invigorate the bowels and liver.

Idaho has no severe storms, no high winds, no cyclones or blizzards. It is a land of sunshine, fruits and flowers

—The contractors are leaving the Clearwater country which is an indication that the railway construction is over with for the present. The grading outfits at Orofino and other places pulled out for Spokane this week. However, engineers are still in the mountains searching for a suitable line through the Lo Lo pass.

—The fishing syndicate—Judge Poe, R. Schleicher and John Wilkinson—have received a letter from Senator Heitfeld stating that the government will the present summer stock the Sweetwater, Lapwai and Craig mountain creeks with 20,000 eastern brook trout. About two years ago Waha lake was stocked with these trout and the syndicate anticipate great sport this summer, says the Lewiston Tribune.

—It is said the price of grain sacks will rule higher this fall.

—F J. Bratton's Peck Press has made its bow. It is modest and says it will improve with age. Bad beginning makes good ending.

—George Webster was hanged in Spokane last Friday for killing Mrs. Lise Aspland, near Cheney, Wash. He made no statement on the scaffold. His neck was broken by the fall.

—The case of Thos. Tweedy et al vs. J. M. Silcott and W. F. Kettenbach, in which the plaintiff sought to recover damages for the accident which occurred on the Clearwater ferry, resulting in the drowning of Wm. Tweedy, has been compromised the plaintiff securing $290 and costs.

—Col. Bryan attracted good crowds wherever he spoke in the state of Washington. Glad of it. It shows the people have money and times improved over four years ago. Those going from here to Colfax to hear the orator were W. J. Herman, Mike Glover, Dr. Hayes, Artist Hanson, Jeweler Walters, Geo. Flinn, D. Spurbeck, Mr. Stamps and son. All say William is a great speaker and they got their money's worth.

—The farmers of Oregon will this year obtain not less than five million dollars from the sale of sheep and wool. The sheep industry of the state is now almost as much of a factor as wheat in supporting the people of Oregon says the Portland Agriculturalist. If wheat should continue low in price and sheep and wool remain high it will not be long until the sales of sheep and wool will bring more money into the state than the sales of wheat. The Angora goat is also attracting considerable attention in that state.

—If America is to preserve the open door for her trade in all parts of the Chinese empire as now constituted, she will have to be quick about it. "Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad." And "mad" describes the present so-called government of China more accurately than any other word. If America could unite with the other powers interested in preserving the open door and help gradually to reform and thus to strengthen the defense of the empire until China could stand alone and take her rightful place among the family of nations, there still be hope for for that policy. But for China to fight Russia and France at this time invites disaster. For the nations who favor the open-door policy to stand aloof probably means great loss to commercial nations and endless diplomatic disputes, if not more serious international troubles, in the not distant future. No matter what promises are made by Russia and France now, once give them legal control over large slices of Chinese territory, and sooner or later the open door will be shut in our face.—April Review of Reviews.

—A decision has been received from the secretary of the interior in the case of Pierre Nosler vs. the heirs of Jacob Blume, jr., involving a quarter-section near Fletcher. The decision is in favor of Nosler, affirming the local land office.

—E. G. Crossett, who has been confined in the Moscow jail on a sentence for giving intoxicating liquors to minors, was released last week. There were 51 days remaining of the sentence, but the prisoner paid its equivalent and returned to Genesee.

—A total eclipse of the sun is scheduled for May 28. This is the first total eclipse for 20 years. This eclipse will not be total in this section of the country, but enough of the sun will be obscured so that it will be only light enough on the earth to read coarse type.

—Seldom before in the history of this section have fruit trees blossomed so early. Strangers at the Natatorium yesterday were surprised to see trees in full blossom on all sides, reports the Boise Statesman. The same is true of orchards in our valleys here and orchardists fear much harm will result to trees from weight of the fruit as present indications point to an enormous yield.

—District court has been in session at Lewiston five weeks including this. Nearly one-half of the present calendar remains to be considered. Since the present term opened there have been twelve or fourteen new cases filed, and Clerk Stookey thinks that the filings of cases in the entire second judicial district will average one a day. This fact indicates the large amount of business that comes before Judge Steele.

—The trial of ex-Auditor Tannahill has ended and the defendant has been acquitted and vindicated of the charge of forgery. After the verdict was announced Tannahill's attorneys stated that a trial on the pending charges against him in the other cases would be immediately demanded. The Daily Patriot thinks the result might have been different had the county commissioners heeded the advice of their legal advisor, Col. Danford, in securing another prosecutor.

—Wesley Dorchester came out from the Salmon river country last week and returned this week. He told us that cattle on the ranges look better now than usually in June and in consequence the prairies contain many fine beeves fit for the block. The bunchgrass was never better at this time of year than at present. There is little snow reported in the mountains, owing to the mild winter, six or seven feet, where usually there is about fifteen feet, which, in the summer months acts as a reservoir and keeps the weather cool. Many believe the spring sown grain will be light unless we are favored with frequent showers up to the fourth.

—Sumpter and Baker City, Ore., have considerable sickness and numerous deaths are occurring.

—Kamiah station is now ready to do business with two men in charge. Three men will be employed at the Stuart station.

—If you want to post yourself on agriculture, horticulture, stock and sheep raising, dairying, apiary, take the Agriculturalist and Rural Northwest published at Portland. Only 50c per year.

Best Remedy for Rheumatism.

QUICK RELIEF FROM PAIN.

All who use Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism are delighted with the quick relief from pain which it affords. When speaking of this Mr. D. N. Sinks, of Troy, Ohio, says: "Some time ago I had a severe attack of rheumatism in my arm and shoulder. I tried numerous remedies but got no relief until I was recommended by Messrs. Geo. F. Parsons & Co., druggists of this place, to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. They recommended it so highly that I bought a bottle. I was soon relieved of all pain. I have since recommended this liniment to many of my friends, who agree with me that it is the best remedy for muscular rheumatism in the market." Sold by all druggists.

W. W. Mayhew, Merton, Wis., says, "I consider One Minute Cough Cure a most wonderful medicine, quick and safe." It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results. It cures coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis, grippe, whooping cough, pneumonia and all throat and lung diseases. Its early use prevents consumption. Children always like it and mothers endorse it.

KENNEDY'S PHARMACY.

Caught a Dreadful Cold.

Marion Kooke, manager for T. M. Thompson, a large importer of fine millinery at 1658 Milwaukee Ave., Chicago, says: "During the late severe weather I caught a dreadful cold which kept me awake at night and made me unfit to attend my work during the day. One of my milliners was taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a severe cold at that time, which seemed to relieve her so quickly that I bought some for myself. It acted like magic and I began to improve at once. I am now entirely well and feel very pleased to acknowledge its merits." For sale by all druggists.

Puerto Ricans Beg for Work.

During the past 10 days the Puerto Rican people have evinced unusual interest in their affairs, and in the future of the island as it is being handled by congress. Until the tariff question is settled, business in Puerto Rico will remain at a standstill. The laboring classes are on the verge of starvation; there is work for them to do, but the planters who need their services are without funds with which to employ them. The people here say: "Let the tariff question be settled, either by a free trade bill or a 15 or a 25 per cent bill, and the feeling of uncertainty will be raised. Trade will be revived. The banks will advance to the planters, the planters will employ the starving, and Puerto Rico will boom." On the 17th instant the chamber of commerce held a special meeting, at which it was decided to call a mass meeting for Monday, March 19, and to present a petition to General Davis, beseeching him to do all in his power to influence legislation for Puerto Rico.

The mass meeting was held recently, and 1000 people assembled at the plaza, an orderly, quiet crowd. Headed by Major Ejossene and President Crosos of the chamber of commerce and six members of the body, they submitted a written statement to Governor General Davis, setting forth the critical conditions under which the island is struggling. They were told that they had the sincerest sympathies of General Davis, and his hopes that an immediate settlement will be made. The crowd cheered, shouting "Viva la Estados Unidos," "Viva el General Davis."

Throughout the day and during the following days telegraphic reports of similar proceedings in other towns began to accumulate on the governor general's desk. For the past 10 days hardly a day has passed without a visit of a delegation of country people begging for work. The transport Kilpatrick arrived yesterday with more than 500 tons of rations. But it is not rations that the people want. It is work.

Riot at the Horatio Mines.

Dubois, Pa., April 2.—The striking miners at the Horatio mines of the Berwind-White Coal Mining company attacked the few men who remained at work when they came out of the mines. Over 100 shots were fired, resulting in the serious wounding of three persons. The sheriff was called upon and arrested 40 men and women who participated in the fight. The sheriff is now guarding the property of the company.

Strikers Have Resumed Work.

Chicago, April 3.—About half of the 5500 striking machinists resumed work Monday. Manufacturers said the differences had been settled or put on a basis to be arbitrated and that the remainder of the strikers would undoubtedly return to work in the next day or two. The men have been granted a nine-hour day with 10 hours' pay.

The strike has cost the men half a million dollars in salary.

Painters and Carpenters.

St. Louis, April 3.—Two thousand journeymen painters and 1500 carpenters refused to go to work Monday pending the adjustment of their demand for higher wages. The carpenters ask for an increase from 35 to 45 cents an hour, and painters demand an increase from $2.50 to $3 per day.

Captured by Pirates.

Hong Kong, April 3.—A British steam launch was captured by pirates near the Check Heung Shan district. The pilot of the boat was murdered and the launch and the lighter which it had in tow were looted. The supercargo was made prisoner.

Money Gone, He Took Poison.

Butte, April 3.—About eight months ago Gustav Henry Geyer, an old timer, sold his interest in a mine for several thousand dollars. This money he has been spending as rapidly as possible. Yesterday the last cent went. Monday he took morphine and died.

Delays Manufacture.

St. Louis, April 3.—The glass house of Anheuser-Busch Brewing company, in which the bottles for that establishment were manufactured, was partially destroyed by fire today. Loss, $75,000, partially insured. About 1000 men will be out of work temporarily.

BRITISH GOT INTO A TRAP

CONVOY AND SIX GUNS GONE.

British Are Aggressive—Had One Severe Fight—Large Number of British Fell—General News of South Africa.

Bushman Kop, April 2.—The British force commanded by Colonel Broadwood, consisting of the Tenth Hussars, household cavalry, two-horse batteries and a force of mounted infantry under Colonel Pilcher, which has been garrisoning Thanchu, was obliged in consequence of the near approach of a large force of Boers to leave.

Colonel Broadwood marched to the Bloemfontein waterworks, south of the Modder, where he encamped. At early dawn the camp was shelled by the enemy from a near point. Colonel Broadwood sent off a convoy with the batteries while the rest of the force remained to act as a rear guard. The convoy arrived at a deep spruit, where the Boers were concealed and the entire body walked into ambush and was captured, together with six guns. The loss of life was not great, since most of the British had walked into the trap before a shot was fired.

General Colville's division which left Bloemfontein early Saturday arrived here at noon and shelled the Boers.

A Surprise for England.

London, April 2.—General Buller's anxious inquiry whether British officers will ever learn the value of scouting comes back with enforced emphasis to the British public on receipt of tidings that a convoy with guns has walked deliberately into a Boer ambush within about 20 miles of Bloemfontein.

Evidently Colonel Broadwood thought it necessary to retreat in haste from Tharbanchu, as he marched all through Friday night, apparently followed by a considerable force of the army. The convoy and guns had to pass through a deep spruit which the Boers had occupied.

Six of the 12 guns, comprising two batteries, with the wagons, and it is feared, many men, fell into the hands of the Boers, whose daring, displayed so near Bloemfontein, shows that they are rapidly recovering heart after their recent reverses.

The hope is expressed here that General Colville will recover the convoy and guns, but this is hardly likely in such a difficult country, and it is probable the next move will be that after a stiff fight General Colville has extricated Colonel Broadwood from his difficult position, but failed to relieve the disaster.

Several criticisms are heard regarding the renewal of the old mistake of underrating the Boers and the absence of proper precaution. No doubt the affair will revive the Boer hopes and inspire confidence among the enemy at a critical moment.

Great things are expected by the Boers of the new commander-in-chief, General Botha, who has made his reputation wholly during the present campaign. Foreign officers serving with the Boers have expressed sympathy with his clever tactics.

Detailed accounts of the fight at Karee Siding estimated the Boer forces variously from 3000 to 5000.

Brabant's horse occupied Wepener last Thursday unopposed.

Lord Methuen has issued the following notification at Kimberley: "I have received instructions that if any disturbance occurs west of the Vaal river my force is to return and punish the rebels immediately."

Lord Roberts Advances.

London, April 2.—According to a special dispatch from Pretoria, Lord Roberts has commenced his advance northward. The dispatch says there are daily skirmishes, and that a big battle is imminent. This may, however, refer to the operations preceding the engagement at Karoo Siding, which apparently cleared the way as well as secured an advantageous position whence the next operation may be conducted.

Tucker's division is now strongly occupying the Boer camp at Karoo Siding, with the way cleared at Brandfort, which is reported already evacuated.

Orders have been received at Cape Town for the Eighth division to be disembarked and sent north immediately on its arrival there.

The Boers in the neighborhood of Paardeberg are reported to be actively engaged in marauding and in attempting to capture British horses left on the veldt owing to their weak condition. Six hundred Barkley refugees sent back from Cape Town are stranded, the Kimberley military authorities refusing assistance to all of them to proceed.

Much Kaffir looting is reported at Klipdam.

An active campaign is in progress on the present loyalists of Cape Colony for annexation of the republics and punishment of the colonials who served in the Boer army. Meetings in support of this policy have been held in many important centers under the auspices of the South African league.

The transportation of the prisoners to St. Helena is arousing the anger of the Boers, who threaten to retaliate by sending British prisoners to Koomatipoort, reputed the worst fever den in South Africa.

The transport Norfolk has recently sailed from Southampton for Cape Town, and had an enthusiastic sendoff.

Speaking at Trowbridge recently, Rt. Hon. Walter Hume Long, M. P. for West Darby, Liverpool, said when the war was over Great Britain should have to see that the people of South Africa, no matter what their color, religion or politics, have equal liberty. He could not say when the general election would take place, but it would not be until after the government had completed their task.

Nearly Two Hundred Fell.

London, April 2.—The war office has posted the following dispatch from Lord Roberts, dated at Bloemfontein:

"Reports point to the enemy leaving Brandfort and proceeding in a northernly direction. * The casualties in yesterday's engagement were more numerous than at first reported. Officers—Killed, 2; wounded, 8. Rank and file—Killed, 10; wounded, 159; missing, 3."

The Boer Account.

Kroonstaad, Orange Free State, April 2.—General Smuts has engaged the British at Mafet kop, south of Brandfort, and held them at bay for six hours. The burghers fought well. The casualties are unknown.

The Free State raad assembles at Kroonstaad April 2.

The Latest From Mafeking.

London, April 2.—Roberts reported to the war office that he had received news from Mafeking up to March 10. The general health of the garrison and its spirits were good. Locally made gun and searchlight and ammunition were working well. Food was holding out well and the paper currency which the British commander had issued was satisfactory.

Fight or Be Shot.

London, April 2.—From Cape Town it is said that President Steyn has gone to Pretoria, after, according to stories of refugees, having issued an order that all British burghers refusing to join the army shall be shot. The stories of the refugees are, however, notoriously unreliable. News from elsewhere is meager. The last reports from Natal indicate a speedy clashing of the armies.

Botha Succeeds Joubert.

New York, April 2.—A dispatch to the Herald from Pretoria says: General Botha has been appointed to succeed General Joubert as commander-in-chief of the Transvaal forces.

Water Supply Cut Off.

London, April 3.—A special dispatch from Bloemfontein says that the water supply of that place has been cut off. This is the natural sequence of the Boer success at the waterworks. But the authorities are hopeful that the strong reinforcements sent by the commander-in-chief will promptly remedy this. It is evident from Roberts' dispatch that a big engagement is in progress.

Although it is difficult to estimate the number of British engaged they probably exceed even the eight or ten thousand men which the Boers are estimated to number. The scene of the British disaster appears to be Mealie spruit, where the Bloemfontein road crosses a tributary of the Modder river.

To Dispute the Advance.

Kimberley, April 3.—There is a great Boer activity along the Vaal river. About 6000 burghers have assembled at various points between Fourteen Streams and Christiana. About 700 men are occupying Wirand north of Klipdam and 400 men are laagered at Bootsap.

Make Money on the Wreck.

Gaston Drake of Nassau, Bahama, with other Americans now own the wreck of the Spanish warship Infanta Maria Teresa, lying in two fathoms of water near Bird Point, Cat Island. Drake and his associates purpose to break up the wreck for the metal there is in it. Mr. Drake wants to bring the metal into this country free of duty. Mr. Drake's lawyers asked the treasury department if this could be done. In reply counsel for the treasury department wrote:

"The Spanish war vessel was not the property of the United States at the time she was originally wrecked, but was the property of the Spanish government, and as the United States government has abandoned the vessel on Cat Island, its owners have been changed from the United States to private citizens. Formal wreckage upon its importation to the United States will be dutiable."

Mr. Drake and his partners believe there will be a profit in the importation from the metal of the wreck if admitted free of duty, but not otherwise.

Webster Davis Resigns.

Kansas City, Mo., April 4.—A Journal special from Washington says:

Hon. Webster Davis of Kansas City has tendered his resignation to the president as assistant secretary of the interior. Mr. Davis decided to take this course as the result of his visit to South Africa. He has decided to deliver a public address touching the entire scope of the present war and believes that he can best do so while free from any restraint which his present position would impose upon him. When taking his departure for home from Pretoria, 2000 people gathered to take leave of him at the station. They appealed to him in tears to state their cause to the American people and Mr. Davis says his conscience would haunt him if he proved recreant to that pitiful appeal. He believes the American people are not truly informed on the situation. He will therefore avail himself of an early opportunity to relate his experience and observations at a public meeting that shall be free to all.

Mr. Davis has decided on this course after mature deliberation and free consultation with his friends.

Scandal About the Sumner.
