VOL. XLIII — GENESEE, LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 1, 1932 — NO. 28

POTATOES PRICES MAY BE BETTER IN LATE SEASON

"Prices of Russet Burbanks will probably go higher as the season advances, but no high prices are expected," says the report of the Agricultural Extension service for Idaho, Washington and Montana.

In support of this contention, the department of agriculture says: The production of the eleven western states this year, is 58 million bushels or 18 per cent less than last year.

Price outlook for Idaho potatoes is improved by a 9 per cent decline in the Idaho crop this year; a 50 per cent decline in Colorado and a 20 per cent decline in Washington.

Official estimates show the percentage of high grade potatoes in the west to be low this year; in fact Idaho's percentage of No. 1's is the lowest ever recorded.

A chart prepared by the department shows that prices have generally started off low as compared to the balance of the season, and December has been the turning point, price curves tending upward until the month of April, when after the 15th prices go down.

The 1925-26 season, when potato production in the eleven western states was identically the same as for 1931, prices soared in Idaho to around $4.00.

Consumer buying power determines to a great extent the prices of all commodities, and with indications of this power gaining strength, says the department, this factor will react favorably.

GENESEE TOWN HOOPSTERS WIN FROM UNIONTOWNERS

Trailing the Uniontown team until the last few minutes of play, the Genesee town team jumped ahead to score the deciding point in the last minute of play after tying the score 20-20 in the closing minutes of the final quarter; E. Weber, fouled, as the whistle was about to blow, found the basket for the deciding point.

Emmett was high scoring man for Genesee, sinking four from the floor and adding two extra points on free throws. Carlson, Uniontown forward, scored high for the visitors, in the game played here Wednesday evening at the high school gymnasium.

Genesee used Weber at center, who was all over the floor and was the outstanding player on defense for both clubs, his team being much the better in handling the ball until it came to shooting for baskets, the club being apparently unacquainted with their locations as the ball was in Genesee players' hands most of the time especially in the last half.

Those who played for Genesee were K. Olson, M. Krier, L. Johann, E. Weber, L. Emmett, Bertrand and Miller, Uniontown using Wies, Thill, Carlson, Moneymaker, Kuntz, McVey, Englehard, Potter and Moneymaker. George Smylie was referee.

Scoring for Genesee: Field goals, Krier 1, Johann 2, Weber 1 and Emmett four; free throws, Johann 1, Emmett 2 and Miller 2. Eleven fouls were called on Uniontown as against seven for Genesee.

The Christmas vacation ends Sunday, January 3, and school will resume the following day.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

The Ladies Monday club entertained their husbands at a five o'clock dinner Christmas afternoon at the Casebolt home.

Jesse Borgen, Frieda Mayer, Alfred Scharbach, Martha Magee, Hazel Ouse and Cordelia Emmett drove up from Lewiston where they are attending the Normal school, to spend the Christmas vacation.

Members of the German Lutheran church made a present of a very handsome gold watch to their pastor, Rev. A. F. Wolff as a Christmas gift.

A party of Rebekahs took a bobsled ride out to the Spurbeck place and were royally entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Spurbeck.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Bowers are visiting with Mr. Bowers' people in Palouse during the Christmas holidays.

ROSS ONE OF MANY OPPOSED TO SPECIAL SESSION NOW

Governor C. Ben Ross is but one of many opposed to a special session of the state legislature to consider tax relief measures, and it is about time that someone realizes when a waste of taxpayers' money is to occur.

"They wouldn't know what to do if they were in session," Ross said of those who would convene at Boise.

The extra session called by Ross following the regular session of the legislature about a year ago, cost Idaho $8,000, and the senators, representatives and others were already in Boise, that "special effort" being for the purpose of passing on the state income tax bill, and what a measure that turned out to be. It will probably cost more to make it effective than will be realized in tax returns.

The governor, dispatches said, is pinning his immediate hope for tax relief on such taxpayers' organizations as that sponsored by the state chamber of commerce which is studying revision of the tax system with a view to presenting a new program to the 1933 legislature. Governor Ross said little advance had been made through the legislature toward tax relief in the past 30 years, and it may be said he is only half right—there will be no benefits from this source in the next thirty years.

Outdoor Christmas Trees.

Evergreen trees in the yards of the John G. Meyer and Henry Martinson homes, decorated with vari-colored electric lights were outstanding for their attractiveness while displayed during the evening hours.

The majority of Genesee homes were decorated for the Christmas holiday with lighted trees at windows which presented pleasing effects, lending a cheerfulness to the season.

Dinner Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene O'Conner were hosts at a dinner party Wednesday evening. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morscheck, Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Emaline Grieser of Moscow and Maurice and Elmer Krier.

Altar Society to Meet Tuesday.

The Altar Society will be entertained by Mrs. Andrew Hasfurther next Tuesday. A good attendance is requested.

NEWS OF INTEREST FROM GRADES AND HIGH SCHOOL

High School

Christmas vacation this year will last until January 4, having begun on December 23. Misses Melgard and Anderson will spend their vacations at their respective homes in Moscow. Paul Parks planned to be at the home of his parents in Culdesac.

The basket ball girls have received their new suits, which consist of blue trunks, blue blouses and white belts, the white contrasting pleasantly with the blue. If the girls play as peppy as they look, Genesee will be on the winning list all the time.

After school the afternoon of December 23 the students exchanged Christmas presents and sang Christmas carols.

Culdesac Conquers Genesee 20-10.

In this hard fought but ragged basket ball game, Genesee took the lead for the first quarter and most of the first half but the half ended 6 to 9 in favor of Culdesac. Three personals on Smylile in the first six minutes practically ruined him for the rest of the game. George Blume played a hard game for the locals.

With four sophomores and one freshman in the line-up the first conference game proved too much of a strain. The passing attack which had shown up so well in pre-season games gave way to more of a battering, bruising type of play and the bigger boys from the rocket city had Genesee bested there.

Howard Blume took his seat for personals also.

Culdesac has a good club, but watch Genesee January 15 when Culdesac comes here.

Seventh and Eighth Grades.

The beautiful Christmas decorations in the seventh and eighth grade room have been admired by everyone. Gretchen Riesemer is responsible for them.

The plants in this room are coming along fine, there being several species, Easter lilies, tulips, wandering Jew, fushia, cows tongue and a few others.

A short play was presented in this room Wednesday at 2:30. The title of the play was "A Pair of Christmas Stockings," featuring Genevee Harris as Mother Sewell; Neyva Erickson as Prudence; Gordon Foster as Father Sewell; William Edwards as Paul; James Dresher and Robert Smith as Indians. The orchestra played several selections, and Margaret Springer and Betty Lou Burr sang a duet, accompanied by Bueletta Nordby at the piano. There was, of course a Christmas tree, better than any other.

Mr. Suenkel received a letter from Mr. Hayes, the former seventh and eighth grade teacher last week. Mr. Hayes writes, "Tell the boys hello for me."

Helen Winegardner has been called away due to the death of a relative.

Saturday night, December 19, the freshman class jumped into a sled determined to have a sleigh ride. They rode around until they were satisfied they had enough spills for one evening. After the ride they went to the school house where chili, crackers, cocoa and cake were served.

Mr. Suenkel received a letter from Mr. Riddle some time ago. Mr. Riddle says that he is enjoying his work very much, and that he has a splendid community and student body to work with. He also writes, "Give my best regards to friends in Genesee."

Snow Continues to Fall.

Snow which fell Monday afternoon and evening was whipped around in a near-blizzard in the Genesee section Monday night and in some places the roads were drifted to such an extent that auto travel is impossible. The main highways are in fine shape but the other roads are giving trouble. Wednesday John Kluss and Kermit Hove solicited those living along highways in Highway District No. 1, and plowed roads open with the Caterpillar and district snow plow.

Tuesday night turned cold with the mercury hovering close to zero, but Wednesday morning higher temperatures were recorded, and Thursday was warmer, with snow falling.

Ed Blume on Honor Roll.

Records of the Lewiston Normal reveal the information that Ed Blume is one of 55 students out of 390 to have his name placed on the honor roll of that institution for the first quarter which ended December 4. To be eligible for this honor a student has to maintain a B grade in all studies for 15 credit hours.

Stiff Penalty for Drunken Driver.

Justice of the Peace, Woeflen, of Lewiston, sentenced Robert Ezekiel, Indian, Lapwai, to six months in jail and assessed him in additional $300 in fines, for his part in a mad rush through the Lewiston Main street. He was accompanied by two other Indians, one who drew 90 days in the bastile, while the other was fined $100 and costs. The party of three were traveling from Lapwai to Lewiston and were being forced to higher speeds by federal agents, Traffic Officer Clark apprehending the trio as they sped 40 miles an hour through the heart of Lewiston. A small quantity of liquor was found in the car.

PFOST INSTRUCTS TRAFFIC OFFICERS TO ENFROCE LAWS

Traffic Officer Harry Clark, who was in Genesee Tuesday, showed a letter from his chief, Commissioner of Law Enforcement Pfost, in which were instructions that regulations pertaining to automobile license plates must be strictly enforced this year. While Idaho residents who previously purchased license plates in 1931 do not have to be in a hurry to secure their plates for 1932, those now residents of Idaho, but driving cars with out-of-state plates, will be required to purchase the new plates and have them properly displayed on and after January 1, 1932. The former automobile and truck owners are permitted to drive their vehicles until March 31 of the coming year, the new plates being necessary April 1.

The letter also states that plates must be in proper positions on the vehicle, that is both plates must be in plain view, the rear one especially, which is required to be so located as to be illuminated by the rear light; and both plates must be easy to read at a distance of 100 feet.

Commercial truck licenses also will be required of those who haul merchandise produce or livestock for hire, the cost of the extra plate for commercial vehicles being fifty per cent additional to the base cost of the truck license.

FORMER GENESEE GIRL IS NOW AT PANAMA CITY

Synneve Eikum, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Eikum of Lewiston, and a sister of John Eikum of Genesee, is now at Panama City, Republic of Panama, where she will, under governmental instructions, establish and supervise a large nursery hospital. The last word from her was received while she was at Ancon, Canal Zone, where she stopped enroute.

Miss Eikum formerly lived near Genesee, and moved to Lewiston with her parents. Ten years ago she left Lewiston and served for five years with the John D. Rockefeller foundation at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, which service being satisfactory, led to the appointment to her new position, being highly recommended by the U. S. war department.

Bert Wishard Comes Down Town.

Bert Wishard, who underwent operations recently at the Potlatch hospital, and who for a time was in a critical condition, has been home a week, and Tuesday morning made his first trip down town.

HERBERT MARTINSON TRIES RAISING NEW VARIETY PEAS

A test plot of slightly more than three acres has been sown to a winter variety of peas by Herbert Martinson in the Thorncreek section. The peas were furnished by Clyde Manring, and are something new to the Palouse, although grown successfully in Austria where the strain was developed, and is now a popular cover and pasture crop in the southwestern states, which section is now paying a premium for seed grown in northern climates, which develops a hardier seed and plant.

Sufficient seed was obtained for about five acres, but the peas were sown thicker than is customary. At the present time there is attached to the sown peas roots about four inches long, yet there is no upward growth to the plants.

This variety of peas is almost black in color when whole, but when split and ready to enter commercial markets the product is of a rich yellow shade.

Should this test plot prove successful, there will be a demand for the seed, as farmers will be enabled to sow them in the fall when conditions are the best and the uncertainty of spring seeding will be done away with.

Wheat Markets Marking Time.

Portland—Wheat markets throughout the world marked time in a preholiday dullness, with prices showing a tendency to weaken at the close on December 21, although considerable firmness was shown on all breaks, in spite of the small volume of business.

Locally the situation was unchanged from last week. There was no export business or any outside interest in local wheat. Sellers are scarce and those inclined to buy find it rather difficult to cover.

There is considerable business being done with the Orient by Australia, reports showing that about 10 per cent of the available surplus has already been booked to Japan and China. Argentine expects the surplus to be not less than 128 million bushels in addition to a carryover of low grade old wheat. It is believed that some of the European importing countries will be in the market after the first of the year, but this is doubtful.

There were unconfirmed rumors of Germany booking rye, barley and wheat with the Soviet in exchange for farm machinery and while not confirmed there is still active chartering at the southern Soviet ports.

Tuesday Card Club.

Mrs. Fred Nagel entertained the Pinochle Club Tuesday afternoon, when five tables were at play. Prizes were awarded Mrs. W. W. Burr, high and Mrs. E. H. Field, low Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Lena Ouse and Miss Hazel Ouse of Lewiston; Miss Floy Hummel and Miss Mary Wardrobe of Spokane. Mrs. E. D. Pederson will entertain in two weeks.

In listing the names of the newly installed officers of Eastern Star, the name of Mrs. Edith Alexander was omitted as organist, she being reappointed. Mrs. Alexander furnished the music for the joint installation of Masons and Eastern Stars.

Mrs. Johanna Christensen and Mrs. Emma Evans left Monday evening from Lewiston for points in California to spend the winter months.

Sanford Evans had a narrow escape Wednesday evening of last week when the sled on which he was riding collided with a car driven by Hugo Manderfeld. Mr. Manderfeld saw the sled come onto the road in time to slow up somewhat, but in doing so he turned his car over and breaking a wheel, to avoid running directly over the boy and sled. Sanford escaped with only a few minor scratches and a bad scare. He was coasting down the hill which intersects the highway at the Flomer homes in the west part of town.

Miss Margaret Becker, who teaches in Clarkston, is home for the holidays to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Becker.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shirrod took Mrs. Christensen to Lewiston Monday from which place she started for California. On the return to Genesee, the Shirrod car turned about half around on the spiral highway, and was headed toward Lewiston. It was necessary to put on chains before the car could be safely turned up the hill. Coming from their place into Genesee that same evening they found the car driven by Mrs. Barney Meyer off the road near the Ernest Becker ranch. Mrs. Meyer stated it was the fourth time the car had gone into a ditch since leaving Tekoa, where the Meyer family now lives.

Miss Marjorie Linehan of Walla Walla, is spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Linehan. Marjorie is employed at St. Mary's hospital in Walla Walla as a graduate nurse.

C. Sanders of Pocatello. Prizes at cards later were won by Mrs. Harold Haymond and Guy Wicks, high, and Mrs. Walter Jain and Harold Haymond, low, with a guest favor for Mrs. Wicks and Mrs. Sanders.

J. Rosenstein Likes the News.

J. Rosenstein, former merchant of Genesee, who now resides at Los Angeles, wants his Genesee News on scheduled time. He made a change of residence during the Fall, and for some reason when the change of address was made there was an error. Mr. Rosenstein asked for the several numbers he missed and they were gladly mailed to him.

During the Christmas holidays he wrote: "The five back copies of the News have been received and we want to thank you so much for your kindness. It was lovely of you to send them, and we have enjoyed reading them. We really do not like to miss even one copy of the News as we are always very much interested in reading about our old friends and Genesee.

Gov. Ross Has Another Task.

Governor Ross is to have another opportunity to use the political axe. Not necessarily to lop off a department head but to cut down expenses. From all accounts the state game department has within the last few months, spent about $20,000 more than it has taken in, which is progress going backward.

The expenses incurred by this department have set a new record, all of which brings up the question "why?"

The receipts of the game department are big. The sum received from April 1 to November 13, is $147,560.42, with expenditures of $173,300.12, with no great amount of this sum going into permanent improvements, in fact less than the average.

The news is to be none too welcome to the sportsmen of the state. True, the department is not supported through taxation but through the sale of licenses, so after all, it is the sportsmen who are most interested and there are a great number of them as a considerable percentage of the people of the state take out a license during each year.

The governor jumped all over the state highway department for alleged excessive expenditures, when it is stated a saving could have been made. If that is true of the state highway department and the facts are correct in the state game department, it would seem the latter is entitled to the attention of the chief executive of the state.—Idaho Falls Post Register.

SCHOOL NEWS.

"Christmas" by Rowena Nordby.

The Christmas stars are shining bright,
The tinsel is a bright as light;
The dolls and balls are given away
To boys and girls who love to play.
The Christmas bells are calling;
The Christmas tree is gone
And the sleigh bells were rung;
Everyone said, "Merry Christmas"
And I did too,
Because I had a good time
When the sleigh bells chimed.

"Christmas Eve" by Dorothy Follett

The silver stars were gleaming,
The moon was bright and round;
The snow like crystals seeming,
Covered all the ground.

The town was still and quiet,
But I heard a little sound.
This was the childrens' night of nights
For Santa was in town.

He had come to the house on the corner;
Two children live there you know;
Ted wanted a book of Jack Horner,
And Nan a whistle to blow.

Then, his presents delivered,
He jumps in his sleigh,
And at least near the dawn
He's again on his way.

"Santa" by Richard Sampson.

Santa is big, round and jolly;
His small wife is named Molly,
And she can sure cook by-golly!
She cooks pies, cookies and cakes,
While Santa makes many toys and rakes.
Santa's shop is made of candy sticks
But is just as warm as a house of bricks.
Then on Christmas eve,
He loads his sleigh to leave;
Santa gives the deer some hay;
He throws out the lash and they're away.
And when the children get up, they cry,
"Santa's been here!
Santa's been here!
Santa, Santa, dear."

Primary Room.

The primary room had the following program:

Song, "Away in a Manger."

Each one gave a recitation they learned for the Sunday school programs.

Song, "Little Town of Bethlehem."

Christmas prayer, Della Stout and Marjorie Springer.

Jean Schooler told a Christmas story, "Three Christmas Bells.

A summary of the following pictures studied this month was given: "Holy Night," "Sistine Madonna," "Arrival of the Shepherds."

Song, "Silent Night."

After the program we exchanged gifts, and of course, everyone wanted to show their presents.

Destroy All Chain Letters.

Lord Robert Baden Powell, founder of the Boy Scouts, appealed to scouts throughout the world to destroy any "chain letter" that comes into their hands instead of passing it on. Describing the "chain letter" practice as senseless and dangerous, he said: "Letters I have received have threatened me with all sorts of disasters if I disobeyed their instructions. I have destroyed scores of them in my life, but the disasters have never come."

A barrage of chain letters fell on Genesee about six weeks ago, and those who received the threatening missles, not believing as did the writers, cast them hurriedly into a waste basket until such time as they could be used to kindle a fire.

Letters received here all emanated from one source, on the Belgian battlefields, so we were informed. Each person receiving such a letter was asked to write letters to nine friends and in turn request them to write to nine of their friends.

"Chain letters," however fascinating to some belong to the days of witchcraft, and possessing no more sensible ideas, should not be permitted to clutter up the otherwise, useful mail service.

A Religious Error.

Tompkins was passing the offertory bag in church when a woman hurried in. She walked quickly down the aisle, stopped by Tompkins, dropped a penny in the bag, and moved to a seat.

The bag bearer was at the last pew when the woman came hustling back. She snatched a penny from the bag, and was passing out of the church door when Tompkins grabbed her by are arm.

"I say," he muttered, "why in the name of goodness do you come in here, drop a coin in the bag, and then take it out again and leave?"

The woman shook him off indignantly.

"I'm in the wrong church," she said."—Labor.

THE GENESEE NEWS

VOL. XLIII — GENESEE, LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 8, 1932 — NO. 29

SIDE ROADS TO BE CLEARED WITH STATE SNOW PLOWS

Believing that snow removal equipment belonging to the state could be used to clear mail routes and other roads leading into state and federal highways of the drifted snow, which had made automobile travel impossible for several weeks, a letter was written to Governor C. Ben Ross at the request of people who were affected most by snow, asking that he direct the highway department in this district to assist in opening the roads mentioned.

The following answer was received in response:

"Boise, Idaho, Dec. 29, 1931.

"Mr. E. D. Pederson,
The Genesee News
Genesee, Idaho.

"Dear Mr. Pederson:

"Received your letter this morning relative to clearing roads in the Genesee section other than the state highway.

"It is my desire to have the men with what equipment they have at their disposal, clear the snow off as many miles of road as possible, and after the state highway is cleared and ready for traffic, I can see no reason why our men could not clear side roads and I am so advising them. I might say to you, however, that in the past it has not been the policy of the highway department to clear the snow off the roads other than the state highway. When I called this matter to the attention of the State Highway Department they objected to it on account of establishing a precedent. They said to me that if we started clearing the side roads there would be no limit to the requests that would come in from the residents of given territories. I answered them by saying that we had a certain amount of equipment in the different sections with sufficient amount of labor to operate the equipment and I could see no reason why these men should not put in their time after the main road had been cleared, in clearing the side roads which are traveled by our citizens and taxpayers, and that it would not need to create a precedent, that we could say to the people that we would clear as many roads as possible with the equipment and labor we have at hand. That will be our policy in your community.

"I hope you will give to the people through your paper, the policy as outlined above.

"Yours very truly,
"C. BEN ROSS,
"Governor."

New Stamps on Sale.

The local postoffice now has on sale the new stamps, the design bearing a likeness of George Washington, and they commemorate the bi-centennial anniversary of the birth of our first president. They are in twelve denominations, half-cent to 10-cent, inclusive, and will be on sale during the year 1932.

Genesee postoffice rates in the third class and showed receipts in 1931 of $3,288.28 which in $92.01 less than last year. This includes only the sale of postage stamps, newspaper postage, excess postage and box rent and does not include money orders sold.

Death Claims W. T. Bumpass.

Walter Thomas Bumpass, age 33, former Genesee resident, passed away Sunday at the Sacred Heart hospital in Spokane following a recent operation for appendicitis. A rupture complicated the case and peritonitis had developed.

Mr. Bumpass was in the employ of the Spokane Daily Chronicle as circulation manager for the city, and resided at E 703 Thirty Fourth street, making his home for the last eight years in Spokane, six years of that time being devoted to working circulation for the Chronicle. Mr. Bumpass was born at Harrington, Wash., and lived in and near Genesee for a number of years before going to Spokane.

In addition to his widow, he leaves one daughter, Dorothy; his mother, Mrs. Belle Bumpass of Los Angeles; six sisters, Mrs. Lena Grebe of Portland, Mrs. Mabel Hampton, Mrs. Lola Meader and Miss Geraldine of Los Angeles, Mrs. Marie Paris of Lewiston, Idaho, and Mrs. Mildred Caldwell of Vancouver, Wash.; also five brothers, Claude of Spokane, Cecil of Everett, Loren of Pocatello, Idaho, and Lester and Francis of Los Angeles.

NO ORDERS RECEIVED AS YET TO CLEAR LOCAL HIGHWAYS

Governor C. Ben Ross, in his letter of December 29, assured those living in the Genesee community that some of the roads other than those maintained by the state would be cleared of snowdrifts, employing state owned equipment. Governor Ross, is his answer to a letter was heartily in favor of using state machinery to clear as many miles of road as possible, and he stated that he was advising state highway men accordingly. After waiting about a week for the orders to come, a telegram was sent to Boise to the Governor Wednesday in hope that he would issue his orders that work would start. No orders were received at 3:15 Thursday afternoon.

An attempt was also made to get in touch with the district engineer at Lewiston Wednesday, but office employes stated he was in Boise.

Those living on the side roads are gradually digging themselves out of the drifts, but there are many roads to be opened up, especially roads traveled by rural letter carriers.

Ed Vanouck Recovering.

Ed Vanouck, who returned Monday from Spokane, was taken suddenly ill late the same night, and Tuesday morning his condition was such that he remained in his bed. Medical attention disclosed that he was suffering from internal poisoning, due it is thought, to water which he drank at Pullman.

His condition at present is encouraging, though he is confined to his home.

Rimrockers Dance Coming Up.

A decision was reached at the Legion meeting Wednesday night to hold the annual Rimrockers' Ball on Friday evening, January 15. There was little business to come before the meeting. It was made known at this gathering, however, that the membership is increasing.

FARMERS UNION CONVENTION ADOPTS MANY RESOLUTIONS

In addition to the following resolutions adopted at the recent meeting of the Farmers Union in Coeur d'Alene, changes were made in the by-laws, the principal one being to reduce the initiation fee to $2.00, and also changing the annual meeting date to the second Thursday and Friday of each December.

Legislative Committee

The legislature committee reported as follows:

Whereas, a terrific drive will be made at this session of congress to abolish the Farm Marketing Act, and whereas, the said farm marketing act was only adopted after many years of struggle on the part of the farmers of this nation, and,

Whereas, the national board of trade, the grain dealers associations and the ancient enemies of farm cooperation are leading this fight to discredit and wreck said Farm Marketing Act, and,

Whereas the said Farm Marketing Act may have developed some small defects that should be remedied by amendment, so as to make the act more workable and of increasing benefit to agriculture, therefore, be it

Resolved, that we go on record as opposing any efforts to repeal said Farm Marketing Act and that any amendments proposed and acted on to improve the bill be only those submitted by friends of agriculture, and be it further

Resolved that copies of this recommendation be sent to the congressional delegations both of Washington and Idaho with the request that they work to protect the farmers' interest in the matter of action on this bill.

Whereas "The Power to Tax is the Power to Destroy," and

Whereas, under the laws of the states of Washington and Idaho, the power to levy taxes is vested in the legislatures of the two states; in our school districts and their boards of directors; in our county governments through their boards of commissioners; through our highway districts and township districts through their boards of directors and by various and sundry acts the power to tax is vested in other taxing units, and

Whereas, the combination of the taxes levied by the states, school districts, counties, road, township and other taxing units has so increased as to bring about actual confiscation of the taxpayers' property, and

Whereas, the ability of the taxpayer to pay his taxes has decreased through decreased incomes at least twenty per cent, and believing that real tax reduction can only come thru the curtailing of the power of the different taxing units to levy taxes.

Therefore be it Resolved: That we go on record favoring the enactment of legislation by the legislatures of the states of Washington and Idaho, that will reduce the millage taxing powers of the different taxing units by twenty per cent, and that the boards of county commissioners be empowered to adjust salaries under their jurisdiction in keeping with their reduced levying powers.

Whereas, under the tax statutes of the states of Washington and Idaho and under the recently enacted income tax statutes of the state of Idaho, money invested in the capital shares of the banks of the two states is exempt from taxation, and

Whereas, by such discrimination of the taxing powers of the two states, a gross injustice is done those engaged in farming and other industries, and

Whereas, under the present tax laws the tax burden is unequally distributed,

Therefore be it Resolved: That we favor the immediate repeal of the tax laws of Washington and Idaho, and the enactment in their stead of legislation that will tax all incomes, from whatever source received on a fair and equal basis to the end that the burden on real property be relieved.

Whereas, under the tax statutes of the states of Washington and Idaho, the burden of taxation between the different counties, is unequally distributed by the state boards of Equalization, and

Whereas, Through the operation of the laws as regulating the powers of the boards to equalize taxes, great injustice and difficulties are experineced by different counties through the rulings of the said boards.

Therefore be it Resolved and Recommended: That we favor the enact-

NEWS OF INTEREST FROM GENESEE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

High School

Teachers of the public school have reported a very pleasant Christmas vacation. Miss Nelson spent her vacation in Seattle. She also visited in Portland and Tacoma. Miss Rondeau reported a nice time, having spent her vacation in Coeur d'Alene and at French Gulch. Miss Dwyer reported an enjoyable vacation in Portland. Mrs. Harris spent an enjoyable Christmas vacation in Moscow. She also visited Grangeville. Mr. Tupker spent Christmas visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Evans.

January 8, Genesee will play the Orofino quintet at Orofino. January 12, Lapwai visits Genesee. Both the girls and boys will play. January 15 Genesee will play Culdesac at Genesee. On the same evening the girls' team will play St. Bonifice (Uniontown) at Genesee, and the Genesee second team will play the boys from St. Bonifice. The games will start at 7:00 o'clock.

Junior Prom.

January 21 the Juniors will hold their annual Prom. Walt Alen's orchestra will furnish the music.

Girl Students Excel

Statistics for the second six weeks' grades have been compiled. The girls have made better showings than the boys, the ranking of the classes being as follows: Seniors, 2.51; sophomores, 2.21; juniors, 2.17 and freshmen, 1.96. The average for the school was 2.19 which was an improvement over the first six weeks when the school average was 2.04. The first six weeks 12.5 per cent of the grades were F's, while the second six weeks this was lowered to 11.1 per cent. The first six weeks 12.8 per cent made A's while in the second six weeks 15.8 per cent made A's. These gains are encouraging but the total results are still far below where we should like for them to be.

Seventh and Eighth Grades.

These students have a perfect spelling record for the month of December: Grant Loncosty, William Bolser, Glen Mayer, Emma Louise Vanouck, Genevieve Harris, Neyva Erickson, Bueletta Nordby and Margaret Springer.

Room decorations for January are being put up by Emma Louise Vanouck.

The eighth grade will take the state history examination on January 21. On January 22, the seventh grade will write on physiology. A few students will take the make-up examinations in geography.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

The sixth grade dramatized their reading story Tuesday. The grade wrote stories about their Christmas presents they received.

Third and Fourth Grades

We have been busy writing letters of thanks for our many Christmas gifts.

The class received a very interesting letter from Marjorie Rader telling of her school life in Walla Walla. Marjorie says that they have the Platoon System there. The fourth grade is going to write and ask her to explain this system for them.

Jimmie Springer made us a frieze of snowmen for the top of the blackboard. A realistic winter effect was obtained by covering them with artificial snow.

We have been taking imaginary journeys to the homes of children in distant lands. We have been visiting Bombo in the Belgian Congo. Next we plan to visit Nandla and her people on Baffin bay.

Wilma Herman won the Skeezix tooth brush holder, brush and paste for making the best colored health poster. Two other prizes are being offered at this time for similar work.

First and Second Grades.

The first and second grade folks were pleasantly surprised to find a library table, which Mr. Tupker had made in the room after vacation.

The Prophylactic Tooth Brush company sent a toothbrush, painted picture and pictures for each boy and girl in the room, to be painted or colored. The child who makes the best one, will receive the toothbrush. A health motto came with the picture:

"Brush your teeth each morn and night,
If you want to keep them clean and bright."

Jean Schooler changed the rhyme to:

"I brush my teeth every morning and night,
That's why they are so shiny and bright."

Horses Affected Mysteriously.

Twin Falls News: Dr. W. W. White, Boise, Idaho state veterinarian was a guest at the Perrine hotel recently, following a preliminary investigation of a mysterious malady affecting horses in the vicinity of King Hill. In one band of 13 horses owned by one man, Dr. White said 10 were stricken by the malady and died, and considerable losses have been caused in other bands of horses in that vicinity. Dr. White did not attempt to diagnose the malady on the basis of his preliminary investigation but said the symptoms described to him resembled those of swamp fever or pernicious anaemia.

HISTORY OF TAXATION WILL BE PREPARED FOR READERS

Boise—A series of informative articles dealing with the history of taxation in Idaho will be prepared for publication under the direction of the state chamber of commerce during the coming year, it is announced by L. P. Parsons, secretary.

It will be the purpose of the articles, the secretary said, to throw light upon the haphazard and piecemeal evolution of the state's present revenus system with hopes that the public can be brought to a full realization of the acute need for tax reform.

Appropriations Increase.

Since Idaho attained the dignity of statehood in 1890 the biennial appropriations of her legislatures have increased from $385,851 to $5,859,237.-83, which is evidence that the promising infant of state government has outgrown even the fondest expectations of its parents, the framers of the constitutions.

The state chamber articles will seek to trace out this phenomenal growth in government costs with a view to discovering, insofar as is possible, the reasons for the various increases and the functions which they serve. They will seek to compare, where possible, the cost to the taxpayers with the value of the services to the public, bringing the two factors of cost and value together in the light of their true relationship.

Poor Bargains.

There can be but little question that Idaho, as have all other states and the nation as well, has purchased some poor bargains in the form of government, the little or no benefits being all out of proportion to the high costs. The history of governments is that once a department or a bureau or an activity is initiated, it becomes because of its own inertia, extremely difficult to abolish. Much of our present tax burden may be traced, it is thought, to this difficulty.

The state chamber articles will be prepared for publication by Glenn Balch, newspaper and magazine writer of several years' experience, who will endeavor to present authentic information in a lively readable style, well suited to general consumption by the public.

Buys Schlueter Property.

Frank Willoughby has purchased the home of Mrs. Theo. Schlueter in the west part of Genesee, and will make repairs, made necessary when the house was damaged by fire recently.

GRAIN MARKETS STEADY AS YEAR ENDS; TRADING LIGHT

The grain markets were generally steady at the close of 1931, but trading was of small volume and prices of all grains, with the exception of barley and durum wheat, were well below those of a year ago, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Marketings for the season have been unusually small, but demand has been correspondingly light, with the result that market stocks have held at relatively high levels, particularly for wheat.

Wheat

Reviewing the market situation, the past year has shown many unusual developments. A year ago wheat prices were considered low, when No. 2 hard winter wheat at Kansas City was selling at 67 to 70c and No. 1 dark northern spring at Minneapolis at 76c per bushel. These stabilized prices were maintained well up into June, but with the arrival of the new crop no further stabilization was attempted and prices worked sharply downward until early in October, when ordinary protein No. 2 hard winter wheat sold as low as 35c per bushel at Kansas City and No. 1 dark northern was bringing only 60 to 65c per bushel in Minneapolis. Wheat futures at Chicago reached the lowest point in the history of that market and prices at Liverpool were claimed to be the lowest in three centuries.

At the beginning of 1931 world stocks of wheat were unusually large as a result of good harvests in Russia, India and Australia and incresed supplies in the United States and Canada. On top of these large stocks came the new crop, first a record winter wheat outturn in the U. S. and slightly larger harvests in Europe.

The large supplies in the United States, together with the restricted demand from Europe, were largely responsible for the declining prices in August and September. Unsettled economic conditions in Europe, high tariffs in such important deficit countries as Germany, Italy and France, together with drastic milling restrictions requiring high utilization of native wheat, all contributed to a slack inquiry from importing countries. Towards the last of August Russia began shipping out unusually large amounts of wheat and this was af additional weakening influence in the situation.

One bright spot in the picture was the relatively large world shipments during the early part of the new crop year. While Europe was not taking large quantities of foreign wheat, areas outside of Europe, including Central American countries, Brazil, the Orient and some countries of Africa, took much larger amounts than usual, with the result that world shipments established a new record for the period August through October. Cheap ocean freights and the extremely low prices of wheat both favored the increased movement of wheat last Fall.

During October the wheat market strengthened and prices tended upward. While the advance of around 25c per bushel which took place between October 5 and November 9 was ment of legislation by the legislatures of the states of Washington and Idadesigned to raise revenues from certain designated sources, the entire proceeds of which shall be used for the operation of the business of state government, and that all revenue needed for the operation of the counties and other taxing units be derived through direct taxation by these taxing units of the property under their jurisdiction.

We further recommend that the power of equalization of property values in the different counties be designated by laws to be enacted, as being the exclusive powers vested in the Boards of County Commissioners.

We contend that these men are in closer touch with conditions existing in their different counties and are better qualified to bring justice between taxpayers than a state board is ably to judge our conditions.

Whereas, the purchasing power of approximately 50 per cent of the entire population, owing in large part to the depreciation in value of silver as a commodity and as a medium of money, and

Whereas, said depreciation in the value of silver has been due in large part to its discontinuance by several countries as a medium of exchange in trade, and

Whereas, it has depreciated the value of our agricultural commodities by reducing opportunities to export the same to China, India and Latin American countries, through the ports of the Pacific Coast, owing to depreciation in the buying power of those nations, and

Whereas, the question of the stabilization of silver is now before congress for action;

Be it Resolved: That we recommend to our congressional delegation that they work for the speedy passage of the necessary legislation designed to bring around about a stabilized basis for the coinage of silver as a coin and medium of exchange for its use in commerce and trade.

Resolutions Committee

The resolutions committee reported as follows:

Whereas, the deplorable condition in which we find agriculture in our districts of Washington and Idaho as well as the United States in general, and which condition has existed for a considerable length of time and still exists, and

Whereas, we maintain that agriculture is the basic industry upon which other industries must depend for their ultimate success, which success me maintain can not be realized to any appreciable degree until agriculture has been placed upon a solid foundation, and

Whereas, we find our national officers concentrating their efforts to better our condition, and recently have so ably represented us in Washington, D. C., in efforts in our behalf, including the equalization fee on all farm commodities of which there are exportable surpluses, and

Whereas, we further find them putting forth their best efforts to secure restoration to the government of the right of issuance of its own currency; the fixing of the values thereof, and the distribution of gigantic fortunes by inheritance and income taxes to thus lower the ad valorem taxes of our people, which taxes have reached undue proportions;

Therefore be it Resolved, that we, the members of Washington and Northern Idaho in annual convention assembled in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, this 9th day of December, 1931, do go on record as commending our national officers for their efforts in behalf of the measures hereinbefore mentioned, and we especially wish to show our appreciation of the efforts of our national president, John A. Simpson, for so splendidly representing us in bringing together all forces of American agriculture to the end that our Farmers Union is brought nearer to a successful conclusion.

We further respectfully recommend that some message of our confidence be conveyed to said officers.

Whereas, there appears to be an ever-increasing tendency on the part of farm labor to attempt to hold employers liable for injuries received while thus employed, and

Whereas, rates of insurance in existing companies doing business within our states have ever been increasing until they have become prohibitive to a vast majority of our farmers, and

Whereas, the Farmers Union has no insurance covering aforesaid contingencies, therefore,

Be it Resolved: That we go on record favoring the establishment of an insurance department covering such liability hereinbefore mentioned, and respectfully recommend to our executive board that they fully investigate the desirability and feasibility of establishing such an insurance department with full powers to act in the premises.

Whereas, the Farmers Union of Oklahoma, Colorado, Oregon and California, in cooperation with the Granges of Washington, Oregon, California, Idaho, Colorado, Oklahoma and Kansas, have been instrumental in the organization, promotion and fostering of a suitable, reliable, satisfactory and economical automobile insurance, known as the Farmers Automobile Insurance Exchange, and

Whereas: The farm organization above named have, by and through this automobile insurance connection, been able to furnish an additional service to their members which service rendered to their members an annual saving in automobile insurance of many thousands of dollars, and

Whereas: This same automobile insurance connection is now available to the members of the Washington-Idaho unit of the Farmers Union, without any cost or obligations on the part of our own organization, therefore,

Be it Resolved that we, the delegates of the 23rd annual convention of the Washington-Idaho division of the Farmers Union in meeting assembled this ninth day of December, 1931 do hereby approve and adopt this same Automobile Insurance, The Farmers Automobile Insurance Exchange, and recommend to our members this additional service for their consideration and use when needed or desired.

Gold and Silver

Have you ever stopped to wonder why the Bible puts silver first? "Silver and gold have I none. There have been times in the history of the world when silver was rarer and more valuable, ounce for ounce, than gold.

Yet gold was almost certainly the first metal to attract the attention of man. It is beautiful; it is found in a comparatively pure state; it is easy to work; it lasts forever.

The transmutation of baser metals into gold was the dream of alchemists in the Middle Ages; men still pursue that phantom hope; science cannot yet say that the thing is impossible.

There is such a lot of it, but so much other stuff is mixed with it. It has been estimated that there are ten billion tons of gold in the water of the oceans.

The greatest ten-year, world-production of gold was from 1911 to 1920, a little over four billion dollars. The average annual production for four hundred years has been only forty-six million dollars. The year of 1912 was one of the big ones, $467,000,000. In the United States gold production grows less; it fell from a hundred millions in 1915 to fifty millions in 1925.

Mining in Idaho may be said to have begun in 1862; for at least thirty years it was our principal industry. For three or four years it was placer gold, then it was gold quartz for quite a while. For more than forty years last past, it has been lead. Even in 1930, with gold higher in price than anything else, we mined less than half a million dollars of it. We got nearly as much copper as we did gold. Idaho produced three and one-half million dollars each of silver and zinc in 1930, and nearly fifteen million dollars worth of lead.

Silver and gold; seems as if they were intended to be together from the beginning. In our own early days, the gold from the Owyhees had so much silver in it that it brought only about ten dollars an ounce.

The richest single gold-silver proposition in the world was the Comstock Lode in Nevada, discovered in 1859. It lasted over thirty years, producing two hundred millions in gold and three hundred millions in silver.

The man who gave his name to that great ledge was Henry Comstock; they froze him out in Nevada; he came to Idaho in 1864. Had a claim and a little saw mill up at Alturas; four years later he was in Butte. Working for wages; his darkening mind filled with dreams of the past. Getting older, going down and down; dreaming that he still owned the Comstock Lode. Late one night in 1870 he awoke from his dreams; took a look at life; saw that silver and gold he had none. Nor friends, nor love, nor hope.

Next morning they found his body in a hole back of the Butte jail; neither silver nor gold in his pockets, but with a leaden bullet in his brain. He had shot himself. The county buried him.

The White Metal.

When the precious metals were forced up through the granite shell that once encased the earth, gold kept very much to itself. It combines with but few other elements; it keeps itself aloof. Silver is not so proud; it mixes or combines with a number of other substances, notably sulphur.

Comparatively little silver is mined for itself alone. The mines in Ontario, Canada, are practically the only ones worked primarily for silver; everywhere else, silver is a by-product. It is a product, usually of secondary importance, in the extraction of lead, gold, copper or zinc.

Gold, as originally mined, almost always contains some silver. Galena, from which most of the world's lead comes, is a chemical combination of lead and sulphur, or lead sulphide; it always contains silver.

There are mines in Austria whose ores, rich in baser metals, contain only one-twentieth of an ounce of silver per ton; small as it is in amount, the silver is saved because, in the process of extracting other metals, the silver practically separates itself without extra expense.

These two facts are so fundamentally characteristic of the whole silver mining business that we are repeating them, and pointing to their inevitable conclusion:

The production of silver is of an importance secondary to that of the metal with which it is found; it is rarely mined for itself alone.

Nothing is gained by ignoring or discarding the silver content of ores, no matter what its value, bteause it does not add materially to expense to save it.

The conclusion is that the amount of silver produced will always be regulated largely by the demand for and price of its associated metals, principally lead.

The United States formerly led the nations in the production of silver; in more recent years Mexico has had that honor. World production in a recent year was as follows:

Mexico, 90 million ounces; United States, 65 million ounces; rest of the world, 85 million ounces; total, 240 million ounces.

Worth in that year, $180,000,000.

Of the total amount, considerably less than half was coined, the larger part being consumed in manufacture and the arts. India and China together furnished the greatest market, using more than one-third of the total world production.

Happy New Year.

To each and every one of the 445,032 people of the State We Live In, especially to the 141,273 school children and their 4,630 teachers;

No matter on which one of the 53 million acres, the 84,313 sections of land you live; whether at Bliss, which is the center, or at Eastport, in Boundary counter, which is farthest from the center;

Whether you live on White Cloud Peak, 1,150 feet above the top of Mt. Hood, or at Lewiston, only 728 feet above the sea;

You may live in Idaho county, the largest, or Payette, the smallest county in the state, or Canyon, the most thickly, or Owyhee, the most sparsely settled;

You may even live in one of the 33 that you are one of the 74 per cent rural population: it may in one of these ten largest towns in Idaho:

Pocatello	16,471
Idaho Falls	9,429
Lewiston	9,403
Twin Falls	8,787
Coeur d'Alene	8,297
Nampa	8,206
Caldwell	4,974
Moscow	4,476
Kellogg	4,124

You may even lie in one of the 33 other towns of more than 1,000 population;

You may be engaged in the production of Idaho's greatest single commodity, which is hay;

You may be a miner, and helping to produce our over 22 million dollars in metals per year; or a farmer, and doing your share in the 200 million dollar production of that industry;

Wherever you live, or however, this column wishes you a happy and prosperous year in 1932. Times have not been good, we all know that; we have heard it often enough. It is rather negative consolation, perhaps, that there has been less real distress in Idaho than anywhere else in the civilized world. It is going to be better here, too, and right soon.

Good luck, my friend; good luck, and Happy New Year.

SPEAKER BOTTOLFSEN IN FAVOR SPECIAL SESSION

Calling a special session of the Idaho legislature offers an excellent opportunity for the state to overcome certain obstacles which at present exist to the detriment of numerous small taxing units. Economic conditions are such that to remove some of the barriers prohibiting the exercise of good business judgment, would be warranted as an emergency during the year 1932, and thus permit the people and their taxing units to get back on their feet.

We repeat the thought expressed in this column last week, that if politics were adjourned for the time being, and if Governor Ross were to call into conference representatives of the State Grange, State Chamber of Commerce, republican and democratic parties and State Board of Education and a program of relief were agreed upon, the legislature could in a week's time enact into law measures tending to relieve the present situation in Idaho to a certain advantage.

The present law prohibits boards of county commissioners from accepting taxes unless payment of penalty and interest is added to delinquencies. An investigation in this county alone, discloses the belief that between ten and fifteen thousand dollars in delinquent taxes would promptly be paid if the penalty and interest were removed on these delinquencies. Butte county is one of the smallest of the 44 political subdivisions in the state. If the proportion of collectible sums were on the same ratio in other counties, just think what it would mean. And from the length of delinquent tax lists which we have observed in our exchanges in the past few weeks, there are few, if any, counties in which this would not offer inducement to pay.

Using Butte county again as an illustration, let us remind you that within the past week the school at Berenice was forced to close on account of the law. The district is short of funds. The teacher was willing to accept registered warrants in payment of his salary; he was willing to gamble that in time the district would be financially able to liquidate this obligation. The trustees were perfectly willing to continue school under this plan, but the law prohibits the county superintendent of schools to sign warrants after a certain percentage of the district's assessed valuation has been issued in warrants. There are several hundred rural schools in Idaho at this very date facing similar trying conditions. A session of the legislature might for the next year, declare the present law inoperative, to permit the schools to continue. In the Berenice district 30 pupils were deprived of schooling in their own district. The law says they shall go to school, but the law also says that the county superintendent of schools shall not permit the district to exceed a certain indebtedness—and there you are.

A special session of the legislature, we believe, could remedy these matters with little expense providing an agreed program, adopted beforehand, were submitted for its ratification. In the belief that the members of the legislature are so patriotically inclined that they would serve a week for the payment of mileage, let us submit that the mileage expense of the last legislature totaled $6,778, of which $4,023 was paid to the representatives because of larger membership, and $2,755 to the senate members. A week's session, including the additional expenses for clerical assistance and other incidental expenses, under such an agreement, should not exceed $10,000. A good business deal—we would gladly admit.—Arco Advertiser.,C. A. Bottofsen, speaker of the house, editor.

News For Brides

It has long since been proved that canned foods retain their vitamins, since these are destroyed only by heating in the presence of oxygen, and canned foods are all cooked in hermetically sealed cans. But it has remained for Dr. Walter H. Eddy of Teachers College at Columbia University to specify a list of them on which present-day brides can rely to contain adequate amounts of vitamins A, B, C and G for health needs in her honeymoon "canned menu."

Here are the foods upon which Dr. Eddy stated in a recent address before the American Chemical Society that brides can rely:

Canned milk, every day.

Choice of tea meats: Roast beef, corned beef, tongue, potted meat, chicken, lamb stew, corned beef hash, sausage, veal loaf and chicken a la king.

Choice of seventeen vegetables: Spinach, peas, string beans, tomatoes, tomato juice, wax beans, baked beans, beets, corn, lima beans, sweet potatoes, hominy, carrots, okra, turnip greens, Brussels sprouts and mixed vegetables.

Choice of six fruits: Prunes, peaches, apricots, cherries, pineapples, apple sauce.

Canned brown bread and spaghetti.

Dessert: Canned plum pudding.

Based on Scientific Tests

The tests upon which these specific recommendations were made were based on rats. The rat experiments lasted for a year, which, Dr. Eddy said, was equivalent to about twenty-five years of human life. All the animals averaged better in weight than those fed on a stock diet, he said.*

ECONONMY IN GOVERNMENT IN IDAHO

By Fred E. Lukens
Secretary of State

County Consolidation.

There has been so much said about the advisability of county consolidation that it is well to give some consideration to the subject. About two years ago, one man who has for many years been familiar with Idaho and its problems suggested that the 44 counties of the state be consolidated into six counties. There has been so much agitation along this line that the last legislature passed a resolution calling for an amendment to the constitution so as to provide that counties might be consolidated upon the vote of two-thirds of the voters of each county affected. Thus people are thinking along this line and there can be no doubt that a program of the consolidation of counties would result in a decided reduction in the amount of taxes collected annually from the people.

This fact was recognized when the legislature at the time when the orgy of the creation of new counties was upon us, authorized the levying of a larger rate of taxation on counties with a small assessed valuation than counties with a large assessed valuation. Thus with the law as it is at present, if the assessed valuation is seven and one-half million dollars, the county may not levy more than forty cents for each one hundred dollars of valuation. If the valuation is less than this amount and more than five million dollars, the county may levy sixty cents, and if the valuation is less than five million dollars, the county may levy seventy-five cents on one hundred dollars. It is recognized that it costs the taxpayers more to support a small county than to support a large one. This is not only borne out in theory but in practice. For example, the county which has the largest population and the largest assessed valuation is Ada county. In 1931 this county levied the smallest tax rate for current expenses, namely, twenty-eight cents per one hundred dollars. On the other hand, the county with the smallest assessed valuation in the state, namely, Butte county, levied seventy-five cents per one hundred dollars.

A study of the valuations of all of the counties will illustrate this same fact and what applies to the levy for current expenses will also apply to the levy for other purposes. Only one conclusion can be drawn, namely that consolidation would bring about increased economy. It is recognized, however, that the people of the state are not yet convinced that they are not willing to pay the additional expense in order to have a county seat near home, and that the consolidation of counties now might be comparable to unscrambling eggs after they have been cooked. It is more difficult to accomplish it than it is to think about it and therefore, we recognize that for a long period of time some other means of bringing about economy is necessary. Therefore, suggestions have already been made that there be a redistricting of the state's court system and also that there be legislative districts which would coincide with the judicial districts. Thus people will be thinking along the line of consolidation.

It has also been suggested that there be one prosecuting attorney for each of these districts, thus eliminating thirty such officials, and that the office of probate judge should be abolished. These will result in tremendous economies but others are possible. Most of these lie in a reorganization of the system of county government. The writer suggests that Sections 5 and 6 of Article XVIII of the State Constitution be repealed or amended so that greater latitude may be given in the orgnzation of county governments. This will be discussed more at length in the next article.

Plan for County Government.

This article should be read in connection with the last one, which dealt with the subject of county consolidation. It is granted that reduction in the number of counties of the state is very difficult, inasmuch as it will require a vote of a large majority of all of the people affected by such combinations. Therefore, in order that economies may be brought about, some other means must be used. The most effective method lies in the simplification of county government.

In order to force this simplification, the first essential is the fixing of a maximum legal tax levy for county support. It has been shown that the larger counties, both in population and in taxable wealth, can support a county government with a levy of forty cents for each one hundred dollars of valuation or less. Twenty-three counties of the state do not levy more than this amount. The law should be amended to provide this, or even less, as the maximum levy for all counties, regardless of valuation. Naturally this will result in a revision of the set-up of county governments.

A few comparisons to business institutions may be of value. A large mercantile establishment has its various heads of departments, each of whom has a very definite responsibility. In a smaller store, however, the head of the institution is the head of every department. A railroad which operates a great many lines finds it necessary to have a larger overhead organization than a railroad which has only one line. The same is true of telephone companies, power companies and every kind of business institution. Why, then, should a county government of a county with a population of 1122, such as Clark county, have as many department heads for the conduct of its county business as does Ada county, which has a population of 37,925, or Bannock county with a population of 31,266? The suggestion was made in last week's article that Sections 5 and 6 of Article XVIII of the Constitution, which provides for uniformity in county government and also name the various county officers which shall exist, should be amended.

The Constitution should provide for the setting up of a commission form of government centered in a board of county commissioners of three members. The legislature could then set up a framework for the county government which would provide for four officers, namely, sheriff, county clerk, assessor and county school superintendent. It has already been suggested that the office of prosecuting attorney be made a district office and that the office of probate judge be abolished and his duties turned over to the district judge and clerk of the district court. The sheriff could take over the duties now performed by the coroner, the assessor could act as tax collector, while the treasurer's duties would be assigned to the county clerk. It should be understood, however, that in the counties having less than a definite valuation of property, let us say for example nine million dollars, the law provide that the duties of the sheriff, county clerk and assessor, respectively, should be performed by the three commissioners. This arrangement, however, would not apply to the office of county school superintendent, who should be a distinct officer, probably selected by the board of county commissioners.

The arrangement suggested offers a plan which would very materially reduce the overhead expense of the small counties and is sufficiently flexible that it provides additional officers in the larger counties, in order that the commissioners might give their attention to affairs of general county administration.

A Democrat Bows in Prayer.

Oh, Mighty Hoover, who art in Washington, when not fishing on the Rapidan, thy name is pants. Thy will and the will of thy campaign contributors be done in the rest of the country as in Washington.

Give us this day our daily bread—and bowl of free soup—for our turnip greens and sweet potato vines are almost gone. Forgive us our debts, and if you can't forgive them, for the love of Mike help us to get a job so we can pay them. Thou knowest, O Mighty Hoover, that thy subjects are dumb, so dumb that we believed your campaign promises. If we had not been so dumb, you would not be president, and since you know how dumb we are, have mercy on us, for our pockets are empty—also our stomachs.

Some of us voted or you in the belief that you would continue our great prosperity, and behold, our great prosperity has gone to the favored followers of Smoot and Grundy. Some of us voted for you because the hand maiden Mabel, told the preachers, and the preachers told us that we would go to hell if we voted for Al Smith. So we voted for you and the country has been in a hell of a mess ever since.

We thank thee, O Mighty Hoover, for the relief thou hast given the farmers, for thou hast relieved them of all they had except their debts and a few old clothes. We thank for the relief thou hast given the laboring man, for thou hast relieved him of the necessity of rising early to get to his job. We thank thee that thou hast relieved us of the annoyances of factory whistles and the noise of turning wheels, for no wheels are turning—except in the heads of those who voted for thee.

We thank thee, O Mighty Hoover, that thy watchful care of "Noble Experiment" of prohibition has at last been made effective, for if Mrs. Wilderbrandt and the holy farm board were peddling their fermentable grape juice for two bits a barrel, we could not buy a drink.

Thou annointed our heads with oil—stolen from the government oil lands—and we can't buy soap to wash it off with because of thy high tariff.

Lead us not into temptation of high living, lest we be taken to the hospital to be cured of gout like one of thy famous supporters. Yea, though we walk through the valley of hard times, and the shadow of starvation we will fear no evil, for thou art with us, and hath appointed many commissioners to watch over us.

Hear us, O Mighty Hoover, and answer us. And the squirrels nest in our hats if we are ever fools enough to follow another Jack-o-lantern labeled "Republican Prosperity," thanking God that Hoover prosperity is gone and that we may now be on the road to better day. Amen—Trinty (Texas) News.

Portland Grain Exchange.

Wheat markets received very little attention during the week and prices drifted without pronounced trend in an extremely narrow range.

The local situation remained unchanged. Terminal receipts were light, export business impossible and very little disposition to sell shown by the holders of stocks in the country.

There is a feeling that there will be a little better demand after the first of the year although the generally dull business condition holds a potential threat of lower prices if this does not materialize. In spite of this there is very little indication of bearishness.

Europeans are friendly to commodities while almost ignoring securities. General business has turned attentively to commodity prices as a barometer of business recovery and any recovery will no doubt lend much confidence to business which is the factor most needed just now. Every day that passes creates more potential buyers in every line of activity and any return of confidence will no doubt find an extremely oversold condition in many lines.

Argentina is experiencing a wet harvest which will probably slow up deliveries but Argentina and Australia continue to supply the bulk of supplies taken by Europe and the Orient.

IN the world of meals, the ones you really care to know are the unusual meals—unusually delicious, unusually well-balanced or unusually inexpensive. If we suggest one that is unusual in all three respects—a frizzled beef and macaroni dish, a tasty relish, a salad and a pear dessert, all for one dollar,—will you agree that it is unusual and that you want to get better acquainted with it?

For your approval, then—

Macaroni with Dried Beef and Tomatoes 37¢
Cucumber Relish 5¢
Waldorf Salad 15¢
Graham Raisin Bread and Butter 11¢
Pears on the Half Shell 27¢
Demi-Tasse 3¢

Macaroni with Dried Beef and Tomatoes: Boil one-third package of macaroni in salted water until tender, then drain. Meanwhile frizzle one-half cup of dried chopped beef in one tablespoon of butter. Then add the contents of one No. 2 can of tomatoes, one-half bay leaf, one slice of onion, and salt and pepper to taste. Simmer for about ten minutes. Remove the bay leaf and onion, and combine the tomato mixture with the macaroni. Serve very hot, passing one-half cup of grated cheese to sprinkle over the top.

Pears on the Half Shell: Cut four slices of bread in thick slices, about three-fourths inch, then cut in rounds with a biscuit cutter. Butter the tops of the slices, lay in a shallow baking pan and place a canned pear half on top of each. (An eight-ounce can of pears will be sufficient.) Spread brown sugar which has been mixed with a few grains of cinnamon on top and dot with butter. Pour two to three tablespoons of pear syrup over each. Bake in a moderate oven for about twenty-five minutes, or until the bread is brown and the sugar a nice caramel color. Cool and serve with cream.

accelerated by active trading in the futures markets, which later subsided, bringing about a sharp decline, there were some fundamental changes in the situation which placed the market on a firmer basis.

One important factor was the confirmation by official estimates of very short crops of spring wheat in the U. S. and Canada. The United States had less than half a crop of spring wheat while Canada harvested hardly three-quarters of a crop. Sharp reductions in acreages to be harvested were officially reported both in Argentine and Australia. Along about this time also Russian shipments slackened and there were prospects of some modifications of restrictions on imports and milling of foreign wheat in some of the principal deficit countries of Europe. Unsettled world economic conditions were still a depressing influence, but world shipments continued of good volume and the burdensome stocks in most exporting countries decreased at a fair rate. The reduction was slow in the U. S., where growers and dealers appeared unwilling to sell at prevailing prices.

At the close of 1931 the world supply situation was about as follows:

World stocks of wheat appeared to be materially smaller than a year ago, although United States stocks were unusually large. Supplies in the U. S. at the beginning of the present crop year were about fifty million bushels larger than a year ago. Since the beginning of the season exports of wheat and flour have fallen about 13,000,000 bushels below those for the corresponding period last season, while mill grindings have decreased about 11,500,000 bushels. Canada, on the other hand, has reduced her supplies and at the first of December had about 30,000,000 bushels less wheat for export carry-over than a year ago. Statistics on European wheat supplies are rather incomplete, but it appears that supplies of native wheat in all important deficit areas of Europe have been materially reduced since harvest as a result of the smaller imports and enforced utilization of the home-grown grains.

There is little authentic information available as to Russian wheat supplies but most trade authorities estimate Russian stocks available for export somewhat below those of a year ago. Supplies in the southern hemisphere are smaller than last year. The combined wheat crops in Australia and Argentina, according to official estimates, total about 60,000,000 bushels less than last season, but this decrease in production is partially offset by an increased carry-over of old wheat, principally in Argentina. The world's visible supply of wheat is the first of December, according to trade estimates, totaled 571,403,000 bushels, compared with 541,030,000 bushels December 1, 1930.

Prices of most classes of wheat are sharply lower than a year ago, but well above the low point reached in early October.

The situation on the Pacific Coast differed somewhat from that in the central western markets at the close of December this season, B. B. Bluestem hard white was quoted at Portland at 79½c, compared with 71c a year ago, when supplies of this class were relatively larger. Other wheats, however, were 4c lower than a year ago.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Mr. Gus Rosenau and Miss Anna Morscheck, two popular young people of Genesee, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Morscheck, Dec. 31. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. A. F. Wolff.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brazier December 29th.

The Congregational Ladies' Aid enjoyed a sleigh ride to the Nixon home Wednesday. In the afternoon election of officers was held, Mrs. Geo. Follett being elected president; Mrs. C. F. Burr, vice president; Mrs. E. A. Harden, secretary, and Mrs. Leon Follett, treasurer.

The barn of J. Rosenstein caught fire in some unknown manner last Thursday night and with its contents of hay, feed and a valuable milch cow, was burned to the ground. Mr. Rosenstein's loss was over $300 and uninsured.

Art Rosenau arrived Wednesday from LeDuc, Alberta, where he has been for some time, looking after the Rosenau farm.

The local lodge of the Eastern Star installed the following officers: Mrs. Leon Follett, W. M.; Leon Follett, W. P.; Mrs. James Jackson, A. M.; Mrs. Fred Nagel, conductress; Miss Dora Burr, associate conductress; Mrs. J. T. Nelson, secretary; Mrs. W. E. Smith, treasurer; Mrs. F. S. Casebolt, Adah; Mrs. F. F. Burdic, Ruth; Mrs. C. F. Burr, Esther; Mrs. J. H. Brakebill, Martha; Mrs. E. E. Oylear, Electa; Mrs. James Hanson, chaplain; Mrs. I. C. Peterson, organist; Mrs. E. Oylear, warder and Mr. J. C. Hanson, sentinel.

Thirty Years Ago.

Nagel & Bomberg, Genesee's live butchers, always doing business on the right side of the ledger, did a very satisfactory business during 1901, and expect to do a still larger business during 1902.

Wm. Smolt is continually at his bench early and late, manufacturing cigars, showing he has a lot of customers.

John Meyer's first year's business has been more than satisfactory.

The livery stables of Will Hickman, Geo. Mochel and Biram & Moore are kept in shape and each can turn out a suitable rig on short order and at reasonable prices.

The Genesee Brewery is not only neat but orderly and rightly managed and the beer manufactured is pure and wholesome.

Gustave Rosenau who arrived here last week, wrote his brother in Minnesota that the Genesee Valley was good enough for him and advised him to sell out and move here. His brother immediately disposed of his farm and is enroute to Genesee. Others will follow these people.

Boys Shooting Pheasants.

Complaints are being made that boys with rifles are working hardships on the Chinese pheasants, who are being fed near Genesee. One farmer, who has been feeding the birds since snow first covered the ground, has witnessed the shooting of the birds by boys, and while he does not like to cause anyone trouble, he will feel justified in reporting their actions.

Birds which have been feeding on grain put out for them are becoming tame, and are easily approached, especially the weaker birds.

He captured light and enged it in a glass,
Then harnessed it forever to a wire;
He gave men robots with no backs to tire
In bearing burdens for the toiling mass.
He freed the tongue in wood and wax and brass,
Imbued dull images with motion's fire,
Transmuted metal into human choir
These man-made miracles he brought to pass.

GOVERNMENTS ADDICTED TO HABIT OF FREE SPENDING

Editor's Note: This is one of a series of articles on the history of Idaho taxation, prepared by Glenn Balch under the direction of the State Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of enlightening the public concerning the evolution of our present revenue system.

History reveals that governments, like individuals, are addicted to the habit of living as luxuriously as their means afford. The surplus of funds is something that governments seem to abhor as nature does the well-known vacuum. Governments never have had, haven't and never will have all the money they could use. Almost invariably governments, again like individuals, are in debt.

Idaho's political history from the day in 1863 when she attained the rank of a territory bears out the above assertions. Still, one can hardly complain at the progress that has been made. Reasonable indebtedness is not infrequently a spur to greater achievement.

The first territorial legislature must have been of this opinion since its first financial transaction was to incur an indebtedess. Salary icreases to the territorial officials totaling $13,660 were authorized from a territorial treasury that existed in name alone.

Never Out of Debt

Not only was the state's first venture into debt, but, in a cursory glance at the records, this writer failed to discover any time when she has been clear out of debt, a condition that does not seem to have seriously hampered her growth.

That 1863 indebtedness, which would sem trivial today, is recorded in the early histories as a heavy burden upon the people, which discloses that the current problem is by no means the first of its kind. Tax burdens have always been heavy in the times of adversity; in times of prosperity they are not so noticeable.

The first legislature prescribed a general tax for territorial expenses of 80 cents on the hundred dollars. Counties were permitted 100 cents on the hundred dollar, as well as necessary special levies. In addition a $4 poll tax was collected from all males between the ages of 21 and 5$. The assessable property value was $3,-697,304.49. That is the picture of Idaho's first revenue system.

Debt Increases.

In 1864, the first year of collections, revenue totaling $29,578.39 accrued to the territorial treasury. This was sufficient to take care of the initial indebtedness of $13,660; but the busy territorial officers had by that time succeeded in increasing the governmental obligations to approximately $50,000.

The financial report for the following year, 1865, shows that the tax collections totalled $20,999.88 and that the territorial obligations had mounted to the then staggering sum of $67,-566.54.

This spread between expenditures and receipts was enough to dismay even the doughty old territorial officials and by the time the third legis-

Traps Hawk Instead of Eagle.

A large black eagle which has been causing trouble at the Frank Jones ranch and nearby places is still at large, having for several days evaded the jaws of a coyote trap which was placed on a post, and which, it was thought, would soon hold fast the killer of pheasants and small animals. Members of the Jones family had, for several weeks, watched the large bird settle on a particular post, and also saw remains of pheasants which it had killed. The post on which the trap was placed was one considerably longer than others, and Bud, the son, was certain that he would have the eagle within a few hours after placing the trap.

He did not have long to wait before he saw a struggle in the snow at the foot of the post, and eager to capture the eagle, he could hardly wait until he had time to visit his trap. Cautioned that he should take a gun, he was barely within range when he learned that a large hawk had landed in the jaws of the trap and not the eagle. The bird was taken, however, but the eagle is at large.

IMPOSSIBLE TO MOVE DRIFTS WITH STATE OWNED PLOW

Orders were received here last Friday, instructing local state highway maintenance men to start clearing side roads to permit travel by automobile and trucks, but when the heavy equipment was tried out, it was unable to move the drifted snow, it having thawed and settled until it formed an almost solid mass. One of the largest drifts on the place being farmed by Colin Wilson offered the most resistance, though farmers in that locality went through first with walking plows and loosened the mass. The plow, mounted on a large four-wheel drive chassis, would ride the ice-encrusted snow, until it was necessary to dig the snow and ice from underneath to give the equipment traction, as the plow would take the front wheels off the ground.

Some delay was experienced in obtaining the use of the equipment, a week's time having elapsed between the letter written by Governor Ross and the issuance of his orders.

A. E. Johnston, district highway engineer, who was in Boise at the time Governor Ross received a telegram from Genesee, inquiring about the promised use of snow removal equipment, returned to Lewiston on Thursday and was instructed to give the order. He was in Genesee the following morning.

Drifted snow on the side roads no doubt could have been moved before the thaw came last week, but it looks now like the roads will have to be cleared by sunshine or with the rotary, which is expected to be in operation, as soon as repairs are received.

High score honors at the Catholic Card party Sunday night at the K. C. hall were won by Mrs. Ernest Becker for the ladies and Joe Broemeling for the men. The consolation prizes went to Mrs. Pete Kries and Del DeMers.

HIGH SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS BEGIN THURS., JANUARY 14

For the convenience of parents we are giving the schedule of examinations. Thursday, January 14, ,9 to 10:30 English IV; manual training I and plane geometry; 10:30 to 12:00, Bookkeeping, manual training II, general science, economics; 1:00 to 2:30, typing II, English II; 2:30, speech and geometry.

Friday, January 15: 9:00 to 10:30, vocations, sewing, world history; 10:30 to 12:00, typing I, algebra; 1:00 to 2:30, commercial arithmetic, English 1 and U. S. history.

All the students making an average of B plus or better for the semester will be excused from taking the examinations. All other students will be required to take them. The second semester begins Monday, January 18.

Two new subjects will be found on our program. The first is business practice and personal development, a one-unit course, following commercial arithmetic which was given the first semester. The purpose of this course is four-fold. First, to provide a helpful correlation between the commercial department and other departments in high school. Second, to open up the field of business to those who continue with the technical subject matter in such a way as to bring about a logical sequence in their training. Third, to give the pupils a certain degree of marketable skill should it become necessary for them to discontinue their high school work at the end of the second year. Fourth, to impress upon the pupil the importance of self-analysis in the establishment of the right kind of relationship between himself and his employer. This course replaces the former course of commercial law which has been of very little practical value for the average high school student.

The second new course, dramatics, is the companion course with public speaking and debate, given the first semester. The aim of this course is three-fold. First, to aid the pupil in discovering whether or not he has dramatic ability. Second, to give an opportunity, through the presentation of several one-act plays, to develop this ability. Third, to acquaint the pupils with some of the leading literature in the field of drama. The rest of the subjects will be the same.

Report cards will be issued Wednesday, January 20. Owing to the junior prom taking place Thursday night, January 21, the open house has been postponed until Monday night, January 25.

The examinations for the seventh and eighth graders, in and about Genesee, will be held in the seventh and eighth grade room of the Genesee public school, January 21 and 22.

Mr. Tupker reports the manual training classes have done some interesting work during the first semester. He says there are a few cedar chests, flower boxes, foot stools and various other projects completed.

Junior Prom

The Junior Class of '33 will hold its annual "Prom" Thursday, January 21. With the aid of Allen's orchestra and the beautiful decorations the juniors assure everyone a good time. The admission will be 75c and 25c for spectators.

Orofino Basketball Game.

The score at the end of the first half was 19 to 9 in favor of Orofino, Howard Blume making the first basket for Genesee. At the end of the game, the score was 28 to 17 in Orofino's favor. They scored 10 while Genesee was making 8 during the last half, the Genesee play being better in the last half, with the exception of passing which fell down. Smylie was the outstanding scorer, making 11 points and George Blume was outstanding in guarding and floor work. Genesee's second team lost to Orofino, the score being 14 to 13. After leading during practically the entire game, they showed possibilities of a future ball team. Orofino plays Genesee here February 9.

Lapwai vs. Genesee.

Lapwai made the first four baskets in the game played here Tuesday night. They scored eight points before Genesee started, and the half ended 15 to 8, with a final score of 25 to 10 in favor of Lapwai. Genesee had the ball her share of the time but was unable to break through the Lapwai zone defense, and the local school was handicapped by their size, Lapwai's first string being composed of tall men, who were able to take all the rebounds. Lawyer, Lapwai guard was high scorer with fourteen points. Smylie and George Blume got

PRESIDENT OF NATIONAL FARMERS UNION REPORTS

(By John A. Simpson)

Delegates and members of the Farmers Union: A year ago you made me your color bearer and handed to me the best program ever entrusted to a president of the National Farmers Union. For twelve months I have carried that banner unashamed and unafraid. For twelve months I have preached our program both night and day.

Such were the opening words of the report made by Mr. Simpson at the annual convention in Couer d'Alene.

I have carried our banner and presented our plans to 161 audiences in twenty-one states. I talked our program twice over a National broadcasting hook-up covering the entire country. Both talks brought requests for copies from every one of the 48 states. More than 15,000 copies of these talks were sent out. They went to men and women in every walk of life. They were published in full in hundreds of newspapers throughout the United States. Twice each month I have sent articles for all Farmers Union papers.

Today I return to you that banner—clean, untarnished and as bright and beautiful as the day I received it last November. It is today more than ever a beacon in the night, a star of hope to a crushed and bleeding agriculture. It stands as the emblem of quality for agriculture. It challenges the right of any American citizen to eat our bread and butter at less than cost of production. Our program, under the banner of the Farmers Union, charges that the old capitalistic is completely controlled by those twin children Satan—and that so far as good deeds and the atributes of Christianity are concerned the old system is absolutely bankrupt.

In passing I want you to know perfect harmony has prevailed throughout the year in your official family. After discussing every motion offered has been either unanimously passed or unanimously defeated.

Conditions since our last convention have rapidly grown worse in this country. There have been more bank failures, more bankruptcies or business institutions and more farm mortgage foreclosures in 1931 than any other year in the history of the nation. A year ago there were five million unemployed. The number has increased until today seven million are asking for work. Prices of farm products reached the lowest level in the history of the world during the present year. Under these circumstances there is every reason for us to continue the program adopted a year ago. Ours is a real remedy. Everything tried up to date has proven a dismal failure.

First came the Farm Board. No more complete failure of a department of government was ever recorded in the 150 years of the existence of this nation than the failure of the Farm Board. They took charge of the marketing of wheat in the Fall of 1929, and the price went down and the general trend has been downward ever since. They took charge of the marketing of cotton in the Fall of 1929, and the minute they laid their hands on that commodity the price srank and continued to decline thruout the months since that time. They laid their hands on dairy and poultry products, and it was a withering and blighting touch so far as price of the products was concerned. They gambled in our products on a scale never known before. They played both sides, but most of the time they were "bears" on the market. They deliberately used, throughout their set-ups taxpayers' money in an effort to control farm organizations. No farm organization could borrow money of the Board without bowing the head and bending the knee. All those farm organizations that refused to do this were refused the benefits of the cheap money the Board had to loan.

Second—The president of the United States, June 20th, thought he had a remedy when he issued his famous proclamation in which he said: "The American government proposed the postponement during one year of all payments on international debts, of course not including obligations of governments held by private parties." This proclamation published far and wide as the final solution of our problems did not raise the price of wheat, cotton or any other agricultural product; did not put a single unemployed laborer to work. The international

RIMROCKERS FROLIC TONIGHT.

This evening (Friday) has been set aside for the annual gallop of the Rimrockers at the Legion hall, music to be furnished by an orchestra which has met with approval during past seasons, and which will supply the incentive for a gay time tonight. This dance is open to the public, and the more attending the better. You are advised, however, that this is a time to forget your troubles, meet your friends, partake of the lunch, and come prepared for a real good time.

LIGHT CERTIFICATES ARE NOW REQUIRED IN IDAHO

An order has been issued by the Department of Law Enforcement, effective January 15, that every motor vehicle operating on the highways of Idaho, must have displayed a light inspection sticker, and the owner or driver must possess the certificate.

It is advisable, says Harry Clark, traffic officer for this district, for motorists to have their lights tested once a year or every six months, and wishes to inform the public that the state requirement must be complied with.

The official light testing station for Genesee is located at the Genesee Supply building formerly occupied by Meyer and Son. There is no charge for inspection, unless there are adjustments to be made, and this charge does not exceed fifty cents unless parts need replacing, such as bulbs, lenses, wiring or entire light fixtures.

Perfect-O-Lite Not Approved.

Traffic Officer Clark also displayed a letter from Emmitt Pfost, commissioner of law enforcement, informing the public that the Perfect-O-Lite has not been approved by the department in Idaho, and the letter further states that it is unlawful to sell or offer for sale a lighting device which has not been approved by the Department of Law Enforcement.

Latah-Idaho Oil & Gas Co. Elects.

Stockholders of the Latah-Idaho Oil & Gas company met at the office of W. W. Burr Monday afternoon in its annual session for the purpose of electing directors for the ensuing year. W. Brummund, Lewiston, Thos. Rogers, Moscow and Henry Morscheck of Genesee, were elected to the board which consists of seven members, four holding over from the previous year. They are Geo. Cushing, Oscar Nelson, E. Mortensen and Harry Christenson. The board will organize and elect officers soon.

Complete Crushed Rock Contract.

Rock crushing operations at the Fred Shirrod ranch were brought to a close Saturday when the Campbell company completed its contract of crushing 20,000 yards of rock for the Genesee-Thorncrek section of the North and South highway, 8,000 yards being spread on the slightly more than 13 miles, and the remainder going into a pile situated near the Genesee Union west end elevator.

Considerable hard luck accompanied the operators in blasting, crushing and moving the rock, a disastrous fire several weeks ago destroying the power plant.

GRAIN MARKETS STEADY ON THE LIGHT RECEIPTS

Domestic grain markets were generally steady during the week ending January 8, with milling quality wheat readily taken, but feed grains were meeting only a fair inquiry at most markets, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. The sharp advance in security markets, some improvement in export demand for North American grain, together with relatively light marketings were strengthening factors in the wheat market. A slow shipping inquiry continued to dominate the market for feed grains, but this was largely offset by very small receipts.

Wheat

There were no outstanding changes in the general wheat market situation during the week. Rains and snow in the domestic winter wheat belt were very beneficial to the crop, although more moisture is needed in western Kansas. Wheat is going into the winter in good condition over most of the southwest. World wheat markets were quiet, but a firm tone was apparent as stocks of exporting countries were reduced and offerings were of only moderate volume. Marketings of native wheat in France and Italy are reported light, but in most areas sufficient for current needs. Italian bread wheat prices declined slightly during the week, but durum wheats were firmer. Milling regulations have been modified to permit the utilization of 50 per cent of foreign durum in milling mixtures. Supplies of good quality native milling wheat in Europe are reported to be relatively low. Continental port stocks are about normal, although below those of a year ago, while United Kingdom port stocks are still larger than at the corresponding date last year.

Black Sea shipments have decreased materially and Russian exports for the week totaled only 612,000 bushels. Russian wheat shipments, however, have been heavy again this season, the total movement of wheat from August through December amounting to 65,500,000 bushels as against 70,500,000 bushels during the corresponding period a year ago. Wheat procurrings to the middle of December were reported to be only 69 per cent of the yearly plan, although trade advices suggest that they may have exceeded in quantity those of a year ago. Recent arrivals of Russian wheat in English markets are reported of considerably lower quality than earlier offerings, due in some instances to field damage, but chiefly to deficient gluten. Soviet authorities have recently announced their intention to concentrate on quality rather tha quantity next season and thus strengthen their competitive position in world markets. Plans for winter wheat seedings were not completely fulfilled this fall, but this may be offset by larger seedings of spring grain which normally comprises two-thirds of the total crop. Seedings of spring wheat last year totaled around 63,-000,000 acres.

bankers of Wall Street, where Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew Mellon, has much treasure, has loaned in the last ten years more than seventeen billion dollars to the countries of Europe, and they saw that those countries would not be liable to pay the interest on the debt they owed the United States government and the Wall Street Bankers, too. This proclamation amounted to Uncle Sam stepping aside and waiting while the International Bankers got theirs first.

Third—The Farm Board came forth in mid-summer with the most wonderful remedy. They delivered this remedy to the two million cotton farmers in the South, and it was for them to destroy one-third of their property. This was a most foolish proclamation on the part of the Farm Board. In it there was no guarantee that the price of cotton would go up at all, and it had in it advise that amounted to asking two million cotton farmers to commit a penitentiary offense, for practically all cotton was mortgaged and it would be a penitentiary offense to destroy it.

Fourth—The governor of Louisiana, Huey P. Long, called his legislature together and they passed a law prohibiting the planting of any cotton at all for the year of 1932. Governor Long knows so little about agricultural questions that he thought you could legislate for the one crop and cure the ills of agriculture. If all cotton states had followed Governor Long's advice there would have been forty million acres of land in the South to be planted to corn, wheat, vegetables and fruit in competition with those products in other states. It is a fundamental principle that when the agricultural situation is cured it will be on a basis of taking into consideration every major farm product.

Fifth—William Randolph Hearst, largest chain newspaperman in the world, along with others, brought forth as a remedy the issuing of five billion dollars of prosperity bonds on 30 years' time at 3½ per cent interest, and use the funds thus borrowed to put the unemployed to work. Such a plan would only add to the staggering interest debt the taxpayers of this nation now bears. Such a plan, before the last coupon was paid, would mean the taxpayers of the nation has turned over in interest to the International Bankers of Wall Street over five billion dollars. None of these proffered plans are worth the paper they are written on, and practically all of them are already forgotten.

It is time for this nation to adopt the Farmers Union plan, and many people besides members of the Farmers Union are looking to our plan to bring prosperity to our country. We have a wonderful program and it covers taxation, financing, employment and marketing.

Under taxation the Farmers Union program provides for the states changing from an ad valorem system to an income system of taxation. It provides for the federal government raising its revenues by taxing the rich through income and inheritance taxes instead of laying the burden on poverty through sales tax and extortionate tariff rates.

Our plan for financing is one that does not enrich the International Bankers of Wall Street, neither does it put the burden of interest on the one hundred twenty million common people of the nation. We say that when the government needs money, whether it be one billion dollars or ten billion, it should sign the money run off the government printing press and write across the face of every bill issued: "Full legal tender for all debts public and private." We say this is the way to furnish the people with the circulating medium of the country instead of paying interest to bankers to get them to sign money for the government. We say no division of government should issue interest-bearing bonds. Whether it be a school district, a county, or a state that needs funds for public improvements they should secure those funds by issuing non-interest bearing bonds, payable to the government, and the government in turn furnish full legal tender currency with which to pay for labor and materials. Under our plan every school house, every court house, every highway debt would be paid by taxpayers returning to the government the principal instead of paying Wall Street Bankers principal and on an average of at least a like amount in interest. In other words, under our financial plan, the people could construct all public improvements at half the cost they do under the capitalistic system of interest-bearing bonds.

At this point I want to call your attention to the discrimination practiced by the government as between citizens of the country. As a national banker a number of years ago in a little town in Oklahoma, I purchased a government bond bearing 3½ per cent interest. It was in the sum of $25,000.00, and if I remember right, ran for a period of forty years. I sent this bond to the Treasury Department at Washington and asked for the currency to take its place. The great government at Washington started the printing press and ran out $25,000.00 of new five, ten and twenty dollar bills and sent them to me at Weatherford, Oklahoma. All these bills lacked of being money was for me to sign where it said: "President of the First National Bank of Weatherford." The government furnished this to me free. They charged me no interest. I still drew the 3½ per cent interest on the bond I left as collateral with the government and I loaned the $25,000.00 out to my neighbors at a high rate of interest. If anybody asked a government official why they did this for Johnson Simpson, president of the First National Bank of Weatherford, the public official replied, "Because he held an obligation of the government." Last winter the ex-service boys saw times getting a little hard, and they asked congress to give them some money on the obligation they held of the government. These ex-service boys have in the bonus certificate an obligation of the government —that is, a definite promise to pay a certain sum of money at a certain time. Congress fussed, haggled and quarreled and finally passed a bill that provided for loaning 50 per cent of the value of the government obligation the ex-service boys held at an interest rate of 4½ per cent. The bill went to the president. He called in Mr. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, and king of International Bankers of Wall Street, and Mr. Mellon said that it would absolutely ruin the international bankers, and so President Hoover vetoed it, but the tears of pleadings of the poor ex-service boys prevailed upon the necessary majority in both house and senate to pass it over the president's veto.

And we have the spectacle of the United States government furnishing a national banker who never did anything for his country 100 per cent on the obligation the national banker held of the government without interest or charge, and the poor ex-service boy who faced bullets, shells, poison gas and ever hellish invention of the ingenuity of man could produce to wound, to maim and to kill, received 50 per cent of the obligations he held at 4½ per cent interest. Of course, the International Bankers expect that this was a cheap way for Uncle Sam to pay the debts they owe the ex-service boys because they feel they have settled the bill at 50 cents on the dollar on the grounds that they do not anticipate the ex-service boys will ever be able to pay the interest of 4½ per cent.

The Farmers Union plan recognizes the fact that this government owes to every male citizen the opportunity of making a living for himself and family. The government does not owe them a living, but does owe every citizen the change to make a living. Under this fundamental principle, we demand that the government through public works, furnish every unemployed man a job. There can be no prosperity in this country so long as seven million are out of employment and twenty-three million dependents on the seven million eating at the table of charity instead of at the table of a free self-sustaining American.

The Farmers Union plan for marketing is simple but effective. In its fundamental principle it says that just like the government owes every laborer an opportunity to make a living, the government also owes it to farmers to see that they get cost of production for that part of their production needed for home consumption. We care not what plan is used to get us cost of production, but we do lay on the session of congress the burden of seeing that the farmers of this nation do get cost of production for that part of their production needed for home consumption. European governments are doing this for their own farmers. There is no reason why our government should not do as much for the farmers of this nation. France for the 1930 wheat crop guaranteed to her farmers a minimum of $1.71 per bushel, as measured in United States money. Germany a minimum of $1.50 per bushel. Italy guaranteed a minimum of $1.60 per bushel in our money. In all these countries the price played above the minimum guarantee throughout the year. When I was in these countries in March and April, the past year, I found farmers in France getting $1.85 per bushel for wheat, in Italy $1.80 per bushel, in Germany $1.88 per bushel.

Such a plan is not new in this country. In the spring of 1919 heads of the Farmers Union over the United States went to Washington and promoted a bill through congress that provided a guaranteed minimum price of $2.26 per bushel, Chicago basis, for wheat of the 1919 crop. Congress also appropriated one billion dollars to enforce the minimum guaranteed price. The government licensed all buyers, such as mills and elevators, and then required of them that they pay not less than the minimum price to farmers. The facts are the government never had to spend a dime of the billion dollars. Bread did not go up in price, so there was an increase of cost to the consumers, and the price of wheat played well above the $2.26 minimum the whole year through. May 1, 1920, wheat was over $3.00 per bushel at Chicago. Our plan for marketing all of the major farm products such as wheat, cotton, wool, pork, beef and dairy and poultry products is to do for that part needed for home consumption exactly what the government did for wheat in 1919. Nothing less than a guaranteed cost price will give farmers the purchasing power needed to bring prosperity back to this nation.

Wheat and cotton are the only farm products that have an appreciable surplus, and when thirty million new eating in the bread lines of the country have a purchasing power through employment, there will be such an increase in consumption of these two farm products as will reduce the surplus to a minimum.

Besides, there will be further increased consumption of cotton when all substitutes for cotton are barred from the country. Production of pork, beef, and dairy and poultry products will have to be increased when farmers and laboring people are once more in the market and a prosperous group of sixty million people. When wool and its substitutes are barred from this country, the flocks of sheep will have to be doubled to produce enough to satisfy the demands of the home people. Our marketing program stands as the only one being offered that really means prosperity to the farmers.

There are two systems of running the affairs of government and business. One is known as the capitalistic system, and the other is the cooperative system. The capitalistic system is of the devil's making. It has as its foundation principles, selfishness, greed, avarice; it leads to theft, robbery, murder, suicide and war. It operates for profit in order that it may feed the craving for more than all its victims have. It encourages everything that is evil; it creates in man the desire to become a selfish, greedy, inhuman creature, that ever ceases to be an image of his Creator. It plants a little seed in the human heart that makes such a person want more than his share of the things of life. He wants to become a millionaire, and when he has reached that point he wants ten million, and when he is worth ten million his craving is greater than ever and he wants one hundred million. When he reaches that point he desires a billion dollars ten times more than he ever wanted one hundred million, and he cares not how he gets it. His plans may mean hungry women, starving children, but he cares no more about them than ants in the dust. His whole ambition is to become a billionaire.

The cooperative system is based on service instead of profit. It has as its attributes unselfishness and the brotherhood of man. It is of Christian origin instead of the devil. I say to you that no man who is a Christian has a right to want more than the average could have. I also just as emphatically say no man has a right to want less for himself and family than the average can have. The Bible is clear on this question in the 5th chapter of James, there is a fearful warning against the ambition to be rich. The first three verses of that chapter reads:

"Go to, now ye rich man, weep and howl for the miseries that shall come upon you.

"Your riches are corrupt and your garments are moth eaten.

"You gold and silver is cankered; and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as it were fire."

In closing I want to give you an illustration, showing the difference between the cooperative and capitalistic system. As an illustration of the cooperative system I take the family table, where father, mother, son and daughter, and a few friends, seat themselves to eat. On this table we find soup and greens, also the delicious and goodies. Every member of the group is cooperative in spirit. They are Christians. They do not want more than their part of all the things on the table. In fact, if someone at that table should become capitalistic in his methods and reach out and say: "I will take all the goodies, the rest of you can have the soup and greens" he would start a riot. The others gathered around that table would not stand for such greed and avarice.

But how do we behave at the national table at the close of the year? One hundred twenty million people surround the table on which lie the profits of the year, ninety billion dollars. Under the capitalistic system, 4 per cent of the people around that national table reach out with hoggish greedy hands and say, "We will take 80 per cent of these net profits, and you 96 percent can have 20 percent to divide among you, and the pity of the things is that the 96 per cent do not rise in righteous indignation and refuse to let the 4 per cent do it.

Members of the Farmers Union and delegates to this convention, the job for our organization is to do its part in ridding the one hundred twenty million common people of this country of the twenty thousand leeches, who through the interest and profit system bleed white each year the producers of this nation.

It is our job to see that there is a more equitable distribution of the net income of the people of this nation at the close of each year.

It is our job to see that those who live by clipping coupons shall have their swollen fortunes clipped through income and inheritance taxes.

It is our job to make the other fellow take his hand out of the farmers pockets and keep them out.

It is our job to carry to victory the emblem that stands for equity, justice and the principles of the Golden Rule to the end that there shall be established in this nation a real brotherhood of man.

GRAIN CHIEF TALKS AT PULLMAN ON MARKETING

E. J. Bell, Jr., of Washington, D. C., chief of the grain section of the federal farm board division of cooperative marketing discussed grain marketing problems of the Inland Empire at Pullman, Wednesday, the meeting being arranged by Orris Dorman, director of membership relations of North Pacific Grain Growers, Inc.

Mr. Bell said progress of the cooperative movement had been hampered during this last crop year by the continued decline in grain prices, averaging 29 per cent within the year.

"These declines reflected heavy production in exporting countries, restrictions on wheat imports and milling in European countries, record world carry-overs of wheat, congested markets and the acute depression in general business," Mr. Bell declared.

Profits of Farmers National for the period from November, 1929, to October 31, 1931, slightly less than two years, totaled $2,418,300.32(as recently disclosed by George Milnor, general manager. These profits are all set up as reserves, or are paid to regional stockholders as credits on purchases of stock in Farmers National, and so belong to the growers who control the regionals.

As these reserves are accumulating within the organization, Farmers National will become less and less dependent upon the farm board for its financing, said Mr. Bell.

Mr. Bell said the board in its dealings with various cooperatives has developed certain principles from this experience. "The necessity for efficient management was prime, and only cooperatives managed by honest and competent men can be of effective service to the farmers; it is poor economy to employ low-salaried, incompetent managers."

Forget your troubles with the Rimrockers Friday night at the Legion hall. Dance on "old man depression" and then eat with your friends. The admission is six-bits.

Lost 20 Lbs. of Fat In Just 4 Weeks

Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I'm only 28 years. old and weighed 170 pounds until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and furthermore I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know.

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at any drugstore—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back. adv

5 and 4 respectively. Blume also was assigned the duty of guarding the Lapwai keyman, McCormack, who garnered but 7 points.

Lapwai's set defense seemed to work well on a small floor and with the lead obtained early in the game, Genesee hoopsters showed improvement in guarding since the Orofino game, and it is expected they will be able to meet the Maniacs on more equal terms. The team Tuesday evening looked good, the players showed plenty of scrap and cooperation; Bert Wishard, for his size and experience played a good game.

Friday comes the Culdesac game. The girls will play and the seconds will also meet teams from Uniontown St. Bonifice school.

Girls Lose to Lapwai.

Pandemonium broke out Tuesday evening when the Genesee girls took up a shortage of points and tied the Lapwai high school girls team, which did, however, emerge with a victory of 21 to 20 points. Genesee, playing an almost entirely inexperienced girl sextet this year, was slow at getting started, and lacked a knowledge of the basket locations, but did furnish the audience with a thrill as they evened the score in the third quarter.

Seventh and Eighth Grades.

Wednesday night of last week the seventh and eighth graders had a sleighing party after which they went to the Nordby home, the guests of Beuletta Nordby.

Next week, January 20, 21 and 22, the eighth graders will take the history examination and the seventh graders will take the hygiene examination.

We are working on a Washington bicentennial project. It is to be a large scrap book. In this large book there will be original stories and poems and clippings and pictures of Washington's life and of the period in which he lived.

Fifth and Sixth Grades.

The fifth grade in arithmetic has formed two teams, the object being to see which side will get the most one hundreds on daily work. Loren Kambitsch is the captain of the Lions and Donald Emerson captains the Lion Tamers. So far the Tamers are ahead with a score of 20 to 13.

While the pupils were visiting cities in Italy, the one of most interest to them was Venice, with its canals for streets. Some thought it would be fun to own a gondola there and charge money for taking people about the city. The old ruins at Rome were other things that interested them.

Last week the pupils made poems about cleaning their teeth; this week they have been making posters to show what rules they must follow in order to have good teeth.

In language the fifth grade has been memorizing the poem, "Somebody's Mother." For every stanza they learn one point is given. The girls have 46 points and the boys 42. The side that gets 72 points first wins the contest. The girls think they will win now but the boys might surprise them.

The sixth grade pupils have been studying about the feudal system in history. We are all quite interested in finding out how the people lived at that time. This week we have been planning to make posters showing the castles, knights, squires and pages of that time. In hygiene the pupils have been finding out how much they weigh. In class we will see if all are up to what they should be. This week we are all busy taking tests as it is the end of the six weeks period.

Third and Fourth Grades.

Our weekly reader this week told us about a great exhibit of Indian art. The exhibit will be shown in large cities in all parts of the United States, then it will be taken in a caravan from one Indian tribe to another. The Indians themselves will learn much by looking at the beautiful work of other tribes.

We learned of the pretty jewelry made of silver and blue stones; the pottery, rugs and sand pictures made by the Indians of the southwest. Our interest was aroused and we had an exhibit too. We had a rug purchased on the Indian reservation near Tuba City, Nevada; arrowheads, actual pictures of the Indians and their hogans, also pictures showing us how they weave their rugs and make their jewelry, pottery and the like. Someone who recently visited the Hopi Indians near Flagstaff, Arizona, gave us an account of just how the Indians really live in the desert country. We enjoyed the lesson very much.

We are much concerned about examinations and grades just now.

Wayne Hampton on Frosh Squad.

University of Idaho—The University of Idaho freshman basketball team will open its 1932 hoop season at home, meeting the W. S. C. freshmen Saturday in the Idaho gymnasium. Coach Glenn (Red) Jacoby has assembled a fairly strong squad of yearlings, which lack experience but after a few games with each other should develop into a first class club.

The names of several former high school stars appear on the freshman roster. Two all-state stars are on the first five: Junior Jones, Coeur d'Alene, forward and Harry Sandow, Moreland, guard. Ed Metzger, Kellogg, six- footer, holds down the tip-off job. Raymond Hilding, Asotin is the other guard and Vic Warner, Boise, is the running mate for Jones.

On the second combination, Bill Wakeman, Boise, and Lewis Cox, of Craigmont, are forwards; Gilbert Grenier, Hammett, and Wayne Hampton, Genesee, guards, and George Bailey, Kendrick, center. Grenier is a brother of the varsity center this season. Following is the schedule of games: Jan. 16 W. S. C. in Moscow; Jan. 19, Lewiston high in Lewiston; Jan. 22 W. S. C. at Pullman; Feb. 9 Lewiston Normal in Moscow; Feb. 13 W. S. C. at Moscow; Feb. 20 W. S. C. in Pullman; Feb. 23 Lewiston high at Moscow; Feb. 26 Gonzaga freshmen at Moscow and Feb. 27, W. S. C. in Moscow. Games above are for the Idaho Freshman team only.

PREDICT SMALLEST WHEAT CARRYOVER FOR NORTHWEST

Portland—Predicting the Pacific Northwest wheat surplus at the end of the present crop year will be the smallest in history of the area, Henry W. Collins, vice president in charge of the Pacific Coast division of Farmers National Grain corporation, made public a tabulation of wheat stocks in the three northwest states which set the surplus on January 1, at 10,754,121 bushels.

The carryover July 1, 1931, the beginning of the crop year, was 20,000,000 bushels, Mr. Collins revealed, indicating a wiping out of nearly one-half of the surplus to date.

"The report shows but 10,754,121 bushels to work on during the next seven months for export and for all rail shipments cast," said Mr. Collins. This year's supply, including crop and carryover at the beginning of the season, totaled 83,150,000 bushels, the report reveals.

"In normal years, the carryover at the end of the season in this area is about 10,000,000 bushels," continued Mr. Collins. "Therefore, we feel that by the time the next crop is available for movement, our surplus will be the smallest ever known on the Pacific Coast."

The tabulation gives production figures for Oregon, Washington and northern Idaho, setting this year's crop at 60,700,000 bushels. The normal crop for this territory runs to around 80,000,000 bushels.

The Washington crop was 40,500,000 bushels; the northern Idaho crop was 8,200,000 bushels, and the Oregon crop was 12,000,000 bushels.

The report sets total wheat and flour shipments to date this season at 36,036,413 bushels, including 8,063,031 bushels shipped on the 15,000,000 bushel sale to the Chinese government for flood relief purposes.

Listing the balance to be shipped on the Chinese sale at 6,813,966 bushels; wheat sold but not shipped to California at 645,500 bushels sold by the Farmers National, and 400,000 bushels sold by others, and estimating California requirements for the balance of the season at 3,500,000 bushels and home feed and seed requirements at 25,000,000, the table indicates a definite consumption of 72,395,879 bushels out of the 83,150,000 bushel supply for the year.

Of the total shipments already made on the Chinese sale, 4,864,962 bushels have been shipped as wheat, and 3,198,069 bushels as flour.

Wheat shipments to California have totaled 8,376,253 bushels and to the Orient and Europe 11,668,795, while Hawaii and Alaska have taken 5,421,897 bushels in the form of flour.

The unusually depleted supply situation has brought with it higher prices for the Northwest wheat farmer than at any point in the country, quotations now running about 7 cents a bushel higher than at Chicago.

The complete tabulation as prepared by Mr. Collins, is as follows:

FRIDAY, JANUARY 15, 1932.

LENVILLE NEWS.

Friday finished four months of school. Those having perfect attendance records for the month are: Dorothy Williams, Lewis Dale, Harriet Ross, Eldon Johnson, Esther Taber, Evelyn Williams, Edd Johnson and Edith Williams.

The fourth and fifth grades had 100 per cent attendance.

The primary grades dramatized "Peter Rabbit" for language work on Wednesday afternoon.

George Ellis Kinyon came to school on skis Friday morning.

The art classes are beginning the free hand painting, using the different colors of kalsomine instead of paints. The manual training boys made easels for painting and the children are enjoying sketching and illustrating reading and language lessons.

Mrs. Williams visited Mrs. J. W. Brigham Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kennedy drove to Moscow Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Rommel and Sonny Rommel spent Wednesday at the Percy Kinner home.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Nye to Lewiston Friday night to attend the Butcher meetings.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Fix and daughters, Vera and May, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dygert. They all attended Literary Friday night and Sunday school and church Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Kinnier, Mr. and Mrs. Neal Kinyon and Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Peterson attended the Moose dance in Moscow Saturday evening.

The house was packed Friday night for Literary. This was no place for "old man depression" because the program was a laugh from start to finish. When the curtain was pulled the audience beheld a Ford, occupied by Ebenezer and his Ma and the girls. The trouble in starting the Ford, changing a tire, running out of gas before "We're off" brought down the house.

The pantomime "And the Lamp Went Out," was well given and received a good hand from the audience. The two one-act plays "Ticks and Lunatics" and "From Soup to Life Insurance" were very ably given and the audience showed its appreciation by their hearty applause. The impersonation of "An Old Maid's Dream" was very realistis and touching. The stunt "A Slight Misunderstanding" proved to be a very grave misunderstanding.

"The Preacher and the Bear" was given by Jim Kinyon and Ray Kennedy in costume. Laugh? Did the crowd laugh? You tell' em Dad." The crowd surely enjoyed the music furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Percy Kinnier, Mrs. Wesley Peterson, Mildred Kinyon and Neal Kinyon. The rest of the program of solos, recitations duets and literary paper were all well received. Watch next week's paper for the program to be given Jan. 22.

PINE GROVE NEWS.

Cleo Taylor returned home Friday from Colton where she has been visiting at the home of her uncle, Henry Neuman for two weeks.

Fred Brazier was a Moscow visitor last Friday.

Blaine Sams and Leo Sorenson were Wednesday evening visitors at Frank Jones.

Cecil Gray spent Saturday at the home of Bill Gray.

Herschel Pittman and wife moved to Clarkston Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Hurlbert and baby motored to Lewiston Saturday.

Mrs. John Rush was a Wednesday visitor at Mrs. Whitted's.

Mrs. Huffman returned to town after staying with Mrs. Lambert the past two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Sweet visited Thursday at the Jim Cameron home.

Meryl William returned to Pomeroy after spending the past week with George Whitted.

Elmer Taylor visited Sunday with Ashley Taylor.

Miss Steelsmith spent Sunday with her sister, Miss Emma at the Heimgartner home.

Monte Odberg was a business visitor in Lewiston Friday.

Luzena Jones is staying with Mrs. Mrs. Lambert this week.

A pleasant time was had Friday evening in spite of the bad weather at the Coverdale home when all the the neighbors gathered for an old-time dance. Ross' ochestra furnished the music.

Blaine Sams and family spent the week end in Clarkston.

Mr. and Mrs. Sweet and Dorothy were Sunday visitors at Oliver Clarks.

Mrs. Fred Brazier visited with Mrs. Hannah Swenson Friday and Saturday.

Harold Neuman of Colton was a week end visitor at Ed Taylor's.

Marvin Miller visited with Clarence Montag Sunday.

Floyd Springston of Clarkston is visiting at the home of his brother-in-law, Blaine Sams.

Leo Sorenson is helping Mr. Lamcut his wood.

FARMERS UNION ELECTS OFFICERS LAST SATURDAY

Fred Hove, Edgar Evans and H. F. Koster were reelected to the respective offices of president, vice president and secretary of the Genesee Local, Farmers Educational and Cooperative Union of America, at the meeting held Saturday of last week in the Legion hall. Wm. Mosman, Ed Erickson and Walter Jain comprise the executive committee, elected at the same meeting.

The meeting was well attended and ratified several changes in the constitution and by-laws, as proposed at the national and state meetings, chief among which were: Permitting an officer of the Union to become a political officer. Formerly a member of the Union who was an officer in the Union was not permitted to become a state, county or national official. Initiation fees, formerly $5.00 a member were reduced to $2.00 as provided by the amendment to the by-laws, and a third change was the lowering of salaries for state officers of the Union.

Congregational Aid.

Mrs. Geo. Follett entertained the Congregational Ladies Aid Wednesday afternoon when a good attendance was present. Plans were made to pack a box of clothing for the children's home in the near future. Mrs. Elmer Vanouck will entertain in two weeks. Mrs. Follett served delicious refreshments at the close of the afternoon.

Dinner and Surprise Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shirrod were hosts Sunday at a birthday dinner for Mrs. Sophie Roskammer, entertaining besides the honored guest, Miss Emma Roskammer, Robert and George Roskammer and Miss Violet Heppner. The dinner table was centered with a beautiful birthday cake in honor of the anniversary, with red tapers appriately placed.

The dinner was served at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

At 8 o'clock Mrs. Roskammer was pleasantly surprised at the Shirrod home by the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Will Rosenau, daughter Edna, and son, Willard; Mr. and Mrs. Gus Rosenau, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Vestal and sons, Gene and Dale; Peter Dallasego and daughters, Erma and Araminta and Mrs. George Anderson, the party enjoying an evening of cards, with lunch at midnight.

Auxiliary Plans Food Sale.

At the American Legion Auxiliary meeting last Friday afternoon a food sale was planned for Saturday, January 16. Mrs. Beckman reported that another sack of cut and sewed carpet rags was ready to send to the Veterans' hospital at Boise.

Fallowing an afternoon spent at sewing, luncheon of Coney Island sandwiches, cake and coffee was served by the hostesses, Mesdames John Liberg, Martin Liberg and Walter Emerson.

Club Dinner Party.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Herman were hosts at a dinner Monday evening for members of the Monday Bunch and their husbands. Cards were played at four tables during the evening, high score prize going to Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Herman and the consolation to the national and state meetings, Misses Esther and Ruth Martinson. Invited guests were those receiving the prizes and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Edwards.

Tuesday Card Club.

Mrs. E. D. Pederson entertained the Tuesday Card club this week. The high score honors went to Mrs. Walter Emerson and the consolation to Mrs. Glen Sampson. Mrs. Saidee Gibson is hostess to the club in two weeks.

Mrs. Haymond Entertains.

Mrs. Harold Haymond, president of the Legion Auxiliary, entertained Wednesday afternoon for the officers of the Auxiliary, both elective and appointive. Community service and the work of the local unit was discussed during the afternoon. Most of the officers were present and spent an enjoyable afternoon. Mrs. Haymond served a two course luncheon and was assisted in serving by Mrs. Geo. Post and Mrs. Jim Magee.

LIVESTOCK ASSESSMENTS DOWN

Boise—Livestock assessments for 1932 were reduced 10 to 35 per cent by county assessors at the closing session of their convention in Boise Wednesday, and the assessors also intimated reductions in valuations of other property for tax purposes.

Ada county's assessor favored reducing real estate further, saying, "After reducing sheep 31 per cent and common cattle 20 per cent, to leave lands at the 1931 level is in effect a saying that we assessed them too low last year."

Common cattle assessments will be reduced from $25 to $20 a head; registered cattle from $50 to $40; beef cattle $45 to $35; milk cows, $35 to $25; grade horses $40 to $30; registered sheep $7 to $5; common $3.60 to $2.50; hogs from 5 to 3 cents a pound; turkeys from $1.50 to $1 a head and bees from $3 to $2 a stand.

Blue Bird Club Elects.

Mrs. Sam Lange was hostess to the Blue Bird club Tuesday, entertaining with a one o'clock luncheon. Election of officers took place in the afternoon, which resulted as follows: Mrs. Isaac Isaksen, president; Mrs. W. M. Mervyn, vice president; Mrs. Sam Lange, secretary; Mrs. Henry Morscheck, treasurer and Mrs. Nels Lande, correspondent. In two weks Mrs. Mervyn will entertain when an all-day session is planned, to tie a quilt.

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION URGES SCHOOL CONSOLIDATION

W. D. Vincent, state commissioner of Education, says:

Good business men have taken this period of depression as a time to check and recheck their financial conditions. The depression has taught close economy and has enforced watchful accounting. It has refined buying, it has eliminated waste and it has brought about a careful budgeting, both in business and in home life.

The 1,405 school districts in Idaho make up the great business of education. Each local district is a department.

The total investment in property in this business amounts to $24,106,672 against which there is a bonded indebtedness of $11,086,732 which is now being reduced at the rate of almost $1,00,000 per annum. The total expenditure of this vast business for all purposes was $11,650,814 in 1930.

According to the figures used in making the July apportionment, there were 143,947 pupils on the census roll of the state, thus giving a per capita cost of the census child of $80.93. There were, however, but 120,947 pupils actually enrolled in the public schools in that same year, hence we have a per capita cost of $96.32 on the enrollment basis.

In 1929, the total cost was $11,673,486, a reduction of $23,000 in favor of 1930. However, the real urge for reduced taxes did not assert itself until the school year of 1930-31, therefore, the final results of the reductions already accomplished will not be shown until the school reports for 1931-32 are completed next July.

The actual operating costs of the public schools of Idaho (excluding capital outlay and debt service) was $8,846,000 in 1929-30. If we take this as the real annual cost, we shall expect to find a reduction of at least $1,000,000 for 1930-31, and an even larger reduction for 1931-32.

The actual figures are not as yet complete for 1930-31, however, a glance at the reported facts for eight counties will serve as an index to the above estimates:

County	1931 Cost	Decrease
Ada	$846,932	$14,623
Bingham	582,874	45,287
Blaine	103,794	20,382
Bonner	317,345	7,341
Cassia	341,893	15,764
Nez Perce	346,485	11,589
Twin Falls	796,314	63,995
Valley	79,162	32,538
Total decrease		$209,520

These figures are, of course, from July 1, 1930, to July 1 1931. At this same rate for the 44 counties, there would be a decrease of approximately $1,000,000 and the significant decreases only became effective after July 1, 1931, and will be recorded in the reports due July 1, 1932.

It would, then, seem that the business known as "the public schools of Idaho" has done a rather careful job of checking unnecessary expenditures and has thereby reduced costs of maintenance and operation. A reduction of from 12 per cent to 15 per cent in one year is without doubt greater than can be shown by any other branch of government—state, county, city or highway. The constant demand for additional reductions makes necessary a careful public announcement of the economies effected in every county, in every city, in every school district of the state, in order that the driving urge for tax reduction may not ignore the cuts already effected and inflict such additional reductions as to seriously injure the business, for it is axiomatic that an efficient, ineffective school is a total waste.

The school trustees should be supported in their efforts to give the best possible school opportunity to every child at a minimum expense to the taxpayer. Democracy demands an educated citizenry. Depression demands a minimum expense.

Small School Costly

We have in Idaho this year 41 high schools wherein the per capita cost is in excess of $135 per enrolled pupils. There is a variation in costs from $72 to $360 per capita for secondary school education in Idaho. The average cost is $124 per year. Not one of the larger high schools exceeds this average. It would, then, seem that the enlarged curriculum of the larger high schools is not the cause of excessive costs but rather it is to be found in the fact that in the smaller schools teachers are devoting their day to classes of two, three, four, five or six pupils, thus making per capita costs high. Take for illustration this situation. A four-year high school of 27 pupils is conducted by three teachers. The teachers have a total assignment of five period each per day. The number of pupils that come under the instruction of each teacher daily is from 35 to 48.

Now compare this with another high school where the average assignment of a high school teacher this year is 180 pupils, with a maximum assignment of 200 pupils.

As a problem in economics, Idaho can ill afford to support a high school where the per capita cost is in excess of $135 if there is any other way of giving an adequate high school opportunity to the pupils of such district. Fewer high schools with larger enrollments will result in less per capita cost locally and lower tuition charges for non-residents, and with all, a better educational opportunity.

This discussion thus far has taken into consideration the four-year high schools only. The one and two-year schools may be readily disposed of on the basis of economies and convenience. Practically all of these organizations are now economically sound—that is, the cost to the local district is less than the tuition costs should there be a cost of more than $135 per capita even in these two-year schools unless geographic conditions make such a school imperative.

The present revision of the Idaho high school course of study is doing much to recheck the whole high school program. If there are subjects now given in the secondary schools of the state that are unnecessary, that are too expensive, that are filled with non-essentials, that are duplications of elementary school work, that are duplications even of college work, the committees on revision will determine. There is a state-wide effort being made to readjust and reorganize secondary education on the basis of life interests, economy, efficiency and the greatest good to the greatest number. Not only do the subjects of the curriculum come in for attention, but methods of teaching, schedules for teachers, library needs, laboratory apparatus, supplies, purchasing methods, records and accounting, and general school administration—all these items are receiving much careful study and redefining.

Leaving the secondary school reche may we look at the elementary schools.

One-Room Schools Costly.

Idaho has 748 one-room schools with an average enrollment of less than 14 pupils. Latah county leads with 75 one-room schools, Jerome county has none, and Bingham county has but one. The per-capita costs in ten typical one-room schools in 1930 was $127.63 on the census basis. In ten typical class A districts, the cost was $50.98; in ten typical independent districts it was $54.60. In other words, the cost of education in these one-room schools is approximately twice as great and yet teachers' salaries and qualifications are decidedly lower and educational opportunities are less attractive.

Idaho must always have a considerable number of one-room schools due to the peculiar geography of the state, but there are many instances where safe and sane consolidations would greatly reduce costs at the same time give a better service. At least 400 of our present school districts could be consolidated to advantage for they are now running at a decided loss. There should be a school in every geographical and social community, but school district lines should not divide natural communities. Consolidations should be promoted from the legal and community interest standpoint.

In this "recheck" it has been found that purchasing school supplies on a county-wide basis, or at least on a larger scale, is not only feasible but economical. Three counties have experimented with this plan and saved about 20 per cent on their purchases.

Illiteracy in Idaho Less.

An illiterate is a person over ten years of age who can not read or write in any language.

Idaho showed an illiteracy of 1.5 per cent in 1920, this we reduced to 1.1 per cent by 1930. Idaho now ranks third in the states of the union in literacy; Iowa leads with .8 per cent, Oregon and Washington tie for second place with 1 per cent and Idaho then follows with 1.1 per cent. It is safe to say that no more than .005 per cent of Idaho's illiterates are Idaho born whites, and of these not more a half dozen can be taught to read or write due to natural mental deficiencies.

Idaho, a very young state, has an educational plan that has effectively placed her at the very head of the list of state in literacy and with present plans completed will be the first state in the union to wipe out this blot on our civilization.

A report from the United States census bureau for 1930 shows that out of 25,247 Idaho youths between 18 and 20 years of age, 8,308 or 32 per cent were attending school, where only 22.3 per cent of this class were attending at the time of the previous census. In every one of the age groups mentioned, Idaho runs well above the national average and indeed Idaho ranks up to and above Massachusetts, "the mother of American education," in all but one group, that of the years from 18 to 20. Idaho is today offering an educational opportunity to a much larger per cent of her children than is the average for the United States.

Recent census figures show that 29 of Idaho's 44 counties decreased in population from 1920 to 1930. The state as a whole showed an increase of but 3 per cent. During this same decade just past, however, the high school enrollment in Idaho increased 79 per cent. Idaho not only cares for its elementary pupils but has been called upon the past ten years to add materially to the secondary school facilities.

The 1928 fiscal census report showed that Idaho was spending about $1 more for state government than the average per capita cost of the 48 state—$11.18 compared to $10.26, but the census report of 1930 showed that Idaho was spending nearly 40 per cent less for her schools than was the average for the 48 states, while at the same time Idaho was spending 35 per cent above the average for highways and more than 50 per cent above the national average for promotion of agriculture.

Along comes the depression of 1930-31. The schools are already low in comparative costs, yet they are hit upon as the ready victim for initial cuts.

In our "proving" of depression conditions in this great business of education, we must be careful to preserve the various departments that deserve a place in the business and education is, above all others, such a department.

Per Capita Outlay Small

Finally, how does the cost of education in Idaho compare with other western states. We have chosen western states because eastern or even midwestern commonwealths are not comparable for many reasons, some of which are teachers' wages, transportation, fuel costs, interest and bonds, and enrollments.

The figures here given have been furnished by the state superintendent of the respective states. The Idaho figures, as all of the others, is based upon enrollments, not census, and takes into account, the total expenditure for the year 1930:

Idaho per capita cost	$96.35
Washington per capita cost	96.44
Utah, per capita cost	102.50
Nevada per capita cost	112.50
Oregon per capita cost	154.35
Montana per capita cost	162.58
New Mexico per capita cost	69.82

It is here readily seen that Idaho is at least giving an economical educational program for the per capita cost is less than any western state reported except New Mexico wherein a very small percentage of census pupils are actually enrolled in the schools.

The school trustees, the school administrators and the school teachers of Idaho are willing to do their part in any program that may tend to make the business of education economical, stable and efficient; however, just because the schools are close at hand and because they happen to be one of the big items of state business, because the children of Idaho maintain no lobby or spread no propaganda, we who represent education wish the public to know the real status of affairs.

It is with the above avowed purpose that these facts are presented. The schools should and will join in any just program of tax reduction, but other departments of state must at the same time bear their just and proportionate shares.

NO GREAT WHITE WAY.

Idaho Falls, the city of municipally-owned power plant, is to be dark after six o'clock every evening and on Sunday nights if the Retail Merchants' association sticks to its promise. Here's an interesting little Associated Press dispatch:

Idaho Falls will be darkened each evening as a result of an action of local retail merchants, based on what they declared was the high commercial lighting rate charged by the municipal plant.

The merchants voted that signs and display windows will not be lighted after 6 o'clock during the week, and 8 o'clock Saturday evenings, and will remain dark on Sunday evenings.

Well, well, what do you know about that? We were under the impression that power was so cheap in Idaho Falls that the good people used it to blow their noses with instead of pocket handkerchiefs.

It seems, however, that the contrary is true, and that the rate is almost prohibitive. A Boise merchant who owns a store there says that power that costs him $900 in Boise, sets him back $2,000 in Idaho Falls. In fairness, however, it is presumable that other classes of electrical use are less to serve the common folks better. One would think, at that, with no taxes to pay, the burden could be better equalized.—Boise Pioneer.

of wheat showing good quality. Australian wheat has not been pressed upon European markets, since the Orient has continued a liberal purchaser, but offerings of new Argentine wheat have increased. Southern hemisphere shipments for the week totaled nearly 5,000,000 bushels. Estimates place the old wheat carry-over in Argentina at 16,500,000 bushels, which together with the official estimate of the new crop, indicates a total supply for the season of around 235,000,000 bushels compared with 251,000,00 bushels a year ago.

Pacific coast markets were rather quiet. Futures at Portland advanced slightly, but cash prices declined as a result of a slow demand. With local quotations above an export basis, no new export sales of wheat were consummated. Domestic inquiry continued of only moderate volume and was confined mostly to immediate needs. Because of its scarcity this season, high protein milling wheat was in urgent demand at firm prices and some 14 per cent protein hard winter was reported purchased from Kansas and Nebraska to supplement the small offerings of high protein wheat from Montana. Receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia river terminals totaled 384 cars for the week, compared with 932 for the corresponding week last year. Wheat and flour shipments from these terminals for the season through December totaled 34,938,000 bushels, compared with 30,802,000 bushels for the corresponding period last year. Oriental and California takings were considerably larger this year, but shipments to Europe were reduced almost two-thirds. At the close of the market January 8, Big Bend Bluestem was 77-78c and other varieties were 63c for white, basis No. 1, sacked Western white was quoted at 64½c and western red at 65c. 16 per cent protein, No. 1 dark northern spring in bulk from Montana was quoted at 95c per bushel.

lature convened it was admitted that "things were bad."

Territorial bonds were authorized by the third legislature to cover the government's indebtedness, bringing, according to the histories, some measure of relief to the struggling taxpayers. The rate of interest, by the way, was 12 per cent.

A Perplexing Problem.

The records of the first three legislatures reveal that taxation was from the very first one of the most perplexing problems with which Idaho has had to deal. At this time, 1865, there were only 12 schools and 1239 pupils in the state, and no tax money was expended for educational purposes.

D. W. Ballard, territorial governor, said in a message to the legislature, "The financial affairs (of the territory) are far from being in a satisfactory condition. The remedy is a most rigid economy and a thorough and stringent revenue law."

It is enlightening to note how well Ballard's statement might be applied to present conditions.

In 1866 we find that the territorial indebtedness had increased to $95,046.99 and the treasury balance was $7,089.91, quite conclusive evidence that the budding young territory was having its financial difficulties.

Only 3840 Tax Payers.

A better idea of the size of the burden is had when one learns that the estimated population at that time was 17,000 whites and 1,000 Chinamen. Of this number only 3480 were taxpayers.

The history of the territorial government from 1866 to 1890, the year Idaho became a state, is largely one of financial troubles. Debts increased faster than revenue accumulated and the territorial legislators were constantly faced with the necessity of devising ways and means to raise additional funds. But despite their best efforts the indebtedness at the time of entering statehood was $236,176, with $35,000 due the following January from the counties, leaving a net obligation to be assumed by the newborn state of some $200,000. The annual cost of the territorial government was about $75,000 and the assessed valuation was 21 millions, according to the records.

The last territorial legislature, meeting in 1888, initiated the branching-out policy which has been so faithfully carried on by the state. In this year $15,000 was appropriated for the University of Idaho at Moscow, to secure grounds and provide for building plans; $15,000 for the asylum, $14,630 for improvement of the capitol grounds and $50,00, a bond issue, to build a wagon road from Mt. Idaho in Idaho county to Little Salmon Meadows in Washington county. Already, so it sems, pressure for public improvements was being brought to bear upon legislators.

In his address to the first state legislature in 1890 Governor George L. Shoup advised that $177,535 be appropriated for state expenses during the first year. This amount, he said, could be reduced later to $130,000, but the governor neglected to take into account the ever-increasing demand and pressure for more and more improvements and governmental service. There was no reduction.

The legislature followed his advice as to the amount and placed a levy of 72 cents per each $100 of the state's 28 millions in assessable property to raise the needed revenue. The levy was apportioned as follows: 65 cents for general purposes, 5 cents for the University of Idaho, and 2 cents for the wagon road fund.

Thus, Idaho, full of high hopes, entered her statehood.

To Investigate Utilities Rates.

Boise—The public utilities commission Wednesday announced all utility companies in the state are being investigated with a view to adjusting rates. Reductions in rates may not result from all cases, the commission stated, but there is an indication of securing rates more nearly in keeping with other commodity prices.

Deputy Game Warden in Genesee.

Walt Driscoll, deputy game warden for Latah county, was in Genesee Wednesday afternoon to investigate the condition of game birds and also to investigate the shooting of pheasants which are being fed in some localities.

Mr. Driscoll, like other deputy wardens, has been placed on half pay during the winter months, and his mileage has been cut to 250 miles per month, which will by no means allow him sufficient travel on pay to cover his territory which reaches into the Elk River country.

Monday he returned from Elk River where he was called to apprehend two boys who were fishing through holes in the ice. Returning Monday afternoon he was stopped by a tree having fallen across the highway and while chopping the tree in two to clear a way, three other trees fell within a short distance, none of which fell across the road. Monday, it will be remembered was the day of high winds.

Dairy Notes

Some farmers consider the conveniences of silage its greatest advantage.

Grain feeding is necessary when cows are on pasture if milk yield is large.

Young calves usually are made sick by over-feeding or feeding from utensils that are unsanitary. Since the calves nurse the cows it is quite likely that they getting too much milk.

Where silage fills a definite and important place in the feeding system, as in feeding dairy cattle, or where a succulent feed is needed to supplement pasture in the summer, the use of the silo may be advisable or necessary.

When one to two weeks old the calf should be taught to eat grain and hay and should have free access to salt. Experiments have shown that corn and grain are suitable and economical supplements to skimmilk.

Silage is used as a substitute for pasturage in winter and as a supplement to short pastures in summer.

Clean dry quarters, clean pails, skimmilk and grain in medium amount, fresh water, and a yard for exercise, make up the requirements for raising calves successfully.

REV. E. R. COTY, MOSCOW, ADDRESSES OPEN FORUM

"Hard physical facts and not psychology are to be dealt with in solving depression problems," said the Rev. Fr. E. R. Coty, Moscow, who addressed the open forum at the Cozy theatre Sunday afternoon.

Rev. Coty, who was assigned the topic of "Economics" explained that he was not an economist, and could not discuss the subject, saying that he would present his personal observations, informing his audience that his predictions may not come true, but did, however, convince his listeners that causes of the depression were not psychological, and if they are he wondered why leaders of industry and those believing the depression to be only mental did not imagine conditions to be better and see us on the road to actual prosperity. Millions of men out of work, if the situation was psychological, could imagine themselves once more employed and be enabled to support their families. The man out of work could order groceries and clothing from the store, and when presented with a statement he could approach his creditor and have him imagine the bill was paid, but such cannot be the means of accomplishing results in relieving the depression.

The World war, said Fr. Coty is the immediate cause of the depression; with the greater percentage of working men in service overseas, it became necessary to invent and manufacture machinery capable of producing many-fold the products produced by hand; farmers were urged to cultivate and plant more land to crops, and when the men returned from overseas, manufactures would not consider returning to pre-war means of manufacture. The machine age, while advantageous during the war emergency is a primary cause of the depression, said Rev. Coty, and until conditions are readjusted, and greed for power and wealth is cast aside, we will be subject to the present-day ailments.

"There is no surplus of grain, with millions of people going hungry," said Father Coty. Our problem today is one of distribution, not only of food but wealth, and until those who control the piles of money sense their obligations to mankind, practice charity and believe in the more equitable disposition of worldy goods, our condition and the world condition cannot be improved.

Father Coty does not blame the present administration for the present state of affairs, saying that the entire world is affected, each nation striving to protect its products by retaliatory measures, placing tariffs on goods which serve to clog the channels of commerce and cause ill feelings between numerous countries. Cupidity is evident in the peace parleys and deliberations of the governments, and the speaker forcibly stated that until the nations assumed an upright Christian attitude, forgetting their selfishness and remembering the promises made, he could see where little was to be accomplished. "Even at the sessions of the League of Nations," Father Coty said "there has never been mention made of the Kingdom of God," and while dealing with

COWCREEKERS ASSERT RIGHTS.

Cowcreekers and other who attended the Rimrockers' dance last Friday evening have filed notice of their determination for a second affair like the one mentioned. When the Legion stated there might be but one dance, protests were fired at officials and members until it is considered the fitting thing to do in order to promote peace and harmony in this part of Latah county.

Argument in favor of a Cowcreekers' dance was heard Wednesday evening at the Legion meeting and there being no defense sufficient to overcome the proposal, it was definitely decided to have the dance on St. Patrick's Day, March 17, at the Legion hall.

LATAH COUNTY LOSES ONE STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Latah county will be compelled to struggle along with but two state representatives in the next session of the legislature because there was an insufficient number of voters went to the polls at the last general state and county elections. Following the vote cast at the last presidential election Latah county polled a sufficient number of votes to entitle this political subdivision of the Gem state to three representatives. This is often the result of presidential election years, and leaves one in doubt whether it is the most satisfactory method of determining the number of representatives.

There is a possibility, however, that Latah county can manage in some manner to overcome this handicap of losing a representative when it is remembered that six other counties also lost. Ada and Twin Falls counties, on southern Idaho lost a representative apiece, as did Bonner, Nez Perce, Idaho and Kootenai, all of the north part of Idaho, which taken together reduces the number of representatives in the next house to 63, about 63 more than are actually needed, when each county sends to Boise a senator, which, when assembled, number 44.

The number of representatives being determined by the total vote cast for governor leads one to the assumption that the politicians don't want the chief executive to have too much to say unless he is accord with the views of the house members.

CULDESAC TO PRESENT BENEFIT PLAY IN GENESEE

Culdesac local talent will present a three-act comedy here Saturday January 30, proceeds from which will go into the high school athletic association treasury, the cast which presented "Applesauce" here a few weeks ago, having presented the same play at Culdesac recently for the benefit of the Culdesac school.

The play will be presented first at Culdesac January 29.

Members of the cast which went to Culdesac with "Applesauce" severally expressed their appreciation of the courtesies shown them while at Culdesac and they hope that Genesee can cooperate with them in returning the favors.

OPEN HOUSE AT SCHOOL SCHEDULED FOR MONDAY

Open house will be held Monday, January 25 at 7:30 o'clock when a short program will be presented after which the parents will have an opportunity of visiting and meeting the teachers in their respective rooms to discuss work of the students.

Genesee Wins a Triple-Header.

The first conference win for the local boys came Friday evening when they took Culdesac into camp 30 to 8. Genesee's offense was the fastest and most ferocious shown this season, short passes, quick breaks and accuracy on field goals and foul shots marked the way to a victory. Every member of the team was checking close and made good scoring chances although it was difficult to get by their opponents. The pocket city boys were off at the basket and were outplayed by Genesee.

Howard Blume hit his scoring stride accounting for 14 tallies. George Blume and George Smylie featured in practically every play, both outscoring their respective opponents. Wishard and Rinehart made the scoring of close-ups plenty difficult. Robert Broemmeling and Don Springer substituted for Smylie and Wishard.

The team meets Kendrick at Kendrick the 29th in their next conference game and plenty is expected of them.

Genesee girls captured a victory over the St. Boniface girls by a score of 28 to 22. This game was very pleasing to Genesee spectators, and the girls have shown marked improvement. Edna Hasfurther accounted for most of Genesee's points and seems to have acquired a real basket eye since the last game.

The second team boys defeated the St. Bonifice boys 25 to 15, showing up some talent for future ball teams.

Genesee boys lost to Moscow Comrades in a practice game Tuesday afternoon. The Genesee boys droppea it hard, 30 to 19. They started slowly, due probably to under-estimating the ability of their opponents and when they found out the type of ball they had to play, it was too late. The first half ended 15 to 7 in favor of Moscow.

It is hoped that we can arrange a game for Wednesday the 26th with Troy. The girls and second team go to Uniontown Friday.

Eighth Grade.

The eighth grades members are very busy taking examinations. Those who participate are Arthur Whitted, Pine Grove; Ralph Stuecker, public school; Joe Schooler, Grey Eagle; Rose Krick, Leon, and Marion Holben and Ernest Theuerkauf, both of the Sheaffer school.

Third and Fourth Grades.

The fourth grade has complted several attractive posters. One depicts Washington at Valley Forge; another is entitled "Be Kind to the Birds in Winter," while "Seven Little Sisters of Journey Land" correlates with our geography work. At present we are enjoying a visit to the Far North.

The third grade is going through a period of intensive drill on the multiplication facts. Their spare time is taken up with seat work designed to supplement and strengthen the work of the basel reader. It covers a wide range of subjects, including among others, nature studies, language, exercises, drawing, comprehension tests, paper cutting, studies of the flag, teeth vocabulary games and recreational exercises.

First and Second Graues.

The primary folks have been working on an Eskimo project. They are making an Eskimo booklet and fixing up the sand table like Eskimo land. The Eskimo dogs are very realistic. Billie Emerson sawed them out of blocks of wood after which Della Stout, Jean Schooler and Marjorie Springer took the dogs home and covered them with fur. In studying about the Eskimo people, the children were surprised to learn of the difference in living, especially to find the reason for their slow progress in reading. Their lamps are no brighter than the light from a match, therefore they could not read by such a light or they would lose their vision.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

Now we are all ready to start the last half of the year. Some of us are going to try to keep our good work up and others are going to do better. There are five who had perfect in spelling since school started. They are Dorothy Follett, Rowena Nordby, Bonnie Hayden, Mona Myers, Loren Kambitsch. Rita Loncosty is the only one in the sixth grade who has had

GRAIN MARKET REVIEW FOR WEEK ENDING JANUARY 15

In the absence of an active demand domestic grain markets were dull during the week ending January 15 and future prices ranged from about unchanged for wheat to slightly lower for most feed grains, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Cash markets were more irregular than futures. Wheat prices were somewhat lower for winters, but slightly higher for red spring as a result of some increase in protein premiums.

Wheat

World wheat markets continued to be dominated by the generally unsettled economic and financial conditions. Decreasing supplies of native wheat in Europe, together with some reduction in the North American surplus, have been strengthening influences, but these are being offset by increased offerings of southern hemisphere wheat and a continued slow demand for foreign grain. Bread grains in the principal deficit countries of Europe have declined as compared with a year ago, with good milling wheat at Hamburg quoted at $1.46 3-8 on January 15, compared with about $1.20 a year ago. French wheat is about 9¼ cents lower than at this time last year, with good native milling grain now quoted at Paris at $1.63 3-4.

Danish wheat at Copenhagen was quoted January 15 at 56½c, or around 19 cents lower than a year ago. Generally favorable weather for marketing the new crop was reported in Argentine and the week's shipments totaled about 2,750,000 bushels.

Australian shipments increased to 6,500,000 bushels and about 1,500,000 bushels were shipped from Russia during the week. Stocks on ocean passage were reported at 31,352,000 bushels, or about 6,000,000 bushels more than at the corresponding time last year.

Pacific Coast Markets

Pacific Coast markets were generally steady although demand was dull and trading of only moderate volume. Receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia River terminals totaled 635 cars, composed mostly of deliveries for shipment on sales to China. Prices at Portland and Seattle held about unchanged and steady under a fairly active inquiry from domestic mills. No export sales of wheat or flour were reported, since local wheat prices are above an export basis. Oriental demand was being supplied principally with Australian and Canadian wheats. At the close of the market January 15 B. B. Bluestem hard white was quoted at Portland at 77c and other varieties at 63 to 63½c per bushel, sacked basis No. 1. Western white and western red wheats were quoted at Seattle on the same date at 64½ to 65½ and hard white at 78c.

Vancouver markets were reported quiet, with No. 1. Canadian Manitoba quoted at 58c per bushel, Canadian currency. Additional snow cover during the week furnished good protection to wheat and assured deep subsoil moisture.

Arrests Foreign License Driver.

Traffic Officer Harry Clark, who was in Genesee Thursday morning, reports the arrest of W. Parker, Moscow, who was operating his automobile as a resident of Idaho. Appearing before Justice Barge he was fined $15 and costs of $3.

Those who are making their home in Idaho on and after January 1, 1932 are not permitted to operate a motor vehicle bearing a foreign license. Residents of Idaho, who have been driving cars with a 1931 Idaho license are, however, given until March 31 to secure the new 1932 plates.

Returning from Elk River, Officer Clark reports five feet of snow in the city of Elk River with an additional two feet on Neva Hump, where three caterpillar tractors and a plow are required to keep the highway open.

Mr. Clark, in pursuance of duties and instructions from the department of law enforcement at Boise, wishes to inform drivers that it is compulsory to have lights tested. It is a matter of safety and may be the means of avoiding accidents if lights are tested at frequent intervals.

No charge is made for light testing unless adjustments are necessary or parts are needed. The official lighting testing station for Genesee is located at the Gencsee Supply Service Station at the building formerly occupied by Meyer & Son, where certificates are issued and the accompanying windshield sticker which signifies that headlights are o. k.

JUNIOR PROM.

One of the outstanding events of the season occurs tonight (Thursday) as the juniors of the Genesee high school stage their annual "prom". For this happy occasion the juniors have secured Walt Allen's band, the dance to be held at the high school gymnasium. It is a public affair and everyone is invited. A charge of seventy-five cents is made for dancers and twenty-five cents for spectators.

CONSTITUTIONALITY OF NEW INCOME TAX TO BE TESTED

Proof that the Idaho state income tax law, as passed by the last session of the legislature is meeting with disapprovel is supported by an agreement to test its constitutionality, the Governor, attorney general and state auditor agreeing to test the case in the supreme court as soon as possible that a decision may be had before March 15 when tax payments are due.

Under the proposal to test the law, the governor, it is said, will write a letter to the auditor asking his cooperation in the test by refusing to issue warrants to employes of the state tax commission. When the auditor refuses to issue a warrant, a writ to compel him will be sworn out by the tax commissioner and the action then will be immediately put in the supreme court.

An agr ment of the state chamber of commerce to employ an attorney to defend Auditor Gallett has been reached, Attorney General Babcock said, and the attorney general's office will prosecute the case in support of the law.

RIMROCKERS STAGE BEST DANCE OF THE SEASON

The Rimrockers came to town in full strength last Friday night and gave a splendid demonstration of how one's troubles may be dispelled, employing an orchestra of five pieces to aid in their manisfestation of gloom-chasing. Mrs. Nick Wagner was at the piano; Dick Green, banjo; Roy Emerson, violin; Joe Broemmeling, cornet, and Sim Currin, drums.

The crowd began to assemble early in the evening, the dance starting off rather timidly, but as the hours advanced the crowded floor of dancers swung into a pace that taxed the ability of many to keep up. Each succeeding hour found the dance becoming better and better, until at three o'clock the following morning, when Henry Lorang sang the Rimrockers' song and gave the "coyote" yell as a signal for the final dance.

Square dances, circle two-steps, tag waltzes and the more modern dances were featured throughout the evening, there being no existing doubt at the the close that this was one of the best dances in years.

This dance was sponsored by the American Legion, which organization served lunch at the mid-night hour.

Public Card Party.

The public is invited to attend the Card Party Sunday evening, January 24 at the K. C. hall, which will start at 8 o'clock. Lunch will be served at the conclusion of play. ad

OROFINO DOES NOT PROTEST ACTION OF RAILROAD CO.

According to the Clearwater Tribune citizens of Orofino did not protest the action of the Camas Prairie Railroad company, that of taking off the schedule one of the trains operating between Lewiston, Orofino and points above. The Tribune had the following to say relative to a meeting held there: "A few members made remarks but all favored letting the Camas Prairie discontinue the service as far as Orofino is concerned. A motion that the protest be withdrawn was finally passed and the secretary of the meeting instructed to so inform the Idaho Public Utilities commission.

"This action means that unless Lewiston and communities between there and Orofino protest the railway petition that schedules 327 and 328 will be taken out of service in the near future. This service is provided by a motor coach which makes a round trip daily, leaving Orofino at 7:05 a. m. and arriving from Lewiston at 3:00 p. m. and tying up here overnight. It will leave in service the steam train which arrives here at 10:00 a. m. and returns from Stites at 1:20 p. m., reaching Lewiston at 3:30 p. m.

"It was brought out at the meeting that connections on the steam train going to and from Spokane would be inconvenient for passengers and some mail, but that the Gaffney stages and Spokane-Lewiston stages could arrange their schedules to overcome this inconvenience for passengers, express and very likely mail. In other instances the postoffice department has granted to stage lines the privilege of operating supplementary star mail routes wherever it was possible to expedite delivery and it was thought that such an arrangement could be secured here. Consequently discontinuance of the motor coach would not necessarily impair transportation service for Orofino."

SEMESTER REGISTRATION AT UNIVERSITY, JANUARY 29-30

University of Idaho—January 29 and 30 will be registration days for new students enrolling at the University of Idaho for the second semester and for returning old students who have been out of college for a semester or more, according to the second semester registration schedule announced by Miss Ella L. Oleson, university registrar. Students now on the campus have been registering since January 4, under a new system which eliminates interference with their regular classwork. January 21 is the last date for students in residence the first semester to file their study lists for the second semester. January 28 is the last date for payment of fees for the second semester. All university exercises begin February 1.

IDAHO CONFIDENT ITS ITS EARLY DAYS OF STATEHOOD

(By Glenn Balch)

After some 27 years of successful navigation on the stormy territorial sea, the budding young commonwealth of Idaho, upon entering statehood, was nothing if not confident. Indeed she might have been a wee bit cocksure, and not unjustly so, for hadn't she just achieved the magnificence of a free and equal member of the Union?

The little matter of a $160,556 indebtedness that had accumulated during territorial days and the obligation to pay which had been inherited by the infant state was apparently no embarrassment. The public fathers of those days were neither weak-hearted nor given to superficial emotions. Their's was to run a state—and they proposed to do it in regular he-man fashion.

About this time the world was becoming all agog over the prospect of the world's Columbian Exposition that would be held in Chicago in 1893, the stupendous magnificence of which would surpass, according to the advance literature, anything of that nature ever before attempted.

Would Idaho be represented? Most assuredly! The young state was ready to take her place in the sun and if that required an exhibit at the world's fair, then an exhibit she would have, and there would be nothing cheap about it.

So the first legislature, with perfect indifference to the fact that the treasury balance was written in red ink, appropriated $20,000 for Idaho's representation at the Chicago fair in 1893. Mr. James M. Wells was appointed "fair commissioner" to have charge of the exhibit, which according to popular opinion should take the form of a log structure.

Twenty thousand dollars was not sufficient to completely finance the project, as the legislators were evidently aware, but it seems—this point is not brought out clearly—a certain private individual, who is not named, had agreed, at least by implication, to supply, on the condition that the state make the initial appropriation, the additional funds necessary to give Idaho such representation as would befit a new and rising commonwenlth.

$30,000 More Needed.

However, something went haywire, as something frequently does, and as the months rolled by these additional funds were not forthcoming. Commissioner Wells was forced to hold up production. The 1893 legislature met. What, no exhibit? Well, well, something must be done about that! Something was. The legislature calmly appropriated the additional $30,000 needed and Mr. Wells sent a train of 18 cars loaded with various kinds of Idaho logs, building stone and so forth speeding towards Chicago.

It must not be supposed that the legislature was taking advantage of the public in this matter of appropriations for the world's fair exhibit. Nothing could be farther from the truth. The public was just as indifferent to the status of the treasury as the law-makers. There was a definite and emphatic demand upon the part of the people for representation. Wasn't Idaho a new state? Didn't she need advertising? Wouldn't thousands of people, many with their eyes already fixed on the rapidly developing west, visit the exposition?

The general opinion was that the exhibit would be many times more valuable to the new state in attracting new blood and new capital than it would cost; and the American public is an insatiable bargain-hunter. Whether the venture proved to be the economic boon anticipated is difficult to ascertain; but Idaho was represented, and capably, at the exposition.

"Idaho's Chalet."

The Gem state exhibit, referred to as Idaho' chalet, was an imposing two-story log structure "in the modified form of a Swiss chalet, built on a lava rock foundation of logs representing 20 different kinds of Idaho timber." It was, according to one observer, one of the "most unique and original structures in Jackson Park."

On the front wall, high up under the projecting roof, was "the seal of the state and a mounted specimen of a stag." The so-called stag was the head and neck of an elk. A railed balcony was affixed to at least three sides of the building and the front entrance was through an archway of rugged lava rock.

Inside were fireplaces of white marble, basaltic rock and pressed brick. One room was a mica hall, another a hunter's lodge. Mounted game animals served as ornaments. One object of unusual interest was a rifle that had belonged to Captain Jack, the famous Modoc Indian chief.

Wells Praised.

In a descriptive publication concerning the exposition Commissioner Wells received the following commendation: "Through his (Well's) persistent and well-directed efforts, a region rich in resources and possibilities, but before comparatively unknown, has taken rank with many of the older and more populous sections."

In another place the publication refers to the Idaho grain exhibit as including "some remarkable samples," one of which was "cornstalks more than twice the height of a man and on which there are several cobs." In other places references are made to "Idaho's preserved prunes, grapes, egg plant, radishes and other fruits," and to the "high quality prunes and dried fruits from Idaho." A half a page is given to a description of Idaho mining possibilities, stating that in addition to precious metals, gold and silver and so forth, the state had an abundance of coal, iron and sulphur.

Thus did Idaho, young but vigorous, take her place in the sun of a world's fair way back in '93 at a cost to the taxpayers of $50,000, which in those days was a lot of money.

GOODING RESIDENT DIES AT ADVANCED AGE OF 113

Gooding Leader: Elias Arkoosh, whose unusual advanced age had attracted attention in southern Idaho for many years, passed away at his home northeast of Gooding, shortly after midnight January 14, 1932. He had passed the century mark in 1918 and had attracted the ripe old age of 113 years and 9 months. He had lived here with his son, J. E. Arkoosh, for many years.

The aged man had been ill only since Friday preceding his death, when he contracted a cold and lung trouble which resulted in his death. The day before he took ill he had been up and around as usual and had eaten his usual meals. He also had shown his remarkable physical powers that day by lifting a chair with one rung with one hand. For the past 15 years he had enjoyed his second eyesight and read without glasses.

The funeral services were conducted Saturday morning from the Catholic church, with Rev. James Buesmans in charge. Burial was in the Gooding cemetery.

Elias Arkoosh was born at Bret-Arkoosh in Syria, April 15, 1818. Abraham Lincoln was a boy of only 9 years at the time. The War of 1812 had been over only three years. Mr. Arkoosh was 43 years old when the Civil war broke out. He was considerable of a warrior himself, having taken part in guerilla warfare waged by the Christians of southeastern Europe against the Turks in 1860.

His physical strength even after he had passed the century mark was remarkable. Illustrating his power and agility he performed the stunt of standing on his head on the courthouse lawn here several years ago one summer day after he was 100 years old. The bent back so common to the aged never troubled Mr. Arkoosh. His back was straight as a pin up to the end. Though his walk was halting in his later years, he carried himself always erect.

Knowing his uncommon physical powers after he became a centenarian his friends here do not wonder at the stories of his physical prowess in the days of his young manhood. He was wont to regale his grandchildren with stories of physical combat, especially of the time he whipped a gang of seven Turks single handed. He was generally believed to have been the strongest man in Asia Minor. As an athlete he won numerous contests, particularly in weight lifting, wrestling, swordsmanship and swimming.

His life work was that of a merchant, especially a salesman of rugs. In Syria he conducted a store for many years before he came to the United States in 1881. His specialty was Persian rugs, on which he was an expert. He loved to travel and his work as salesman enabled him to visit almost every country on the globe, and after coming to America to visit every state in the Union. His custom was to establish himself in a store for a few days with his rugs and those interested would have a chance to buy his wares in that way. During the last years of his active life he peddled merchandise in southern Idaho. His last store was at Salt Lake City, Utah.

Except for three trips back to Syria, the last in 1891, he spent the past half century in the United States.

He was married in 1874 at the age of 56. His wife died in Syria in 1904 and a daughter passed away in 1905. His only surviving child is now J. E. Arkoosh of this city.

He was a great reader, especially since retiring from active life, and was particularly well posted on ancient history. His reading was largely confined to Syrian books and periodicals.

How much his diet had to do with his longevity is not known, but the one main item of his diet was meat. He also emphasized vegetables and fruit in his diet, but he ate his vegetables uncooked. Sweets and pastries he almost entirely tabooed.

FRUIT COCKTAILS FINE

THE modern hostess has discovered that there is no more tempting way of beginning a luncheon or dinner than by serving a cool delicious fruit cocktail. But she does not confine cocktails to these hours, by any means. Frequently she serves them to guests for tea, or at an evening party, arranging the colorful fruit in crystal clear glasses, which she places on a dainty tray, spread with gay linen.

The variety of fruits at the disposal of the housewife today is so great that there is no danger of monotony. She might easily serve a different cocktail every day. Canned fruits come to her from the ends of the earth, and new combinations and new flavors are constantly being introduced.

A Real Treat

If you have not formed the fruit cocktail habit, you have a treat in store for you. You will find the fresh tart fruit juices a real appetizer for the hot days of late summer. Here are a number of recent recipes including many favorite fruits.

Blueberry Cocktail: Combine contents of a No. 2 can blueberries and three tablespoons lemon juice, arrange in glasses and chill. Just before serving, slice two bananas, and place a circle of banana rings upright around edge of glasses. Serve immediately. This serves eight.

Pear Cocktail: Cube and divide into six cocktail glasses contents of a No. 2 can of pears, and pour over them the pear syrup. Add one tablespoon grenadine syrup to each glass, and chill well. This serves six and costs about thirty-seven cents.

Orange and Tomato Juice Cocktail: Strain a No. 2 can of tomatoes, not pressing the pulp or the juice will be cloudy. Add the juice of two oranges, two teaspoons sugar and a few grains of salt, and serve, ice cold, in small glasses. Cost twenty-one cents. This serves six.

Waikiki Cocktail: Arrange two eight-ounce cans of figs, cut in suitable pieces and two eight-ounce cans of grapes in cocktail glasses. To the fig and grape syrup add the juice of two lemons and the juice of one orange, and pour over the fruit. Garnish on top with tiny cubes of guava and mint jelly. This serves eight.

More Cocktails

Ginger Cocktail: Drain and dice a No. 1 can apricots and arrange in glasses with one cup diced sliced pineapple. Place peeled sections of three oranges, petal fashion, around edges of glasses. Decorate tops with three tablespoons of raspberries, strawberries or maraschino cherries. Sprinkle candied ginger over, and add one teaspoonful ginger syrup to each glass. Just before serving, pour over one-half cup ginger ale. This serves eight.

Macedoine Fruit Cocktail: Drain the syrup from a No. 2½ can of fruits for salad. To it add four tablespoons sugar and one tablespoon preserved ginger syrup and cook to a thick syrup. Cool. Cut fruit in small pieces, add the syrup and dispose in serving glasses. Just before serving, pour over some iced ginger ale, and decorate with bits of angelica. This serves six to eight.

Cherry and Almond Cocktail: Empty a No. 2 can Royal Ann cherries into a sauce pan, color a rich red, and simmer three minutes. Add one-fourth cup confectioner's sugar, one-fourth cup lemon juice and one-fourth cup maraschino cherry juice, and let cool. Then cut slits in each cherry and remove pits. Cut one cup almonds in half lengthwise and insert a piece in each cavity. Place cherries carefully in cocktail glasses with the nut ends protruding upward like acorns. Pour over the syrup, and chill in ice box. This serves eight to ten.

Mrs. Frank Hoorman was hostess to the members of the Linger Longer club Wednesday afternoon, serving luncheon following a social afternoon.

Miss Alice Hanson, who is one of the teachers in the deaf and mute school at Sioux Falls, S. D., also is basket ball coach. Early in December she slipped on the playing floor and fractured her spine and was placed in a cast for one week, and since has been required to undergo treatments. She is now able to resume her class room work. She teaches the fourth grade and has six boys and two girls in the room. She finds the work at the school interesting and is proud of a winning basket ball team.

STATE INCOME TAXPAYERS WILL HAVE LITTLE TO PAY

Those "afflicted" with salaries and incomes in the higher brackets will have little to worry about when the time comes for paying the state income tax, while the earner of small wages will have nothing to bother him when it comes to paying the levy on incomes.

The incomes on which a levy will be made are to be reckoned from July 1 to December 31, a half year, providing the law as enacted by the last session of the legislature is found constitutional, as written.

A levy of 1 per cent will be made on the first $2,000 of net income, after deductions, each succeeding $2,000 in income taking an additional 1 per cent until a person earns $6,000 or more, when the levy remains stationery.

There is a possibility that it will cost the state of Idaho more to collect six months' taxes than will be realized in revenue, when it must be taken into consideration that more officers will be needed, with clerical and printing bills to be added thereto.

WANTED—A PAPER BALER.

While inventors are being discouraged in bringing out new mechanical contrivances to eliminate the human worker, someone should come to the relief of the newspapers with the invention of a paper baler, to be employed during the approaching election campaign. Already, likely candidates and those opposing candidates for reelection to the office which they now hold, are flooding the mails with propaganda intended to further their cause or knock a few votes away from the other fellow. It is possible that these candidates who are venturing out early are of the opinion that the early bird catches the most worms, and are the ones who will be successful at the polls in the direct primary May 24. Judging from the sprouts already showing, the primary crop will be the largest even known in Idaho, though political writers express the opinion that there will be few seeking the offices with the lower salaries. And when one looks over the candidates already mentioned, the name of J. Wesley Holden, Idaho Falls, is brought to attention by a circular, which marks him as no tender shoot. He started his campaign several weeks ago, and seems to be thriving on early-campaign fodder. From him comes an abundant supply of material, proposing him for candidate for United States senator.

Getting back to the paper baler—the sooner we are able to secure one the better for this is going to be a long old campaign, the propaganda is going to come faster and faster—too fast to be accommodated by our waste paper baskets and stove.

HALFWAY TO UPTOPIA: IN SCANDINAVIA

By R. H. Markham

Mr. Markham, correspondent in the Balkans for the Christian Science Monitor, has been traveling northward. He has recorded his impressions in a series of articles, of which this is the first:

Gothenburg, Sweden.

Scandinavia is a land of solved problems, of realized ideals. It consists of two peninsulas, three countries and hundreds of islands, on all of which live 12,000,000 people, most of whom are tall, long-faced, light-haired, very serious and quite genial.

One of the peninsulas resembles an enormous sack hanging from a curtain ring, encircling the north pole. Most of it is quite empty and frigid, covered with deep snows, which retreat during only the brightest part of the nightless summer. The bulging lower part, however, dangling amid warmer seas, is verdant and smiling, filled with wealth and people, high church steeples and red wooden houses. It is divided lengthwise into two countries, Norway and Sweden, which together are far larger than any other land in Europe except Russia.

The other Scandinavian peninsula, Denmark, about twice as big as the state of Massachusetts, is level, verdant and sunny, mounting up like a tassel amid seas and straits and sounds to meet its giant neighbor swinging down from the arctic circle.

One can very easily look east from Denmark over the waters to Sweden and cross them on frequently plying ferryboats in half an hour. Although Denmark is an integral part of the European continent, fastened onto Germany like an oblong handle, in its traditions, history, civilization and affiliations it is unmistakably a part of Scandinavia.

Still one should not infer from this that the Scandinavians are altogether different from the rest of Europe. They are Teutons, and their houses, public buildings, habits and temperaments constantly remind one of the other branches of that racial family. German civilization, wherever it exists, from Cluj in Roumania to Strasbourg in France, from Ljubjana in Jugoslavia to Rattvik in Sweden, can immediately be distinguished even by a casual observer.

And very few Teutonic peoples have worked out such satisfactory ways of living as the Scandinavians. One proof of this is that they are not so very much in the news of the day. People throughout the world do not rush for their morning papers in order to see what is going on in Oslo or Copenhagen. Scandinavia is not making a fuss about reparations, or war debts, or gangsters, of freedom-seeking colonies, or shaking empires, or treaty revision. It is not terrified by "reds," nor enraged at Fascists; it threatens no neighbors and feels menaced by none.

Scandinavia has poise; it has attained equlibrium. Not the poise of an immovable rock, but of a rich harvest season; not the equilibrium of stagnation, but of productive springtime, of utilized, regulated power.

The people of Scandinavia have passed a road along which many nations are still struggling. For example, they have disposed of their history in an exceeding satisfactory way. And this is no small matter, since history is often a troublesome tempter.

All three Scandinavian peoples have had plenty of past glories. Denmark was once a "great power." It exercised dominion over far-flung lands and gave a dynasty even to so strong a country as England. Swedish kings conquered large parts of Europe, dominating international councils. The Norsemen ruled the waves and extensive coasts, discovering America and settling many distant lands.

These were among the most powerful people in Europe and held sway over countries far from their capitals. But now that they have contracted, they have attained a normal state. They have established natural boundaries, found their rightful place in the world and are content. They are not lying back on their oars nor drifting, but have discovered their best course and their best gait and are moving ahead with the least strain.

They are among the happy little nations, better off in many ways than the great powers.

In their international relations they serve as a model to most other peoples. This achievement is not due to any accident nor to the lack of problems, but to the overcoming of grave difficulties. The Scandinavian peoples have fought many wars with one another. They have all suffered past injustices which they might remember. They have conquered, subjugated, oppressed and exploited one another. There have been "tyrants" and "slaves"; they have carried on struggles for liberation, had lands to be redeemed and wrongs to be redressed.

In other words, they possess all the fuel that usually keeps enmities flaming. Yet, in spite of this, the three countries live in complete harmony, cooperating in scores of fields and settling all disputes by legal methods. For a century they have been at peace with one another and all have reduced their armies to a minimum. They take pride in peace rather than in war, and devote their energies to national progress rather than to national defense.

Then again, they have resolved or are resolving in an almost ideal way the conflict between town and country, between the villagers and their city cousins. At present, this is one of humanity's greatest problems. The peasants have raised themselves to a level of well-being, culture and political power attained in but few other places.

And in spite of the rapid growth of industry, also, relations between workers and employers have been less strained than in many other lands. The workers have organized themselves; there have been very strong Socialist parties and advanced social laws have been passed and are enforced, yet the conflict has always been marked by such moderation and by a lack of panic and fear.

But from all this it must not be supposed that the Scandinavians are prosaically or dull. The Scandinavian capitals are noted art centers. In sculpture, architecture, painting, literature and drama, these peoples have won great distinction. The beautiful, the harmonious and the exquisite are vital elements in their lives.

These are lands with attained aspirations. Vast somber forests; sheer mysterious fjords; smiling plains; countless lakes; deserts of snow; the midnight sun diffusing all with an aluring glow; unsurpassed factories; fields that yield the maximum; record breaking farm animals; artists known throughout Europe; care for the weak and unfavored; progress without fury; democracy without confusion, and over all the fecund spirit of peace; that is what one finds in Scandinavia.

THOMAS FITZGERALD WRITES TO INQUIRE ABOUT FRIENDS

652½ Lafayette Avenue
Brooklyn, N. Y.

To the Editor Genesee News
Genesee, Idaho.

It is over 15 years since I left out there, but I have often thought of the dear old Palouse country since then. I was away in France and the British Isles during the war and got back to the U. S. A. and in 1921 I made a trip to Germany. I have been here in New York and vicinity for the past ten years.

Now I am not writing a history or anything of the kind; my object in writing you is: I want you to send me a copy of your paper, also let me know what it costs for a year's subscription. I don't know who the editor is in Genesee. I wonder if you were there at the time I left.

Well anyway give my regards to Otto Kretschmer, T. Driscoll and Fred Hampton. I hope they are all well and in the pink of perfection.

Business is very slow here and according to reports all over, but I hope things will pick up again in the near future.

Well I will conclude for the present, hoping to hear from you soon.

Very truly yours
Thomas J. Fitzgerald.

Monte Odberg and Gladys Harms motored to Moscow Sunday evening.

Plenty of Weather During Week.

The Genesee section of the Palouse has witnessed almost every brand of weather except zero coldness during the past week. Friday was clear and chilly, Saturday being almost the same until snow began falling about noon which increased until the ground was again well covered by dark. Snow continued to fall during the night with some drifting. Sunday saw a continuance of falling snow, until it was more than a foot deep on the level. A high wind came up Sunday evening and with a light but moist snow, it drifted considerable. About midnight the snow turned to rain which continued all day Monday and Monday evening packing the snow and turning most of it to slush. Tuesday and Wednesday remained warm but cloudy. Thursday the sun was bright but the air was chilly, maintaining a freezing temperature in the shaded places until noon.

Treats 45 Head Horses and Mules.

Dr. T. A. Elliot completed parasite treatments on 45 head of horses and mules belonging to Nick Wagner, and it is thought this is the largest number treated for any individual this season. Mr. Wagner is a firm believer in treating work animals for parasites, especially as the country grows older, which tends to increase parasitic matter in animals.

TAX LEAGUE MEETS.

The Latah County Taxpayers' league held an enthusiastic and well attended meeting at the court house Saturday, January 16. F. B. Leeper of Lewiston gave a talk in his (Nez Perce county) as well as the Latah county organization. He was followed by Judge L. G. Peterson who explained the expenses of his office and compared them with the expenses of the probate court in some of the other counties in the state.

He was followed by W. Q. Taylor, assessor, who gave an outline of the work in his office and pointed out the great amount of work being done by his office for the state for which the county does not receive any pay.

Sheriff Summerfield gave a summary of the expenses of his office, pointing out that the expenses of operating the jail are charged to his office. The amount expended in 1931 for this purpose was $4,120.60. To offset this there has been collected from the federal government the sum of $5,521.50 for the board of federal prisoners, making the jail a source of income to the amount of $1,400.90, besides boarding the county prisoners. The sheriff's office has also collected fees to the amount of $1,246.58 which has been turned into such funds as the law prescribes.

Auditor Thatcher declared that the amount of the budget is immaterial as long as it is high enough to cover all probable expenses of the office.

J. A. Harsh of Deary spoke of his experience at the legislature and urged taxpayers to take a lively interest in the study of the tax problem in order that public sentiment be crystalized in support of better tax laws. The entire board of county commissioners was in attendance and Chairman Nordby made a number of explanations of points not generally known by the public.

Homer Estes, president of the Moscow chamber of commerce announced the state chamber of commerce meeting at Lewiston January 21 and 22.

The meeting was then adjourned, subject to the call of the president.

Erick Oller,
President, Latah County Taxpayers League.

COEUR d'ALENE CITIZENS FAVOR MUNICIPAL PLANT

One thousand, six hundred eighty-nine citizens of Coeur d'Alene voted in favor of their city operating a municipally-owned electric light and water plant at the election held Tuesday. Five hundred twenty-eight citizens opposed the proposal in one the bitterest campaigns in the history of the city, the taxpayers league working against the movement.

Mayor Jess Simpson and members of his council, elected last spring on a platform promising municipal ownership of the light and water facilities will not be required to float a bond issue in an aggregate sum of $650,000. Whether the city would acquire facilities for generation of electricity or would purchase current and use its own distribution plant has not been decided.

Moscow Man Admits Guilt.

E. S. Wilson of Moscow, who caused the death of Robert Senter, 17, of Lewiston, when the car which he was driving forced a truck off the road in which the Senter youth was riding, waived preliminary hearing last August following the accident and was held to the district court. Appearing before Judge Gillies D. Hogde, district judge on Tuesday, Wilson was accompanied by relatives only, and without an attorney, he pleaded guilty to the charge of manslaughter, leaving himself at the mercy of the court. Wilson is an elderly man and it is understood that he has made a settlement with relatives of Senter.

Sentence will perhaps not be made until Friday after the court hears character witnesses and learns more of Wilson's mental and physical condition. He is said to be about sixty-five years of age.

SUMMARY AND CONCLUSION OF GOVERNMENT ECONOMY

(By Fred E. Lukens.)

This is the sixteenth and last of the series of articles on "Economy in Government in Idaho," by the writer, the first of which appeared on September 30, 1931. In the course of the series it has been the aim of the author to outline a plan for revision of state and county government which would result in a saving of public funds without decreasing any of the service which is now rendered to the people of the state.

The word "economy" is derived from two Greek words which literally mean, the managing of a house. In this series an attempt has been made to plan a structure for state and county government which will result in greater coordination of activities than has existed before. It has been the writer's effort to weave every article of the series around the principle that the state's and counties' fundamental activities should be performed by officers appointed by elected executives. Thus there is a definite fixing of responsibility.

The definite recommendations that have been made for the simplification of the structure of government are as follows:

1. The combining of the Budget Bureau and Bureau of Supplies in one office, the executive of which is to be appointed by the Board of Examiners. By this plan the Board of Examiners, upon whom is placed the constitutional duty of passing upon claims before they are paid, would have authority in initiating expenditures. Tremendous saving would result.

2. All departmental expenditures should be budgeted and the budgets passed upon by the legislature. It is not generally known that the State Highway expenditures, which for the last biennium amounted to over twelve million dollars, are not budgeted. Neither are the expenditures of the Fish and Game department, which are more than the annual cost of all of the state's elective offices.

3. Abolishing the Department of Public Investments, and assigning its duties to the State Treasurer, with the State Land Board supervising the loans of endowment funds.

4. Combining the Bureau of Public Accounts with the Auditor's office.

5. Continuing the State Board of Equalization, and giving to that board additional supervisory powers with authority to appoint a State Tax Commissioner who would be the board's executive officer, its fact-finding agency and the collector of all special taxes.

6. Abolishing the Department of Law Enforcement, and assigning its duties to other officers.

7. Abolishing the office of State Superintendent, and turning over the duties to the State Board of Education, which is a constitutional board.

8. Revising the judicial system of the state by providing for re-defining the boundaries of districts so as to provide for 12 district courts; abolishing the Probate Courts and assigning their duties to the District Court, and: Providing for 12 Districts Attorneys instead of 44 Prosecuting Attorneys.

9. Dividing the state into legislative districts, the boundaries of which would conform to the boundaries of judicial districts. Each district would be represented by one Senator and by one representative for each 4,000 votes or major fraction thereof. This would reduce the number of members of the legislature from 114 to about forty.

10. Working eventually toward county consolidation.

11. Setting up a commission form of county government by providing for the election of three county commissioners for each county, abolishing the offices of treasurer and coroner in all counties, and providing that in the smaller counties the Commissioners shall be ex-officio sheriff, county clerk and assessor, respectively.

As has been stated above, the plan suggested does not provide for a reduction of public service. It would result in a more efficient public service, both in state and counties, because of closer coordination of activities. The natural result would be a very great saving of funds. It is well to bear in mind that if additional saving is desired, it can be accomplished only by the discontinuing of activities, many of which might be suggested. Whether this is desired depends entirely upon the people, and attention should by all means be given to these matters. The public should decide whether they wish all of the educational facilities which we have; whether the agricultural inspection, the public health service, the various motor vehicle activities, the regulation of professions and numerous other activities should be continued.

It has been the purpose of the writer throughout this series to make the articles entirely impersonal and uncontroversial. The question which is foremost in the minds of the people at this time is public economy. In other words, the question is "How can taxes be reduced?" The writer has had as his purpose the pointing out of one means for the reduction of taxes; namely, reorganization. He hopes that public interest has been aroused in this subject. He wishes to make it clear that he himself is not convinced that the plans suggested by him are the only ones which could be effectively adopted. They are only suggestive. But he is convinced, after many years of contact with state and county governments, that there is a tremendous waste by the duplication of offices. The writer would be glad to receive suggestions and comments, either favorable or unfavorable, if these articles have proven of interest. Much more may be said on all of the subjects opened up, than has been said. It is apparent that some interest has been aroused, and it is hoped that this interest may be manifested by action when the legislature convenes a year hence.

SENATOR THOMAS PROPOSES LEGISLATION FOR DEPOSITORS

To carry out the financial program of the president, as expressed in his message to the congress, Senator John Thomas has introduced in the senate a bill for the relief of depositors in failed banks, both national and state. The bill as introduced has the general approval of the treasury department and is in line with the president's relief program.

The bill in brief provides for a corporation with a capital of $150,000,-0000; $100,000,000 to be subscribed by the United States and $50,000,000 to be subscribed by Federal Reserve banks out of their surplus which at this time amounts to about two hundred sixty millions.

The corporation, with the powers granted to it for borrowing up to four times its capital, will be able to loan to receivers of insolvent national banks and receivers or other officials, however designated, of insolvent state banks, sufficient funds to enable a quick preliminary dividend to be released to the depositors in stricken communities.

While the corporation will be an emergency corporation, it will not be temporary in character. The plan proposed is not a guarantee of deposits and will not pay depositors in failed banks 100 per cent but will within its limitations temper the shock in any community where a failed bank has closed during the year 1931 or may hereafter be closed.

Due to the great need for such legislation, it is expetced that it will be enacted at an early date.

Senator Thomas says: "The reason I have introduced this bill is because I think it will give immediate relief to thousands of depositors throughout the country who have much of their working capital tied up in closed banks."

SMALL TOWNS DO NOT DIE BUT JUST COMMIT SUICIDE

"Towns do not die, they commit suicide," said a newspaper recently. And it is true says the Ossian, (Ia.) News.

If the housewives did not buy from peddlers, wagon salesmen and catalogs, more clerks would be needed in the business houses and more empty houses would fill up.

If the printing offices could have all the work sent out of town and to the government printing office additional printers could have jobs.

If townspeople did not go to neighboring cities to trade more clerks would be needed, all of which would better the town.

If everybody who makes his money in this community would spend his money in this community the home town would increase in population and everybody in and around it would be prosperous.

If people would buy more at home and forget the alluring pictures of the catalogs, there would be more people in town to buy their eggs, butter and meat products, much of which comes directly from the farm and does not go through the channels of expensive factory manufacture.

You can't send your cash out of the community to the catalog houses and expect to local merchant or business man to stand you off while you are waiting to get some cash, and at the same time pay for what he must eat.

When you keep your money at home it travels that endless circle in the community but when it goes to the catalog house it flies out into space from whence none has never been known to return.

Frank Burroughs Says:

We got into a fuss with a gentleman from Idaho Falls who disputed the round figure statement made in the last Pioneer that $900 worth of Boise store lighting costs $2,000 from the municipal plant. So we verified the figures and found that Boise rates are 44.9 per cent of the rate charged at Idaho Falls for that particular amount of consumption, and if the rate that applied to the Boise store in question, where during January 26,200 KWH were used, were billed at the municipal plant rate, it would show an increase of 232 per cent of the Boise rates. That answers the gentleman, we think. And we kin prove it.

the world problem said, "We will see the day when all foreign debts will be cancelled." This prediction, like several he made, "May come true," explaining that his views were merely those of an observer, but did, to the audience, however, seem sound.

Father Coty's talk was interesting and while he did not profess to be an economist or a prophet, his reasoning could come from no other source than a thorough study of present day problems. He stressed the obligation everyone is under to his fellowmen, those having an abundance being obligated to share with those whose fortune has not been so good. His views were by no means socialistic but were tempered with justice and equality. He was opposed to the dole and said charity did not consist of giving the hungry person a bite to eat, but that those in position to employ men should do so until the business could no longer stand it. The speaker stated that the working man was not the only one employed today; there were many business men and owners of factories and shops unemployed, and early in his remarks suggested that working men accept an 10 per cent wage decrease; the sooner accepted the better.

Rev. Fr. B. J. Carey, Genesee, was also called upon by J. J. Berg, chairman to address the forum, and said that people were used to listening to him talk, and that he was glad to be present, stating also that he knew of several other talented speakers who would gladly speak in Genesee.

Father Tuomy of Moscow, was also asked to make a few remarks, but he said he was not acquainted with "Economics."

Odd Organization for Preservation of Trees

Men of the Trees is the name of an organization of African scouts founded by Richard E. St. Barbe Baker, formerly assistant conservator of forests in the Kenya colony. The natives, the Kikuyu tribe, are Bantu in origin and many of the old tribal customs are retained. Certain trees are held sacred and sacrifices are made to them. Mr. Baker, on his arrival in the colony, found that large areas of forest had been destroyed by fire and to make way for cultivation. He assembled the chiefs and explained to them the value of forests to man and proposed that instead of being forest destroyers they become forest planters. Many of the natives immediately responded and the Watu wa Miti, or Men of the Trees, was organized. The badge is a small brass disk bearing the design of a tree; the colors are green and white. Later on a simple ritual and initiation ceremony were evolved. Like the Boy Scouts, the members are expected to do a good deed each day. The entire organization is known as the Forest, which is divided into districts, each named after the dominant species of tree growing in it. The districts are divided into branches, each ruled by a forest guide. An important part of the work is the planting of a forest nursery, where more than 80,000 young trees have been raised.

Interesting Picture of Birth of Solar System

Tracing time and its changes back to the very beginning of things, Sir James Jeans of Cambridge gives, in a recently published work, a wonderful picture of the birth of our solar system as the result of a collision some 2,000,000,000 years ago.

"A second star, wandering blindly through space, happened to come within hailing distance of the sun. Just as the sun and moon raise tides on the earth, so this second star must have raised tides on the surface of the sun . . . a huge tidal wave must have traveled over the surface of the sun, ultimately forming a mountain of prodigious height, which would rise ever higher and higher as the cause of the disturbance came nearer and nearer. And, before the second star began to recede, its tidal pull had become so powerful that this mountain was torn to pieces and threw off small fragments of itself, much as the crest of a wave throws off spray. These small fragments have been circulating around their parent sun ever since. They are the planets, great and small, of which our earth is one."

South Africa's "Tablecloth"

The "Tablecloth" is a cloud that occasionally covers the flat top of Table mountain in South Africa. Charles Fitzhugh Talman of the United States weather bureau, in his book "The Realm of the Air," says it is probably the most famous individual cloud in the world, and in describing it adds: "It consists of a dense cloud sheet, formed when warm moisture-bearing winds are forced up the steep slope of the mountain, especially in summer. The cloud often pours over the brow of the mountain, like a mighty cataract, and is dissolved as the wind is warmed by compression in descending to a lower level. The effects produced by this rolling mass of vapor are sometimes indescribably grand, and the phenomenon is all the more striking because a perfectly clear sky generally prevails over the surrounding country while the "Tablecloth" overspreads the mountain."

a perfect score. We are now to start on our trip to Germany. We have been visiting cities in the new countries which were made since the war. Mona Myers sang two short German songs so that the class would know something about their language.

In reading we reviewed our stories by drawing pictures to illustrate the story. Some pictures were well drawn and very original. The class took great interest in guessing the names of the stories.

The Lion Tamers are ahead in the arithmetic contest. The score up to today is 30 to 24. The girls won the contest in memorizing the poem, the boys being only a few points behind, and who feel sure they will win next time.

The sixth grade has just finished a contest—the Cougars against the Lions was Bayne Hickman and for the Cougars, Robert Schooler. The final score ended 44 to 4 in favor of the Lions. We have been writing for awards in penmanship in our room. Most of us are writing for a merit button or progress pin. Gainford Olson is trying for his improvement certificate.

During reading period we carried out the story, "The Woman Who Put Salt in Her Coffee" in pantomime. Some parts we thought very funny. Wednesday we finished the story of the southern states and think they are quite interesting since the crops are different from ours. Friday the class will make posters showing all the products and crops of the south.

On our trip through the Mammoth Cave in Kentucky we found a place of intense interest. Bayne Hickman interested the class by describing it.

The following pupils have not been tardy nor absent the first semester: Ethel Dresher, Ella Dresher, Lavern Edwards, Dorothy Follett, William Foster, Mona Myer, Rowena Nordby, Gwendolyn Suenkel, Rita Loncosty, Richard Sampson and Robert Schooler.

THE GENESEE NEWS

VOL. XLIII — GENESEE, LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 29, 1932 — NO. 32

PROPERTY RELIEF ACT 1931 BLANKS ISSUED BY STATE

The Property Relief Act of 1931, more commonly known as the state income tax, enacted by the last session of the state legislature, at its extraordinary session, emanates from the house of representatives as House Bill No. 2, and is as follows:

"Providing for the levying and collecting of an income tax; providing for exemptions and fixing basis and rate of tax; providing for the appointment of a tax commissioner and fixing his term of office and salary, and defining his powers and duties; providing procedure and machinery for administration thereof; fixing the jurisdiction of the courts in connection with review and appeal under this act; providing procedure for payment of refunds and deficiencies; providing penalties for violations of this act; and making appropriations to carry out its purposes."

Those Taxable.

Every individual, a citizen or resident of the state, and all trusts or estates resident in Idaho, are liable for the tax and it makes no difference that they may own no assets within the state and may receive no income from sources within the stateof Idaho. Any person living in the state is liable for the tax.

Non-Residents Liable.

Income of non-residents, derived from sources within the confines of Idaho are subject to the same tax as that applicable to residents. The net income will be determined in the same manner as for residents.

Corporations Must Pay

All corporations, joint stock companies, and joint stock associations, are subject to income tax whether organized, authorized, or exisiting, or not authorized, organized, or existing under the laws of this state, and must file a return.

The tax on corporations shall be levied, collected and paid for each taxable year upon the net income to-wit:

On the first $2,000 of net income or any part thereof, at the rate of 1 per centum. On the second $2,000 of net income or any part, at the rate of 2 per centum. On the third $2,000 of net income, or any part thereof, at the rate of 3 per centum. On any net income in excess of $6,000 at the rate of 4 per centum.

Net Income Defined.

Gross income is all wealth other than a return of capital received during a taxable year less income which is by statutory provisions or otherwise exempt from the tax imposed by this Act. Gross incomes includes in general, compensation for personal and professional services, business income, profits from the sale of and dealings in property, interest, rent, royalties, dividends, securities or gain or profit and income derived from any source whatever.

Net income is gross income less allowable deductions and exemptions.

Some State Officials Exempt.

Salaries of the governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state auditor, state treasurer, attorney general, superintendent of public instruction, justices of the supreme court, district court judges and district at-

Arthur Rossebo Injured.

Arthur Rossebo suffered a fracture to his ankle last Friday while, he with Otto Borgen and Kermit Hove were coasting on what is known as Preacher hill, now a part of the farm owned by Chas. Odenborg. This hill is said to be the steepest in the Genesee Valley section, records disclosing that eigth other persons have been seriously injured, the result of coasting.

The young men were traveling at a terrific speed when they came to a drift of snow which sent the sled and occupants several feet into the air, and when the sled struck the frozen crust of snow, the weight of passengers crushed the sled to splinters, sending the men tumbling down the hill.

Mr. Rossebo was taken to the Gritman hospital where he was treated, and is now confined to his home.

PROMINENT COOPERATIVE SPEAKER HERE FEBR. 3

Chief among the speakers scheduled for appearance here Wednesday afternoon, February 3 will be a Mr. Davis, prominent speaker on cooperative movements. He is being sent to Genesee with Messrs. Shumway and Dorman, members and officers of the North Pacific Grain Growers corporation, subsidiary of the National Grain Growers, Inc.,

This meeting has been arranged through the efforts of the local Farmers Union cooperative organization, the meeting to be open to the public, and which, owing to having on its program such speakers as mentioned, should occasion a large gathering, not only of those affiliated in cooperative undertakings, but everyone interested in agriculture.

Mr. Shumway, who is serving as president of the North Pacific organization is a forceful and interesting speaker, and has been heard at other times in the Inland Empire. This is his first visit to Genesee.

Mr. Dorman is also an official of the North Pacific and has been maintaining relations between the public and the cooperative movement, successfully during the past year.

Mr. Davis brings his message from the national organization, and will, no doubt, prove to be the speaker with a message of great importance to wheat growers in the Genesee section.

The meeting will be opened at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, February 3, at the Legion hall.

CHARLES H. KRAUT MARRIES MISS PETERNELL, LEWISTON

Rev. Father Edward J. Jordan, pastor of the Holy Family church in Clarkston officiated at the wedding of Charles H. Kraut, Genesee, and Miss Gertrude Peternell, of Lewiston, the ceremony being solemnized at 11 o'clock, Monday, January 25 at the church mentioned.

Mr. Kraut is well and favorably known in Genesee, and his bride was an employe at Beach's store in Lewiston.

After their honeymoon, which is being spent in California, they will be at home on Mr. Kraut's ranch near Genesee. They expect to return about March 15.

CULDESAC TOWN TALENT TO PRESENT PLAY JANUARY 30

"Betty," a three-act dramatic comedy drama, will be presented in the opera house Saturday night, January 30. This is a sparkling comedy, involving mystery, romance and wit, and is given by the Culdesac players in return for a presentation of "Applesauce" in their town three weeks ago by Genesee talent. The proceeds of this production will go to the Genesee high school, as Culdesac received the proceeds from the Genesee presentation at Culdesac.

The price has been lowered to 25 cents and 15 cents for this play to encourage the largest number possible to be present.

The Genesee players were met with the finest type of hospitality at Culdesac and it is the wish of the local play cast that Genesee friends extend them a like courtesy when the visitors are in Genesee.

A male trio and the school orchestra intend to furnish the music between acts. The door will be open at 7:30 o'clock and the play will begin at 8:00 o'clock.

Open House.

The open house, which was held January 25, was attended by a number of the parents and students. At 7:30 a short program was presented which was as follows: Two musical number by the grade orchestra, with Margaret Sprinyer at the piano, and under the direction of Mrs. Harris; piano solo, "Only a Dream," by Glenna Harris; two numbers by the string quartet, Floyd Hove, Thomas Sanford and Steineger brothers; piano solo, "Falling Waters" by Ednah Rosenau. After the program the parents were given the opportunity to meet the teachers in their respective rooms.

Athletics.

Genesee seconds took the Uniontown St. Bonifice boys into camp Friday night by a score of 38 to 22. The smooth floor handicapped the Genesee boys at first but finally they hit their stride, handling the leading end of the score from the first quarter on. The outstanding basket getter was Robert Broemeling, who accounted for 12 markers in three quarters of play.

Last Friday Mr. Parks awarded football letters to those who showed best sportsmanship and all-around playing, together with quarters of competition. Three Genesee men made the All-Central conference team, Wayne Roach and Leonard Flamoe making the first string and George Smylie, the second. Those who received letters were: George Smylie, Robert Broemmeling, Ralph Broemeling, Pearl Springer, John Klemm, Bertie Wishard, Teddy Wagner, Charles Hasfurther, Elmer Kraut, Clifford Herman, Wayne Roach, Russell Rinehart, Clyde Sweet, Leonard Flamoe, Howard Blume, Eric Steineger, Geo. Blume and Marvin Miller. Some of the best players will not be here next year, among them being Russell Rinehart, Pearl Springer, Elmer Kraut, Clyde Sweet, Eric Steineger, Marvin Miller and George Blume.

The Genesee St. Bonifice girls' game was very slow, due to an exceptionally smooth floor. The girls were able to start off with a three-point lead and hold it until the middle of the third quarter, when the St. Bonifice coach sent in a new center who was able to get the tip-off, enabling her team to tie the score, then run up a six-point lead which they held until the end of the game, making the final score 18 to 12.

Next Friday Genese plays Kendrick at Kendrick, and Southwick will come here to play February 5.

Classes Elect Officers.

Officers for the second semester have been elected. They are as follows: Seniors—President, Marguerite Kluss; vice president, Wilson Esser; secretary and treasurer, Richard Harris; councilman, Russell Rinehart, and sergeant-at-arms, Eric Steineger. Juniors—President, Helen Winegardner; vice president, Verona Rosenau; secretary and treasurer, Fern Erickson; councilman, John Klemm. Sophomores—President, Donald Springer; vice president, Alice Green; secretary and treasurer, Evelyn Krier; councilman George Smylie; sergeant-at-arms, Robert Kinzer. Freshmen—President, Bertie Wishard; vice president, Leonard Flamoe; secretary and treasurer, Walter Klemm; councilman, sergeants-at-arms, Tom and Alfred.

MODERATE WHEAT OFFERINGS MEETING GOOD LOCAL DEMAND

Domestic cash wheat markets were mostly steady during the week ending January 22, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. The moderate offerings were meeting a good demand from mills and prices at the close of the period averaged higher than a week ago. Feed grains were steady with the unusually light offerings about equal to current trade needs.

Wheat.

There was little change in the general wheat market situation during the week. Unsettled economic conditions continued to restrict International trade and the principal deficit wheat areas were still depending to a larger extent than usual on local supplies. Milling restrictions are being modified however, effective February 1. Italian millers may import 30 per cent of their bread wheat requirements and 80 per cent of their durum wheat milling needs. These percentages compare with 5 and 50 per cent, respectively, now in effect. Export demand for North American wheat has fallen off with increased offerings from the southern hemisphere. Argentine and Australian shipments for the week totaled about 7,250,000 bushels. Black Sea shipments were over 1,500,000 bushels, of which 304,000 bushels were Russian wheat. North American shipments decreased to around 5,000,000 bushels. Stocks on ocean passage have increased to 40 million bushels.

Total world stocks, exclusive of Russia and China, appeared to be somewhat smaller than a year ago. At the first of January the world available supply of wheat, comprised largely of North American wheat and flour showed an increase of around fifty million bushels over the corresponding figure a year ago and totaled 638,000,000 bushels. This was a record amount for that date. Stocks in the U. S. are still large and around 60,000,000 bushels larger than a year ago, after allowing for domestic utilization equal to that of last season and for the wheat and flour exported from July to December. Canadian supplies are a little less than a year ago. The new crop is now officially estimated at 304,144,000 bushels, or about 6,000,000 bushels above the November estimate. Supplies at the first of January in that country appear to be around 23,000,000 bushels smaller than a year earlier.

Complete data of the carry-over of old wheat in the southern hemisphere at the first of January are not available, but trade and official estimates indicate a decrease of around 58,500,000 bushels. Little definite data are available for European countries, but supplies of native wheat are reported to be unusually low as a result of milling restrictions. European port stocks have recently shown some decrease, suggesting a larger movement into consuming channels. Stocks in Great Britain are still above those of a year ago, but have recently shown a declining tendency.

New Crop Indications.

But little authentic information is available on new crop conditions. The first forecast of acreage in the Punjab, one of the most important wheat producing provinces of India, shows an area of 10,758,000 acres for the 1932 harvest, which compares with 10,709,000 acres in 1931. The condition of the crop was reported at 95 per cent of normal, compared with 91 per cent at the corresponding time last year. Conditions in Europe are rather irregular. Too rapid growth for the time of year was reported in Hungary and France and the extreme mild weather is forcing crops in some areas.

Dry weather during the week favored completion of harvest in Argentina.

Domestic Crop Conditions.

In the United States the winter wheat crop was reported in a satisfactory condition except in western Kansas and Nebraska where stands are poor. Warm weather is forcing growth in the Ohio valley and increasing the danger from a sudden drop in temperatures. In the Pacific Northwest conditions are generally favorable, with a good snow cover prevailing over large sections of the wheat belt.

Domestic Wheat Markets.

Domestic wheat markets strengthened during the week under a steady demand from mills. While the future prices reacted somewhat from the advance earlier in the week, cash prices

Omer Kries Takes Cold Bath.

Omer Kries, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kries, while assisting in cutting ice on the John Krier pond Tuesday slid into about three feet of water, and in attempting to gain his balance submerged to his neck in the cold, icy water. He required no assistance to reach solid footing, but gladly accepted the proferred hand of Maurice Krier, who was also working in the ice harvest.

Ice on the Krier pond this year is about eight inches in thickness, half of which contains much snow.

HIGHER FREIGHT RATES FOR GRAIN EFFECTIVE FEBR. 20

Higher freight rates on grain going to Seattle and Portland from Genesee will be in effect February 20, following the decision of the United States supreme court, which body over-ruled findings of the Interstate Commerce commission. Lower courts denied a rehearing of the matter, which in turn was also meaningless in the eyes of the supreme court.

Genesee was granted a rate of 12.6 cents per bushel on wheat to coast terminals by the Interstate Commerce commission, and was in effect a few months when the reversal by the supreme court granted the railroads an increase of 1.8 cents, making the cost of rail transportation 14.4 cents per bushel.

In the new schedule of rates Central Ferry, Purrington, Pennewawa and Peyton have a rate of 12.9 cents per bushel, while Nez Perce, situated on the Nez Perce & Idaho stub line must pay 22.5 cents per bushel to have its wheat transported to coast terminals in the northwest.

WHITE BREAD SELLING FOR FIVE CENTS IN GENESEE

Genesee's bread consumers were not surprised when they were able to purchase a loaf of the baker's product here this week for five cents, but they do welcome the opportunity, which has been evidenced by the increased sale. People have long awaited the drop in prices of this commodity, and in this wheat-producing section the former high price of bread has been the topic of conversation on many occasions. With flour selling as low as ninety-eight cents for a forty-nine pound sack, producers of wheat and bread consumers have been almost astounded when they made the necessary purchases of baker's bread.

The Delicious Bakery of Lewiston, is supplying the local trade with a freshly-baked product, through local grocers. Each loaf weighs a pound and is made with milk, the same as most leading brands of bread now on the market. Each loaf is also wrapped in attractive waxed paper.

Dockage on Hogs on Former Basis.

Information received by the Genesee Union Warehouse company is to the effect that hog cuts or dockages are back to where they were about a year ago. That is: Top hogs weigh 150 to 225 pounds; hogs weighing from 230 to 255 pounds take a 50-cent dock; 260 to 295 pound hogs are $1.00 less per hundred than tops, and for smooth heavies, weighing over 300 pounds the dockage is $1.50.

IDAHO INHERITS FINANCIAL OBLIGATION AT STATEHOOD

(By Glenn Balch.)

A financial obligation in the sum of $169,556 was Idaho's inheritance from the old territory. This represented the difference between the expenditures of 27 years of territorial government and the amount of revenue that it had been able to collect, a record that could have been, considering everything, much worse.

One of the arguments advanced in behalf of statehood was that the expenses of government could be decreased, which history seems to have proven was a slight miscalculation.

A recapitulation of the financial condition of the territory just prior to the time in 1890 when it became a state follows:

Outstanding Bonds,
Act of 1877	$ 46,715.06
Capitol Building Bonds,
Act of 1855	80,000.00
Insane Asylum Bonds,
Act of 1885	20,000.00
Wagon Road Bonds,
Act of 1889	11,000.00
Outstanding Warrants	105,571.52
Total Bonded Indebtedness	$263,286.58
Cash on Hand	27,116.58
Total Indebtedness	$236,170.00

Sufficient funds would be due the territorial treasury in a short time from the counties to reduce this amount to $169,556, Governor George L. Shoup informed the first legislature in his message.

Tax Problem Acute.

From the foregoing it seems that we may safely assume that even in her nativity Idaho knew no freedom from the perplexing problem of how to raise sufficient funds to defray the costs of her government.

Our present condition of top-heavy taxes, it might therefore be concluded, is one of long-standing and has repeatedly challenged the best minds the state has produced.

It is encouraging, however, to know that the present study for tax reform is the most comprehensive and practical movement in that direction ever undertaken in the history of the state.

Governor McConnell, in his message to the legislature in 1893, said that the first "job was to raise enough revenue without adding to the burden of already over-laden people."

Not Possible.

What the governor proposed was, and is virtually an impossibility. Governments never get "enough" revenue and there is no form of government revenue that does not come from somebody's pocket. The surest way of lightening the tax burden is to reduce governmental expenses; but that has never been popular.

However, despite its inheritance of debt, the new state plunged into the business of government with great eagerness.

Governor Shoup estimated that the expenses for the first year would be $177,535. This amount, he predicted, could be reduced the second year to $130,000 or less.

The legislature followed Governor Shoup's advice and appropriated a total of $390,588 for the expenses of the state during its first two years of torneys and all federal officers and employes are exempt from taxation.

Other Officials Taxed.

Income received by an officer or employe of the state of Idaho, whether elected or appointed, except those above mentioned are liable to the tax, as are incomes received by county officials and employes and officials of any town, city or township.

Teachers Must Pay.

Income received by all teachers in the state, whether employed within the state schools, or in any public or private school are required to pay the tax. provided, however, that such income as derived in part or in whole from funds availed under the Smith-Lever Act of May, 1914; the Smith-Hughes Act, or any Act relating to federal distribution of money or aid to the state or any politicial subdivision, is exempt, which means that teachers receiving part pay from the local district and part from the federal government, can be taxed only on the portion paid locally.

Expenses Defined.

All ordinary and necessary expenditures directly connected with or pertaining to the taxpayers' trade or business may be deducted from the gross income.

Personal or family expenses are not deductible in the computation of net income, as for example: Insurance paid on a dwelling owned and occupied by a taxpayer is a personal expense and not deductible.

Alimony and an allowance paid on a separation agreement are not deductible from gross income. Where the father is legally entitled to the services of his minor children any allowance which he gives them whether said to be in consideration of services or otherwise, are not allowable deductions in his return of income.

Traveling expenses, if incurred on a business trip are deductible, while if for other purposes expenses of traveling, meals and lodging are considered personal and are not deductible.

Items to be Deducted.

Losses which may be deducted from gross income are those incurred in a trade or business; losses arising from fires, storms, casualties, etc., but must be evidenced by closed and completed transactions if such items are covered by insurance. No gain or loss is realized by the transfer of property by gift or death, and no tax return is necessary for moneys received for settlements of insurance losses.

Bad debts, ascertained to be worthless and which have actually been charged off the books are deductible; yet should these accounts become collected a return shall be made in a following return.

Interest paid during the year is deductible if it is interest paid on indebtedness. When interest is paid on a loan made to purchase bonds, the income from which is not subject to state income tax, then the interest paid is not deductible.

Local Benefit Taxes Not Deductible.

The taxes and assessments paid for local benefits such as streets, sidewalks, sewers, highways, levees and drainage ditches and other like improvements imposed because of and measured by some benefit inuring directly to the property against which the assessments are levied being in the nature of capital expenditures, do not constitute allowable deductions from the gross income. A tax is considered assessed against local benefits when the property subject to tax includes only the property benefited. Since such benefits flow and derive their existence from the improvements built and constructed with the proceeds of such taxes and assessments the life of such benefits is the same as the life of the improvements and the taxes and assessments so paid should be set up on the book of the taxpayer as capital expenditures and depreciated or amortized over the life of the benefits.

Inheritance Taxes Not Deductible.

Income taxes imposed by the state of Idaho are not deductible in determing the net income, and income taxes imposed by this act are not deductible in determining net income.

Donations Deductible.

While corporations are not allowed deductions for donations of any kind, individuals are allowed deductions for donations to charitable, religious, scientific, literary or educational purposes or for prevention of cruelty to children or animals, providing, however, that the total sum donated does not exceed 15 per cent of the taxpayer's net income as computed with the exception of donations.

In case of a non-resident taxpayer a deduction will be allowed only when contributions or gifts are made to domestic societies as above outlined.

Those Who Must Pay.

A married person living with husband or wife is entitled to a personal exemption of $2500 against the aggregate net income of husband and wife.

An unmarried individual or a married individual not living with husband (or wife) and who is not the head of a family, is entitled to a personal exemption of $1.000.

A husband and wife living together during the taxable year may receive but one personal exemption of $2500, which may be taken on a joint return or by either of them or equally divided if separate return is made.

A head of a family is a person who supports and maintains in one household one or more individuals closely related to him either in blood, marriage or adoption. The mere fact that he maintains a household or supports a relative does not make him head of a family. He must not only provide for, but must exercise family control over the relative supported.

A single person, if head of a family is entitled to a personal exemption of $2,500.

Every individual having a gross income for the taxable year of $5,000 or over, regardless of his net income, must file a return.

An income taxpayer receives a credit of $300 for each person, other than husband or wife, under the age of 18 years of age, providing however, that the dependent is such under the law.

Exemptions Pro-rated.

Should a single person change his or her status during the year, the tax is computed by the number of months married. For instance a man married one month would be exempt $1,000 and an additional $125 for his newly acquired wife. Two months of wedded life would entitle him to an additional $125 or $250, until at the period of 12 months he would be exempt from the $1,000 for himself and $1500 for his wife, the same example applying to a female wage or salary earner, if the case should be.

Tax Commissioner Powerful.

The tax commissioner, as provided for in the enactment of the income tax measure, and his deputies shall have power to examine the books and records of any individual, corporation, joint stock company, joint stock association or partnership.

The tax commissioner also shall have power to estimate the amount of a taxpayer's income where such taxpayer fails to tender a return as required by law.

Taxable Income.

Taxable income for the first taxable year is one-half of the net income for the full calendar year of 1931, if computed on a calendar year basis, or if computed on a fiscal year basis it shall be that portion of the net income which the number of months from July 1, 1931, to the end of the fiscal year bears to 12 months.

THE DAIRY

DAIRYMAN'S WAGE SET BY QUALITY

Strikingly Shown in Records of Minnesota Test.

Dairymen set their own wages by the kind of cows they keep. This is strikingly shown in facts secured from the 1930 records of dairy herd improvement associations in Scott and Dakota counties, Minnesota. According to County Agent Raymond Aune, the high herd in the Scott County association made 525 cents per hour returns for labor above feed cost, while the average Scott county herd paid its keeper only 12.5 cents per hour. The average return for all members of the testing association was 42.3 cents per hour.

The Dakota county statement, compiled by W. E. Watson, county agent, showed even more striking comparisons, being based on whole milk prices. The return above feed cost for the high herd in Dakota was 63 cents per hour, as against 8 cents for the average herd of the county. Members of the dairy herd improvement associations received an average return of 33 cents.

In general, these figures check closely with those for the entire state in 1930. For all of Minnesota, a herd averaging 400 pounds of butterfat per cow returned 52 cents above feed cost for each hour of labor spent; while a 200-pound herd, which is the state average, returned only 17 cents. These figures are based on 40 cent butterfat, and would have to be reduced by 25 cent to conform with the present 30 cent price, says H. R. Searles, dairy specialist, University farm, St. Paul, Minn.

Mr. Searles adds that low-producing cows, those making 100 to 125 pounds of butterfat, paid only 2 cents per hour above feed cost for labor in 1930, making about $3 for the year. This year, however, the man who wants to work with this kind of cow will have to pay about 3 cents an hour for the privilege. On 170 hours of labor, the average required for a cow, the loss will be about $4.

Test for Tuberculosis Reaches New High Mark

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)—WNU Service.

A new high mark in the official testing of cattle for tuberculosis was reached in March, when 1,325,912 tuberculin tests were made by federal, state, and county veterinarians working co-operatively. This is the largest number of cattle ever tested in any one month since the nation-wide co-operative campaign to eradicate this disease began about twelve years ago. The previous high mark was in October, 1930, when 1,320,885 cattle were tested.

According to records of the United States Department of Agriculture, the state of Iowa had 200,822 cattle tested during March, the greatest number of any state in that month. Wisconsin with 155,152 tests was second, Minnesota was third with 119,540, and Illinois was fourth with 111,069.

Another feature of the March report was the large amount of testing in some of the eastern states, especially in the highly infected districts. There have been many demands from cattle owners in this territory to submit their herds to the tuberculin test. Additional state funds for indemnity have recently been provided in some eastern states.

"The activities in connection with tuberculin testing of cattle," says Dr. A. E. Wight, in charge of bovine tuberculosis eradication for the Department of Agriculture, "show plainly that the demand for the work is still increasing."

Grinding Small Grains for Cows Is Right Plan

Dairymen have long known that it pays to grind small grains for dairy cows, and experimental evidence supports this procedure. Opinions, however, have differed as to the most profitable degree of fineness to grind such grains and as few feeding trials have hitherto been made with this specific question in mind, G. Bohstedt and F. W. Duffee, together with their associates in the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, have in the past year conducted investigations in which the relative feeding value for dairy cows of finely ground barley was compared to that of medium ground barley. The preliminary results favor the use of medium ground barley, due to its greater efficiency in maintaining live weight and producing milk. Grinding barley medium fine, rather than fine, also costs appreciably less.

WHAT ABOUT ROADS AND POLITICS—TIME WILL TELL

Kendrick Gazette: Now that the large daily papers are devoting columns of space to the national political situation one cannot help but wonder what will happen in state and county politics, although very little is seen about these conditions. One thing is certain, however, the people of this section of the country are mighty tired of seeing thousands of dollars of gas tax leave our section and go to build tourist roads and eliminate curves in roads connecting larger towns and other tourist routes, while our farmers sit in the mud and "let's the rest of the world go by." But what else can they do? They cannot get out! They cannot get their produce to town for market! If this section had the money in gas tax that has gone from it they would have as fine farm-to-market roads as anyone could desire. But we haven't. We presume it is because we have lacked political pull! But in these troublous times nothing is certain in political question with the exception of one thing—a couple of thousand votes await the man who is big enough to over-ride the wishes of the tourist trade and curve-elimination road gang and give us a road.

Just wait and see if our predictions are not right. We know whereof we speak.

In these days of low prices every nickle saved in getting goods to market is a help to the farmer. Every boost for the farmer is a boost for the merchant, banker, garageman and candlestick maker. Not alone do we have wheat to haul, but beans, corn, cream, watermelons, fruit, cherries, tomatoes, and what have you, even to logs, lumber and wood! Let's all put our shoulder to the wheel and pull, push and shove for good roads. We need them.

statehood. But at the end of that time we find that the warrant indebtedness had increased from $105,571.52 in 1890 to $137,225.04 on December 31, 1892 and that the total bonded indebtedness had mounted from $169,556 to $251,000.

"Two Prosperous Years."

These figures do not lead to the belief that the new state was living within her means. However, Governor Norman B. Willey, in his message to the legislature on January 2, 1893, described the previous biennium, 1891 and 1892, as "two prosperous years" and suggested that the state levy be decreased 10 cents on the hundred dollars. From this distance the Governor's mathematics are difficult to comprehend fully.

The first act of the first legislature in 1891 was one of self-preservation, an appropriation of $10,000 for the incidental expenses of the session. The second act was one of self-remuneration, an appropriation of $25,000 to pay the session salaries.

Salaries Good.

It would seem that the legislators were not stinting when it came to salaries. They themselves received the sum of $5 per day. Other daily salaries were established as follows: Secretary of the senate, $7; his assistant, $6; clerk of the house, $7; his assistant, $6; all other house clerks, $5; sergeant at arms, $6; door keepers, $5; messengers, $3; pages, $3; janitors, $4; journal clerks, $5, and chaplains, $2.

It is interesting to note that these salaries, paid to our first legislators in 1891, are practically the same as are received by our law-makers and their assistants today.

LENVILLE NEWS.

Barbara Louise Rommel, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Rommel, who was quite ill Saturday and Sunday had both ears lanced by a doctor Monday. She is much improved at the present.

The program committee met Tuesday evening for play practice.

Mr. and Mrs. John Williams called on Mr. and Mrs. Vickery Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray. Kennedy visited in Moscow Monday and Tuesday.

Nick Bering, Jim Kenyon, Percy Kinnier helped Neal Kinyon butcher several hogs Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wright went to Moscow Monday.

Fred Schultz hauled several loads of baled hay from J. W. Brigham's this week.

Frank Dygert made a business trip to Moscow Thursday.

Homer and Buster Whitney of Clarkston attended Literary Friday night. They spent the week end in Lenville visiting at the Kinnier and Kinyon homes.

Bernie Brigham and Sam Taber were cutting wood this week.

Cecil Johnson is visiting relatives at Fix Ridge this week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Williams and daughters, and Harold Johnson drove to Clarkston Friday afternoon to attend the Butcher meetings.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Oylear and family and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ross and family attended the dance at Pine Grove Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wright and children took dinner Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Taber and Esther.

Sonny Rommel of Pomeroy, who visited his brother and family, Orville Rommel, since Thanksgiving, returned to Pomeroy Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Oylear shopped in Moscow Thursday.

Did we have a good Literary Friday evening? By the hearty applause and shouts of laughter that each number of the program received, we say we did. The two one-act plays were certainly well given and well received. The crowd just howled at Jim Jam and Spontaneous making love in "Object: Matrimony." The coon songs "Are You from Daxie," and "Lil Liza Jane" brought down the house. We are still wondering if Rockie Anderson did receive that $1,000,000. Helen Bering's recitation, especially, the gestures of the "big hands" was very good and the crowd wondered why the hands were so much developed. Esther Taber's recitation, "Ma and the Auto" caused many smiles and comments on back-seat driving.

First Grass Fire for 1932.

Lewiston Tribune: The grass fire season got its dates mixed and took about six months' leap on the calendar in the Lewiston valley Wednesday.

While a few flakes of snow drifted lazily through the air, about 25 acres of stubble adjoining the Lewiston Spiral highway on the east, a mile north of the city limits, burned. The field is owned by Joe Mayer and the fire caused no damage, burning out as it reached the roadside.

The long column of dark smoke sent up by the fire was in marked contrast to the snow-capped peaks which crown the Lewiston hill.

NAMPA LEADER-HERALD THINKS GOVERNOR WRONG

Governor Ross opposes a 10 per cent pay cut for state officers receiving $3,000 and more, which would include his own salary. In that, he shows a characteristic all too common in politicians, says the Nampa (Idaho) Leader-Herald.

His explanation is humorous. He says savings on salaries would be meager at best, a statement which hardly holds water since 74 per cent of Idaho's $5,783,962 goes for "salaries, traveling expenses, board and lodging and other personal items."

If the governor stands by his guns in insisting that three-fourths of the entire governmental expense is untouchable, certainly the taxpayers can look for no material aid or relief through his efforts.

The governor goes from bad to worse when he says savings are possible on "contracts and purchases for the state."

If savings in this way are possible, why didn't Ross and his appointees start making them when they took office instead of waiting until the dawn of a campaign for re-election to discover and reveal the fact?

The governor in this case, like in others, has shown a glaring weakness. When he gets in a tough spot, he makes his predicament doubly bad by issuing a weak or evasive alibi that is pitifully unsound and apparently insincere.

SINGLE MEN TO FEEL STING OF IDAHO INCOME TAX LAW

"Two can't live as cheaply as one" is the conclusion of Governor C. Ben Ross and the legislators who passed the Property Relief Act of 1931, commonly known as the state income tax, for single men are allowed an exemption of $1,000 while those who are married and living with their wives (one wife for one man) are allowed an income of $2,500, $500 more exemption for the two than if married couples remained single. Inconsistency is the brand our legislators have placed on their product of new laws for the state of Idaho. The "gin" marriage law, requiring giving notice of intention to marry, has proven detrimental to the marrying profession and has taken revenue from the state, to say nothing of the delay in marriages by people living a distance from the borders of our neighboring states. The new tax law would encourage marriages but giving additional exemptions to married parties; yet the same legislature which passed this law and the "gin" marriage law grant those who wish to separate a favor by demanding but a brief residence in the state—in other words our law makers say: Don't marry in a hurry; pay less taxes if you are married, and remember that Idaho is to be considered liberal in her divorce laws.

AN ADVERTISING YEAR.

Merchandising prospects for 1932 are brighter than for the year just closed. But this does not mean that people will start spending like a drunken seaman.

There will be more buying than last year, but the past year has taught the housewife the value of reading the news offered in the advertisements of the various merchants. And progressive merchants will cater more and more to the housewife through the medium of newspaper advertising.

Modern housewives read the ads and are guided by them in their purchases. Like the old mail order catalog the prices are there in black and white. She makes up her list before she leaves home. She knows before hand that she will buy soap at a certain store, her other items parceled out to the other stores that carry a regular ad in the paper.

Spasmodic advertising may bring the dollars to the cash register occasionally, but consistent, well gotten up advertisements with prices to meet present conditions, appearing each week, will bring the sales average up over a period of time more than any other method.

In merchandising today it is more essential that all the merchants of a city bring their wares out regularly in advertising than ever before. Good roads have shortened the distance between places and a poor showing of ads in the local paper discourages the housewife from stopping here. The old system of expecting the merchant who does advertise to draw the crowd, while the non-advertiser hopes to benefit by window display, has proven to be the main source that is driving local patronage to the larger cities.

And you can't blame the buyers. The money belongs to them. They have worked hard to get it, and unless the merchants of a town show their confidence in their own goods and prices to put them down in black and white and assure them that the values here are as great as other places, these thrifty buyers will go elsewhere to trade. The days of "store keeping" are past. Gasoline and rubber are responsible for that to a certain degree, the merchants themselves for the remainder.

If you are to get your share of the money spent this year you will have to show your wares through the medium of printers' ink.—The Cottonwood Chronicle.

Quite Nervous.

A wealthy banker had been ordered to an expensive sanitarium, suffering from a nervous breakdown. His condition was so bad that he could not even recognize the members of his own household. His wife visited him every day, but although his general condition improved he failed to recognize her.

One day, however, he became conscious of the presence of his good looking nurse, and calling her to his bed, kissed her. Immediately afterwards he begged her pardon for doing so.

"That's all right," replied the nurse. "I'm glad to know that you recognize me. When I tell the doctor that you knew me and kissed me it will be a feather in my cap."

"That kiss will be a feather in your cap?" repeated the patient.

"Yes, I'm sure of it," she replied.

"Come back here," he brightened up suddenly, "and I'll make a Red Indian princess of you."—Labor.

Old Fiddlers' Contest.

Station KWSC will feature its seventh annual Old Fiddlers' contest, February 23, March 1 and March 22, according to Dr. F. F. Nalder, chairman of the Washington State college faculty committee on radio.

February 23 the first preliminary contest will be held for fiddlers fifty to sixty-four years of age; the next March 1 for players sixty-four and older. At each preliminary five judges will select six players to broadcast in the finals, March 22. Each contest will begin at 7 p. m.

WHY ARE SALARIES OF HIGH OFFICIALS EXEMPT?

It will be difficult for many existing on lower salaries and incomes to understand why the incomes of the governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state auditor, state treasurer, attorney general, superintendent of public instruction, justices of the supreme court, district court judges and district attorneys are exempt from paying tax on their higher salaries when incomes of all other officials and employes of the state, counties, cities, towns and townships are required to pay income tax, providing their income justifies it.

This newly-enacted law, a pet of Governor Ross, actually exempts all public officials, excepting teachers in the schools. By subjecting everyone in the state with a sufficient income to the payment of an income tax would be more equitable.

Governor Ross has seen fit to exclude himself from payment of the income tax as well as other public officials whose salaries justify payment of the new imposition.

Another provision, that taxes for local benefits cannot be deducted will not benefit the community, the homeowner who wishes to make improvements or who has made improvements.

And further, it will be difficult to understand why Governor Ross was so insistent upon starting his new machinery under half a load, and especially during a year when incomes will no doubt be the lowest. We believe in an income tax; we know we will not be compelled to pay one for this year and perhaps for several years to come, but feel as do many others that the revenue derived from income taxes in Idaho for the six-month period, July 1 to December 31, 1931, will not justify the institution of a new office at Boise with its intricate tax collecting machinery and horde of clerks and deputies.

Furthermore, we believe the courts will uphold the measure, prove its validity and that Idaho will hereafter have an income tax law, but why run the tax mill with a year's pay and only have six-months business to grind.

State Treasurer George Barrett is the first state official to voluntarily reduce his salary. Granted $333.33 as pay for his services as treasurer, he has publicly announced that he will present his claim for but $300, and in that manner will reduce his pay. It is contended by those who do not favor a reduction in pay for high-salaried officials that he can't refuse his full salary. Show 'em how it's done George—Borah did it and got away with it.

The section of the North and South highway between Lewiston and Moscow has been kept clear of snow this winter like no winter before. State maintenance employers have kept a vigilant watch on the weather, and when the necessary equipment was available traffic has been uninterrupted—and this winter will not be recorded as one of the fairest for the Palouse.

It now remains to be seen what the Idaho State Chamber can accomplish in the reduction of expenditures for government in Idaho.

Betrothal Party.

Simultaneously with the announcement of the engagement of Miss Aileen Zell and Mr. Ernest Kraut, Mr. and Mrs. R. James Zell tendered an informal reception for them and their most intimate friends last Friday evening, between the hours of eight and ten:thirty.

The table was lovely with an electrically lighted rose basket and pink tulle. The "Sweetheart Cake" was gay with hearts and the initials "A. E." interwoven. Following the reception the young people enjoyed dancing until a late hour. The refreshment table was presided over by Mrs. Grant Clark from 8:30 until 9:30 and by Mrs. Clay Rinehart for the later hour, with Misses Annabelle Huffman and Aileen Flomer in attendance.—Contributed.

Household Goods Not on Tax Rolls.

Boise—The amount of household goods on the state tax rolls dropped from $3,712,718 in 1930 to $917,890 in 1931, a report compiled by State Auditor E. G. Gallet revealed. Three counties, Clearwater, Jefferson and Teton reported no household goods whatever, although last year they reported such property of an aggregate value of $168,000. Lemhi county, on the other hand, reported nine in 1930 but put $14,350 on the rolls last year.

MUCH IS EXPECTED IN FUN AT FIRST FIREMEN'S DANCE

Those who patronize dances locally are expecting much in the way of a good time, good music and a heap of fun at the first annual Firemen's dance, Thursday evening, February 4 at the high school gymnasium, and they are justified because Chief Fred Meyer has made arrangements for Allen's orchestra with the already famous Mr. Bates, and his harmony-producing concertina or whatever the instrument is called which he so deftly squeezes and pulls, touching the innumerable ivories with lightning-like rapidity and adroitness.

Chief Meyers has also purchased a large quantity of noise-makers, serpentine and paper caps to be issued the dancers, as they trip the light fantastic until 1 o'clock Friday morning. It is planned to make this dance a carnival of fun, a multiple-ringed circus where everyone will be welcome (after paying the admission price) and where nothing will be tolerated save a spirit of good feeing.

The chief purpose of this dance, however, is to obtain some money with which to purchase additional fire-fighting equipment, such to become the property of the department. The council has been purchasing some equipment from time to time, but with a program of economy for the coming year adopted, members of the fire department have taken it upon themselves to raise funds in, perhaps the most popular way. There is no doubt that you will receive your money's worth at the dance, and the price is by no means extortionate.

It might be well to remember that since the organization of the fire department two years ago, Genesee has been given a most fair fire insurance rate, in some instances rates being reduced more than thirty per cent. Purchasing equipment by the city has had much to do with insurance rate reduction, it is true, but it is also imperative to have a working department, and there is every reason to lend your assistance by purchasing a ticket, whether you use it or not.

Legion Auxiliary.

Laundry bags which have been cut and ready to sew were given out to members of the Legion Auxiliary, by Mrs. Vern Beckman last Friday at the regular meeting. These will be sent to the Veterans' hospital at Boise when finished. A magazine was subscribed to, and will be mailed directly to the Genesee ex-service men now at the hospital. Boxes of tally cards were also sent to the hospital for use at card parties.

Miss Ethel Johnson, Mrs. Mahlon Follett, Mrs. John G. Meyer, Mrs. Dick Green and Miss Ruth Martinson were named on a committee by the president, Mrs. Harold Haymond, to plan a Valentine party.

Refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon by Mesdames Frank Hoorman, Albert Peterson and Fred Hove.

The next meeting will be Friday, February 5.

crowd in spite of the storm that night and with the aid of Allen's orchestra, everyone seemed to have had a good time.

Seventh and Eighth Grades.

January 20, 21 and 22 the seventh and eighth graders took the state examinations. The following seventh graders took hygiene, Hazel Jones and Maxine Ross of Pine Grove; Maxine Lang, Alfred Gehrke and Ralph Jester of Aurora; Bernice Isaksen and Delpha Cameron of Grey Eagle; Mildred Paulson, Marie Wernecke, Evelyn Tierney and Cecil Harris of Thorn Creek; Bouletta Nordby, Nevya Erickson, Betty Lou Burr, Genevee Harris, Margaret Springer, William Edwards, Paul Osmundson, Ernest Craft, Jim Dresher, Robert Smith and Gorden Foster of the public school.

The following eighth graders took the history examinations: Eldora Taylor of Summit school; Llewellyn Bershaw, Winifred Jacobs, Constance Miller, Margaret Reisenauer, Genevieve Lettenmaier, Lawrence Hasfurther and Joe Tobin of St. Joseph's school; Marie Kluss of the Ebel school; Leonard Werneke, Arthur Werneke, and Justine Scharbach of the South Thorn Creek school; Grant Loncosty, William Baker, Gretchen Riesemer, Emma Vanouck, Harold Suenkel and Ralph Stucker of the local public school.

The girls won out in the seventh and eighth grade election this semester. President, Bueletta Nordby; vice president, Margaret Springer; secretary and treasurer, Neyva Erickson, and social chairman, Betty Lou Burr. Genevee Harris was teller for the election.

Fifth and Sixth Grades.

In the arithmetic contest the "Lion Tamers" are still in the lead with a score of 47 to 39. Some pupils are becoming quite accurate with fractions in order to get a perfect score for their side.

The pupils in the sixth grade, during their language period make stories in the form of a play, using conversation. The two best were chosen and acted out by the member of the class. The best ones were written by Rita Loncosty and Bayne Hickman.

The fifth grade pupils thought they would like to write the same type of story, and Wednesday decision was made on the two best, one from the boys' stories and one from the girls'. They will then act out the two in the following class period.

Having finished our trip through the southern states, we are now ready to start on another tour through the western states. As many of the pupils have already visited some of the cities on the coast, we will have interesting reports from them about what they've seen.

Several of the pupils have brought interesting clippings from newspapers for our bulletin board.

The following pupils are in the Good Citizen club: Rita Loncosty, Adeline Herman, Richard Sampson, Bayne Hickman, Cicily Ann Herman, Margaret Wishard, Charlotte Foster, Rowena Nordby, Dorothy Follett, Mona Myers, Barbara Huffman; Loren Kambitsch, Helen Edwards, Ethel Dresher, Donald Emerson, Leo Heppner, Lavern Edwards and Ella Dresher.

Third and Fourth Grades.

Some of our achievements for the week:

We put up a new border.

We learned a new song.

We finished the story of "The Wise Little Donkey."

We finished our health poster.

We learned how to read and write large numbers.

We received a reply to one of our letters.

We wrote a letter to our teacher's friend in Alaska.

We gave an Eskimo program.

We had a spelling contest.

We studied two poems. We especially liked "The Midnight Ride of Paul Revere."

We started a collection of pictures, poems, stories and the like, relative to the Washington Bicentennial celebration for a scrapbook.

First and Second Grades.

The primary folk completed their Eskimo booklets. They cut out letters by folding and cutting uniform size papers into paper windows, then the word "Eskimos" was made and pasted on the booklet. This is the first time the children have cut out letters. Some of them did very well.

Mrs. Brown visited the primary room Friday and Mrs. Anderson was a caller Thursday.

Coasting Mail Messenger.

"Stub" Geltz should not be mistaken for some youngster as he coasts down from Gospel Butte on his way to the postoffice to deliver outgoing mail to the depot. While his stature is not that of the average ten-year-old boy, he manifests as much pleasure in coasting down the long hill as any of the smaller boys, even to making the turn at the bottom of the hill.

MODERATE WHEAT OFFERINGS MEETING GOOD LOCAL DEMAND

mostly held steady, with the increased premiums offsetting the decline in futures.

Pacific Coast Markets.

Pacific coast markets strengthened slightly, largely in sympathy with the advance at eastern points. No new business was reported since current quotations are well above an export basis. A fair demand for wheat prevailed at Portland and Seattle from local domestic mills and there was some improvement in the inquiry from California buyers. Export mills were working principally on the Chinese relief order and reported no new Oriental flour business. At the close of the market January 22, Big Bend Bluestem hard white wheat was quoted at Portland at 78c, soft and western white at 65c; western red, hard winter and northern spring at 64½c per bushel, sacked, basis No. 1.

St. John's Lutheran Church.

Rev. A. F. Wolff, Pastor.

Sunday school at 9:30 a. m.

English services will be held each Sunday morning at 10::30 o'clock with the exception of the first Sunday of each month when German services will be held.

GREY EAGLE NEWS.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Green, Mr. and Mrs. Harley Bellows and children were visitors Sunday at the Frank Green home.

Mrs. J. C. Cameron and Naomi spent Friday afternoon at the Harms home.

Bob Wardrobe was a visitor at R. A. Gray's a few days last week.

Those who attended the dance at Pine Grove Friday evening report a very enjoyable time.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Parks and children returned to Diamond Tuesday.

Visitors at Pete Isaksen's Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Cameron and children, Miss Pierson, Hazel Green and Chester Green.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Isaksen motored to Lewiston Saturday.

Emil Gustafson was a visitor at O. W. Harms Saturday evening.

Ed Taylor, Bob Wardrobe, Jack, Jess and Chas. Coverdale spent Tuesday evening at Frank Green's.

Doris Harms was a visitor at the Craft home Wednesday and Thursday in Genesee.

Genesee Wins One of Three.

Genesee high school girls lost to Uniontown 16 to 20, and the Genesee first string of high school basket tossers lost to the Moscow Comrades 17 to 20, but the Genesee Seconds came through with a win, scoring 31 points to 20 for a Uniontown boys' team.

How One Man Lost 22 Pounds

Mr. Herman Runkis of Detroit writes: "A few lines of thanks from a rheumatism sufferer—my first bottle of Kruschen Salts took all the aches and swellings out of my joints—with my first bottle I went on a diet and lost 22 pounds and now I feel like a new man."

To lose fat SAFELY and quickly take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast.

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle at any drugstore in the world and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back. All good druggists will be glad to supply you. adv

Miss Rosenau Injured.

During the basketball game played Wednesday evening between Genesee and a Uniontown girls' teams, Miss Ednah Rosenau suffered an injury to her foot, which became painful as the hours passed.

She played but a few minutes during the game when she fell and received the injury.

Open Forum.

At the next forum meeting, Jan. 31 at 2 p. m. at Cozy theatre J. H. Felton of Moscow will explain the tax problem in Latah county and remedies for same. You are invited to ask questions and offer constructive suggestions. The floor is open to anyone for expressing new ideas, is the announcement of R. L. Edwards.

Collins Predicts Low Wheat Yield.

Pendleton—Henry W. Collins, vice president and coast manager of the Farmers National Grain corporation, said Wednesday that winter wheat throughout the country is not in good condition and indications point to a yield 250,000,000 bushels less than harvested last year. Wheat, throughout the middlewest, is six inches high and withs lack of snow, is left unprotected.

VOL. XLIII — GENESEE, LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1932 — NO. 33

GAME BIRDS HAVING HARD STRUGGLE; FEED AVAILABLE

F. A. Smith spent several hours on the streets here Monday soliciting small amounts from local sportsmen to purchase feed for game birds, which, owing to the heavy blanket of crusted snow, have been unable to secure sufficient food to keep them alive. The response by local sportsmen was very gratifying, and a sufficient amount was obtained to purchase a quantity of wheat in the bundle, with big well filled ripe heads.

Some of the bundles have already been distributed around the country and those knowing the location of a flock of game birds which need feed are urged to either take some of the bundles and place them where the birds can reach them or notify one of the hunters living in Genesee.

Wheat bundles have been piled at the Gus Fickens blacksmith shop, near Dr. Field's office and at Herman's hardware store, where anyone interested may go and take a sufficient quantity and set it out for the birds.

Feeding game birds from bundles of ripe grain has proven the most satisfactory, more so than by spreading the grain on the snow or ice, when a considerable amount is lost. After the bundles have been broken down it is also wise to distribute grain over the straw, which will be picked up by the birds.

CONTENDS GROUNDHOG DID NOT SEE HIS SHADOW FEB. 2

Tuesday several called at the News office, carrying the information that the ground hog had seen his shadow and that we would have six weeks more of winter. Lester Hayden, a post-graduate weather prophet and student along similar lines, while anxious to greet warmer days, is of the belief that we will experience twelve more weeks of cold and snowy weather. Colin Wilson, lower Cow Creek rancher, while admitting the sun shone brightly during most of the day, is of the opinion that the ground hog is a sympathetic creature, and as such is so depressed that he did not venture out in the snow and cold, and should he have so done, he would be too thin to make a shadow.

No matter which is correct Tuesday was a queer day. Early in the morning snow was falling, but as the sun climbed to its meridian height, it shone brightly until about 3:45 o'clock when it became enveloped in a bank of clouds in the west.

Tuesday evening may also be recorded as the coldest of the year, low temperatures being reported. Twenty-one degrees below zero was reported east of Genesee about 11 o'clock. The readings vary widely, some saying that the mercury dropped to only 6 below. Twenty below was reported in the lower levels, and 17 below was reported near the school house. It was cold enough, however, if an average is taken.

The Missionary society was entertained Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. F. B. Hampton, with Miss Ida Follett assisting. The next meeting will be with Mrs. D. W. Aherin.

FOSTER-McVAY.

Miss Evangeline Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Foster, was united in marriage last Wednesday, January 27, to Mr. William Francis McVay, Jr., of Spokane. They were married at Asotin, Wash.

The bride is a graduate of the Genesee high school, finishing in 1929, later attending Blair Business college in Spokane.

Mr. McVay is an employe of the Northern Pacific Raiway company.

The young couple left for Spokane Thursday after visiting relatives here.

HERBERT POTSCH RETURNS TO STATE HIGHWAY SHOP

Herbert Potsch has been returned as an employe of the state in the highway department's shop in Lewiston, following an investigation of the district office and shops, which followed the personal findings of the governor some months ago. Governor Ross relieved three men at Lewiston in the employ of the state prior to relieving his state highway commissioner, Alvin Harbour, who, it is said, was a party to granting a very liberal rental contract to the Idaho Equipment company for snow removal equipment.

Following the discharge of Harbour and a subsequent refusal to accept equipment from the Idaho Equipment company, Governor Ross, acting as state highway commissioner, has, through his purchasing agent, contracted for snow removal equipment from the Howard Cooper corporation of Portland.

Saturday two republican members of the board of examiners refused to approve the $36,895 claim of the Howard Cooper company for the machinery, until the disputed claim of $56,000 of the Idaho Equipment company is settled in court or otherwise.

Both Attorney General Babcock and Secretary of State Lukens, member of the board of examiners, declined to approve the claim. Their action brought from Governor Ross, the question of what disposition would be made of the Howard Cooper claim in the event court action on the disputed contract continued in the courts for a year or more.

Governor Ross is the third member of the board of examiners.

Attorney Babcock said he was advised by the attorney for the Idaho Equipment company that a suit would be filed soon. In the event a suit is not filed in reasonable length of time, he said, he would consider not contesting the claim.

Lukens said he was not taking a position that he would not finally approve of the Howard Cooper claim, but did not want to find the state in a position of being forced to buy both sets of equipment when only one was needed.

J. H. Felton Forum Speaker.

J. H. Felton, Moscow attorney, appeared before the public forum at the Cozy theatre Sunday and presented his views on taxation and the proper distribution of money for indigents.

A. S. Lyons of Moscow was also present, and upon invitation from J. J. Berg, chairman of the forum, made a few remarks.

ORRIS DORMAN ADMONISHES ALL FARMERS TO COOPERATE

Despite cold weather and roads partially blocked with snow approximately ninety members of the cooperative grain company here and others gathered at the Legion hall Wednesday afternoon to listen to Geo. E. Davis, of Washington, D. C., and Orris Dorman, member of the board of directors of the North Pacific Grain Growers, Inc., speak on matters relative to the workings of the federal farm board, the merits of the Marketing Act and worthiness of the North Pacific Grain Growers organization.

Mr. Davis, a civil service employee, working in the interests of cooperative movements, carried a message from the federal farm board with which he has been working for the past several weeks, explaining the relation existing between the government, the farmers and the National Grain corporation. Mr. Davis said the farm board was the banking or financial branch of the governmental set-up, intended to assist agriculturists to help themselves.

Mr. Dorman opened his remarks by saying that with each meeting he attends, interest in the cooperative movement was increasing, and while most of his work as director of public relations has taken him into "less prosperous" communities, he intimated that the Genesee section was prosperous, perhaps allowing for a comparisons with other parts of the Inland Empire.

"Agriculture is not a going institution, and has not been for 13 years," Mr. Dorman said, and "for fifty years various farm organizations have been striving to better the agriculturists' condition," he further stated, recalling the efforts of his father and others a half century ago. "Eighty-four per cent of the 2,226 banks which failed in 1931 were located in farming sections" were the words of Mr. Dorman. With farmers receiving less than one-third of the price paid by consumers for farm products, the speaker informed his listeners that they were marketing produce under a 41 per cent price decline, and urged that farmers recognize the worth of the Marketing Act and the farm board which has made the Act workable, at all times stressing the value of cooperative marketing, Mr. Dorman reminded the audience of the Roosevelt Country Life commission 26 years ago and how congress turned a deaf ear to the suggestions of the president at that time for assistance of the farmer.

Mr. Dorman attacked the plan of curtailing surpluses, saying that he was not in sympathy with it, but proposed that sections which produce the commodities of life at the lowest cost be permitted to supply the demand for that particular product, which would relieve those operating at a loss to turn to something else, and to provide employment for all, the various nations would then return to old-time practices, that of trading on reciprocal terms with each other.

Mr. Dorman assailed speculation in the grain exchanges, condemning the practice of selling short, and quoting from a pamphlet, he said, 90,000,000 bushels of wheat were sold short on the Chicago, Minneapolis, Kansas City and Duluth exchanges during the month of September, reminding those in attendance that the four exchanges mentioned represented but one-twentieth of the exhange houses in the United States. During this month his pamphlet also showed dealings in wheat to the extent of 3,259,000 bushels in the Chicago exchange, which he said created false market conditions.

Wasteful methods of distribution is another cause of low profits for the grower of agricultural products Mr. Dorman brought out, citing a case in southern Idaho where sugar is shipped as far east as Chicago in quantities as large as 50 per cent of the state's production, to be replaced by sugar imported from other states and other countries. The practice of consigning wheat is another wasteful factor in distribution, and Mr. Dorman, himself having consigned wheat for sale on the coast related his experience, that of finding no bidders for his product when sale was necessary, except the company with which he had it stored. The construction of an elevator by the North Pacific Grain Growers at Spokane, while meeting with opposition, has its merits, and keeps grain near the point of origin, to be shipped in whatever direction necessary, Mr. Dorman stated, and in pursuance of the policy of the regional organization excess handling charges are avoided, leaving more to

KENDRICK WINS GAME FROM GENESEE AT KENDRICK 32-25

Kendrick won from Genesee last Friday with a score of 32, while the locals had 25 in the basketball game played on the Kendrick floor. The half ended 22 to 13 in favor of Genesee but somehow the Kendrick quintette outscored us in the last half.

George Blume was put out just before the half on personals and Howard Blume also took his seat in the third quarter. Substitutions were: Robert Broemeling for G. Blume and Don Springer for Howard Blume.

The third quarter ended 23 to 22 in our favor but the Kendrick boys ran wild to score 10 points in the last quarter. During the final period there was not a man over five feet nine on the floor.

Genesee played its best of the season in the second quarter. These two teams will meet February 19 on the Genesee floor.

The Genesee basket ball team still has a chance to go to the tournament. They will play a conference game her with Southwick Friday, Feb. 15. February 12 both the boys and girls will meet Lapwai at Lapwai. This will be another conference game.

Tuesday, February 9, Genesee will meet Orofino here and the Genesee seconds will meet the Orofino seconds. When Genesee played at Orofino the score was 29 to 17 in favor of Orofino, while our seconds also lost 21 to 20.

Dance After Game.

After the games, which wil start at 7:00 o'clock a dance is being planned for the benefit of the high school. The funds will go for doctor bills and other expenses which will amount to about $100. The music will be furnished by a local orchestra. Here is a pre-lenten dance for 50 cents.

Culdesac Play.

"Betty," a three-act play which was presented by the Culdesac home talent here January 30, was attended by a rather small crowd which is believed to be due to the weather. This play was well presenetd and the accommodations of the people are appreciated by the student body.

Attends Superintendents' Meeting

Saturday Mr. Suenkel attended a meeting of superintendents and principals of northern Idaho, held at the University of Idaho, at which meeting policies and programs for the coming year were disecussed. The following resolutions were endorsed:

1. Every effort must be made to maintain the standards of the high schools.

2. In order to lessen per capita cost of school operation it will be necessary to enlarge the taxing and operating units. This can best be done by legislative enactment carried out by a state board.

3. That each community and school district study the problems peculiar and applicable to local situations and devise remedies for the same.

As each superintendent presented to the group the problems his district was facing, it was found that most problems were local in nature, for which no general remedy could be applied. It was the consensus of opinion before any general relief can be obtained, two things will be necessary:

1. The enlargement of taxation units through consolidation.

2. A revision of our present tax laws, based on the principle that we must raise our revenues where wealth is located and spend where need arises.

Fifth and Sixth Grades.

In history the fifth grade members have ben studying of the home of the early New England people. Several of the students drew pictures of the interiors of Pilgrim homes.

The best playlets written in the fifth grade were by Donald Emerson, Dorothy Follett and Rowena Nordby. Rowena wrote one about St. Valentine so we will act it out on that day.

Our Weekly Reader had an article about Lindbergh. We all made poems about airplanes, the two best being by Loren Kambitsch and Rita Loncosty.

If I owned an Airplane.

I'd like to own an airplane
And fly up in the sky,
So when people saw me, they'd say,
"Oh, isn't he up high."
And then I'd take a loop-the-loop
And do a great big stunt,
But it would be an awful job,
For it would make be grunt.
Then I'd take down the speed
And land upon the ground,
Then shut off the motor,
And you wouldn't hear a sound.

Mrs. Isaksen's Mother Dies.

Mrs. George Beck, mother of Mrs. Peter Isaksen, passed away at her home at Klamath Falls, Ore., January 21, the cause being high blood pressure resulting in apoplexy. Mrs. Beck was born at Eugene, Ore., but early in life came to Idaho and when married homesteaded with her husband near Mohler, Idaho, in the Nez Perce country. She is survived by her husband, four sons and four daughters. She was 66 years of age at the time of her death.

UNIQUE CONTEST NOW OPEN TO GENESEE NEWS READERS

With this issue of the Genesee News, the Genesee Supply company is inaugurating a novel newspaper of its own, to appear weekly in the Genesee News. No heading or title has as yet been selected for the Supply company's news corner, but have decided to conduct a contest to determine a suitable heading. All readers of this paper, if located in the Genesee trading area are invited to enter the contest, there being no charge whatsoever, and no obligation of any sort. You merely have to write what you consider a suitable heading or title for their miniature newspaper, mail or take it to the Supply company. The necessary blank to-be filled out will be found in this issue of the Genesee News and in the two issues following. The contest will close on February 20, so you are urged to send in your choice of a heading or title as soon as possible. The blank as will be noted is in duplicate that the headings or titles submitted may be judged without the name of the contestant appearing. When the entries are received each will be given a number and the names filed until the judges make their decision after which the award will be made.

Little effort is required for this contest, yet the prize to be announced later will justify each contestant spending considerable time on a suitable heading for the Supply company news corner which appears this week in the Genesee News without a heading.

Baumgartners Entertain.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Baumgartner entertained many friends Friday evening at pinochle. Guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Liberg and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Archibald, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Becker, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Mervyn, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Baumgartner, Mr. and Mrs. John Liberg, Mr. and Mrs. Lars Liberg, Misses Evelyn and Helen Flamoe; Leonard and Ted Flamoe; Peter Dalasego, the Mises Irma and Araminta Dallasego; Wilson and Ad Archibald and George Bertrand.

High score honors at cards went to Mrs. Martin Liberg and Lars Liberg while Mrs. Lars Liberg and W. M. Mervyn were recipients of the low score prizes.

Mrs. Baumgartner served delicious refreshments at the close of the evening.

Miss Olivia Arneson, who has been employed at the Genesee Drug store for several months, left Monday for her home at Coeur d'Alene.

COLD WEATHER AND ORIENT FEATURES IN GRAIN PRICES

Wheat futures advanced rather sharply toward the close of the week ending January 29, influenced by threatened damage from lower temperatures to the unprotected and growing domestic winter wheat crop and also by the unsettled political situation in the Orient, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Rye and and feed grains were stronger with wheat and cash grain markets were mostly firmer with futures, but price advances were less marked and at several points cash grain was quoted unchanged or even slightly lower than a week ago.

Wheat

New crop developments and prospective acreage to be harvested in 1932 are becoming increasingly important factors in the world wheat market situation. The outstanding feature to date among winter wheat producing areas is the decrease of around 4,500,000 acres in the U. S. acreage and the relatively unfavorable condition of the domestic crop in important areas in the western part of the belt. This, however, has been partially offset by larger seedings and more favorable conditions in other countries. India apparently has seeded the largest acreage since 1918, with the preliminary estimate which normally represents 98 per cent of the total acreage, placed at 32,437,000 acres, or around 6.8 per cent above the corresponding estimate a year ago and also slightly above the final harvested area last season. Crop conditions however, are only fair, with additional moisture needed in some areas.

Foreign Acreages Increase.

Trade and official data now available for eight European countries show an increase of around 1,500,000 acres or a little more than 3 per cent. Increased acreages are reported for the important deficit countries of France, Germany and Italy, with conditions favorable. Conditions in Spain so far are good despite the recent changeable weather. In the countries of the Lower Danube some reduction is indicated in Rumania, with areas in other countries showing little change from a year ago. The snow cover is inadequate in Hungary but is fairly abundant in other sections. Conditions in North African countries are favorable, although recent rains caused some flood damage in Tunis. In Algeria, germination of early seedings was regular and the condition of late plantings has improved with recent rains.

Oriental Developments.

While the uncertainty as to developments in the Orient, where political conditions are very unsettled, tended to strengthen the general wheat market situation during the week, current demand continued of only moderate volume, with European requirements being supplied principally from southern hemisphere offerings. Australian and Argentine shipments totaled about 8,000,000 bushels during the week and comprised over one-half of the world's shipments of 15,000,000 bushels. The control of the Argentine grain markets has been temporbe returned to the grower in the form of money. "I have seen 200 cars of wheat in the Spokane railroad yards, before the elevator was built," Mr. Dorman said, and now with facilities of the farmers' organization, the grain is kept moving or stored in cooperatively owned warehouses and elevators.

Mr. Dorman, assumed that many were hesitant about joining cooperatives because of the cost of handling grain, but explained that to be successful the cooperative must make a charge that will mean a profit to the organization, for cooperatives operating without making cost and some profit soon fall, further explaining that by the elimination of the middle man, the cost of handling grain thru a cooperative was much less, and that money in excess of operating costs was returned to the grower in the form of dividends if a member of the cooperative. Estimating the cost of handling the last crop of wheat at one cent per bushel by the North Pacific Grain Growers, Mr. Dorman stated big fortunes were made in the grain business, quoting one independent dealer as saying that his firm usually figured on making seven cents on each bushel of wheat handled; and in some instances the charges were up around 13 cents per bushel.

High salaries paid to executives of the national and regional organizations were defended by Dorman, who said, the National Grain corporation, being one of the largest corporations existing in the United States, demanded men who could and do make large salaries, stating "further that many railroad and insurance companies paid larger salaries than those received by executives of the farm board, the National Grain corporation or regional organization, to which no one objects, yet the people indirectly paid the salaries.

Considering the North Pacific under ordinary conditions, Mr. Dorman said this section has always contended with a burdensome surplus, and able to consume but one-half of its production was in dire straits, when Mr. Collins was persuaded to become affiliated with the regional as its sales manager, who is credited with, by Mr. Dorman, of reducing the surplus, through sales to China and California, to the lowest in years, and consequently created in the Pacific Northwest, a market superior to Chicago, which during the past few months has meant many dollars to wheat growers, sufficient, Mr. Dorman said, to justify his salary many times over. His salary is $18,000 per year. While discussing Mr. Collins' activities, Mr. Dorman said the present sales manager was formerly an independent grain dealer, operating on a large scale, successful in his business, but through his ownership of an enormous acreage of wheat land he recognized the value of the cooperative movement, and sensed the predicament of the wheat grower.

Evidence that the cooperative movement, with the assistance of the federal farm board and other agencies authorized by the Marketing Act is being felt, was presented by Mr. Dorman, when he brought to attention the activities of the Association of American Business Men, organized in Chicago to defeat the purposes of the Marketing Act. This organization, Mr. Dorman said was started by grain dealers and has for its purpose, the disorganization of cooperative movements among grain growers. Their bulletins, mailed to everyone who will accept them, he said, contain some "hot stuff" and is having an effect on congress.

For those who are in any manner interested in the production of grain, Mr. Dorman stated that on February 13 an address would be broadcast over a national hookup, dealing with the debenture and equalization features of the cooperative movement. This broadcast will start locally shortly before the noon hour, and urged his audience to listen in.

"Industries are organized 80 per cent; labor, 60 per cent, and agriculture is approaching 33 per cent; industries are 85 per cent efficient, labor is 75 per cent efficient, and agriculture, under the present set-up is now 75 per cent efficient compared with 42 per cent previously said Mr. Dorman, but the marketing efficiency of agriculture is only 30 per cent perfect, while industries maintain a mark of 95 per cent, and labor, 65 per cent. However, agriculture, according to Mr. Dorman, will in the near future be marketing with perfect efficiency; and will also lessen the spread between the producer and the ultimate consumer, though it will work a hardship on the middlemen, who, he said were more numerous than he expected. The Twin Cities, with its fourteen mills, has between 40 and 50 brokerage houses, according to Mr. Dorman, and his experience as a seller of large crops of grain in Spokane, showed that city to have three mills, with 26 brokerage houses, some of which had only a desk in a room, yet were privileged to buy and sell grain. This is an abuse, Mr. Dorman said, and will be eliminated through the workings of the national and regional marketing agencies of the cooperatives.

Mr. Dorman resented criticism directed at the farm board, and was of the belief that farmers were entitled to the revolving fund allotted to the board for benefit of cooperatives and growers, in the amount of $500,000,000 which he said was but 2 per cent of the amount appropriated for all purposes, to say nothing of the two billion now asked of the present congress for appropriations. The War Finance corporation measure, which served during the war, and reenacted during 1921 was allotted a fund of $500,000,000, $41,000,000 of which was loaned to farmers, and by 1927 every dollar was paid back. Mr. Dorman, in discussing the present loans and advances of the government to individual farmers and the farm board, said he had every reason to believe that money for agricultural purposes would all be repaid, saying also that the farm board members were not selected for their ability to throw money away, and that criticism which has been heard of the farm board and the marketing act emanated from selfish sources, because the success of the cooperative movement and the agencies of the farm board and National Grain corporation were stepping on certain interest's toes.

"Three million men have left their farms to seek employment in the cities," said the speaker, and he ventured the statement that "of the seven and a half million of unemployed, 100 per cent of the farmers who left their farms were included in that number." France is given credit for weathering the depression storm by making it possible for 60 per cent of her men to remain on the farms of their fathers, was another statement by Mr. Dorman.

Mr. Dorman who is a fellow member on the board of directors of the North Pacific Grain Growers, Inc., with A. C. Linehan, of Genesee, and others, praised the work of the local director, and told some experiences of the board, especially the obtaining of warehouse and elevator facilities in the Inland Empire. One firm alone, controlling 126 houses and elevators, were contacted to sell its holdings, and Mr. Dorman here related the proposal made to the national organization for the purchase of these facilities, which was to buy or lease them with farm board money until such a time as they could be purchased outright, the earnings from which should remain in the regional treasury. It was the plan of the National to operate these plants independent of the regional, but to this Mr. Dorman said he seriously objected, and Mr. Linehan and he being often on the minority side were found fighting for their ideas, side by side.

Profits made by the regional thus far, Mr. Dorman stated, were at this time equal to forty per cent of the capital outlay, which if made by independent dealers, would never revert to the grower.

"Soreheads and others opposed to the work being done under the marketing act do not have a leg to stand on," were the words of Mr. Dorman as he returned to a further discussion of the criticism directed toward the movement which he so strongly supports. "The movement is gaining momentum every day; there is nothing that can kill it," and those who are members of a cooperative, and selling and storing their grain with others are but hurting themselves, Mr. Dorman said. Independents are at some points outbidding the cooperative, but to this Mr. Dorman said, "if it were not for the cooperative this condition would not exist."

Idaho, according to Mr. Dorman, is a state advanced in cooperative endeavor, citing instances in southern Idaho where creameries and poultry houses, guided by cooperative principles, were paying the producer more than independents, yet making a nice profit. Mr. Dorman was loud in his praise for the local cooperative grain company, and advised its members and others to study the various credit systems, and note their tendency to become centered about cooperative agencies, particularly for the agricultural commodity production.

"Farm mortgages are doubling with each generation; debts can never be paid, public nor private," were the words of Mr. Darmon. Germany, according to Mr. Dorman, cancelled obligations of the producer and others, in the United States and other places the tendency is in the same direction. "The Peace Treaty was immoral, immoral as hell," Mr. Dorman said.

"Why it saddled $40,000,000,000 of debts on the rising generation in Germany, which it will never be able to pay, and young men in the United States will not pay for the mistakes old men, they will repudiate their inherited obligations."

Mr. Dorman in concluding his outlined talk, stated he was ready to answer questions, the first of which was "What is being done to open up the foreign markets," to which he answered, "Everything that can possibly be done by leading economists, who are now striving for a solution to this problem." The demand was then made that leaders of the movement supported by Mr. Dorman become more active in this matter, to which Mr. Dorman said it would be necessary to rewrite the laws of the United States were the organization to attempt what it desired to do.

Free trade was advanced as a question, but there was little comment on it either from the speaker or listeners. The silver question came up, but was followed by little discussion, Mr. Dorman, who was then on the floor launching again on the differences in marketing as practiced by the cooperatives and the independents, saying that fewer agencies and fewer men were required to handle wheat crops by the organization he represented than by others.

The debenture and equalization features of proposed farm relief legislation came up for discussion, and to the average this phase of relief became interesting, Mr. Dorman stating there was argument in favor of both and paired against the stabilization plan as practiced last fall, there was more argument. "Stabilization is in favor with the farm board," Mr. Dorman let it be known, and in the Pacific Northwest it accomplshed a lot of good. Anti-dumping laws of foreign countries might hinder the progress of the grower, if the debenture feature was applied, was the opinion of Mr. Dorman, stating further than neither plan could be said to be the best until proven by trial.

Restoration of international trade, the exchange of goods with other nations, and a united agriculture that can speak with one voice is the ultimate goal of the cooperative movement, Mr. Dorman stated. "China attempted to shut herself off from the rest of the world when she built her Great Wall; she stopped her progress, and look at her today," Mr. Dorman said.

"The board of trade need not be rendered inoperative, but gambling as practiced now, should be eliminated. Manipulation of the markets are the curse which must be stopped. Most of the market news is the bunk; one week it is 'bear' news and the next it is is 'bull' news. Fifty million bushels of French grain were reported spoiled by moisture; the Russian outturn is of no great consequence, etc.," is all bunk." "Marketing is based on supply and demand, and if true reports are made, there is no apparent need for a grain exchange, with the facilities available by the government capable of supplying all information," were the words of Mr. Dorman, who could say nothing good for the unethical methods of the exchanges.

The time allotted the speakers was too brief for a discussion of all matters, but the two speakers answered questions relative to the increase of interest rates and the high salaries being paid to officials of the various cooperative marketing agencies, which with further discussion on the workings of the entire marketing machinery became very complicated.

Operating Coffee Shop in Oakland.

Word has been received by Mrs. Nels Lande that Mr. and Mrs. George Nelson and Miss Mildred Nelson of Oakland, California, have purchased a Coffee Shop in that city and are now operating it. Miss and Mr. Nelson are niece and nephew, respectively of Mrs. Lande, and former residents of Genesee.

This shop, which is in the heart of the Oakland business district, and patronized by some of the more prominent business people, is called the "Little Brown Jug." It is artistically arranged and the name is carried out in the design of the shop and in the color of the walls, a collection of brown jugs, and especially made brown dishes and glassware being added features.

Before moving to Oakland, Mr. Nelson was associated with the National Broadcasting company in San Francisco and Miss Nelson was in the office of the Emporium, also in San Francisco.

A most interesting incident occurred when the Nelsons moved into their apartment in Oakland. Upon talking with the manager of the apartment one day, it was discovered that over twenty years ago she had lived with them on the Nelson farm near Genesee and had later established a dress making shop in Genesee. Her name is Mrs. J. Jorgensen, and was formerly Miss Jennie Brehm. Mrs. Jorgensen remembers many of the people in Genesee and says that one of the happiest times of her life was when she lived here. She sends greetings to all her acquaintances, as do George and Mildred Nelson, who wish to be remembered to their many friends here. Their address is 457 17th Street, Oakland, Calif.

Birthday Party for Mrs. Morscheck.

In celebrating Mrs. Herman Morscheck's 74th birthday anniversary, she was surprised last Thursday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morscheck, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morscheck, Mr. and Mrs. George Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Rosenau, Mrs. W. H. Rosenau and son, Willard; Henry Blume, George Morscheck and Herman Morscheck. The guests brought delicious refreshments which were served following an evening at cards and visiting with Mrs. Morscheck.

LENVILLE NEWS.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Kinnier made a business trip to Troy, Monday.

Mrs. Dale visited school Tuesday afternoon.

Such a happy bunch of youngsters Tuesday noon! Those having birthdays since school opened were given a birthday dinner by the rest of the school. The birthday people were: Esther Taber, Edith Williams, Eugene Ross, Lewis Dale, Neal Junior Kinyon and James Schultz. Mr. Anderson brought over a large table and a big freezer of ice cream. The birthday cake furnished by Donnie Kennedy was very prettily trimmed with candles. The other children brought the rest of the picnic dinner. After dinner there were a few minutes left to skate and play games.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Peterson entertained at four tables of pinochle Wednesday night.

Bernie Brigham made a business trip to Moscow Thursday.

John Williams and daughter, Edith and Harold and Cecil Johnson spent the week end in Clarkston, visiting relatives and attending the Butcher meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Taber and Esther took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Wright Friday night and attended the Literary at Aspendale in the evening.

A crowd from Lenville attended Literary at Aspendale Friday night, the Kennedys, Kinniers, Kinyons, Andersons, Tabers and Wrights. A packed house and a splendid program and a good social time was enjoyed.

Fain Cooksey, who is working for Ray Kennedy this winter seems to be too bashful to explain why he has the habit of spending every Sunday at Driscoll Ridge.

Bernie Brigham lost a valuable cow this week.

Barbara Louise Rommel is getting along nicely.

This Friday night February 5 instead of a Literary program there will be a picnic supper at 6 o'clock at the old store building. Everyone is invited to bring their basket and dishes. The refreshment committee will see that there is plenty of coffee. We are planning a good old-fashioned picnic supper with games, stunts and a social good time.

Altar Society.

The Altar Society met Tuesday afternon at the home of Mrs. Anna Kries with Mrs. John H. Broemeling hostess, who served a delicious luncheon, following the regular business meeting. Mrs. J. Berg will entertain in two weeks, February 16.

Birthday Surprise.

Mrs. F. W. Qualey was pleasantly surprised Sunday afternoon by several friends in honor of her birthday. Well-filled baskets were brought by the guests from which a delicious dinner was served. The time was spent in playing cards, games and tobogganing. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Gus Rosenau and daughters, Marie and Maxine; Mr. and Mrs. Dick Nebelsieck and son, Ervin; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Baumgartner and daughter, Irene; Mrs. Hannah Swenson, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Airplanes.

I'd love to own an airplane,
And travel very high,
To make the people stop their work
And look up toward the sky.
Airplanes, airplanes,
Soaring through the air,
And if you look for a large machine
It would certainly not be there.
Airplanes, airplanes,
How wonderful they look,
And when we're very very old,
They'll be in the history book.

Third and Fourth Grades.

February's many special activities are demanding. Washington, Lincoln, Edison and Longfellow all come in for a share of our attention this month. Then too, there is Valentine's Day.

We are making these special days the basis of study in language, reading, citizenship and history. Interesting items or anecdotes, poems, stories, dramatizations, songs and pictures all promise to make the month a profitable one.

First and Second Grades.

When the children in the second grade know their addition numbers up to thirteen they get a self-teacher game. So far this week Della Stout and Betty Lou Cameron have received sets. A good breakfast poster was completed today. Pictures of the following menus were placed on the poster: Fruit (oranges grapefruits and prunes), hot cereal, toast, eggs and a glass of milk. Plans for a Valentine post office are being made, the children wishing to use the same post office we had last year.

Stock is Dying Now.

Niobrara, Nebraska.—To the Editor of the World-Herald: Will you appeal to the people of Nebraska through your paper to save northeastern Nebraska from starvation, sickness and disease? Our people have been receiving aid through the Red Cross and the Bryan relief. More food for human must be shipped into this community. Our stock is dying. Not a day in the last two weeks has passed that we do not hear of some stock dying. The average farmer has been trying to keep alive his stock on very little grain and corn fodder. This diet is not sufficient. Another month of this and half of the stock in this territory will be dead.

Will our state leaders let this continue without taking some definite steps to save these counties for the farmer? Unless some vital action is taken soon it will be too late, and our opportunity to help our own people will be passed.

While our leaders are hesitating, will Nebraskans help, now, before it is too late.

Nebraska will save its own. That is why we plead for action now.

W. W. Hughes.

Bridge Party.

Mrs. Mahlon Follett entertained three tables at bridge Wednesday evening. High score prize was won by Mrs. Vern Beckman and the consolation by Mrs. Harry Schooler. Mrs. Follett served refreshments of ice-cream, cakes and coffee at the close of the evening.

Bridal Shower for Mrs. Wilson.

A bridal shower was given for Mrs. Lloyd A. Wilson at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hayden, Saturday afternoon. Those present were: Mesdames M. S. Wilson, F. B. Hampton, Ed Erickson, Geo. Erickson, H. T. Smith, Bert Wishard, Geo. Anderson, Geo. Berry, Will Rader, Joe Springer, Loys Esser, John Vandenburg, E. E. Stout and Misses Genevieve Hampton, Violet Heppner, Vivian Olson, Della Stout and Bonnie Hayden, beside the guest of honor and hostess. Mrs. Wilson received many beautiful and useful gifts.

Progressive Club.

Miss Esther Martinson entertained the Progressive club last Thursday. The guests were greeted at the door by the hostess who was dressed in a Chinese costume, as were a few of the other ladies who assisted in serving luncheon at 1 o'clock. The luncheon was unique in that several Chinese dishes were served.

Guests were: Mrs. Ray Edwards, Mrs. Glen Sampson and Miss Pearl Perkins.

Mrs. Laura Phipps will be the next hostess.

arily vested in the Argentine department of agriculture, but as yet no change in operations has been reported. Samples of Argentine wheat on English markets are reported of good quality, while Australian wheat is averaging about one pound per bushel heavier than a year ago. Russian shipments decreased to only 384,000 bushels during the week. Prices of native wheats in Europe were generally steady, except in Italy, where a decline of about 3 cents was reported at Milan.

Good milling wheat in Milan was quoted at $1.49 January 28. Native milling wheat was quoted at Paris at $1.68, the same as a week ago, and at Hamburg at $1.51, an advance of three and three-fourths cents for the week. American durum wheat was quoted CIF Marseilles at 84 3-4 cents and at Naples at 77½ cents per bushel. Italian durum was quoted at Naples at $1.91 and African wheat at Marseilles at $1.68 3-4.

Pacific Coast Markets.

Pacific coast markets did not follow the advance at Eastern points but continued weak as a result of the lack of export outlet and rather slow demand from domestic mills. Export mills in the Pacific northwest continued active operation on the Chinese flour contract. From the total of 1,600,000 barrels, 1,325,000 barrels has now been allocated to mills. While no export sales of wheat were reported during th eweek, a sale of 1,000 barrels of flour was made to Shanghai from a mill with an established brand in that market. Receipts of wheat at Columbia river and Puget Sound markets total 902 cars, compared with 810 cars the corresponding week last season.

California wheat markets were mostly dull and easier, but strengthened slightly toward the close of the week, influenced by higher prices at eastern points. Trading in local wheat was of small volume and mills and feeders were supplying their current requirements principally with wheat from Washington, Oregon and Texas. Inter-mountain offerings were scarce and were generally quoted at prices above wheat from other areas. San Francisco mills reported a normal flour business, but were mostly working on wheat stocks accumulated earlier in the season and were buying only sufficient quantities to obtain proper mixtures. Industrial buyers were taking only small amounts, since recent declines in egg and dairy products have reduced demand for feed wheat.

VOL. XLIII — GENESEE, LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1932 — NO. 34

FORMER GENESEE PIONEER PASSES AWAY AT RIPON, CAL.

E. J. Bru, 75, passed away at his home near Ripon, Calif., last week of heart failure, an ailment which has affected him for the past ten years. The final attack was of short duration, death coming without apparent suffering. Mr. Bru is survived by his widow, the sister of Mrs. John Meyer, Sr., and Henry Flomer, both of Genesee, and Lewis Flomer, New York City, now home from a year's visit to Germany.

Deceased is a native of Bordeaux, France, coming to this country when a young man to experience life on the West coast and in Alaska during the days of the Gold Rush. He acquired a considerable amount of money in his labors in California, and eager to return for a visit to France he became interested in the purchase of a tramp freighter, but his would-be partners coaxed him into a drinking parlor in Frisco and when he awakened learned that he was being Shanghaied, and short the fund of cash which he had earned. During the voyage of the freighter in which he was forced to labor, he traveresed the coast of his native country and at times saw the soil of France, but was never permitted to set foot on land.

Mr. Bru operated a saloon here in early days, moving to Stockton, California about 1907 where he conducted a confectionery store, later purchasing a forty-acre diversified farming tract near Ripon where he has resided with him family for about 15 years.

One daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Bru, now married to Fred Maskus, also of Ripon.

VERONA WOLFF, GENESEE EXPERT RIFLE SHOOTER

University of Idaho—The University of Idaho women's rifle team lost its initial telegraphic matches of the year to the University of South Dakota and another match to Drexel Institute of Philadelphia.

In the first match South Dakota scored 977 out of a possible 1,000 as against 963 for the Idaho coeds. In a best five out of ten match, Drexel Institute made a score of 491 against Idaho's 478. A third match to have been fired with Michigan State college was defaulted by that institution.

Verona Wolff, Genesee, leads the Idaho women sharpshooters with an average score of 97.3. Other high averages in the inter-collegiate matches were turned in by Anna Hughes, Donnelly, 97.0; Aretha Harvey, Kamiah, 96.6; Winifred Himes, Post Falls, 96.0; and Marion Fry, Bonners Ferry, 95.6.

Next week the Idaho women will fire matches with the University of Maryland and Louisiana State University, and the following week will fire in the 60-shot National Women's Intercollegiate matches which will continue throughout February.

No Such Luck.

The condition in China is referred to as one political, but where are the politicians? Surely they are not being killed off—no such luck.

Legion May Organize Rifle Club.

Dale Lanphier and Art Potsch were named as a committee to obtain information relative to forming rifle clubs, which it is understood, are being sponsored by the American Legion in connection with the government. The committee has been instructed to contact the marksmanship director of the Legion who resides at Twin Falls, and at the next meeting of the Legion the plan will be outlined. While the information relative to this project is vague at present, it is thought that members of recognized rifle clubs are furnished with the Sprinfield army rifle and that ammunition is supplied at a low cost. And too, the information has been about that these clubs are open not only to ex-service men, but to other civilians as well.

COURT TO TEST INCOME TAX LAW, FEBRUARY 23

An attack on the Idaho income tax as unconstitutional, invalid and illegally enacted by the special session of the legislature was made Tuesday in supreme court in the reply filed by attorneys employed by the state chamber of commerce to test the act.

The answer was in response to a petition of Ben Diefendorf, income tax commissioner, for a writ of mandate to compel State Auditor E. G. Gallet to certify claims of the tax department. The test was brought with approval of Governor Ross and the attorney general, the latter defending the act.

The reply declared the entire act violated both the state and federal constitutions by depriving persons of equal protection of law, by taking property without due process of law, by interference with interstate commerce, by placing an unequal tax burden upon the same classes of citizens of the state, and because it is not prescribed in the state constitution as an approved form of taxation.

The answer concluded by asserting there was no justification for holding the special session of the legislature at which the law was enacted.

Entered Walkathon.

Miss Luella Freeman, daughter of Mrs. Maude Freeman, Genesee, entered a walkathon in Los Angeles recently with her brother-in-law, Thos. Hosley. The walkathon was broadcast every night over station KMTR from 11 to 11:30, and many heard Miss Freeman sing. Her popularity was evidenced by the number of requests each evening for her to sing. After three weeks Mr. Hosley was forced to drop out because of ill health and Miss Freeman disqualified after 24 hours, when she failed to obtain a second partner. Thirty couples entered the contest and fifteen remained at the time Miss Freeman and Mr. Hosley dropped out.

Stormy weather kept many away from the Firemen's dance, given last Thursday at the high school gym, but in spite of snow-blocked roads, and a threatening storm, the floor was crowded and the fire department is well pleased with the returns, and wishes to thank the people who assisted in making the venture a success.

INDIRECT TAXES CLASSED AS PAINLESS EXTRACTION

This is the fifth of a series of articles on taxation, written by Glenn Balch under the direction of the state chamber of commerce:

Painless Extraction.

The term "painless extraction" may have originated with dentists but the practice has long been used with considerable success by governments in collecting revenue from the public.

The excellence of this "painless extraction" process, from the standpoint of governments, is that it gets the money in such an easy, gentle, but nevertheless firm manner that the contributor is hardly aware of it. The method is generally known as "indirect taxation," meaning that the collection is carried on by some other agency than the government, a sort of systematized and very efficient buck-passing as it were.

Indirect taxation came into official favor about the time the public began to take brow-furrowed cognizance of the size of its property tax bill. It became apparent that the limit had been reached and some new method of raising governmental funds must be devised if the governing bodies were to be able to keep up the gratifying spending.

The Consumer Pays.

In casting about for such a method, indirect taxation was discovered and the unsuspecting public was subjected to an experiment in "painless extraction." It worked, and a steady stream of painlessly extracted revenue began to flow into governmental coffers. The joker in the deck is that the consumer, who is frequently a tax payer, pays the bill.

In indirect taxation the theory employed is to mollify the contributor by deluding him into thinkng that he is getting something for his money—something other than government, of course. Human nature is such that it doesn't care to pay to be governed.

One method of indirect taxation that has found general favor is the adding to the cost of certain articles, the addition to go to the governmental treasuries. This has the additional and likewise very pleasing feature of placing the burden of collection upon certain industries. The government wisely stays out of the picture as much as possible and the consumer generally doesn't pause to consider the amount of the purchase price that finds its way into governmental coffers.

Indirect Taxes.

The best example of "painless extraction" in Idaho is the gasoline tax. A law placing a levy of 2 cents on each gallon of gasoline sold in the state was enacted in 1923. The auditor's report for the fiscal binennium of 1922-1924 shows that the gas tax collections totalled $753,112.37, quite a neat little sum.

That, however, was just the beginning. For the next biennium the collections totalled $1,895,914.27. At present the levy has been increased to five cents per gallon and revenue from this source as shown by the last auditor's report was $4,872,481.70.

Other forms of indirect taxation, not all of which have been used in Idaho however, are sales tax, license tax, amusement tax, luxury tax, tobacco tax and occupational tax. The kilowatt tax and oleomargarine tax, both of which are enforced in Idaho at present, are examples of "painless extraction."

During the past biennium we find that the state department of agriculture collected $253,669.34 in license and inspection fees. The state bureau of insurance collected "premium taxes" totalling $412,402.71 at a rate of 2 per cent on gross premiums of foreign companies and 1 per cent of mutual premiums. A seer isn't needed to tell us that in the final analysis the man who pays the premium pays the "premium tax."

Taxes Not Unjust.

Let us take the bureau of insurance for illustration purposes. From annual licenses, agents' certificates, other permits and licenses, filing annual statements, filing articles and premium taxes, it collected in the recent biennium a total of $552,799.26, all of which went into the general fund to help defray the ordinary expenses of state government. In other words the insurance industry collected more than half a million dollars for the state from Idaho policy holders.

This article is not to be taken as a condemnation of indirect taxation. Such a method of raising governmental recenue has merit and no study of our revenue system will be complete unless it is given due consideration.

GRAIN MARKETS UNSETTLED; STRENTH THEN WEAKNESS

Grain markets were unsettled during the week ending February 5, influenced by the disturbed situation in the Orient, rapidly changing weather conditions in the domeste wheat belt and firmer liberal offerings of new wheat from the southern hemisphere, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Wheat futures advanced rather sharply early in the week when severe weather in the central west threatened damage to winter wheat, but later declined when the weather moderated and trade reports indicated no serious crop injury. Rye, corn and other feed grains mostly followed the fluctuations in wheat.

World Wheat Markets.

World wheat markets, while somewhat irregular, strengthened slightly with some improvement in European demand following the relaxation of milling restrictions in France and Italy. Price advances, however, were held in check by continued liberal offerings of new crop wheat from the southern hemisphere. Liverpool prices advanced slightly during the week and Continental markets developed a firmer tone with more active buying of foreign wheat. Italy has been a liberal purchaser of foreign wheats, particularly from the southern hemisphere, since the change in the milling quota and stocks of foreign wheat in Italy have increased, while stocks of domestic wheat, particularly in southern districts, are reported low. Spain has purchased Argentine wheat during recent weeks, with supplies of native wheat reported relatively small. French purchases, including principally Manitobas, have become larger following the increase of the allowance of foreign wheat in milling mixtures to 10 per cent. German trade in foreign wheat continued unimportant, but the relatively light offerings of native wheat were readily absorbed by domestic millers. Austrian business in foreign wheat was restricted by the insufficient allotment of foreign currency. Czechoslovakian markets were very dull, with buyers showing little interest and prices tending lower. Moderate trading in spot Russian wheat was in evidence in Belgium markets, with some interest apparent in American hard winters and Danubian wheat. A good business, particularly in Argentine wheat, was reported in Dutch markets.

Oriental grain markets were inactive under the influence of disturbed political conditions. The wheat, flour and cotton exchanges and most of the Chinese banks in Shanghai have been closed. Shipping is disrupted and the wharves are congested, according to Agricultural Commissioner Dawson. No western wheat, exclusive of flood relief grain, arrived at Shanghai during January. Two cargoes of Australian wheat arrived at the last of the month and one cargo of Canadian wheat was reported sold. Arrivals of native wheat at Shanghai continued to be a small fraction of last year's arrivals.

World shipments continued of moderate volume, with about three-fifths of the total consisting of southern hemisphere shipments, which amounted to 9,634,000 bushels during the week, about evenly divided between Argentine and Australia. Black Sea shipments totaled only 584,000 bushels, of which 408,000 was of Russian wheat. At the close of the market February 5, Argentine Barusso wheat afloat was quoted at Liverpool at 54c and Australian wheat from New South Wales at 56 5-8c per bushel. No. 1 hard winter for February shipment from Atlantic ports was offered at 59 3-8c. No. 3 Manitoba from Vancouver afloat sold at London at 58½c per bushel. Good milling wheat, native, was quoted at Hamburg at $1.55, at Paris at $1.66½, at Milan at $1.56 and at Copenhagen at 56 7-8c per bushel. American durum was quoted CIF Marseilles at 83c, and CIF Naples at 78 7-8c.

Pacific Coast Markets.

Pacific Coast markets were relatively weaker than those at eastern points largely as a result of political disturbances in the Orient which have practically eliminated export demand for western wheat. No export sales for wheat were made during the week, but a few small sales of flour were reported to the Philippine Island. Receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia River terminals decreased and totaled only 765 cars compared with 89c cars a year ago. Demand from domestic mills was of moderate

Cheer Up.

At 6:55 Wednesday evening Lester Hayden issued his weather report, which is as follows: "This wind a' blowing is just a chinook edging in to clear the ground of snow, that room may be made for a like amount." This prediction is based on a study made last September, says Mr. Hayden, who took his post graduate work at Wenatchee a year or two ago. His data on weather is taken partly from a Hick's Almanac, dated a number of years ago. People today are so pressed for money that a new almanac is out of the question, and therefore we must be content with weather to correspond with the ancient almanac which Mr. Hayden has saved through these many years. He is unable to tell the brand of weather we are entitled to under the predictions of a new almanac. Mr. Hayden has consented, however, to make an attempt to locate an almanac wherein the weather is such that our present covering of snow will melt gently and permit its absorption by the soil.

DON'T FORGET TO SEND IN BALLOT TO SUPPLY CO.

Judges have been selected for the contest being staged by the Genesee Supply company; they are E. S. Suenkel, superintendent of schools; Miss Anderson, commercial instructor in the high school, and J. N. Hasfurther.

The contest is open to everyone in the Genesee trade territory with the exception of employes of the Genesee Supply company and members of their respective families. There is no obligation attached to handing in a name which you think suitable for the news corner appearing over the name of the Genesee Supply, and for the small effort, required there is a prize worth while, as you have your choice of an electric radio lamp, an electric waffle iron, a rubber tired coaster wagon, a boy's tool chest or an imported China and silver drip coffee urn, any one of which in an inducement to think up a name which you believe to fill the requirement.

When your ballot is sent in you receive a number and the upper half is deposited in a sealed ballot box. You may retain the lower half with your name and number if you wish, or the Supply company will file it for record at its store. On February 20 the judges will consider the various names or titles submitted and to the one who presents the best, goes the choice of any one of the above listed prizes.

The coupon or ballot appears again this week and next directly under the news corner for which the title is desired.

Who Said It was Winter in Elk River?

Elk River News:Mrs. T. S. Jeffries says that spring is here. She can verify that statement by showing seven chicks which pecked their way into the world last week on the Jeffries ranch. The chicks are all strong and healthy. Another batch of chicks is due today (last Friday). If this isn't the sign of Spring, nothing else is, or the hens are doing ther best to rid the country of the depression.

G. H. S. COMES FROM BEHIND TO WIN FROM OROFINO CLUB

In one of the fastest games of the season, that carried with it plenty of thrills, the local high school boys succeeded in trouncing the Maniac crew from Orofino. The game started fast but both teams missed their cripples. The quarter ended 5 to 5, and at the half-time period Genesee was trailing 12 to 15, but made up this difference in short order as the second half was launched. The third quarter ended with the score standing 26 to 20 for Genesee. An attempted stall proved unsuccessful and the team went into a fast offensive which netted them twelve points in the last four minutes of play.

George Blume and George Smylie led in scoring with 10 and 12 points, respectively. Rinehart showed the fans he could do things when opportunity presented itself. Howard Blume and Wishard played their regular consistent game, while Broemeling, substituting for Wishard, looped in two counters before the Orofino boys realized he could shoot. He was checked closely after that.

The team is presenting a brand of ball that is interesting to watch and which will take them to the tournament, we hope. The boys plan to give the Lapwai team plenty of worries this Friday at Lapwai.

The Orofino seconds defeated Genesee seconds 24 to 25 after Genesee led as much as 12 points during the last quarter. Broemeling was high scorer of this game with 10 points.

Southwick Conquered.

Overcoming a 7 to 5 lead in the opening quarter of play, the Genesee boys held a close lead the remainder of the game. The game was fast throughout, both teams passing the ball nicely and had it not been for plenty of scrap in the closing minutes the local boys might have had a different story to tell. George Blume was outstanding for the locals, getting the center tip consistently and held his opponent practically scoreless and at the same time accounting for 17 markers. Smylie got 11 points but in trying to smother the Southwick star went out on personals. Triplett of Southwick scored 21 points in spite of the fact that Genesee was out to stop him. This boosts Genesee into a tie with Southwick for third place in the conference. The Genesee team plays its next conference game here Febr. 19 with Kendrick. They meet Lapwai tonight.

Girls Lose to Alumni.

The girls played the alumni, three of whom are at present playing on class teams at the University of Idaho. It was the common expectation before the game started that our high school girls would be "snowed under." The alumni started off the scoring with the high school girls coming through with a basket in short order. All during the first half the girls held the alumni to a very small lead. A shift in the alumni in the second half gave them a smoother machine which enabled them to score a 22 to 12 win. The game was one of the hardest fought and most interesting that the girls have played this year.

Friday night the Genesee girls go to Lapwai for a return game. In the

DROUTH STRICKEN AREAS SEEK TEMPORARY RELIEF

While the Palouse country has a surplus of wheat and feed grain, the northern part of Nebraska is seeking temporary aid in the form of feed for livestock, and the following from the Omaha World Herald's "Public Pulse" column of recent date gives a vivid description of conditions in Nebraska:

Asks Special Session.

To the Editor of the World-Herald —This is the first expression the undersigned has ever made by way of a letter to a newspaper, but in view of the need and want in seven drouth stricken counties of Nebraska, he cannot resist the opportunity of stating publicly that in his opinion Governor Bryan ought to call the legislature of Nebraska together at once, in order to provide immediate help for the drouth sufferers and their stock. This is said without any idea of criticizing the governor or those who might for policy reasons wish to defer a meeting of the legislature, but the writer had occasion in December, in company with Frank Landers of this city, to travel through and inspect conditions in the stricken territory on behalf of the American Legion.

During the trip we had conversations with some of the most representative men in the dry territory. Such men as Senator Anderson of Bristow, Mayor Saunders of Creighton, William A. Bruce of Verdigre, and John D. Forsythe of Niobrara. To these men the need was stark. The Red Cross representatives, under Albert Evans, were doing valuable services. However, they admitted, and we all agreed, that the Red Cross was unable to provide means for feeding the stock that was left. The writer became convinced; as did his associates, that private contributions throughout the state are not adequate to the need, and that only the state itself can cope with the situation now, which by reason of the general depression affecting everybody, and the harshness of the season, makes each day more difficult for the people who are still living in the dry territory.

The American Legion has been contributing and gathering contributions all through the state, but the private resources of the people of the state are steadily dwindling to the point needed to take care of their own immediate wants.

To the writer there seems to be nothing more necessary to the justification of government than preserving the life and the opportunity of livelihood of the citizens of the state. The writer has seen children of the age of 15 years with barely enough clothing. He has seen the men and women on those drouth-stricken farms fighting to the last ditch against the acceptance of public aid. He has seen the feed lots stripped of cattle and of hogs and even the barn lot cleared of chickens and a milk cow because there was no feed for them.

The American Legion, through Senator Howell and Congressmen Simmons and Howard, immediately began a movement to secure the federal appropriation necessary for feed, but this will be delayed through the governmental red tape.

It seems to the writer that there should be no further hesitation and that Governor Bryan should issue his call at once for the legislature to meet and provide immediate funds to feed the cattle and stock, and to authorize the payment for the road projects either under construction or to be constructed in the very earliest spring. South Dakota has 17 counties suffering. The state of South Dakota, according to my information, has not hesitated to provide means for the drouth stricken from the public purse.

May I express the hope that your paper will encourage the governor to call the legislature together at once for the assistance of these people.

T. J. M'Guire.

Bushel of Feed for Each Animal.

Bloomfield, Nebraska, Jan. 20.—Lloyd W. Longnecker, field secretary of the Nebraska Prison Welfare society, reports here that a survey made in Union township near Niobrara reveals there is only one bushel of grain left in the township for each farm animal there.

"The situation is desperate," said Mr. Longnecker. "Within the last few days eight horses have died in Union township alone from lack of feed. The horses are so hungry that they are eating the bark from the trees. In some places they are eating twigs as large as a man's thumb. Unless sufficient feed is provided for the animals the farmers will have to desert their farms."

Reply to Governor's Criticism.

Apparently Governor Bryan can visualize no good reason for calling a session of the Nebraska state legislature. The writer of the following, a resident of Bloomfield, Nebraska, replies to the governor, as follows through the columns of the World-Herald, Omaha:

While it is well known that Governor Bryan has no love for the banker, he went rather far in displaying his ill feelings in his interview to the State Journal (Lincoln) January 20.

Governor Bryan states that four of every seven of those who comprised the delegation from the drouth area of the state to present their resolutions, were either bankers, directors of banks or attorneys for banks and accuses these bankers of attempting to persuade him to call a special session of the legislature to protect their investment in live stock mortgages by providing a loan to the farmers in the area to purchase feed for the live stock mortgaged.

Why further malign the banker? Is he such a despicable human being that all of his acts have to be interpreted in the light of self interest? Is he of such low type that he is unable to do an unselfish act; heed the cry of distress or answer the cry for help? Has he become so material minded that he thinks entirely upon a dollar and cent basis? Has he become so degraded that his civic and community pride no longer responds to the pleas for assistance from his neighbors without financial remuneration? Governor Bryan would have the people think so.

Governor Bryan has been a politician so long that he interprets all acts from a political view point. He can observe no unselfish act without attributing to it some selfish motive. He sees in every request for assistance some self seeking interest. Is the governor himself free from any criticism of self seeking? Are his motives so pure that he cannot be accused of using his "Drouth Relief" as a means of furthering his own political ends?

It would not be just or kind to make such accusations against the governor but neither is it just or kind for him to accuse others of double dealing, particularly when he knows nothing about it. It is very doubtful indeed whether there was one banker present in the delegation with any intent to further his own, or his bank's interest. He was called upon as a representative of his community, well posted as to its conditions and requirements. It is to him the farmer comes when he is out of feed; he well knows the financial limitations of his community and is therefore in a better position to judge its needs and requirements. As a whole, the banks in the drouth area have loaned the farmers for the purchase of feed, as far as the financial condition of the territory will permit. They ask no agency to carry on for them to protect what they already have invested; they will look out for that themselves. It is for the farmer to whom they cannot loan on account of the limited financial resources of the territory, or the farmer who has his stock mortgaged to some closed bank, for whom they ask assistance particularly.

Until two years ago, the area now designated as a drouth district was considered one of the best producing sections of the state. Two years of drouth and grass hoppers have exhausted their surpluses. They will produce again, but temporary assistance is needed. They do not want charity, they have too much pride, they want a loan. The needs are acute and steps should be taken at once for relief or the productive power of the district will be impaired for years to come.

Governor Bryan believes that he knows the needs of his people and that he will supply their necessities in his own way and time. To petition his excellency is apparently an affront to his dignity. He attempts to thwart the efforts of his petitioners by presenting his views of the matters before they can present their petition. He is determined to have his own way regardless of the consequences. To cover up his lack of sympathetic understanding he hurls accusations at his petitioners. If the entire delegation had been bankers it would not lessen one iota the great need for which assistance was being asked, nor rendered less imperative the need for immediate action.

Governor Bryan has published to the world that Nebraska could take care of its own people. It is up to him to make good in a hurry, or eat his words.

P. E. Stepp.

Resent Words of Governor Bryan.

The following by Will Maupin, staff correspondent of the Omaha World-Herald is self-explanatory:

Whether Governor Bryan will call a special session for drouth relief appropriations, as requested by the big delegation from the drouth area last Monday is the question most discussed about the big capitol building. His statement Tuesday in which he called the plan presented to him Monday as "bankers' plan for drouth aid," aroused considerable resentment on the part of those familiar with the personnel of the delegation.

The facts, as stated by one thoroughly familiar with the situation in the drouth area, because of personal investigation in recent weeks, and years of acquaintance with the territory, are that it is not a plan to assist bankers to make good on their loans or to finance "cattle feeders" in the common acceptance of that term. Any farmer who has one or two cows is a cattle feeder. Knox county, the hardest hit county in the drouth area, is not a cattle country in the meaning of the term as applied to Cherry county. Only one county in the state has more farmers than Knox county, and cattle feeding is secondary to the production of agricultural crops.

It is true that after three years of practical crop failure, the last year total, the farmers of that territory, regardless of whether they are maintaining a few milk cows or trying to raise a few cattle for market, have been forced to mortgage themselves to the hilt to be able to carry on at all. It is equally true that if the banks that hold those mortgages are forced to foreclose, not only will the bankers lose but will be forced to suspend and bring loss upon their depositors and at the same time drive to irretrievable ruin the farmers of that section. In proportion to population there have been more bank failures in the drouth area during the last two and a half years than in any other part of the state.

"We are not asking loans to enable us to buy feed so that we may fatten stock cattle and fit them for market," declared more than one member of last Monday's delegation. "We are asking help to carry over our 'seed stock' so we will be able to build up again instead of being taken to a complete cleaning."

This correspondent attended the meeting of the representatives of the drouth area, held at the Lincoln hotel last Sunday evening. B. Ready of Hartington, one of the best known lawyers in eastern Nebraska, was selected as chairman because, as explained by the farmers present, he was admittedly a good parliamentarian and a clear and forceful speaker. Mr. Smith of Hartington was made secretary because he had been designated by the survey committee to tabulate the reports handed in and was better acquainted with those reports than any other man.

There would have been far more farmers at the meeting, had there been more able to finance the trip.

More Fortunate Donate.

Responding to urgent appeals from drouth-stricken areas in Nebraska, farmers and merchants of Elkhorn shipped a freight car of supplies to care for needy at Ewing.

Over a ton of grain for starving cattle was sent, together with canned food and clothing for a number of families who are in sore straits.

Under direction of E. F. Cockerill, a committee canvassed all of Chicago precinct. Farmers everywhere donated corn, oats, wheat and barley in varying amounts.

"The response was whole-hearted," said Cockerill, "We're proud of our folks. Not a single turn-down from anyone. It's remarkable, because the people out here have had barely a half crop themselves for the past two years."

The Elkhorn, Nebraska, people went into action shortly after Mrs. A. Deerson received a letter from the wife of a storekeeper at Ewing, asking help for the community.

The letter said in part:

" * * * the paper says that the farmers and merchants of your town are collecting a car of corn, etc., to send to stricken districts * * Everyone has been helping each other out here, but we think we are at the end * * * We have asked our commissioner for help, but he wrote that while we have been reported, there is nothing for us, and we will have to wait our turn. While we are waiting, the farmers' stock is dying. The Kiihne's lost six head this week.

"I am asking you to use your influence in getting this car sent out here. One car will be only a drop in the bucket, for I believe it will take 20 cars to care for the farmers here."

Herman Williams and E. O. Anderson of Elkhorn went with the shipment to aid in distributing the grain at Ewing.

Other towns in eastern Nebraska are also collecting grain. At Millard, G. E. Nelson and 25 men have been gathering enough grain for a car and action will be taken at Waterloo this week.

Feeding Birds in Drouth Areas.

Not only is feed acceptable for human and livestock consumption, but the birds in drouth-stricken areas are being cared for this winter, and it is in those areas wher the value of bird life is held in high esteem. Feed is not being distributed for birds in Nebraska, that hunters can come along during the open season and fill their bags, but to bring birds through the winter that they will be able to destroy pests which have taken their toll along with the drouth during the past growing season.

Farmers and everyone interested in agriculture should assist in protecting bird life for nowhere were birds more valuable than in the areas infested with grasshoppers last summer.

MRS. KERN LIKES DETROIT.

The following communication from Mrs. Amand Kern, addressed to the Genesee News will be of interest to her many friends here:

Detroit, Mich, Jan. 30.

Mr. Pederson
Genesee, Idaho.
Dear Sir:

First of all excuse us for not sending the money for the News sooner, but you know, better late than never.

I surely enjoy this visit. I have seen several large cities in Germany, but in those days there were not cars and airplanes. It is different now, and I am different too, but I think I feel alright here. I never saw a prettier sight than here in Detroit the Sunday after Christmas, when we went out into the country 63 miles and back. It was some ride but didn't affect me at all. We passed a lake in the daytime, which I didn't notice—you can't see on both sides—but coming back in the dark it was a pretty sight.

Decorated Christmas trees were along all the shores, and coming through Detroit we passed the Fisher Building (radio station) with its golden tower all decorated, and it was beautiful. I never saw so many decorated Christmas trees on porches and lawns.

I am glad it is such nice weather here. If it was stormy and cold we could not go out every Sunday for a ride. I like the surroundings of Detroit. Last Sunday we went out to the Henry Ford plant (not inside of course) but there are lots of buildings to look at and 70,000 people are working there. I think we went all around Detroit; went to the river where they cross to Canada, but we could not cross. I did not have my citizen papers with me.

They raise some grapes here and they make their own grape juice and wine. I never saw so much in all my life.

I believe I will stay a little longer yet, but still I am a little homesick for the Golden West. When a person lives 35 years in Genesee like I have, one gets lonesome for dear old-time friends sometimes.

Yes sir, there are lots of people out of work but George (Mathay) is lucky to have his job yet.

I see by the News that there is lots of snow. We haven't had any yet. Last Sunday we passed by a place where they were playing golf. I surely enjoy the Genesee News.

Hope to see my old home place again soon. I send my best wishes to all the Genesee folks.

I am also looking for special news sometimes.

Yours truly,
Mrs. Amand Kern.

Mrs. Hayden, Registrar.

Mrs. L. C. Hayden has been appointed registrar for Genesee precinct and will register voters for the coming primary and general elections, the books to open on March 7.

Voters who registered for the last primary and general elections are not required to register again unless they have changed their voting precinct, in which case they are required by law to register in the precinct in which they now make their residence.

Candidates will be allowed to file on March 25 and those not filed before April 23 are excluded from the ballot unless their names are written in on blank spaces provided.

May 24 is the date set for the primary election, when voters will be confronted by a new style of ballot made necessary by the change to a state-wide direct primary. All candidates who obtain a sufficient number of signatures are entitled to have their names appear on the ballot. As an experiment, this new form of primary in Idaho may attract a long list of candidates for each office, at least the outcome will be interesting to observe.

Friday Bridge Club.

Mrs. Harry Hanson was hostess to the Friday Bridge club at their last meeting, entertaining six tables at her home. High score honors went to Mrs. W. W. Burr, and consolation to Mrs. Elmer Vanouck. Mrs. W. M. Herman is entertaining the club this afternoon (Friday).

LENVILLE NEWS.

Ray Kennedy and Frank Dygert were hauling logs to the saw mill at Troy Wednesday and Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Taber visited school Thursday afternoon.

Our Lenville Health club, a school club, which was organized two years ago, met Thursday afternoon. The Health club meets every two weeks. We feel that the club has been very beneficial in a number of ways. The children have learned parliamentary rules by acting on the different committees, and they have raised the standard of the school in cleanliness, behavior, orderliness and honesty. The pupils, acting one month at a time on the different committees, inspect the shoes, hall, desks, lunch crumbs, the school yard, handkerchiefs which has helped materially in disciplining themselves and others. The newly elected officers for a new month are: Esther Taber, president; Evelyn Williams, vice president; Harriett Ross, secretary. The meeting opened with the club song.

Our commuity picnic supper was a decided success. Fifty-seven people passed around the big, long table, to help themselves cafeteria style, to a most tempting and delicious supper. Everything good to eat from baked chicken and parker house rolls to huckleberry pie and angel food cake. After the tables were cleared away, games were played, stunts were presented and a very pleasant social evening was enjoyed. Percy Kinnier, Neal and Jim Kinyon, Rockie Anderson had worked a couple of days setting up a cook stove in the kitchen, putting new pipe in the heater and mending the windows. With our hall is good shape we expect to have several more such get-togethers.

Horace Dale, Fred Johnson, Orville Rommel, Harold Johnson took a sleigh ride to Moscow Saturday with cream cans and eggs.

Frank Dygert and Jess Oylear made a business trip to Moscow Friday in a sleigh.

Not many out to Sunday school because of bad weather and bad roads.

Because of illness, bad colds and stormy weather there are just four pupils that have perfect attendance for the fifth month. They are: Esther Taber, Lewis Dale, Edd Johnson, Eldon Johnson. These people are trying for perfect attendance for the year.

Mrs. Ray Kennedy went to Spokane and expects to be away a week.

STATE CONSTITUTION PROTECTS HIGH OFFICIALS

Ben Diefendorf, tax commissioner for the State of Idaho, under date of February 4, assures the Genesee News that his department will take pleasure in answering any questions with reference to the Property Relief Act, more commonly known as the state income tax.

Mr. Diefendorf calls attention to the provision contained in Section 27, Article 5 of the Constitution of the State of Idaho, which is interpreted to exempt the higher state officials from the payment of state income tax. Article 5, as quoted by Mr. Diefendorf reads as follows:: "Change in Compensation of Officers. The legislature may by law diminish or increase the compensation of any or all of the following officers, to-wit: Governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state auditor, state treasurer, attorney general, superintendent of public instruction, commissioner of immigration and labor, justices of the supreme court and judges of the district courts and district attorneys, but no diminuation or increase shall effect the compensation of the officer, then in office, during his term."

Mr. Diefendorf gladly rushed to answer the question propounded by the Genesee News relative to granting exemptions to higher-salaried officials, but, while answering questions, overlooked giving a reason for making the state income tax operative as of July 1, 1931.

Article 5 says the legislature may by law diminish or increase the compensation of the several high-salaried officials, but also says no diminuation or increase shall effect the compensation of the officer, then in office, during his term, all of which means that a person employed by the state, and drawing a low salary must pay a tax if the income justifies it. For example, a single lady, employed in the state house with a salary in excess of $1,000 must pay a tax while the high-salaried officials mentioned are exempt.

The Boise Pioneer, in commenting on the questions asked by the Genesee News says: "The Genesee News pertinently inquires why the new income tax law of Idaho exempts from its operation the incomes of the governor and all the elective state officials, the judges of supreme and district courts and district attorneys. An echo answers—Why? We haven't looked the matter up, but taking the looks preposterous. Why single out those particular officers? Why exempt any officials? As Pioneer is fond of saying, the folks in salaried positions are the only people of the common or garden variety sitting pretty these days. With living costs less, the same income they have always enjoyed, their dollars with some twenty per cent increased value, truly the gods are smiling."

The Pioneer also says: "We can't do agree with the News man in roasting Governor Ben for these exemptions. He didn't write the law. He merely signed it. And we can't roast the man that framed the law, whoever he was, because he might be a friend of ours. The best comment is—that fool legislature again."

To which the Genesee News feels justified in asking: Did not Governor Ben insist on the legislators remaining in Boise for an $8,000 extraordinary session. Why must Editor Burroughs refer to the legislature as "that fool legislature?" Truly they were fooled but they're only $5.00 a day men, and having spent considerable time in Boise during January, 1931, they were eager to return home following the regular session. Governor Ross was given the opportunity to sign an income tax bill emanating from the legislature, and the present law being his "pet" he should be responsible for its shortcomings.

GENESEE NEWS ACCEPTS STAR-MIRROR'S APOLOGY

The apology of the Star-Mirror is accepted by the Genesee News, although we must confess to not having read it, nor were we able to locate anyone here who had noticed it. We presume, however, that the Star-Mirror took exceptions to something appearing in the News relative to the state income tax, differing with it no doubt on exemptions granted state officials in the payment of income tax, that is officials such as the governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state auditor, state treasurer, attorney general, superintendent of public instruction and justices of the supreme court, not to mention district court judges and district attorneys.

For the enlightenment of the editor of the Star-Mirror may we call his attention to Section 8 of Regulation 3, which appears in the green paper covered pamphlet, entitled "Property Relief Act of 1931." This particular paragraph will be found at the bottom of page two.

While the apology for whatever it was intended is accepted, it is the belief that the Star-Mirror also owes an apology to its readers for the statement that "a diligent study of the income tax law failed to indicate that any state employee would be exempt from meeting the requirements of the new income tax law."

IN THE DARK

The Star-Mirror feels that it owes an apology to one of its Latah county contemporaries for an editorial comment it made a week ago, if, in this instance, an editorial appearing in the Pocatello Tribune in its turn is correct.

The Star-Mirror last week in pointing to the confusing status of the Idaho income tax law now in effect, and urging that a clarifying statement be issued by the state tax commissioner's office, said that assumptions by the Genesee News that elective state officials and members of the judiciary were exempt from paying a state income tax were incorrect. The Star-Mirror believed its statement truthful, for a diligent study of the income tax law failed to indicate that any state employee would be exempt from meeting the requirements of the new income tax law.

Now comes the Pocatello Tribune telling us, editorially, that "by executive order" of the governor the income tax law has been so "amended" to exclude from its provisions elective state officers, the supreme court justices, judges of the district court and prosecuting attorneys. The Tribune scathingly denounces the "executive order" and asks "why?"

A search through the Associated Press dispatches from Boise received by northern Idaho papers fails to reveal any announcement of such an "executive order." The Star-Mirror is going to ask its Associated Press news service why its dispatches failed to give the essence of such an order, if it was made by the governor, and will ask it to obtain an explanation of that order and the reasons why it was made. For unless there is a very good reason, unless constitutional interpretations would likely exclude those officers from meeting the income tax law requirements, The Star-Mirror will also ask "why?"

The state supreme court in a very short time will pass upon the validity of the act. But it will not pass upon the validity of the "executive order" instructing the tax commissioner, Bene Diefendorf, to omit collections of the income tax from those elective officials. The Star-Mirror is unable to understand why, listed with the elective state officials, district attorneys should be included (elected by county vote and paid from county funds) in the executive order.

Accepting the Pocatello Tribune's editorial as correctly quoting the executive order, this paper offers its apologies to its Genesee contemporary for what was, in the light of the Tribune's comment, a just question to ask.—The Moscow Star-Mirror.

Mistakes There Are.

While reading a copy of the letter addressed to the Star-Mirror by Ben Diefendorf, state tax commissioner, we notice that Mr. Diefendorf addresses the Moscow publication as the "Dilay Star-Mirror", not "Delay" however, but nearly so.

The Star-Mirror, in its editorial, refers to Mr. Diefendorf as "Bene" which shouldn't be. Ben Diefendorf is our state tax commissioner, and is entitled to have his name spelled correctly.

Birthday Honored.

Honoring Mrs. Wm. Schlueter's birthday anniversary, a sleighing party was formed Sunday and made the trip to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Schlueter. Four horses were required to pull the bob-sled and occupants, Fred Morscheck furnishing the horses and sled. Those making the trip were Mr. and Mrs. John G. Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morscheck, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene O'Conner and children, Mr. and Mrs. Will Rosenau and daughter, Edna, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morscheck and son, Eugene; Mr. and Mrs. Anton Kambridge and sons, Delbert and Loren and Mrs. Robbins joined them at the Schlueter home.

Mrs. Schlueter received remembrances of the day and the guests enjoyed both dinner and supper with her, returning late in the evening.

Genesee Girls Make Uni. Team.

Miss Eloise Emmett and Miss Marie Rosenau have both made the first basket ball team of the sophomore class at the University of Idaho. Miss Emmett has also been elected manager of the girls team.

Miss Rose Broemmeling, another player from the Genesee school, now attending the University in her freshman year, made the girls' team, representative of that division.

Evening Party.

Guests of Carl Erickson at his home Saturday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Norman Flamoe, Mr. and Mrs. John Liberg, Mr. and Mrs. Lars Liberg, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Liberg, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hallman, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Berg, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Erickson, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Baumgartner, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Halverson, Glen, Walter and Clark Erickson. Cards were played during the evening, with high score prizes going to Mrs. Bill Baumgartner and consolation prizes to Mrs. Henry Halverson and Glen Erickson. Before the guests departed refreshments were served.

Twelve Tables at Play.

The Card party Sunday night was attended by players for twelve tables at the K. C. hall. High score prizes were won by Miss Edith Craft and Jimmie Gibbs and the consolation by Mrs. Elizabeth Stricker and Joe Broemmeling. The evening concluded with refreshments.

Monday Bridge Club.

Mrs. Harold Haymond was hostess to the Monday Evening Bridge club this week. Prizes were awarded Mrs. Glen Sampson for high score and Mrs. Margaret McCoy, low. Guests were Mrs. Geo. Post and Mrs. McCoy.

Before the conclusion of the evening Mrs. Haymond served refreshments if ice-cream, cake and coffee.

Rebekah Party.

Members of the Rebekah lodge enjoyed a pick-up supper before their regular meeting Wednesday evening. All came dressed in hard-time, old-time or what-have-you costumes. A Valentine box with Valentines for everyone afforded merriment for members.

Warehouse Roof Goes In.

Radio serves more than one good turn, as witnessed by the Scotchman who burst into uproaring laughter, and taking the phones from his ears, wiped his eyes, and exclaimed: "Aye, it's a gude joke. The minister just announced the collection, and here I am at home.

Short-cut to Glory—Pour kerosene on a small blaze in the kitchen stove. Or—trust to the other fellow to observe all the rules in driving.

"Why do women hold their chins when thinking?" reads a headline. Probably to keep themselves from interrupting. .

Robbers have raided a Chicago hospital. Patients even too ill to raise their heads would doubtless stick up their hands if they had to.

A small boy sent to the druggist's went into a hardware by mistake and handed the merchant the following note: "My baby has eat up its father's parish plaster. Send an anecdote quick, as I am a bit historical."

Cal—"What are your two highest ambitions?"
Harry — "Blondes and Brunettes."

Prof.—"Which is correct: a herd of camels or a drove of camels?"
Student—"I always thought they came in packs."

"No freedom in this country at all any more."
"How's that?"
"You can't even get any jazz music over the radio on Sunday without having some station try to cut in with a sermon."

A newspaper says a Christian is a man who keeps the snow shoveled off his sidewalk. We might add that a heathen is one who borrows his neighbor's snow shovel and forgets to return it.

We have recently installed for Mr. J. W. Myers, near Uniontown, a new Paramount Combination Coal, Wood and Gas Range and Flamo Lights. — Another pleased customer.

Just think! Natural gas which cooks at the touch of a match, clean and economical. No more drudgery, lugging coal, wood and ashes.

SCANDAL—We heard a lady roasting her husband because he wouldn't fix a thing around the house. But we happen to know that he didn't have the tools to fix anything. Now which one was at fault? Send in your answer.

George Schmidt, who purchased a Flamo Wedgewood Combination coal-wood and gas range about two years ago, gave us some interesting figures on the cost of operation. They have three Flamo lights and do all their cooking and baking for a family of four at a total cost of 12 cents per day, and enjoy the clean, quick way of cooking, also the mild, white gas lights that are so easy on the eyes. Mr. Schmidt says "I would not part with Flamo for any price."

You can always tell a bad egg when he's broke.

A prize awaits the person who sends in the most suitable name for this news corner.

TREES ENHANCE PROPERTY.

One investment Idaho citizens can make which will carry on without depreciation in times of depression is the planting of forest and shade trees on their home grounds. The expenditure is slight and the trees constantly increase the value of the property to the extent that no only is the residence made a more attractive place to live but it will command a better price is case of sale. The School of Forestry of the University of Idaho at Moscow, announces that it is distributing a circular showing the trees available from its nursery at Moscow for the coming planting season to citizens of Idaho.

A good assortment of hardwoods and evergreens well suited to various sections of the state are on the list. Fifteen evergreens and 23 hardwoods make up the complte list. The circular includes a chart showing the trees recommended for planting in the various counties. Instructions are also included for planting and caring for the trees.

Various trees for woodlots, shelterbelts and windbreak planting purposes on Idaho farms are available at one-half cost of production. This is made possible through cooperation with the federal government and enables Idaho farmers to establish such plantings at little cost to the individual.

The American Tree association is recognizing the year 1932 as a George Washington Memorial Tree Planting year and offers a certificate to every American citizen who plants and cares for at least one tree. This year is the George Washington Bicentennial and the objective is ten million trees planted in the United States. From all indications Idaho citizens will more than contribute their share toward this laudable enterprise.

Notice to Federal Income Taxpayers.

For the convenience of those who are required by law to file federal income tax returns, a deputy collector of internal revenue will be at Smolt's Confectionery, Genesee, on March 2, 1932, during the afternoon, to assist taxpayers in preparing their returns. No charge will be made for this service. The matter of filing your income tax return should be given immediate attention, in order to avoid penalty and interest.

Your return for the calendar year 1931 shall be filed not later than March 15, 1932, with the Collector of Internal Revenue for the district in which you reside or have your principal place of business.

GOOD BUSINESS JUDGMENT USED BY FIRST LEGISLATORS

(By Glenn Balch.)

This series of articles has already disclosed that a part of Idaho's heritage from the parent territory was an indebtedness of $169,556, representing the financial deficit of 27 years of stormy territorial government.

At first glance this might seem to indicate an extravagant ancestry, however closer scrutiny of the records reveals that the territorial fathers were not only fairly thrifty but on occasions exhibited some exceptionally good business judgment. Considering the difficulties under which they governed, the wonder is that the debt was not much greater.

To secure a true picture of the ability of our early statesmen we must consider not only the liabilities which were passed on to the state but the assets as well. Our inheritance, contrary to general belief, did not consist of debts alone.

Property and Value.

Among the more tangible portion of the estate of the deceased territory were numerous bits of property that had an undoubted value. Also the young commonwealth was the beneficiary of some substantial donations from its Uncle Sam. Taken all in all, Idaho's birthright, even when measured by the standard of values of 1890, was not to be taken lightly. Its value today is immense.

Among the worldy goods of the territory was a new capitol building that had been erected and furnished in 1885 at a cost of $85,000.

It was, so history relates, an edifice of which any young state might be justly proud. It was a three story brick structure with a basement, concrete walks and shade trees, and was protected by an imposing iron picket fence of the type so popular in those days. In it were two suites, one for the governor and one for the surveyor general, two rooms for the secretary and one room each for the superintendent of public instruction, the controller, the United States attorney and the armory. An early description of the building declares that "every part was elegantly finished and furnished."

Additional Assets.

The capitol was situated on grounds donated by Boise City that were valued, by curb stone appraisement presumably at $25,000 and an additional sum of $15,000 had been expended in beautifying the site, bringing the capitol investment to a total of approximately $125,000. The building, it might be added, was erected, furnished and decorated without assistance from the federal government.

A second asset inherited from the territory was the insane asylum which in 1890 represented an investment of about $40,000 and had, by the way, 67 inmates, proving its need. The value of this property was reduced about 50 per cent however by a fire on the morning of November 24, 1889, which completely consumed one of the buildings.

Also the territory had under construction a wagon road from Mt. Idaho in Idaho county to Little Salmon Meadows in Washington county. The road was to eventually cost $50,000, although at this time only $11,000 had been expended and was represented in the bonded indebtedness.

A State University.

The territory likewise owned property at Moscow, described as a beautiful university site, one mile from the heart of the city and representing an investment of $15,000. This was the beginning of what is now the University of Idaho.

Doubtless there were other things which the histories overlook, but using the above as a basis of comparison we find that Idaho inherited from the territory property with an investment value of at least $22,000 more than the total indebtedness. Not bad at all!

From the federal government the new state received a penitentiary, described as "a model prison on a small scale," and the ground upon which it was located.

Also there were sizeable land grants from Uncle Sam to the various educational, penal and charitable institutions that have proven of great value and are now important sources of revenue for the respective institutions to which they were given.

Add to these things the intangible but indubitable benefits of 27 years of conscientious law-making, law enforcement and endeavoring to achieve good government and it becomes clearly evident that Idaho's patrimony was one of which no citizen of this state need be ashamed.

Looking at Lincoln.

February 12 means Lincoln. On that day we, of this nation and many in other nations honor the name which connotes struggle, achievement, patience under an avalanche of rebuffs and the saving grace of human brightening a persisent upward fight for a great ideal. All these things shout "Lincoln" when February 12 comes around.

"COACHING" COURSES FOR CIVIL SERVICE EXAMS

The United States Civil Service commission makes the following announcement:

Those who contemplate subscribing for a correspondence or other 'coaching" course in preparation for an examination for the federal civil service are advised by the U. S. Civil Service commission to inform themselves in advance of the probability of the announcement of an examination of the kind for which the course of instruction is supposed to train them.

The commission's registers of eligibles for most of the common run of positions are so large that the probability is that in most cases it will not be necessary to announce an examination in the near future.

The commission is represented by a local board of civil service examiners at the post office or customhouse in each city in the United States which has a post office of the first or the second class. There are approximately 5,000 of these local representatives throughout the country. The local representatives are given current information regarding announced examinations and are prepared to answer inquiries regarding them.

Those who live in communities that do not have a post office of the first or the second class may be informed by writing to the United States Civil Service Commission at Washington, D. C., or to any of its district managers. Seattle, Wash., and San Francsco, Calif., are the locations of district managers for this area.

It should be understood that the U. S. Civil Service commission has no connection with any so-called civil service school or institute doing business by correspondence or otherwise. The commission is in no way responsible for statements made in the advertising or correspondence of the schools.

No school can "guarantee" appointment in the classified civil service of the United States. Examinations are open and competitive, and certifications for appointment are made in accordance with the provisions of the civil service rules.

The Good Saint Valentine.

Lovers beware! A wealth of cheery little red hearts and rampant cupids are flaunting their charms from shop windows to lure even the wary into the endearing ways of St. Valentine.

And just what chance have young men and their sweethearts! There's no telling when one of these paper arrows may reach home or a plaintive verse, as sweet as a sugar plum, succeed in entwining itself around a loose tendril of a wistful heart.

It is safe to announce that there is many a girl who laughs at the loving tricks of her grandmother's day. That would be the kind of honor with a bunch of flowers, a bar pin or a dainty locket. But while girls shorten their dresses and cut their hair and while fashions in valentines come and go, the heart of the maid is generally as susceptible to valentines and their verses as that of the hoop-skirted lady generations ago.

"What are those things?" questions a mystified buyer, pointing to a row of lacy confections. "Would a girl really like one of them?"

Like them! She couldn't help it; they were the very essence of the old-time valentines. Through a paper lace gate was visible a graceful lady in hollowy skirts and a pair of love birds, shaded in delicate lavender. Quite a contrast to the satirical and humorous concoctions which were popular a few years ago. But any older woman will say there is nothing new about them. They are imitations of the handwrought and fanciful expressions common years ago.

When the Paper Doesn't Come.

My father says the paper he reads ain't put up right.
He finds a lot of fault, he does, perus-
in it all night.
He says there ain't a single thing in it worth while to read,
And that it doesn't print the kind of stuff the people need.
He tosses it aside and says it's strictly on the bum—
But you ought to hear him holler
when the paper doesn't come.
He reads about the weddin's and he
snorts like all get out,
He reads the social doin's with a most derise shout,
He says they make the paper for the women folks alone,
He'll read about the parties and he'll
fume and fret and groan;
He says of information it doesn't have a crumb—
But you ought to hear him holler
when the paper doesn't come.
He's always first to grab it and he reads it plumb clean through,
He doesn't miss an item or a want ad—this is true.
He says they don't know what we want, the durn newspaper guys.
I'm going to take a day sometime an'
go and put 'em wise;
Sometimes it seems as though they must be blind and deaf and dumb;
But you ought to hear him holler
when the paper doesn't come.

GRAIN MARKETS UNSETTLED; STRENGTH THEN WEAKNESS

volume, but sales to California were rather limited since mills and industries in that state were using mostly wheat purchased earlier in the season.

California markets remained very dull under a continued limited inquiry from mills and feeders. Offerings at San Francisco were principally of northern wheat. Receipts at that market during January totaled 9,757 tons, of which all but 900 tons were shipped from Washington and Oregon. Receipts from June 1 thru January totaled 89,923 tons, of which 80,909 tons were northern wheat. During the same period last year receipts totaled 53,179 tons, of which 43,435 tons were northern wheat.

Stocks of soft wheat in millers' hands were reported sufficient for immediate requirements and purchases were principally of high protein grades to complete milling mixtures.

Low prices of feed barley and other feed grains, together with lack of purchasing power of feeding industries, continued to limit sales of feed wheat. Offerings of local wheat were small, both at San Francisco and Los Angeles, but moderate amounts were being received from Texas and New Mexico. Shipments from Utah and Idaho remained very small.

Domestic cash wheat markets fluctuated with futures and closed a half cent lower than a week ago. Marketings of winter wheat increased, influenced by the approaching increase in freight rates, effective February 20, and by the colder weather which improved country roads. Receipts at the principal winter wheat markets totaled 3,497 cars or 470 cars more than for the previous week. A part of these receipts represented the transfer or storage wheat from interior points to terminal markets.

SNOW BLOCKS COUNTRY ROADS.

An automobile belonging to any of our Genesee ranches, to be seen on the streets is now a novelty, unless they live on the North and South highway. Snow has blocked all side roads to automobile travel, and highway maintenance men of the state, have experienced difficulty in keeping the main highway open. Saturday night, snow driven by a high wind blocked the highway between Genesee and Moscow and was not until late Sunday afternoon that cars were able to travel. A number of cars were stalled in the drifted snow part of Saturday night and Sunday, occupants seeking shelter at homes along the highway.

Drifted as local roads were, Washington highways fared worse, as the stages were routed through Genesee Tuesday and Wednesday. Thursday there were no stages or trucks traveling in any direction.

Drifts have been opened up by the large rotary plow, and every effort has been made to keep the highway open with a V-plow and a blade.

Mail carriers thus far have been covering their routes but with difficulty, and it has been necessary in several instances for each carrier to employ extra help to deliver mail on some portions. The snow is deep and where drifted it makes travel almost impossible, even with horses, which have been in use during the greater part of January and so far in February.

Genesee is by no means a one-horse town now-a-days, as those coming to town must use horses and bob-sleds, cutters or some affair which can be dragged over the snow. It is now common to see the hitch racks still remaining in some of the alleys, lined with teams of horses. Another thing which had almost passed out of the picture is the sight of several men carrying on conversation as they tie their teams to the hitch posts—they seem to have plenty of time and there exists an easiness which almost disappeared when automobiles became so common.

Thursday afternoon: Dawned clear and remained so until shortly before noon; snow was falling lightly as the sun shone, and after dinner the snow came down aplenty. At 2 o'clock the sun in shining brightly again, but big dark clouds are coming up in the south tryng to obscure the sun.

Social Activities.

The dance Tuesday was well attended in spite of the weather. Those who were there had a very enjoyable time.

Save your 75 cents for the next Junior Prom, to be given March 31. Allen's orchestra.

Last Friday after the game the "G" club entertained both basketball teams and those who came from Southwick. Sandwiches, cookies and cocoa were served. Everyone reported a fine time.

Seventh and Eighth Grades.

These grades have been receiving returns from their penmanship drills and those receiving awards are: Margaret Springer, Beuletta Nordby, Gretchen Reismer and Emma Vanouck. In the recent examinations in history and physiology, taken by the seventh and eighth graders there was only one failure. Some of the physiology students, however, plan to take that examination over in April to try to raise their grades.

The following pupils have had one hundred percent in spelling for the month of January: Grant Loncosty, Glenn Mayer, Gretchen Reismer, Jas. Dresher, William Edwards, Neyva Erickson, Bueletta Nordby and Emma Vanouck.

Third and Fourth Grades.

Some of the finest poems in literature tell a beautiful and interesting story. Such a poem is "Barbara Frietchie," by John Greenleaf Whittier. We liked this poem very much. After studying it we were ready for a study of our patriotic emblems. During art period we illustrated in crayon the flag, properly hung with a child saluting it and giving the pledge of elegiance. Betty Mochel made the best picture.

Most of us are making splendid progress in arithmetic. Some would rather work arithmetic than play at recess time.

First and Second Grades.

The primary room took an excursion to the post office Monday afternoon to observe the procedure of the mail coming in and of the mail going out. The children plan to carry on the same plans for their Valentine post office. All the subjects this week, including reading, writing, language, spelling and numbers will be correlated around the Valentine post office project.

The second grade folk are delighted with their new "Hunt and Find" silent reading books.

Linger Longer Party.

Members of the Linger Longer club and their husbands enjoyed a no-hostess seven o'clock dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Burr last Saturday evening. Comic Valentines were drawn for table appointments and used for tallies. The six tables, arranged for cards following dinner, held four neatly wrapped packages, the winners of each game taking their choice as they progressed. The assortment of 24 prizes were proudly displayed at the conclusion of play and as each one unwrapped his or her package the contents, some useful and ornamental, and others not so ornamental or useful to its recipient, afforded a lot of fun. Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Pederson were guests of the club.

Thirty Years Ago.

Walt Jain made his first appearance in town for many moons Monday. He is still quite weak on account of his recent illness.

John Gehrke, his wife and children arrived Friday from Blue Earth, Minnesota, to buy a farm in this valley.

L. Stoltz, a friend of the Rosenau people has purchased the eighty-one-acre farm of Walt Jain, paying for the same $2560.

In a letter from Mrs. Wick of Portland, Oregon, comes word that Mrs. R. L. Burdic, a former Genesee resident, passed away in January. Mr. Burdic, who survives is now living with the daughter, Mrs. Wick.

Two sons of Erin, shoveling sand on a hot day, stopped to rest, and exchanged views on the labor question.

"Pat, this is mighty hard work we're at."

"'Tis indeed, Jimmy; but pwhat kind of work is it ye'd like if ye could get it?"

"Well," said the other, leaning reflectively on his shovel, and wiping his perspiring brow with the back of his hand, "for a nice, aisy, clane business, I think I'd like to be a bishop."—Labor.

THE GENESEE NEWS

VOL. XLIII GENESEE, LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1932 NO. 35

POTATO GROWERS FACE ANOTHER BAD YEAR 1932

"January intentions reports foretell another potato acreage about equal to that of 1931. Yields will probably average higher than for the three previous drought-stricken years. Business conditions, reflecting a weak demand, show no prospects of early improvement," says the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.

Growers in Idaho, Washington and Montana cannot depend on the crop of 1932 bringing such price premiums as prevail for No. 1 russets. No. 1 russets are now selling in Chicago for 70 cents per cwt. above Wisconsin Round Whites because of a short supply, brought about by the poor yields in the western states and especially because of the unparalleled small percentage of No. 1 Russets produced.

The average yield per acre in the United States for the past three years has been around 110 bushels. Under normal conditions, 120-123 bushels per acre are expected. If 1932 yields should be around normal and the same acreage is planted as in 1931, there will be an increased potato production amounting to 33 million bushels, or about 9 per cent larger than last year.

Apparently the largest reduction in acreage will occur in Maine, in the southern early potato states, and in the Pacific Northwest. Maine expects to reduce her acreage 7 per cent; the early states about 11 per cent, and the Pacific Northwest states about 5 per cent.

The Shafter early potato district in California plans a slight increase in acreage. With normal yields, this district will have more potatoes than last year to put on the coast market in competition with the late Russets now in storage and with the early potatoes produced in the Kennewick district in Washington.

One third more certified seed potatoes were produced in the U. S| the past year than in 1930. There has been a dull demand for seed due probably to the low prices being paid for table stock.

The best shipping point prices for potatoes in the United States during this season have been paid in the western states. The shortage in western production probably prevented a potato price disaster in the Northwest this year. Shipping point prices for 1929, 1930 and 1931 in the following points of origination have been respectively: Presque Isle, Maine, $2.01, $1.25 and .44c; Rochester, N. Y., $2.40, $1.54 and .68c; Waupaca, Wisc., $2.11, $1.24 and .59c; Idaho Falls, Idaho, $1.92, .93c and .69c.

Some farmers figure that because potato prices have been low for two years, 1932 may be a year of good prices. This reasoning may seem logical but it is, apparently, not always a safe guide to follow. Outlook indications, based upon growers' increased planting intentions and the probabilities of an increased average acre yield, are more reliable indicators of an unfavorable potato year in 1932.

Believe It or Not.

Chicago, Feb. 30.—Mayor Andrew J. Cermak of Chicago, said this afternoon that the president's special referendum message would spell fiscal salvation for countless great American municipalities.

"Prohibition," Mr. Cermak said, "has reduced taxable values in all American communities. At the same time it has enormously increased the costs of police administration by creating powerful crime syndicates whose leaders challenge the authority of all agencies of law and order. Repeal of prohibition would turn into the city treasuries for legitimate and constructive uses, the uncounted millions now flowing into the treasuries of racketeering organizations. Mr. Hoover's message is epochal."

TWO WASHINGTON NOTES SELL FOR $500.00 EACH

A letter written by George Washington to a distinguished Revolutionary soldier, Gen. Henry Knox, says the Christian Science Monitor, was sold for $500 to N. W. Ayer & Son, national advertisers, by Mrs. Minnie Wood Walter of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

This letter commissioned General Knox to buy enough broadcloth to make a suit of clothes for George Washington and a riding habit for Martha Washington. A particular brand of broadcloth was recommended. Another letter also bringing Mrs. Walter $500 was written to George Washington by Lafayette. Mrs. Wood, formerly of West Point and Atlanta,, Ga., is now the owner and operator of antique shops in the Hudson Valley.

GENEESE SUPPLY CONTEST IS DRAWING TO A CLOSE

Saturday, February 20 is the last day in which to file your suggestion of title for the Genesee Supply company's news corner. There is little effort required to enter the contest although the reward is such that one could afford to take considerable time in thinking up a title.

You will have your choice, if successful in presenting the most suitable title, of an electric radio lamp, an electric waffle iron, a rubber tired coaster wagon, a boy's tool chest or an imported China and silver drip coffee urn.

Think up a title, write it on the blank which will be found directly beneath the Supply company's news corner and mail or send it to the company store. As will be noted the blank is to be torn in two parts, your title is given a number, that the judges will not know who is submitting the title, and on February 23 the judges, E. S. Suenkel, Miss Ruth Anderson and J. N. Hasfurther will select the title.

Remember the contest closes Saturday evening. There is yet time for you to win the prize.

Altar Society.

Mrs. J. J. Berg was hostess to the Altar Society Tuesday afternoon and following the usual business and social meeting a delicious luncheon was served. Mrs. D. C. Burr will entertain Tuesday, March 1.

PRESIDENT HOOVER TO OPEN BICENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

President Hoover will officially open the nine-months, nation-wide George Washington Bicentennial celebration at noon (Eastern standard time) February 22, when he will deliver his George Washington address before a joint meeting of congress, assembled in the house of representatives in the capital. The judges of the supreme court, members of the cabinet, foreign diplomats and many other distinguished visitors also will be present, and the address will be carried to every corner of America over a nation-wide hook-up.

Following his address, President Hoover will be escorted to the East steps of the capitol, and will give the signal for the singing of "America" by a chorus of ten thousand voices. It is expected that millions of people will join in this "sing" as it comes over the air.

The great chorus gathered at the capitol will be conducted by Walter Damrosch and will be accompanied by the United States army, navy and marine bands which will play as a unit under the direction of John Philip Sousa. An "inaugural" crowd is expected to be on hand for these ceremonies.

After luncheon President Hoover, accompanied by the member of the United States Washington Bicentennial commission and the District of Columbia George Washington Bicentennial commission will go to Mount Vernon to lay a wreath on the tomb of the Father of His Country in the name of a united nation.

At 3 p. m. there will be exercises at the Washington Monument under the auspices of the various patriotic societies in the District of Columbia.

In the evening the George Washington Colonial Costume Ball will be held at the Mayflower Hotel under the auspices of the United States George Washington Bicentennial commission and the District of Columbia commission. No effort is being spared to reproduce the Colonial atmosphere for this occasion. The affair is being managed by experts and every state will be represented by especially invited guests.

While the celebration officially opens on February 22, Sunday, February 21, will be an active day in the District of Columbia as well as in every city in America. The United States George Washington Bicentennial commission has suggested special religious services for George Washington to be held wherever people gather to worship. Response from the various church organizations to this project has been remarkable. It is probable that practically all of the 232,000 churches will hold special services honoring the First President on this day.

A folk-masque written especially for the commission by Percy MacKaye will be presented at Constitution Hall, Washington, D. C., on the evening of February 21. This masque is being produced under the auspices of the commission and the District of Columbia commission.

The masque is entitled "Wakefield" named after the birthplace of George Washington and portrays in symbolic form the story of George Washington. Five hundred adults and children are being rehearsed for this production and the music will be furnished by the United States marine band. The folk-masque is being printed by the commission for use in other cities. It is expected that this masque will be produced in all the large cities of the United States during the Bicentennial celebration.

During the week of February 22, motion pictures depicting principal events in the life of George Washington entitled "Washington the Man and the Capitol" and produced by Warner Bros., will be shown in the theatres of America as a feature of the Bicentennial commission. Hundreds of theatres have already arranged for such a showing, and, undoubtedly, practically every motion picture theatre in America will be booked to show the life of George Washington on the screen.

Council Fire.

Members of the Wetomachick Camp Fire Girls were sponsors of a council fire February 11 at which five new girls were added to membership. Miss Ruth Alice Vanouck was hostess.

Mrs. George Erickson received the following girls to the Camp Fire: Marie Wagner, Bernice Gibbs, Hazel Craft, Juanita Bowers and Evelyn Krier.

CONFERENCE LEADERS ARE VICTORS OVER GENESEE H. S.

Players on the Genesee high school basketball team worked hard, but could not equal the playing of the Lapwai sharpshooters. Smylie of the local school was the outstanding player on his team, netting 11 of the 19 points scored, Lapwai piling up 40 points. Genesee still has a chance at the district tournament by winning from Kendrick, which school will play here Friday, the 19th. The tournament will be held at Lewiston on March 3, 4 and 5.

Genesee boys and girls play the Kendrick boys and girls Friday, and this will be the last conference game her for the season. Wednesday, February 24, the Lewiston high school second team plays Genesee at Genesee, and there will probably we a game between the high schools girls and a team of town girls.

Girls Lost to Lapwai.

During the first half of the Genesee-Lapwai girls game the latter team had things practically their own way, running up a 15-point lead. During the second half the Genesee girls scored more points than Lapwai, but could not overtake the lead of the first half, the final score being 22 to 9 in favor of Lapwai.

Seventh and Eighth Grades

Due to the ill health of our teacher, Mrs. Harris, we have a new teacher in our room, who is Mr. Harris.

The seventh grade students have started to study geography and the eighth grade has started the study of civics. The girls in our room have not received their penmanship certificates but are hoping to receive them soon. There are quite a number of students writing for the awards.

The decorations in our room for February are very beautiful. Gretchen Reismer is responsible for them. She has decorated the room with pictures and silhouettes of Washington and Lincoln and she has also made it beautiful with Valentine decorations.

We now have a number of pictures and numerous other articles for our Washington Bicentennial book.

Our grade orchestra now has two new instruments. Betty Lou Burr has a cello and Glenn Mayer has a saxophone. We're certainly going to be musical now.

Fifth and Sixth Grades.

Some of the girls of the fifth and sixth grades gave a short play, entitled, "Saint Valentines Eve." Cicely Herman and Dorothy Follett acted as directors. Rowena Nordby and Bonnie Hayden were cupid and cupidess and Helen Edwards and Ethel Dresher were two rag dolls. Ciciley Herman and Dorothy Follett were dressed as colonial girl and boy while Barbara Huffman and Rita Loncosty were two negro children. Mona Myers played the part of St. Valentine.

The third, fourth, seventh and eighth grades claimed they enjoyed it very much.

The sixth grade in arithmetic is now on the study of percentage.

The following pupils in our room received awards in penmanship: Louise Wishard, Rowena Nordby, Dorothy Follett, Ethel Dresher, Adeline Herman, Charlotte Foster, Loren Kambitsch, Robert Schooler and Bonnie Hayden.

For opening exercises the fifth and sixth grades have been drilling on multiplication facts. To make it interesting we have a contest between the two grades. The score, now in favor of the sixth grade, is 73 to 59. The "Lion Tamers" are still ahead in arithmetic, the score being 75 to 59.

The fifth grade has finished its tour of Europe. We sailed from Amsterdam in the Netherlands, to Shanghai, China. So many of us are reading articles in the papers about China and Japan that we should like to know something about the people in those countries. The names of the cities interest us very much as we have to look them up for correct pronunciation.

In language part of the class wrote letters to pupils in Vermont and others wrote letters to pupils in Alabama. We all hope they will receive our letters, and in turn, answer them.

Barbara Huffman invited the pupils in this room to a Valentine party at her home. Valentines were passed out from a post office and games were played. Later a lunch was served and everyone enjoyed the party.

As One May Imagine.

Chicago, Feb. 30.—Grain prices stiffened, then bolted upward today as advices of President Hoover's Prohibition message threw the exchange into a scene of wild excitement. Had the final necessary legal steps already been taken to effect repeal of the dry law, the wave of enthusiasm engulfing the pits scarcely could have been greater.

Prices on May wheat leaped 5 cents and then 10 cents at a jump until it sold at $1 late in the day. May oats hi' a top of 70 and May rye climbed to 78. Expectations were that those prices will hold through tomorrow and probably will improve considerably.

VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS SEEKING FURTHER PAYMENT

A petition is being circulated this week in Genesee by Chas. Klever, a veteran of the late war and a member of Veterans of Foreign Wars, which is in support of granting ex-service men the remaining portion of their adjusted compensation certificate. These certificates are mostly all payable in full in 1944. At the previous session of congress veterans were granted the privilege of borrowing 50 per cent of the full value, the loan made to bear interest at the rate of 4 per cent, compounded annually.

A bill is now prepared and ready to present before congress wherein its supporters will ask that the certificates be payable on demand.

Many have borrowed on their adjusted insurance certificates and unable to pay interest or repay any part of the principal see the remaining portion of their insurance slipping away as the interest charges accumulate.

TAXPAYERS' MEETING FEBR. 20.

Individual notices have been sent to taxpayers of Nez Perce county, living within a reasonable distance of the Ingle school house, where a meeting of the Taxpayers' league will be held Saturday, February 20, beginning at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. F. E. Leeper, associated with the Nez Perce County Taxpayers' league will talk on the "Average Farmers' Taxes."

Several meetings of the board of county commissioners in Lewhston have been attended by Rimrock ranchers during the past two weeks, endeavoring, with other Nez Perce citizens to effect a reduction in taxes.

GRAIN MARKETS ARE FIRMER; FEED GRAINS ALSO HIGHER

Domestic grain markets developed a somewhat firmer tone toward the close of the week ending February 12, influenced by uncertainty as to the condition of winter wheat, a more active inquiry for North American grain and some strengthening in security markets, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. The advance in wheat prices was sufficient to offset the decline which had taken place since the beginning of the month. The strength in wheat was reflected in higher prices for feed grains. Demand for corn and oats, however, continued of limited volume and the moderate offerings were easily sufficient for current trade needs.

European Wheat Markets

European wheat markets were generally more active during the week, and prices were slightly firmer. The French milling quota for foreign wheat is now 15 per cent, but there was a good mill inquiry for native wheat and prices held firm. Trading in foreign wheats in Germany was of insignificant volume, but prices of native wheats held steady. Austrian markets were inactive and a weaker situation was reported in Czechoslovakia. Some damage due to lack of snow cover has occurred to winter wheat in Austria, according to official reports, but crop conditions in Germany are reported good although present low temperatures and lack of snow cover threatened damage. Italy has experienced a dry winter, but no damage to grain crops has been reported. Weather in Spain is favorable during the week, except in the Aragon region, where shortage of moisture was retarding growth.

The situation in the Orient remains unsettled. Very little foreign wheat has been discharged at Shanghai during the past two or three weeks and no native wheat has arrived for some time. Stocks of foreign wheat are reported sufficient for a few weeks. About 200,000 tons of Australian wheat has been bought, but no new business is now being done, according to Agricultural Commissioner Dawson. Flour stocks are moderate and prices have advanced slightly as a result of increased local demand. The Flour Exchange at Shanghai remains closed and little flour has moved out as a result of disrupted shipping conditions. Quotations on foreign wheats are largely nominal because of lack of trading, but have not changed materially during the past week or two.

Pacific Coast Markets.

Pacific Northwestern markets were weak and lower, reflecting the slow demand for flour and the lack of export outlet for both wheat and flour. The trade with the Orient was being supplied with wheat from Canada and Australia at prices well below domestic quotations, while Argentina was underselling Pacific coast wheat in European markets. Export mills continued operations on the Chinese flour sale but reported no new export business. Domestic mills were taking only sufficient wheat for immediate needs. Receipts at Columbia river and Puget Sound markets for January totaled 4,696,000 bushels, making

Shanghai Flour Activity.

Agricultural Commissioner Dawson cables: Shanghai flour mill activity, after slackening for short period, now resumed quite extensively. Little flour has been moving out due to disrupted shipping conditions, but when this situation improves good demand from North China is expected. Flour stocks are moderate and prices have showed slight advance due to special conditions and local demand. Flour exchange remains closed. Very little foreign commercial wheat has been discharged since Shanghai disturbances began, due to congestion at wharfs. Tight currency with reference native banks, makes handling of business very difficult. Some foreign wheat bought may be held back due to uncertain condition here. No native wheat hase arrived for some time. Quotations foreign wheat difficult to secure on account of lack of business, but prices compare closely with those one month ago. Foreign wheat stocks are evidently sufficient to last for a few weeks. About 200,000 tons Australian wheat has been bought, including May delivery, but no new business now being done. Flood Relief commission wishes to sell more of the wheat purchased from America than the 75,000 tons originally arranged for.

Ford Adds New Types of Busses

Two distinctive types of buses have been added to the Ford Motor company's line of transportation units. A de-luxe passenger bus is now being introduced. While already in service in many parts of the country, the school bus is likewise a comparatively recent arrival. The school bus is priced at $1275 and the passenger bus at $1800, f.o.b. factory. Both bus bodies are mounted on a 157-inch wheelbase and are of all-steel construction. Polished plate safety-glass is used throughout. Because of the number of dome lights, a generator and battery combination of double capacity is used.

FINANCIAL GENIUS OF REVOLUTIONARY DAYS

George Washington would probably rebuke the country if it celebrated the 200th anniversary of his birth without at least some mention of the man who financed the Revolution and upon whom Washington at times, leaned hardest of all. This man was Robert Morris, who was born on January 31, 1734.

At the age of fourteen, we are informed by the United States George Washington Bicentennial commission, Morris emigrated from Liverpool, his birthplace, to join his father who had settled at Oxford, Maryland, where the elder Morris acted as American agent for a large firm of Liverpool tobacco merchants. The father was killed in an accident when young Morris was seventeen, but before the elder's death, Robert had found a job in the counting room of a mercantile house in Philadelphia. There his business ability soon showed itself to such advantage that he became a member of the firm. From then on he steadily added to his fortune until he became one of the richest men of his time in America.

But money was not the sole interest of Morris. He early joined the movement against England, and was among the first to resist the Stamp Act. Also, he was a signer of the first non-importation agreement and later was made warden of the Fort of Philadelphia.

When the Revolution opened, Morris was forty-one years old, in the prime of his mental and physical vigor, and threw himself into every important enterprise except the military. In 1775 and 1776 he was vice president of the Pennsylvania Commitee of Safety. From 1775 to 1778 he was a member of the Continental Congress, and so was a signer of the Declaration of Independence. In 1778 he retired from Congress, only to devote his tireless energies to the Pennsylvania state legislature, of which he was a member.

But his greatest, his outstanding and most gratefully received, public service was his financing of the War of Independence. The embattled states turned to this financial genius to manage their fiscal affairs, but even more they relied on his bursting and open purse for the sinews of war.

General Washington's agonies of mind over the problems of financing his army lasted throughout the Revolutionary war. At best they were always a worry, and at times the worry became acute distress. One of these financial crises came when he found it absolutely imperative to strike for the victory at Trenton, to revive public spirit which then was at a very low ebb.

In order to keep his unpaid men with him for the attack, the General was forced to take the extreme risk of promising them a bounty of ten dollars per man. He then addressed to his friend, Robert Morris, a plea for $50,000 with which to make his promise good. The next day he received the money. Morris had stripped himself of his own ready funds and had borrowed the remainder from wealthy Quaker friends in Philadelphia. Receipt of this money in the nick of time furnished one of the occasions when the supposedly frigid Washington was shaken with emotion.

It was of such stuff that the winners of the Revolution were formed, and Robert Morris was among the best of them. Not to think of him in this bicentennial year would be an affront to Washington himself.

When the federal government came into being in 1789, Morris most likely could have had the secretaryship of the treasury. Instead, he urged the appointment of Alexander Hamilton. Throughout the Revolution, and before, he had served in various key capacities in the Continental Congress. In 1781 the congress chose him to be its superintendent of finance, a post that might be regarded as the precursor of that as secretary of the treasury. Robert Morris became one of the first United States senators from Pennsylvania.

As the country settled down to peace and progress, Morris went in for land speculation, and at one time or another owned wholly, or in part, the entire western half of New York state, 2,000,000 acres in Georgia, and nearly 1,000,000 in Pennsylvania, Virginia and South Carolina. He helped in the development of the new national capital in the District of Columbia.

But his speculations brought on disaster and for three years the financial savior of America was confned in a debtors' prison. On his release he was obliged to live on the bounty of his family and his friends, and five years afterward, in 1806, he died, a broken man. He was buried in Christ Church Yard in Philadelphia, without honors, and has never since been accorded the honor due him.

Couldn't Have the Horses.

Much of George Washington's firm strength of character was due to his splendid ancestry, as the following little anecdote will testify:

While reconnoitering in Westmoreland County, Va., one of General Washington's officers chanced upon a fine team of horses driven before a plow by a burly slave. Finer animals he had never seen. When his eyes had feasted on their beauty he cried to the driver:

"Hello, good fellow! I must have those horses. They are just such animals as I have been looking for."

The black man grinned, rolled up the whites of his eyes, put the lash to the horses' flanks and turned up another furrow in the rich soil. The officer waited until he had finished the row, then, throwing back his cavalier cloak, the ensign of rank dazzled the slave's eyes.

"Better see missis! Better see missis!" he cried, waving his hand to the south, where above the cedar growth rose the towers of a fine old Virginia mansion. The officer turned up the carriage road and soon was rapping the great brass knocker of the front door. Quick the door swung upon its ponderous hinges and a grave, majestic looking woman confronted the visitor with an air or inquiry.

"Madame," said the officer, doffing his cap and overcome by her dignity, "I have come to claim your horses in the name of the government."

"My horses?" said she, bending upon him a pair of eyes born to command. "Sir you cannot have them. My crops are out and I need my horses in the field."

"I am sorry," said the officer, "but I must have them, madame. Such are the orders of my chief."

"Your chief? Who is your chief pray?" she demanded with restrained warmth.

"The commander of the American army, Gen. George Washington," replied the other, squaring his shoulders and swelling with pride. A smile of triumph softened the sternness of the woman's handsome features. "Tell George Washington," said she, "that his mother says he cannot have her horses."

With an humble apology, the officer turned away, convinced that he had found the source of his chief's decision and self-command.

And did Washington order his officer to return and make his mother give up her horses?- No; he listened to the report in silence; then, with one of his rare smiles, he bowed his head. —St. Nicholas.

GREY EAGLE NEWS.

(Received Febr. 11)

Visitors at Chas. Scholer's Thursday evening were Lowell Isaksen, Lester Ingle and Jim Kane.

Alice and June Rader spent the week end at Frank Green's.

Those who have been absent this week from school because of illness are Alfred, Lorene, Mabel and Lawrence Isaksen.

Quite a number of people attended the dance at Pine Grove last Friday and reported a fine time.

Jack Bumstead was a visitor in this neighborhood the last of the week. He went to Julisetta Saturday.

Wesley Green was a visitor at Frank Green's Wednesday. The drifts were so deep he and his horse were almost buried several times, he reports.

There has been considerable work done on the roads the past few days in trying to get them cleared of snow, sufficiently for cars to get through. The drifts were so high in places, however, that they could not be cleared satisfactorily as yet.

Isaac and Lowell Isaksen were Genesee visitors Tuesday.

Those on the sick list were: Mrs. Isaac Isaksen, Mrs. Frank Green, Homer Schooler and Gladys Harms. All are now much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Bellows and children returned to Bovill a few days ago.

Dr. Charles Simmons of Lewiston will spend Thursday, Febrruary 18 in Uniontown on profesional business. Quite a number of our local people have their optical work done by him and no doubt some will find it more convenient to consult him in Uniontown instead of going to Lewiston. ad

IDAHO'S GOVERNMENTAL GROWTH IS MIRACULOUS

(By Glenn Balch)

During her forty years of statehood, Idaho has experienced a governmental growth that might be described as miraculous. It seems that our early legislators, feeling perhaps that this state was handicapped by her late entrance into the Union, concentrated on speed.

The rapid development of our government is not to be condemned. Indeed, in these rapidly changing times to stand still is to go backward. Nor is there any question but that many of our acquired governmental functions have proved of tremendous benefit to the public. But the fact remains, and never was it more clearly evident than today, that the people of Idaho have contracted for more government than they can financially afford.

None but the mose radical would advocate that we return to our infant form of government of forty years ago; it would prove sadly inadequate for present needs. Still there can be no question but that we, in our early day haste, purchased some governmental bargains that have turned out to be extravagant luxuries.

Government Growth.

A study of our government at ten year intervals brings home emphatically its mushroom-like development. The first legislature appropriated the sum of $385,851 for the expenses of state government for a period of two years. A total of 18 items were provided for in this appropriation.

In 1901, after ten years of statehood, the appropriations totalled $713,971, almost double those of the first biennium. And we find that the number of governmental functions and items had by this time increased to 43.

In 1911 state appropriations jumped to $1,832,805.64, revealing a lusty growth, to say the least, during the decade. Governmental functions and items supported by legislative appropriations had increased at the approximate rate of two each year, the total now being 62.

During the succeeding ten year period, which it must be remembered encompassed the World War, the cost of Idaho's government increased alarmingly. The legislature of 1921 appropriated a grand total of $5,072,-722.66 for governmental expenses, almost trebling the appropriations of 1911. And the number of functions and items provided for had increased to 77.

The 1921 appropriations were apparently close to the saturation point, for we find that ten years later, in 1931, the increase amounted to only $800,000 in round figures. Appropriations for this year totalled $5,859,-237.83. The number of functions and items had increased to more than 100.

Summing up, we find that in the forty years since Idaho attained the dignity of statehood her biennial needs for governmental expenses have increased from $385,851 to $5,859,-237.83. This was accompanied by an increase of from 18 to 115 in governmental functions and items.

During this forty-year period the state's population has been multiplied by four and the assessed valuation has increased from approximately 25 million to approximately 450 million dollars.

County Costs Mount

A growth almost parallel to that of the state is noted in the costs of county government. In 1913, when Idaho had only 31 counties, the total county taxes collected amounted to $3,582,546.14. In 1930, with their number increased to 44, the various counties collected a total of ....6,781,-048.33 to defray their expenses.

In the final analysis these increases in governmental costs are the cause of our current top-heavy tax burden. Idaho's government has in a figurative sense outgrown its clothes. Inability of our citizens to pay their taxes is prime proof of the fact that somewhere and somehow there is a lack of balance between the benefits and the costs of our government.

ADDISON T. SMITH FINDS OPPONENT IN MASTERS

I. H. Masters, former publisher of the Pocatello State Journal and newspapers at Twin Falls, Idaho and Provo, Utah, announced his candidacy for the democratic nomination for congress from the Second Idaho district. The present incumbent is Addison T. Smith, republican, of Twin Falls.

Mr. Masters has made a specialty of acquiring newspapers apparently on the rocks and making them into quite respectable publications. His latest newspaper venture, that of purchasing the Journal at Pocatello, is reported to have been mose successful, and it may be that he believes he can take hold of a part of the government and do with it likes he has with newspapers.

Mr. Masters, in announcing his candidacy says farm income has decreased 30 per cent and the value of farm property 25 to 50 per cent, while the cost of government has increased 500 per cent in the last 30 years.

Mr. Masters cites 20 years of experience as a newspaper publisher, during which he says he has transformed four newspaper from a condition of bankruptcy into dividend properties, and changed their policies from republican to democratic. He was formely a member of the Utah state legislature.

There is a mistaken notion that taxes levied on business are actually paid for by business. When taxes are increased on dwellings they are passed on in the form of rent. When there is a sales tax on any commodity, the buying public pays. A tax on utilities likewise must be paid by the public.

Through increased economies, through efficient management and wider use of electric service, the electric light and power companies, in spite of a tax increase of 200 per cent in 28 years, have been able to steadily decrease the price of domestic electricity.

LENVILLE NEWS.

Sleighing is still good at Lenville. In fact, we believe it's getting better.

Ten men with teams were working on the roads Tuesday and Wednesday with V-plows. The road is open now from Lenville to the Aspendale school house, but so far no cars have tried to get through.

The community ladies are piecing a quilt for the Fix family on Fix Ridge who lost their home by fire February 7. Beside the community quilt different women are going together in two's and three's and piecing quilts for them.

Mrs. John Williams visited school Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Percy Kinnier has been quite ill at her home this week.

Mrs. Wesley Peterson and Mrs. Neal Kinyon visited Mrs. Kinnier on Thursday.

Betty Oylear was absent from school this week on account of illness.

Johnny Dygert expects to go back to school Monday after being absent for three weeks because of mumps.

Sam Taber has been laid up with a bad cold this week.

Rockie Anderson and Jim Kinyon and Wesley Peterson helped Neal Kinyon butcher six large hogs Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Williams visited Mr. and Mrs. Percy Kinnier Friday afternoon.

Friday afternoon the children enjoyed a Valentine box at the school. Friday was also Lincoln's birthday. The children found and read stories of Lincoln, also poems. Mrs. Anderson read "The Perfect Tribute," by Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews to the older children.

Fred Johnson and Harold Johnson went to town Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wedin made a business trip to Moscow Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rush drove to Troy Saturday. They intend to visit relatives a few days before returning home.

The program committee has set February 26 as the next Literary at which time the school children and Literary will have a joint program. The children are planning for a Washington program. The committee is working on a one-act play "Quack, Quack," which is a very good comedy.

Because of the deep snow and impassable roads, Mrs. Ray Kennedy did not go to Spokane last Sunday as planned.

On account of so much sickness and bad roads, Mr. and Mrs. Dale postponed their pinochle party until Friday night, February 19.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wright spent Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. B. Brigham.

Mr. Anderson framed the beautiful new picture of Washington that was sent to the school through the courtesy of the representative of Idaho.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Meyer Entertain.

Saturday evening last, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Meyer entertained guests for dinner and cards. The five tables looked inviting with their covers of white and numerous decorations of red hearts. Favors were small baskets filled with candy and also were the appointments. The Valentine motif was carried out in the dinner menu.

Following dinner each was given a Valentine heart, stick of gum and toothpick with which to mould the animal requested by the hosts. Prizes for the best molding went to Mrs. Harold Haymond, Mrs. Harry Schooler, Mahlon Follett and Frank Hoorman. The remainder of the evening was spent at cards with high score honors going to Mrs. Mahlon Follett and Ray Edwards and the consolations to Mrs. Harry Schooler and W. W. Burr.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Post, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Haymond, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Burr, Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Follett, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hoorman, Mrs. Anna Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schooler, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Sampson and Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Pederson.

Mrs. Leo Edwards returned Saturday from Spokane where she went for medical treatment. She expects to return to Spokane in a few weeks.

Mrs. James Archibald returned Sunday from Clarkston where she visited a few days with her mother, Mrs. McElroy.

Mrs. N. M. Leavitt attended initiation and a formal banquet at the Alpha Phi house in Moscow Sunday. She also attended the Student Recital at the University auditorium.

Ray Harris is substituting a few days this week in the public schools for his wife, Mrs. Arvilla Harris, who is ill. Mr. Harirs is a student at the University of Idaho. He came to Genesee Monday evening.

The Pep Club was entertained last Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Fred Hampton. Following a social afternoon, luncheon was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Baumgartner and Mrs. Nels Flamoe spent Saturday in Lewiston.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Smith and Dr. and Mrs. N. M. Leavitt motored to Moscow Wednesday evening where all but Mrs. Leavitt witnessed the showinging of the picture "Emma" with Marie Dressler. Mrs. Leavitt attended an alumnae meeting.

Henry Martinson, who has been ill with a severe cold, is reported improved Thursday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. John Luedke returned from Chicago Thursday noon after a visit of three months. There is no winter in Chicago this year, thermometers registering 62 there last Thursday. It was cold at St. Paul with a small amount of snow; the Dakotas have some snow, but winter is hardly noticeable coming west until one reaches Paradise, Montana.

O. E. S. Gleaners.

The February meeting of the O. E. S. Gleaners was held at the Masonic hall Tuesday and a one o'clock luncheon was served. The tables were attractive with groups of U. S. flags and silhouettes of ladies and gentlemen in colonial costume decorted each place card.

In observance of the nation-wide celebration of the 200th anniversary of Washington's birth, members responded to roll call with "sayings of Washington." Mrs. Nels Lande read a few plans for the national bicentennial celebration and Miss Pearl Perkins read a short sketch of the life of Martha Washington. The remainder of the program included two piano duets, played by Mrs. N. M. Leavitt and Mrs. E. D. Pederson; Mrs. Jas. Archibald gave two whistling numbers, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Leavitt. A trio, composed of Mrs. Fred Hampton, Mrs. Robert Emmett and Mrs. E. H. Field sung selections and Mrs. Field gave two vocal solos. The singers were accoinpanied at the piano by Mrs. W. M. Herman.

Mrs. James Archibald and Mrs. Mahlon Follett tied for first place in listing the states of the Union in a required length of time, which concluded the afternoon's entertainment.

Pioneer Dies in California.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shirrod received a telegram Tuesday, stating that John Hall, an early pioneer of the Uniontown and Genesee sections died at Claremont, Calif., on Monday, February 15. He had been in ill health since the first of October.

The deceased first wife of John Hall is buried at Uniontown, and was the sister of Mrs. Hattie Herman of Genesee. Later, in California, he married Mrs. Eulalia Handley, and returned to this country, living in Genesee several years and also on his farm near Uniontown where he spent much of his early life. He and his wife left Genesee about 15 years ago and have been in California since.

Deceased was about 80 years of age. He is also survived by a grandson, Stanley Shirrod of Genesee, and a brother, Geo. Hall, of Clarkston.

SPORTSMEN INFLUENCE STATE GAME WARDEN

M. P. Bailey, state game warden, is credited with saying, "the game fund accumulated by my predecessor should be put into the fish and game work." This fund, built up by sportsmen in Idaho vanished quickly after Mr. Bailey came into office. He has spent $33,518 for equipment and structures in the department and has purchased fish for planting in liberal quantities, in fear that some time the reserve fund would be diverted by legislative act, into some other fund or funds. Receipts from licenses decreased in 1931, but this was offset by a carryover from 1930 of $46,000, and Bailey predicts actual revenue for 1931 will show a considerable decrease, and with this is mind is preparing to reduce improvements because of an expected further shortage in 1932.

Mr. Bailey challenged figures contained in the 1930 biennial report of R. E. Thomas, then state game warden, showing 13,358,807 fish hatched in the various hatcheries. He said an addition of the various items listed in the report disclosed only 9,768,940, or three and a half million fish less than was claimed.

He made a personal tour of many of the game sections of the state, studying disease and feed conditions, traveling 28,000 miles by automobile, 500 in the saddle and several hundred by train and airplane, at a cost of $1,206.

At the beginning of the present year, he said, he reduced the force of game wardens to save money, but was prepared to put them on again about April 1. He said there should be an increased mileage allowance for deputy wardens which would permit a fewer number to cover larger territory.

SPOKANE WOMEN BAKE HUGE BIRTHDAY CAKE

Spokane is a cake center! That is the latest laurel to be won for the city by Spokane women who have made and will send a truly Washington cake to the bicentennial banquet in honor of George Washington at Washington, D. C., February 22.

True, a man had a hand in the making, for this cake for the national holiday was decorated by none other than Paul Hahn, pastry chef of the Dessert Hotel Oasis. Ten pounds of white frosting cover the cake. In the very center is an almond paste plaque of George Washington himself and around this is written in frosting of gold, "First in the hearts of his countrymen." Groups of candied cherries and eight United States shields done in colors border the cake.

Miss Mamie Johnson, dietition, genially "bossed," more or less, by Washington housekeepers who insisted upon putting in this or that or something else grown or raised in the state finally succeeded, with the aid of a mammoth mixer, in getting the cake together. If anyone wishes a perfect company cake, she is advised to combine the following ingredients:

Twelve pounds sugar, 4 pounds of honey, 10 pounds butter, 8 dozen eggs, 12 pounds raisins, 14 pounds pastry flour, ½ pound baking powder, 5 pounds glace cherries, 4 pounds citron peel, 6 pounds orange peel, 10 pounds glace pears, 5 pounds almonds, 5 pounds walnuts, 6 lemons—juice and rind, flavoring; bake six hours, then top with 10 pounds frosting.

The result is nearly 100 pounds of cake.

The cake goes as the gift of no special group. It is the composite working out of all groups of Spokane women. Each group gave just 25 cents to the cake fund. If they had given more nobody could have got the cake through the door. As it is, it will go in a gold box with a glass top and will be exhibited in the dining car of the Great Northern on its way to the bicentennial celebration. It is the official cake of the official national banquet.—Christian Science Monitor.

As Told to the News.

Neighbors of Fred Shirrod report that he has been doing considerable plowing during the month of February at his ranch south of Genesee. As reported, he is using a "foot-burner" clearing away snow in search of bare soil, and in so doing has been also employing the services of Geo. Berry. Neighbors also say that Mr. Shirrod may be plowing out the road adjacent to his farm, and he apparently was working outside his fence lines, and it was noticed also that he was doing considerable puffing, the better, it is presumed, to blow the snow away.

Registration Books Open March 7.

Mrs. Lester C. Hayden, appointed registrar for the Genesee precinct, informs the News that books will open for registration March 7, and anyone wishing to register may do so between the hours of 7 a. m. and 7 p. m. at her home.

Anyone who registered for the last general election, state and county, during the year 1930 are not required to register again for the coming elections unless such persons or persons have changed their voting precinct.

If you are in doubt as to your registration requirements, it is advisable to consult the registrar.

How One Woman Lost 10 lb in a Week

Mrs. Betty Luedeke of Dayton, writes, "I am using Kruschen to reduce weight—I lost 10 pounds in one week and cannot say too much to recommend it."

To take off fat easily, SAFELY and HARMLESSLY—take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it is the safe way to lose unsightly fat and one bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle. Get it at any drugstore in America. If this first bottle fails to convince you this is the safest way to lose fat — money back.

But be sure and get Kruschen Salts—imitations are numerous and you must safeguard your health.

ELECTIONS AND POOR SWELL COUNTY BUDGET

Every official at the Latah county courthouse has asked for less money for 1932 except those of county superintendent of schools and the county physician, the former undoubtedly requesting a like amount as last year, while the physician asked a boost of $103.00. Justice courts also are reported asking an increase of $700.

This being an election year, the commissioners are also confronted with the necessity of budgeting for this emergency in the sum of $8,450, $3,000 for the primary and $5,450 for the general election. The county home appropriation will be almost double that of last year and $4,000 additional is required for indigents residing outside the home.

Budgeting for $111,815 for 1932 is compared with $111,091 for 1931, and it is readily seen where the additional funds will go.

Care of poor at the home and outside is increasing each year, and there is little existing doubt of the need of many Latah county people, necessitating the large amount budgeted. The state of Idaho, by legislative act, has saddled onto counties an old-age pension, which, together with the care of others make this load one of the most burdensome for taxpayers in Idaho, Latah county, however, being more fortunate than many other of the forty-four Idaho counties.

Elections are expensive when conducted in the most economical manner, yet here we have Idaho coming out this year with its direct primary, more costly and more complicated than any before.

Those who seek to lower expenses within the county have overlooked one of the large items of expense, but to propose that no elections be held in Idaho this year, would bring from our so-called tax relief experts a terrible outburst. About $8,450 in tax money could be saved in Latah county alone not to mention the cost over the entire state—but never worry—Idaho and its numerous counties will each holds its elections—yet those crying for lower taxes, many of them seeking office would call such a suggestion as election cancellation an absurdity.

Have you noticed how the mail carriers absent mindedly drive their horse-propelled vehicles up to the gas pumps. It has been such a long winter and horses have been driven by the rural letter carriers so long that we may expect to see them throwing a harness over their automobiles when roads become passable.

Judging from press dispatches our state game warden, Mac Bailey don't believe in any department having a surplus. Coming from a wheat country, he realizes that the wheat surplus is of no benefit to the farmer, and is afraid a money surplus will be injurious to the game.

"TAXLESS" OFFICIALS.

Is there any limit to the effrontery of Governor C. Ben Ross? People are beginning to doubt it. In the latest example of his impudent trangression of the bounds of his authority—the "Regulations" for state income tax returns which he has caused his tax commission to send out—he calmly assumes the powers and functions of the state legislature and proceeds to amend by executive order the state income tax law, without benefit of legislation or adjudication—amends it so as to except himself and certain selective state and federal officials from the operation of the law. In these regulations, to be specific, in Regulation No. 3, section 8, which lists twenty-one kinds of taxable income, occurs the following:

"8. Income received by an officer or employee of the State of Idaho, whether elected or appointed, except salary of the governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state auditor, state treasurer, attorney general, superintendent of public instruction, justices of the supreme court, district court judges and district attorneys. Salaries of federal officers and employees are also exempt."

"Tax you, don't tax me," says the governor in effect. How does the good governor get that way? The law as passed by the legislature makes no exemption of any kind—neither of elective or appointive officer. The law requires every person having an income of a thousand dollars or more to report and pay his tax to the state. Upon what theory does the governor presume to amend the law so as to except himself? Whether the failure to include the "exemptions" in the law was due to a slip on his part when it was passed or whether it is an afterthought, is immaterial. The law provides no exemptions, but the governor now makes them 'by executive order'."

"Can the governor get away with it?" you ask. Of course he can. He told his tax commission to make the exceptions in his "Regulations" and, under the same order, the tax collector will simply not collect the tax from the chosen few selected to give the governor "face." It's as easy as that.

One wonders why the governor, drawing a salary of $5,000 per year and traveling expenses big enough to allow him to travel over the state and beyond its borders pretty much all the time, so that he sleeps at the state capital only occasionally, and the selected group of state and federal officers, all drawing handsome salaries, should be exempt from state income tax. Other citizens have to pay, most of them with smaller incomes. County, municipal and precinct officers have to pay, all of them with much smaller salaries.

Gross inconsistency, hypocrisy and unfairness radiates from the executive "regulations." The legislature made no exemption, the courts have decreed none—but the governor makes them—and he is likely to get away with them.—Pocatello Tribune.

FEEDING THE BIRDS.

A score of years or so ago the feeding of birds in winter time was a diversion of the children—beamed upon by older and presumably wiser folk who thought it merely a pretty and innocent practice. Crumbs occasionally were scattered on window ledges and front porches, thus juvenile noses might be flattened thrillingly against glass. But nobody who was wiser and older really believed that those impromptu banquets for birds were necessary. It was an amusement comparable to blowing soap bubbles on a stormy day.

Times change. Everybody, in a manner of speaking, feed birds now, and everybody is quite grave about the humanitarian necessity of it at certain seasons. The Audubon Society recommends and supervises the practice. City councils are not too august to refrain from indicating the necessity. Citizens of credit and renown, as famous as any John Gilpin, will estimate for you—and quite liberally—the number of birds they have for pensioners when their suburbs are shrouded in snow. And here is a secret—their respective and respectable noses all are snubbed against windowpanes, as though they were children again.

It is a hopeful augury. Individuals and nations may become too severe and selfish for any practical purpose, happiness considered. But neither nations nor individuals may become too tolerant and gentle—or at least there seems no immediate peril of it. And any people that takes thought of the plight of juncos and such, when the weed-stalks are hidden by winter and the larder of the countryside is locked against the birds, is a better and a wiser people because when in the keeping of men and women who find pity for a chilly, small bird in the frosted wistaria vine.—Christian Science Monitor.

GENUINE WEATHEROLOGY.

Whereas, in September, 1931, I warned all wise farmers to speed up and prepare for winter which would come early and stay late, and give us the deepest snow in 20 years.

Now the scribe of this sheet, after listening to the amateur weather prophets, predicted, on account of such cold before Christmas, we would have no zero weather after January 1. Furthermore, he now tries to place this in my name. Now I never was a prophet, for I turned the amateur prophet branch over to Sullivan and Sampson two years ago.

Being a student of scientific weatherology for over forty years, I claim to be Idaho's "Greatest Weather Speculator." Furthermore, I receive all my literature from Washington, D. C. and St. Louis, Mo., "free gratis." I now have all the 1932 information.

And I now claim:

1. We will have a "white" Easter.
2. Spring will be from April 25 to May 5.
3. Spring will come gradually and give little trouble as to washouts.
4. Uncle Tim will arrive 30 days late from California.
5. No extreme heat but very cool summer.

Now I defy all the amateur talent of Genesee to come forth with predictions to class with the above and I claim that the scribe and others are out of order trying to predict weather. This is a very deep subject and no genuine reports of "Scientific Weatherology" will appear in this sheet unless it is signed—

With road conditions as they are today you are taking a big chance when you go out in a car that is not in perfect mechanical condition. Faulty brakes have been responsible for thousands of accidents and even so small a thing as a poorly adjusted carburetor may rob your car of the acceleration that you need sometime to get out of the way of a truck. You never can tell—better run your car in today and have us look it over.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

In the District Court of the Second Judicial District of the State of Idaho, in and for the County of Latah.

John Kusturin, Plaintiff,
vs.
Otto H. Lemberg, Defendant.

THE STATE OF IDAHO SENDS GREETINGS to the above named defendants:

You are hereby notified that a complaint has been filed against you in the District Court of the Second Judicial District of the State of Idaho, in and for the County of Latah, by the above named plaintiff, and you are hereby directed to appear and plead to the said complaint within twenty days of the service of this Alias Summons;

That in general terms the statement of the nature of the cause of action is as follows:

For foreclosure of that certain real estate mortgage, wherein you are a mortgagor and the plaintiff is mortgagee, which said mortgage was made on the 19th day of September, 1930, and bearing Reception No. 115118, and which was filed of record on the 20th day of September, 1930, at 4:05 P. M., and duly recorded in Book 56 of Mortgages, Page 412, in the Records of the County Recorder of Latah County, Idaho, covering the following described real estate:

North half of the Northwest Quarter (N½ NW¼), Section Thirteen (13); South Half of the Southwest Quarter (S½ SW¼) and the Northeast Quarter of the Southwest Quarter (NE¼ SW¼), Section Twelve (12), Township Forty-one (41) North, Range Five (5), West of the Boise Meridian, County of Latah, State of Idaho; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and plead to said complaint within the time herein specified, the plaintiff will take judgment against you as prayed in said complaint.

WITNESS MY HAND and the seal of said District Court, this 11th day of February, 1932.

BYRON DEFENBACH ONCE DEFEATED, WILL RUN AGAIN

Byron Defenbach, unsuccessful candidate for the nomination as governor of Idaho at the Idaho Falls republican state convention in 1930, rises again and says:

"I am a candidate for nomination for governor of Idaho, subject to the will of the republican voters in the coming primaries. I do not contemplate any extensive pre-primary campaign, do not know of and will not be party to any deals or combinations and will make no promises except publicly and to the people of the state as a whole.

"The next governor of Idaho will be confronted with difficult problems: of these, the excessive and growing cost of government overshadows all others. The first step in the solution of this problem is the reduction of the gross load. Reform should begin where abuses are most glaring—in the state government. When this reform has become a certainty, and not before, the state administration may with propriety request and insust upon similar action by subordinate governng bodies.

"The taxpayers of Idaho will be no longer diverted by the three ancient alibis:

"1. The state tax doesn't amount to anything;

"2. Taxes are not too high, if properly distributed;

"3. People want things, and then don't want to pay for them.

"The incoming governor, recognized instead of evading existing unsatisfactory conditions, will recommend:

"No more 'continuing' appropriations;

"The reduction of the public debt;

"The simplification of state government.

"Abolition of the so-called cabinet form;

"Discontinuance of all activities not needful;

"Allocation of remaining duties, wherever possible, to the elective officers of the state;

"Less state-owned automobiles, and less use of those retained;

"All appointments to be based upon technical, rather than upon political fitness;

"Salaries and hours of service to be the same as those obtaining in similar positions in private enterprises;

"New appontees to receive beginner's salaries, with promotions based on merit.

"The adoption of these policies will materially reduce taxes. Revenues from sources now escaping taxation should be used solely to further reduce the burden. Distribution of the load, having become relatively less important, should be readjusted on the basis of ability to pay.

"To carry out the above program, your governor must have not only the knowledge and ability, but the determined will to put the proposed reforms into effect. He must be sincere in his efforts to correct evils and above all, must lay aside all thought of future political preferment for himself. He must recognize that his office is one of business, rather than one of political and social activity. It remains only that he must be 'on the job.'

"My attitude on the questions with which your next governor will have to deal, is in accord with the above program. I can only promise that, if elected, I will use my best efforts toward putting these reforms into effect.

"As to my qualifications and the probability of my keeping promises, I point to my past record in public life and leave the decision to the judgment of the voters."

COOPERATION IS SUCCESS.

Did man reach his present state of perfection through individual effort or can we attribute civilization as we know it today rather to collective achievements down through the ages? Let us word the question this way. Do we enjoy today's advantage because of the outstanding ability of one man or a group of men—or are they due to the cumulative efforts of all mankind?

A review of history discloses, with startling frequency, men who can well be classed as geniuses in their chosen fields. The world acclaimed them as benefactors of the human race, not always during their lifetime but eventually true greatness was recognized and accorded the homage due. May I digress for a moment to say, if you admire a man for his service to his fellows, tell him now. He will not hear your kind words when his hands are folded on his breast and his eyes are closed in death, but he will appreciate a word of commendation now.

But, to resume. Conceding that men of outstanding ability have had a marked influence on mankind as a whole and that they succeeded in making the world a better place in which to live, are we not forced to attribute their accomplishments, partly at least, to preceding generations? These geniuses merely used the brains they were born with and carried on the work others had begun. They didn't start at the beginning for it wasn't necessary.

Regardless of the direct benefits that accrued to mankind in general because of the lives of truly great men, there can be but one answer to the question at the beginning of this article. Civilization today resulted from cooperation of men, living, and those who lived and passed on. This is so apparent that no argument is needed to support it. But let us look into the past to convince ourselves again that it is true. When the world was young, men—individually—were at the mercy of the gigantic beasts that roamed the earth. For protection, men banded together in tribes—they cooperated to assure the preservation of their lives. That process of cooperation developed and eventually resulted in the formation of governments. Business is built through cooperation. Analyze any business and it is, in one sense of the word—cooperative. Any corporation is cooperative as far as the stockholders agreeing to invest their capital in a certain venture that is too large for any one to carry alone. They cooperate for their mutual benefit. Cooperation in business is not new. In fact every business of any magnitude today reached that stage through cooperation—of capital and labor.

Farmers have been more reluctant to engage in cooperative enterprise than most any other class of business men. This is no doubt due to the fact that farmers depend upon themselves to carry on their production activities. The time has come, however, when the farmers' business existence depends on his willingness to market his products cooperatively. The machinery is set up now under the sponsorship of the farm board and is operating. Only through cooperation will farmers as a class achieve equality with other business. Self preservation demands collective bargaining —cooperative marketing of farm products. Are you as a farmer in the 20th century going to ignore lessons so clearly taught by prehistoric man?
—C. Kaltenborn.

Roosters Can't Crow in Kendrick.

It is against the law in Kendrick to permit roosters to crow, a misdemeanor, so provided by ordinance.

The following is taken from the Kendrick Gazette:

"Complaints have been received that chickens are running at large within the village limits. Such is against the law and all owners who allow said chickens to run at large may have the same seized and killed, without further notice.

"Further—The noise caused by crowing roosters come under the ordinance governing nuisances and same may be disposed of or confined in such a manner as to muffle all sound. Failure to comply shall constitute a misdemeanor."

Will Watch the Parade Go By.

The Boise bureau of the Lewiston Tribune says that ex-Governor Baldridge may yet be induced to enter the lists for governor against Defenbach. Bet a cookie the Trib's all wet. Probably the wish—on the part of the writer—was father to the thought. Nineteen thirty-two is a mighty good year to sit in the parlor window and watch the parade go by, and nobody knows that any better than does the sage of Parma.—Boise Pioneer.

KIDDIES KNOW JACK HAYDEN, HE KNOWS THEIR FAMILIES !

Probably the best known student in Moscow is Jack Hayden. Jack who works at the Kenworthy, knows every mother's child that is allowed to attend the picture show.

"Rarely a night passes but a worried mother phones me to see whether her little boy or girl is still in the picture show or not," Jack says. "I don't know all the children's names but I know to whom they belong. As I stand at the door to take tickets I notice carefully each child who goes in, because I have learned from three years' experience that they often do not go home after one show, but stay for two.

"Then the mothers begin to call. On New Year's night when we had three shows, some of them even stayed for the third run. When that happens, even the dads get worried."

Jack gets to know many children in the afternoons when he is pasting up signs, or up on the ladder putting the letters of the electric sign into place. Hardly a child in town who goes to the show fails to stop and watch Jack work in the afternoons and ask him questions.

Jack takes his responsibilities seriously.

"When a picture such as 'Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde' comes I always prepare the ticket girl for what is to come, because invariably children who do not come with their parents get scared and begin to cry and wander up the aisle, not knowing where they are going. As soon as they get out in the light and the girl in the ticket office talks to them, they get all right and we see that they get home."

Jack is a junior in the school of business administration at the university of Idaho.—Star-Mirror.

Legion to Sponsor Rifle Matches.

Everyone interested in shooting small arms rifles are invited to come to the Legion hall Sunday afternoon, where matches will be conducted by a committee from the Legion, in charge. A small fee will be charged those who participate.

At the meeting Wednesday evening it was learned that some time would be required to form rifle teams to shoot large calibre rifles, and while arrangements are being completed, it was the desire of several to start off with a small-arms shooting match at the Legion hall, where a gallery is being constructed.

Fifteen members were present at the meeting Wednesday evening, the commander, John Eikum, and Joe Anderson making the trip to town afoot, it being impossible to come by auto.

Monday Bunch.

The Monday Bunch met this week with Mrs. Anna Hanson for a social afternoon. New members taken in the club are Misses Esther and Ruth Martinson, Mrs. D. C. Burr and Mrs. John Luedke.

GRAIN MARKETS ARE FIRMER; FEED GRAINS ALSO HIGHER

a total for the season of 39,634,000, compared with 3,302,000 during January 1931 and 34,104,000 for the season's total through January last year.

Additional snow fall over producing sections of eastern Washington and Oregon during the week were favorable to winter wheat. Approaching increases in freight rates and tax assessment time apparently influenced farmers to sell more freely during the week, although many growers were reported holding for higher prices.

California wheat markets declined 2 to 5 cents per bushel under continued dull demand both from millers and feeders. Millers reported flour business about normal but were confining their purchases mostly to high protein varieties. The approaching increase in freight rates stimulated demand for Texas wheat to some extent, but buyers generally were not accumulating large stocks. Low prices of grain sorghums and feed barleys have restricted the consumption of feed wheat so that small amounts of wheat have recently been taken by feeders and industrial buyers.

Early seeded California wheat is reported to be making good progress, but heavy soil conditions have delayed seeding in some areas. Ample supplies of water for irrigation during the coming season are insured by the heavy snow pack in the mountains. Local supplies of wheat are small and being rather firmly held. Receipts at both central and southern California points were principally from Texas, although fairly large amounts were being shipped into the state from Oregon and Washington.

World Shipments Remain Large.

World shipments of wheat remain fairly large, but principally from the southern hemisphere. Stocks available for export in both Argentina and Australia are materially smaller than a year ago. According to official estimates approximately 122,000,000 bushels of wheat remain for export or carry-over in Argentina on Febr. 6.

Witness Deer Park Storm.

Mrs. Henry Craft was at Deer Park, Wash., visiting her daughter and family during the severe blizzard which raged over that section of the state about ten days ago. Roads were quickly closed with drifted snow and streets in the town were impassable. People living off the main street were unable to move automobiles and firemen were unable to reach a fire with equipment. In one instance firemen were held at distance of five blocks by the snow. Drifts completely obscured automobiles, and when roads were plowed out or paths dug through the drifts it required but fifteen to twenty minutes for them to fill in again with snow. The wind accompanying the snow storm was the worst experienced at Deer Park.

New Teeth Mean Pound a Day.

Bert Wishard, who recently underwent a series of surgical operations at Potlatch has shown a marked improvement in his physical condition. Since returning home and acquiring a new set of teeth he gained 21 pounds in as many days and says that he is feeling better than he has for several years.

Signers Asked to Pay Ten Cents.

Various petitions have been circulated in Idaho during the past two years, signers to which are asked to pay a small fee, ten cents being the sum usually asked. A letter form the state department at Boise informs its readers that some of these petitions are without merit, and while not in violation of law, there is doubt as to the sincereity of purpose as outlined in the petition. One such petition circulated several months ago by two young men found many signers at ten cents per signer, this particular petition, it was stated, prayed congress to further restrict foreign labor.

Recently a petition was brought to Genesee for signers at ten cents per person, asking the state to employ manual labor rather than machinery on highway construction in Idaho. No doubt the greater number of people favor road work being done by men rather than by machinery, but there enters a doubt as to whether the petition will be presented before the proper authorities.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Washington proved interesting. We were interested to know how beautiful this city, named for our first president, has become, with its great public buildings and its memorials and monuments, especially those dedicated to Washington and Lincoln.

We made a poster of the Washington monument.

We studied two Washington pictures, "The Mount Vernon School House" and "The Day's Beginning," by Ferris.

The poem "Washington's Birthday" by Margaret Sangster, held special appeal for us. The poet tells us that it is splendid to live so bravely and so purely that every year your people will remember your birthday in festival and with joy.

"The captains and the kings depart," and still the basic subject of reading and the perplexing subject of fractions must have their place. However, the lessons on fractions are being hailed very enthusiastically.

First and Second Grades.

Every morning last week at 9:30 a boy or girl was chosen to act as postmaster or postmistress for our post office. The children brought stamps (made by the children). Then they stamped and mailed the Valentines as letters are mailed in the Genesee post office. The Valentines that were not properly addressed and stamped were returned to the sender for corrections.

Friday afternoon each youngster was permitted to bring a little visitor. The little people enjoyed the program which was given the last half of the afternoon. Just before dismissal every child went to the post office and got his or her mail, which had been sorted and placed in the individual boxes earlier in the day.

THE GENESEE NEWS

VOL. XLIII — GENESEE, LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1932 — NO. 36

F. LEEPER, LEWISTON, TALKS TO TAXPAYERS OF RIMROCK

Forest Leeper, Lewiston, secretary of the Nez Perce County Taxpayers' league, met with taxpayers of the Rimrock section last Saturday at the Ingle school, and besides giving his findings on tax matters in Nez Perce county, answered a number of questions.

Snow-blocked highways prevented many from attending the interesting meeting.

Mr. Leeper opened the meeting by stating that his topic for discussion would be, "Mr. Average Farmer as a Taxpayer," first stating that the average farm in Nezperce county was comprised of farm and grazing land to the extent of 319 acres, although in his county there were 8 farms of 5,000 acres or over. There were, according to Mr. Leeper, sixty-five farms with 1,000 acres or more, the average value of which he placed at about $30 per acre, basing his figures on a proposed sale of land near Asotin, which he said was offered for $20 per acre, 320 acres of it, well improved. Mr. Leeper also said that the best offer to date was but $18 per acre.

Contending that farm land values are too high, Mr. Leeper, compared its present price with the cost of government today, a marked contrast being shown in the comparison of the years 1931 and 1919, the latter being a year when farm lands and products were high and government cost was low.

Current expenses for the county of Nezperce were written on a blackboard at the school, wherein the secretary of the league showed that they were mounting each year rather than decreasing. In 1919 current expenses were listed as being $56,344.03; in 1930 they had climbed to $108,134.44; making a further advance in 1931 to $116,964.00, with an estimated expense of $143,864.00 for 1932. The total budget for the year 1932 in Nez Perce county, according to Mr. Leeper is $282,494.24, compared with $294,084.78 for 1931.

Mr. Leeper, in reviewing the problems confronting taxpayers today, expressed himself as opposed to the budget law and the intricacies of fund manipulations in county funds. It was his belief that officials were compelled to ask for larger amounts than were actually needed, as officials interpreted the law to mean that unexpended balances could not be transferred from one fund to another without expense of advertising, and that in emergencies there was a like expense to take money from one fund to use in another.

Mr. Leeper touched upon the charity work being done in Nezperce county, which is now 80 times greater than ten or twelve years ago. He attributed the increasing charities to Lewiston being located in the valley where people with scant means could exist with less than were the weather was severe during winter months. And Mr. Leeper said he knew of instances where people have entered Lewiston hospitals, remaining there for a period of time sufficient to establish them as residents of the county, and in one or more instances peo-

Pete Isaksen on KWSC Program.

Pete Isaksen played in the Old Fiddlers' contest, broadcast from radio station KWSC Tuesday evening. He was accompanied on the piano by his son, Alfred. This was the first contest this year and was for fiddlers between the ages of 50 to 64 years, and is the third time Mr. Isaksen has competed at KWSC, although playing on another occasion by invitation. On the Tuesday evening broadcast Mr. Isaksen played four numbers and two requests. There were 19 contestants.

Tuesday evening, March 1, the contest will be open for fiddlers of the age of 65 and over, and on March 22 the finals will be broadcast. John Vandenburg has appeared in this contest in previous years, but it is not known whether he will go to Pullman again this year.

GOVERNMENT LOANS LIMITED TO $400 FOR EACH INDIVIDUAL

The Spokane regional office for crop production loans to farmers from the $50,000,000 set aside from Reconstruction Finnance corporation funds is expected to be making loans by March 1, says a release from the North Pacific Grain Growers, Inc.

Loans are limited to $400 to any one individual, but Pacific Northwest congressmen report Secretary of Agriculture Hyde is inclined to increase this maximum in this area. No loans will be made on summer fallowed land, but Senator Wesley L. Jones, in a telegram to North Pacific Grain Growers has promised to introduce a plowing loan bill in the senate.

Advances will be made at the rate of $3 an acre on non-fertilized land. Twelve dollars an acre will be advanced where fertilizer is used. Orchardists will be loaned $15 an acre.

Loans will be due November 30, 1932, and will bear interest at the rate of 5½ per cent per annum. Farmers' notes, secured by crop mortgages, will be accepted.

John F. Davies, Spokane banker, has been named director of the Spokane loan office, and is in Washington, D. C. conferring with Secretary Hyde. He is accompanied by Vincent D. Allen, Spokane certified public accountant, named auditor.

Harry E. Goldsworthy of Rosalia, former secretary of North Pacific Grain Growers, Inc., has been appointed loan inspector.

All growers accepting loans will be required to raise a garden for their own use. Seed must meet specifications of the agricultural department.

Loans will be made in this way: A farmer applies for a loan to the Spokane office; it is analyzed by Mr. Goldsworthy and passed upon by a county committee of three, to be named from Spokane; the loan is then passed upon by Mr. Goldsworthy, Mr. Davies and Mr. Allen, and if finally approved, the money is issued to the farmer at once from the Spokane office.

Provisions Running Low.

Vegetables, fruit and meat are now being demanded of the Associated Charities, and such items will be gladly received at the Farmers Union Producers warehouse.

DRAMATICS CLASS TO APPEAR AT OPEN HOUSE ON MARCH 3

Open house will be held March 3 during the evening, when the dramatics class will present a one-act play, "The Florist Shop." The cast of characters follows: Slovosky, Pearl Springer; Henry, Wilson Esser; Miss Wells, Glenna Harris; Maude, Helen Winegardner; Mr. Jackson, George Smylie. It is the story of an eighteen year engagement brought to a marriage by a clever girl in a florist shop.

Report Cards Out March 3.

This week marks the end of the first six-weeks' period. Report cards will be given out March 3.

Dramatics Class to Present Plays.

Friday, March 11, the dramatics class will present two one-act plays, "The Dear Reported" and "The Mayor and the Manicure." They will be given at the high school gymnasium with the following casts, respectively: Mrs. Slater, Marjorie Nebelsieck; Mrs. Jordon, Eileen Flomer; Henry Slater, Marvin Miller; Ben Jordon, Wayne Roach; Victoria, Gail Sampson; Abel Merriweather, Russell Rinehart. Mayor, George Blume; Wallie, Richard Harris; Genevieve, Esther Kries; Ruth, Kathryn Baumgartner. Property managers are: Annabelle Huffman, Eva Jones, Raphael Linehan and Mercedes Smolt.

Genesee 37, Kendrick 31.

With the score tied at 27-27 and three minutes left to play, Genesee high school boys went into a scoring spree that netted them ten points while Kendrick obtained but four. The game looked like it belonged here most of the time, however. A lead of nine points at half-time gave a feeling of security, but with Blevins scounting for 16 points in the last half the score changed to one of doubt and danger.

Genesee players worked the ball better than Kendrick, although they were not as fortunate at the baskets. Broemmeling, substituting for Smylie, accounted for six points in half as many minutes. George Blume played a good game, coming out with the leading individual high score for Genesee, making 12 points.

The team's fast passing attack had slowed down a bit, and it is hoped that it will be working better than usual when we meet the Southwick aggregation on their court tomorrow evening. This game tells whether Genesee has a chance to enter the district tournament at Lewiston the following week. It appears that about seven miles of this trip must be made in a sled.

Scores accounted for in the game are credited to H. Blume, 8 points; G. Smylie, 6; G. Blume, 12; Rinehart, 5; Wishard, 0; Broemmeling, 6.

The girls' basket ball team entertained the Kendrick teams after the game, sandwiches, cookies and cocoa being served.

There are two enlarged pictures of the girls' and boys' basket ball teams for 1932 at the school. Anyone calling for same may have them.

The girls' game Friday was very fast and hard fought all the way, the score at the half being 5 to 4 in favor of Kendrick and 19 to 9 at the end of the game.

Observe Washington's Birthday.

The Genesee public school students and faculty began the bicentennial celebration of George Washington by listening to President Hoover's address which was delivered before the joint session of congress. We also listened to the broadcast from England. The bicentennial celebration opened February 22 and lasts until next Thanksgiving. We, the public school, will give our Washington day program sometime this Spring.

M. A. Means of Lewiston, presented each room in the school with a beautiful art picture of George Washington.

Don't forget to save your 75 cents for the next Junior Prom which is to be given March 31.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

Most of our attention has been centered around Washington this week. In language the sixth grade pupils made playlets about the making of the first American flag. The best one was acted out Monday morning. We all enjoyed the part of the program which we heard over the radio which was in the eighth grade room. In language we memorized poems about Washington and some even made poems themselves. The best poem was written by Adeline Herman. Many of the pupils brought pictures and newspaper clippings about our honored president.

WHEAT MARKET SUMMARY FOR WEEK ENDING FEBR. 19

Further strengthening occurred in domestic wheat markets during the week ending February 19, under the influence of a broadening European demand for North American wheat, further advances in security markets and uncertain prospects for this season's domestic winter wheat crop, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Feed grains were strengthened by the advance in wheat.

Pacific Coast Market

Pacific Coast wheat markets were stronger under the influence of higher prices at eastern points, but advances were less pronounced because of the slow demand from domestic mills and lack of export business. Receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia river terminals were relatively large, totaling 1,095 cars compared with only 375 cars for the corresponding week last year. The movement, however, represented principally the transfer of stocks from interior to terminal warehouses before the increase in freight rates effective February 20. Export mills continued to operate on the Chinese relief orders and all but 100,000 barrels of which have now been allotted. Shipments of wheat and flour continued to go forward according to original schedules. Inquiry from California was rather slow, since California buyers were generally taking only sufficient grain for immediate requirements and were supplying most of their current needs from stocks accumulated earlier in the season. No export sales of either wheat or flour were reported, since local prices continued out of line with offerings from Australia and Canada.

An unusual in the market for Bluestem this season, has been the sale of around 100 cars to Minneapolis for use in the manufacture of cereals.

New Crop Prospects.

New crop prospects are becoming an increasingly important influence in the wheat market situation and the present uncertain condition of the northern hemisphere winter wheat crop has recently been a strengthening factor in the market. The U. S. winter wheat crop made generally favorable progress during the week, except in western Kansas, where the prospects are poor. The condition of winter wheat in Europe is rather irregular. Severe freezing, without a snow covering, has occurred in Austria, Czzechoslovakie and some other areas. A good snowfall, on the other hand, his improved conditions in Italy, Spain and Hungary, but the outlook in the latter country is not favorable. Lack of moisture is reported in Denmark and Portugal, but milder weather during the week favored the new crop in Germany and France. Some damage is reported to winter wheat in Russia, by alternate freezing and thawing, which caused the formation of an ice cover in December and again in January.

Russian Acreage Increased.

The acreage of winter wheat in Russia has been increased 11.4 per cent over that of a year ago and is officially reported at 32,337,000 acres. The condition of the crop in India, where harvest begins in March, is only fair, with a deficiency in moisture reported in important areas.

World Wheat Shipments

World shipments of wheat continued of good volume during the week reflecting some improvement in European demand, but consisted principally of shipments from the southern hemisphere. Argentina exports were reported at 4,218,000 bushels, and the Australian out-movement at 4,546,000. Black Sea shipments amounted to only 408,000 bushels, all of Russian wheat. Most of the remainder of the World's exports was of North American grain. Reduced supplies of native wheat in Europe have resulted in some modifications of milling restrictions. The quota of foreign wheat allowed French millers has been increased to 20 per cent and trade reports indicate that some modification of German import tariffs is being considered. Prices of native wheats advanced in most European markets, with good milling wheat quoted February 19, at Hamburg at $1.59 5-8; at Paris at $1.72¼ and at Milan at $1.64 5-8. The market for foreign wheats also strengthened, with sales of No. 2 Manitoba from Vancouver reported at Liverpool at 67 7-8c and of old crop Argentine wheat at 58½c.

Active Rebekah for 36 Years.

Mrs. Con Steltz, who has been a member of Golden Rule Rebekah lodge of Genesee, since February 25, 1896, was honored by her sister members Wednesday evening with a pick-up supper at her home and a handkerchief shower. Mrs. Steltz is the only member still active in lodge work residing here with a record of thirty-six years. Mrs. H. F. Meader of Los Angeles, Calif., who still keeps her membership in this lodge was initiated June 4, 1895.

Later in the evening the members went to the hall for regular meeting.

LIEUT. GOVERNOR G. P. MIX ASPIRES TO SENATORSHIP

Lieutenant Governor G. P. Mix, of Moscow, who was in Caldwell for the state democratic central committee has announced his candidacy for the democratic nomination for United States senator at the primary election, May 24.

Mr. Mix has not outlined his policy as yet, but made the announcement on his record as an advocate for 12 years of adequate solution of the agricultural situation."

The Moscow candidate is the fourth democratic candidate to announce his intentions for the coming primary for the office of United States senator, the other three democrats being W. Orr Chapman, Twin Falls; James P. Pope, Boise, and Owen Stratton of Lemhi county.

FAVOR ORRIS DORMAN AS MEMBER OF FARM BOARD

Appointment to the federal farm board of Orris Dorman, Spokane and LaCrosse wheat grower and director of membership relations of North Pacific Grain Growers Inc., showed added promise this week following a call upon President Hoover by Representative John W. Summers of Walla Walla. Dr. Summers is a staunch vocate of Mr. Dorman's appointment. He told Mr. Hoover that he also carried the personal recommendation of Senator Wesley L. Jones, who was unable to accompany him to the White House because he was busy with the senate appropriations committee.

Mr. Dorman has the endorsement of Senator C. C. Dill, Senator Charles L. McNary, both Montana senators and Representatives Sam B. Hill and Ralph A. Horr, as well. He has been endorsed by the directors of North Pacific Grain Growers.

Endorsements point out that the Pacific northwest is the only large producing area in the country not now represented on the farm board, and propose Mr. Dorman as one who not only knows the farmers' problems, but has them sincerely at heart.

President Hoover gave Dr. Summers no intimation of when he would fill the existing vacancy on the farm board.

GOVERNMENTAL FUNCTIONS IN IDAHO ARE NOT PRUNED

Idaho's governmental tree has, during its forty years of existence, been subjected to many operations, especially graftings, says Glenn Balch, in his seventh article on taxation in Idaho. True, there have been some amputations, but the fact that the number of governmental functions and items have increased from 18 in 1891 to about 115 at present is conclusive proof that the amputations have been in the minority.

The first legislature made appropriations for the various state officers, the governor, treasurer, auditor, attorney-general, superintendent of public instruction and the secretary of state; for the supreme court, district courts and district attorneys; for maintenance of the capitol building; for the insane asylum, land office, penitentiary, national guard, legislature, state lay library, bond interest and deaf and blind education.

That was the sum total of governmental functions at that time. The largest of these appropriations was $95,000 for the insane asylum. Other appropriations were: $61,000 for the penitentiary; $46,500 for the legislature; $40,000 for the district courts; $26,680 for the supreme court and $25,000 for district attorneys.

New Appropriations Added.

Adding operations begin with the next legislature, which convened in 1893. Appropriations for the university, a mine inspector, a boiler inspector and a soldiers' home were added. There were two amputations, the appropriations for deaf and bland education and for bond interest being eliminated. Both of these items, however, were due to make their reappearances shortly.

In 1895 a state engineer and a horticultural inspector were added, the latter being the beginning of our present agriculture department. The engineer's appropriation at that time totalled $8,880, while the inspector received only $2100.

The 1897 legislature added appropriations of $14,000 each for the two normal school to the list. The next legislature, 1899, provided for eight new items, a sheep inspector, a board of equalization, insurance for the state library and buildings, official bonds, codification of laws, fish and game and immigration and labor statistics.

Mineral Exhibit Purchased.

In 1901 $5,000 was appropriated to purchase a mineral exhibit and $6,000 to provide a traveling library. In 1903 appropriations for the industrial training school, the Academy of Idaho and the insurance department, totalling $39,000, were added. In 1905 a dairy, food and oil inspector was provided for, and the north Idaho insane asylum, a state veterinarian and a bank examiner were added to the list.

A board of health, the historical society and the Children's home received appropriations totalling $17,000 in 1907. The next legislature, meeting in 1909, added a grain commission, the G. A. R., Indian War Veterans and a water commissioner to the list.

The next four succeeding legisla-

Would You Rather Have • 14,520 EGGS or 16,302 EGGS?

14,520 is a big figure—especially when it's that many eggs. And we have a pen of 100 pullets that laid that many in 9 months. But we also have a pen of 100 pullets that laid 16,302 eggs in 9 months. And 16,302 is bigger than 14,520 by 1782 eggs.

Both these pens of pullets are mighty good layers. You can see that from the eggs they laid in 9 months. Both received the best of feed and care.* It takes good feed and care to make 100 pullets lay 14,520 eggs in 9 months. But what does it take to make 100 pullets lay 16,302 eggs in 9 months—especially when these pullets are just like the ones that laid only 14,520 eggs—and when they received the same identical feed and care? It takes Dr. Hess Poultry Pan-a-min in addition to good feed and good care. That is just exactly what the pen that laid 16,302 eggs received—Dr. Hess Poultry Pan-a-min. That and that alone accounts for the difference of 1782 eggs between these two pens of fine pullets.

Dr. Hess Poultry Pan-a-min is a conditioner and mineral supplement that helps hens turn feed into eggs. Its conditioning properties keep them in laying trim day in and day out. Its vital elements will increase the production of your flock—no matter how good the hens or the feed—just as it did for the hundred pullets that laid the 16,302 eggs. Buy a supply from your local dealer now or write us. It's time to start your flock off to a record in fall and winter egg production. Dr. Hess & Clark, Inc., Ashland, Ohio.

By the best of feed and care we mean a mash of ground corn, wheat middlings, wheat bran, meat scrap, dried buttermilk, soy-bean meal—a scratch feed of cracked corn and whole wheat—also cod-liver oil and oyster shell—lights in the morning. Both pens received all these things in the same proportion and in the same way. But no matter what the feed, it is good feed and care* plus *Pan-a-min that makes extra fall and winter eggs. Easy Pleasant Way To Lose Fat

How would you like to safely and harmlessly lose 15 pounds of fat in a month and at the same time increase your energy and improve your health?

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too prominent hips and abdomen and at the same time make your skin so clean and clear that it will compel admiration?

Get on the scales today and see how much you weigh—then get a bottle of Kruschen Salts that costs next to nothing and which will last you 4 weeks. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water in the morning—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—and when you have finished the contents of this first bottle weight yourself again.

After that you'll want to walk around and say to your friends, "One bottle of Kruschen Salts is worth one hundred dollars of any fat person's money."

But refuse imitations—safeguard your health—you lose fat SAFELY with Kruschen.

Leading druggists America over sell Kruschen Salts—you can always get it at all druggists. ad

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

The old school building is advertised for sale to the highest bidder, and it will soon be a thing of the past.

At a special meeting of the school board the contract for erecting the new school house was let for $21,220; for plumbing, $2,000; wiring, $420; heating and hardware supplies was not let but will be about $3,000, making the total cost about $27,000, with the added cost of furniture, fixtures and sidewalks bringing the total investment to around $30,000.

THE MOTHER OF PROSPERITY

A good cow producing 8,000 lbs. of 4% milk a year will produce enough skim milk to feed—

One Growing Calf
One Growing Hog
Thirty Growing Hens

And 320 lbs. of butterfat to sell.

Now multiply the above by 10 and it is evident that ten good cows will pay well under present conditions.

A good cows is a wonderful machine for converting feed, much of which has no market and would be wasted, into perfect food. She is the only animal that produces several times her own weight in food each year and is still alive to do it over again. About 25% of the total farm income is produced by dairy cows.

HERE IS SOMETHING INTERESTING TO POULTRY MEN

In the 1931 Prize Pullet Raising contest, put on by the Inland Empire Milling Co. of St. John, Wash. The list of winners are:

First Prize—10 x 10 Modern Brooder House, J. Flufs, Pullman.

Second Prize—1,000 lbs. Empire 20% Pro. Laying Mash, J. L. Struthers, Uniontown.

Third Prize—200 lbs. Empire Best Grade Flour, E. M. Reisenauer, Colton.

Fourth Prize—100 lbs. Empire Mixed Cereals, H. M. Lorang, Genesee.

Fifth, sixth and seventh prizes, were 8-foot Mash Feeder Hoppers.

Eighth, ninth and tenth prizes were 4-foot Mash Feeder Hoppers.

Mr. Lorang says he attributes most of his success to the Empire Milling Co feed used. He raised 400 White Leghorn, Freshlaid, Kincaid Baby chicks and his losses were less than 5% in the first two weks. Mr. Lorang is also a booster for diversified farming.

Don't feed the baby chicks anything for the first 72 hours. Then start them on Empire Chick Starter and Chick Mash and you will have better success than you ever believed possible. Let us know when you are ready to start and we'll send some right out.

Wouldn't you be happy to reduce the loss of baby chicks this coming season? You can do it by feeding Empire Chick Starter and Baby Chick Mash. Then you will have vigorous, thrifty chicks that will grow faster than any you have ever had before.

THREE BALES OF HAY.

We are living up north where the hoppers,
Just mowed everything in their way,
So we're asking of all our good neighbors
To loan us just three bales of hay.

We have fed all the stalks and thistles,
The snow's a foot deep where it lay.
The wind it just howls and it whistles,
So can't you loan us that three bales of hay?

The cows and the calves they are bawling,
The horses just stand and neigh,
And I know that their stomachs are calling
For their little small bales of hay.

Our stock of course it is mortgaged,
The interest perhaps we can't pay,
But they're taxed to support the state sir,
So loan us that three bales of hay.

I have no use at all for a hopper
That lays millions of eggs in the clay,
For poison we've spent our last copper,
So loan us that three bales of hay.

The railroads will haul it free gratis,
So you see there is naught in the way,
Now send us that three bales of hay brother,
Just send us that three bales of hay.

Our boys they drove down to Lincoln,
To see what the governor would say,
But his heart seemed as cold at old Pharoah's,
So please loan us just three bales of hay.

Now next fall at the general election,
When the devil himself is to pay,
Instead of giving him a nice bunch of ballots,
We'el ship him three SMALL bales of hay.

The Red Cross is right on the job sir,
The Legion has worked night and day,
To help to get feed for our stock sir,
So loan us that three bales of hay.

And this is the promise we'el make you,
That the trust we will never betray,
And we'el pray to our God for your soul sir,
If you'll loan us each three bales of hay.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

In the District Court of the Second Judicial District of the State of Idaho, in and for the County of Latah.

John Kusturin, Plaintiff,
vs.
Otto H. Lemberg, Defendant.

THE STATE OF IDAHO SENDS GREETINGS to the above named defendants:

You are hereby notified that a complaint has been filed against you in the District Court of the Second Judicial District of the State of Idaho, in and for the County of Latah, by the above named plaintiff, and you are hereby directed to appear and plead to the said complaint within twenty days of the service of this Alias Summons;

That in general terms the statement of the nature of the cause of action is as follows:

For foreclosure of that certain real estate mortgage, wherein you are a mortgagor and the plaintiff is mortgagee, which said mortgage was made on the 19th day of September, 1930, and bearing Reception No. 115118, and which was filed of record on the 20th day of September, 1930, at 4:05 P. M., and duly recorded in Book 56 of Mortgages, Page 412, in the Records of the County Recorder of Latah County, Idaho, covering the following described real estate:

North half of the Northwest Quarter (N½ NW¼), Section Thirteen (13); South Half of the Southwest Quarter (S½ SW¼) and the Northeast Quarter of the Southwest Quarter (NE¼ SW¼), Section Twelve (12), Township Forty-one (41) North, Range Five (5), West of the Boise Meridian, County of Latah, State of Idaho; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and plead to said complaint within the time herein specified, the plaintiff will take judgment against you as prayed in said complaint.

WITNESS MY HAND and the seal of said District Court, this 11th day of February, 1932.

(Seal) HARRY A. THATCHER, Clerk.

Masons Observe Bicentennial.

Members of Unitey Lodge, A. F. & A. M., Genesee, were hosts Monday evening to members of the Colton lodge and their families, members of the local chapter of Eastern Star, visitors and those living in the homes of members, when a program was presented in honor of the 200th birthday of George Washington.

The program was opened with the singing of America, followed by several musical selections by the Hobart brothers of Johnson, singing and playing favorite songs of the range.

A ladies quartet, composed of Mrs. E. H. Field, Mrs. Robert Emmett, Miss Esther Martinson and Mrs. F. B. Hampton, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. W. M. Herman, sang two selections. Wm. Humphrey of Pullman, was introduced but chose to give his time to J. B. Taggert of Hay, Wn., who was the principal speaker of the evening. Mr. Taggert in his talk stressed the importance of gaining an education that one might be of service to himself, his nation and fellowmen, and used as examples the failure today in the preparedness of a career, censuring the present generation and our higher institutions of learning in their overlooking what he considered the fundamentals of service, employing numerous humorous situations to better illustrate his lecture.

Following the address by Mr. Taggert, Mrs. N. M. Leavitt and Mrs. E. D. Pederson played two piano duets, the program being concluded with selections by the Hobart brothers.

Following the program the guests were seated at tables in the dining room where the Masons served lunch.

For Reduction in Public Expenses.

Rathdrum (Idaho) Tribune: Gellatly of Washington and Defenbach of Idaho, both aspiring to the office of governor in their respective states, are stressing in their announcements the need of reduction of public expenses rather than seeking new ways to raise revenue. Defenbach is quite specific in pointing out how such reductions can be made. The temper of the people, at this time especially, is such that any candidate for a position controlling public funds must have an economy program.

NOTICE.

I will have on hand at my home a nice line of Hats, Dresses, Silk Underwear and Stockings on March 5.

Washington's Birthday.

(By Adeline Hermann)

On the birthday celebration
Of the hero of our nation,
Washington, the brave and true
Let us tell his praise anew.
Love your country best forever,
Let her glory vanish never;
Love and serve her while you live,
That's the message he would give.

Third and Fourth Grades

Beverly Manring brought us a newspaper published in 1800, shortly after Washington's death. It gave an account of his funeral and various expressions of condolence. This paper brought the man Washington home to us; it lifted him from the pages of the history book, as it were, into the realm of reality. The same paper contained the following item of interest: "A stout, healthy, active negro wench. Any person inclined to purchase, may know the particulars by applying to John Schoonmaker, Saturday, Jan. 4, 1800."

We have been correlating the study of George Washington with all the subjects of the curriculum. The fourth grade dramatized "Washington at Valley Forge," and also presented a little playlet on the flag. A picture of the famous Houdon bust suggested a plaque of Washington which we made during the art period.

First and Second Grades

The first grade boys and girls read the story of "Billie Boy" to the third and fourth grade last Friday.

The children finished the "good dinner" poster last Thursday. The picture consisted mostly of vegetables, a little meat, milk and a small dish of dessert.

Monday, being Washington's birthday, we spent part of the afternoon reading Washington stories, making a Washington booklet and learning to dance a Washington minuet.

ple from out of the state, became citizens of the county and state as patients, their hospital bills being paid by relatives until such a time as the patients could, under law, ask Nezperce county to support and care for them.

Expenses of the county agent were considered to be too high for the benefits received, and the poor farm came in for considerable discussion, Mr. Leeper stating that the superintendent, receiving a salary of $125 a month and keep, had the best job in the county with income from taxes. Expenses at the county home were considered out of proportion, one item being $127 for tobacco, and another for sugar being high, with the cost of operation constantly mounting.

One of the taxpayers suggested that the county agent have as a part of his duties the supervision of the county home.

Some time was taken up in discussing a proposal to refuse the payment of taxes, studying the outcome of farm operation under exisiting conditions. No action was taken on this matter, but it was suggested in the discussion that serious thought be given the proposal.

Mr. Leeper said that he had made a proposal to reduce the wages of election officials, permitting those desirous of serving to bid on the one-day task, and overlooking the provisions of law, which grants a liberal wage for election officials, and it was his belief that expenses could be cut in half, provided, however, that officials charge only for the time actually required.

Answering a question relative to old age pension payments, Mr. Leeper said there was no item in the budget for such, and that the county prefers to stand expenses of suit rather than budget at this time for old-age pensions. Mr. Leeper stated also that it was the advice of Governor C. Ben Ross that the commissioners budget for $1,000 to stand suit.

GUS CARLIN KILLED IN TRAIN CRASH; FORMELY OF GENESEE

Gus Carlin, at one time employed by the C. E. Woods Grain company in Genesee, was killed instantly as were three others when a Northern Pacific train crashed into his automobile at 1:20 a. m. Wednesday in Kennewick, Washington. Mr. Carlin was returning from Pasco in his car, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Copeland and A. M. Chellis, and according to newspaper reports they were all killed instantly. The engineer, it is stated, did not see the car, but feeling the jolt stopped his train within two blocks, the car and occupants, with the exception of Mr. Chellis being carried the entire distance.

Mr. Carlin is survived by his widow and a married daughter, well known in Genesee where they resided for a number of years. Mr. Carlin is a member of Unity Lodge A. F. & M., Genesee, having kept his membership in Genesee, although having been away for a number of years.

No word was received here Thursday as to funeral arrangements.

COLLEGE BOYS WILL NOT BE EMPLOYED ON BLISTER RUST

A recent decision by those in charge of blister rust control work was to the effect that college boys would not be employed on this work as in the past.

The hiring of college boys is all right in some instances, but in many was unfair. Some college boys from Wisconsin, New York, Georgia, Florida and other eastern states were employed that had an income the year around from wealthy parents. By hiring these men, others who were in hard straits for work to get the necessities of life were out of luck.

In fairness to everyone, those living within the blister rust area should come first. Young married men, and there are many today who are out of work, should be given first preference. Much work is done out of Orofino and Orofino young men should come first. The same with Elk River, Pierce, Bovill or other places where the work is engaged in.

Give the young married man a chance to feed his family this summer. It will be gladly done by the government, if they have the right view of the situation.—The Elk River News.

THE GENESEE NEWS

VOL. XLIII GENESEE, LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, MARCH 4, 1932 NO. 37

NO FLOODS IN GENSEEE; WATER GOES INTO SOIL

Flood waters were expected in the Genesee Valley if the the heavy snow lying on the ground the first of last week went off in a short period of time, but the soil not being frozen absorbed the greatest portion of the melted snow. Warmer weather came early in the week, settling the snow, and on Thursday many hills were barren of snow for the first time since the middle of November. Friday was the warmest day in several months, and the snow disappeared quickly with no high water resulting in this vicinity. Light rains fell during the week also, but were not of sufficient volume to cause fear.

Temperatures remained above the freezing point for more than a week, even during the night time, until Monday night, when a light freeze stopped thawing.

About all that remains now of the unusually heavy snow are the drifts on the north hillsides and along the highways where the snow was piled high by the highway plows.

There still remains much snow farther up Cow creek, but it too is fast turning to slush and is being held back.

Many ranchers also feared their lands would wash considerably providing the snow disappeared quickly, but such has not resulted as in years past. Some hills have washed at the higher levels but the sediment has piled on snow drifts and the damage by washing will be slight.

Fallowed and seeded lands as well as stubble lands are in fine shape this spring, the only speculation now being the length of time the larger drifts will remain in fields.

Floods have menaced homes, farms, railroads and highways in the Big Bend and along the road to Spokane, the former section finding it necessary to abandon farm and town homes in several instances. Train service between Lewiston and Spokane has been interfered with, Thursday and Friday of last week being the worst.

The railroad company and the city have been keeping the ice broken up in Cow creek, and while there has been no imminent danger, keeping the creek cleared has not permitted ice to jam against bridges and flood the lower lands.

State highways which have been cleared of snow during the colder weather, were subjected to frost and as a result they are softening up, many of them showing much deterioration, especially the oiled stretches. Both Idaho and Washington have placed restrictions on motor travel, in some places the restriction being 200 pounds to the inch of tire surface.

Side roads, many of which were opened during the winter, but closed again by more snow and wind, are now being plowed out, permitting travel by automobiles where roads are surfaced.

March Comes in Like a Lion.

March is here, coming like a lion, and bringing with it a two and a half inch snow storm, which fell Tuesday night and Wednesday morning. Lower temperatures at night were also recorded, the daylight hours, however, being warmer.

Snake Found on Snow Bank

Chas. Schooler, living east of Genesee, who, in company with one of his sons and Ed Putnam were going from the home to the highway to shovel out a drift, found a live Garter snake, wriggling over the snow. The snake was picked up and placed on the barren highway, but immediately returned to the snowbank, where it wandered aimlessly about until the Schooler youth picked it up and took it home with him. The snake was not more than eighteen inches long, and it is presumed that it was driven from its winter abode by high water. It had but little ambition Sunday, but a snake that dares venture out while there are snow drifts aplenty, should with the proper training be successful in battling the rattlesnakes occasionally found in the canyons; it's a snake, at least that merits some attention in behalf of its adventurous proclivities.

BALDRIDGE NOT CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR OF IDAHO

H. C. Baldridge of Parma, two times governor of the state of Idaho, will not be a candidate in the May primaries for the republican nomination for this post.

Mr. Baldridge was called over long distance by the News-Tribune and informed that the Lewiston Tribune had announced that he was a possible gubernatorial candidate. He left no doubt as to his position.

"I am emphatically not a candidate," Mr. Baldridge declared.

He expressed surprise at the news story and said that while he had been approached by many political friends, he had invariably informed those supporters that his name was not to be considered as a possible republican candidate.

"I've served my time as governor of Idaho," Mr. Baldridge said. "My position is exactly what I said it was at the recent republican rally at Nampa; I'm ready to roll up my sleeves and go to work to help elect the republican ticket in Idaho."

Until informed by the News-Tribune, Mr. Baldridge was unaware that his name was being thus publicly used as a possible opponent to Byron Defenbach whose candidacy has already been formally announced, in the republican primaries.—Caldwell News-Tribune.

Home from California.

California has gone wet, according to Dave and Marvin Hickman and Dewey Wardrobe, who returned to Genesee Friday after spending about three months in the coast state. They left Genesee when the first severe snow storm struck this section, and reported bad weather practically all the time they were in California. Unemployment is becoming serious everywhere they stopped. At the new Boulder dam site there are a large number of men waiting for work but the waiting list never seems to shorten. They returned by way of Utah, entering that state near St. George, coming to Salt Lake and then traveling over the cut-off to Buhl, Idaho. From Boise they came by way of Pendleton, although it was reported they could travel over the North and South highway.

WHEAT MARKETS WEAKEN UNDER HEAVY RECEIPTS

Domestic wheat markets declined sharply during the week ending Feb. 26, under the influence of heavy receipts, mostly shipped prior to the advance in freight rates February 20, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. An improved European demand, however, as a result of diminishing supplies of native wheat and some relaxation in milling restructions, gave the market steady undertone. Feed grain markets continued dull. Corn and oats declined a half cent per bushel under very limited demand, but barley held about unchanged.

Foreign Restrictions Easier

The increasing dependence of European countries on foreign wheat supplies is apparent in the recent marked relaxation in milling restrictions. France has successively increased her milling quota from 3 per cent permitted at the first of January to 25 per cent, by decree published February 25. Italy has again increased the percentage of bread wheat to 40 per cent in northern and western provinces and 60 per cent in southern provinces, effective March 1, with rumors of a further increase in the durum quota, for which details are lacking. The German trade is reported anticipating further government intervention in the near future, including a possible reduction in the German duty to around $1.29½ per bushel for a specified quantity of wheat.

The British minister of agriculture has introduced a bill to become effective August 1 to secure a standard price, equivalent in U. S. currency at the present rate of exchange to about 93¼ cents per bushel, for English wheat of millable quality and to make generally effective a government wheat quota plan.

Europeans Buying

European importing countries are becoming more liberal purchasers of foreign wheat. The bulk of the takings is still of southern hemisphere wheat although export sales of U. S. wheat were reported during the week. The estimate of the Australian crop has been revised upward to 177,000,000 bushels, and together with the Argentine crop, gives a combined outturn of 396,000 bushels. Australian shipments during the week totaled 4,900,000 bushels, but the rapid disappearance of the surplus is causing a holding tendency on the part of growers, according to trade reports. Argentine shipments total 5,174,000 bushels. Black Sea shipments were small, totaling only 344,000 bushels, of which 112,000 bushels was new wheat. At the close of the market, February 26, Argentine wheat afloat was quoted at Liverpool at 59c, Australian wheat from New South Wales at 63 3-8c per bushel. No. 2 Manitoba afloat from Vancouver sold at London at 70 1-8c and western Australian wheat at 63 1-8c. No quotations were available on U. S. wheat, but exporters were bidding 61⅛c for No. 1 hard winter at Galveston.

Prices of native wheats in Europe were slightly higher, with good milling quality at Hamburg quoted at $1.63 3-4, at Paris at $1.72 and at Milan at $1.71¼. American durum was quoted CIF Marseilles at 85 3-4c, and at Naples at 82¼c per bushel.

Domestic Markets

Domestic cash wheat markets declined one-third of a cent per bushel, largely as a result of the sharp increase in receipts, reflecting the heavy shipments prior to the increase in freight rates February 20. Receipts for the week at the principal central western markets were the heaviest since last August and totaled 5,583 cars.

Pacific coast markets held fairly steady, although receipts at northwestern points were heavy and export demand was lacking. Arrivals at Puget Sound and Columbia river points totaled 1,003 cars for the week, compared with 433 cars during the corresponding week last year. The increased arrivals were the result of the heavy shipments prior to the increase in freight rates. With Australian, Canadian and Argentine wheat being offered at several cents per bushel below domestic grain in foreign markets, no export business in either wheat or flour was effected, but a steady although limited demand prevailed from domestic mills.

Premiums on milling grades have been gradually lowered from about 15 cents above price of soft white wheat at the first of February to 10 cents at the close of the current week.

SOUTHWICK EDGES GENESEE OUT OF B. B. TOURNAMENT

After walking three and a half miles to get to Southwick for the final basketball game of the season, Genesee high school players lost by two points. In the last five seconds of play Triplett, Southwick, shot a basket, bringing the 32-32 tie to a 43-32 win. The conference season is closed; there may be several more games however.

From the standpoint of rating in the conference this season Genesee has been quite successful. In football we stood second and in basket ball, third, losing out right to go to the tournament by two points. Financially the season was a decided failure, with the exception of one of two games; the receipts were never sufficient to cover expenses. Even home talent plays and high school dances drew only medium sized crowds, due, no doubt, to the very severe weather conditions prevailing at the time they were given. Therefore, it is necessary for the high school to put on a number of activities during the coming months to make up the deficit. The first event will be an evening of two one-act plays, given by the dramtics class.

The cast of characters for "The Dear Departed" is as follows: Mrs. Slater, played by Marjorie Nebelsieck, is the grasping daughter with whom Russel Rinehart, the doddering old grandfather is living. Mrs. Jordan is played by Eileen Flomer; Mrs. Jordan is the other daughter who tries to outdo her sister and get the lion's share of the legacy, left by Abel Merriweather, the grandfather. Henry Slater, played by Marvin Miller and Ben Jordan, whose part is taken by Wayne Roach, are both cowed husbands, easily brought in on any plot conceted by their wives. Victoria, played by Gail Sampson, is an inquisitive child of ten years.

In the "Mayor and the Manicure," George Blume, the wise mayor and Esther Kries, the crafty manicurist, who tries to sue for breach of promise, play important parts. Kathryn Baumgartner is Ruth, the sweet, unsuspecting secretary and Wallie's sweetheart. Wallie is the mayor's son, just home from college with the proper attitude of importance.

Rep. French's Pictures Liked

Of the various pictures of George Washington, received by the school, the ones presented to each room by U. S. Representative Burton L. French was liked best by the pupils. The pictures are a reproduction of the original oil painting of Washington by Stuart. The original hangs in the office of H. F. Sinclair n New York City. The school expresses to Mr. French its appreciation of this gift. These pictures were also sent to rural schools.

Open House

The open house for the fourth six-weeks' period will begin at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, March 3. The dramatics class will present "The Florist Shop," a one-act play. This will be followed by a couple of folk dances given by the pupils of the primary room, with Miss Nelson conducting.

Junior Prom

Don't forget the Junior Prom to be given March 31 at the high school gymnasium.

Seventh and Eighth Grades

Gretchen Riesemer and Emma Louise Vanouck have received their final certificates in penmanship. Bueletta Nordby has won an improvement certificate and several others have received penmanship buttons.

We gave much attention to Washington during February. On his birthday a beautiful silk flag was given us. We listened to many interesting radio broadcasts on that day too. An outline of the program we heard will be put in our Washington scrap books. We have learned the new Washington song which was written for the bicentennial celebration. Work in our scrap book has begun in earnest. The material has been divided and two pupils are responsible for each of the nine sections the book will contain. Four new Washington pictures have been placed about the room.

Decorations appropriate for Easter and St. Patrick's day have been put up for March.

This semester both grades are learning much about how to express themselves in writing. Some write short stories, some continued stories and some write poems. This poem was written by Paul Osmundson:

How I Caught a Mouse

Rattle bang! I knew myself
A mouse was on the pantry shelf;

Celebrates Birthday Every 4 Years.

Mrs. Henry Hanson, whose birthday anniversary falls on the 29th of February, and this being Leap Year the occasion could have been celebrated. Several friends and relatives called at her home during the day, however, and Rev. E. M. Hegge of Tacoma, sang by request of Mrs. Oscar Nordby, "O Love That Will Not Let Me die," from radio station KVI, in Mrs. Hanson's honor.

GOV. ROSS CUTS SALARIES OF APPOINTIVE OFFICIALS

Boise—A sweeping reduction of 10 per cent in salaries of all state offices under his appointive power was ordered March 1 by Governor C. Ben Ross. The reduction will apply to all salaries above $100 a month.

The reduction, the governor said, was against his ideas of good sense but in keeping with the times. His own salary of $5,000 a year was reduced $41.60 a month.

Several republican elective officials not under authority of the governor, either announced they would not reduce salaries in their departments or declined to comment.

The aggregate of the reductions was estimated at the governor's office at between $30,000 and $50,000 annually.

Secretary of State Fred E. Lukens and Auditor E. G. Gallet declined to reduce salaries. Geo. E. Barrett, state treasurer, has already reduced his own salary ten per cent and said his staff was already being paid on a scale considerably below that in other offices.

"However," he said, "in case there is a general blanket reduction I feel sure my assistants will voluntarily fall in line.

Mrs. Myrtle R. Davis, state superintendent of public instruction, whose salary was not affected, said she was going to recommend to the state board of education that the $6,500 salary of W. D. Vincent, commissioner of education, be reduced as well as all faculty members under control of the state board. This would include the university, southern branch, the Lewiston and Albion normals, the Gooding school for the deaf and blind and the state industrial school.

State departments affected included the department of public welfare, reclamation, public investments, finance and agriculture, the state game department and one or two smaller bureau.

The action was decided upon at a meeting of democratic department heads in the governor's office at which it was reported all agreed it was a bad policy economically but made necessary by the spirit of the times.

Star Lodge Knights of Pythias.

At their last meeting, a goodly number of Knights of Pythias were present to witness the ceremony when two Pages were elevated to the rank of Esquire, after which a lunch was served and cards and music furnished entertainment. The final rank of Knight will be conferred on these candidates at Moscow, March 11, with Genesee Knights assisting with the degree team.

RAIL COMPANY AND CITY BOMBING ALONG CREEK

Strategetic points along Cow Creek have been kept under close observation since Saturday, especially the railroad and highway bridges, with war-like sounds bringing citizens out in numbers as two forces hurled their bombs into the unusually muddy and high waters of Genesee Valley's only outlet to the sea. Shortly after the noon hour Saturday, a crash, which shook houses and rattled windows, brought inhabitants of Genesee out of doors expecting to witness a battle fleet stationed off the Genesee coast, with marines and sailors crossing the baseball park in their invasion. Hurried telephone communications were established and local troops were deployed along the North and South highway, which move, however was unjustified, as it was learned that the bombing was being done by the Northern Pacific railroad company, with J. J. Berg in command, in an attempt to break up ice which was accumulating against its most easterly bridge in the Genesee sector. Heavy charges of dynamite were laid on the ice jam from time to time, eventually clearing the channel to accommodate the ice which broke up in rising waters.

Sensing the situation which confronted residents on the lower lands in Genesee, officials of the council and police department turned loose a bombardment of short duration late Saturday afternoon which cleared the concrete bridge near the Stucker place, and as the railroad forces witnessed this retalliatory operation they moved farther down the creek, not exactly in retreat, but to afford protection to the company bridges.

Sunday morning, city forces, with W. W. Burr in command, took up positions on the wooden bridge near the N. P. depot, later moving downstream to a point near the baseball park, and after bombing for several hours, the channel was almost completely cleared within the city limits.

No casualities were reported in the opening day of bombing, although it is stated that the heavier charges have played havoc with early settings of eggs in incubators.

Sunday afternoon the bombing continued along the creek, and to make the situation almost war-like, an airplane circled low over the city and dropped a package near the Farmers Union Producers' warehouse, which however, proved to be only a number of Lewiston Tribunes, brought to the scene of action.

War-like rumblings continued during the day-light hours Monday, but on Tuesday they increased, giving the Genesee people an idea of what the Chinese are hearing in much greater volume day after day.

American Legion.

A large number attended the regular meeting of American Legion Wednesday evening, when the matter of sponsoring a St. Patrick's day dance was again brought up. The committee which has been appointed will proceed with arrangements for the annual affair, which this year is a combined St. Patrick's day dance and Cowcreckers' ball.

"FALL OF THE DRAGON"
BY THE REV. E. M. HEGGE

Appearing in the Tacoma Times is a series of articles, titled "The Fall of the Dragon," from the pen of Rev. E. M. Hegge, former pastor of the Genesee Valley Lutheran church. Rev. Hegge has spent several years in China, and writes interestingly of conditions as he saw them.

A pcychologist of national repute in his recent book, "Marks of an Educated Man," makes a statement worth remembering. It contains a principle too often forgotten in forming out opinions upon various subjects, not least in the great international question facing the world today. A truly educated man, according to this authority, "keeps his mind open on every question until the evidence is all in."

Today the eyes of the world are focused upon China. What the outcome of the present furore will be no one knows. A world war is not impossible, but we sincerely hope improbable. It is interesting to tune in on the different shades of opinion expressed by those following the events now transpiring in that seething cauldron of political animosity and hatred.

Feeling Overshadow Fact

Many opinions are the outgrowth of feeling rather than fact. The writer believes there are certain facts necessary for the forming of intelligent conclusions, facts that are seldom, if ever discussed by newspapers, the main source of much information for many people.

The purpose of these articles is to give a comprehensive picture of China, bringing in certain scenes that are too often left out. Life is not only made up of the pleasant things but also consists of many sordid experiences. When the latter are omitted, we can hardly claim to have made a proper evaluation of a country's national existence. Therefore, things will be written that are neither pleasant to read nor delightful to write about.

It is the writer's hope that his readers will always keep in mind that the only motive is to arrive at a more sympathetic, unbiased and fair view of China's knotty problem. The common tendency of many well-meaning Chinese to varnish facts does not help their own country, and it is believed that if the world at large had a true picture of this bleeding nation, things even today might have been different.

Comparisons Are Unfair.

Just recently, the writer observed in a certain newspaper, a statement made by a leading Chinese comparing Chinese banditry with banditry in Chicago. Such comparisons are only hurtful as the analogy is extremely far-fetched. Take for example the case of one of our own missionaries. Rev. Burt Nelson has now been in the hands of his captors for over 14 months. The demanded money has been paid for his release. Other demands have been granted, too, but to date he is still in the hands of brigands. Chicago racketeers do not keep prisoners for any length of time, if at all.

To fully appreciate and understand the disturbances in the Far East, it might be well to take a brief glimpse at certain happenings dating back to 1900, when China made a last violent effort to throw off all relations with the outside world. The empress dowager issued a decree demanding that all foreigners be killed. It was then that bands of Boxers went about the country ferreting out foreigners, not only trying to kill them but also their native countrymen who had emulated the ways of the foreigner.

Alters Imperial Decree

Many missionaries and native Christians were killed. More would have suffered had not one of the officials dared alter the imperial decree. He made it read when first sent out, "Protect the foreigners," instead of "Destroy the foreigners."

This made it possible for many to escape who would otherwise have been destroyed. The official who so altered the decree was sawn asunder.

It was lack of harmony on the part of the Chinese that hindered the complete overthrow of foreign influence, making it possible for the small group suffering untold miseries in the legation quarters in Peking, to hold out until troops finally came and drove the empress from the city. This fascinating story of one of China's most colorful rulers is most vividly described in the aresting volume entitled "Old Buddha," Princess Der Ling. The volume can be obtained at libraries and affords authentic and interesting reading.

The authoress was a friend and confidant of her majesty, the empress dowager. I had the privilege of sitting one night listening to a venerable old gentleman tell of his harrowing experiences, and what tales of horror they were. The recommended book will not only stir you, but it will give you an inside look into a place many wished once to see but could not.

Absorbed Conquerers

Down through the centuries China has been governed by various invaders, but, by some subtle force, she has always been able to absorb and make Chinese out of her conquerors.

One does not live long in China until he or she feels this irresistible tendency to imitate and try to become like the Chinese themselves.

This is especially true of those who live isolated from other foreigners, learning the language of the people and living as near as possible to the natives themselves.

The last invaders to be broken by the power characteristically Chinese were the Manchus, who came inside the great wall as conquerors in 1644 A. D., and held sway until 1911. The title given to this dynasty is that of "The Great Purity," and their ensign was that of the dragon. For that reason, we speak of their overthrow as the passing of the dragon, and with its passing important events have transpired in rapid succession.

Instead of establishing another Chinese dynasty, there was set up a republic in which Chinese, Manchus, Mongolians, Tibetans and Mohammedans might all share on an equal footing. Hence the adoption of the five-colored flag instead of the dragon.

Lived in Luxury

During the entire reign of this dynasty, the Manchus were nothing but parasites and, for the most part, lived in ease and luxury. They were proud, haughty and loved the finest of clothing peculiar in cut and design, thereby constantly irritating thier less fortunate subjects. All these apparently somewhat insignificant factors played an important part in their overthrow, as will be seen later.

Under the old empire, the Manchus were special servants of the throne and apart from being employed in military service, they were allowed to do no other work.

One of the requirements for those in the province of Chihli was that they live within 10 miles of Peking. They could own no land and had to depend upon the government pension for their support. When the republic was established in 1912, this pension was stopped. Conditions immediately became tragic and pathetic. Having lived on the government for so long a time, it was only natural the Manchus in China were unfitted to make their own living. After the overthrow of the dynasty, many preferred to starve rather than work.

Women to the Rescue

There were many instances where Manchus would sell the last brick from their house and courtyard floor rather than perform some menial duty. But as another pointed out, "However low the Manchus had fallen, however parasitic, lazy, sensual they had become, at the extreme crisis, their women played their part with courage and with honor. In the supreme agony, before the curtain fell upon the last act of the drama, there was revealed in one vivid spectacle the secret of that real greatness which had won and held an empire for the Manchus."

Manchuria Healthy

The land from whence the Manchu invaders came is adjacent to China proper, lying outside the Great Wall. This famous piece of masonry was built to keep out such as they. A description of this earthly wonder can be found in any up-to-date library.

Manchuria is a very fertile and healthy province. It is about one and one-half the size of Texas. During the Manchu reign, no Chinese were allowed to enter the country.

With the overthrow of the Manchus, the Chinese began to swarm into Manchuria like flies. Today it is estimated that of the thirty million inhabitants all but three million are Chinese. The Chinese peasant is a peace-loving individual. With Manchuria, the only place where peace can be found, the natural result with the letting down of the bars was a tremendous migration of Chinese into Manchuria.

Claws Sunk Deep

Before their overthrow, which was inevitable, the Dragon had sunk his claws deep into the life of Chinese national existence. One sees the dragon everywhere; in architecture, in Chinese literature, upon garments, on costly vases; in fact, it is one of the first thing attracting a traveler in the Far East. Can it not be taken as an indication of the power they had exercised? Since power and splendor had been theirs, we will not be surprised that blood flowed freely in their final overthrow.

Time will not permit a detailed accounting of this dark page of Chinese history. A few lines from the pen of a personal friend of the writer, a historian and authority on Chinese history, will give a glimpse at least of what the people suffered during that political nightmare:

"Ke-Ming-Tangism had, in this remote province, evolved a very primitive, wholly unscientific Red Cross society. And its first work was that of the undertaker. It set to work to dig pits in the Manchu city, now become a desert and a desolation, and there to throw the slain. That which the hacking knives and the dogs had left was eventually heaped together in these places.

"Men were hired to act as draught-cattle. Each fixed a long rope round a corpse, and with the other end over his shoulder, trudged along, dragging his ghastly burden, which bumped and rolled through the city's mire to its last resting place. Down the Ta Ts'ai Shih, a bustling, gossoping street, lined with food stalls they came, a procession half a mile long. At the end of one rope was a head. Here was a body completely eviscerated. It is horrible, unprintable, you say? Ah, but it went through a hatefully indifferent, malevolently satisfied crowd, that pitiful procession. The Manchus were parasites, were oppressors. In the day of their victory did the victors evince any special fitness, any virtues superior to those of their fallen foe?

"A white badge around the arm was the emblem of St. Batholomew's day. The Manchus noticed that their assialants wore this badge, and by the evening of the 23rd they also were such a sign. The next day the revolutionary leaders ordered another colored badge; by the evening the hunted Bannermen were copying this second badge as best they might. So it went on.

"When the Manchus found that further resistance was useless, they in many cases knelt on the ground, laying down their weapons, and begged the soldiers for life. They were shot as they knelt. Sometimes there was a whole line of them. In one doorway a group of between 10 and 20 were thus killed in cold blood.

"A girl came down the street; girl of 20, with hands bound. She had been hastily dragged before the "judges" in the Magazine, temporary headquarters of the revolution, and was now being taken out a 100 yards or so to be beheaded. And in her face was that which once seen—by one passerby at least—was never to be forgotten. It was not despair. Ah no! That anodyne had had no time in which to reach her.

"It was the full young life cheated of its days, going out into the dark, the part before her littered by fearful reminders of the fate in front. From the pallid lips no sound issued; they were held, as the girl's whole being was held, by utter terror. The shaking limbs, the stumbling gait, proclaimed it, but more than all the awful hating eyes. Along the route where the reek of blood made the very air bitter, acrid in the brilliant sunshine, where curses and sobs mingled with groans and derisive raucous cries rent the air, she went.

"A woman, a very girl, caught within the enemy's gates, not dying with her own people, not able to save herself with them if only in a death she saw and chose; but hurried along thus, as to the shambles. And her crime? Her birth. A Manchu. The soldier guarding her muttered impatiently. He had other affairs to attend to when this was over. Time meant money, meant sport, in those days. He stalked along behind her with naked sword held up. 'Hurry,' he snarled, 'hurry.'"

Give Life for Virtue.

Those whose hearts are touched and move in sympathy for fellow mortals unable to protect themselves, naturally wonder as to the status of women during those terrible days of slaughter in the overthrow of the Manchus. In spite of the many uncouth habits of Chinese men, it was always a marvel to the writer that in spite of the revolting conditions under which even today they must live, move and have their being, for the most part Chinese women conduct themselves in a highly commendable manner. Even during this bloody revolution if the helpless women of the Manchus were unable to protect themselves with weapons, they were able to protect their virtue and honor.

During these days of the revolution "their one weapon was the determination to die rather than meet dishonor, their haven of refuge was death as a friend. Even the children knew how to do this. Ay, all was lost save honor, but this must be saved. In one family, well known and respected, no less than nine women threw themselves into the wells.

Victims of Despair

"The wells are deep in Shensi, but they were not too deep to be choked up in these days of terror—choked with the victims of despair. For the old women, life was bound up in the children and grandchildren whom they saw slain before their eyes, whilst for themselves their victors granted a remnant of days wherein to beg at the gates of their enemies—or to starve.

"Even in the midst of slaughter the elderly women were often passed over from sheer indifference. But for the matrons and their daughters it was otherwise; and the mothers gathered their girls about them and together they fell on death. In the streets often there was to be seen a soldier ordering a woman to follow him and the woman answered him, 'Nay, kill me if you will, but follow you I will not . . . '. She sank—and the victors sought other prey. The little girls were taken to be trained as slaves. Rich houses in the city, the houses of Mohammedeans especially, are full of them—cheap servants for the future.

Marriage Customs Aid

"Yet this Chinese fury was more merciful than the Spanish, Sianfu more fortunate than Antwerp; the Chinese soldiers with all their faults were better than Alva's demons or Kirke's 'lambs.' The Chinese marriage customs came to the aid of those distressed Manchu women and girls, for to the young Chinese soldier, drawn from the ranks of the very poor, the price of a wife in normal times is a serious affair, entailing much scheming, scraping and saving on the part of his parents and himself.

But here was the chance of a lifetime; he could obtain a wife for nothing; no big price to be paid to the girl's family—she had none; no middlemen's fees, no vexatious cost of feast and robes; no fees for yamen registration. The girl was taken to his home and before witnesses proclaimed his wife; his parents obtained a daughter-in-law, i. e., a domestic servant, without any price paid, one, moreover, who would never be able to bring her family about their ears, clamoring for her rights.

Women are Spared

On the third day after the outbreak, the new authorities put out a proclamation that the women and children were to be spared. Then such soldiers as were wifeless went thru the ruins seeking wounded women and girls. They brought them to the hospital and the hospital authorities were notified such a one was the soldier's intended wife, and that upon being discharged as cured she must be turned over to him.

It is strange how soon the mind can accustom itself to the most bizarre situation; British women nursing these patients lost in a few weeks the sense of incongruity and watched these curious courtships with interest. For the husband-to-be would bring special food—and food was hard to get in those days—for his future wife and watch over her kindly.

Brutality Abnormal

The rage, the brutality, were after all the abnormal; the decent hopes of home and family, the willingness to share with its members, to deny himself that these might thrive; these were the enduring; and in the case

Vacuum Packed Peas

ONE of the most popular of canned vegetables is peas. There are few people in this country who have not eaten and enjoyed this product at some time. For when you open a can you actually seem to get a whiff of the sunny garden in which they were grown.

And now you can get peas in a new form—vacuum packed. There is no liquid in the can when they are packed in this manner, but just the beautiful green peas with all the flavor of when they were picked. If you're fond of peas, this new form is worth trying. Here are some recipes in which to try them.

Hot or Cold

Curried Pea Omelet: Make an omelet as usual of three eggs, three tablespoons milk and one-half teaspoon salt. Combine one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, three-eighths teaspoon curry powder and three-fourths cup milk into white sauce in the usual way. Add three-fourths cup vacuum packed peas to sauce and pour hot omelette just before folding over on the platter. Serves four. In doubling the quantity make two omelets instead of one large one.

Pea and Apple Salad: Marinate one cup vacuum packed peas and one cup diced celery in French dressing for an hour. Add one-half cup chopped nuts, two large apples, diced, and mix with mayonnaise.*

An Old Cow

saved from the stock-yards

SHE HAD been an extra good Guernsey in her day, but her milk record in her twelfth year clearly indicated that she was falling off. For she produced only 5415 pounds of milk, or $69.53 profit above her keep.

The first months of the next year indicated that she was still slipping . . . that she was on the down grade . . . headed for the yards. Then, as an experiment, Dr. Hess Improved Stock Tonic was added to her ration. She picked up enough to produce 5592 pounds of milk, earning $75.72 above the cost of her feed.

But the next year (her 14th), with Dr. Hess Improved Stock Tonic in her ration regularly, she produced 7971 pounds of milk* . . . $158.98 above her feed cost.

An old cow reclaimed! And the part that Dr. Hess Stock Tonic played in this particular case is only indicative of its value in young herds. With all the necessary minerals, with its conditioning qualities to promote good health, Dr. Hess Improved Stock Tonic makes its big showing on the record sheets of cows in their prime.

Two cents per cow per day will add Dr. Hess Improved Stock Tonic to your dairy ration . . . dollars to your monthly milk check. See your local Dr. Hess dealer and get at least a 90-day supply to begin with. Figure 18 pounds for each cow.

Were you at the Lenville Liteary Friday night, Mrs. A.? Oh, yes, I was there. I enjoyed the program very much. How did you like it Mrs. Y? Splendid. I thought the first part of the program, the school part was very good. The setting of the stage, the children's songs and recitations were well given. Each one knew his part and it was all given in a creditable way, said Mrs. Y.

"I had to laugh and laugh out loud over 'Vait a Minute' by Mr. and Mrs. Peterson," said Mrs. A. "Yes, so did I" said Mrs. Y. "The Clothes Line Gossip' and 'Fatal Dose' were both comical too," she continued. "Weren't Dr. Paine and Dr. Slocum good in 'Quack, Quack?" asked Mrs. Y. "Yes, they surely knew their stuff. There was nothing slow about Henry, the would-be doctor, either. 'Katy-Ka-Choo, was a scream, wasn't she?" "Yes, Alfalfa, the coons, and all in the play were good. The whole program was good and I'm going back when they have another program, concluded Mrs. A.

GOVERNMENT LOANS A MERE GESTURE

How much will the farmer and small banker be benefited by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act, perpertrated by congress and sanctioned by President Hoover? Will Rogers, humorist, while in a serious mood, said, "The big bankers are the first to receive a dole from our government," and there is more truth than fiction in his remark. Intended to bolster agriculture, those who will administer the funds are selected from the large banking institutions, which are now at the controls of the financial throttle in the United States, and being in command of the liquid resources are in position to be exacting in demands on the smaller banks, who have always looked after the interests of the farmer.

"It is unfortunate that $400 is the limit of the loans," said John F. Davies, manager of the regional office for farm crop loans of the department of agriculture, with offices at Spokane, referring to the amount any one farmer can borrow to bring the coming crop to harvest. Here arises another question. How far will $400 go in producing any crop on a farm, granted the average to be 160 acres, a very conservative figure?

In applying for a loan the farmer must attach a first mortgage on his crop and a note for the amount requested as a loan, which leads one to believe that our gracious farm relief experts are capable of putting to shame the Shylock of Venice. Who can say there resides a man as a farmer in position to give a first mortgage on a crop that could not obtain money from any bank?

Granted that the innumerable officials and red tape are necessary in handling government funds, why is it necessary to turn over to the big banker all of the privileges, when Idaho like all other states have a state banking commission, which is acquainted with conditions in every community and which could administer the act in an unbiased manner. By the time a farmer receives his loan, his request will have traveled through many hands, the owners of whom are no better qualified than our banking commissioners are to administer government funds.

POLITICS CREEPING IN EVERYWHERE

Recently a news release from the bureau of public accounts was received by the Genesee News wherein facts relating to state endowment fund loan to W. G. Bissel of Gooding, Idaho, under date of May 17, 1922, undoubtedly dispatched for publication without the signature of the official responsible for it being mailed.

Such lengthy documents, if worthy of preparation and publication, are certainly deserving of a signature to give assurance that they are released in the proper spirit. At the present time and for several months past there has been some criticism of state loans in Idaho, and attempts have been made to place blame on certain officials, which officials probably are deserving of criticism, but we don't have any more respect for the official or candidate who mails out circulars without signatures than we do for those whom they are criticising. It may be that someone is striving to injure another politically. The news release is interesting reading, and perhaps many would like to know the facts, but when such is received, unsolicited, and without a signature, the only place for it is in the waste basket. It may be the proper time also to say that those seeking office should sign their news releases, and better yet, type them clearly on fine paper and cast them into their own waste basket. It's a postage saving idea that you will indorse after you have been defeated for that office which you seek. And, if you insist on having your views published, advertising rates are not high. They will be gladly furnished upon request.

Mix, Stratton, Pope and Chapman, all democrats, and Holden, republican are after the senatorial job now belonging to Thomas. Mix has had the opportunity of becoming acquainted with voters as lieutenant governor of Idaho; Pope, as mayor of Boise, will look good in southwestern Idaho; Stratton is an M. D. from Lemhi county, and what he don't know about prohibition fills a book, but believes that if everyone who violates the eighteenth amendment will vote for him, he will purchase a ticket immediately for Washington, D. C.; Chapman hails from Twin Falls and is one of the younger element in democratic circles. Holden of Idaho Falls, unseated Yeaman, an old-timer, as state senator from Bonneville county, but will have a hard struggle ahead of him trying to convince voters that he is more capable than Senator John Thomas. The two last named are republicans. It looks like a close race for the democrats.

FIVE IDAHO SCHOOL DISTRICTS CONSOLIDATE TO SAVE MONEY

Boise—Schools of Downey and vicinity have consolidated their funds this year to reduce expenses and at the same time keep children in school.

W. D. Vincent, commissioner of education, said four districts around Downey had consolidated with Downey district and have sent all their children to Downey schools.

The result has been a saving of $5,000 or more, new school busses have been purchased and other expenses met. The students from the neighboring districts were filtered into the Downey schools without increasing the number of teachers.

The teachers' salaries have not been reduced, he said, and moreover the districts have decided on a reduction of the school levy for next year by more than half.

C. A. BOTTOLFSEN WOULD BE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

From C. A. Bottolfsen, Arco, Idaho, comes the following announcement:

"This is to announce that I will be a candidate for lieutenant governor of Idaho, subject to the republican primaries on May 24th, next.

"If I am nominated and elected, my efforts will be directed toward the lowering of Idaho's governmental costs and a more equitable distribution of the burden of taxation, so that our dominant industry, agriculture, may be given relief from its present excessive burden."

"Bot" as he is commonly known over the state was speaker of the house at the last session of the state legislature, and is the editor of the Arco (Idaho) Advertiser.

The Idaho Pioneer says: "Bottolfsen probably takes second place in popularity over the state to Defenbach, and, like Defenbach, his popularity goes into both political parties. The democrats will have to go some to find a man capable of giving the Arco man a good run."

OSCAR DAHL DIES.

Oscar Dahl, Moscow, passed away at the Colfax hospital Wednesday, after being critically jll since Monday. Mr. Dahl is an overseas veteran of the World War, and it is thought his ailment traces back to injuries received in the service. He has received treatment at the Veterans hospital in Boise, his physical condition being poor since his discharge.

The deceased has been employed as traveling salesman by the Pullman Mercantile company, and it was while he was at Palouse that his condition made it necessary for his removal to the Colfax hospital. Mr. Dahl before entering the employment of the Pullman company, was on the road for Mason-Ehrman company, and while working with both companies be became well known in Genesee.

He is the foster son of P. P. Dahl of Moscow, also deceased.

The deceased is survived by his widow and four children, the eldest thought to be about seven years of age. Mr. Dahl's age is not known here, but it is presumed he was a man of about 36 years. Funeral arrangements were not complete Thursday morning.

Miss Emmett Ranks High at U. of I.

Miss Eloise Emmett, sophomore at the University of Idaho completed the first semester, ending January 30, 1932, with five A's and one B, closely approaching a perfect record for the initial semester's work. She received A grades in chemistry, education, geology, mathematics and physical education, the B grade coming in English. She received a mark of A in English in the final quiz, but one other student having a slightly better mark, according to the system employed at the university, left her with the results given above.

Why Worry?

There are only two reasons for worry; either you are successful or you are not successful. If you are successful, there is nothing to worry about; if you are not successful, there are only Two things to worry about. Your health is either good, or you are sick. If your health is good, there is nothing to work about; if you are sick, there are only Two things to worry about. You are either going to get well, or you are going to die. If you are going to get well, well, there is nothing to worry about; if you are going to die, there are only Two things to worry about. You are either going to Heaven, or you are not going to Heaven; and if you are going to Heaven, there is nothing to worry about; if you are going to the other place, you'll be so confounded busy shaking hands with old acquaintances you won't have time to worry, so Why Worry.—Ossian (Iowa) Bee.

Henry—What makes you say that you get along well with that girl?

George—Well, she does the wrong thing at the right time.

We know the children have been talking plenty about this roller skate proposition; now we would like to say a serious word ourselves. Really, parents, we don't know of any better or more healthful outdoor excercise for young children than that afforded by a pair of roller skates. And the full equipment for this body-building enjoyment costs only—

$1.00 to $2.00

Don't buy paint by the gallon! 'S funny statement for us to make when we sell paint, but we might add—don't buy it by the quart either, nor by the pint or barrel. Buy it by the square foot. If you do that you will buy Marshall Wells Quality Paint because it covers the most square feet per dollar.

The older we get the less we need to eat and the more we want.

Start your boy to using tools if only a hammer, a saw and a pair of pliers. He will enjoy them and the training he will get will always be of value to him.

Spring is coming, sure as shootin'. Better look to your supply of spades and hoes and rakes and replace those that the neighbors have forgotten to return.

There are just three things to do with a board fence or a chicken house. Either tear it down, let it stay ugly or paint it. In which case, we have the paint.

Lewiston Paper Comes by Plane.

Subscribers to the Lewiston Tribune in Genesee received their papers by airplane Sunday as stage service was suspended due to highway conditions. The plane was piloted by Ed C. Rose in a Curtis-Robin cabin plane with Homer Hamblin of the Tribune staff as a passenger. The sack of papers was dropped near the Producers potato warehouse in the Krier field after the plane circled over the town several times.

Spring at Orofino.

Spring has arrived at Orofino if the following story is any indication:

"A call has been issued for all persons interested in baseball to assemble at the Oud-Shields hardware company store at 7:30 Monday evening, February 29 for a discussion of this national sport. If Orofino decides to have a team this year those calling the meeting thought it is time to find out for they do not want to miss the usual date for the benefit dance which always falls on St. Patrick's day.

Cancel School Activities.

Orofino Tribune: Because of drastic reductions in the budget of the county superintendent's office for the coming year it is not possible to finance the usual program of spring school activities. At a meeting of superintendents and principals of Clearwater county, held at Orofino, it was decided to eliminate all county meets with the exception of the grade school track meet. The spelling contest will be carried on in the schools. A list of words will be sent out under seal from the county office. A disinterested party will conduct the contest and the judges will certify to the results which will be mailed into the county superintendent together with the papers. Schools will be rated on a percentage basis and a banner will be given to the high point school. The county winner will be the individual with the highest number of points. If there are ties for the winning place, the ties will be spelled off. No medals will be given this year except perhaps to the county champion. This plan should rouse more general interest in spelling contest than the way it has been carried on, as each individual will have a chance to make points for his school.

A Nickel to Christ?

Most of us are agreed that while our present financial plight is serious, a good joke will relieve the tension somewhat, so here goes for the latest we have seen along this line, says the Cresco Plain Dealer. A drunk who was taking a nap in a gutter was awakened by some one tugging at his shoulder. He opened his eyes, looked up and there was a representative of the Salvation Army looking down at him. "My good man," said the Army man, "will you give a nickel to Christ?" The drunk replied in astonishment: "Good Lord, has Hoover got Him broke too?"

DAUGHTER OF LES ALBERT DIES FROM PNEUMONIA

Miss Ethlyen Albert, 17, freshman student at the University of Idaho, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester F. Albert, Boise, died at the University infirmary shortly before 6 o'clock Thursday evening of last week. Death was caused by pneumonia. She had been ill for about a week. Mr. and Mrs. Albert came by airplane to Spokane and made the remainder of the trip by automobile.

Mr. Albert is the well known department adjutant of the American Legion in Idaho, and lost both legs during the late war. He and his wife are former students of the University of Idaho.

BARLEY MARKET REVIEW.

Barley markets were quiet with prices irregular during the week ending February 25, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture review. Pacific coast markets held generally firm for malting types, but the feed grades weakened with the increased supply of pasturage available and competition of other feedstuffs. Foreign markets were irregular, with malting types generally displaying a weaker tendency, while feeding grades were mostly firmer. Corn markets in the central west were lower, but Pacific coast markets held steady with light offerings. Oats markets were irregular with the firmness on the Pacific coast offset by a dull demand and declining prices in central western areas.

Foreign barley markets were quiet with prices irregular. United Kingdom trading in Canadian, Persian and Australian barley was fairly active, while a small Continental demand for Russian barley was in evidence. World shipments dropped to 24,720 tons, or only about half those of a week ago, largely as a result of the smaller movement from the Argentine, with no new Russian shipments offered. Official estimates of the new Chilean barley crop show yields above those of last year, but a considerable decrease in total outturn as a result of the sharp reduction in acreage. Production of forage barley in 1931-1932 is placed at 2,005,000 bushels, as against 2,691,000 bushels produced a year ago. The outturn of malting barley is placed at 980,000 bushels, compared with 1,185,000 last year. Prices of barley at London were irregular, with fluctuations in terms of English currency accentuated by the higher rate of exchange, for which the noon buying of cable transfers from New York February 25, was $3.48 as against $3.45 a week earlier. California, Australian, Chevalier and Chilean forage barley were lower with advances noted in other prices quoted. California standard was quoted in London Feb. 25 at $1.47 5-8 per 100, Australian, Chilean and Chevalier at $1.22 3-8, Canadian No. 3 barley from Vancouver and Argentine barley at $1.04 3-9. Russian barley, which according to recent trade advices, is reported of lighter test weight than Argentine barley, was quoted at $1.06 5-8 and Persian at 99c per 100.

Domestic barley markets were generally quiet, with trading of moderate volume. The San Francisco barley market was dull and slightly weaker, with prices of feed grades showing a decline of 2½c, compared with a week ago and malting types nominally unchanged.

Competition from English and Australian barley in British markets was reported to be restricting sales from California. Sales to the United Kingdom since the suspension of the gold standard during the latter part of September are reported in very light request and moderate offerings were some in excess of current needs.

Favorable prospects for the new crop are becoming increasingly important in the market situation. Cool weather during early February stimulated good root development and moisture reserves are reported to be the best in several years. Bids to Sacramento growers on 1931 crop feed barley were averaging 70 to 75c per 100 at interior points.

At the close of the market February 25, local No. 1 feed barley was quoted at 97½c to $1.00; choice feed at $1.05, grading at $1.05 to $1.15.

Boat space was offered less freely and rates stiffened with heavy chartering of wheat from Vancouver and some lines offering no space to hull until May.

CAUSE OF DECLINE IN SILVER.

"Any abrupt decline in a commodity price always disguises some special cause in addition to general market and monetary conditions. Silver now ruling at the lowest level of all time (about 27 cents an ounce at the moment of writing). Obviously conditions not wholly susceptible of explanation on grounds of the general fall of prices have been at work.

"Over the decade since 1921 the average yearly consumption, however, has been 265 million ounces, actually more than the output. Evidently the large, overgrowing world stock of silver invalidates the production-consumption comparison as an explanation of its price."—Herbert S. Ellis-ton in Foreign Affairs, April, 1931.

"The whole trouble was obviously caused by the enormous sale of government silver previously used as money.

"The movement was initiated by Great Britain in 1930. The ministry struck upon the idea of melting Great Britain's silver coinage (then .925 fine, and reminting the same but with a basic fineness of only 0.5. Large quantities of extra silver thus obtained where then disposed of in 1921 and 1922. But the sale of further supplies from the same source continued year to year uncontrolled. In 1929 alone, about 10,000,000 ounces were being supplied an unwilling market.

"The example of England was promptly followed by Germany and Poland which countries both struck new silver coins with a fineness of only 0.5. Germany liquidated almost all the silver stocks. In 1919 and 1920 France became a large seller of silver, a considerable portion of which, derived from melted 5-franc pieces, was shipped to Shanghai. France circulated in the country 1 and 2-franc pieces made from brass and aluminum and has been constantly figuring as a seller of demonetized silver.

"The example of these countries was promptly followed by most of their neighbors, notably Belgium, Switzerland and Italy, all of which have figured as sellers of silver at the most inopportune time.

"During the latter part of 1929 Indo China sold large quantities of silver derived from the demonetized piastre coin. The quantity disposed of in 1929 (all) may be estimated as high as 50,000,000 ounces, as the sale was carried out just when the silver slide set in a veritable avalanche developed causing a panic on the world's silver market.

"The greatest adversary to silver's stability, however, was and still is British India. At the close of 1926 it was definitely resolved to change from the then existing gold exchange standard, to a gold bullion standard and to dispose of large quantities of silver derived from the demonetized rupee coin. The total amount of melted silver coin sold up to now by the Indian treasury is about 85,000,000 ounces. At the time the royal commission issued its recommendation, silver was selling at about 65 cents an ounce and a rapid fall in prices followed. The extent of the social upheaval can hardly be imagined." Mr. Brownell's article in the report of the United States senate sub-committee, February 4, 1931.

The action of financiers and governments in doing away with silver money and locking up gold in an effort to train the people of the world to transact business without metallic money reminds one of the old story of the Irishman that attempted to train his mule to live without eating. Gradually reducing the mule's rations day by day until finally the mule was living without eating, but unfortunately at this point the mule died. Business may be according to our president "fundamentally sound," but it is evidently starving from a shortage of money in circulation.—Compton L. White.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

In the District Court of the Second Judicial District of the State of Idaho, in and for the County of Latah.

John Kusturin, Plaintiff,
vs.
Otto H. Lemberg, Defendant:

THE STATE OF IDAHO SENDS GREETINGS to the above named defendants:

You are hereby notified that a complaint has been filed against you in the District Court of the Second Judicial District of the State of Idaho, in and for the County of Latah, by the above named plaintiff, and you are hereby directed to appear and plead to the said complaint within twenty days of the service of this Alias Summons;

That in general terms the statement of the nature of the cause of action is as follows:

For foreclosure of that certain real estate mortgage, wherein you are a mortgagor and the plaintiff is mortgagee, which said mortgage was made on the 19th day of September, 1930, and bearing Reception No. 115118, and which was filed of record on the 20th day of September, 1930, at 4:05 P. M., and duly recorded in Book 56 of Mortgages, Page 412, in the Records of the County Recorder of Latah County, Idaho, covering the following described real estate:

North half of the Northwest Quarter (N½ NW¼), Section Thirteen (13); South Half of the Southwest Quarter (S½ SW¼) and the Northeast Quarter of the Southwest Quarter (NE¼ SW¼), Section Twelve (12), Township Forty-one (41) North, Range Five (5), West of the Boise Meridian, County of Latah, State of Idaho; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and plead to said complaint within the time herein specified, the plaintiff will take judgment against you as prayed in said complaint.

WITNESS MY HAND and the seal of said District Court, this 11th day of February, 1932.

"FALL OF THE DRAGON" BY THE REV. E. M. HEGGE

of many of these soldiers their peasant blood and upbringing stood them in good stead. Others there were, the offscourings of artificial life in the cities, but these burnt themselves out or took to robbery or worse.

Undisciplined, touchy, surly, the Chinese soldier is, but taken the right way there is much that is good in him, and he is capable of gratitude. He is the unlicked cub waiting for Sergeant What's-his-name.

Manchus Not Wanted

In passing, we might call attention to the last attempts of the Manchu to gain power when in 1917, a general of the Old Empire by the name of Chang Hsun made an attempt to restore the ex-Emperor Schuan Tung. This deposed ruler had been living quietly in the forbidden city since the Revolution of 1912, but the attempt proved to be a complete failure. (An insight to this mysterious city will be found in "Old Buddha"). This general met with no response on the part of republican troops and twenty-four hours of street fighting, with a few bombs dropped from an airplane was enough to convince him that the country did not desire the return of the Manchu.

With their oppressors out of the way, China has from that day to this tried by one method or another to throw off the so-called "foreign yoke" of "unequal treaties" and "extra territorial rights of the foreigner." Prior to the revolution China was too busy plotting the overthrow of Manchu power to be much concerned with foreigners, but once this was accomplished, she had to have some object on which to center her attention and to the present day it has been the above mentioned matters.

Well do I recall how feelingly a very influential Chinamen said to me: "Pastor Hegge, we will never be satisfied until every gunboat is out of Chinese waters."

Again we cannot go into detail and discuss the "treaty rights" and "extra territorial privileges." Are they not found written in the Book of Chronicles, of the history of the Chinese people?

The too often untold half of the tale constitutes facts that we must not forget in drawing our conclusions. In a word, let it be said of "extra territorial privileges" that these are rights granted to foreigners to be free from arrest and the right to be tried in courts over which one of their own nationals preside as judge. On the surface of things and looking through our eyes, this seems very unfair but a most thorough understanding of conditions as they exist might help us to see things in a different light.

Rights Are a Boon

May I state here that my own opinion regarding the missionary has been that as far is he is concerned, no extra territorial privileges should be demanded, although they are a wonderful boon as we who have lived in war-torn China too well know.

I shall never forget the day that I went into the American Legation in Peking and saw our American boys march down the drill field. On either side was a motley crowd of Chinese soldiers. The comparison between our well dressed and disciplined soldiers with the ragged and unsoldierly bearing of Chinese military men, impressed me in a way I shall not soon forget. It would have been amusing were it not so tragic. As Old Glory came down the field carried by the flag bearer, it constituted one of the greatest moments of my life and how well I recall the temptation that was mine to run out upon the field and take the flag in my arms and kiss it.

Due to his profession and willingness "to suffer the loss of all things for the excellency of his Lord and Master, Jesus Christ," a missionary cannot demand this protection. But with a business man, it is a different matter. Though Christian missions have invested large sums in buildings, nevertheless thier investments do not compare with the millions invested by business men and, in fairness to those who are living their lives in the marts of Oriental trade, I for one, would never invest a penny in any Chinese enterprise if the assurance could not be given me that Uncle Sam would protect my rights.

Sanitation Contrast Striking

I happened to be in Hankow when the English, for policy's sake, allowed the Chinese to protect the English concession. Prior to their occupation the concession was clean and orderly. After the Chinese soldiers had "protected" it, it reminded one of a cow stable. Therefore, the Chinese object to "extra territorial privileges" and argue that China has no gunboats in New York, Tacoma, San Francisco or other port cities in America or, say for example, on the Thames. But they seem to forget that Chinese gunboats are not needed in these places, and we who have lived in the Orient, know full well that our own government would not go to the enormous expense of keeping a part of its Asiatic fleet in Chinese waters if a very sane reason were not behind it.

By calling to mind certain political, social and economic conditions as they exist today, some of my readers may conclude with the writer, that perhaps China's big difficulty is not from without but from within. I refer to extra territorial and unequal treaties, not the present invasion by Japan.

THE BEST KIND OF BABY

THE best kind of baby is the baby that sleeps soundly, and sleeps when it should—the kind that yells vigorously when hungry, and eats with gusto when fed—the kind that responds to your advances with coos and bubbles and a wide smile of delight. Do you know how to make yours that kind of baby?

If more mothers knew that babies are almost literally what they eat (and what their mothers eat) there would be fewer sick babies. The importance of the right kind of food cannot be over-estimated, and the right kind of food, for both baby and mother, must contain plenty of vitamins.

What Every Mother Knows

Every modern mother knows how necessary sieved vegetables are to supplement milk in the diet of babies. If there be any mother who doubts this, she need only ask her doctor. Such an eminent authority on babies, for example, as Dr. William McKim Marriott, B.S., M.D., states that beginning with the fifth or sixth month the breast-fed infant should be given once a day a puree of spinach, carrots or mixed vegetables in amounts of one to two tablespoonfuls.

Mary Swartz Rose, Ph.D., suggests a tablespoonful of sifted spinach and carrot pulp for breast-fed babies at seven months. And, since these suggestions have been published, other physicians have found that sieved vegetables are tolerated by infants at two months or even younger.

But cooking and sieving fresh vegetables in the home kitchen is a long, tedious and wasteful job. A greater quantity of vegetable than is necessary is purchased and prepared. When brought home from the market, that part of the vegetable which is not good must be thrown away, and this may amount to 10 or 20 per cent. of the vegetable bought. Or, perhaps the quantity prepared at once will not keep, and the mother decides later not to use it again.

What Every Mother Doesn't Know

What every mother doesn't know is that home preparation usually destroys a good part of the important vitamins, and that she can now get sieved vegetables in cans scientifically prepared so that they retain more vitamins than those prepared at home.

With these sieved vegetables there is no picking over, no throwing away, no long cooking, no mashing, no sieving, no straining. They come all ready to warm and serve, and are of a consistency suitable for infant digestions.

The best brands of these convenient baby foods have been endorsed by the Committee on Foods of the American Medical Association, and are allowed to use its seal of acceptance on their cans. This means that the scientists of the American Medical Association have independently checked every step of their processing.

However, every producer of these foods will tell you that no mother should think of feeding her baby anything which was not recommended by her own physician who prescribes his diet. So be sure, before including any of these new puréed foods in your baby's diet, to ask your doctor about quantities and his advice about using them.

With Scientific Care

Some of these sieved vegetables are seasoned, and some are not. One brand, which is put up in sanitary enamel lined cans, carries on its label a guarantee of the exact amounts of vitamins A, B and C which its sieved vegetables contain. And the proof that this guarantee is absolutely dependable and means exactly what it says lies in the fact that this is one of the brands which has been accepted by the Committee on Foods of the American Medical Association, and is allowed to use its seal of acceptance on the cans.

Biological assays of the finished products of this brand made by Dr. Walter H. Eddy of Teachers College, Columbia University, have determined not only the exact vitamin potency of each, but also that each provides a generous supply of proteins, calories and mineral salts.

Safer and More Sanitary

These sieved vegetables of various brands offered to mothers not merely to save them time, trouble and expense, but to provide them with a better, safer and more sanitary product than they can make at home, now include spinach, carrots, green beans, tomatoes, green peas, prunes, vegetable soup and purées of mixed vegetables.*

Genesee Girls on U.of I. Rifle Teams.

Numbered among the twenty-five women at the University of Idaho on rifle teams are the names of three Genesee young ladies, Marie Rosenau, Mary Schlueter and Verona Wolff. Idaho women are now credited with four wins and four losses for the present seasons, closing with a triangular match between Idaho, University of Washington and Washington State College. The Idaho ladies' team won recently from the University of Kansas at Lawrence and were also winners in the match between Idaho and Northwestern. These rifle matches are fired at home, the results being telegraphed to each competing university or college.

The 12 highest scores in the Idaho team were shot by: Marian Fry, 100; Anna Lee Hughes, 99; Aretta Harvey, 99; Catherine Reardon, 99; Marie Rosenau, 99; Ora Spoor, 98; Mary Schlueter, 98; Verona Wolff, 98; Elsa Sisinger, 97; Winifred Himes, 95; Ina McRae, 95 and Rosanne Roark, 95.

Portland Grain Exchange.

Foreign markets including Winnipeg worked closer to domestic prices during the week; indicating that importing countries are showing more interest in supplies. There have been several instances of lowered restrictions and a consequent greater hope that buying power may develop to place the Pacific Northwest on an export basis during the next few months.

Local wheat is still above Canadians, which are enjoying a good export demand, but there is considerable promise in the narrowing of the spread in price. It is possible that a demand for local white wheat might be nearer than anyone dared hope.

New business with California for the week amounted to about 800 tons. There is no great interest in local wheat from the California mills at present and there will have to be considerable activity in the flour market before more interest is reflected here.

Outside of reports intended to quicken interest at this time, there are a great many constructive factors favorable to wheat prices and higher levels during the next few months would not be surprising.

Baby Lindbergh Not Returned.

There were no new developments in the return of the kidnaped baby of Col. and Mrs. Chas. A. Linbergh at 2 p. m., our time, Thursday, although it was expected that the child would be returned by noon.

News of the kidnaping of the 20-month old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh is causing this nation and many foreign nations much concern; the most expert of detectives, private and governmental are joining with state police and other officials to bring the child safely back to his parents. Secrecy must necessarily shroud the movements of these forces who are pusuing their courses as an anxious multitude patiently awaits word that Baby Lindbergh is safely home.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh, news dispatches say, are bearing up well under the strain, the difficulty of which must be terrible, knowing the love which they have for the youngster.

The person who submitted the title, "Supply News-Sense" did not sign his or her name, simply writing "A Customer." This person was given until March 1 to identify the title, and the time having elapsed, the name now at the mast of the news-corner was selected.

Japan Decides to Cease.

The Japanese, having accomplished their purpose, are now in a frame of mind to discontinue hostilities, yet it is doubtful if they are sincere. The world will always wonder why they started against China. The statement "Now that Japanese military and naval authorities have accomplished their object, the protection of Japanese lives and property, and secured the safety of the international settlement, they have decided that their military operations be stopped forthwith," only means that anything can be expected of the Japs.

GRAIN MARKET REVIEW.

Crop Conditions

The condition of winter wheat continued quite favorable with heavy snow over most of eastern Washington and Oregon. Trading at Vancouver continued quiet with about 6,000,000 bushels reported sold to move out during March, mostly to the United Kingdom.

California Markets

California wheat markets were rather quiet, with prices unchanged to slightly higher. Demand for feed wheat has slackened under the influence of lower barley prices and the poor purchasing power of the poultry industry. Mill demand was fairly active but buyers generally were purchasing only sufficient wheat to cover current flour sales and to round out milling mixtures. Offerings of local wheat remain of small volume and sales of California grown grain were confined largely to interior centers where wheat from outside areas was at a freight disadvantage.

Crunching and grinding, he at the cheese
And gobbled up a plate of peas.
Away to the pantry I flew like a flash,
Tore open the doors and threw up the sash;
And there he sat, the little brown thief
A-swallowing up a dish of beef.
When he spied me he gave a squeal,
Then turned around and took to his heel.
I showed him I was much too slick,
I covered the hole up with a brick.
Around the house he swiftly ran;
He jumped into the old bread can.
I closed the lid on very tight
And left him there all of that night.
The very next morn when I had risen
I went to open the mouse's prison.
I took the little mouse by the tail
A long way down a winding trail;
I placed him down upon the ground
And away he scampered without a sound.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

The following pupils have had a perfect attendance for the past three months of school: Romer Burr, Laverne Edwards, William Foster, Warren Suenkel, Bayne Hickman, Ella Dresher, Dorothy Follett, Bonnie Hayden, Gwendolyn Suenkel and Rita Loncosty.

Some of the pupils are writing for their awards at this time. Gainford Olson and Donald Emerson received their awards this week.

We have been studying Longfellow's poems. The one we like best we copy in our literature books for which we made attractive covers. When we studied "Excelsior" several of the pupils thought it would make a good motto for our room.

During art period on Friday we made scenes of Holland, illustrating the windmill.

For the past six weeks the following pupils have had perfect scores in spelling: Rita Loncosty, Louise Wishard, Charlotte Foster, Mona Meyers, Bonnie Hayden, Helen Edwards and Rowena Nordby.

Third and Fourth Grades

We are featuring Holland Dutch Life this month. March seems to be the best month for this material, for somehow the windmills and tulips of Holland are always reminiscent of spring.

We are continuing our imaginary travels. Monday we left Bergen and took the steamer for Rotterdam. "Uncle Ben," a favorite character in our Weekly Reader, is also traveling in Holland at this time. We eagerly await his letter each week.

We received a letter from Petersburg, Alaska, also some snapshots of the fishing town and a floating iceberg. We have a promise of some more letters soon. The fourth grade in Petersburg has thirty pupils, mostly boys of Norwegian parentage; four are native Indians and one a Jap. We are especially anxious to hear from the Indians and the Jap.

VOL. XLIII GENESEE, LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, MARCH 11, 1932 NO. 38

RIMROCK TAXPAYERS MAY NOT SIGN ASSESSOR'S BLANK

Petitions which have been circulated in Nez Perce county, in Rimrock precinct in particular, were presented to the county assessor Mr. Armstrong at the Ingle school Wednesday afternoon, when a large number of taxpayers of that taxing unit met with the assessor to ask for a reduction in the valuation of their lands.

Asserting that taxes were becoming confiscatory, several prominent taxpayers gave illustrations, both on the blackboards and from records prepared on paper and read to the gathering to prove their contentions, which, when considered by the assessor, were said to be true of almost every business during the past year or two. Mr. Armstrong stated that all business was operating, either at a loss or merely breaking even, and he was in no position to offer a remedy for the present state of affairs. The assessor gave as reasons for the high taxes, the bonded indebtedness of the county, of the highway districts and school districts, and the burden placed on the several counties by the state legislature, citing as an example the old-age pension law, which in Nez Perce county is inoperative at present due to lack of funds appropriated for this purpose.

Confronted with figures compiled by Forest Leeper of Lewiston, relative to an increase in the budget for 1932, Mr. Armstrong was of the belief that Mr. Leeper's figures were incorrect, although admitting that he was unprepared to give the true figures, promising to look this matter up when he arrived at his office in Lewiston.

Questions were fired at the assessor relative to the reasons why farm lands could not be lowered in valuation for taxation, and Mr. Armstrong countered with the statement that it was impossible at the present time for the reason that a certain amount of money was necessary to conduct the county and state government, the schools and highways, and should farm lands and values be reduced the burden of taxation would fall more heavily on city property, lumber industries and public utilities, which have already absorbed the difference resulting from a reduced farm land value the past year, the industries mentioned receiving no decrease whatever in valuation, although increased in some instances.

Mr. Armstrong on being questioned relative to other offices of the county, said he could not give any information as it was his policy to attend to business within the confines of his own office, but was willing to answer any questions that came under his jurisdiction.

The meeting was occasionally held up by debate questions propounded, until it became necessary for the chairman to remind the taxpayers to return to the subject.

The petitions presented to the assessor were to the effect that taxpayers in Rimrock county and wherever circulated in the county would refuse to sign the assessor's report. To this Mr. Armstrong answered that such could not be recommended as taxpayers would have no recourse at the COWCREEKERS TO CAVORT.

There is no limit to the fun mapped out for the Cowreekers' annual "bawl" scheduled for St. Patrick's day, March 17 at the American Legion hall. It is understood that a new orchestra is to make its debut in Genesee, one that has been meeting with approval elsewhere, and the floor manager will be capable of handling every situation.

General admission for dancers is six bits, spectators 15 cents and a free lunch will be served by the Legion Auxiliary.

The committee in charge of this combined St. Patrick's and Cowcreek affair is leaving nothing undone to promote good feeling and a real good time, and urges everyone to attend, as there will be music for young and old. Forget your trobules as you meet your friends at the Cowreekers' "bawl."

GOVERNMENTAL FUNCTIONS IN IDAHO INCREASE 18 TO 115

Idaho's family of governmental functions has grown, in the course of 40 years of statehood, from 18 to approximately 115 members, the records in the state auditor's office reveal. This remarkable increase in departmental children has quite naturally been accompanied by additional costs in family upkeep; I. e., operation and maintenance. Just now the state is finding the financial burden rather inconvenient, to say the least, says Glenn Balch, writing for the state chamber of commerce.

A peculiar characteristic of our government offspring is that they seldom if ever leave the parental roof; many of the oldest and largest still insist on living at home and eating at the tax-supported table. A few are deceased and, in most instances, unmourned. Some of the youngest are the lustiest, some of the oldest the smallest, and practically all of them have outgrown the fondest expectations.

A Lusty Infant

As an example, let us consider, for no reason except that it is the first to come to hand, the mine inspectorship and follow it through the vicissitudes of the years, keeping our eye peeled particiularly for changes in its financial needs.

The office of state mine inspector was created in 1893. Its first appropriation totalled $5,000, which, considering that it covered a two-year period, does not seem excessive. In 1895 the amount was, by some means, reduced to $2500, but thereafter the upward progression began.

In 1897 the appropriation totalled $3600; in 1899 $4900; in 1901 $5900; in 1903 $6000; in 1905 $7600; in 1907 $8600; in 1908 $10,800. For the years 1911, 1913 and 1915, the appropriation hovered about the $10,000 mark, and in 1917 it reached $11,100.

The increases continued through the succeeding years until 1929, when a total of $21,599.36, the peak figure, was appropriated for the office. The 1931 appropriation was $19,310.

During these years the activities of the inspector were probably expanded and the additional funds put to a good and beneficial use. As to the

LARGE NUMBER ATTEND OPEN HOUSE AT SCHOOL

Pupils and teachers were well pleased by the large number of parents who attended the open house. There will be only one more of these functions before the end of the school year. The play, "The Florist Shop," was well presented by five members of the dramtic class.

Signs of Spring are beginning to appear and with the coming of this season frequently comes the desire, on the part of the pupils for the wide-open spaces. The parents can help the teachers and pupils by seeing that the home work is not slighted. We would also appreciate it if the parents would assist us in seeing that the report cards are brought home, signed and returned to school immediately.

To Present Two Plays

The Associated Student Body is hoping to entertain a full house next Friday evening when the dramatics class will present two one-act plays and the school orchestra will join in presenting an evening's entertainment with the program as follows:

March—Bachelor Girls.
Waltz—Over the Waves.
Evening Serenade.
Overture—Fortuna.
Violin Quartet (a) Military March, (b) Drink To Me Only with Thine Eyes.
March—Alumni.

The cast of characters is as follows for "The Dear Departed":

Mrs. Slater, grasping daughter of Abel Merriweather, Marjorie, Nebelsieck; Mr. Slater, hen-pecked husband, Marvin Miller; Mrs. Jordan, daughter of Abel Meriweather, Eileen Flomer; Mr. Jordan, humorous little man, Wayne Roach; Victoria, small child of ten years, Gail Sampson; Mr. Merriweather, doddering grandfather, Russell Rinehart.

The cast for "The Mayor and the Manicure" follows:

Mr. Melford, the mayor, George Blume; Wallie Melford, the mayor's son, Richard Harris; Ruth, office girl and Wallie's fiance, Kathryn Baumgartner; Genevieve Leclaire, tricky manicurist, Esther Kries.

Admission for the entire evening's enertainment will be 10 cents and 25 cents.

Third and Fourth Grades

Here are some thoughts by fourth grade pupils—

A Sign of Spring—Yesterday as I was playing out in the yard, a little Robin came and sat on our tree. He began to sing, "Cheer Up, Cheer Up! Then he flew away. Spring is on the way I thought. I'm not so sure now though, for this morning I awoke to find it snowing again.—Irene Morgan.

Spring is Coming—Hurrah Spring is on the way! Up spring the gay crocuses. The robin is singing "Cheer Up, Spring is coming, better cheer up." Everything looks brighter. How I love Spring!—Betty Mochel.

Spring is Here—Hurrah for Mother Nature! She has sent the Spring at last so that the flowers may bud and the tulips burst their pods in a hurry to help brighten the world for us.—William Herman.

How I Feel in the Spring—In Spring I feel like jumping up and down. The Spring sunshine makes me feel so good that I want to put on a light pair of shoes and run away. I feel strong enough to break an iron bar in two.—Gerald Pederson.

RESTRICTIONS ON SPEED AND LOADS NOW BEING ENFORCED

Restrictions for motor vehicles operating over state highways are now being strictly enforced, said Traffic Officer Harry Clark. The load limit, which in former times has been placed at 300 pounds per inch of tire surface, has been reduced to 200 pounds per inch for pneumatic tire equipment and less for solid rubber and steel equipment, the latter pertaining to wagons.

Establish Speed Limit

It has been necessary also to limit speeds of various motor vehicles, 35 miles per hour being the maximum speed for passenger automobiles and 20 miles for trucks. These restrictions, the department of law enforcement and state engineer's office believe absolutely necessary at the present time, owing to the condition of oiled and graveled highways, which have deteriorated more during the past winter months than was expected. It has been the custom in Idaho to permit passenger cars to travel at any speed consistent with safety, but the department is of the belief that drivers will take too many chances if permitted to travel fast over state highways in their present condition.

The gross weight is also limited to 5,000 pounds until further notice, which has kept the large trucks and buses from operating for several weeks, and where lighter trucks have been in use it has been necessary to use trailers, as the load limit will not permit carrying much weight on the trucks.

Auto License Due April 1.

Instructions received by district traffic officers state that they shall strictly enforce the law relative to motor vehicles properly displaying new 1932 license plates. The department feels that it has been liberal in granting an extra ninety days for owners to procure licenses, and all drivers are urged to obtain their license plates immediately to avoid a last minute rush, as there are 3,000 licenses yet to be sold in Latah county, according to the estimate of the highway department. Traffic Officer Clark stated no excuse would be sufficient to excuse a vehicle owner from paying the penalty should his car or truck be found operating on state highways without the new license plates after April 1, 1932.

Trailers Bear License

Those operating trucks with trailers are required to purchase license for this equipment also, it being $1.00 for trailers weighing up to 1500 pounds and $1.00 per huundred pounds thereafter for ordinary equipment. License for the larger trailers, such as used by the trucking companies is based on carrying capacity and does not come under the same ruling as for ordinary trailers.

Clark Attends School

Mr. Clark returned to Lewiston last Thursday evening from Boise where he attended a school for state traffic officers, conducted by the department of law enforcement, Emmett Pfost, commissioner. Traffic officers from every section of the state were present for the three-day session, and received instructions in directing traffic, first aid work and regulations governing motor travel in Idaho.

The trip to Boise was made with two other officers from the northern part of the state, traveling over the North and South highway. The most snow encountered was at New Meadows, where it measured four and a half feet on the level. About 10 miles south of Riggins the party encountered a snow slide about 35 feet in width and two and a half feet deep where it crossed the road, the snow being packed sufficiently to permit travel before it was plowed out.

The traffic officials returned by way of Pendleton, and reported five feet of snow at Meacham, at the summit of the Blue Mountains. Roads were breaking up badly in Idaho, Oregon and Washington Mr. Clark said. Roads from Weiser to Boise showed little or no effects from winter, however. Mr. Clark also said that an enormous amount of work will have to be done on highways this spring and summer if the work already done is to be protected.

G. K. McKelvey Commissioner.

Boise—G. K. McKelvey, who has served as acting commissioner of public works since the dismissal last November of Alvin Harbour, has been appointed commissioner by Gov. Ross on recommendation of the attorney general.

Advertising Brings Buyers.

"Better take out that ad, I've got twenty buyers for every horse I offered for sale," said Gus Gamble who advertised a number of horses for sale. This ad was a three-line for sale paragraph and did the business as these ads in the Genesee News are in the habit of doing regularly. The cost is exceptionally reasonable—five cents per line for one or a thousand.

As Gus left the office he said, "I know where to go now when I have something to sell."

SUPREME COURT OVERULES MONTANA UTILITIES VERDICT

According to the Cutbank, Mont., newspaper, the supreme court of the United States makes the body known as the utilities commission look like a bunch of mere figure heads, when it ruled recently that the Public Utilities Commission of Montana was not within its powers to control the "freezing-out" process of a large gas company which is a competitor in a measure with the Latah Idaho Oil & Gas company, many of the stockholders of which live in Genesee and Moscow. The larger company operating in a competitive field, has been lowering the cost of natural gas to such a low level that no profit can be made by the smaller companies who contract for its retail sale to customers. The Montana supreme court upheld the verdict of the Utilities Commission prohibiting the gas companies from selling at a non-profit cost.

Explaining the matter, Henry Morscheck, stockholder of the Latah Idaho Oil and Gas company, said his organization was not affected by the ruling at present as it was guaranteed a certain price at the company's well. The local company sells its gas wholesale to a pipe-line company operating in Shelby.

It will be remembered the supreme court of the United States recently overuled the decision of the Interstate Commerce commission which contended that the railroads were not entitled to an increase in rates.

DOROTHY HAMMER.

Dorothy Hammer, age 18 years, passed away February 29 at her home in Kellogg, Idaho. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Hammer, and Mrs. Hammer was, before her marriage, Miss Minnie Craig, the daughter of William Craig.

Funeral services were held at Kellogg last Thursday. Mrs. Tom Ingle and son, Lester, attended the services. They returned home Saturday.

LINDBERGH BABY YET MISSING.

Daily newspapers and radio reports are anxiously awaited, hoping that news of the return of Baby Lindbergh will be contained therein, but as yet the baby is missing, recent press reports stating that the wary kidnapers are reluctant to deal with Lindbergh or his "go-betweens" until the vigilance of officers is lessened.

The kidnapers have left no trace of their work, and while newspaper and radio reports are numerous, each day there are contradicted or found to be misleading.

SECOND SNOW LEAVES; NO HIGH WATER RESULTING

Soon after most of the heavy snow blanket had left the Palouse more or less barren looking, a second snow came again burying this section under about six inches of snow, which in turn thawed gradually and resulted in no damage to mention in this territory. The creeks were able to carry the water and today the highways are beginning to show dry for considerable distances. Higher temperatures have been recorded during the daytime, but as the sun goes down the temperature falls to around freezing and the larger snow banks are slow in turning to water.

The soil has absorbed most of the winter's precipitation and grain is looking good wherever the snow has left. The snowdrifts, however, will be with us for several weeks as they are deep this year, especially on the north hillsides. The soil has washed but little, but will probably pack to some extent as there has been no frost to mention this winter.

Highways are becoming passable in the country, and some are in much better condition than the state highway, which has suffered much abuse during the winter months, with the subsequent thawing, the state roads having gone through the coldest weather without a protection of snow.

Some fear has been expressed by residents of the lower river country, who believe that high water will result when heavy snow in the higher country begins to thaw.

The Lewiston Tribune said: Three times the volume of snow reserve is locked in the mountains of the Clearwater drainage area than was held last year, and a period of high water that may become extreme is forecast by the Washington Water Power Co. The Clearwater Timber company has ready a drive of approximately 20,000,000 feet of logs in the north fork awaiting the spring run-off which will probably reach peak in six or eight weeks.

Howard Baker, superintendent of power for the company, said that the officials are preparing for at least 140,000 second feet of flow, an amount of water that would raise the present level at the dam 14 feet above the present mark, unless the spill gates were opened.

No danger to the dam is held out in the event of a 140,000 second feet rush, Baker said, because the dam will "spill more than that much."

Since the dam has been erected, the minimum flow of water in the river was 112,000 second feet.

The runoff of water that has been witnessed so far this year has been entirely from the foothills, Baker said, and does not effect at all the wet, heavy mass of snow in the mountains. Figures from the north fork drainage show that there is 60 inches of snow on the average along the fork and at the summit 71 inches. At the mouth of Shanghai creek there is a 59-inch depth.

In the Weippe-Pierce region to the summit there is an average of 52 inches of snow.

Along the south fork figures show extreme depths. At Adams camp, there is 67 inches, at Golden 54 inches and at Elk City, 67 inches.

RADICAL CHANGES NOTED IN MARKETING PRODUCE

Boise—Conditions of the past four years have brought about radical changes in the marketing of arm produce which have caused considerable market confusion and which must be given earnest consideration if Idaho farmers are to be able to dispose of their products profitably in the near future.

That is the opinion of Harry L. Yost, Boise commission merchant, who recently completed an investigation tour of eastern markets under the auspices of the state department of agriculture and the state chamber of commerce.

"Marketing methods that a few years ago were considered economically sound are today being discarded," Yost declared on his return. "Investments that have been made in terminal markets and distribution facilities are being junked. Competition that is being subsidized by the government is entering the field of food distribution."

Changes Important.

No one, according to Yost, is yet able to tell just where these rapid changes in marketing methods are leading, but it is imperative that food producing states such as Idaho keep in constant touch with market conditions in order that their products may be disposed of to the best advantage.

Yost was sent east to investigate rumors of "rebranding" and "bootlegging" of Idaho potatoes. He stated that he could find no evidence of this except possibly in the case of house-to-house peddlers who "buy sacked potatoes, load them in bulk in their trucks and sell them in small lots under whatever name or brand they might choose to use." Because of the limited amount of such trade, Yost does not believe it works a material hardship on Idaho potatoes.

"Idaho" Means Quality

On any menu throughout the east the word "Idaho" stands for quality, whether it be Idaho potatoes, Idaho turkey or Idaho baked apples, Yost said.

Competition in the eastern markets is becoming unusually keen, according to the Boise man. He attended a convention of commissioners and secretaries of state agricultural departments at Kansas City and found that practically all states are faced with and seeking to solve the problem of additional outlets for their respective products. "If Idaho is to keep her place and maintain the enviable reputation which she has established, careful consideration must be given to the subject of markets," he declared.

As an illustration of current marketing methods, Yost told of finding Maine potatoes in the eastern markets packed in an attractive open-net 15-pound bag. "The construction of the bag was such that practically every potato could be seen by the purchaser," he said. Idaho potatoes in this market were being offered in a closely woven white cotton bag, considerably soiled in handling and much less attractive than the Maine pack.

Advertising Needed.

In regard to Idaho seed, Yost said that the buyers were beginning to look to Montana for alfalfa and clover seed because of the high percentage of weed seed included in recent Idaho shipments. Farmers in the Dakotas, Minnesota and Wisconsin told him that they preferred Montana seed because it was usually 100 per cent clean.

Now is a highly opportune time for advertising the opportunities and resources of Idaho to attract additional population to this state, Yost said. People in the east are dissatisfied and discouraged with conditions there he learned, and many are contemplating moves westward. In comparison with the farmer of the south and east, the Idaho farmer is enjoying a reasonable degree of prosperity, Yost declared.

At the International Livestock show in Chicago, where he assisted with the Idaho exhibit, Yost frequently heard wives say to their husbands, "Let's sell out while we still have something, and go west and start again." A large percentage of these people were from the rural sections of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois and Iowa, he said.

Fine Fruit Candies

Is there anyone anywhere who doesn't prick up his ears at the words homemade candies, especially when they are made from pure sweet fruit? Children love them, because they are so good, mothers approve of them because they are wholesome. As for fathers—they like them because it is the best candy they've tasted since the old maple sugar days down on the farm.

Peach Jelly Cubes: Press an eight-ounce can of peaches through a sieve, making a puree. Add one-half cup pectin syrup (made according to directions on bottle), one-half cup sugar, one-half cup corn syrup, and one tablespoon lemon juice. Boil until thermometer registers 222 degrees. Pour into greased pans so that mixture is about one-half inch thick, and let cool. Let stand over night in a cold place. Cut in cubes and roll in powdered sugar. May also be dipped in chocolate or in melted fondant.

This Is Divine

Pineapple Divinity: Cook one-half cup shredded pineapple and three tablespoons sugar to a thick jam, 225 degrees. Mix two cups sugar, one-half cup water, and one-eighth teaspoon cream of tartar, and boil to 260 degrees. Just before this temperature is attained, add the pineapple jam, continuing the boiling to the 260-degree point. Beat one egg-white stiff, then add hot syrup very slowly, stirring constantly, and beating till stiff and will hold its shape. Add one-fourth cup chopped maraschino cherries, and pour into buttered pans.*

"FALL OF THE DRAGON" BY THE REV. E. M. HEGGE

No one will deny but that sanitation is an important part of one's national existence. Most occidental countries can boast of cities that are kept clean and somewhat free from filth. If you can imagine the city of Tacoma without any underground sewers but with much of the refuse, humand an animal, cast upon the streets, you will get a fair estimation of what most of China is like without further description. Dogs are the scavengers in the Far East. Small wonder that whatever a person eats in the Orient must be cooked or dysentery will be the outcome.

A very common sight to be seen in the interior, is a large stagnant pool into which constantly drains the filth of a not too clean city or village. Around the water's edge on wash day are gathered many of the women busy wth the family wash. This is performed by placing several thicknesses of water-soaked garment upon a smooth rock and pounding it with a small paddle. No soap is used.

This "cleansing process" accomplished, the vegetables for dinner are washed, after which a bucket of water is drawn off for cooking and drinking purposes. I, myself, recall having "enjoyed" a cup of tea somewhat clody because of being made from water not any too clean. It is about time that one wishes he had a zinc-lined stomach.

Family Virtual Prisoners

During the six weeks we were virtually prisoners between the lines of the North and South armies, our small city of 40,000 inhabitants increased in population in one day to 90,000. The soldiers responsible for augmenting our local statistics, drained practically every surface well. This meant getting water from rain barrels, the shallow creek near our home, and stagnant pools. Even though the water was boiled and filtered, we would carbonize or "flavorize" it any way we could to improve the indigenous taste.

But why go on? All this simply shows how occidentals accustomed to sanitary conditions in city and in home, cannot live as do the natives and therefore must have their own settlements or concessions. Of course someone might advance the position that if Americans, English, etc., cannot put up with Oriental conditions, let them get out! Yes and no.

Fifty years ago that might have held water but not today. With distance almost annihilated by wireless and air travel, the nations have been drawn so closely together that we are no longer isolated power sufficient unto ourselves. No longer can China say to America, "I have no need of thee," nor vice versa.

Anyone whose horizan is not circumscribed merely by the back yard fence of his own national existence, but whose mind has caught a world vision, will, I believe, completely concur that as in years past it has been true that "no man liveth unto himself" today we as nations have become so closely knit together that it can never be said "no nation liveth unto itself."

How differently Japan would have acted, whether right or wrong, in pressing Chinese subscription to her 21 demands made in 1915, had she recalled before ruthlessly shelling Shanghai and Nanking that "As one nation suffers, so do all."

The Familiar Back Yard

Before taking up the question of poverty, a matter so essential to an intellectual and sympathetic understanding of real China, I should like to give you a glimpse into a Chinese back yard. Traveling down the streets of a city you see little or nothing of Chinese family life. There is a high wall around every city of any consequence and inside this wall every man's property is surrounded by a wall approximately 14 feet high.

Broken pieces of glass are often stuck into the top to make climbing over by thieves uncomfortable and risky.

I should imagine that from the air a city would present somewhat the same appearance as the same kind of a view of the Chicago stock yards. To the occidental, there is always the curious questioning of wondering what is going on back of these gray walls. Mr. Sidney Gamble in his book, "Peking: A Social Survey," tells us. Mr. Gamble is the son of Mr. Gamble of the firm of Proctor & Gamble. He and the writer studied together at the North China Union Langunge school and by special permission can give an unusual glimpse of life behind these walls.

"We moved in last September. Our house—ours for the year—is the parsonage of the nearby Chinese (Mission) church, and stands behind a high wall and a big red gate at the end of a blind alley. This arm of the main alley, or narrow street, is less than 50 yards long, and the gray walls are each broken on both sides by three gates. When we first came I hoped to get acquainted with the people livind behind those six gates and to establish a neighborly relation with them. The houses are in very poor condition, which means low rents, which in turn means a poor class of families.

"Behind the nearest gate on the west in a rough, ill-drained yard some 25 feet square, on whose north and west sides are five rooms in an L-shaped line, the homes of four families, if you please. At No. 1, as we might style it, live a father and son; the father has some illness and rarely leaves the room; the son pulls rickshas.

At No. 2 live a shoemaker, his wife and six children; the oldest boy, in the late 'teens, helps his father make shoes—quilted satin shoes with fur edges for gentlemen; the youngest is a girl of 18 months. However late I may be going to bed, there the light still shows through the small paper window that looks into our yard, and often when I waken in the night I hear the father coughing.

No. 3 is more palatial, having two rooms; one appears, however, to be used only as an entry, parlor and shrine for the gods of the household. Here lives a capitalist, in a small way—owner of 50 rickshaws that are rented by the day to those who pull them. He is a tall, gaunt old man, who feels his dark way about the streets with a bamboo staff. His wife, a plump, white-haired woman, helps her grandson's wife drudge for the family and wash the ricksha seat covers.

The rest of the household consists of the wife of a son now dead, and her five children; the oldest is 16, married, but attending school with his next youngest brother; the youngest has barely learned to walk. The old folks' daughter-in-law is the real head of the family. She manages the ricksha business, browbeats her daughter-in-law, a sweet faced girl of 13, and quarrels with her blind father-in-law.

At No. 4 live a man who pulls rickshas, his untidy wife who is never seen without a cigaret, and their boy of three. By giving a separate paragraph to each family, I may give the impression of too much space to move around in. Two of the five rooms are 10 by 10 and three 6 by 10.

The next gate on the same side is the entrance to the yard where the ricksha pullers live in a big shed; larger or smaller groups of pullers may be found about the gate when they come to take or return the rickshas.

If we cross diagonally to the nearest gate on the east, we find the really elite of the alley—a soldier's family. The man and boy (son or brother, I kfow not) both live at barracks, but may occasionally be seen emptying the brass hand-basin outside the gate, or ushering in satin and fur lined friends. The resident family consists of the old mother, the young wife and a purchased slave girl. They have four rooms, dress in silk and satin and take turns smoking the water-pipe, unless they happen to prefer cigarets. The slave wears print cotton and smiles thru her pock marks.

The next gate to the south stands open, though the red and green screen within prevents the passer-by from seeing what lies beyond. I lived here four and a half months without seeing anyone whom I connected mentally with that yard. On Chinese New Year's night I learned that, the night before, the father of the family while burning incense and kneeling to knock his head in reverence before the gods, had died, leaving three unmarried daughters and a little boy.

Uncover Indian Burying Ground.

Grangeville Free Press: Widening the road bed, in preparation for a surface of crushed rock and to make a fill farther up the river, workmen uncovered several old Indian graves near the Taylor ranch at Horseshoe Bend, along the Salmon river recently. Many people visited the scene on Sunday and some were fortunate in obtaining several kinds of beads, some arrowheads and one party succeeded in finding a $2.50 gold coin. Many bones were in evidence.

The North and South highway in this vicinity passes over an old Indian burying ground. Old timers recall that in the Spring of 1875 an epidemic of smallpox visited the tribes along the Salmon and claim this neighborhood was mainly used to bury their dead. Many skeletons have been uncovered here in the past few years.

Makes You Lose Unhealthy Fat

Mrs. Ethel Smith of Norwich, Conn., writes: "I lost 16 lbs. with my first bottle of Kruschen. Being on night duty it was hard to sleep days but now since I am taking Kruschen I sleep plenty, eat as usual and lose fat, too."

To take off fat—take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—one bottle that lasts four weeks costs but a few cents—get it at the Genesee Drug Co. or any drug-store in America. If this first bottle fails to convince you this is the SAFE and harmless way to lose fat—your money gladly returned.

Don't accept anything but Kruschen because you must reduce safely.

Why Electric Rates Vary

Just as the costs of food, clothing, rent and other items vary in accordance with the locality or section of the country, so the cost of electric service varies in different localities or sections of the country.

In fact, so many factors enter into these costs, that comparable costs and, therefore, comparable rates, are the exception rather than the rule.

What are some of these factors?

Character of community served. No two cities or towns are alike. They differ in their industries, their population and their variety of uses of electric service.

In a commercial or industrial center there is a greater demand, and it would be spread more evenly over more hours of the day, than is the case in a strictly residential community. This is conducive to mass production and consequent lower rates for electric service.

Also, greater density of population means that more persons are reached with fewer miles of transmission and distribution system, thus reducing the cost of serving each customer.

Investment in land, which is cheap in some localities and expensive in others.

Construction costs of building, including generating plants, substations, office buildings, etc.

Cost of constructing and maintaining transmission and distribution lines.

Difference in wage scales for labor.

Varying costs of equipment

As rates for electric service are based on the cost of furnishing that service, the cause of varying rates is varying costs.

GRAIN MARKET REVIEW FOR WEEK ENDING MAR. 4

Grain markets had a slightly easier undertone during the week ending March 4, largely as a result of a continued slow demand, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Relatively heavy stocks of domestic wheat, together with generally favorable prospects for the new winter wheat crop and a less active export inquiry for North American grain, were the principal weakening influences in the wheat market and prices were slightly lower.

Foreign wheat held generally steady during the week. Continental buying was more active, reflecting the relaxation of French and Italian milling quotas for foreign wheat. Germany was reported to have purchased additional quantities of wheat in anticipation of new milling regulations. Italy was taking increased amounts of southern hemisphere wheat and purchased Russian wheat, while the country of Greece purchased Russian wheat from store in England and inquired for United States grain. Appreciation in the value of the British pound sterling and the announcement that restrictions in trading in foreign exchange would be withdrawn, were favorable features in the general market situation in the United Kingdom. Portugal has prohibited the importing of bread grain. Procurwings of Russian grain to Feb. 20 were reported at 90.8 per cent of the yearly plan.

Winter wheat crops remained in generally favorable condition during the week. The mild weather over the main winter wheat section of the U. S. promoted growth in most parts. Wheat greened up and made noticeable growth in Kansas and more of the southern sections. More soil moisture is needed in the West Central great plains, especially Colorado, western Kansas and Nebraska and the northwestern part of Oklahoma.

Winter grains in most European countries are protected by snow cover, although damage is reported from previous unfavorable weather in some areas, particularly in some of the lower Danubian countries and in southern Russia. Recent rains benefited crops in North African countries and the condition of wheat in Egypt at the first of March was reported to be 100 per cent of the ten-year average. Conditions in India, where harvesting begins this month, are variable, with rain needed in unirrgated regions, particularly in the Punjab, where more than one-third of the Indian crop is produced. More than half of the Punjab acreage however, is under irrigation.

Pacific coast markets were generally quiet with prices moving within a narrow range. Futures at Portland March closed five-eighths to 1 and an eighth cent lower than a week ago. Cash markets were dull with export demand very light and domestic inquiry of small volume. One sale of 500 tons of wheat to Japan was confirmed at the close of the week, which was the first export business for some time. Export flour mills were operating on the last allotment of 100,000 barrels of flour for the Chinese flood relief but reported no new export business with the Orient. Moderate flour sales continued to the Philippines but sales to other markets continued light.

Inquiry from California was more active although actual sales were not of large volume and were principally of feed wheat. Prospects for winter wheat continued favorable and moisture for spring plantings was abundant as a result of good snow fall. Receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia River terminals were sharply reduced and totaled only 632 cars for the week.

FARM MACHINERY INDUSTRY DEALER GIVES FACTS ABOUT

The following article was written by M. H. Markey, Lewisburg, Ohio, implement dealer:

It seems that farmers everywhere are getting the impression that they are being exploited or robbed by the farm implement industry.

That is why I wish to present the true facts as to the present condition of the implement manufacturers.

According to the late census, farm property has depreciated about 28 per cent from the war prices of 1920; the census of 1920 gave a valuation of all farm lands and buildings at $66,316,000,000.00, the 1930 census gave $47,880,000,000.00, a depreciation of nearly 28 per cent. The 1920 census was taken at the peak of land prices or war prices.

Let us compare this to the deflation of 1 prominent common stocks listed on the stock exchange:

	1929 High	Jan. '32 Close
United States Steel	$262.00	$40.00
Sears, Roebuck	181.00	32.00
Radio Corporation	115.00	6.00
American Sugar	95.00	37.00
General Motors	92.00	22.00
General Electric	101.00	24.00
Montgomery Ward	157.00	9.00
A. Tel. & Tel. Co.	310.00	115.00
Natl. Cash Register	149.00	8.00
Cities Service	68.00	6.00

These most substantial industries suffered a depreciation averaging 80 per cent; their loss is almost three times that of the farm or land owner, yet their loss is much less than the farm equipment industry.

Take a look at the terrible loss of implement manufacturers. I am listing eight of the large implement companies, showing loss in common stock values in the past two and a half years:

	Previous High	Jan. '32 Close
Allis Chalmers	$85.00	$12.00
J. I. Case Co.	363.00	35.00
Deere & Co.	162.00	10.00
Intl. Harvester	142.00	23.00

Taken as a whole the loss averages 90 per cent. I cannot learn of any other industry suffering such a loss. The total market value in 1928 and 1929 was $1,301,278,072.00; the market value on January 6, 1932, is $164,758,187.00, a loss of over a billion dollars.

While the stock prices of 1928 and 1929 were high, the stocks were bought of investors and employes of the companies.

These stocks are listed on the stock market and can be bought at the 90 per cent discount from the high. If anyone thinks they are making a profit on farm machinery, then get in on these low-priced shares. The facts are they are still suffering a loss, and the thousands of employes that are large consumers of farm products are cut out of the privilege of buying millions of dollars worth of the products of the farm.

It is hardly reasonable that the farmer can look to the implement industry to help him out of this depression. The farm industry is 28 per cent in the mud and the implement industry is 90 per cent in the mire, or up to its neck.

I cannot see why the farmers should complain of the cost of implements since their implement purchases on an average for a period of years does not exceed over 4 per cent of their annual income.

It is conclusive that the farmer should help himself and at the same time help the implement dealer and manufacturer by buying highly efficient and up-to-date equipment in order to cut the cost of production to where the farmer can have a profit.

As we are facing a period of undesirable low prices for farm products, farm relief must come from lower cost of production.

This can be accomplished by highly efficient up-to-date farm machinery.

"TAX EVASION" CAUSE OF PRESENT TAX DIFFICULTY

A favorite indoor sport of long standing among American citizens is that enticing game commonly known as "tax evasion," says Glenn Balch, writing on tax topics for the state chamber of commerce. This practice is one of the reasons for the size of present tax bills. Evaded taxes, instead of reducing governmental income, simply revert to some form of property unable to escape a penalty. In other words, tax evasions by some persons mean tax additions for others.

Tax evasion has never come to be regarded as an essentially criminal practice. Popular opinion seems to hold that it is all right if you can get away with it. In fact, successful tax evasion is regarded as something of a feat, indicating wisdom and shrewdness. Also the officials are very lenient in punishment and penalties. In view of these circumstances, it is not strange that the government suffers, or rather, to be more exact, those persons who, either because of the type of property they own or because of lack of ingenuity to evade tax payment, suffer.

A Prevalent Practice

There is a certain amount of atoning amusement in the fact that frequently the men who condone and congratulate a successful tax evader are the persons who in the final analysis pay the taxes he evades. If this were more clearly realized, tax evasion would doubtless become a less diversion.

The practice has been prevalent for many years, not only in Idaho but throughout the nation. An enlightening and entertaining bit of information in this regard is contained in the 1893 report of Silas W. Moody, Idaho's first state auditor. At that time the poll tax was one of the principal sources of governmental revenue, and the law carried a proviso exempting among others, all members of volunteer fire companies. Large fire company rosters were noticeably apparent.

Regarding this, Moody wrote: "It is within my knowledge that many members secure the placing of their names on company rolls for the purpose of securing exemptions from poll tax and jury duty, and they, as a rule, seldom, if ever, perform duties connected with the fire department." Such was a method used by early tax evaders.

Gas Tax Evasions

Perhaps the most striking example of tax evasions at present have to do with the gasoline tax. Numerous ruses are used to evade this tax. Gasoline is "bootlegged" into the state, fuel sold for agricultural purposes and therefore tax free, is surreptitiously burned in automobiles, and "export gas" is not exported but is used in Idaho.

Regular interstate tank car drivers are reported to have a unique method of evading the gas tax. Before crossing state lines, they fill their tanks with "export gas," tax free since it is to be immediately transported from the state in which it was sold. This gas is burned on the highways of neighboring commonwealths and as a result neither state receives a tax.

One law that caused Idaho auditors considerable grief was the inheritance tax, passed in 1907, a measure full of legal loopholes. Numerous references to its ineffectuality are made in the various auditor's reports. The law was amended by a recent legislature.

Assessors Human

Another class of taxes difficult to collect is that on migratory livestock, which is assessed by each county in proportion to the amount of time spent in that respective county. Assessors sometimes find, when they check up, that certain bands were—for tax purposes—in existence for only six months of the year.

The dog tax, imposed by municipalities, is one frequently evaded. Old numbers are sometimes repainted in an effort to evade paying automobile license fees. Low-priced license plates for small cars are sometimes used on heavy machines.

Also, it must be remembered that tax assessors are necessarily human, subject to human limitations and more or less subconsciously influenced by individual circumstances and personalities, a condition that is unquestionably reflected in tax rolls and collections.

Much intangible property escapes taxation because its very nature makes it difficult to find and assess. This class of holdings has increased many fold during the past quarter of a century. Tangible property, on the other hand, is easy to find and bears the brunt of the tax burden.

Congress Accomplishes Something.

Congress has accomplished something—it is responsible for the marriage of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, former congresswoman of Illinois, and Albert G. Simms, former congressman from New Mexico. As representatives from their respective states, the two were seated next to each other, and amid the turmoil of legislation, flood relief, farm relief, etc, etc., a romance began which culminated in the marriage of the two mentioned at Colorado Springs, Col., Wednesday.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

In the District Court of the Second Judicial District of the State of Idaho, in and for the County of Latah.

John Kusturin, Plaintiff,
vs.
Otto H. Lemberg, Defendant.

THE STATE OF IDAHO SENDS GREETINGS to the above named defendants:

You are hereby notified that a complaint has been filed against you in the District Court of the Second Judicial District of the State of Idaho, in and for the County of Latah, by the above named plaintiff, and you are hereby directed to appear and plead to the said complaint within twenty days of the service of this Alias Summons;

That in general terms the statement of the nature of the cause of action is as follows:

For foreclosure of that certain real estate mortgage, wherein you are a mortgagor and the plaintiff is mortgagee, which said mortgage was made on the 19th day of September, 1930, and bearing Reception No. 115118, and which was filed of record on the 20th day of September, 1930, at 4:05 P. M., and duly recorded in Book 56 of Mortgages, Page 412, in the Records of the County Recorder of Latah County, Idaho, covering the following described real estate:

North half of the Northwest Quarter (N½ NW¼), Section Thirteen (13); South Half of the Southwest Quarter (S½ SW¼) and the Northeast Quarter of the Southwest Quarter (NE¼ SW¼), Section Twelve (12), Township Forty-one (41) North, Range Five (5), West of the Boise Meridian, County of Latah, State of Idaho; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and plead to said complaint within the time herein specified, the plaintiff will take judgment against you as prayed in said complaint.

WITNESS MY HAND and the seal of said District Court, this 11th day of February, 1932.

CALIFORNIA CHARITY MEETS WITH A PECULIAR PROBLEM

Organized charity found itself confronted with an unusual problem recently says a California newspaper, when a family of four small children and their parents were evicted for non-payment of rent in San Francisco.

Their furniture upon the street and the mother expecting the birth of a fifth child within two weeks, they nevertheless refused $25 offered them by the Associated Charities for rental of a new home.

The refusal, according to George Bratt, husband and father of the homeless brood, was based on "sociological economic principles."

"Not My Problem"

"I'm opposed to the whole plan of organized charity as administered by this organization," he said. "I told my wife to refuse the money. In the first place, she is in no condition to go out and look for a home, and I'm not going to do anything to help her. Let the Associated Charities find a shelter for them. It's not up to me. I'm going into the bread line on my own or find a comfortable cafe somewhere and sit there. The problem is up to society, not me."

The woman, seated in the confusion of their meaker household belongings, the youngest boy in her arms, was in tears.

"I just made a cradle out of a grocery box for the new baby, and that is being taken away with everything else," she said. "We owned only fourteen days rent when the eviction notice was served upon us, but the landlord objected to the crying of the children."

The expectant mother sat on a box in the bare room, her clothing consisting of worn flannel pajamas, an old overcoat and slippers.

Clothes Returned.

"Please don't take that box," she called to the movers. "You're taking the only clothes we have."

The movers, working under the eyes of a sheriff's deputy detailed to enforce the eviction, brought back the box of nondescript garments. Shoes and clothes the children had on were sadly worn. The youngest child, Charley, 14 months, was huddled against his mother, sobbing; Jonathan, and George 9, busied themselves rescuing a scooter and a few other battered toys from fast disappearing furniture.

The furniture is being held by the sheriff's office as security for the unpaid rent.

Came from New York

The Bratts came here from Long Island, N. Y., on an auto truck a year ago and moved into the ground floor premises at 1372 Pacific avenue from where they were evicted. Bratt was a former stock company actor, but conducted an antique furniture and cabinet making shop in the front of their living quarters since coming here.

The landlord claimed they owed three months' rent and that the children were noisy. He also declared that he had given them food for some three months, and that when he finally served notice for them to vacate they defied him to put them out.

Food was provided by the Associated Charities when they first came here, Bratt said, but later he received $200 in bonus money as a World War veteran, which tided them over until his cabinet shop began to pay.

"If necessary, I've directed my wife to sit on the doorstep of the Associated Charities until they find her a home,' he said.

"Personally, I wash my hands of the whole family problem. I'm the father of four boys and a fifth child expected. I've done my share.

After a visit to the Bush street police station, the family was finally prevailed to accept shelter at the hands of the Associated Charities for the night.

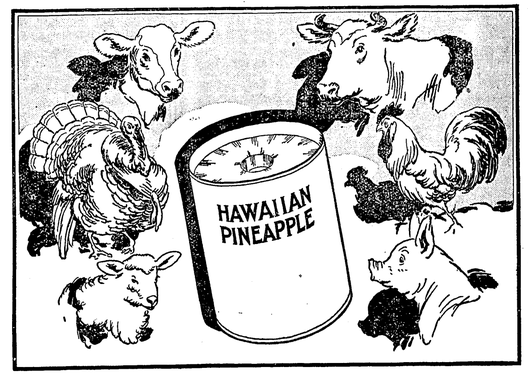
Do You Like Meat?



If you use it with chickens, it's good as the dickens,
And it adds to the succulent taste of a steak—
Or with liver and bacon it's bully—no fakin'—
And in fritters for frying this fruit takes the cake.

THE fruit to which these lines refer is pineapple. For modern dietitians have discovered a way in which you can eat more meat with less prospect of its disagreeing with you, and this is by combining it with this tropical fruit. It has been found that pineapple contains a substance, a digestive enzyme known as bromelin, that helps materially in the digestion of meats.

Not only that, but chefs and dietitians have gone a step further, and found that pineapple combines wonderfully in taste, as well as advantageously from the dietetic standpoint, with bacon, beef, chicken, ham, lamb, liver, pork, turkey, veal and various other meats. But there's no use telling you this without going on and telling you how to effect some of these tasty and tempting meat combinations. So here goes:

Chicken Combinations

Paradise Island Chicken: Drain a No. 2½ can of sliced Hawaiian pineapple, and brown the slices in butter in a large, heavy skillet. Remove, add the contents of a 4-ounce can of mushrooms (or half a pound of fresh mushrooms), brown and remove. Cut up one 4-pound chicken in pieces for frying, roll in seasoned flour, and brown well in the same fat. Return mushrooms to pan and lay pineapple over the top (it is best to use two skillets, if making the full recipe). Combine the pineapple syrup with the mushroom liquor, and add enough water to make about three and one-half cups. Pour over, add a little salt, cover and cook gently for about one to one and a half hours, or till tender. Arrange chicken and pineapple around a mound of hot buttered noodles, and serve with gravy made by slightly thickening the liquor and mushrooms left in the pan. This serves eight.

Chicken Pie, South Seas: Clean one 4-pound chicken, and cut up in pieces for serving; pour over six cups boiling water and one tablespoon salt, and cook gently until almost tender. Add two cups potato balls or cubes and sixteen small onions, and continue cooking until tender. Remove chicken and vegetables, add four slices of canned Hawaiian pineapple cut in dice (half the contents of a No. 2½ can or use two 8-ounce cans of Hawaiian pineapple tidbits), and arrange in casserole. Smooth together four tablespoons flour and four tablespoons water, add four cups of the chicken stock, season, if necessary, and pour over. Cover top with tiny baking powder biscuits, and bake about thirty minutes, having oven hot at first, then moderate. This, too, serves eight.

Bully With Beef

Grilled Steak Platter: Place a steak large enough for four people on a greased broiler with four large slices of parboiled sweet potatoes, eight large slices of parboiled parsnips and eight large slices of parboiled carrots, all three vegetables brushed with butter, and four slices of Hawaiian pineapple dipped in French dressing. Broil, turning when necessary. When half done, add four thick slices tomato sprinkled with chopped green peppers. Lay four slices of bacon on top of sweet potatoes. Finish broiling. Serve on platter with vegetables and pineapple in border around steak.

Beef and Pineapple Fritters: Fry one pound chopped bottom round of beef in a little fat in skillet until brown, working with a fork to keep pieces separate. Add to two well-beaten eggs. Add the contents of one 8-ounce can of crushed Hawaiian pineapple (one cup), one tablespoon chopped parsley, and one cup flour, two teaspoons baking powder and one-half teaspoon salt, sifted together. Drop by small spoonfuls into hot fat, 375°, and fry golden brown. Serve with gravy made from drippings in which beef was fried. This makes two dozen small fritters.

With Liver and Bacon

Liver and Bacon with Fruit Garnish: Pour boiling water over two pounds liver, let stand several minutes, drain and remove blood vessels, skin, etc. Dip in seasoned flour and fry in fat until brown and tender. Lay slices of canned Hawaiian pineapple over each slice of liver, and on top put half a banana, cut crosswise, then lengthwise. (This requires one No. 2½ can of pineapple and eight bananas.) Cut eight long slices of bacon in halves, and cross over the top. Place under broiler flame until bacon is crisp and fruits slightly browned. As the bacon cooks faster than the fruit, it is well to let the fruit start to brown before laying on the bacon. Gravy may be made from the drippings. Serves eight.*

TWENTY-THIRD PSALM MODIFIED FOR YEAR 1931

Hoover is my shepherd, I am in want;
He maketh me to lie down on park benches;
He leadeth me beside still factories;
He restoreth my doubt in the republican party;
He leadeth me in the path of destruction for his party's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of depression, I fear naught but evil,
For thou art with me—the politicians and racketeers—they frighten me.
Thou preparest a reduction in my salary before me in the presence of creditors.
Thou annointest my income with taxes; my expense runneth over.
Surely unemployment and poverty will follow me all the rest of the republican administration.
And I shall dwell in a mortgaged house forever.
Amen. —Contributed

facts in that particular, this writer is not informed and the only picture he is interested in drawing, without casting the slightest reflection upon the office of inspector of mines or any of its incumbents, is that of a $5,000 infant that has developed in to a $20,000 child.

The example cited above is not extreme; on the other hand it is very conservative.

The Governorship.

For the purpose of further illustration, let us choose an executive office—the governorship for instance—and follow its financial trial through the two scores years.

For the first biennium of statehood a total of $7850 was appropriated for the governor's salary and the expenses of his office. Increases began immediately. In 1893 the amount was $9750, in 1895 $9900, in 1897 $8300, in 1899 $8150, in 1901 $10,500, in 1903 $11,000, in 1905 $16,200, in 1907 $18,000, in 1909 $23,800, in 1911 $22,300, in 1913 $22,800, in 1915 $20,320, in 1917 $24,000. During the years from 1917 to 1931, the governor's appropriation ranged from $26,500 to $29,850. In 1931 it was $27,325.

Thus it becomes apparent that an executive office which cost the taxpayers $7850 in 1891 is now costing approximately four times that much. Perhaps the increase is justified, this writer is not arguing that question; he is merely calling attention to the figures as revealed by the records, hoping that through them additional light may be thrown upon the increased financial burden of the government.

The two examples of governmental growth outlined above are by no means unique, but rather are two of the more ordinary instances of development. Others, many of which are much more astounding, will be dealt with later in this series of articles.

Nez Perce Grand Jury a Puzzler.

Secrecy which veils the proceedings of the grand jury called in Nez Perce county is causing many to become over-anxious in their curiosity to learn the why and wherefore of the secretely empaneled jury, and the reasons for such. Thursday, the Lewiston Morning Tribune reported that a secret indictment was returned yesterday resulting in a warrant being issued by telegraph to the chief of police at Boise, who was unable to serve the warrant last night because the party could not be found.

Two negroes were among the five witnesses examined Wednesday, which indeed throws no light on matters. The Tribune also intimated that the grand jury might conclude its sessions on Thursday.

meeting of the county board of equalization, should occasion demand some correction in their statement, and on this matter considerable time was taken in the explanation of the oath signed by taxpayers, the assessor contending that such oath was not construed to mean that in signing the statement, the taxpayer waived all rights to corrections, and did not signify that the taxpayer gave his consent as to the correctness of the statement and stated further that the man who refused to sign would have no recourse. This statement was contradicted, however, and is being referred to attorneys for verification.

Mr. Armstrong from time to time said he was powerless to reduce valuations, reminding the gathering that he was directed by statute and that the boards of equalization, county and state would undoubtedly raise valuations should he dare to lower valuations on his own initiative.

THE GENESEE NEWS

VOL. XLIII — GENESEE, LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, MARCH 18, 1932 — NO. 39

STATE AGRICULTRAL DEPT. APPROPRIATON IS $157,000.00

One of the very best examples of the remarkable growth of our governmental functions during Idaho's forty years of statehood is the state department of agriculture, says Glenn Balch, writing on taxation, under the direction of the state chamber of commerce. From nothing in 1891, this department has grown until in 1931 it had 16 regular employees, as well as an appropriation of $27,000 for "extra help." The department's 1931 appropriation totalled $157,000, of which amount approximately $130,000 was for personal services.

This article should not be construed as reflecting discredit upon the department or any of its various activities. It is merely an attempt to outline briefly a history of the department's growth as revealed by the records in order that a better understanding of why our taxes have increased may be had by the public. Also, it must be kept in mind that the increased expenditures have been accompanied by increased public services.

Growth of the department has been the result of legislative effort, irrespective of and frequently contrary to the desires of the department officials. So the blame, if any, must be laid to the various legislatures.

Origin in 1895

What is now the state department of agriculture had its beginning in the legislature of 1895. At that time a horticultural inspector was placed on the state payroll and the sum of $2100 appropriated for his maintenance. From this small shoot the great multi-branched tree has grown.

In 1899 a sheep inspector was added to the rapidly growing list of state employees and $800 tacked onto the tax payers' burden. The animal industry branch of the department now requires an appropriation of $35,000 each biennium. The first state sheep inspector, even if an imaginative man, could hardly have foreseen the influence to which his successors would ascend.

A dairy, food and oil inspectorship was created in 1905, requiring a new appropriation of $8000. The same legislature made a state veterinarian's job and provided $4,000 for its maintenance. A grain commission came into being in 1909, doubtless a bargain at the initial cost of $1500. The next legislature, meeting in 1911, turned its attention to pure seed at a cost of $1,000.

Costs Increase

In 1915 a director of farm markets was deemed necessary and the down payment was $10,000. The 1917 payment, it is noted, was twice that much, or $21,665. Other appropriations of an agricultural nature that year were $10,000 for a livestock show at Lewiston and $15,000 for a state fair at Boise.

It is interesting to note the status of these various governmental services to agriculture in 1917, the last year before the cabinet form of government was instituted. For horticultural inspections the state provided $30,000; for veterinarian's services, $40,450; and for the director of farm markets, $21,665. Appropriations for

Seniors Paint

Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning seniors of the Genesee high school did their annual "paint" job, placing several of their insignias at noticeable places on the cement walks on the street. This year the seniors stenciled a blue shield in the center of which were the numbers "32."

LOCAL SCHOOL MAY SPONSOR A FIGHT-WRESTLING CARD

Plans are now being made by the Associated Student body of the local high school for a boxing and wrestling program at the high school gymnasium on April 9. Preliminary arrangements include permission being given by the state athletic commission through its member, C. D. Emhaiser of Lewiston. In granting the permit, Mr. Emhaiser stated it is permissable for schools to sponsor amateur bouts, and with this matter disposed of Coach Parks is now trying to arrange a card which will meet with approval. There are a likely number of amateurs in the surrounding towns, and while it is yet too early to say what the arrangements may be, it is expected that wrestlers from the University of Idaho will participate and as many local amateurs as possible will be given a place on the card. The University tumbling class will also appear.

Local amateur boxers and wrestlers who may care to appear at the gym April 9 are requested to get in touch with Coach Parks.

Boys Scout Minded.

A number of grade and high school boys have been inquiring as to the possibility of organizing a Boy Scout troop and have asked Mr. Suenkel to find out the possibilities for the perfection of this organization. A Boy Scout organization in Genesee would serve a double purpose, first and most important, it would give valuable training to the boys enrolled; second, the community would be benefited by the services rendered by the Scouts in performing their duties. Two things are needed to complete the organization, a scout master and a group of five scout committeemen. Mr. Suenkel would be glad to have anyone who would be willing to help out in this work get in touch with him at an early date.

Student Plays.

The student body appreciates very much the support accorded it by the patrons who viewed the plays rendered by the drama class last Friday night. The performances were well received and ably presented. The class will give another set of three plays sometime later.

Junior Prom Coming

Ten weeks of school remain which will be crowded so that we can get in both our regular program and the extra curricular activities that the closing of schools calls forth. The first among the list of activities will be the Spring Junior Prom, which has been postponed from Thursday, March 31 to Friday, April 1. We anticipate that the juniors will make the most of this opportunity for putting on a good peppy April Fool dance. The music will be by Walt Allen.

GRAIN MARKETS BARELY STEADY; INQUIRIES DULL

Domestic grain markets were barely steady during the week ending March 11, despite unusually light offerings, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Low temperatures threatened damage to winter wheat, but apparently had little srenghening influence upon the market because of heavy stocks of old wheat and lack of export outlet. Corn and oats remained in slow demand but inquiry for rye and barley was more active and prices of these grains advanced 1 to 2 cents a bushel.

Pacific Coast Markets

Pacific coast markets were dull during the week with prices ranging from unchanged to slightly lower. Receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia river terminals totaled only 367 cars for the week and showed a sharp decrease from domestic mills and California. No export sales of wheat were reported during the week, but a sale of 1,000 tons of flour for export to North China was made, according to trade reports. Grinding of wheat for Chinese relief was expected to be completed during the month. Domestic flour mills were taking only sufficient wheat for immediate requirements.

California markets were steady and slightly lower, with trading of only moderate volume. Offerings at San Francisco were principally of northern and Texas wheat. Very little local wheat was shipped to that market and offerings from intermountain state were too high to effect sales. Mills were taking moderate amounts but feed wheat was in slow demand because of the ample supplies in dealers' hands. Offerings of local wheat were being absorbed almost entirely at interior points since farm stocks are small, totaling only 17,490 tons March 1. Bay region stocks, March 1, according to the chamber of commerce report totaled 17,713 tons.

General Situation.

The general wheat market situation shows little change. The cold wave that overspread most of the domestic winter wheat belt most of the week, was preceded in more northern portions by snow, with the greater part of the area reporting in appreciable covering during the low temperatures. Some injury was reported in southern portions of the Ohio valley and in northern and western Texas but there was little evidence of damage in other areas. No further damage has been reported to winter crops in Europe. Indian wheat acreage, according to official reports, is 33,745,000 acres this season, compared with 31,028,000 acres last year and is the largest since 1918, when the harvested acreage amounted to 35,487,000 acres. Rains improved the North African crops and new wheat was being offered for June shipment.

By an Act of Congress, 40,000,000 bushels of wheat held by the Grain Stabilization corporation was made available to the Red Cross, for distribution in areas where relief is needed. A part of the supply may be used for feed for livestock where crop failures occurred in 1931. Stocks of wheat remaining on farms at the first of March totaled 207,323,000 bushels, or about 46,000,000 bushels more than a year ago. Stocks of spring wheat are unusually small, totalling only a little over 15,000,000 bushels on farms in the principal hard red spring and durum producing states of Minnesota, the Dakotas and Montana. This compares with 46,500,000 bushels is this area a year ago. In the six principal hard winter wheat producing states, the farm stocks March 1 totalled 99,456,000 bushels at the first of March compared with 35,483,00 a year ago. Market stocks of all wheat March 5 totaled approximately 220,000,000 bushels, or about 10,000,000 bushels more than at the corresponding date last year.

Foreign wheat markets held generally steady during the week but European markets were less active. Effective March 21, the quota of foreign wheat allowed Italian mills has been increased to 70 per cent for the southern mills and 50 per cent for northern mills. Over 2,000,0000 bushels of wheat afloat on "orders" principally from Argentina, were reported diverted to Italy during the week. Southern hemisphere shipments increased to over 12,000,000 bushels, but Black Sea shipments totaled only 416,00 bushels, including 88,000 bushels of Russian wheat. Prices of native wheat in Europe were practically unchanged from a week ago.

IDAHO'S INCOME TAX LAW DECLARED CONSTITUTIONAL

Boise—The state income tax law, enacted by the last legislature was held constitutional by the supreme court Friday. The decision was written by R. D. Leeper, Lewiston, recently appointed to the bench, the decision, an unanimous one, ruled the law not in conflict with interstate commerce, not a tax on property, and in fact was a tax as permitted under present terms of the constitution.

The decision was on a case brought by Ben Diefendorf, state tax commissioner, against E. G. Gallet, state auditor, to compel him to certify claims of the department to the board of examiners for payment. It was a test case. Attorney General Fred Babcock and his staff defended the act and attorneys appointed by the state chamber of commerce attacked it.

The test hinged on three points, whether the legislature had authority to levy an income tax, whether the law as drawn was constitutional and whether it was regularly enacted by the special session of the legislature of 1931.

The court ruled that the tax was expressly a tax of a "personal nature" and not upon property and pointed to the statement in the act that income under the law, would not be considered property. Since, under this provision, it is not a tax on property the court ruled it does not conflict with the rule of the constitution that only one tax may be levied on property for the same purpose.

"The power of the state to classify, define and exempt for taxation purposes is plenary and exclusive under our constitution," the opinion read. "It seems clear that this classification and definition by the legislature is neither so arbitrary nor so discriminatory as to offend either constitution (federal or state)."

Answering the contention that there was no emergency to justify the governor in calling a special session since tax legislation had already been enacted by the regular session, the court simply ruled that the decision of the governor that an emergency actually did exist was not subject to question by any other branch of the government.

"In substance," said the court in setting aside this complaint, "we are asked to substitute the judgment of this court for that of the governor and the legislature upon their respective acts, and this we cannot do."

Summarizing, the court said. "We have decided:

1. A tax upon net income is not a tax upon property.
2. Such a tax is an excise tax.
3. The legislature has power to impose this tax.
4. The income tax was validly enacted.

"The law imposes upon these who derive gain from within the state a fair and equitable tax, levied in graduated proportion upon their ability to pay, which is in all respects valid and constitutional."

The law constituted a part of Governor Ross' tax program which included the kilowatt tax. Both have been carried through court tests although it is possible both will be taken to the supreme court of the United States on appeal.

Barley Markets

Barley markets held generally steady during the week ending March 10, although trading continued of only moderate volume.

Foreign barley markets desplayed a firmer tendency, influenced by the appreciation in the value of the pound sterling and continued light offerings from important exporting areas. The British inquiry was still dull for both feeding and malting types. Germany took fair amounts of Argentine and California feeding barley as stocks of native feed grains were low.

South Dakota Gets Wheat.

Mitchell, S. D.—Farmers of South Dakota smiled yesterday (March 10) for they sighted the first definite signs that they would survive the worst drought in the state's history, when the first of 1,000 carloads of federal farm board wheat rolled into the state today, March 11.—Christian Science Monitor.

ANDERSON FUNERAL SERVICE TO BE HELD ON SATURDAY

Funeral services for Louis Anderson, 88, who passed away at the Inland hospital in Moscow Wednesday morning at 9:45 will be held from the Genesee Valley Lutheran church at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, March 19. Deceased is a native of Norway and has resided in the Genesee Valley for about 30 years. He was recently taken to the hospital, and as his health began to fail rapidly, an operation was resorted to in an attempt to prolong his life, but complications incident to advanced age did not permit his recovery.

The Revs. Swenson and Oliver of Moscow will conduct the services at the church Saturday.

The deceased is survived by his widow and a son, Joe Anderson.

K. P. DISTRICT CONVENTION HELD AT GENESEE TUESDAY

Convention for District No. 3, Idaho Knights of Pythias, comprising the lodges of Moscow, Lewiston and Genesee was held here Tuesday evening, with delegations from Lewiston, Culdesac, Cottonwood, Craigmont, Moscow and Genesee, the delegations numbering 20, 7, 3, 1, 17 and 25, respectively.

Officers for the convention were: W. F. Jain, Genesee, president; L. G. Peterson, Moscow, vice president, and J. W. Emerson, Genesee, secretary.

Opening with a free banquet at 6:30 o'clock at the hall, members of Star Lodge No. 5, Genesee, were unanimous in their decision that the success of the banquet was due in a great part to the untiring assistance of the Pythian Sisters. The public school orchestra, under the leadership of Mrs. R. K. Harris, presented an excellent program of well selected music during the dinner, and too much praise could not be given Mrs. Harris and the orchestra for the music and the orderly and pleasing manner in which the members conducted themselves. This part, it is said, will long be remembered by those who attended.

Following the banquet remarks were made by Joel Jenifer, E. G. Dirks and T. A. Gallapher of Lewiston; L. G. Peterson, Moscow; Fred Stroebel of Moscow and Walter Jain of Genesee.

In the competitive work, Genesee Knights were winner with Excelsior No. 2 of Lewiston, second. During the evening Pythian buttons were presented to the newly elected members of the local lodge, Lowell Isaksen and Howard Schooler, the former responding with a piano solo and the latter with vocal numbers.

Lewiston was selected for the next convention with officers elected as follows: President, W. W. Hayes, of

SUGGESTIONS DIRECTED TO CURB PEA WEEVIL DAMAGE

University of Idaho—A list of suggestions to field pea growers of the Palouse region of northern Idaho and eastern Washington, aimed to reduce weevil damage and increase yields, has been compiled by T. A. Brandley, assistant entomologist, U. S. Bureau of entomology, stationed at Moscow; Claude Wakeland, entomologist; and H. W. Hulbert, agronomist, with the University of Idaho agricultural experiment station. The recommendations are based on investigations of losses and means of control being made by the U. S. department of agriculture in cooperation with the Idaho and Washington agricultural experiment stations.

Certain facts are known by which pea growers can be guided in reducing weevil damage in practical farm procedure, the recommendations point out. Points which growers should follow are:

1. Prepare the seed bed thoroughly, as smoothly and as early as possible. A good seed bed is best obtained by fall plowing to a depth of five to seven inches, double disking and harrowing in the spring.

Plant peas as soon as seed bed can be prepared. Planting should be at a depth of about three and one-half inches. The ground should be rolled to assure rapid germination. Inoculation with nitrogen-fixing bacteria is essential for vigorous growth unless the soil is known to be inoculated.

3. Harvest as soon as the peas are ripe.

4. Guard against shatering. Shattering reduces profits and increases the weevil menace. It should be understood by all farmers of the Palouse area that the greatest part of their weevil problem is a direct result of the weevils that are permitted to escape from peas that are lost in harvesting, or from peas that are permitted to remain unharvested.

5. Place harvested peas immediately in tight bags. This prevents the weevels from escaping.

6. Fumigate all peas before bags are opened.

7. Bury shattered peas deeply by plowing or disking immediately after harvest.

8. Burn grass grown and brushy fence rows, margins, gulches, etc., in the fall to kill hibernating weevil.

The report emphasizes that cooperation of all pea growers in the Palouse areas is very essential to full control of the weevil.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS JOIN WITH MOSCOW FOR DEGREES

Last Friday evening members of the Genesee Knights of Pythias lodge went to Moscow to aid in conferring the rank of Knight upon five esquires of which two were from Genesee, Howard Schooler and Lowell Isaksen. The Lewiston lodge was represented also by twenty members.

The Genesee K. P. orchestra furnished music for the ceremonies and after a delicious lunch, served by the Moscow Pythian Sisters, the orchestra played several selections between talks given by members from the different lodges.

"FALL OF THE DRAGON"
BY THE REV. E. M. HEGGE

In China an unmarried daughter, unless she is attending school, is rarely over 16 years of age. Picturing to myself three young girls, possibly without relatives in Peking, I hastened over to see if there was anything I could do to help. I found the two rooms at the south of the yard dark, and the two at the north in possession of three or four well-dressed, middle-aged men—dimly visible thru dingy windows.

I made bold to knock and was cordially received by two of them and urged to come in and sit down in the room where the father, dressed in his best, lay on three chairs, a handkerchief covering his face. I did not accept the invitation but I learned that the older man was a brother of the dead father and that the girls were temporarily at their aunt's house. I said that if I could help them in anything I should be glad to do so.

Pity is Kept Calm

The next morning a youngish woman, in the unbleashed, undyed garments of mourning, came to call, accompanied by a man with a bold, hard face. She knelt before me and bowed her head to the ground. Then as she got up and told me that since I had been so good as to offer, etc., she would like me to buy their house or take a mortgage on it. (Needless to say, I coudn't). She told me she was 32, her sisters 28 and 16, and the little (purchased) brother, three, and that their father's death left them without means of livelihood, and other things calculated to excite pity. But my pity was kept calm by various questionings revolving in my mind.

How did it happen that two girls in the family had reached such mature years unmarried? And why did she wear her hair like a married woman? And who was the man who came with her and with whom she seemed so intimate? The last question was answered first—he was a barber and an intimate friend of her father's. That did not allay my growing suspicions, for barbers in China have not had good reputations since the early days of the Manchu rule when they served their customers either as barber or executioner, according to their readiness to adopt the Manchu style of shaven head and cue; so self-respecting people do not enter that profession. (It takes three generations to get rid of the taint.)

Further inquiry brought to light the information that all three girls were betrayed by their father. Their gate is opposite that of the ricksha shed or yard and the oldest sister may often be seen standing in the group of men, stitching at a shoesole.

It sometimes happens that knowledge brings kindred knowledge. I soon discovered that the good-looking young woman on the east was the purchased concubine of the soldier we had often seen smoking and smiling in the alley. I also learned that her style of collar marked her as immoral.

Different Type of Badge

At the opposite gate, the third on the west, one may sometimes see a "daughter-in-law" of about 18 combing her hair. This is an even plainer sign than a flaring collar; ricksha men come and go freely through this gate and I suppose her husband's family shares the profits.

There are apparently several families living in this yard, to judge from the number of dirty, impudent youngsters that boil over into the alley. In one of the families there is a man who is a Christian, and a Christian family lives across the street; from here three attractive children go to mission schools.

Frequently, one sees a woman sitting on the ground near here or wandering about. She is dirty and disheveled and, though she comments to the neighbors on what attracts her interest, her dull eyes and stolid look mark her as of rather low grade intelligence. They tell me she is the wife of a soldier who has found some one he likes better to live with, so he has moved her over here. He pays her 15 coppers a day and 20 when he comes to visit her. Not being a "good manager," she spends this in buying from the street venders their most attractive but less economical foods and so has nothing left to pay for washing water.

Plenty of Work Needed

As I see these people, I long for the facilities that America has built up for helping such. Here in this less than 50 yards is work for every agency for social betterment in the catalog of an up-to-date American city. When will China begin to take up these problems in a systematic way? When her people have been educated up to a sense of social responsibility and have a foundation of morality — Christian morality — to build upon. Some of her younger generation have reached that place already, but as yet they are but a small minority, though every year increasing.

Beggars and Poverty

True it is, as the Man of Galilee declared, "the poor ye will always have with you," but nowhere in America is suffering from want and need as intense and universal as in China. It is the very first sight arresting the eye as the ocean liner steams into the "treaty port." Screaming beggars hold up long poles on which is fastened a basket, hoping for a few pennies.

Junks come alongside that boat and collect in large flat reed containers garbage that the ship's cook would otherwise dump into the sea. That night, at least, there is joy and feasting in the family fortunate enough to get the contribution.

These beggars constitute a long story in themselves. They are found everywhere. The professionals and "their name is legion" disguise themselves and try to appear as filthy and miserable as in humanly possible. In 1878, it was estimated that in Peking alone there were 20,000 naked beggars. For verification see Morache's "Peking et es Habitants."

I have even seen men irritate great sores and expose these to the passerby hoping to evoke pity. The saddest sight is the use of babies too loathsome for description, to arouse pity and unloose the strings of men's pocketbooks. A friend of mine told me that a sick beggar was brought to his father's hospital for treatment. After he was bathed, an operation was performed and health restored. Later the doctor was sued by the beggar for taking away his means of livelihood.

Thousand Always Suffer

But apart from the thousands of professionals there is a multitude stupendous beyond all statistics who suffer from hunger and exposure beyond all human power to describe. Having seen not only one city's problem but conditions from Peking to Hankow, and over to Shanghai, some of us have almost dared hope that some foreign power would do for China what America has done for the Philippines and England for India.

The writer is fully conscious of the differences of opinion that would follow such a statement, but when you have seen suffering, much of it caused by misgovernment, you are tempted to believe anything might be better than the horrible mess into which China has been plunged. It perhaps never has been ideal but disregard for all law and power vested with men possessing the largest number of pistols has not helped matters.

On a cold winter day even more intense than what we experienced a couple of Sundays ago, I have seen little boys with only a burlap sack over them, their insteps cracked open from the cold, as a wiener breaks when placed in a frying pan.

While in Peking, I tried to give all day Saturday to settling down on paper the experiences of the past week. Now I am sorry, as facts fade with the passing of time and when needed cannot always be recalled with minute exactness. From a letter written to my father, dated November 13, 1924, this comment is found on poverty:

"It has been very interesting during these days of suffering from lack of food and clothing on the part of the Chinese people, to see where the help comes from. It has been so strikingly brought out that heathenism knows no pity, but it is only where the gospel of Jesus has been preached that mercy flows forth. Individually in proportion to the way Christ has moved the heart to compassion, so has mercy been shown. Although we cannot help all, we can not help but feel sorry for all. On the other hand, one marvels how heartless the heathen can be. It is not uncommon to see a person eating at one of these open air stands with a hungry and shivering boy looking at him eat, and yet receiving nothing.

"An incident that occurred the other day in Peking political life shows that there is something wrong with the strata of heathen society. One of the leaders presented Tsao Kun with $10,000 to meet his daily expenses while here for a few days. One person gets this, but there are thousands in Peking who have not food to eat nor clothes to wear. On the other hand, Tsiung of Chabar, who has been warmed by the gospel of Jesus Christ, has requested $200,000 from the Peking government for relief of victims of Kalgan. Let me tell you, it would be sadder than it is to go down the streets on these cold days, if it were not for the fine work of the various Christian organizations."

March, March—on to April!
March, March—on to Spring!
Don't you see the willows greeing?
Can't you hear the blue birds singing?
Oh, the wild winds are a marching!
Watch them swing across the world,
All their lusty feet a tramping,
Their poor ragged banners furled.
In the bivouacs of dead winters
March, his shattered troops will bring;
While down the lanes and meadows
Sweep triumphant, green robed Spring!

School News

Johnnie Dygert and Eldon Johnson arranged two nice window boxes with wild buttercups and moss. They are quite attractive and give our school room an appearance of Spring.

The Fifth grade history class made candles this week, using string and paraffin. They are going to paint and decorate them.

Johnnie Dygert brought lumber to make a large window box for his mother. As the weather is getting warmer, the manual training classes will soon begin work again.

The Seventh grade wrote business letters for language work to the Union Pacific railroad company. They received some very interesting booklets on the scenic beauty in different states.

After studying the different kinds of clothing the third and fourth grades are making posters, cutting shoes from leather, hats from felt, dresses and suits from woolen, cotton and silk materials. Some of the figures are quite clever, being all dressed up.

The first and second grades are enjoying their new work books.

Gooding to Have Eight-Month School

Gooding Leader: Gooding public schools will remain in session for at least eight months, the school board decided Monday. The present school year will, therefore, not end until Friday, April 22, in spite of rumors that the schools would have to close at once and in spite of the insinuating publicity to the contrary blazoned forth on the front pages of several Idaho dailies during the past week. This publicity jolt handed Gooding emphasized that Gooding schools were likely to close immediately for lack of funds.

Eight months' school will enable the seniors to graduate this year; reports Supt. F. H. Thomas, and will keep the Gooding schools on the accredited list, he has been assured by Commissioner W. D. Vincent.

Pineapple is Paramount

ONE hundred and twenty million Americans cannot be wrong. They just cannot! They eat more canned pineapple than any other canned fruit, which leaves nothing further at all to be said upon the subject.

It is only recently that we have become a nation of pineapple eaters. Oh, we always ate it in moderation, but it is only during the past ten years that canned pineapple eating has become a universal and widespread custom of the country. That's because the Hawaiian pineapple, fresh, luscious, delicately flavored, ripened to perfection before it is popped into the can is now shipped to America in prodigious quantities and sold at a price within everyone's reach. But people are eating it so fast that the price is bound to go up, so now is the time to lay in a supply.

Just Try This Recipe!

Pineapple Pork Chops: Empty one No. 2 can crushed Hawaiian pineapple into a large flat buttered casserole (or into six individual ones). Peel three large sweet potatoes and slice over the top, and sprinkle with one-half cup brown sugar. Salt six thick loin pork chops and lay on top. Cover and bake in hot, 400°, oven until tender—about one to one and one-quarter hours. Uncover for the last fifteen minutes to brown chops. Serves six.*

Railroad Convenient.

During the break-up, which caused traffic delays on all highways the people of this vicinity learned once again how convenient it is to have a railroad. The auto truck, which gets a lot of the freight business between Spokane and outlying points, simply failed to function while the roads were at their worst, and stage service was considerably hampered. But the railroad, regardless of expense, kept its trains running, not always on schedule, but with sufficient frequency to keep freight moving without noticeable delay. That's one thing in favor of the railroads—trains are kept going unless the tracks wash out.—Troy News.

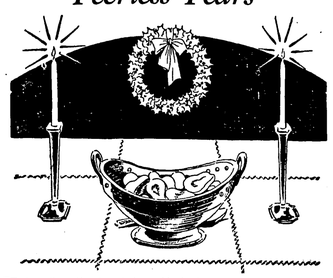
Peerless Pears



IT doesn't matter in what meal there is a shortcoming, the adroit housewife can make it up with some canned pears. They are delicious with breakfast cereal, an adjunct to many meat dishes, and numberless delicious desserts may be made with them. To lay in a supply of these is a wise move before rumored advances in prices become a fact.

Tested Pear Recipes

Franconia Pears with Roast Lamb: Roast lamb as usual in very hot oven, searing for half hour at 500°, and continuing at 450°, allowing fifteen minutes to each pound and fifteen or twenty minutes extra. About forty-five minutes before done add potatoes which have been parboiled ten minutes, and let them brown around the roast, basting them occasionally. At fifteen minutes before done, drain juice from a can of pears and place the pears around the roast. Fill the hole in each pear with a spoonful of currant jelly. Allow to brown, basting with the fat in the pan. Serve the lamb on a platter with the Franconia potatoes and pears placed alternately around it.

Baked Pears: Drain half a No. 2 can pears—four halves—arrange in baking dish. Mix one-fourth cup brown sugar, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-eighth teaspoon cloves with three-eighths cup pear syrup—half the can—and pour over. Dot with one-half tablespoon butter, and bake in moderate oven — 375° — about thirty minutes.*

In the trial spelling contest, Bueletta Nordby won out. She is to enter the Latah county contest which is to be given at Moscow.

In Appreciation

Mrs. Harris and the members of the orchestra wish to express their appreciation for the banquet which was given to them at the K. of P. hall Tuesday by the Knights of Pythias.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

In reading classes we have enjoyed reading selections about Spring. Now that Spring is here we like to forget the long winter months. The fifth grade dramatization "Under the Snow," a story about the different kinds of flowers as they start their new life again. The sixth grade had an appreciation lesson on the poem, "A Prayer in Spring." The pupils expressed their own ideas of Spring in making poems. Glenn Osmundson and Rita Loncosty were the two best authors.

We dramatized our history Wednesday; one group pictured the meeting of the Colonists and the Indians and the other, scenes from Indian life.

We have started the study of interest in arithmetic and find it very interesting as well as easy. Our daily scores are high.

Spring.

Hark! Note the humming of the bees,
And the fragrance of the trees;
Hear the brook as it flows along,
Singing its glad and joyous song.
When on the ground there is no mud,
And when the flowers begin to bud,
That's when the birds begin to sing;
Then you know it's real Spring.

—Glenn Osmundson.

Spring

Spring! Spring! Wonderful Spring,
How the meadow lark doth sing.
Spring is here, here, here,
And brings lots of news and cheer.
Yes, there is a little snowdrop
Waking from her dreams;
She is very, very happy
About Spring, it seems.
Old Robin Redbreast,
Singing in the tree;
Isn't Spring most wonderful,
I think so, Oh gee!

—Rita Loncosty.

Third and Fourth Grades

We received about twenty interesting letters from our little friends in Alaska. It was a real pleasure to answer their letters.

Some third graders have started new work books in arithmetic. The fourth graders are still enthusiastic over fractions.

We are striving to know at least twenty common birds at sight. One of our new friends is the Bohemian Waxwing, a bird commonly seen in this vicinity.

In connection with our study of the Netherlands we are reading selections from "Hans Brinker." We also studied the poem "The Leak in the Dike."

First and Second Grades

The primary folks planted a little garden in their sandtable. They are reading the story about "Kit and Kat" the Dutch Twins. The twins planted a garden so the children wanted their garden like the one the twins planted.

Sunday School Parties.

Last Friday afternoon the little folks of the Congregational Sunday school were entertained from 2 until 4 o'clock by their teacher, Miss Pauline Steltz, at the church basement. Games were played until refreshment time, when the children were seated at a gaily decorated table, the centerpiece being many different colored balloons, which were given the children before they returned to their respective homes. The enrollment in this class is as follows: Jane and Joyce Beckman, Neta DeVoe, Beverly Bressler, Joan Edwards, Shirley Haymond, Dona Post, Shirley Kleweno, Walter Kleweno, Jr., Geo. Follett, Jr., Keith McCoy and Helen Churchwell.

From 6 until 8 o'clock Misses Ruth Martinson, Helen Winegardner and Pearl Perkins, Mrs. Vera Beckman and Mrs. Robert Emmett entertained the other classes of the Sunday school, thirty-four of the enrolled pupils being present. Games were enjoyed and supper, consisting of chili, crackers, jello and cookies was served.

This Woman Lost 64 Pounds of Fat

Mrs. H. Price of Woodside, L. I., writes: "A year ago I weighed 190 lbs. I started to take Kruschen and now I weigh 126 and never felt better in my life and what's more, I look more like 20 yrs. old than the mother of 2 children, one 19 and the the other 18. Every one of my friends say it's marvelous the way I reduced."

To lose fat SAFELY and HARMLESSLY, take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—don't miss a morning—a bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle—but don't take chances—be sure it's Kruschen—your health comes first—get it at the Genesee Drug company or any drugstore in America. If not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.

BIG NEWS DURING WEEK.

Headlines in daily newspapers during the past week have carried some of the most important news in many months, much of which, however, detailed sadness. The suicides of Ivar Krueger, Swedish match king, and George Eastman, who perfected the photographic film and made moving pictures possible and developed the Kodak, brought out big headlines and stood the financial world on its ear for the time being. People everywhere almost invariably look for headlines announcing the safe arrival at home of the Lindberg baby . . . so far the situation is unchanged altho every conceivable means are being employed to locate the kidnapped child. Prohibition was given a lease on life when a measure designed to turn back liquor control to the several states was defeated 227 to 187 in the house of representatives . . Democrats joined with republicans in defeating such a measure. Hindenburg was not elected on the first ballot in the German national election, but is assured election in the play-off April 10. State income tax law was upheld in state supreme court. Rumors were that Mac Bailey was having difficulties with Gov. Ross . . later press reports deny the assertion. Russians reported to have brought down a Japanese air plane when it attempted to cross Siberian border. Governors of 40-odd states reply that no one is starving . . criminal negligence is a charge hurled at Nebraska's governor by people in drouth-stricken areas. Governor Ross visiting in north Idaho . . dines with Lewiston, Orofino and Kendrick commerce bodies . . . Ross also favors passage of federal highway construction bill . . $132,000-000 would be appropriated for this purpose. Spokane chapter of Associate General Contractors of America request that the minimum wage scale be 40 cents an hour, basing their argument on the fact that Governor Ross has stated it was his desire to see labor paid a living wage . . the contractors claim labor has been paid as low as 25 cents per hour on projects outlined and in process of completion by the state highway department. Roosevelt leading "Alfalfa" Bill Murray two-to-one in the North Dakota primary election. Democratic ranks split on tax measure in congress . . fifty form coalition and may join with republicans in an attempt to defeat the sales tax. Wheat suffers a drop of 3 cents per bushel when congress defeats state control bill . . later gains were partially recovered . . Liverpool wheat market showing the most sertngth in months. Utah-Idaho Power company taking "kilowatt tax" case to suprem court of the U. tax" case to supreme court of the U. sued for $60,000 damages . . Warden placed Birch, former prisoner in solitary confinement when he refused to do prison work . . prisoner served part of sentence of 1 to 14 years for grand larceny. Mix hopeful for large vote at coming primary . . says the people greatly in favor of a real old fashioned primary election. Ross says state will be saved $960,000 providing U. S. supreme court rules "kilowatt tax" measure constitutional.

SEED TIME AND HARVEST TIME

How quickly times flies! In the early days of Spring we are interested in the preparation of our gardens and fields for the reception of seeds and plants that are soon to be planted. Our interest increases as we watch and wait for the tiny leaf or growth to appear above ground, and continues to increase with the growth and perfection of the fruitage. Sometimes the planter is disappointed in results secured—It may be on account of non-fertilized soil, improper care or inferior seeds.

We firmly believe that the best seeds are not any too good, and that the careful observing planter will conlude that he is better served when he makes his SEED purchases from a reliable Seed House with a reputation of supplying seeds of a very high standard of quality.

ENGINE WEAR IS FIVE TIMES MORE RAPID WHEN THE OIL IS DIRTY

One of the things that makes it so easy to sell oil filter replacement cartridges is the general recognition, on the part of the car owner, is the value of clean engine oil. Everyone knows that dirty oil means excessive wear; everyone has some vague idea of the economy of keeping clean oil in the crankcase.

But even the most conscientious car owner would often be amazed to learn how much damage can be done when dirt is carried by the oil through the engine's lubricating system. Tests conducted by the A C laboratories have shown that wear is five times more rapid with dirty oil than with clean oil.

Further experiments have shown that oil is cleaner after a thousand miles of service, when the oil filter is in operation, than unfiltered oil after only two or three hundred miles of use.

It pays the car owner well to keep his oil filter in operation, by changing the cartridge every 10,000 miles.

We have in stock Complete Oil Filters and refill cartridges for all Cars, Trucks and Tractors. We know of no better way to economize.

NEZ PERCE TAXPAYERS LEAGUE ELECTS OFFICERS

Charles A. Hawkins of Lewiston was elected president of the Nez Perce County Taxpayers' league at its annual meeting, held last Saturday at the court house in Lewiston. Other officers elected were: J. P. McCann of Lewiston, vice president and Forest Leeper, secretary and treasurer. A committee on resolutions included E. C. Rettig and P. E. Stookey of Lewiston, Gordon Harris of Southwick, George Brammer of Gifford and Edgar Evans of Rimrock precinct.

Declaring enlightenment of the people will to a degree bring about a reform in taxation laws and advocating that "our activities should center around reductions in our local and state governments," the Nez Perce County Taxpayers League went on record favoring the abolishment or consolidation of several state and county offices, repeal of the "gin marriage law," the uniform motor vehicle theft act and the old age pensions law, says the Lewiston Tribune.

Reform Program

The league resolved:

That the repeal of such laws as conflict or work to the disadvantage of the taxpayers;

That either the office of state superintendent or the office of commissioner of education be abolished;

That the office of assessor and treasurer be consolidated in counties with an assessed valuation of less than $20,000,000;

That real estate be assessed not more than once in five years;

Repeal Pension Law

That the old age pension law be repealed;

That the time for the collection of auto license be changed to July 1;

That the uniform motor vehicle theft act be repealed;

That the "gin marriage" law be abolished.

The league recommended that the state constitution be amended to provide for the election of county commissioners for a term of six years instead of two, so there shall at all times "be two experienced men on the board." Further, that the commission form of government in Idaho, on account of the overlapping duties of the departments, be studied toward the end of abolishing all unnecessary departments and authorizing the governor to appoint elected state officers as commissioners.

Share Gas Tax

It advocated by resolution that the gasoline tax collected by the state, which has been pledged to secure payment of state bonds, be equalized so each county would receive 20 per cent to be used in building farm-to-market roads.

Attorney George E. Erb, member of the tax commissioner of the state chamber of commerce, gave an address, saying that "the real tax problem confronting the people is how much of service should be demanded from governments which are set up to rule and regulate social and economic affairs."

"The real test for the justification of taxes is not how high the taxes are," he said, "but how well the taxes are spent." Another view he expressed was that all taxing bodies should be thrifty; that it is just as binding upon a municipality or a government as it is upon citizens to spend frugally and live within its income.

He beleved, he said, that the people are entitled to the best in the way of schools, highways and other things but, "we are not justified in mortgaging our future and placing a burden upon property which will stifle future growth and development."

He stressed the necessity of holding down public expenditures to the "lowest possible point, without losing sight of efficiency," saying that it is estimated that 4 cents of every tax dollar is wasted.

Too Much Bonding.

"There has been too much of loose thinking along the lines of taxation," Mr. Erb said. "There is too much of voting taxes and bonds without proper information and without consideration of the pay day to come." He said what is needed is a tax-conscious citizenry, to wake up to the fact that "we are paying bills for government which we cannot afford, and unless we right about face and call a halt we are facing bankruptcy."

In closing Mr. Erb told the league: "Without regard to partisanship or party affiliation you should demand that fit men be nominated for the legislature. On the members composing the next legislature rests the future growth and development of the state, the welfare of citizens and quite largely the value of property."

County Mergers Save

E. C. Rettig spoke on the consolidation of taxing units. He furnished data on county consolidation in other states and said that if the 44 counties of Idaho were consolidated into 15 the reduction in costs annually would be about $739,000, not including the judicial and legislative costs.

Speaking of highway districts, Mr. Rettig said:

"Their creation was so easy, any locality feeling that some other community was 'hogging the pie' revolted and formed its own district. Some were well managed and some were not so fortunate, and these are defaulting their bonds." He cited the idle equipment of some districts and said that several districts informed him that they could handle half again as much work with the same equipment.

ROSS OPPOSED "IDAHO PLAN"

The "Idaho Plan," submitted to the governor and legislature during the last session, was strenuously opposed by foreign chain stores, chain banks and other forign corporations doing business in the state, insurance and mortgage companies, finance companies and mining corporations. In all cases, their opposition was based upon the fact that, under the "Idaho Plan," their taxes would have been increased materially, among those already paying taxes—or that they would be added to the tax list, among those now escaping taxes altogether.

It is not to be inferred, however, that the combined oppostion of the above groups would have been sufficient to prevent the legislature from enacting the "Idaho Plan"—or any other plan adaptable to the general welfare of the state—which would have brought about a more general distribution of the tax load. A more definite cause for its defeat may be pointed out, and responsibility for the failure of the last session to undertake any creditable tax relief program may be properly placed upon the governor himself.

The governor's reasons for his opposition to the "Idaho Plan" were naive, if unconvincing to one not politically minded. Admittng that for years he had advocated relief for the farmer and small home owner—admitting in fact, that he had been honored by the citizens of the state by their electing him to the high office because of his promise to bring about tax reform—nevertheless other considerations weighed upon him. And with admirable frankness, he discussed and argued these other considerations in explanation of his position.

Informed (by his own advisors) that the "Idaho Plan" would produce between four and six millions in new revenue, the governor explained his opposition to it on the following grounds:

The democratic party had been the party out of power in Idaho for several years—12, in fact. Now, successfully back in power, insofar as the "administration" is concerned, naturally the party strongly desired to remain in power. Its ability to deserve the support of the voters of the state must rest upon its popularity with the voters.

Any tax measure seeking either to increase the load of present tax paying, though under-taxed, voters—or to add non-taxpaying voters to the lists—would manifestly enjoy little popularity among these classes.

Especially, a tax measure effective enough to produce four to six million dollars from the under-taxed, or the untaxed, would surely dim the bright prospects for the party's continuance in power. Yet—the governor had promised tax legislation, and he would keep that promise. But not to the extent of a four million dollar program.

In its place, the governor proposed the kilowatt tax on the big power companies—surely a "popular" measure. Also an income tax, even tho its validity was seriously questioned. And to exempt liberty bonds and other so-called "tax-exempt" securities, and to allow corporations to deduct federal income tax payments as an expense item (yet withheld that privilege from individual taxpayers) is no wise detracts from its popularity—especially among those favored under these unique provisions.

But in neither case, the governor confessed, would this new revenue approach the amount estimated under the "Idaho Plan." Yet campaign promises would be fulfilled—a certain degree of tax relief might be accomplished—and possibly the governor would be continued in office for another term—or promoted to a higher and broader sphere of influence.

As a matter of fact, the governor's opposition to the "Idaho Plan" was based solely upon the opinions of his "advisors"—for he readily admitted that he had not read the Act as submitted to him and the legislature. It is possible his attitude towards it might be explained by recalling his recent action in reducing salaries in the various state departments—personally, he did not approve of his own stand in the matter, but "influences" were too powerful to ignore.

Whatever relief might have been enjoyed by the farmers and small home owners throughout the state, suffering under the unequal and inquitious system of tangible property taxation now in effect, it may be a comfort to them to know that, though there will be no four million dollar reduction in their tax bill this year, at least the governor will not be hancapped, in his next appeal to Idaho voters for their support, by an unpopular tax measure—however effective it might have been in reaching the under-taxed and un-taxed interests of the state.—The Boise Pioneer.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

In the District Court of the Second Judicial District of the State of Idaho, in and for the County of Latah.

John Kusturin, Plaintiff,
vs.
Otto H. Lemberg, Defendant.

THE STATE OF IDAHO SENDS GREETINGS to the above named defendants:

You are hereby notified that a complaint has been filed against you in the District Court of the Second Judicial District of the State of Idaho, in and for the County of Latah, by the above named plaintiff, and you are hereby directed to appear and plead to the said complaint within twenty days of the service of this Alias Summons;

That in general terms the statement of the nature of the cause of action is as follows:

For foreclosure of that certain real estate mortgage, wherein you are a mortgagor and the plaintiff is mortgagee, which said mortgage was made on the 19th day of September, 1930, and bearing Reception No. 115118, and which was filed of record on the 20th day of September, 1930, at 4:05 P. M., and duly recorded in Book 56 of Mortgages, Page 412, in the Records of the County Recorder of Latah County, Idaho, covering the following described real estate:

North half of the Northwest Quarter (N½ NW¼), Section Thirteen (13); South Half of the Southwest Quarter (S½ SW¼) and the Northeast Quarter of the Southwest Quarter (NE¼SW¼), Section Twelve (12), Township Forty-one (41) North, Range Five (5), West of the Boise Meridian, County of Latah, State of Idaho; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and plead to said complaint within the time herein specified, the plaintiff will take judgement against you as prayed in said complaint.

WITNESS MY HAND and the Seal of said District Court, this 11th day of February, 1932.

(Seal) HARRY A. THATCHER, Clerk.
By Rose Rawson, Deputy Clerk.
THOMAS FEENEY, Attorney for the Plaintiff. Address, Moscow, Idaho.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

One of the most important real estate changes was the transfer of the John Trautman lease on the W. J. Mervyn property to W. E. Tipton for a total consideration of $5800. Will Rosenau comes into possession of the M. Carbuhn place in West Genesee. The consideration was $3400. Mrs. Stollenwerk's property in West Genesee was sold for a consideration of $1200 to Mrs. Mary Herman. Follett & Schooler who purchased the three lots to the east of the Fred Nagel property from Mrs. Rader for $400 have resold the west half of James Edwards for $200.

The business district is to undergo a vast improvement within a few weeks by the addition of a modern brick block on the site now occupied by the Rader & Westensee Meat Market. Last Monday Mrs. Rader let the contract for this new block, 50x50 in size, to Contractor B. Penland of Juliaetta. It will compare with the best small town meat market in the northwest when completed. The Commercial creamery will occupy a portion of the new building.

The Genesee high school basketball team defeated Colfax Saturday night 55 to 23. Tonight the high school boys play the strong Rathdrum team on the University of Idaho court in Moscow. A special train has been chartered to carry over the big crowd of Genesee fans who will see the game. A special rate of $1.40 for the round trip has been made, leaving Genesee about 5 this evening and arriving in Genesee before midnight. The boys are determined to beat Rathdrum and win the Inland Empire and Idaho state championships.

Nez Perce county remained dry at the local option held March 13, the majority being in favor of no saloons. The total dry vote was 2425 and the wet vote 2208, giving a dry majority of 207. In Rimrock precinct, the dry vote was 25 and the wet vote 78.

Frank and Weber of Rosalia this week purchased the Hambletonian trotting horse "Gentry's King" from James Dye for a consideration of $1,000.

Hindenburg Will Be Candidate.

Sunday activities in Germany have turned political, as that country will, on April 10 (Sunday) have its second election to decide on its president. Last Sunday the German people gave Hindenburg, candidate for reelection a handsome lead in the votes cast, but he did not receive a majority. He ran nearly 7,500,000 ahead of his nearest rival, Hitler, who polled 11,338,571 votes trailing in all but three election precincts, which result is regarded by many as a repudiation of Hitler and German fascism which he represents.

Hindenburg has consented to be a candidate for the second presidential election, April 10.

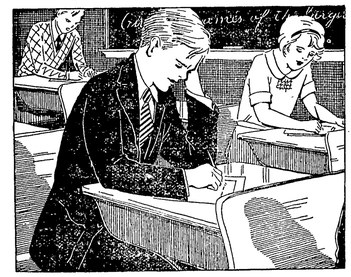
Right School Lunches



ONE of the problems in a recent final hygiene examination for Fifth grade boys and girls was "Plan a healthful breakfast such as a boy or girl should eat before coming to school in the morning." This is an example of the increasing tendency of modern education to stress the home-life of children.

And the lime-light is on the lunch-box which you prepare for the noon-day meals, just as it is on the morning meal. There are right and wrong foods to put into your little son's or daughter's school lunch box. Here are some of the right ones—foods which are good for growing youngsters.

Goody! It's Lunch Time!

Nut Bread, Cheese and Fig Sandwiches: Slice nut bread thin, butter and spread with mashed cream cheese. Cover with canned figs which have been drained and sliced. Top with nut bread and cut as desired.

Chicken and Vegetable Salad Sandwiches: Cut up the contents of one 8-ounce can of chicken, add drained canned peas, chopped celery and chopped pimiento. Moisten well with mayonnaise. Spread on buttered whole wheat bread and add a crisp lettuce leaf.

Pineapple Chocolate Milk Shake: Shake together one-half cup chocolate syrup, one cup evaporated milk or fresh cream, one cup pineapple syrup, one cup water and a little cracked ice. Shake and pour into the thermos bottle. This makes four drinks.

Cherry Tarts: Line scalloped tart tins with pastry. Drain cherries from a No. 2 can of red pitted cherries and cook the juice with two-thirds cup sugar until glazed. Drain again and cool the cherries; then divide between tart shells. Mix one-half teaspoon cornstarch and one teaspoon cold water and add to the syrup. Cook until thick. Pour over cherries and bake in a hot oven about fifteen to twenty minutes.

STATE AGRICULTURAL DEPT. APPROPRIATION IS $157,000.00

the various agricultural services in 1917 totalled $101,105.

Department Created

In 1919 the department of agriculture was created and the legislature really began to take a heartfelt interest in the affairs of the farmer. The sum of $236,135 was appropriated for the following purposes: Administration, farm markets, weights and measures, tubercular cattle, state veterinarian, horticultural inspection, state fair and the Lewiston livestock show, and the bureau of fairs, pure seed and poultry shows. The largest single appropriation was $90,000 for the state fair and the Lewiston livestock show.

Reviewing the progress of the department to date, we find that the cost of governmental services to agriculture had mounted in 24 years (from 1895 to 1918) from $2100 to $236,135—a rather startling quarter of a century's growth, even for a government bureau.

Decreases Noted.

Subsequently, it is noted, material decreases were effected in the department's appropriation requirements. The $90,000 appropriation for the state fair and livestock show was lopped off. A resume of the biennial appropriations for the department follows: 1921, $145,000; 1923, $131,000; 1925, $125,000; 1927, $152,000; 1929, $158,000, and in 1931, 157,000.

During that period of time the legislature tacked onto the department additional functions as follows: Plant industry, animal industry, the bureau of dairying, emergency livestock disease control, white pine blister rust control and black currant eradication.

Legislative appropriations do not represent the entire amount spent each biennium by the department. Inspection and license fees collected by the department are also used to defray its expenses. In the 1929-1930 biennium this class of collections totalled more than $210,000. These fees, however are collected from individuals in return for a specific service such as inspecting shipments and scale testing and therefore are not tax monies.

VOL. XLIII GENESEE, LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, MARCH 25, 1932 NO. 40

FINAL RITES FOR PIONEER HELD AT VALLEY CHURCH

Funeral services for the late Louis Anderson were conducted at the Genesee Valley Lutheran church by the Rev. Roger P. Oliver, pastor, with Rev. A. L. Swenson of Our Savior's church, Moscow assisting, the latter singing a solo and reading from the scriptures in Norwegian by request of the family. Mrs. William Anderson, Moscow also sang solos, accompanied by Miss Nelson of Moscow.

Service at the grave was conducted by Rev. Oliver, the pallbearers being Hans Iverson, Tom Anderson, Oscar Nordby, Nels Lande and Einar Johnson, Genesee, and Andrew Erickson, Moscow.

Louis Anderson, a pioneer of the Genesee Valley, was born at Vaaler Prestigield, near Christiania, Norway, now Oslo, on the 23rd day of September, 1843, and as a young man came to the United States first residing at So Saint Marie, Mich., and from there went to Goodhue County, Minn., later to Fergus Falls in the same state, following his trade during this time as a stone mason. In 1876 he homsteaded in Grant County, Minnesota and in 1883 he married Miss Mali Haave at Fergus Falls, there being born to them two sons, Albert, deceased, and Joseph, who lives with his family and mother on the 160-acre farm purchased by the deceased in 1902, shortly after the family came west from Minnesota. The place is five miles north of Genesee and has been the home of Mr. Anderson since' coming to Idaho with the exception of 12 years, from 1917 until 1929 when Mr. and Mrs. Anderson lived in Clarkston.

Mrs. Anderson, the surviving widow is also a native of Norway, her home being near Trondhjem.

Besides the widow and son, Joseph, there survives, one brother in Norway; two nephews, Fred Anderson, Nez Perce, who was present for the funeral, and Hjalmer Anderson of Woodburn, Oregon and a grandson, Alton Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Anderson.

A brother, Sam Anderson, two years his junior, passed away at Wheaton, Minn., January 29 of this year.

The deceased has always enjoyed good health with the exception of slight attacks of rheumatism until March 4 this year, when he was taken ill, being removed to the Inland hospital, Moscow, where, on the 16th of March at 9:45 a. m. he passed away, medical and surgical science being of no avail at his advanced age. He passed away as though in sleep at the age of 88 years, five months and 23 days.

EASTERTIDE.

There's a song in my heart at Eastertide
When the buds of promise blow
A song of peace and happiness
Tender and sweet and low.

A song of the good I hope to do
As the years go drifting on,
Of a deeper faith in my fellow men
E're life's short day is gone.

And the door of my heart swings open
For the stone has been rolled away,
And that still small voice is saying—
Christ is risen indeed today.

REGISTRATION OF VOTERS STARTED MONDAY, MAR. 7

Books for the registration of voters in the coming primary election, May 24, were opened Monday, March 7, by Mrs. Lester Hayden, registrar for the Genesee precinct.

Registration requirements for the primary election are somewhat confusing to some, thus the following information is given:

"No elector having voted at the last general election in such precinct shall be again required to register therein for a primary or general election; but, if he has moved his residence to another precinct, he may register in such other precinct or he may procure a transfer of his registration to such other precinct."

The question has arisen on precinct boundaries, some assuming that the precinct boundaries as defined by the city in its election governs the boundaries for the coming primary and general elections. This however, is misleading, as the Genesee precinct covers considerably more territory than the town proper, and no one is required to re-register, providing he has maintained a residence in the Genesee or any other precinct.

Should one remove from one precinct to another the following information is useful: "When a registered elector desires to remove his residence from a precinct where he is registered or has already removed his residence therefrom, he may, at any time before the registrar has closed registration books apply to the registrar either in person or by registered mail to have his name stricken from the registrar and the registrar must then strike the name of such elector from the register, and shall deliver to said elector a transfer certificate, which shall entitle the elector to be registered in any other precinct in the county, if it be filed with the registrar of such other precinct at any time before the close of the last day of registration," which for the primary is May 24.

K. C. GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY PROGRAM ON AIR MARCH 29

Genesee members of Knights of Columbus and families will gather at the K. C. hall Tuesday evening, March 29 to participate in the Golden Anniversary of the founding of Knights and Columbus. An oyster supper will be served promptly at 7 o'clock ard at 8:30 the nation-wide broadcast of a special program in observance of the anniversary will be received. Following the program cards will be played and while the entertainment committee has not made definite arrangements, it is thought there will be a few hours of dancing.

Special Feature

As a special feature of their Golden Anniversary observance, the Knights of Columbus will sponsor an unusually fine radio program, which will be broadcast March 29 at 11:30 p. m. Eastern Time, which will be 8:30 Pacific Standard Time, over a nation-wide network of National Broadcasting company stations. Supreme Knight Martin H. Carmody, of Grand Rapids, Mich., head of this organization of 600,000 men, will be the speaker. Charles Hackett, principal tenor of the Chicago Opera company, and Anna Case Mackay (Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay) who has achieved outstanding success with the Metropolitan Opera company, will provide the musical features. of the program. Both Mr. Hackett and Mrs. Mackay are artists of international fame and radio listeners are assured of a rare musical treat.

Charles Hackett

Charles Hackett made his debut in 1919 at the Metropolitan in New York, his first operatic apearance in this country, when he sang to a great triumph in the "Barber of Seville." Since then he has sung in opera and in concert in the principal music centers of the world. His recent tour of Australia was one of the outstanding triumphs of a career that has known many.

Mr. Hackett, who is 42 years old, was born in Worcester, Mass. He made his first public appearance as a singer as a member of the Glee club of the Worcester high school. He went to Boston soon after and obtained a position as soloist in a church choir. There his gifts won instant recognition. His success was so decided he went to Italy to develop himself as a singer. He made his Italian debut on opera in Genoa and was immediately engaged to sing in the famous LaScala in Milan. His triumph there made a brilliant career certain. South America demanded him for a tour and he sang there at the celebrated Colon Opera in Buenos Aires. His success was such that he was reengaged for two seasons and later sang in the Municipal Theatre in Rio de Janiero, Brazil.

At the invitation of Arturo Toscanini, world famous leader, he returned to LaScala for the reopening of that famous institution in 1922. His reconquest of musical Italy was immediate and complete. Subsequent appearances at Monte Carlo brought him new laurel. Then followed his success in Paris and his return home for greater glories. Mr. Hackett had the honor of sharing Dame Nellie Melba's farewell performance at Covent Garden.

His appearance on the Knights of Columbus radio program March 29, will be a treat universally appreciated by lovers of the best in music.

Anna Case Mackay

No American singer has had a career more varied than that of Anna Case Mackay, nor has any singer started more definitely at the bottom and risen more definitely to the top.

Coming from a family in very ordinary circumstances, she spent the early years of her life in South Branch, New Jersey, contributing in her small way to the support of the household. Even at this time she gave evidence of the musical talent that was to bring her fame. At the afe of fifteen she was organist in a church at Neshanic, N. J. She could sing, too, and from the salary of $12 a month that she received for playing the organ, she saved enough to pay for her first vocal lessons.

Her original savings, however, did not go very far toward the thorough musical education that she desired and that was merited by a talent as fine as hers. She enlisted the aid of a local teacher of piano, who took a personal interest in his enthusiastic and ambitious young pupil. At the urging of this teacher she went to New York to study with one better

GRAIN MARKET REVIEW WEEK ENDING MARCH 18

Wheat prices declined sharply during the week ending March 18, and feed grains turned weaker, influenced by the lower wheat market, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Burdensome domestic supplies, lack of any serious damage to the new winter wheat crop, continued heavy marketings of southern hemisphere grain and weakness in securities, were the principal weakening factors in the wheat market, and future prices at Chicago declined to the lowest point since mid-January. Cash prices were lower with futures. Corn and oats weakened with wheat, but a dull demand also was a weakening factor. Barley had independent strength because of the continued active inquiry from the drought areas.

World Wheat

Relatively large world supplies were a depressing influence in the general market situation during the week. The world's visible supply, according to trade estimates, totaled 639,754,000 bushels, or nearly 5,000,000 bushels more than at the corresponding date last year. U. S. stocks comprise a large percentage of the world's total, since stocks in other exporting areas are below a year ago. The Australian crop estimate has been revised upward to 190,170,000 bushels and, together with the carryover of old wheat and flour, and supplies in Argentina, give a total southern hemisphere supply of 449,495,000 bushels, or about 30,000,000 bushels less than a year ago. Shipments from these countries since the first of January have amounted to over 106,000,000 bushels, compared with less than 81,000,000 bushels for the corresponding period last season, so that remaining supplies appear to be around 55,000,000 bushels below those at the corresponding date a year ago. Stocks in Canada available for export are around 40,000,000 bushels smaller than last season, largely as a result of the short crop. Harvesting of the new northern hemisphere winter wheat has begun in India. Yields below average are in prospect as a result of inadequate moisture during the filling period, but the acreage is the largest since 1918.

While the recent cold weather probably caused some injury to the domestic winter wheat crop, no serious damage has yet been reported. Some freezing occurred in the Upper Mississippi and northern Great Plains areas, where the snow cover was inadequate and the more advanced crop suffered some damage in the Ohio valley. Crop conditions in Europe, outside of Russia, appear to be somewhat less favorable than at the corresponding date last year, although final crop outturns will be largely determined by conditions during the coming month. Some damage from winter killing has occurred in the countries of the Lower Danube and in a few sections of northwestern Europe, particularly in Poland and Germany. Additional rainfall is needed in Spain, France and Italy, but conditions in these countries are generally favorable, with no serious injury to growing crops yet apparent. In eastern and northern Europe dryness and cold weather, with lack of adequate snow covering, is threatening damage to winter seedings.

European Grain Markets

European grain markets were somewhat irregular. English markets weakened slightly under the influence of continued liberal offerings, altho demand was fairly active and deliveries were only of moderate volume. Native grain in Continental markets held firm and inquiry for foreign wheat was more active following the recent changes in milling regulations. The French milling quota of foreign wheat was increased to 30 per cent.

Pacific Coast Markets

Pacific coast markets followed most of the decline at eastern points. Demand in the Pacific Northwest was confined almost entirely to domestic mill inquiry since both exporters and export flour mills were unable to obtain any new business during the week. The decline in prices, however, placed both wheat and flour nearer prices of competing wheat. Sales from Washington and Oregon to California were rather limited, with resellers making most of the sales to that state. Marketings slackened since farmers in some sections of the Big Bend district were getting into the fields for spring work. Soil and moisture conditions were reported excellent.

Auto License Due April 1.

Owners of motor vehicles are being warned by the department of law enforcement through its traffic officers that March 31 is the last day when cars or trucks with 1931 licenses may appear on the highways.

Traffic Officer Harry Clark is emphatic in calling the attention of motorists to procure their new plates before April 1, for two reasons: No explanation will be accepted for driving with old license plates on April 1 and thereafter, and to avoid the last-minute rush at the assessors' offices.

HIGHEST WATER RECORDED HERE THURSDAY EVENING

Thursday afternoon and evening recorded the high water mark for this year, when a two-day rain started the heavy snow in the upper Cow Creek and Blaine countries to melt and seek its way down the valley. Waters at several places covered the highways and spread over the flats, receeding in a few hours after sundown when the rain ceased and the wind died down.

Friday as the mercury rose and showers fell more water was sent down Cow creek, but at no time did high water become threatening as the stream was clear of ice and slush.

The last of the high waters was noticeable Saturday afternoon and evening, there being no damage reported throughout the three days of high water.

Saturday afternoon a heavy rain fell at Genesee, the precipitation being greater the farther north one traveled, but this rain was of short duration, sufficient, however to swell the stream of water coming down Cow creek.

The rains of last week and warmer temperatures had a telling effect on the snowdrifts located on the north and east slopes, but many of them will remain for several weeks yet as they became deep during the continued blizzards of the winter months.

Several landslides have been reported where the hillsides are steep, the worst, perhaps, being on the Vollmer place being farmed by Sam Lange.

Train service was interrupted Friday by high water at Uniontown, and it was until late Saturday that service was resumed, the mail being delivered, however, by motor vehicle.

Train service was completely demoralized on the Northern Pacific into Lewiston for two days, and Orofino was without an outlet for about the same length of time, it being impossible, owing to high water, to travel either by train or motor.

UNION PRESIDENT TO TALK.

John A. Simpson, president of the National Farmers Union will share the radio program to be broadcast Saturday, March 26 from 1:30 to 2:30 Pacific Standard Time, with Senators Wheeler, Frazier and Thomas, who will talk over the N. B. C. hookup on farm legislations.

This is a program similar to others which have been broadcast in the interests of farmers.

Daughter is Born.

Mr. and Mrs. James Archibald are the parents of a daughter, born at the White hospital in Lewiston, Wednesday, March 23.

STATE WILL OIL HIGHWAYS IN THE GENESEE TERRITORY

According to an Associated Press dispatches from Coeur d'Alene, 25 miles of the North and South highway will be oiled this summer. This announcement was made by J. H. Stemmer, state director of highways for Idaho.

Included in the oiling program are 11 miles of the Genesee-Thornecreek section of the North and South highway and 14 miles south of Genesee, on which the cost has not been estimated.

An elaborate highway oiling and construction program for north Idaho, to be started as soon as weather permits, was outlined by the director of highways. About $3,000,000 will be available in the entire state for highway work this year, and if the federal emergency bill is passed about $1,500,000 more, Stemmer said, but he could not estimate the amount to be spent in north Idaho. Nearly every county in the north would have some of this work, he said.

The work outlined will include besides the Genesee work:

Potlatch north to Tensed, on Palouse highway, improvement of ten miles of grading, surfacing and drainage at $15,000 a mile, and if emergency federal road funds bill passes, an additional 10 miles at $15,000 per mile.

Cottonwood-Craigmont, oiling seventeen miles at an estimated cost of $34,000.

Whitebird and Culdesac hills, 31 miles oiling, estimated $100,000.

Lawyer's canyon road in Idaho county on North and South highway, four miles, grading, surfacing and erecting concrete bridge, estimated cost $28,000.

Whitebird-Slate Creek, 12 miles of reshaping and surfacing on North and South highway, contract to be let and work to begin soon at cost of $400,000.

Riggins-Golf bridge 1.9 miles of grading, draining and surfacing, bids to be let March 14, estimated cost $60,000.00

Other projects include 25 miles of graveling on North and South highway at Riggins and New Meadows.

State aid funds will also be used in building a bridge and approaches at Santa on the North and South highway.

Election Judges Hold Over.

Election officials for Genesee precinct will be the same for the primary election, May 24, as those who were in charge at the last general election, with the exception of those who have changed their voting status, by removal. The officials last general election were W. W. Burr, F. E. Dicus, Martin Hasfurther, Maggie Bottjer, Charles F. Ebel and Edwin Smolt.

For many years each political party paid the expense of officials at primary elections, but under the new Idaho direct primary officials are paid from the public treasury, at the rate of $4.00 per day.

Officials for the Lenville precinct will be B. Brigham, Percy Kinnier and Ray Kennedy as hold-overs from two years ago.

"FALL OF THE DRAGON"
BY THE REV. E. M. HEGGE

Dinners for the Poor

A special effort was made on Christmas day to give dinners to the poor and had all Christian activity been suspended, there would have been no such pleasant sights, such as was seen when these poor hungry and ragged souls were given nourishment.

An example of how badly this help is needed is shown by the discovery made when the Rotary club decided to give a dinner to poor boys. They gave a dinner at the Y. M. C. A. at noon on Wednesday, the 24th, to 200 poor Chinese boys. The selection of the boys who were to be the guests of the Rotary club was left to the Salvation Army as they are the one organization in closest touch with the poorest of the city. When the selection was finally made it was discovered that 25 per cent of those chosen had not clothing enough to venture out into the open air. When this was made known to the Rotary club, 50 suits of clothing were provided and presented without humiliating publicity.

It is beyond me to understand how the poor boys and girls can keep alive. I recall one boy who had received food from one of the missions, sitting curled up munching on a raw turnip, and all he had on was a half of a burlap sack. Otherwise, on a cold Christmas morning when we were none too warm in our heavy clothing and blankets, this boy was running around practically naked. Although America is far from majority Christian, there is enough Christianity to have formed a social consciousness to forbid such things as that. But here they are common.

Other Side of Story

Perhaps it is about time to again call attention to the fact that the sordid is not all there is to China. There is much that is winsome and attractive about the people once you begin to understand them. We came to love the Chinese and no words of mine will be able to describe the parting with those of our household, the servants.

We had taken in a widow who had often been beaten because neighbors thought she was full of devils. She was so dirty that for several days we had to have her sit on the porch and sew. After a course of instructions by Mrs. Hegge and when several bars of soap had been consumed, we allowed her to work inside. Never will I forget as she stood with tears streaming down her round brown face and saying between sobs, "Pastor Hegge, we will never meet in China country, but we will meet in the heaven country."

Therefore, not as a propagandist nor as one having an axe to grind do I tell you of the dark side comprising such a large part of the average Chinamen's existence. (Witness the phenomenal exit from China proper to Manchuria of over one million a year) but simply to give unvarnished facts to people who like to learn all they can about their brothers and sisters across the seas.

Proud and Conceited

The Chinese as a nation are proud and perhaps somewhat conceited. Unless we watch our step, we Americans might inoculate our national blood stream with the same bacteria. Maybe we have already. America is powerful and her lofty place might effect her as China's geographical isolation inflated her and caused the Chinese to think more highly of themselves than they ought to have thought. Once this came to my attention, it changed my entire attitude. Although this tendency to be conceited has brought much unnecessary trouble to China, we believe she is coming more and more to know herself.

Revolution of 1927

How well I recall the Revolution of 1927 when Oriental hatred was being poured out on England. Posters were put up showing a large Englishman grinding a helpless Chinaman under his heel. Others showed the English wading in blood up to the knee. All this done to arouse abnormal hatred and it accomplished its purpose as propaganda always does in time of war. Here are a few head lines taken from the Hankow Herald during those frightful days of 1927.

"S. Burmeister, German, hacked by coolies' knives."

"Thousands of coolies inflamed by student speeches—launch attack on British concession."

"Dramatic scenes at Sianfu when siege is lifted by Seng's men."

"City finally delivered by Kuomingtang after many starve to death—food handled as if precious gems by hungry hordes of deceased who barely kept body and soul together during siege of months."

And what the effect of this upon the Chinese? How many soldiers I interviewed I have forgotten, but I have not forgotten the many who upon being questioned, wished China would declare war on Great Britain. It was the sincere belief that China would win.

Tragic Observation

Having lived in the midst of both armies, of the north and south, and watched them at war from my front porch, the opinion that China is formidable would be amusing if it were not so tragic. Foreigners with that opinion obtain it through statistics and looking at those numbers thru American eyes. The Chinese inherit that opinion. An opinion, like a habit, is not easly thrown off when it has been a dear possession over centuries of time.

Here are a few quotations from state papers of the 19th century in which reference is made to foreign peoples. The information can be found in Messrs. Backhouse and Bland's "Annals and Memoirs of the Court of Peking" (London, 1914) pp. 322-325, 382-385. Here is a mandate from Chien Lung to King George III.

"You, O King, live beyond the confines of many seas, nevertheless, impelled by your humble desire to partake of the benefits of our civilization, you have dispatched a mission respectfully bearing your memorial. . . . I have perused your memorial; the earnest terms in which it is couched reveal a respectful humility on your part, which is highly praiseworthy. In consideration of the fact that your ambassador and his deputy have come a long way with your memorial and tribute, I have shown them high favor and have allowed them to be introduced into my presence. To manifest my indulgence, I have entertained them at a banquet and made them numerous gifts."

Here is another imperial mandate expressing indignation at the actions of Lord Amherst in refusing to perform the kotow:

Reproof Is Hot One

"Such gross discourtesy is utterly unprecedented; nevertheless, I administered no severe reproof, but confined myself to ordering their immediate departure from Peking. As the mission was not received in audience your memorial, strictly speaking, should not have been presented, but I remembered that your country is afar off, and that the feelings were praiseworthy which led you to memorialize us and send tribute. Your envoys are alone to blame for their gross breach of respect; I fully recognize the spirit of reverent submission which animated you . . . You live at such a great distance from the Middle Kingdom that these embassies must cause you considerable inconvenience. Your envoys, moreover, are wholly ignorant of Chinese ceremonial procedure, and the bickering which follows their arrival is highly displeasing to my ears.

"My dynasty attaches no value to products from abroad; your nation's cunningly wrought and strange wares do not appeal to me in the least, nor do they interest me. For the future, O King, if you will keep your subjects in order, and strengthen your national defenses, I shall hold you in high esteem, notwithstanding your remoteness.

"Henceforward, pray do not trouble to dispatch missions all this distance; they are merely a waste of time and have their journey all for nothing. If you loyally accept our sovereignty and show dutiful submission, there is really no need for these yearly appearances at our court to prove that you are indeed our vassal. We issue this mandate to the end that you may perpetually comply therewith."

Foreign Barbarians

To millions of Chinese the foreigner is a barbarian. Few live long without being described in these endearing terms by illiterates, "There goes the foreign devil." The following communication is not from a rickshа puller but a governor named Loo:

"The great ministers of the celestial empire are not permitted to have private intercourse by letters with outside barbarians. If the said barbarian eye throws in private letters, I, the governor, will not at all receive or look at them . . . To sum up the whole matter: The nation has its laws; it is so everywhere. Even England has its laws. How much more the celestial empire! How flaming bright are its great laws and ordinances! More terrible than the awful thunderbolt! Under this whole bright heaven, none dares to disobey them. Under its shelter are the four seas. Subject to its soothing care are ten thousand kingdoms."

Feeling is Natural

These mental attitudes may seem to some as being insignificant but to a student of political science, they will mean much. It will account for many things that now puzzle Occidental minds. As Harley MacNair in his book on "China's International Relations" (Shanghai, China, 1926) declares:

"The point to be noted, however, is that regardless of the varying tones to be found in these documents there is no doubt of the sincerity of the beliefs in the minds of China's rulers that China is superior to all other nations on earth. Hence the statement that the psychological is second only to the geographical explanation of the underlying difficulties between China and foreign nations."

Once Very Powerful

Thus, as we try to understand China (Occidental ignorance is inexcusable except on the grounds of mental laxiness, which none of us wish to confess) let us ever keep in mind that this attitude on the part of China is a result of the fact that China in her own sphere was once powerful. She was surrounded by a group of satellite states, and there was no civilization to compete with her's nearer than India, thousands of miles away. Nearer than this, there could be found no temples and other monuments to equal those of Peking.

And no one can see the decaying ruins of the Lamah temple, the Altar of Heaven, the Summer and Winter Palace, the Forbidden City, without being overcome with a feeling of sadness as these crumbling wonders speak of a nation once mighty but now helpless and weak?

There has been several contributing factors to China's downfall but the writer wonders if she faces a more desperate problem that her roving, inhuman, uncontrollable bandit hordes. To compare our bandit problem and especially those which have made Chicago famous, or rather infamous is—well, you decide for yourself when we have painted a few verbal pictures.

Banditry as a Business

The tendency toward exaggeration goeth about as a raging lion seeking whom it may devour. Happy is the man who ever keeps on the guard against his common foe. But once in my life I found it impossible to exaggerate and that was in trying to give a true picture of China's awful bandit problem.

No tongue can tell nor pen describe the suffering inflicted by these heartless hordes as they terrorize the countryside.

True, the province of Honan in which we lived was the hot bed for the largest robber bands but regardless where they are found they are incarnate fiends. Before I had even seen these rascals at their hellish business I asked a friend of mine, who had been in their hands over 30 days, if they were bad. He gave me this reply, "I can't imagine hell to be any worse than to be in their hands."

In 1925, for two weeks, it was my privilege to make a tour of inspection with our mission superintendent, a man who had been in China about 25 years. The purpose of the trip was to visit the stations in the bandit infested districts. Spurred on by the American spirit of adventure I was delighted when permission was given me by the superintendent (and my wife) to accompany him. The first night I was to be initiated by having our host send us off to bed with the comforting suggestion that one of us had better take the rifle and the other a big green stick.

Nothing happened except that we lay awake. Long will I remember his thrilling accounts of personal experiences with robbers. Bandit stories, like those from the pen of Edgar Allen Poe, always give the biggest "kick" between ears and three in the morning. Take for example this true account. At one of the stations we visited, robbers had been very active. Fortunately the missionaries had escaped before they came. As the bandits rushed into the house they yelled for the "Yang Jen," the foreigners.

Make Inspection Tour

"Catch them and we will cut their heads off," and like cries rent the air. One bandit found some saddles. I had had the "painful pleasure" of riding in one of them for a distance of thirty miles. "Here are saddles," he cried, "the foreigners are out in the barn." But no foreigners were to be found there either.

Shouts of triumph went up when they found a small safe. For a long time they pounded it and finally managed to get open. They were a surly lot when they found it empty. But some skeptical reader asks, "How do you know all this?" A fair question.

Before the bandits came, some of the native Christians crawled through a small opening under the large house. The bandits not finding the foreigners, left after some hours, not knowing that many ears had taken in everything. This occurred in the summer. In that section of China it is very warm and damp. Snakes are plentiful. They like the dark cool shelter under houses. When these Christians crawled under, they found plenty of company. But after they came out, they remarked to a friend of mine: "It was awful to be under there but it was better to be with snakes than up in the house in the hands of bandits."

Bandit Chieftans

Often I hear people ask, "What are Chinese bandits?" One is quite accurate in saying that for the most part Chinese bandits are soldiers who didn't get their pay and with their leader, mutinied. They are, therefore, armed with modern army rifles and pistols. They are to be found in bands ranging anywhere from fifty to several thousands. One of the most famous bands was that under the chieftain, "White Wolf." He passed through Kioshan, where he were stationed a few years before we moved to that place. No regrets not having seen him.

It is hard to believe but I was told his hand was so large that, although riding two abreast, when he entered a city 30 miles away his last horsemen left the place they had just plundered. Single file, it would be 60 miles of terror.

No wonder in many a surface well as high as 30 bodies of women were dragged out. They had thrown themselves in rather than fall into the hands of the rotten, ruthless robbers.

It may be of interest to know that the so-called Christian general, Feng Yu Sheng, had a unique way of keeping ex-robbers from getting into his army. One requisite on the part of a recruit was that he have a cue, or as we say "pig tail." Upon being taken into the army, this was then cut off. All soldiers shaved their heads, hence it was a safe bet that if a man had a cue he had never been either a soldier or robber. No matter what might be said of this so-called Christian general, for or against, no one who has even seen his soldiers will deny that, compared with the rank and file of Chinese soldiers, they are head and shoulders above all in every way.

Immorality was punishable by death. I cannot recall the punishment for drinking. One of the happiest moments of my life was the time our city expected to have the protection of some of his soldiers. Instead, we had to content ourselves with robber soldiers, who later mutinied one never-to-be-forgottn Saturday night and started to swoop down on our mission compound, but were driven off by a volley of shots from a group of loyals on the city wall.

It is a dark moment when a city is to receive a regiment of soldiers sent for protection. Stores close their doors, women hide and people stay indoors waiting to see what will happen. But not so when news comes Shower for Mrs. McVay.

A surprise bridal shower was given Mrs. Wm. McVey, nee Miss Evangeline Foster, Wednesday evening at the apartments of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Zell. A line on former love affairs led Mrs. McVay to numerous cobwebbed gifts in the rooms. A mock wedding was much enjoyed, the wedding party marching into the room to the music of "Smile Darn You Smile." Mrs. Harold Hallman acted as flower girl; Miss Ida Foster,, bride; Miss Evelyn Flamoe, bridegroom; Mrs. Kenneth Whiteside, best man; Mrs. Archie Putnam, maid of honor and Miss Esther Clark, minister.

Fortune telling by Miss Clark and booklets made by the guests occupied the remainder of the evening. The booklet, "Baby Days" was made by Mrs. Kenneth Whiteside and Miss Esther Clark "Childhood Days," by Mrs. Hazel Mostard, Miss Ida Foster and Mrs. Archie Putnam; "Sweetheart Days" by Miss Marie Lande, Miss Evelyn Flamoe and Miss Mary Mullaley; "Future Days" by Mrs. Harold Hallman and Mrs. Bruce Wardrobe.

Other guests were Miss Aileen Zell, Mrs. Grant Clark, Mrs. Ida Mulalley, Mrs. Tom Foster and Mrs. Riker.

Luncheon was served at the close of the evening.

Bachelors Entertain.

Messrs. Forrest Durbin, Al Olsen and Paul Parks entertained Wednesday evening in their apartments at the F. A. Smith home for Misses Thelma Melgard, Bertha Nelson, Rose Jutte, Mrs. Margaret McCoy; Paul Mulalley, Dr. and Mrs. N. M. Leavitt and Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Smith. Bridge was played at three tables, high score for the ladies going to Miss Rose Jutte and the consolation to Miss Bertha Nelson. High for the gentlemen went to Paul Mulalley and low to Forrest Durbin.

Table decorations for the luncheon served were in keeping with Easter season as were the prizes, the high score award being an Easter lily.

OFFICIAL ADMINISTRATION COSTS MOUNTING STEADILY

Despite recurring biennial pledges of economy, not only the cost of government but also the actual cost of official administration has continued to grow steadily over the 40 year period that has elapsed since Idaho embarked upon her career as a state.

It is the political history of our state that well-meaning candidates who have succeeded in electing themselves on platforms advocating reductions in governmental expenses find, once they are in office, their hands tied by convention, expediency and necessity, to say nothing of duly enacted laws. It is one thing to promise reductions and entirely another to achieve them, as many a good candidate has learned to his sorrow.

Of course the task of administering a state government is much more complex that it was two score years ago; still the essential functions of the various state officers have changed but little in that time and one is hardly prepared for such decided increases in costs as the records show.

Governor's Expenses

Let us consider, for illustration purposes, the office of chief executive, its duties of supervision and control being the same, theoretically at least, as they were 40 years ago.

In 1891 the governor's appropriation was $7,850, this amount including the chief executive's salary and the expenses of his office for a period of two years. The governor's salary at that time was $3,000.

The 1931 legislature appropriated for the governor's office a total of $27,325. The increased cost during the 40 year period was $19,475. Where the questions arises, does this additional money go? What duties does the governor have today that he did not have in 1891.

It is obvious that the additional cost is not in the governor's salary. He now receives 5,000 annually, or $10,00 each biennium, only $4,000 more than received by Governor Shoup back in 1891.

Therefore it must be concluded that the increased cost is in what might be termed the incidentals of administration.

Employees Increase

We find that a large part of the present appropriation for the governor's office is expended for personal services, or in salaries to new employees who have been added from time to time to assist in carrying on the ever-growing details of administration. At present there are four regular employees in the office. They receive a total of $22,800 each biennium. In addition the sum of $200 is provided for "extra help."

The present governor has a private secretary, an office secretary and a stenographer. The greatly increased demands upon his office have made these assistants necessary for efficient administration. That they be capable and render honest service in return for their wages is the chief executive's responsibility.

From the total appropriation for the governor's office, $23,000 is expended each two years for personal services, leaving, we find, the sum of $4,325 for other expenses.

Incidentals

What are these other xpenses? They are stationery, stamps, telephone and telegraph bills, railroad fares, hotel bills, meals, typewriter ribbons, pencils, pens, paper clips, gasoline, tires, batteries and dozens of other small but essential articles whose combined price over a period of two years runs into considerable money. That there is no extravagance in their purchase is again the governor's responsibility.

The need for these things, like the need for additional help, has come with the changing of methods of transportation, communication and business, the judicious use of which doubtless enables a much more efficient administration that would otherwise be possible.

More affairs demand the present governor's attention. His presence is required on short notice in various and frequently widely separted parts of the state. Many questions of industrial and economical importance come to him for decision. He must, at home and abroad, preserve the dignity of his office. He is, if he gives his job the attention and time it deserves, a very busy man and the employment of time-saving and energy-saving devices constitute a real economy.

Horse Killed Under Rider.

Craigmont Register: The black saddle pony, belonging to Arthur Zolber was instantly killed Tuesday morning when it came in contact with an electrically charged pipe.

Steve Thomas who was riding the pony at the time, was crossing the grounds of the Farmers Union Oil company, the pony stepped on the pipe which conveys the gas from the tank to the electric pump and was electrocuted.

When the horse fell Steve was thrown about 15 feet and was slightly bruised. He went back to where the animal lay and put his foot on the pipe and received a charge himself.

RULES OF CONTEST

We are offering two prizes, first $1.50 in merchandise, second $1.00 in merchandise to the persons who present at our store on or before April 1, the best story centering about the skull displayed in our window, which was found in the Snake river not far from Council, Idaho.

1. Story can be either in prose or poetry.
2. Story must not be over 800 words.
3. Story must mention Genesee Drug company.
4. Story must be written plainly.
5. Story must be written on one side of paper only.
6. Subject must be about skull.
7. Essay must be not later than April 1, 1932.

The person whose skull has been found may have met death by snake bite, drowning, fall from a horse or other injury or may have died of starvation, or it may be that the person was attempting to escape from officers. Indications are that the skull is not more than two years old and is that of a man well along in years. Tell your story—it may win the prize.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Genesee came into her own Friday night when it met and defeated the splendid Rathdrum team on the Uni. of I. court. Such a game has never before been witnessed in that gymnasium. Two hundred twenty-five strong, accompanied by a fife and drum corps in a special train from Genesee, of four coaches, was the way Genesee turned out to the game.

At no time during the game was either team more than two points ahead and at the close of the first half the score stood 9 to 8 in favor of Rathdrum. When the timekeepers' final gun fired, the score was tied, 16 to 16. The enthusiastic fans saw the two teams called back to play for two points, saw Genesee fumble and the star Rathdrum player throw a field goal, the ball circling the rim and fell outside the basket. Then Rathdrum fouled, Gray threw the basket and Genesee had one of the two points; Rathdrum fouled again, persisted in fouling. This time Gray, knowing the championship rested upon a basket calmly measured the distance with his eye and threw the sphere. True as a die it spun thru the basket, spelling the biggest victory Genesee even won, and carrying with it the championship of the Inland Empire and the state of Idaho.

Each side threw 6 foul goals. Field goals were scored by M. Wardrobe 2; J. Wardrobe 1; A. Wardrobe 1; Gray 2, and Gray threw the 6 foul goals. The championship team follows: Chas. Gray '13, Andrew Wardrobe '12; John Wardrobe '12, James Keane '12 and Melvin Wardrobe '13. Herbert Martinson '13, was manager of the team.

MARY SCHLUETER SECOND HIGH IN UNI. RIFLE MATCH

University of Idaho—In the closest match ever fired between the two teams, the University of Idaho men's rifle team defeated the women for the campus championship by a score of 773 to 770, a difference of only three shots. The men also won a dinner at which the losers will be hostesses.

Thomas Neilson, St. Maries, led the men to victory by hitting the bullseye 99 times out of 100. He was followed by Ale Morgan, Kellogg, 96; Frank Tussing, Fruitland, 96; Max Yost, Boise, 96; Russell Betts, Southwick, 96; John Prichard, Moscow, 96, and John Baumgartner, 96.

Ora Spoor, Sandpoint, led the women with a score of 98. Mary Schlueter, Genesee, made 97; Catherine of Reardon, 96; Marie Bertram, Payette, 96; Anna Lee Hughes, Donnelly, 96; Marie Rosenau, 96, and Winifred Himes, Post Falls, 95.

Neighbors of Woodcraft.

Neighbors of Woodcraft entertained for their families and friends on Monday evening instead of holding their regular lodge meeting. Twelve tables enjoyed cards during the evening with high score for the ladies going to Miss Edna Rosenau and low to Mrs. Walter Jain. High score for gentlemen was won by Peter Dallasego and low by Robert Broemmeling. Delicious refreshments concluded the evening's entertainment.

Find Roads in Poor Condition.

Local highways have deteriorated more than usual during winter months but have not suffered as much as the highways around Orofino and Nez Perce, said Dale Lanphere, who made a trip into that section Sunday, in company with George Carbuhn.

The newly constructed highway along the Clearwater into Orofino is in very poor condition; the grade in one place is completely washed out and slides have been numerous since the snow began to melt.

The two men went to Nez Perce and drove over the narrow highway to Orofino where one had to be careful in passing cars. The narrow road, together with its soft shoulders made driving hazardous, it being necessary to exercise care in passing. Wherever gulches intercepted the highways the high water this spring has cut the grades and moved large sized boulders. Scores of small bridges have been swept away, and it is almost certain that after high water this spring it will be necessary to construct numerous other bridges to protect the grades.

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT LIMITS LOADS TO 3500 LB.

Drastic measures have been necessary to save highways in this part of Idaho, the most recent ruling being the limitation of total load to 3500 pounds and placing a limit of 30 miles per hour far cars and 20 miles for trucks. These ruling practically bar all truck travel from state highway, and while it actually excludes the use of heavy passenger cars, they are being permitted to travel if not too heavily loaded.

Moscow has been hemmed in by closed and badly rutted highways, it being necessary to travel through Genesee, Uniontown or Colton if going to points in Washington. Roads between Pullman and Moscow were and are yet in poor condition, and for a time travel was completed barred.

Elk River and Bovill was cut off by bad roads early in the week, no travel whatever being permitted until the roads began to settle.

GOVERNOR FAVORS HAND LABOR ON STATE WORK

Governor C. Ben Ross officially lent support to the movement started here early this month to secure hand labor designation for all roads over which the state department of public works and the highway bureau have control, wherever practicable, says the Lewiston Morning Tribune.

The Tribune further reports bureau officials would instruct district engineers of the plan at once and see to it that all possible work is done by hand labor, especially rehabilitation work after storms, and general maintenance jobs.

Governor Ross, accompanied by Joseph Stemmer, director of the highway bureau, arrived in Lewiston from Potlatch at 2 p. m. Tuesday and left Wednesday for Boise. He said the highways between Lewiston and Potlatch were very soft. He has been for 10 days touring the highways and inspecting conditions.

Burton-L. French, member of the house of representatives from Idaho, and John Thomas, senator, have replied to the Lewiston chamber of commerce of favorable progress made in the movement to confine highway improvement work to hand labor, both state and nationally financed, in Idaho this year.

The chamber of commerce, the Nez Perce County Taxpayers league and Lewiston Valley Grange No. 300 had backed the hand labor idea as a stop to unemployment, in letters to Washington and Governor C. Ben Ross. The Nez Perce county and Lewiston organizations had declared that if highway building in the state this year were let to hand labor, the entire unemployment problem in this state would be solved.

Thomas inclosed a letter from T. H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads, which reads in part:

"This bureau has been approving provisions in the specifications or contracts for federal aid projects where inserted by the state highway department to provide for a preference for local labor, other conditions being equal, and for the preference to hand labor where same can be done with reasonable economy and without unduly augmenting the cost of the work. Reasonable provisions which may be submitted by the department of public works of Idaho in connection with federal aid projects in Idaho will be given careful consideration and if found to be in line with the general policy applied in other states, no doubt will meet with approval.

French, in his letter, said he had conferred with the forest service officials and those of the bureau of public roads. French declared state approval of hand labor would probably be the deciding recommendation in nearly all projects.

French said, in part: "I pointed out that Engineer Walter of the reclamation bureau told me in 1931 that 200 men plus machinery were doing as much as 1,000 plus machinery did 25 years ago. It seems to me that we must have regard for the placement of people thrown out of work by machinery in a way that we have never done before . . . "

Blue Bird Club.

The Blue Bird club was entertained Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. Herman Isaksen. Needlework for the children's home in Lewiston, furnished work for the ladies during the afternoon at the close of which Mrs. Isaksen served a two-course luncheon. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Iverson, Billie Borgen and Mrs. Nora Kramer, the latter of Seattle. The next meeting will be with Mrs. August Johnson.

NOTICE TO DOG OWNERS.

Those owning dogs on which the tax is unpaid for the year 1931 are notified to keep such dogs off the streets, otherwise they will be impounded and disposed of.

Dog tax for the year 1932 is due and payable April 1.

"FALL OF THE DRAGON" BY THE REV. E. M. HEGGE

that soldiers of Feng Yu Sheng are coming.

Doors are thrown open, happy natives throng the streets and it is a grand sight to see this army enter a city and in place of drawn swords, wave in their hands a New Testament and march along singing, "Onward Christian Soldiers, Marching as to War."

More About Bandits

I recall a large city north of us that had been held by a large band of robber soldiers, and finally driven out by Feng's men. During the siege, the civilians always suffer the most. The robbers gather up all the available food for themselves. If a merchant should refuse to give over the materials they might want—there is only one argument, namely, a bullet through the head. In one place, however, the natives thought of a very cruel way of saving their horses.

Robbers ride them hard and therefore are constantly in need of fresh animals. The farmers, knowing that a blind horse to the robbers would be as good as no horse, blinded their animals by running long pins into their eyeballs. Even to them, the value of the horse was greatly reduced, but to the farmer a blind horse was better than no horse.

Human Flesh Sold

Having to be at the mercy of such merciless ruffians, you will not have difficulty in believing the following: When the siege of the city referred to was finally lifted, every rat, cat, dog and other eatble animal had been killed and devoured. Human flesh was sold on the streets. Wheat had soared to an unbelievable figure.

Theft no longer proved profitable. Rich people lay dead in the streets with their costly robes and jewels. People had ceased to care for these things. What they wanted was food. What food could be had was handled like precious gems. Those who finally escaped were mummified in appearance. What Chinese are able to endure always puzzles the occidental.

On the trip of inspection referred to in one of the recent articles, we came to a certain city the day after 1,000 robber soldiers had occupied our large mission compound. Such a filthy mess I hope never again to see. It is hardly conceivable that human beings could live in such surroundings.

House Torn Down

Rather than attempt a description, the action on the part of our missionaries might indicate how bad it was. The house of one of the foreign workers had been occupied with privates. After one month's residence the place had become so saturated with filth that renovation was impossible and the house had to be torn down and rebuilt.

I had the pleasure of sleeping in the compound one night and I had to scratch myself for days.

By far the worst phase of banditry is the wholesale way in which they at times slaughter helpless citizens. I was in this city of which I have just been telling about, a year before bandit soldiers besieged it. Like all cities it swarmed with human beings. The next time we came it actually looked like the abomination of desolation. Few, if any, people were on the streets.

We were told that every door at least had had one dead person in front of it. As the panic-stricken people tried to escape by jumping over the city wall, they were crippled or killed by the fall or shot down by the robbers. Bodies were piled in long rows outside the city gates. Sherman was right when he said, "War is hell," but as bad as it is when occidentals fight, it is without mercy when oriental robbers take a city.

Chinese Women to be Pitied

It would be possible to go on but these articles will be drawn to a close with a story of a young girl who is typical of many to be pitied Chinese girls and women. The account is a fair example of the power of Christianity to help when all else fails. Under the so-called Ethnic religions the status of womanhood is not much better than that of a slave. I have talked with many boys who felt their mothers were good enough to carry out garbage, but not much more. It is not surprising that she whose name to us is "the name of God on the lips and in the hearts of children" is not more highly regarded.

It is too bad that our occidental women do not realize that their exalted position is not the outcome of education and industry but finds it source in the manger at Bethlehem. The following story is from the pen of a Chenese girl named Kate Ting and was given to us by the principal of the school in which this girl was a student during our stay in Peking during 1924.

"I was born in the province of Hupeh, in the country of the Mienyang district. My parents had a farm that brought sufficient income for a good living. My grandfather was a teacher. In the beginning of my parents' married life they lived peacefully together, but because of my father being an opium smoker, a gambler, and leading an immoral life, they did not agree and quarreled continually.

Father a Waistrel

"In this way my father wasted all he possessed—fields, house and the household goods had to be sold one after the other, and soon our family was reduced to poverty.

"One day my mother told my grandmother, that she wanted to go outside and earn some money. My grandmother consented, and so my mother went away, taking me with her. My mother did not tell the truth, but went away to live with a man with whom she had recently been unfaithful. This man was also an opium smoker, the family being likewise poor. He promised me to go out and shop with him, promising to buy me some nice things. I believed his words and went with him, never to see my mother again. He sold me as a slave girl to a family named Tai.

"This family Tai pitied me and did not insist that I should do work for them, because I was so little, being only seven years old. After a few months I became very sick. At first they did not think it was a very serious illness, but later found out it was smallpox. As the illness became more severe, they became afraid of me. They also found out that I had become blind and then they did not care at all, so for some days no one at all was looking after me.

"When the servant woman came again, she told me that they were talking of either hanging or drowning me. After she had told me this, she went to a neighbor who was a Christian of the Alliance mission. She knew of the blind school in Hankow, so she went there and told the principal of my case. When Mr. Clayton heard the story he felt sorry for me and told Mrs. Cheng that she should bring me to the school.

I was eight years old when I came to the school. Good nourishing food, milk and codliver oil helped me soon to recover.

Learns to Read and Write

"In the blind school I learned to read and write. I also heard the gospel, but in the beginning I could not understand any until the Holy Spirit opened my heart and by and by I could understand that the Lord Jesus came down to the world to die for sinners. I realized that I was a sinner and that Jesus died for me on the cross and gave His precious blood for me, to cleanse me from all my sins that I might become righteous and holy. I saw that Jesus was my Savior in whom I put my trust. When I was 12 years old I was baptized on Easter Sunday.

"Soon after the school in Hankow was closed and I was brought to the blind school in Changsha to hear the teaching of the gospel.

Prayers Answered

"At 16, I developed tuberculosis. I prayed to the Lord to make someone willing to pay for my support, and the Lord answered my prayer. He moved theheart of a servant of God (a German business man) who has been praying for me since then.

"Because of a weakness, I was not able to graduate, but the Lord has given me strength again, so that I am able to do a little knitting for which I am very thankful.

"I know that the Lord's grace has been with me all my life. All these bitter experiences of my life, the Lord has used to lead me to Himself and to get His blessings. He has led me from my very childhood and let the light of Life shine into my heart so that I must not be in darkness spiritually, but am enabled to walk in His light. Therefore, I will praise His grace which He has shown unto me in such a manifold way."

Idaho Falls Mayor Seeks Governorship

Barzilla Clark, Idaho Falls' mayor has announced his candidacy for the democratic nomination of governor of Idaho, and while Governor Ross has not announced himself, there is little doubt existing that Clark and Ross will be the outstanding candidates on the democratic primary ballot for governor.

Byron Defenbach is the only announced candidate of the republicans and it may be that he will have clear sailing, although the day of opeying day for filing, March 25, may bring out other candidates for the nomination. Queer things, politics, mostly guess, until the ballots are counted.

Mayor Clark, representing Idaho Falls, and Gov. Ross, former mayor of the Gate City, should provide an interesting campaign for the upper Snake river country. Both cities take considerable pride in their achievements, and it may be that the same will be true in relation to their candidates for the highest office in the state.

Barzilla Clark, an advocate of conservation of natural resources, was not the brightest hope as a candidate in the Idaho Falls mayoralty contest, but he did, however, emerge with the greatest number of votes. He will not have a clear path to election in his home town, neither will he be without keen opposition in the state as a whole. Governor Ross has been able to meet many Idaho people while at the helm of state business, which will undoubtedly mean many votes for him, or perhaps the opposite.

The race between Ross and Clark will undoubtedly be the most interesting in the state.

Joel Grange to Build New Hall.

Troy News: Members of the Joel Grange, at a meeting Friday evening decided to build a new grange hall for their community, and plans were made to start work on the building this Spring.

It will be located in a small grove near the highway to Troy, a site formerly occupied by the Blaylock store, which burned several years ago. Leroy Thompson, Carl Sumner and Peter Peterson were named a committee to draft plans for the building and report.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

In the District Court of the Second Judicial District of the State of Idaho, in and for the County of Latah.

John Kusturin, Plaintiff,
vs.
Otto H. Lemberg, Defendant.

THE STATE OF IDAHO SENDS GREETINGS to the above named defendants:

You are hereby notified that a complaint has been filed against you in the District Court of the Second Judicial District of the State of Idaho, in and for the County of Latah, by the above named plaintiff, and you are hereby directed to appear and plead to the said complaint within twenty days of the service of this Alias Summons;

That in general terms the statement of the nature of the cause of action is as follows:

For foreclosure of that certain real estate mortgage, wherein you are a mortgagor and the plaintiff is mortgagee, which said mortgage was made on the 19th day of September, 1930, and bearing Reception No. 115118, and which was filed of record on the 20th day of September, 1930, at 4:05 P. M., and duly recorded in Book 56 of Mortgages, Page 412, in the Records of the County Recorder of Latah County, Idaho, covering the following described real estate:

North half of the Northwest Quarter (N½ NW¼), Section Thirteen (13); South Half of the Southwest Quarter (S½ SW¼) and the Northeast Quarter of the Southwest Quarter (NE¼SW¼), Section Twelve (12), Township Forty-one (41) North, Range Five (5), West of the Boise Meridian, County of Latah, State of Idaho; and you are further notified that unless you so appear and plead to said complaint within the time herein specified, the plaintiff will take judgment against you as prayed in said complaint.

WITNESS MY HAND and the Seal of said District Court, this 11th day of February, 1932.

(Seal) HARRY A. THATCHER, Clerk.

By Rose Rawson, Deputy Clerk.

THOMAS FEENEY, Attorney for the Plaintiff. Address, Moscow, Idaho.

Some Grain Winter-Killed.

Current reports are that some grain has winter killed in the Genesee section, especially that which was sown late last fall. No estimate, however, has been made as fields are too wet for examination. Several fields of barley have been reported as showing winter-kill and damage by freezing following the disappearance of snow from fields, and it is expected that there will be considerable loss of grain where snow drifts have covered the lands for so many months, this condition occurring only on north and east slopes. Some damage has been accounted for also by erosion, but in general fields have not suffered much from washing this spring.

Little or no thought is given to entering fields for several weeks yet; farmers in most instances awaiting for the weather to settle before considering spring work.

The squirrels have now been out about two weeks, a few reporting them earlier. They have come out in many places through the drifts of snow, and they are not in as good physical conditions as during the average year.

equipped to develop the full beauty of her voice.

She made her Metropolitan debut in 1910 in a small role, the Dutch boy's part in "Werther," by Massenet. Up to the time of her debut she was the only American accepted by the Metropolitan Opera company without European training.

For eight years she sang many roles, among them Sophie, which she created in this country in "Der Rosenkavlier"; Michaela, in "Carmen," with Caruso and Geraldine Farrar, and Theodora in "Boris Godounoff." She preferred concert singing, however, and since 1916 has appeared in America and Europe on the concert stage, averaging fifty to sixty engagements a year. She has scored triumphs in every state of the Union, establishing herself as one of the foremost of American sopranos.

Her motto is "Cultivate your soul," and she will add, "The outstanding characteristic of genius is originality." That characteristic she most certainly has. When she sang in Berlin not long ago, a critic wrote, "You cannot compare art such as hers with that of the usual soloist or cold oratorio reader. I shall never forget her standing on the platform of Beethoven Hall in all her lovely beauty, unconsciously turning herself into the different personalities of her songs."

THE GENESEE NEWS

VOL. XLIII GENESEE, LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, APRIL 1, 1932 NO. 41

ASSOCIATED STUDENTS WILL SPONSOR SMOKER ON APRIL 9

The boxing, tumbling and wrestling program for April 9, promises to hold plenty of thrills and amusement for athletic fans, says Coach Parks, who is preparing for the benefit of the Associated Students a card to raise funds to meet the deficit in the athletic treasury.

Continuing Parks says, the University of Idaho tumbling and wrestling teams are sending five tumblers and two wrestlers to Genesee on the night of April 9, to open the show with a fine tumbling and wrestling exhibition.

Following this program local fistic and grappling bouts will take place on an elevated ring in the middle of the gymnasium, the program to start off with three wrestling bouts. A battle royal will serve as the opener. Six or eight boys will be turned loose in the ring at the same time, the last one standing up wins the contest.

The finish event of the evening will be a three-round fight between Geo. Miller, Genesee, and Charles Litchfield, a 147-pound battler from Lewiston.

There proves to be much talent in and around Genesee. Kendell Olson and Paul Mulalley throw leather at a lively rate. Cliff Wishard and Wilford Cameron are speedy, hard fisted fighters. In the high school class we find Geo. Smylie and Russ Rinehart vieing for the greatest number of contacts with each other's chins.

In the miniature class we have "Whirlwind" Everett Wishard vs. "Thin-'em-Down" Billy Emerson, both aged 9. Billy Edwards of the public school and Gene Grieser of the Sister's school will give the crowd something to talk about.

In the grappling ring we find a tough match between Jim Kane and Wilson Esser, both tipping the scales at 180 pounds. Albert Nagel and Ralph Broemmeling, both at about 152 pounds, will try to place the other's shoulder blades to the canvass in 8 minutes. Leonard Flamoe and Chas. Baumgartner will settle a long disputed question, as to who is the best bone crusher, before the crowd.

This promises to be an evening of rare entertainment for at least two hours.

The combined Genesee-Uniontown band will also be on hand to enliven the program.

Returns from Seattle.

Walter Emerson returned Wednesday from Seattle where he attended a general meeting of Ford dealers, who were called to Seattle to view the New V 8-cylinder Ford.

It is expected that the new Ford will be on display in this territory Friday and Saturday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith Grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Smith on Monday, March 28 became grandparents of a daughter, born to Mr. and Mrs. Martin Druffel of Colton, Wash. The baby has been named Midge Ellen. Mrs. Druffel was formely Miss Wanda Smith.

April 1 is the date set for the Junior Prom, at the high school gymnasium, Genesee. Allen's music.

K. P. Charity Social.

About forty were present at the Charity Social, given by the Knights of Pythias at their hall Tuesday evening. Mrs. Wolfe and Miss Daggett of the Lewiston Children's home were present as representatives, and gave an interesting talk on the problems which they must meet. About $20.00 worth of edibles were contributed to the home by those present.

Music, cards and dancing furnished the amusement for the evening after which a lunch was served.

OLD TIME POPULIST PAPER IS FOUND UNDER HOUSE

Roy Huffman, in making alterations at the home occupied by his family found a copy of "The Peoples Monitor," dated Friday, August 21, 1896. This newspaper, on the date mentioned was in its third year of publication and from news contained therein was published in support of the Populist party at the time when William Jennings Bryan was advocating or rather demanding unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the ratio of 16 to 1. Considerable space is devoted to the gold and silver democrats and republicans, though it is presumed the paper advocated a fusion of the Populists with the Democrats.

M. E. Lawson was editor of the Monitor and the subscription price was $2.00 per year; advertising rates were 50 cents per column inch and the editor had a wife and seven children.

Jno. P. Vollmer at the time was conducting a harvest sale; the S. & P. livery stable was of service across the street from Rosenstein's store; the Moscow-Genesee stage was operated by I. F. Russell; Bressler & Scroggin were in the hardware and implement business; A. Christopher was bidding for the drug store business; W. J. Herman was in the furniture business; J. L. Armstrong had the Central Ferry; J. J. Daggett was one of the tonsorial artists; Geo. Steltz conducted The Genesee Supply Store; M. Donzac, sold Milwaukee beer at Lewiston and invited people to visit the Log Cabin; Chas. Mochel had first class rigs at his livery stable, known as the P. of G. stable; the Alexander store was selling coffee at 20 cents per lb.; The Waverly hotel was first class in every respect, with Cool & Monaman as the proprietors; W. R. Hickman was in business at the east end of Main street and had well-fitted and good rigs for hire, his livery and feed stable drew the especial attention of traveling men; E. R. Follett was in the harness business, and the professional men were Drs. J. L. Hayes, F. S. Beck, W. B. Reese, J. L. Conant; Attorneys Forney, Smith & Moore, Moscow; Lagett, McNamee & Morgan, Moscow and J. W. Reid, Lewiston.

Union Ships Hogs.

Ninety-two head of mostly prime hogs were shipped to Spokane by the Genesee Union Warehouse company Tuesday. These hogs were brought in by local farmers and road conditions are such that in most instances the owners were compelled to drive them afoot, heavy loads being prohibited on state highways.

DOMESTIC WHEAT SUFFERS DECLINE DURING THE WEEK

Domestic wheat markets suffered further declines during the week ending March 25, influenced largely by the continued slow demand for the large remaining supplies, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. While prices of hard winter wheat reached a parity with those in other exporting countries, export sales were negligible and domestic mills furnished practically the only outlet for current offerings, which were near the lowest point of the season to date.

Crop developments and the rate of disappearance of the world's wheat surplus remained the dominant factors in the general wheat market situation. Recent freezes set back the domestic wheat crop in some areas, but the actual damage is still uncertain. In western Kansas much of the wheat was frozen down and soil blowing was also harmful. The condition of the winter wheat dropped 3 points to 80 per cent in Nebraska, with an estimated abandonment of 12.5, according to the mid-month report.

About 16,967,000 acres of spring wheat other than durum will be seeded this season if farmers carry out their intentions reported as of March 1. This represents an increase of about 5 per cent over the acreage seeded in the spring of 1931 and of 53.3 per cent over the acreage harvested last season, when dry weather caused an unusually heavy abandonment of spring wheat. Durum wheat seedings in 1932 will total 3,868,000 acres if farmers carry out their Mar. 1 intentions. This is about 1 per cent less than the acreage sown last spring, but represents an increase of 34.8 per cent over the acreage harvested last season. The harvested acreage of durum in 1930 was about 18 per cent greater than the acreage the farmers have expressed an intention of planting this spring, while the 1929 harvested acreage was about 30 per cent greater. The acreage sown to winter wheat in the U. S. last fall totaled 38,682,000 acres, according to the December estimate. The extent of winter injury to fall-sown wheat is still undetermined, but average abandonment will reduce the acreage for harvest to about 33,820,000 acres.

No important changes have been reported in foreign crop conditions. Scattered rains relieved the drought in France, but warmer rainy weather is still needed. Some freezing occurred in Germany, but milder weather now favors the crop. Warmer weather with rain improved conditions in Italy. Taken altogether, European crop prospects are somewhat less favorable than a year ago, because of the sharp freezing in March. The new Indian wheat crop is reported of good quality and trade estimates place the outturn at 346,000,000 to 348,000,000 bushels. Marketings of new wheat slackened in Argentina and exports for the week totaled only 4,313,000 bushels, while Australian shipments amounted to only a little over 3,000,000 bushels. About 376,000 bushels were shipped from Black Sea ports, including around 200,000 bushels of Russian wheat.

While smaller offerings from the southern hemisphere tended to increase inquiry for North American wheat, reported sales totaled less than 3,000,000 bushels including some Manitobas and hard winters to England and the Continent.

Pacific coast markets declined with eastern points but were influenced also by a continued lack of foreign inquiry and the slow demand from local mills and the California trade.

Intention to Sow About Same

The report issued by the division of crop estimates must be interpreted in the light of last year's crop failure in the spring and durum wheat areas. Farmers report intentions to sow about the same to spring wheat as last year, when drought in important spring wheat regions resulted in a heavy abandonment and an unusually small harvested area. They report to the U. S. department of agriculture intentions to plant 20,835,000 acres of spring wheat in 1932, which is an increase of 4 per cent above the 20,037,000 acres seeded in 1931, and an increase of 49 per cent over the 13,940,000 acres which they harvested in 1931. In 1930 they harvested 21,629,000 acres. For the spring wheat other than durum, the acreage intended is given at 16,967,000 acres, only 5.1 per cent above the 16,138,000 acres seeded in 1931, but an increase of 53 per cent over the 11,071,000 acres harvested last year.

SUMMARY OF K. C. GROWTH DURING HALF A CENTURY

On March 29, some 600,000 Knights of Columbus in the United States, Canada, Philippine Islands, Panama, Cuba, Mexico, Puerto Rico, Newfoundland and Alaska celebrated the Golden Anniversary of the founding of the Order. Unfortunately not one of the eleven original incorporators of the society will join in the anniversary observance. The last two survivors, William M. Geary and Cornelius T. Driscoll, of New Haven, Conn., died during 1931.

Founded in 1882

The story of the growth of the Knights of Columbus through fifty years constitutes a romantic and inspiring record. Back in 1882, Reverend Michael J. McGivney, curate at St. Marys church, in New Haven, Connecticut, perceived the need for a fraternal organiation that Catholic men could join without conscientious difficulty. He realized that some Catholic organization should be created that would combine solid fraternal benefits with the attractiveness of selected membership and secret initiation, yet which would not be oath-bound but secret only upon the promise of man to man, with this promise ever yielding to the authority of Church and State. He talked over his ideas with a group of men of his parish and at their third meeting the name "Knights of Columbus" was selected. Petition for a charter was speedily granted and, on March 29, 1882, the Knights of Columbus became the first national fraternal organization to be incorporated in Connecticut. The original incorporators were Reverend Michael J. McGivney, Reverend Patrick Lawlor, Matthew C. O'Connor, Cornelius T. Driscoll, James T. Mullen, John T. Kerrigan, Daniel Colwell, William M. Geary, T. M. Carroll, Battholomew Healey and Michael Curran.

Catholic and Patriotic

The conservative spirit that has been the order's safeguard was manifest from the very beginning. In spite of many applications, the founders were loath to allow the membership to increase rapidly, wishing to have a charter list easily manageable from the outset. It was decided that a ceremonial should be written in three sections, or degrees, the basis of the present first three degrees of the Order. It was further decided that only Catholic and patriotic allusions should be used in the ceremonial. The completing of the constitution required several months of research and its publication was deferred until the society found sufficient funds for this purpose in 1883.

The Fourth Degree, whose primary purpose is to inculcate a love of country and to stress the duties of citizenship, was added to the ceremonial in 1900. On Washington's Birthday, of that year, in New York City, 1,100 members received the new degree and this year, as part of the Order's observance of the Washington Bicentennial, exemplifications of the Fourth degree were held in more than forty cities throughout the country on February 21 and 22.

The election of the first Supreme Council was held May 16, 1882, and James T. Mullen was named first Supreme Knight. The first subordinate council was formed at the same time, named then, and still named, San Salvador, No. 1, of New Haven.

A Fraternal Benefit Society

The advance of the Knights of Columbus beyond the borders of Connecticut was inevitable. Had its development at this stage been in the hands of less capable men in controlling the action of the new machinery, the Order might have suffered from ill-considered and too rapid expansion. But the standard of membership was rigidly maintained. By the early Spring of 1892, councils had been instituted in more than sixty cities and towns of Connecticut, and Rhode Island, the membership exceeded 6,000 and the Order's existence as a factor in American life was well established.

Father McGivney conceived the Order as a fraternal benefit society and during the first ten years none but insurance members were accepted. In 1892, the Supreme Knight recommended that associate members be admitted and his recommendation was adopted. This was considered a radical move at the time but it was destined greatly to enhance the Order's power. By 1904 only five states of the Union were without councils of the Knights of Columbus and cities in these soon applied for and received

K. C.'s Observe 50th Anniversary.

As was the custom wherever there is a Council of Knights of Columbus, the local council celebrated the Golden Anniversary of the founding of the order of which there is a detailed account in the News this week.

The local observance was Tuesday night, March 29, opening with an oyster supper for members and their families after which the assembly listened to the national broadcast of the Golden Anniversary observance program, beginnig at 8:30 and concluding at 9 o'clock. A large radio from Smoft's store was moved to the hall. Cards were then played at 15 tables, the prizes in pinochle going to Mrs. Otto Kretschmer and John Kluss, high, and Irene Kries and Omer Kries, low.

At 11 o'clock the floor was cleared when dancing began, lasting until 1 o'clock, music being furnished by Mrs. Eugene O'Connor, Fr. Carey, John Broemeling, Paul Johann and Steve Johann.

HENRY LESTOE DIES AT BOISE VETERANS' HOSPITAL

A letter was received by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Odenborg this week stating that Henry Lestoe has passed away at the Veterans' Hospital in Boise last Wednesday. It was known here that he had been very low for some time and that during the last three weeks he was in an unconscious state most of the time.

The letter to the Odenborg family was from Fred Lestoe of Portland, a brother of the deceased, but he did not give any of the details of the funeral. Other relatives live in Portland and Adams, Oregon.

The deceased was a veteran of the late war and since his discharge has been in ill health, suffering from the effects of a weak heart.

AUGUST E. ZEUCH, 62, DIES DURING HEART ATTACK

August E. Zeuch, who for the past two years has suffered occasional attacks of heart trouble, succumbed to this malady Saturday morning about 11 o'clock when he was returning to his home in southwest Genesee. He came down town the morning of his death, and after eating his breakfast, purchased some articles of food for his noon meal. Frank Hoorman, who was returning to the office of the Genesee Union Warehouse company offered him a ride as far as the elevator which was gladly accepted. The deceased after leaving the car went to the highway west of the elevator and just as he passed the elevator he succumbed to the fatal attack. Ben Pleiman and Carl Simons who were loading grain into a car noticed the body of a person and gave little thought to it, thinking it might be boys at play tumbling down the incline near the railway tracks. On further notice the men saw it was Mr. Zeuch and they immediately notified the doctor and members of the Elmer Vanouck and H. B. Jones families, the body being taken to the Zeuch residence, occupied by the Vanouck family. The coroner ordered no inquest as it was positively known by the doctor and coroner that heart trouble was the cause of death, which was instant.

The deceased was born in Iowa, May 2, 1869, and is survived by one son, Martin; three daughters, Eva, Iva and Christine; two sisters, Mrs. Mary Bottleman and Mrs. Molly Carver, the later of Lincoln, Nebr., and the others residing in Iowa. He is also survived by a brother with whom he visited in July as he did with other relatives when he made a trip home last summer. He came to Genesee in 1920 and purchased a home in Sunnyside Addition and has lived there up to the time of death. He was a man who held many positions in life and "always gave everyone a square deal and an honest day's work," say those by whom he was employed. In his early boyhood he rode the plains and worked on the large ranch in Wyoming operated by the widow of Bill Cody. He also followed railroad work, having been a fireman on railroads in his native state and from 1900 until 1918 was employed by the Inland Railway company at Spokane, where he became acquainted with the H. B. Jones family, with whom he lived during a great part of the time while at Genesee.

In 1918 the decesed followed the life of a miner in the Coeur d'Alenes, prior to his coming here to live. Mr. Zeuch was a man liked by everyone and continually looked after the welfare of others in preference to his own, and is credited with being a cheerful giver in worthy causes.

Funeral services were held Monday afteroon from the home, the Rev. O. S. Barnum of Potlatch, conducting. Mrs. Robt. Emmett, Mrs. W. W. Burr, Mrs. V. A. Beckman and Mr. and Mrs. John G. Meyer comprised a choir under the direction of Mrs. W. M. Herman who was also the accompanist, singing appropriate selections. Pallbearers were Henry Koster, Elmer Vanouck, D. Scharnhorst, E. M. Becker, R. J. Zell and Robert McGarvey. Interment was in City cemetery.

When a Split Stick Was a Bank Check

Three hundred years ago when a man put money in an English bank his deposit was recorded by notches in a stick, which was then split, the bank keeping one half, the depositor the other half. Before money was withdrawn, the two halves had to be matched together. The depositor's half was called "Bank Stock," the part the bank kept was the "check." The modern check system would astound those 17th century bankers.

SUMMARY OF K. C. GROWTH DURING HALF A CENTURY

charters. Already represented in Canada, the society now spreads into the Philippine Islands, Mexico, Panama, Cuba, Puerto Rico and Alaska.

Today, with a membership of 600,000 in more than 2,500 councils, the Order has reached an eminence undreamed of by its founders. In ascribing this growth to its principal cause, the need of a society for Catholics that could offer social advantages heightened by a background of practical religion, we must not lose sight of the enormous amount of human energy required to build up the organization to international magnitude, achieving results unprecedented in the history of American fraternal societies.

$300,000,000 Insurance in Force

The Order carries on, through its Supreme Council and through state and subordinate councils, many various activities: charitable, social, educational, religious. Conceived as a fraternal benefti society, the Knights of Columbus was the first of the large fraternals to adopt completely a scientific plan of insurance. This was in 1901, when the insured members numbered about 32,000. Since that momentous change was made in its insurance system, the Order has established an enviable record in the operation and management of its insurance. The amount of insurance now in force is almost $300,000,000 and more than $35,000,0000 has been paid by the Order in death benefits to the benficiaries of insured members.

The Knights of Columbus has never permitted itself to be circumscribed within the strict limits of insurance benefts and social interests. It has from its very inception fostered and exercised the broader spirit of fraternity which signalizes the history of the society as a record of service to God, to country and to fellow man. The work of the society as a welfare agency is noteworthy.

Aid in Great Disasters

The Knights of Columbus was among the first to answer the appeal of the president of the United States for emergency relief for the stricken people of Japan, donating twenty-five thousand dollars; it was among the first to offer relief to the sufferers of the San Francisco disaster; it helped the flood sufferers of Colorado, Kansas, Ohio and Texas; the fire suffers of Chelsea, Salem, Ontario and northern Minnesota; the victims of the calamity at Halifax; it has assisted victims of destructive storms in Florida, Cuba, eastern Maryland, St. Louis and Poular Bluff, Mo; Rock Springs, Texas, and Newfoundland. Eight thousand dollars was expended for hurricane relief work in Florida, and five thousand dollars in Cuba in 1926. In 1927, fifty thousand dollars was given for Mississippi flood relief, and five thousand dollars for New England flood relief. In 1928, eleven thousand dollars was given for hurricane relief in Puerto Rico and Florida. In 1930, five thousand dollars was given for relief work in Santo Domingo, following the destructive hurricane that visited that island republic. The Order also carried on relief work in the drought areas, and for the past two years has cooperated with the president's organization for employment, during the first year finding fortythree thousand jobs for the unemployed. Wherever there has been any great public calamity the Knights of Columbus has been among the first to offer practical, substantial assistance to all sufferers.

During the Spanish-American War in 1898, the Knights of Columbus conducted relief work for the typhoid stricken soldiers, chiefly at Montauk Point, Long Island, New York, where the men in the army were quartered.

In 1916, when our troops were on the Mexican border, the Knights of Columbus erected buildings from the Gulf of Mexico to the Gulf of California, sixteen in number, furnished all sorts of clean, healthy amusement, and enabled those of the Catholic faith to have the benefits of religion at all times. This was done without any expense to the people of the country and entirely from the funds of the Order itself. At the end of this work the Order received most flattering compliments from those of military and civil life who had seen its work along the border.

It was this success in the work along the Mexican border that led the Knights of Columbus to offer its services to the government when war was declared in April, 1917. These services were quickly accepted, with the result that the Knights of Columbus entered into the work throughout this country and in Europe, even in distant Siberia, wherever soldiers or sailors needed help or assistance.

Work in World War

In the beginning the Knights of Columbus raised one million dollars for its war work from members. The needs of the situation developed so fast that the original amount was gradually increased, and the public was appealed to, with the result that approximately fifteen million dollars had been subscribed for the War Camp Fund at the close of the first year of war work. More than 26,000,000 was also received from the United War Work Campaign Fund.

When demobilization of the service men began, the Order established employment bureaus in the large industrial centers of the country, and was very successful in finding jobs for the men. Hundreds of thousands of former service men were assisted in this way.

In Canada, nearly $1,300,000 was entrusted by the people of the Dominion to the Knights of Columbus so that work similar to that accomplished for the American Forces by the Knights of Columbus of the United States might be carried on for the Canadian Forces. The Canadian Knights, operating under the name, "Catholic Army Huts," achieved a splendid record for efficient service during the war, and in the post-war period. Their work received similar recognition from the fighting men of Canada to that accorded the Knights of Columbus by the military and naval forces of the United States.

Post-War Contributions.

The Knights of Columbus contributed to the American Legion the sum of $50,000 to enable that organization to assist in extending material relief and succor to non-compensable or inadequately compensated ex-service men who migrated to the Southwest. In January, 1925, approximately $40,000 of this fund remained on hand. This was used by the American Legion to carry out its rehabilitation program, to aid in which the Knights of Columbus made a further donation of upwards of $30,000, making a total of $75,000 available to the American Legion for rehabilitation work for the ex-service men. The Knights of Columbus also gave $75,000 to the Disabled Veterans of the World War to enable that organization to maintain its office and work. A substantial contribution was also made to the Veterans of Foreign Wars to aid that organization in caring for ex-service men.

On June 30, 1927—more than ten years after the beginning of its war program—the Knights of Columbus discontinued its hospital welfare work in behalf of the disabled ex-service men, of which Knights of Columbus secretaries rendered personal service and distributed creature comforts, furnished entertainments, and provided athletic equipment for the some 40,000 ex-service men undergoing treatment in more than 450 hospitals throughout the country.

Praised by High Officials

With reference to the war work of the Knights of Columbus, Secretary of War Baker, speaking for President Wilson on August 6, 1919, at the Supreme Council meeting in Buffalo, used the following language in his public address: "I now have the honor, in the name of the President of the United States, Commander-in-Chief of the Army, of presenting to James A. Flaherty, Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus, this Distinguished Service Medal in token of his own high leadership and in recognition of the distinguished and conspicuous service rendered to the army of the United States by him and the great organization of which he is in command."

At that time also the French High Commissioner M. Marcel Knecht, speaking for the French Republic, bestowed the Cross of Knight of the Legion of Honor on the Knights of Columbus as a mark of appreciation of the splendid work done by them during the war.

President Calvin Coolidge, when Governor of Massachusetts in 1919, said: "Yours is in every sense a patriotic order . . . Your Order has ever shown its steadfast devotion to the American principles and American ideals. You are Knights of Columbus, a name of great significance . . There is no finer Knighthood. In it your noble Order stands resisting all evil counsel, supporting every patriotic cause, following the truth at every hazard, exemplifying anew the eternal principle, that 'the truth shall make ye free'."

General John J. Pershing, U. S. A., Commander of the American Expeditionary Forces in the World War, paid the following eloquent tribute to the Knights of Columbus in an address delivered by him, on April 20, 1925, at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, Boston, at the celebration of Patriots' Day: "Of all the organizations that took part in the winning of the war, with the exception of the military itself, there was none so efficiently and ably administered as the Knights of Columbus."

Many other similar commendatory statements by Chairman Fosdick of the Commission on Training Camp Activities, Premier Clemenceau, Marshal Foch, and other men of the highest standing in civil and military life, could be quoted.

School for ex-Service Men

The three outstanding features of the Order's educational work for the men who served in the war have been (1) the Evening Schools; (2) the Scholarships; (3) the Correspondence School.

When the war ended, the Knights of Columbus offered the ex-service man, without cost to him, evening courses in academic, commercial and trade or technical subjects to assist him to remove deficiencies in his educational training occasioned by the war, and to fit him for more attractive occupation and greater usefulness. The institution of these courses was the outgrowth of the highly successful educational work that had been carried on by the Order in the camps during the war for the men in service.

The Knights of Columbus Evening Schools for former service men were operated for a period of six years, beginning in 1919 and continuing to 1925. During this period one hundred and fifty evening schools were organized and maintained by the Knights of Columbus and in which a total enrollment of 313,916 students was secured. In addition to this number, 73,581 civilians were enrolled in these evening schools on a tuition-at-cost basis. Courses were given in commercial, technical and academic subjects, all prepared with the utmost care.

In 1919, the Knights of Columbus also offered the men who returned from the service, and whose college work had been interrupted by the war full scholarships in college courses leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science. The eligibility of all applicants was determined by the Boards of Entrance, and all ex-service men who qualified the number being four hundred and three, were awarded scholarships in 41 of the leading universities, technical schools, and colleges of the country. Two hundred and eighty-four of the original four hundred and three who enrolled received their degrees.

In February, 1922, the correspondence courses for veterans of the war were instituted. All were entitled to instruction in this school. Instruction was given in 85 subjects, and during the period of operation approximately 125,000 veterans were enrolled.

Many Educational Activities

Education has always occupied a prominent position in the activities of the Knights of Columbus. During the earlier years of its history, its educational work was exclusively in the hands of state and subordinate councils, and consisted of lecture courses, the establishment of scholarships in colleges, the placing of books in libraries, and other educational activities. Mention might here be made of munificent educational endowments made by many state councils of the Order. Also of that splendid educational contribution of Terra Nova Council, Newfoundland, which took the form of a completely equipped 12-room modern school building, with accommodations for 480 pupils, erected as a memorial to members of the Council who fell in the war, and presented by the Council to the Archdiocese of Newfoundland.

In 1904, the Knights of Columbus presented fifty thousand dollars to the Catholic University of America for the endowment of a Chair of American History at that institution. At a later date the Order provided a permanent endowment fund of $5,000 for 50 scholarships at the Catholic University of America. These scholarships are competed for annually by members of the Order, or sons of members who have completed, or are about to complete, four-year courses in colleges. These scholarships were established as an incentive to Catholic men to obtain university degrees.

Among other contributions for educational purposes might be mentioned $35,000 given to Cardinal Mercier for the restoration of Louvain University, and $38,000 for the Cardinal Gibbons Institute at Baltimore.

For years the Order has sent Peter W. Collins and David Goldstein thru the United States and Canada to explain the dangers of socialism and set forth the Catholic viewpoint on all of the questions included in the socialistic propaganda. These two men, each of them a master of the subject, profound students in Catholic doctrine, addressed two million men, probably two-thirds of whom were non-Catholics, during their lecture courses.

Fourth Degree Essay Contest

In 1923, the Knights of Columbus responded to the request of the Archbishop of Portland, Oregon, to aid him in his efforts to have the constitutionality of the so-called Oregon school law passed upon by the supreme court of the United States. In this important case the law that had been placed on the statute books of Oregon was found to be unconstitutional. About $25,000 was contributed by the Knights of Columbus in connection with this litigation, which indicates the interest and cooperation of the Knights of Columbus in this important matter which threatened the rights and liberties of millions of Catholic American citizens deeply concerned in the proper education of their children.

In 1930, and again in 1931, the Order contributed $5,000 for the Catholic Hour radio program under the auspices of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Essay contests on historical subjects with national and district prizes, have been conducted under the auspices of the Four Degrees for years past. The subject for the 8th Annual Essay Contest in the United States in 1932 will be "George Washington." All students of parochial, private and public high schools may compete.

In September, 1923, correspondence courses for members of the Knights of Columbus on a tuition-at-cost basis were instituted. More than 21,000 students from the Order have been enrolled in these courses to date. Later, the courses were made available to the families of members.

These correspondence courses have been prepared with great care and represent an up-to-date and progressive system of home study education. The courses of instruction are given in a great variety of subjects, including cultural, technical and commercial subjects. Only such fees are charged as are necessary to maintain a thoroughly efficient correspondence school. The cost of the courses varies from three to fifteen dollars.

Organize Historical Commission

To protect the United States from organized propaganda obviously designed to undermine the spirit of American nationality, the Supreme Council of the Knights of Columbus, held in San Francisco, August 3, 1921, organized a historical commission to encourage investigation into the origins, the achievements and the problems of the United States; to interpret and perpetuate the American principles of liberty, popular sovereignty and government by consent; to promote American solidarity and to

The CLOUD in the SKY

This is the title of the following editorial in a daily newspaper, quoting Roger Babson in a recent article as saying that

"The only cloud over the utilities is politics"

In a recent article, Roger Babson said that the electric utilities of the nation "are in a preferred position." In support of this he pointed out that 10,000,000 American homes are not yet served by electricity, that there is a vast and almost untouched field for the use of labor-saving electric appliances, and that utilization of power is constantly on the increase.

Then he said: "The only cloud over the utilities is politics . . Propaganda for government ownership is with us again . . The thing the industry fears is not reasonable regulation . . . but radical and oppressive laws aimed at destroying private operation."

It is common for those who attack the utilities to pose as "friends of the people." But it may be more logical to suppose that many of them—those who go in for misrepresentation and senseless vilification—are in reality enemies of the people. When they fight the utilities they are not fighting a great trust, owned by a few capitalists, but they are fighting a basic industry, owned by hundreds of thousands of Americans, an industry which supplies jobs and taxes on a scale equaled by few others.

This is not to say that utilities should not be criticized. It is possible that individual companies have gone in for financial operations that do not pass muster—but such isolated cases, if they exist, certainly give no grounds for seeking to destroy an entire industry. These attacks on the utilities, if successful, would scuttle our American principle of private initiative and enterprise and only an active and informed public can prevent it.

SUNDAY SCHOOL HONORS MOST FAITHFUL MEMBERS

Following the excellent Easter program at the Congregational church Sunday evening, presented by the children of the Sunday school, Miss Cicely Ann Herman presented her grandmother, Mrs. Hattie Herman with a potted plant and gave the following tribute to one of Genesee's dear old ladies:

"Forty-two years ago this coming summer, our little church on the hill was built and dedicated by Rev. Walters, with only a few charter members. We have with us tonight the only living charter member here in town, and in respect to Grandmother Herman's faithfulness to her church during these years our Sunday school wishes to present to her this little Easter token."

Miss Dorothy Follett also presented her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Follett, with a potted plant and paid them this deserving tribute:

"We also have with us tonight two other faithful members of our little church. They are not charter members, however, but have been members for forty years. They also were the first couple to be married in this church, 42 years ago this next November. In respect to Grandfather and Grandmother Follett's loyalty to their church, our Sunday school wishes to present to them this little Easter token.

M. P. BAILEY, STATE GAME WARDEN RESIGNS POSITION

"Cato, the Censor," political writer in the Boise Statesman, is ever alert with an ear to the ground, listening for important news of a political nature. When he predicted the retirement of M. P. Bailey as state game warden, little credence was given for his assumptions, which has been the case in many other instances. To substantiate his news release of recent date comes the following Associated dispatch from Boise:

M. P. Bailey, state game warden, resigned Saturday to accept a position as Pacific northwest sales manager for a California preserved fruit company. His resignation was accepted by Governor Ross to take effect at an early date to permit Bailey to take up his new work in Portland. He plans to move immediately with his family as soon as a successor can be chosen.

Bailey became warden last spring to succeed R. E. Thomas who was appointed state prison warden. He was appointed with the announced purpose of "putting the department on a business basis." Bailey began survey of fish and game conditions over the state.

An earlier prediction that he would resign brought from the southwest Idaho and southern Idaho sportsmen associations requests that he remain in office. He said he could not sacrifice a more favorable salary consideration.

A contributing factor, he said, was his disagreement with the administration policy of reducing salaries. Other than this disagreement he said, he had no conflict with the governor, and "enjoyed working with him during the past year."

"I came here at a salary less than I was receiving in my business in Moscow," he said. "But I felt two years in the department would give me experience in a new field. This new offer may not remain open for me to complete the two years, and I cannot afford to ignore it."

STATE ADMINISTRATION COST BOOSTED IN MODERN METHOD

The rapid change in methods of communication, transportation, bookkeeping, accounting and general business conducting that has taken place in the 40 years since Idaho became a state are directly reflected in the costs of state administration.

Without exception the expenses of all of the executive offices have increased steadily, irrespective of the political complexions of the various incumbents. Such a general growth indicates an unavoidable trend caused by the state's rapid development and public demand for more and diversified services.

A succession of legislatures has been continually adding new functions and tasks and duties and jobs to the legal obligations of the various offices, while subtractions of this nature have been practically negligible, making state administration today a much more complex job than formerly.

The Treasurer

The first treasurer of the state of Idaho required a total of $2,650 for the operation of his office for the two-year period, his salary being included in the amount. One person with a fair knowledge of the use of black and red ink could handle the simple bookkeeping of those days and still have time for leisure.

The 1931 appropriation for the office of treasurer was $28,240, more than ten times as much as in 1891. But during that 40 year period many additional funds had been created, new duties had been added and new requirements legally imposed, all resulting in a highly elaborate system of state financing that is a far cry from the simple bookkeeping of 1891. Five persons are now regularly employed in the treasurer's office, receiving $22,960 of the 1931 appropriation.

In 1891 the state auditor's appropriation was $5850. At that time this office had only 18 individual appropriations, most of them comparatively small, to keep track of.

The last legislature provided $42,685 for the auditor's office. But, in the meantime, state expenditures had increased from less than a quarter of a million to more than 19 million dollars annually and individual appropriations from 18 to more than one hundred. Instead of one, the auditor's office now has nine regular employes and $35,240 is expended each biennium for personal services.

The Attorney General

Idaho's first attorney general looked after the state's end of such legal questions as arose at a cost of $5,850 for the biennium. His task was simplified; men preferred to settle their differences out of court in those days.

But now it requires an expert staff of nine members to guide the commonwealth through the complicated legal tangles which continually confront it. Recent examples are the income, kilowatt and state bank tax controversies. The 1931 attorney general's appropriation was $54,590, and of that amount $47,000 goes to pay for personal services.

Idaho's school system in 1891 was supervised by a state superintendent of public instruction who required only $4,350 for the biennium's salary and expenses. At that time our educational structure was in its infancy, consisting of a few elementary schools with local control predominating.

Today, with our institutions of higher learning, our various kinds of public schools and the new methods of instruction, the task of educating our youth is much more complex. The 1931 appropriation for the state board of education was $65,048, $38,500 of which goes to pay for personal services.

Secretary of State

The primary function of the secretary of state is to preserve the records. During our first biennium of statehood this was accomplished at a cost of $7,585. But records in those days were few. At present a staff of seven members, receiving $29,480 of a $38,175 appropriation, is required to take care of the mass of documents that have accumulated and to attend to the recording of the various licenses, articles of incorporation and other business regulations and conveniences that have been wished on the department by the succeeding legislatures.

The comparisons made above reveal that the largest part of the increase in government administration costs since Idaho became a state goes for personal services, or salaries and wages, reflecting directly the penchant of the legislatures for creating new jobs and new duties.

exalt the American ideal.

A prize competition for the best studies based on research in primary sources in the field of American history and a board of five judges to award prizes totaling $7,500 was announced subsequently.

After careful consideration the major prize of $3,000 to Samuel Flagg Bemis, professor of American Diplomatic History, Whitman College, Walla Walla, Wash., for his monograph, "Jay's Treaty," and the undergraduate prize to Mr. Louis Morton Hacker, of Columbia University, for his study, "The Genesis of the Interstate Commerce Act."

Leisure Time Guidance for Boys

The Knights of Columbus made a momentous decision at the Supreme Council meeting in 1923 when it decided to undertake a program of boys' work. A survey made by the Boy Life Committee of the Order showed that there were practically no professionally trained Catholic men in this field, while millions of Catholic boys were in need of leisure-time guidance similar to that provided boys of other denominations.

Appreciating the fact that this professional leadership would not be adequate for the need, and that councils and individual members of the Order wanted to give their services to boys, the Supreme Council created two volunteer leadership training courses known as the evening boyology institutes and the summer schools of boy leadership. These boyology institutes are given for all men in a community and have been highly endorsel by civic, fraternal and clerical leaders as an institution which is helping to create a national boy consciousness. Twenty thousand men have attended these institutes, conducted in 80 cities. A significant feature of these institutes is that participation by every approved major boys' work organization permits of a comprehensive community program being established to serve the needs of all boys without any duplication.

In 1926, conditions in Mexico had made it necessary that the Knights of Columbus should undertake a campaign of education to the end that the people of the United States might not be misguided and misled by anti-Catholic propaganda disseminated by crafty and cruel politicians in control of the government of Mexico, as a result of which propaganda the American people had come to believe that the Catholic church was responsible for the deplorable conditions in the republic south of the Rio Grande.

The Knights of Columbus recorded its protest against the American government giving further countenance and aid to the communist regime in Mexico, and gave notice in August, 1929, that it would carry on a campaign of education so that actual conditions in Mexico might be made known, and the people of our country informed that such conditions menaced the liberties and institutions of free America. More than one million dollars was contributed by members of the Order for the carrying on of the Mexican work, a large part of which was used in relief work. Exiled bishops, priests, clergy and religious were extended pecuniary aid and assistance, as were also members of the Order and their families who had found refuge in this country.

At the convention in 1921 it was voted to raise an endowment fund of one million dollars for welfare work in Rome, in response to the request of the Hold Father. This endowment fund has been raised, and in addition thereto playgrounds and recreational facilities, representing a capital investment of more than five hundred thousand dollars, have been provided.

A New Racket.

Because his friends were bitten by a new racket, at Etna, Pa., reader asks the Pathfinder to warn its readers.

Here it is as he describes it:

"A man enters store, asks clerk for change for $1. Gets change. Goes to telephone and asks for number in loud voice. Second man enters store, buys small articles, gives $10 bill, receives change and goes out. First man finishes phone conversation, returns to counter and asks for some article. Fumbles in pocket and pulls out a $1 bill. Remarks, "That's funny, I had a $10 bill and a $1 bill and I must have given you the 10 instead of the one. I had the telephone number written on the $10 bill." The storekeeper or clerk looks into the register and sure enough, there is the 10 with a phone number written plainly on it. So he gives the man change. Of course, the two men are that much to the good."

To the Point.

A budding reporter was told never to use two words where one would do. He carried out this advice in reporting an accident.

"John Jones struck match to see if there was any gasoline in the tank. There was. Age 65."

THE LOW-DOWN FROM BOISE.

Nautical Paradox

The privilege we Boise folk
Enjoy is something great—
To watch the sailors at their work
Upon the ship of state.

The pilot is invisible.
You can't to save your soul
See how he manages, unless
It's by remote control.

Of governors who come and go
It's been our lot to see
Full many, but not one so fast
And frequently as he.

We begin to understand the slang term "skipper" for a captain or head man.

Our mayor, Jim Pope, is qualifying that-a-way, too. His council is lucky to catch him by the coat tails now and then, between speaking trips.

Week or so back Jim went to Ashton. Traveled from Pocatello on with Orr Chapman and Tommy Coffin. What would his W. C. T. U. supporters here at home say, if they knew he was in that kind of company?

Not once did the court in its opinion use the name with which Godfather Ben christened that child—"Property Relief Act of 1931." The supreme court, we fear, will be cited for contempt.

State Treasurer George Barrett has announced that as a sequel to the appropriations of the last legislature, larger than any in the state's history, actual expenditures for 1931 broke all records, and for the first time since the Alexander administration exceeded the year's receipts by three-quarters of a million dollars. Oh, well, there's the "inkum" and kilowatt taxes to help balance the budget.

A BOWL OF SOUP.

The carriage business is dead—has been for years. Down in Hometown, L. I., the "works" were closed except for odd jobs and occasional wagon repairs.

Recently, a man who had a fine driving horse on a nearby estate ordered a buggy so he could gratify a long felt desire to renew one of the chief pleasures of his youth—driving. That buggy had to be made special and the old men in the "works" were pleasantly busy for quite a while.

A couple of this man's friends, equally well-to-do, happened to come along just as he was preparing to drive away in the new buggy. After admiring it, one of them added this comment, "It's your money and of course you can spend it any way you please. I can't help thinking though of the man who stopped at my house this morning and asked for a bowl of soup. The price of that buggy would buy a good many bowls of soup."

"I think it did that and more," replied the owner of the buggy. And he was right. For a bowl of charity soup ends only in another and yet another. We want no soup line records. That buggy helped workmen buy their own soup—and meat, clothes, shoes, which in their turn helped to provide work for other men in other places so they also could earn, instead of buy, their bowls of soup.

If you and I and the other fellow, according to our means, would only shed our fear of criticism on the score of selfishness and buy a few needed things—even buggies if we found them useful, we'd do far more to bring about a return of business than by ladling out an ocean of "back door" soup.—Contributed.

This Is History.

"They'll never stop 'er!" ejaculated the Arkansas Hill-Billy as he saw a railroad train for the first time moving with great speed along the track. "They'll never start 'er!" he confidently announced when he saw the same train come to a full stop at a station. It is a common enough psychology. When business is flowing along at full tide there are plenty to declare they'll never stop 'er; and when business is stagnant, there are plenty to say they'll never start 'er. It is a psychology which accounts for booms and panics. But the train did start down in Arkansas, and the country has come triumphantly out of every panic.

A customer asked for a pair of shoes, size 9, and after being fitted told the "six" clerk to wrap up two pair, and then tendered him three silver dollars in payment for same. The clerk informed him very politely that the charge would be $6.00 for the two pair.

The customer called for the owner of the store and demanded, "Are you going to live up to the terms as stated in the window?"

"Certainly," said the owner.

"Well," said the customer, "any poker player knows that three of a kind will always take two pair."

"Yes," said the owner, "but not four nines."

IT WORKS—TRY IT.

Juggling figures is a pastime with some people. The following formula seems no more than a lot of figures, which of necessity must be different in each example, yet produce a given result. You know how many living brothers and sisters you have, and how many are dead of course. O. K. Follow out the following and you can prove what you know by the result.

Put down the number of your living brothers. Multiply it by two.

Add three.

Multiply the result by five.

Add the number of living sisters.

Multiply the result by ten.

Add the number of dead brothers and sisters.

Substract 150 from the result.

The first figure will be the number of living brothers, the middle figure the number of living sisters, and the last figure the number of dead brothers and sisters.

SCHOOL NOTES

In scholarship for the fourth six-weeks period the seniors again lead the list in high school with an average of 2.82. The freshmen are second with 2.37, the sophomores third with 2.30 and the juniors fourth with 1.82. Two students, one boy and one girl, made a straight A average and one boy and three girls have A- and seven girls have a B plus average. It gives the girls a decided advantage. Out of the thirteen highest ranking students the boys have won only two places, while out of the thirteen lowest ranking students all are boys.

Scout Troop Planned

The organization of the Scout troop has been going along very rapidly. The committee is as follows: C. Rinehart, F. A. Smith, D. C. Burr, T. H. Herman and E. S. Suenkel. The scout master will be Jack Vandenburg. Twenty-six boys have signed up thus far. There is considerable demand for a cub troop to take care of the ten-year olds. The troop will meet each Tuesday evening in the public school building. Tom Herman, Ambrose Foster, Thomas Sanford, Glenn Mayer, Bertie Wishard, Grant Longosty, Don Springer, Kenneth Aherin, Harold Suenkel, James Dresher, Dallas Flomer, Paul Osmundson, Warren Suenkel, Russ Rinehart, Bob Schooler, Ernest Craft, Gordon Foster, Richard Sampson, Wayne Roach, Dan Aherin, Gainfrod Olson, Bayne Hickman, Willard Rosenau, Wm. Baker, Robert Smith and Ashley Taylor are those who have signed up.

Senior Play.

It is undecided whether the senior play will be given April 22 or 29. The name of the play is "The Wisecracker" by Walter P. Swanker. The seniors are starting the work on it and hope to have it worked up in about three weeks.

Fifth and Sixth Grades.

The fifth grade in arithmetic has been finding what part one number is of another. Some find it very easy and have worked several pages ahead of the daily class work.

In our Weekly Reader we read a number of articles about Chief Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, so we made a study of poems written by his brother, Oliver W. Holmes.

Several good spring scenes were made by the fifth grade pupils to illustrate poems in their reading lesson.

The sixth grade will soon be finished with their history books. After we receive our book we will start a study of the Constitution.

Third and Fourth Grade

We have been studying many beautiful poems of late, and are learning to love them. Poetry takes the music of life and presents it magically before our eyes. "The Throstle" by Tennyson, we thought especially beautiful at this time. Occossionally we try our hand at verse.

My Brother

My brother's name in Dan,
At baseball he's a fan.
Although not so very big,
You should see him jig.
He was named after an uncle,
And wins marbles from Douglas Suenkel.
An elbow he once called his knee,
But some day a man he'll be.
—Gerald Pederson.

Brother Dies

Frank Hoorman received a telegram Thursday morning telling of the death of his brother, Rev. Fr. Ferdinand Hoorman, who passed away at a hospital in Milwaukee at 7:46 Thursday morning. Fr. Hoorman was 40 years of age and was ordained a priest in 1921, having his pastorate in Milwaukee at the time of his death. It is thought by his brother, Frank, that the body will be taken to Ohio, his former home and burial will be at Carthgena Seminary.

Frank Dygert and Jess Oylear went to town Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Anderson took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Brigham Tuesday evening. With Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Taber this made a party of seven that heard the finals of the Old Fiddlers contest from Pullman.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Kinnier took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Neal Kinyon Tuesday evening. They spent the evening listening to the finals of the Old Fiddlers contest.

J. W. Brigham, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Brigham drove to Moscow Wednesday.

John Williams and Fred Johnson drove to Lewiston Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Anderson entertained the following guests at dinner Thursday evening: Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Taber and Esther, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Kinnier, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kennedy and Donnie. The occasion was Mrs. Taber's birthday and she was presented with clever remembrances from each one present. The evening was spent in social conversation and guessing riddles and writing original jingles in Mrs. Taber's birthday book which was made and given her by her daughter, Esther.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schultz and daughter were shopping in Moscow Friday.

Mrs. Orville Rommel and daughter Barbara Louise spent Saturday with Mrs. Rommel's mother, Mrs. H. F. Dale.

How Lenville Spent Easter

Mr. and Mrs. John Williams and three daughters, Edith, Evelyn and Dorothy, accompanied by Mrs. Fred Johnson and Harold Johnson, drove to Clarkston early Sunday morning. They attended the Butcher meetings both morning and evening.

Esther Taber spent the day with her friend, Hazel Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Kinnier spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Neal Kinyon.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Kinyon and daughters, Irene and Verdell, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Neal Kinyon.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Brigham had Clyde Armstrong as their guest Easter Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Anderson spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kennedy.

As soon as the roads are so people can travel, our Literary will meet again. Please watch the paper for the date.

School Notes

The first and second grades dramatized the reading lesson "The Sparrow and the Blade of Grass" Wednesday.

The second and third grades had an interesting lesson in arithmetic Wednesday morning. In reading they were told how to play a game with a hoop a bell and bean bags.

The second grade made the hoop according to directions, fastened the bell in the center. They decided on the score, each time the bag hit the bell the thrower scored 10. It was a correlation of reading, arithmetic and fun. Each child added his own score which had been kept by the score keeper.

The seventh grade has handed in all its book reports. All neatly written in ink. The best one will go to Miss Peterson. On each report they will be allowed 5 per cent, which will be added to their state examination grade.

Esther Taber was the winner in the spelling contest. Esther will represent the Lenville school at Moscow in the Spelling "bee" Saturday.

Our school room is gaily decorated for Easter. A black board border of Easter bunnies and chickens. The Health Booklets have new covers of Easter Lillies and rabbits and chickens. The primary grades molded bunnies, carts, Easter baskets, nests full of eggs, etc., in clay, each one working out his own original idea. The children voted that Lewis Dale had made the cleverest. His was a rabbit pushing a cart, loaded with baskets of Easter eggs.

MRS. W. A. INGLE PASSES TO REWARD AT AGE OF 77

Funeral services were held from the Genesee Christian church Monday afternoon for the late Mrs. W. A. Ingle who passed away at the family home, Saturday, April 2, after a prolonged illness, at the age of 77 years, five months and two days. Services were conducted by the Rev. Orval D. Peterson of the Lewiston Christian church, who substituted for Rev. N. E. Beach who was taken suddenly ill and removed to a hospital. Assisting in the services was a quartet composed of Mesdames W. W. Burr, V. A. Beckman, Arthur Springer and Fred Hampton, accompanied by Mrs. Don Jain, the quartet singing, "The Old Rugged Cross," and "In the Garden," and Mrs. W. W. Burr sang "Absent" as a solo.

Interment was in the City cemetery, the pallbearers being John Vandenburg, Fred Hampton, Matt Kambitsch, L. Kline, D. Scharnhorst and Nels Flamoe.

Cora Anna Sellars was born October 31, 1854 at St. Louis, Mo., and was married to W. C. Hardcastle on February 2, 1872, to which union there were born nine children, all of whom survive except one, five of the children living in Texas, one in Tennesee and two in Washington, Mrs. Imogene Qually of Wenatchee and Mrs. Gladys Haslet of Colfax, who were present for the funeral, the latter being accompanied by her husband.

Born in Missouri the family of the deceased moved to Bloomfield, Arkansas and it was at Bloomfield that she became acquainted with Mr. Ingle. Living on farm homes about one and a half miles apart, Miss Sellars and Mr. Ingle attended the same school and on reaching their maturity the deceased married W. C. Hardcastle and Mr. Ingle married, his first wife passing away about the year 1905, at approximately the same time that Mr. Hardcastle passed away. The two people, in their sorrow, renewed acquaintances again, after 30 years and on March 21, 1906 they were married in Spokane, returning to Genesee to make their home on the Ingle farm south of town. They continued to make their residence there until about eight years ago when they moved into the Ingle home in Genesee. The deceased was a devoted wife and was loved by all who knew her. She became ill about the time they moved to Genesee and doctors were consulted and treatments were taken at a number of cities, Mrs. Ingle making several trips to Texas for the purpose of receiving medical treatment from eminent physicians, but this was of no avail and as she advanced in age it was her strong constitution, the almost constant medical attention and kind care which prolonged her life, life finally ebbing away as she slept.

The deceased was a member of the Presbyterian church and a faithful worker until recent years. Besides her children she also leaves to mourn her death, the six children of Mr. Ingle, Tom and family of Genesee; Mrs. Maude Willows of Lewiston, who was at the home during the last two months of Mrs. Ingle's life; Mrs. Minnie Hubbard of Rockford, Wash.; Chas. Ingle and family of Pullman, all of whom were present for the final rites; Mrs. Dorman Edwards of Astoria, Oregon, and Barney Ingle of California, and there are also eight grandchildren.

SISTER PASSES AWAY.

Mrs. Frank Brazier died Thursday of last week, at her home in Longview, Wash., after an illness of two years or more. Though ill she was able to be about and visited in Genesee last summer. Mrs. Fred Brazier, a sister, and Leo Miller, a brother, attended the funeral which was held in Longview Sunday. Mr. Miller returned to his home Monday while Mrs. Brazier remained in Longview.

The deceased leaves her husband and two children, Eugene, 22, and Genevieve, 19, to mourn her loss.

THIRTY-TWO BOYS SIGN UP FOR SCOUT ACTIVITIES

Thirty-two boys were present and took the Boy Scout oath at the meeting held at the public school Monday evening, with Jack Vandenburg as scout master. Fr. B. J. Carey was also present and talked to the boys on what could be really accomplished through scout activities and admonished the gathering to be earnest in its undertaking that the good may be realized.

Thirty-two boys are all that are required to form a Scout Troop, which is then divided into four patrols, the leaders named being Don Springer, Bertie Wishard, Dan Aherin and Wayne Roach. Russell Rinehart was selected as assistant scout master, and Bill Baker as senior patrol leader, the two latter boys having participated in Scout work previous to becoming affiliated with the local organization.

Boys eligible for Scouts are those between the ages of 12 and 18. With the organization now well under way there will be Tenderfoot examinations conducted for all who wish to qualify within the month.

After the meeting Monday evening Scout games were enjoyed for a half hour and some insight was given in the work as outlined in the Boy Scout manual or handbook.

CHANGE AT CITY MARKET

Will Rader and Miss Florence Rader last week purchased the interest of Kenneth Whiteside in the City Market. Mr. Whiteside entered the business as a partner of Will Rader when the two purchased the business of Milton Rader about a year ago. Following the transaction the new owners announced that beginning April 1, business would be conducted on a cash basis, each one of the customers of the store receiving a personal announcement to that effect.

Mr. and Mrs. Whiteside plan to leave Genesee soon but have no definite location in mind.

Genesee Valley Church Notes.

The Ladies Aid will be entertained Thursday afternoon, April 14, by Mrs. Arthur Tegland, at the Parish Hall. This will be a Mission meeting.

The Luther League will meet Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

LIVELY WRESTLING AND BOXING CARD IN PROSPECT

Not only are men and boys becoming enthused as the night approaches for the boxing and wrestling card at the gymnasium, Saturday, April, 9, but the ladies are taking a decided interest in the affair, some entering the gymnasium during the daily workouts which have been in progress for two weeks. Every evening there are a number of fans present to witness the various fighters and wrestlers work out, a great many of the bouts being interesting, although no one has extended himself during workout.

The interest being manifested is almost remarkable, and a large crowd is predicted for the first event of this nature to be staged in Genesee for a number of years.

The opening number on the card as now arranged will be a tumbling act by athletes from the University of Idaho, an event, starting at 7:30 which should not be missed. These Idaho tumblers have appeared during the half-time periods during the basketball games at the University the past season, and their exhibition will be one which will impress you as being more than ever expected.

The University of Idaho will also furnish the participants for the first wrestling bout, and will give an exhibition of the manly art.

Ralph Broemeling and Albert Nagel both weighing in at 152 promise one of the closet matches on the card. They have been working out conscientiously and are in fine shape. Jim Kane goes to the mat with Wilson Esser, the outcome whicH will be indeed difficult to forecast for they are of even weight and while having different methods, the decision will be made Saturday night. Jack Magee will enter the padded area with Alfred Isaksen, the first weighing 85 as compared with 88 for the latter.

This will be the outstanding junior match in wrestling.

Before proceeding with the boxing events there will be a battle royal, eight contestants being placed in the squared ring, the last one remaining on his feet to be adjudged the winner. Billy Emerson was scheduled to meet Everett Wishard, but it is understood this match has been changed as will be probably be the case with two or more events announced. Billy will meet someone, which matter is apparently of no concern to the 60-pounder. Russ Rinehart and George Smylie will engage in fistic encounter, both weighing around 140 pounds. Kendall Olson has as his opponent, Paul Mualley, both light heavies, and promise the fans a mixture of mitts which will be interesting. Billy Edwards enters with Gene Grieser, both of equal weight, 85 pounds, both of about the same size, both with a determination to win. Cliff Wishard meets Wilford Cameron, the former weighing about 140 and Cameron at 135. This match is between men who have had some experience and it will be a lively go.

George Miller, 148, Genesee, and Chas. Litchfield, 147 pounds, Lewiston, furnish the excitment for the main event, around which centers a great deal of verbal speculation.

At a late minute it was announced that Ardie Driskill, 148-pounder of Moscow will meet Donald Dye, 153, of Pullman. These two young men are fairly well known here and it has been stated that this go will perhaps prove to be outstanding event on the card.

This smoker, purely amateur, has been arranged for the purpose of securing funds to assist in meeting the deficit in the high school athletic fund and to promote good sportsmanship, giving those who attend an evening of entertainment that will meet with approval. Ladies as well as the men and boys are invited.

High School Inspector Here

Phil Soulen, state high school inspector, visited our school last Wednesday and commented favorably on the progress made by the local schools and the economy with which it has been operated. Mr. Soulen said that he would recommend to the state board that Genesee high school be continued as an accredited four-year high school. This school has been on the accredited list for a number of years by the state department of education and the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools. The rating entitles graduates of our high school admittance to any university or college in the northwest without taking entrance examinations.

STATE GOVERNMENT COSTS EIGHT TIMES THAT OF 1891

The past 40 years have constituted the most progressive period in history and Idaho's state government, in costs at least, has stayed well abreast the times, says Glenn Balch writing under the direction of the state chamber of commerce.

In 1891, her first year of statehood, Idaho had six executive officers, a governor, a treasurer, an auditor, an attorney general, a superintendent of public instruction and a secretary of state. In that year the appropriations for the salaries of these officers and the expenses of their offices totalled $33,535.

The 1931 appropriations for the governor, treasurer, auditor, attorney general, secretary of state and the state board of education, which has superseded the state superintendent, aggregated more than a quarter of a million dollars, or approximately eight times as much as was required in 1891.

The decade from 1911 to 1921, which it must be remembered included the inflation period of the World war, witnessed the largest of the ten-year increases. During this period the expenses of these six offices mounted from $146,210 to $238,200.

Increases Steady.

During the previous ten years from 1901 to 1911, the six appropriations under discussion increased from $57,205 to $146,210, or $89,000.

It is noteworthy and an encouraging indication of a much-needed economy that the increases during the last decade, from 1921 to 1931, totalled only $17,000. The 1931 appropriations aggregated $255,973.

The fact that Idaho is today paying more than a quarter of a million dollars for state administration which 40 years ago cost less than $34,000 is enlightening when considered in connection with our greatly increased taxes. More than $220,000 additional revenue is now required for these six offices. A large percentage of the increase is expended as salaries and wages for personal services.

State Growth Rapid.

However, to get a true picture of the situation, we must take into consideration the rapid development in the complexities of life and the remarkable growth and development of the state during the past 40 years.

State administration is by no means the simple matter that it was in 1891. Governmental functions have multiplied, whether judiciously or not, since then. New and perplexing problems have arisen. The world has become smaller and the contact between people, states and nations closer. Industries have solidified, pooling the interests of individuals and creating new burdens of public responsibility for the government. New inventions, new methods of travel, new systems of control, new ideas of education—all these things, and many more, have combined to produce a remarkable era of progress and governments have been literally forced to keep step.

Population Increases.

Another phase of the question that must be taken into consideration is the rapid growth and development of the state. During the 40 years since Idaho was admitted to the Union her population has increased 400 per cent and the assessed valuation of her property has mounted from 25 to more than 400 million dollars. The rate of increase in administration costs has been twice that of the population growth and half as much as the rate of valuation increase.

Any theory that the incumbents of the various offices have alone been responsible for the increase is erroneous. The power of spending public money rests primarily in the hands of the legislatures. Office holders have come and gone, parties have ascended to power and gone down in defeat; but nevertheless the costs of government mounted steadily, indicating that the forces which push governmental expenditures upward are rooted in something deeper than personalities and political parties.

Sunday Dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Isaksen entertained for dinner Sunday, Mrs. Ira Larkin and son, Perry, of Potlatch; Mr. and Mrs. Will Rosenau and Edna; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shirrod, Mr. and Mrs. Wood Gash, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Meyer and Olie Hagan and daughters, Vernita and Delores, of Troy. Miss Eunice Pearson was a guest in the afternoon.

Rebekah President Visits.

Wednesday evening Mrs. Sylvia Mott, of Idaho Falls, president of the Idaho Rebekah Assembly, made her official visit to the Golden Rule Rebekah lodge at Genesee. A banquet was given in her honor before the regular meeting, which was presided over by Miss Pearl Perkins, noble grand. Other state officers present were: Mrs. Della Wagner of Gifford, state assembly warden and Mrs. Ruth Perkins, inside guardian of the state assembly. Mrs. Vern Beckman was also introduced at the meeting as deputy president of Golden Rule Lodge. Other visitors were Mrs. Augusta Brown and Mr. Armstrong of Lewiston.

ROY CHRISTEN MICHELSEN DIES AT VETERANS HOSPITAL

The many friends and family of Roy Christen Michelsen were grieved Wednesday to learn of his death at the Veterans' Hospital, Boise, where he has been receiving treatments for the past several months, Bright's disease, accompanied by high blood pressure were the ailments to which his death is attributed, although definite word has not been received from the hospital.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Congregational church Friday afternoon, April 8, at 2 o'clock with services in charge of the Masonic fraternity and American Legion and interment will be at the Genesee Valley Lutheran church. These arrangements are definite, providing the body arrives in Lewiston Friday morning, according to word from Miss Hope Michelsen, who was at Boise with her brother at the time of his death, and who will be here for the funeral.

The Legion service will be at the church and the Masonic ceremony will be at the cemetery.

A letter was received from Miss Hope Michelsen Monday, in which she stated that Roy had been bedfast for several weeks and that he was losing strength, although there were chances of recovery and that he might return home with her in a few weeks. The sister has been teaching in the Gooding, Idaho, school, and when she was notified of her brother's failing health she went to Boise to be with him.

A telephone message was received Tuesday evening, saying that Roy was failing and that the mother's presence was desired. Mrs. Michelsen left for Lewiston Wednesday morning and was preparing to take a stage for Boise, when word came at noon Wednesday that her son had passed away. She was located at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Shepherd, and the two returned to Genesee Wednesday evening. Another sister, Mrs. Robert Gray, was at the Michelsen home here, and Miss Thelma Michelsen, the other sister, of Missoula, Mont., was notified and was expected to be in Genesee Thursday afternoon.

Daughter is Born.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Erickson announce the arrival of a 7¼-pound daughter, born Sunday, April 3.

LAST OPEN HOUSE TO BE HELD AT SCHOOL APRIL 14

The last open house of the season will be held Thursday, April 14 at 8 o'clock. The program will be presented by the grade pupils. They will give a short musical program after which the teachers will meet the parents in their respective rooms.

School Calendar

April 9—Smoker.

April 15—Associated Student Body Dance.

April 22—Senior play, "The Wisecracker."

April 29 or May 6—May Day, Arbor Day and Bicentennial observance.

May 13—Grade program.

Week of May 20—Class Day and Commencement.

This year we are blessed with an abundance of days to celebrate and have decided to combine them into one big celebration. May Day, Arbor Day and the Washington Bicentennial will all be given a place on the program. All the schools in and around Genesee have been invited to take part. Next week the invitations will go out to all the civic and religious organizations in Genesee to participate with us. We are endeavoring to get W. D. Vincent, commissioner of education, and Governor C. Ben Ross to be with us and address the crowd. The celebration will be held either April 29 or May 6, depending upon when the speakers can be here.

Music will be furnished by the Genesee and Uniontown bands. We are planning a full day's program. The morning will be occupied with Arbor Day and May Day exercises; the afternoon with a Washington Bicentennial program, followed by a community field and track meet, for young and old, and probably a dance and card party in the evening. Be sure to keep this celebration in mind.

Juniors Thankful.

The Juniors appreciate very much the attendance at their spring prom, and although the weather was uncompromising, the juniors feel somewhat repaid for their labors.

First and Second Grades

The children made up short verses about April. The following lines were considered the best:

"Too much rain in April makes us feel hateful."—Marjorie Springer.

"The chicken run when they see the rain come."—Jean Schooler.

The primary folks are planning to give a number for open house next week with their rhythm band. Health Guard pins were awarded to those who have been keeping the Health rules. Each day the children are examined by a health nurse or doctor. If the child fails to appear tidy his or her pin is taken away until they remember all the rules.

Third and Fourth Grades

The fourth grade is studying about squares and rectangles. Don Aherin is leading the third grade in arithmetic. His speed and accuracy mark him as quite a champion among his classmates. Both classes are working hard for Palmer method awards in penmanship. In geography we took an airplane ride fro mthe Neterlands to the interesting city of Paris, where we are now visiting. Birds, trees and flowers offer a wealth of material for our language work.

When a Split Stick Was a Bank Check

Three hundred years ago when a man put money in an English bank his deposit was recorded by notches in a stick, which was then split, the bank keeping one half, the depositor the other half. Before money was withdrawn, the two halves had to be matched together. The depositor's half was called "Bank Stock," the part the bank kept was the "check." The modern check system would astound those 17th century bankers.

FORD HAS NEW CAR MODELS ONE AN EIGHT, OTHER A FOUR

Once again Ford pioneers the way. With the introduction of the new V-8 at various points throughout the United States, the Ford Motor company meets the transportation problem of a new economic era. Almost a quarter of a century ago Henry Ford gave the world a car that was both low in first cost and in subsequent up-keep, setting a new standard in automobile manufacture for that era. He now gives the public another car which, retaining those essentials, also embodies all the comforts and improvements that modern engineering provides.

By embracing in a low-priced car features heretofore found only in high-priced cars the Ford V-8 has set a new standard for the motor industry.

By the elimination of useless bulk and weight it avoids the prohobitive up-keep charges which the average owner is unable to meet even though he can afford the initial cost of a larger and heavier car. In a word it provides the average individual not only the kind of an automobile he is able to own and maintain but also the kind to which he is entitled in this modern era.

Both the V-8 and the Model T are to be classed as pioneers, but of a vastly different type. They are as different as the problems which each was designed to solve.

The Model T blazed the way for the motor industry. It was almost entirely utilitarian in character. It pioneered in an era when the public was not conscious of its need for motor cars. The V-8 pioneers in an era when that conscious need is universal.

Personal transportation should never be a luxury. It and the latest of its refinements are the rightful heritage of every man, woman and child in America. Modern civilizaton has given this to them. This heritage is wholly reasonable and the logical outgrowth of higher standards of living.

Standards in manufacture and the standards of living go hand in hand. One must keep pace with the other. What is even more to the point—they should go forward together.

"How certain are you that you will have a market for the new cars?" Henry Ford was asked. "We are not certain," he replied. "But we are going to risk it. Some one has to risk something to get things started. The chief thing to do is to meet the public's demand for something new and better at the price the average man can pay. We have done everything in our power to give the public that kind of a car."

The Ford Motor company has taken risks in the past, but never at the cost of lowering standards. During the 29 years that it has manufactured automobiles, there have been times when it sold cars at an actual loss. Over a period of years it has realized an average of only a few dollars per unit. Although at times the income ebbed, standards have continuously and consistently risen.

Mr. Ford says: "Probably most people in speaking of the V-8 will say that we have built another automobile." "Well, that is true. But more important is the fact that we have now given the public another standard. No matter by what name an article is called, properly managed business always remembers that primarily it is the manufacturer of standards. That much set, all else follows naturally enough.

"I have said that we are taking a risk. But by that I mean merely a temporary risk. Our experience has taught us that such will be the case. We have faith, and faith you know is catching. If we have confidence others will have confidence too. The public will come half way — it always does. The huge number of advance orders already received demonstrates that point.

"The risk is a good one because it is a risk placed with the people. I know of no better collateral, nor any that is half as good."

ENGINE OF NEW FORD INSURES SMOOTHNESSS

The Ford V-8 engine is of the 90-degree type, developing 65 brake horse-power at 3,400 R. P. M. It introduces new mechanical features which simplify construction and minimize wear.

The new engine is remarkably free from vibration. Frequent and overlapping impulses deliver the power in a smooth, constant flow.

The 65-pound crankshaft is of the 90-degree type with its four throws or cranks at right angles to each other. The crankshaft is statically and dynamically balanced. Throws are counterbalanced. There are three large main bearings.

Crankshaft, connecting rods and pistons are in balance and operate with smoothness at all engine speeds. Pistons are of aluminum alloy. Each has three rings. The lower one being slotted, acts as an oil-control ring.

Cylinder blocks and crankcase are cast in one piece with the result that cylinders and crankshaft are always perfectly aligned.

New-type one-piece valves which eliminate push rods operate directly off the camshaft. Thus instead of doubling the pushrods used in the 4-cylinder engine, they are eliminated altogether.

All connecting rods are of the single-end type and are inter-changeable. Those from opposite cylinders are placed side by side on the same crankshaft and throw. A new type of floating crank-pin bushing, babbitted inside and out, distributes the pressure load from opposing cylinders over the entire crank-pin bearing surface.

The intake manifold passages are cast integral with an aluminum coverplate between the cylinder blocks. This is a new Ford development.

The down-draft carburetor is supplied by a fuel pump which is of the diaphragm type operating off an eccentric on the camshaft.

A small opening inside the center of the manifold coverplate runs from the exhaust chamber on one side of the engine block to the exhaust chamber on one side of the engine block to the exhaust chamber on the other side, allowing a surge of hot gases to pass back and forth and forming a hot spot on the intake manifold, which preheats the gas.

The distributor is connected directly with the front end of the camshaft and thus operates without any interposed gears. The distributor is fully automatic, spark timing being controlled by vacuum from the intake manifold.

Some V-8 facts: 65 H. P. engine, vibrationless, rapid acceleration, low fuel consumption, automatic spark control, downdraft carburetor, 75 miles per hour, silent second gear, synchronized gear shift, large roomy bodies, safety glass windshield, self-adjusting shock absorbers and transverse cantilever spring, comfortable riding, low center of gravity, rubber insulated chassis, engine is rubber mounted.

Spend $40,000,00 for Tires, Rubber.

Akron, O., Several million tires, besides millions of rubber fitting units, will be required by the Ford Motor company in its 1932 manufacturing program, according to information received by rubber companies here. Of the half-billion dollars being poured by Ford into industrial channels, the rubber industry's share will be approximately $40,000,000 it is estimated. The bulk will be spent for tires, and the remainder for other rubber accessories.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

E. O. Cathcart, assistant cashier of the Genesee Exchange bank, has accepted a similar position as assistant cashier of the Pullman State Bank at Pullman.

T. Driscoll has purchased a 48 horse power Winton-Six touring car. This machine is one of the latest models with self starter, electric lights, etc.

The total receits of the Genesee postoffice for the year ending March 31, 1912 were $3,072.

LENVILLE NEWS.

School News.

Monday was Allen Schultz's birthday. Because of his size and winning smile he escaped the usual spanking.

Our Lenville Health club met on Thursday afternoon. Under new business the club voted to have a lost and found box where articles that are found may be kept. It was also voted to have a party at noon in the near future for the people whose birthdays have occurred during February and March. The party will be for the following pupils: Harriett Ross, George Ellis Kinyon, Evelyn Williams and Allen Shultz. The following officers were elected for the next month: President, Harriett Ross; vice president, Edith Williams; Secretary, Lewis Dale.

We are proud of our record for perfect attendance this time. Eleven pupils out of seventeen received perfect certificates, Lewis Dale, Edd Johnson, Esther Taber, Dorothy Williams, Eldon Johnson, Evelyn Williams, Edith Williams, Allen Schultz, James Schultz, Neal Junior Kinyon, and George Ellis Kniyon.

The children have taken advantage of the nice weather (between showers) and played baseball last week.

Harriett and Eugene Ross were absent from school Friday. They went to Kendrick to spend the week end.

Edd Johnson and Lewis Dale built a pine bough house in the woods Saturday. They found it to be useful as well as ornamental during the shower in the afternoon.

Mrs. Frank Dygert called on Mrs. B. Brigham Tuesday afternoon.

Clyde Armstrong and Alfred Brigham drove to Moscow Wednesday.

Fred Johnson is busy sawing wood this week with the buzz saw.

Willie Gamble was helping Percy Kinnier with wood Friday.

Neal Kinyon and Jim Kinyon and Percy Kinnier finished making their summer wood this week.

Horace Dale came from Moscow on Monday to work for Ray Kennedy.

Sam Taber and Frank Jones attended the road commissioners' meeting in Moscow Saturday.

Sam Taber and Frank Dygert were pretty busy the last part of the week rocking the road in front of the school house where the creek had badly washed during the flood.

Homer Whitney of Clarkston spent Saturday evening and Sunday with Jim Kinyon and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schultz and family accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wright and family, drove to Palouse Sunday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Schultz.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Anderson spent Sunday in Moscow visiting friends. They attended the matinee at the Kenworthy in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Taber and their daughter, Esther, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Kinyon and family and Mr. and Mrs. Neal Kinyon and family and Homer Whitney of Clarkston, attended the Moose dance in Moscow.

Cecil Johnson spent Sunday with John Dygert.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ross and children spent the week end with relatives in Kendrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Kinnier spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Peterson.

Johnnie Gamble visited at Jess Oylear's Sunday.

Fred Johnson and Harold Johnson visited Clyde Armstrong Sunday evening.

Portland Grain Exchange.

Activity in local wheat during the week was confined to buying for the account of local mills and feeders. There was no export business; altho there was considerable interest shown in local wheat by foreign cables, indicating that potential business may devolep at any time.

Prices are firm and there appears to be little disposition to sell in the face of the tight situation prevailing for cash wheat here. The bureau of agricultural economics reports stocks of wheat tributary to this market as only about half of last year's total for the same season, the report covering stocks in farmers' hands, held by interior mills and elevators and commercial grain stocks at terminals.

There is no doubt that foreign buyers have been disturbed by reports regarding disposition of farm board wheat holdings; this with the many uncertainties confronting the daily markets has stifled activity. Local wheat is gradually working closer to an export basis and the trade is expressing more confidence and hope than for some time.

Crop reports are being watched closely and any adverse reports may easily cause active buying and leadership.

RESOLUTION.

WHEREAS, the Supreme Commander of the Universe has, in his infinite wisdom, ordered from our ranks, an esteemed comrade, Henry Lestoe; and whereas, the long and intimate relations with him have been temporarily severed, it becomes eminently befitting that we record our appreciation of him.

Therefore be it Resolved: That the sudden removal of the Comrade from our midst leaves a vacancy deeply realized by all members of the American Legion, and

Be it Further Resolved: That with deep sympathy for the bereaved relatives of the deceased, we express our hope that even so great a loss to all may be overruled for good by Him who doeth all things well.

Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of Bielenberg-Schooler Post, American Legion, a copy printed in the Genesee News and a copy forwarded to the nearest of kin.

Lieutenant Governor in Genesee.

Lieutenant Governor G. P. Mix and Mayor Wilson of Moscow, were in Genesee Wednesday studying the political situation and conferring with voters. Mr. Mix, who is completing one term as Lieutenant Governor of Idaho, is now a candidate for the nomination as United States senator, one of four democrats seeking that office, the others being Mayor Pope, Boise, Lawyer Chapman, Twin Falls, and Doctor Stratton of Salmon City. Mayor Wilson, an ardent worker in democratic circles, apparently is not a candidate for county or state office this year. He was the unsuccessful candidate for the office of assessor at the last general election.

The lieutenant governor, judging from his conversation, is optimistic, relative to his success in the primaries after havng made one trip into southern and southeastern Idaho, and now contemplating a second trip in the interest of his campaign.

Mr. Mix was asked how he stood on prohibition and he replied that he could not see prohibition as a major issue in the compaign election and further, that he could not see where it had any place whatsoever, being that Idaho has its own laws governing enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment as well as being governed in part by federal laws. Mr. Mix, did however, believe that the prohibition matter should be settled by a referendum vote.

Of the four democrats seeking the office now held by Senator Thomas, Pope is a dry, Chapman is wet, Doc. Stratton says, "If every man who violates or has violated the Eighteenth Amendment votes for me, that is all I ask, and I will be elected," or words to that effect. It is almost an unfair question to ask a candidate whether he is a dry or wet, and the question propounded to Mix may have been out of order.

Ed Peterson Returns.

Ed Peterson returned Saturday from a six weeks' visit at different points in California and on his return compared the wonderful Calfornia sunshine with our winter weather, but added that springtime in the Palouse was not equaled anywhere. This is Mr. Peterson's second trip to California, the frist being during the winter of 1917-18. He said he noted many changes.

While away Mr. Peterson visited his daughter, Mrs. A. Nelson, and family, at Riverside, Calif., and said that Mr. and Mrs. Nelson and daughter, Patsy, plan to visit in Genesee this summer. At Stockton he visited his son, Clarence, and family, and learned that Clarence has had work ever since his arrival in California.

In Los Angeles he visited his sister, Mrs. Selma Anderson and her husband and a nephew and nieces at Santa Monica. At the latter city he also called on a former Genesee resident, Hans Tweed, who is now about 87 years years of age, enjoying good health. Mr. Tweed formerly owned the Tobin ranch. Mr. Peterson also visited many other cities and places of interest.

Entertain at April Fools Party.

Last Thursday evening Miss Bertha Nelson and Mrs. Margaret McCoy gave an April Fools party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Sampson. The guests were told the party was at the home of D. C. Burr, but found upon their arrival at the door an April Fool sign. Their disappointment was overlooked, however, when they discovered the party was in progress at the Sampson home.

Bridge, April Fool games and fortune telling were enjoyed during the evening. Score cards were attached to balloons and inside the balloons were fortunes. At bridge the losers at each table were obliged to wear dunce caps and at 10 o'clock play was interrupted for refreshments, served buffet style and guests thinking this concluded the evening, reluctantly began adding their scores but the hostesses meant this as just as another April Fool joke.

At bridge Mrs. John Luedke was high for the ladies and Fred Meyer for the gentlemen, but April Fool again played pranks and they were awarded the low prize awards while Miss Ruth Anderson and Wendell Smith, who had low scores were each given the high score awards.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. John A. Luedke, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Meyer, Dr. and Mrs. N. M. Leavitt, Miss Thelma Melgard, Miss Ruth Anderson, Wendell Smith, Paul Parks, Alfred Olsen, Paul Mulalley and Forrest Durbin.

Mrs. Sampson and Mrs. D. C. Burr assisted the hostesses.

Tuesday Card Club.

Mrs. Fred Shirrod entertained the Tuesday Card club and several guests this week when five tables were at play. Mrs. Walter Jain won the high score award and Mrs. Glenn Sampson the consolation.

EMMA LOU VANOUCK WINS PRIZE FOR BEST ESSAY

Miss Emma Lou Vanouck was awarded first prize in the essay contest, sponsored by the Genesee Drug company; Mrs. Lloyd Wilson was awarded second prize and Clarence Nash was a close second and in recognition of this he was also given a prize. The contestants used as material for essays the finding of a skull in Snake river, which was displayed at the drug store. Miss Vanouck's story follows:

"The Strange Death of Henry Wade"

"So, you are still determined to go to the hot places," said St. Peter, the porter, as he stepped into Henry Wade's train compartment on the Heaven-bound, "Dollar-a-Mile" Train Lines.

Wade looked up guiltily as he shoved a book, entitled, "Sermons by the Devil," into his pocket.

"Come and look at the beautiful panorama we see from the top of this plateau," invited St. Peter.

After walking through six smokers and a diner they came to the observation car. Here St. Peter handed Wade a telescope, and waved downward to a deep valley.

Wade adjusted the telescope and gazed earthward on three scenes. First, in the year of 1903, one lone man is wandering through Box Canyon on the Snake River.

"Myself!" exclaimed Wade to thin air, and kept on looking.

The man seemed to be hopelessly lost. He cast frightened glances at the rocks, and kept his gun in a position to shoot at any moment. Suddenly his mouth opened and a shout went up into the sky. He had found what he wanted, a spring of clear, cool water. He knelt and bathed his chest and wrists before he put his parched lips to the water. Just then Wade caught sight of another figure. It was his dog. It seemed to be wearing a grey and white stripe around its body. This stripe writhed and struck.

"A rattler! My dog! Give me a gun!" cried Wade, but all in vain, for the dog fought the snake off, then came to the water hole and plunged in.

The man patted the dog and kept on drinking. The water was soon red with blood, and the dog was groaning in death before the man arose and went in search of another spring.

In sight of new life again he suddenly kneeled over and lay dead.

"So that is me and how I died. Gee, but it takes a long time to get to Heaven," and Wade turned his telescope on a second scene.

In the Box Canyon in the year 1932, there is a party of men. They seem to be searching for something. Suddenly one cries, "Here boys, I claim this skull in the name of the Genesee Drug." They all take it up and examine it.

"I'll bet Riney will be pleased," says another.

"I'm going home. I've found something."

Wade turned away as he recognized his own skull.

The third scene is in front of the Genesee Drug in Genesee, Idaho. The year of 1932, and there is a party of school girls. In the window is a skull with pictures showing where it was found, and also rules about writing a story about the skull.

"Oh, gee, I'm going to try that," says one.

"You, of all persons. I wouldn't write about a skull," says another as she elevates her nose.

"Come on, let's go," mumbles a tiny one, her mouth full of lollypop.

Wade turned away disgusted. "Everything about my death. It's a pity they don't know the truth and put it down in history," and still sulking, he went back to his compartment.

The one girl is left fascinated, and goes home determined to write a story. Here it is above.

WILD LIFE BANDED.

Seventeen hundred pheasants says the Lewiston Tribune, which have been distributed over the state from the Lapwai game farm have been banded so that their histories may be traced between time of liberation and time of taking by sportsmen. The banded birds represent about one-half of all birds planted during the last winter and summer.

Pheasant banding was part of the plan inaugurated by the retiring game warden, M. P. Bailey, who also intended to trace migration of fish, fowl and deer by the same method.

The pheasants and partridges wear small metal clips around their legs, each band bearing a number which is recorded at the state game office with data concerning where and when the bird was tagged. The fish are marked with a small metal plate fastened into their outer gill covering. The deer are being banded with ear clips, like registered farm animals.

The fish were captured in specially designed traps but capture and branding of the deer is a feat that could be accomplished only in times of feed scarcity. Ranger Parker of the Garden Valley station volunteered to do the trick when he noted that many deer were coming to the ranger station barn to share in the feed distributed there. He said it would not be difficult to brand 50 of them, record whether they were does, bucks or fawns, and then trust to hunters to determine whether and whiter they migrated.

Deputy game wardens are being asked to encourage sportsmen to report all banded birds, or marked fish and deer taken. The metal record is to be sent to the game department in Boise where the data will be traced out just as the biological survey traces out the migration of ducks about the country.

Fireman to Sponsor Dance.

Information became available Wednesday wherein the Fireman will give another dance in Genesee. A tentative date has been set for April 28, but should the date prove conflicting, it will be changed, the definite date to be announced in ample time.

There has been a number of inquiries about a second Firemen's dance, and members of the department have communicated with orchestra managers, with the result that Barney Malerich and his Tennesee Ten will appear in Genesee. This organization features a vocal trio and quartette among its musicians, and reports are that it is the outstanding orchestra in this section of the Inland Empire, playing regular dates at Pullman, Kennedy Ford, Lewiston and on the Prairie.

THE LOW DOWN FROM BOISE.

(By A. F. Dooley Riddle)

True sportsmen boast not,
When they win,
And bravely take it
On the chin
When Lady Luck or Politics
Has made 'em look like
Easy hicks.

They're seen the game fund
Surplus go;
But now MacBailey's
Quitting, so
They just regard as Playful fun
His airplane trip to Washington.

"Bailey has been particularly successful in his politics," said Cowboy Ben on his most recent stop in Pocatello, "since he does not play politics." Neither did Alvin Harbour.

This matter of personnel needs more attention. While the governor was touring around, referring daily and recklessly to his imminary savings on highway equipment purchases, one of his hand-picked and trusted employes, a state house janitor, was arrested on an extortion charge. Now Ben will have to pass on six applicants for that vacant post—as well as pick a new game warden.

It is not literally true that the governor personally selects all appointees, and good democrats really ought to learn their rosters. The other day an eastern Idahoan visited a republican employe of a bi-partisan board and begged him while an a trip on state business to put in some licks for Ross. "Two thirds of the voters in that section where you're going," said he, "are Clarks or second cousins of Clarks."

COUNTY CONSOLIDATION.

County consolidation is not going to meet with popular favor. Not that it is not a good move, but because in many instances the larger counties have indulged in a wild spree of spending and in a few instances they are face to face with bankruptcy. The smaller counties have plugged along without frills and folderols. They approach the day of financial reckoning in fairly good circumstances. In the last event, the larger counties will be forced to "get back to earth."

The smaller units will favor amendment to the constitution which will permit consolidation of offices. It costs the taxpayers of Butte county approximately $26,000 a year to conduct its county business. This includes only the expense of salaries, office expenses, charities, etc., and does not include interest, sinking fund payments and the like. If Butte county could reduce these expenses fifty per cent, or even a third, the loud cry against excessive taxes would diminish to a whisper.

The esteemed Rigby Star quotes an editorial from a recent issue of the Twin Falls News which clearly expresses the plight of the larger counties. It said:

"Twin Falls is ripe for a receivership. The county treasury has been swept bare. The county is putting 'no fund' checks to pay pensions and other claims, and a treasurer's note for $20,000 falls due this month. We have reached the place where we cannot possibly continue paying for all the things we have asked for and that the legislature has put upon our shoulders. The fine structure we have built up rather heedlessly in the past, is falling down around our ears."

The urgent agitation for county consolidation, as pointed out by the Star, comes mainly from the larger counties. The editorial closes a strong argument by saying: "In the meantime 90 per cent of the small counties of the state have their eyes open and are not willingly going to submit to being engulfed by a larger county and thus have the questionable privilege of paying additional taxes."

The Advertiser still maintains that county consolidation is not the sole solution to the county tax problem. A constitutional amendment permitting consolidation of some offices and elimination of others presents, in our opinion, the most logical plan.—Arco Advertiser.

Gypsies Meet With Hard Luck.

Cottonwood Chronicle: The band of gypsies which passed through town last week, met with trouble up the Salmon river as a result of plying their trade too carelessly. At Whitebird one of the dusky dames tried the old trick of placing a "lucky penny" in an old man's purse but abstracted $22 in bills at the same time. After they had left town the loss was discovered and the sheriff was notified who overhauled the caravan near Riggins and made them cough up the stolen money. At another point up the river the gypsies stopped to purchase a chicken and proceeded to ransack an old man's cabin while he was after the bird. He returned in time to catch the thieves in the act and seized an axe and ran them off the place. Word of the caravan's approach was wired ahead and at almost every town they were met and told to keep going. Such petty thieves are a nuisance in every community they visit and they should be deported or given long terms in prison until they learn thievery will not be countenanced.

In Appreciation.

I hereby take this occasion to thank all the good people of Genesee, who have assisted me. I promise that this experience will never happen again. Again I thank you.

George Carey.

THIS LITTLE DOLLAR WENT TO MARKET

It shivered a bit when it started. It was a timied dollar, scared of crowds.

When it got to the market-place, it saw a lot of signs. "Coats reduced." "Shoes at a bargain." "Hats at new low prices."

"Do these signs really mean what they say?" Dollar asked itself. "Because, if they do—

Just then, another dollar came along looking like a dollar and a half, all dressed up in new clothes and carrying a big basket of food.

"Oh, I say," cried the Timid Dollar, "How can you afford all these new things?"

"Ha, ha," laughed the Dressed-Up Dollar merrily, "go into the market-place and see!"

"Do those signs really mean what they say?" asked the Timid Dollar.

"Yes, they do! And the values are wonderful!"

With that, the Timid Dollar ran to the market-place, and came back looking like a dollar and a half, too. By the time the envious Stay-at-home Dollars got to market, the signs were down and the prices had all gone up. —Contributed.

Hay Making Now Modern Science

Curing in Windrow Saves Labor Required for Cocking.

Even in haying, the world keeps moving and one might as well keep with it, is the opinion of H. B. Hartwig of the New York State College of Agriculture, who says that there is no need for the present-day farmer to make hay the way his grandfather did.

Many successful farmers have found that to cure hay in the windrow saves from 30 to 40 per cent of the labor required by cocking. This saving makes it possible to get more hay in between rains. Swath-curing clover or alfalfa sacrifices too many leaves and bleaches the hay too much.

Method of Hay Making.

Professor Hartwig recommends the following method of hay-making. Cut only after the dew or rain is off. Hay dries more quickly while standing, and molds that make hay dusty do not get started. Allow the hay to wilt in the swath but do not allow wilting to continue until raking will knock off the leaves. One-half hour to two hours of bright sunshine should be plenty. Next put it in a loose windrow with a side-delivery rake. The better side-delivery rake is the left-hand type because when driven (after the first round) in the same direction in which the mower goes, the largest number of stems are turned out and the most leaves turned in where they will not dry too rapidly and shatter off. Remember that the leaves carry about 60 per cent of the protein. The right-hand rake may be used if the hay is cut in lands. Begin at the middle with the right-hand rake and work in a direction opposite to the course of the mower.

Why Churches are Hard Hit

An exchange reports that two lovers went to church. When the collection was being taken up, the young man explored his pockets and finding nothing, whispered to his sweetheart, "I haven't a cent, I changed my pants." Meanwhile the girl had been searching her bag, and finding nothing, blushed a rosy red and said, "I'm in the same predicament."

Walt Allen Buys Troy Dance Hall.

Troy News Walt Allen has purchased Newland Park, consisting of the modernly constructed pavilion and 25 acres of land, on the Moscow-Bovill highway, just west of Troy. Mr. Allen announced the purchase while in Troy Monday, and stated that numerous improvements on both pavilion and grounds were already under way. Among them will be the completion of the water system and the installation of a wading pool for children. Changes will be made in the lightning system also.

Sixth Car of Corn to Idaho.

Gooding Leader: The sixth, and probably the last car of corn to be received by Gooding farmers for feed this season, arrived the fore part of the week, reports O. E. McConnell, county agent. This car was purchased in Nebraska and was laid down here at $1.00 per hundred pounds. Twenty-five farmers were the purchasers. This will probably be the last car purchased as the reduced freight rate goes out of effect March 31, Mr. McConnell said. This rate was one-third lower than the regular freight rate.

WHEAT MARKET FIRMER; CROP PROSPECTS LOWER

Domestic wheat markets strengthened slightly during the week ending April 1, influenced by less favorable prospects for winter wheat and delayed preparations for spring seeding, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Indications of some improvement in export inquiry, as a result of further relaxation in French milling restrictions and smaller offerings from the southern hemisphere, were also strengthening factors. Corn futures in Chicago declined to a new low of the current season, but cash markets were independently firm and mostly higher than a week ago, as a result of very light offerings and a fairly active, although limited demand. Oats and barley were steady at most markets. Rye was independently firm on light offerings and trade expectations of some European takings later in the season.

Wheat

Wheat crop developments were an important feature in the general wheat situation during the week. While reports indicate that injury to the domestic winter wheat crop by early March freezes was not extensive or serious in the Ohio valley, more or less harm was done in Nebraska and South Dakota and in the Western third of Kansas. In the latter area, the damage was rather serious and further injury was caused by soil blowing. In Missouri and the eastern two-thirds of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, the crop has made considerable recovery with apparently no serious injury. Trade estimates as of the first of April, place the condition of winter wheat at 79 per cent of normal and the outturn at around 500,000,000 bushels. Seeding of the spring wheat areas has been delayed by wet soil and cold weather and is now about two weeks later than usual. Plowing and seeding of spring grains have also been delayed in some European producing areas. Heavy snows were delaying plowing in the Balkan states and also in Russia. Some damage from late frosts was reported in Germany, but the crop is generally satisfactory in Italy and France.

Country mill and elevator stocks in the United States at the first of March, totaled 74,601,000 bushels, according to the official estimate, compared with 83,205,000 bushels a year ago and 101,149,000 bushels March 1, 1930. Stocks were unusually small in the spring wheat area, but much above last season in the states producing principally hard and soft winter wheat. Combining the country mill and elevator stocks with the farm stocks in the principal spring wheat producing states of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana, and adding the markets stocks at Minneapolis and Duluth gives a total of around 55,000,000 bushels of spring wheat in that area, compared with about 124,000,000 bushels a year ago. Combining farm and country mill and elevator stocks of winter wheat in Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Colorado, with the stocks of hard red winter in the principal markets in these states, gives a total of around 195,000,000 bushels, or about 70,000,000 bushels more than in these positions a year ago.

A similar calculation of wheat stocks in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri, indicates a supply of soft winter wheat in this area of around 75,000,000 bushels, compared with about 35,000,000 bushels a year ago. Combining the farm and country mill and elevator stocks in Washington and Oregon, with market stocks at Columbia River and Puget Sound markets, gives a total supply in that area this season of a little over 23,000,000 bushels compared with about 40,000,000 bushels a year ago. Total stocks of wheat in the United States on farms, in country mills and elevators and in terminal markets March 1, were approximately 498,206,000 bushels, compared with 453,298,00 bushels March 1, 1931.

Cash wheat markets strengthened with futures, influenced also by light offerings and a fairly active milling inquiry. Receipts at the principal central and southwestern markets total only 867 cars, the smallest week's arrvals since the week ending March 28, 1930.

Pacific Coast Markets

Pacific coast markets also strengthened slightly during the week, altho trading was still restricted at Portland and Seattle by the lack of export sales. Marketings in the Pacific Northwest wer the smallest of the season and receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia River terminals totaled only 194 cars. Domestic mills were taking only occasional cars of high protein wheat for blending purposes. No export sales of wheat or flour were reported although prices were near an export basis. Moderate sales were made to California buyers which afforded the principal outlet.

California wheat markets remained quiet under a continued light demand from mills, industrial buyers and feeders. Prices advanced slightly however, along with northern and the eastern markets. The California winter wheat crop was beginning to show the unfavorable effects of deficient top soil moisture, resulting from subnormal rainfall during the past two months. Late seeded fields were especially in need of showers. Conditions were not yet critical however, and the final outturn will depend largely on weather conditions during the next two months. Offerings were small, reflecting the light remaining supplies, totaling slightly less than 3,000,000 on farms and in country mills and elevators. Current offerings were principally of wheat from Washington, Oregon and Texas. Receipts of inter-mountain wheat were very light, since only about 5,600,000 bushels remained on farms in Utah and Idaho at the first of March and about 4,000,000 bushels in country elevators and mills, making the total only 9,000,000 bushels, compared with 17,000,000 bushels in these positions a year ago. Receipts of wheat at San Francisco during March totaled 9,340 tons, of which 7,813 tons were from the Pacific northwest.

Barley Markets

Domestic barley markets continued quiet during the week ending March 31 and prices in general showed little change from a week ago. Foreign barley markets continued quiet with trading in the United Kingdom and on the Continent of only moderate volume. Prices in English markets were steady to slightly firmer for most varieties, although Persian barley declined slightly, reflecting the approach of the new crop movement. The Indian harvest is now in progress and trade reports indicate that the crop is not large, although somewhat better than earlier expectations. During recent years the Indian barley crop has averaged 2,779,000 tons, but yearly exports have been of only moderate volume, averaging less than 200,000 tons. Some exports are now moving but these comprise mainly feed barleys with only small amounts suitable for malting. The Syrian and North African crops are the next to be harvested and these are now coming into head with the promise of an earlier than usual season. In European countries, where most of the crop is spring-sown, heavy snows are reported which may delay seeding.

World shipments increased for the week, totaling 39,000 tons, with the gain largely accounted for by the heavier movement from Balck Sea ports, which totaled 21,200 tons, including 8,300 tons of Russian barley. Trade advices report the opening of navigation of the Danube which may be partly responsible for the heavier clearances. Argentine shipments have shown a slight gain for the week and amounted to 12,456 tons.

The Los Angeles barley market showed little change from a week ago with trading of limited volume and purchases mainly for nearby needs. Stocks were generally low but little interest was shown in future deliveries. Plump barleys suitable for rolling or for the rabbit trade were quoted at $1.15 but offerings of this type were light. Light weight feed offerings were quoted at $1.00 to $1.06 and No. 2 bright western at $1.07½ to $1.10.

Pacific northwestern barley markets wer steady although inquiry was only moderately active. Local 46 lb. No. 2 barley sacked, was quoted at Portland at $1.17½ with No. 2 eastern barley in bulk at $1.22½. California offerings of good quality feed barley was selling at around $1.00 per 100, delivered, and these were restricting sales of local offerings.

Graduates Practice Economy.

As a matter of economy the senior boys have decided to dispense with new suits for graduation and wear overalls instead. The girls have not yet decided on their dress. As a further step toward economy the school is advising that students do not buy class rings, but since it is student or parent money that is being spent, we are leaving the final decision entirely with those concerned.

A change is being made relative to the senior "Sneak" which will do away with the necessity of the juniors losing hours of sleep in order to watch senior activities. Instead of regular "Sneaks" the seniors will simply take a day off and spend it as they see fit.

HIGH SCHOOL SMOKER DRAWS AN ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE

Although the two main events on the wrestling and boxing card, sponsored by the Associated Students at the gymnasium last Saturday evening, were of short duration, there was a large audience which became more enthusiastic as the program was carried out.

Four tumblers from the University of Idaho, under the supervision of Trainer Hutchinson opened the program and their work was greeted by applause and was more than well received as was the exhibition wrestling match between two students from the University.

The first event on the schedule as arranged was the wrestling match between Ralph Broemeling and Albert Nagel, both weighing 152 pounds, the former winning the match with one fall in the alloted time, Nagel went to the mat first and in breaking the arm lock which Broemeling held for a few seconds, gained his footing, only to to go down in a body slam, with Broemeling the aggressor, working steadily on a reverse arm lock and using his weight forced Nagel's shoulders to the mat.

Esser and Kane in their alloted 8-minute scuffle went to a draw, although Esser was working constantly from above, with Kane unable to take the upper hand. Shortly after the bell sounded these two lunged backward through the "mile-high" ring, and were helped back into the ring by spectators. This apparently slowed up the bout, Kane, however managing to become the aggressor as the bell sounded.

Chester Green and Jack Magee, weighing around 85 pounds furnished the excitement in the wrestling divison of the card, both boys beng willing to go their best, Magee being the more experienced, which enabled him to win two falls. Both boys found support in the audience and encouraged by advice of friends, there was no stalling.

A battle royal with eight contestants was scheduled but only four youngsters could be persuaded to enter, Billy Smolt, Bobby Smith, Harold Suenkel and Jimmie Dresher, who furnished a few minutes of lively entertainment. Jimmy Dresher, the tallest of the quartet was soon smothered by the blows from six gloves and went down on one knee, sufficiently, however to disqualify him. Smith and Suenkel next engaged, Billy Smolt tripping and on being assisted from the melee was stood near the ropes. Smith seeing his second competitor near the ropes and not knowing that he had been disqualified showered several blows with the big mitts that definitely settled the status of the smallest youth. Suenkel, having only Smith to contend with was glad to mix it freely, but in so doing, tripped slightly and Smith was quick to grasp the opportunity, raining blows to the shoulders of Suenkel.

Billy Emerson, youngest of all entrants on the card, battled with Doug Suenkel for three rounds, and while swinging large mitts he received a draw with the more experienced entrant, who looked much like the better trained. Round 1 was conceded

Isaksens on the Air, April 18.

Peter Isaksen and son, Alfred, have accepted an invitation from KWSC, State College of Washington, Pullman, radio broadcasting station, to appear and broadcast a number of Old-Time numbers, the two Genesee people to come on the air at 6 o'clock Monday evening, April 18. Mr. Isaksen will play the fiddle and will be accompanied at the piano by his son.

WHEAT MARKET SUMMARY FOR WEEK ENDING APRIL 8

Domestic wheat markets were unsettled during the week ending April 8, influenced by the weakness in security markets, less favorable prospects for winter wheat and delayed seeding of the spring crop, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Corn markets were mostly weak and lower, with futures at Chicago reaching the lowest point since February, 1900. Oats and barley were lower with corn.

While the sharp decline in prices of securities was a weakening influence in wheat futures toward the close of the week and resulted in a material lowering of wheat prices, several factors tended to offset this and to strengthen the domestic wheat situation. The most important of the strengthening influences was the less favorable prospect for winter wheat and the delayed seeding of spring crops. The condition of winter wheat April 1 was only 75.8 per cent of normal, compared with the ten-year average of 80.9 per cent for that date. April 1 condition and preliminary reports from correspondents indicate an acreage abandonment of nearly 14 per cent for the U. S. as a whole this season, compared with the ten-year average of 12 per cent. While April 1 is too early for an accurate forecast of final production, an analysis of condition indicates a total outturn of winter wheat of around 458,000,000 bushels, or about 330,000,000 bushels less than last year's harvest. Such an outturn would give about 266,000,000 bushels of hard red winter wheat, 155,000,000 bushels of soft red winter and about 37,000,000 bushels of fall-sown white wheat.

Prospects for the new winter wheat crop of the northern hemisphere appears somewhat less favorable than a year ago. Winter seedings in fourteen countries reporting to date, exclusive of those of the Lower Danube and of Russia, give combined acreage of 123,887,000 acres, as against 123,735,000 acres for the same countries a year ago. Estimates available at the middle of February for the Lower Danubian countries show a combined area of 17,855,000 acres as compared with 20,173,000 acres for the same countries a year ago. These estimates however, are incompiete and subject to revision. The Russian winter wheat acreage is placed at 32,337,000 acres, compared with 29,028,000 acres seeded last year. Conditions of winter wheat in foreign countries are irregular, with some areas reporting considerable injury from winter killing and other generally favorable prospects.

GOVERNOR ROSS TO SPEAK IN GENESEE ON APRIL 29

The big event of the year will take place Friday, April 29, beginning at 10 o'clock, when May Day, Arbor Day and the Washington Bicentennial will be celebrated. At 11 o'clock W. D. Vincent, commissioner of education and secretary of the state board of education, will speak. At 11:45 the University of Idaho tumblers will give an exhibition, to be followed by a basket lunch at noon. The band will give a concert at 1 o'clock, the bicentennial program to begin at 1:30. At 2:30 Governor C. Ben Ross will be here to deliver an address, after which there will be a community field and truck meet to be participated in by both young and old. At 9 o'clock there will be an Associated Student Body dance to which everyone is invited.

All civic, religious and fraternal orders of Genesee and all rural schools in the vicinity are being invited and urged to attend and take part in making this the outstanding school celebration of the year.

Considerable sentiment has been expressed, favoring a basket dinner at noon, everybody to bring what they can or want to and having one large table on which the community dinner will be served. Many seem to prefer this method to the one sometimes employed of the various groups having dinner alone. This being a community affair we want to do the things that meet the wishes of the community, so will you please telephone or write or tell us how you think we could best handle the dinner situation.

"The Wisecracker"

Bill Benson, a happy-go-lucky fellow is in love with Myrtle Gregg. Myrtle's father objects because all Bill can do is wisecrack and spend money. Gregg insists that Myrtle marry Spencer Tuppan, his partner, who Bill says, is too tight to give away last year's calendar. Jeff Chandler sells Gregg and Spencer some land which is under water. Bill buys it from them and drains it on which to build a glue factory because the property is in front of some Chandler owns and Bill knows that he will come to any terms. Chandler buys the land for sixty thousand dollars. Bill gains Gregg's favor and his consent to marry Myrtle.

The cast: Emerson Gregg, George Blume; Emma Gregg, his wife, Marie Wagner; Myrtle Gregg, his daughter, Marguerite Kluss; Bill Benson, "The Wisecracker," Richard Harris; Spencer Tuppan, Russell Rinehart; Jefferson Chandler, Marvin Miller; Fanny Calkins, a friend of the family, Esther Kries; Mazie Hollins, a flapper, Berniece Gibbs.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR ROY C. MICHELSEN HELD FRIDAY

Funeral services for Roy Christen Michelsen were held from the Congregational church Friday afternoon, April 8, with the American Legion ceremony being read by Commander John Eikum and Fred Hove as chaplain; a choir, composed of Mrs. W. W. Burr, Mrs. John G. Meyer, Miss Esther Martinson, Mrs. Arthur Springer, Mrs. V. A. Beckman, John G. Meyer, Colin Wilson, F. A. Smith and Elmer Krier, with Mrs. W. M. Herman as director and accompanist, singing three songs. Interment was in the Genesee Valley Lutheran cemetery beside the remains of the father of the deceased, the services there being conducted by Unity Lodge No. 32, A. F. & A. M., a squad from the American Legion firing the salute to the dead at the conclusion of the Masonic service, Rev. B. J. Carey sounding taps.

Pallbearers were: Nels Lande, E. D. Pederson, Alvin Alexander, Fred Shirrod, John A. Luedke and Alfred Olsen.

Roy Christen Michelsen, son of Lewis and Marie Michelsen, was born near Genesee, January 3, 1897, and passed to his reward April 6, 1932 at 1:12 in the Veterans' Hospital, Boise, following an illness tracing back to 1925 when the deceased was in the employ of a lumber company at Winchester, Idaho, with which company he was associated from 1919 until the Fall of 1928, when his father became ill and he returned home to operate the farm and be with his parents, the father passing away February 5, 1929.

Shortly after becoming of age the deceased entered the service of the United States Army for the duration of the World War, first going to Camp Lewis, Wash., and then overseas, serving seven months with the 131st Infantry, returning to the states following the Armistice to be honorably discharged at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming, June 14, 1919. His entry into service was on September 3, 1918.

The deceased is survived by his mother, Mrs. Marie Michelsen, and four sisters, Mrs. S. C. Shepherd of Lewiston; Mrs. R. A. Gray, Genesee; Miss Hope Michelsen, who was an instructor in the Gooding, Idaho, public school, and who was with her brother prior to and at the time of his death; and Miss Thelma Michelsen, of Missoula, Mont.

Roy Michelsen was an esteemed member of the Masonic fraternity and was senior warden of Unity Lodge, Genesee, at the time he entered the hospital; a member of Lily Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, Genesee; a member of the American Legion, Genesee and of the Odd Fellows at Craigmont, Idaho, the three first named organizations and the Legion Auxiliary attending the services in a body, together with the many acquaintances and friends who held the deceased in high esteem and gathered for the final rites to pay respect and tribute.

Deceased first entered the Veterans' Hospital in November, 1930, and returned home at Easter time the following Spring, somewhat improved in health. He remained with his mother on the farm until November, 1931, when he was ordered to return to the hospital, the nature of his ailments requiring constant observation and attention. Temporary improvement was noted at periods, but with each succeeding attack the patient's vitality was lessened and toward the end complications of a baffling nature defeated the prolongation of life by medical science, the deceased, conscious almost to the end, at peace with his creator and with no fear of death, lapsed into a coma and then into the period of transition. Always devoted to his loving mother and sisters, the deceased, in his last moments, thought only of their welfare, and to them went the assurance that his love and loyalty was born of their kindness and love bestowed on him. Honest and faithful was the character of the service to his family, his country, his associates and friends.

GENESEE UNION WAREHOUSE CO. OFFICE ROBBED OF CASH

Thursday night or early Friday morning entrance was gained to the office of the Genesee Union Warehouse company office by a robber or robbers who took the cash left for making change, which amounted to $11.35. Several pennies were left by the intruders.

The building was entered at the east window where the screen was pried off, presumably with a screwdriver and the sash removed which retained the window. The glass was unbroken. This window opened on a room adjacent to the office, and a door secured by a latch barred further entrance to the office. The heavy hook and eye which served as a latch was strained and sprung until it gave away, permitting the door to open. The money was left in the fire-proof vault or safe which the robber or robbers opened.

A short step ladder used at a side entrance to the building was used to enter the building.

The theft was first noticed by Forrest Durbin, who opened the office, and after he notified the manager, Frank Hoorman, Deputy Sheriffs Moody and Jordan were called, who investigated, but to date have made no arrests.

SIMPSON'S ADDRESS A PART OF CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

Senator Elmer Thomas, Oklahoma, appearing before the United States senate, of which he is a member, asked unanimous consent that the radio address of John A. Simpson be made a part of the Congression Record, which request was granted, there being no objection. A number of people locally, who failed to hear the radio broadcast, have requested publication of the address together with three legislative bills, namely, the Swank-Thomas Bill, the Wheeler Bill and the Frazier Bill. The address of John A. Simpson, president of the National Farmers' Union follows:

Fellow stockholders in the largest corporation in the world, the United States of America, I amy happy indeed to greet you again and to have this opportunity to report to you concerning the doings of the board of directors that you have placed here in the National Capital in charge of this great corporation.

I talked to you at this hour four weeks ago, and I thank you for your wonderful response. You may be glad to know that I received more than 18,000 letters asking for copies of that talk. Not more than half of those that wrote are farmers. At least one half are made up of all kinds and classes of people. Among those writing were preachers, priests, teachers, students, merchants, bankers, every kind of business man and laborer.

The response was so much greater than I had anticipated that expenses reached such a sum that it requires regulation in order for me to tell you that I can furnish a copy of this talk to all who make requests. For two weeks I had five girls doing nothing but opening letters and reading them. I desire to eliminate that expense by asking anyone who desires a copy to use a postcard. Let me also ask that you write your name and address very plainly—printing is the best method.

Out of the letters received from the talk in January quite a number asked for copies and did not sign their names at all. Out of more than 18,000 letters received, only seven criticized my talk. We had 30,000 copies printed and Congressmen and Senators receivede so many requqests for copies that Senator Elmer Thomas placed the speech in the Congressional Record. He had 20,000 copies printed and sent out at his own private expense. You must know that the Farmers Educational and Cooperative Union of America is strictly a farmers' organization, whose only source of revenue to the national organization is 25 cents per year dues from each member. We are poor financially but rich in principle, in faith, and in courage.

I am also glad to report to you that there never was such an avalanche of letters received by congressmen and senators as the result of the broadcasting talk. But it is only a drop in the bucket to what must be done to awaken the sleeping giant, Congress. Congress is the most powerful branch of our National Government. eYt the very bureaus, commissions and departments that it creates tell congress what to do and

When a Split Stick Was a Bank Check

Three hundred years ago when a man put money in an English bank his deposit was recorded by notches in a stick, which was then split, the bank keeping one half, the depositor the other half. Before money was withdrawn, the two halves had to be matched together. The depositor's half was called "Bank Stock," the part the bank kept was the "check." The modern check system would astound those 17th century bankers.

SIMPSON'S ADDRESS A PART OF CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

where to go. These "children of congress" frequently deny United States senators information which they have because it is of such a secret nature that congress has no right to it. A real awakened congress would spend about two months investigating federal officers who should be impeached and putting these inferior commissioneers in jail for contempt. The members of the house and senate should read the Constitution and relearn, if they have ever learned it before, that they can pass laws without asking anybody under the sun. If you suggest the passage of a certain bill, the first thing an elected congressman or senator wants to know is whether or not it has had the approval of some little bureaucrat and would the president sign such a measure if congress did pass it. They surely have the inuferiority complex even worse than farmers.

Today I shall discuss three bills now pending in the house and senate. If a million people listening in at this hour would each write to their congressmen and senators asking them to support thes measures, telling them that you and your neighbors are going to hold them accountable in the next election. you would make easy the job of the three national farm organizations which are here in Washington attending this session of congress.

Wanton Destruction

There are many instances of wanton destruction on the part of these various departments of government. In many instances the destruction takes place without the consent of congress. At the disarmament conference, held in Washington and called by President Harding, a related navy strength program was agreed to by the various nations represented. This agreement involved the proposition of destroying a number of vessels this country had in the process of construction. We took half-built vessels that had cost the government millions of dollars and destroyed them. All any other nation had to do was to tear up the plans and specifications of proposed warships. There is an old saying that "The United States never lost a war and never won a conference."

"The public building program under the treasury department contemplates the ultimate replacement of the post office building located at Twelfth and Pennsylvania Avenue, the Old Southern Railway office building at Thirteenth and Pennsylvania Avenue and the Municipal building, which occupies the block bounded by Thirteen and one-half, Fourteenth, D. and E streets.

"The post office building was constructed at a cost of $2,585,000 and was completed November 26, 1898. The Southern Railwal building was purchased by the government on August 4, 1928, and the estimated value of the improvements at that time was $1,087,500. The cost of constructing the Municipal Building was $1,068,877. The building was occupied May, 1908."

You will observe that here is a destruction or more than five and a half million dollars worth of property. I am told that the only excuse is that the architecture of these buildings does not harmonize with the plans for beautifying the National Capital. A lack of harmony in the architecture of the various buildings appears to offend the highly developed aesthetic natures of some of our public officials. Of course it could be possible that instead of an offended aesthetic nature a fat juicy construction contract might be the motive. I recommend that you write your congressmen and senators demanding an investigation of the tearing down of these buildings.

Talk about public offices being a profitable business, I call your attention to the fact that in the last ten years, on advice from time to time of the Secretary of the Treasury, the income tax rates on incomes over $1,000,000 or more have been reduced from 65 per cent to a fraction less than 16 per cent.

Anti-Hoarding Program

Since talking to you a month ago the President called an anti-hoarding conference. Among those invited and attending were representatives of farmers and negroes. Can you imagine the necessity of getting a pledge from farmers and negroes that they will quit hoarding. I want you all to know that I did not attend this conference. The permanent committee left in the charge of the anti-hoarding campaign has as a part of its program the selling of government baby bonds as small as $50. I am just wondering how this will put the money in circulation. It appears to me it takes it out of circulation. Nine times out of ten, the poor fellow who has $50 in his pocket will be spending a little tomorrow. When he invests it in a bond it prevents every chance of his spending it. The $50 goes into the treasury of the United States along with a lot of other money hoarded there. It is possible they are figuring when the poor fellow wants to spend some money he will sacrifice his bond at about ninety cents on the dollar to some coupon clipper. Of all the hypocrisy being practiced at this time, and it is here in every shape and form, I am sure the greatest is this anti-hoarding program. Those who are promoting it have control of more hoarded money than all the rest of the people put together. Under present laws the federal reserev banks could issue at any time as much as three and one-half billion dollars on the surplus of gold in the treasury and another three and one-half billion dollars on eligible government bonds. They are the hoarders and not the people.

War

With all my heart, with all my soul, and with all my might I urge you—I plead with you to write your congressmen and senators demanding them to do everything possible to prevent this country being drawn into the China-Japanese trouble which threatens to become a world war. I want to read a little from a report of the great war correspondent, Floyd Gibbons. Listen to me, and in listening, picture this country involved, and mothers, your sons were being described instead of the sons of Chinese and Japanese mothers. I read from Floyd Gibbons:

"If you knew a murder was going to be committed in about seven hours and there was nothing you could do or apparently anybody could do to prevent it how would you feel?

"Suppose instead of just an ordinary homicide, this was going to be a wholesale murder—a slaughter?

"Between sixty and seventy thousand strong, vigorous, healthy young men—many of them boys in their teens—are sleeping in their arms tonight within half an hour's walk of this room.

"All of them have been generously supplied with the latest and most improved instruments for killing and maiming.

"Twenty-five thousand comprise one group—the Japanese.

"There are about 40,000 in the other group—Chinese.

"The two groups hate each other, not individually but as groups.

"Some time around 7 o'clock tomorrow morning—according to the present murder schedule which has been announced as officially and publicly as any sporting competition—these two groups of young men will hurl themselves at each other's throats.

"With shell, lead and explosive, with bayonet, bullets and bombs, the grisly spectacle will open and continue until one side or the other gives way.

"About 5,000 American soldiers, marines and sailors will occupy ringside seats, some of them dangerously close to the conflict, because at any moment after the opening of hostilities this fight is liable to get out of the ring and spread over the arena.

Only a man on the battle front give such a vivid description of the horrors of war. I want you to get this. All war is for profit. If we are finally drawn into this Far East conflict, it will be to protect rich men's property. This government should immediately afford on opportunity for every citizen to get out of that country at once, and if necessary for this country to reimburse all these citizens for the loss of a few million dollars of property, do it, instead of going into a war that may cost a milion lives and billions of dollars.

Here is something interesfing. One day last week while attending a hearing on Muscle Shoals before the senate agricultural committee, I heard Mercer Reynolds, a member of the Muscle Shoals commission, say that the United States government has the largest poison gas plant in the world. He also said that France had just recently purchased 40,000,000 gas masks and placed them where they are available for every man, woman and child in that country.

I said that all war is for profit. During a war the manufacturers make the profit. After a war those who hold the obligations of the government and the people, make the profit. Let me give you an illustration. In the last war the manufacturers of this country is making contracts with Uncle Sam wrote into the contracts three provisions. First, that Uncle Sam must take the goods contracted for even though the war ended the next day. Second, Uncle Sam must ship those goods to France. Third, Uncle Sam must not bring them back to this country. Under this contract this government was shipping goods to France a year after the war had ended. When the war did end the government found itself with $4,000,000,000 worth of property in France. Under the contract, our government could not bring this property back. They sold it to France at 10 cents on the dollar or for a sum of $400,000,000. However, France has never paid the bill and we have now granted her a moratorium. Let me give you an illustration of how the manufacturers operated. A harvester company, under this contract, sold and the government shipped to France every kind of farm implement made by them. There was shipped to France corn planters, cultivators, grain drills, drag harrows, disc harrows and if it were not such a tragedy it would be a real comedy, the harvester sold to the United States and shipped to France, to be used in whipping the kaiser, thousands of manure spreaders.

Swank-Thomas Bill.

In my talk over this broadcasting system January 23 I suggested that those listening write their congressmen and senators and ask for copies of three certain bills. I take it that many of you did this and that you have read the bills. I now desire to discuss these bills and shall take up the Swank-Thomas bill first. The House bill is H. R. 7797 and in the senate it is S. 3133. The authors are Congressmen F. B. Swank and Senator Elmer Thomas, both of Oklahoma.

The bill is an amendment to the farm marketing act. It may be divided into three parts. The first part transfers the administration of the marketing act from the Federal Farm Board to the Department of Agriculture. This is immaterial to the Farmers' Union—it is not vital and we have so told the House and Senate agricultural committees. The last part of the bill provides for keeping on the farm that portion of a farm crop not needed for use in this country. It makes such part unsalable until such time as some foreign buyer may be willing to pay cost of production for it. This part of the bill is also not vital and we have so told the committees. It is immaterial to us what method the government may use in disposing of the surplus of farm crops.

The heart of the bill and the part that is vital provides for securing cost of production for that part of farm crops used in this country. The three farm organizations have adopted as a slogan, "Nothing less than cost of production for that part of farmers crops used in this country, is a remedy." I am sure that my audience will agree that no institution can operate at less than cost any longer than their capital lasts. An institution selling at less than cost of operation, if continues to operate, must do so by borrowing on its capital. Farmers have been operating at less than cost of production so long that more than one-half of them have lost their farms through foreclosures and tax sales. That is why we say that nothing less than cost of production for that part of farm products used in this country, is a remedy.

Price fixing is not new. Everything a farmer buys the seller gets the price. Even the farmers' products, after they get out of his hands have a fixed price. Everything the government touches the purchaser must pay a fixed price. I have never known postage stamps to sell at a discount. There are nearly a million federal officers and employees with their services paid at a fixed price. No person can get their jobs by offering to serve for less. A ticket on the railroad, bus, boat or airplane must be purchased at a fixed price. Why should

PERSONAL SERVICE BIG ITEM IN COST OF GOVERNMENT

How has the cost of government increased? is the question asked by Glenn Balch writing on taxation under the direction of the state chamber of commerce. He gives the following answer: Most persons have been made painfully aware, through the medium of tax notices, that such an increase has taken place, but answers to the questions of How and Why are still somewhat obscure.

Personal service—they called it "hired help" in the good old days—is the state government's largest individual item of expense. Expenditures under this heading are commonly called wages and salaries. They are paid to persons who work for the state. In number of employees and in size of payroll, the state government is the largest user of personal service in the state.

New Jobs Created

The increased necessity for personal services has come with the rapid development of the state government and the continuous adding of functions. Additional jobs and duties, all requiring additional employees, have been created by the succeeding legislatures. Also the technical complexities of modern governmental administration have made increased manpower necessary.

Under the heading of personal service come stenography, accounting, inspecting, controlling, administering, auditing, buying, bargaining, sweeping, cleaning, painting, polishing, teaching, coaching, advising, judging, enforcing, protecting, collecting, assessing, experimenting, training, rehabalitating, reclaiming, reforesting, and a lot of other -ings, including, no doubt, some plain and fancy swivel-chair warming.

The Public Pays

The number of jobs that can be discovered necessary to the efficient carrying on of the state's business is really amazing. There seems to be good excuses for filling every chair in the state house, and for putting an employee behind every desk. The public, of course, pays the bill.

In creating such a multitude of jobs, the state legislatures have been under the impression, theoretically at least, that they were fulfilling the desires of the people and providing for needed public services and protections. The very fact, however, that the burden of taxation is now so oppressive that some of these creations were ill-advised.

Costs Compared

During her first biennium of statehood, Idaho had an estimated number of less than 65 employees and the total appropriation for all state government purposes for the two-year period was $385,000.

In contrast with this, the 1931 legislature appropriated the sum of $3,509,526 for the salaries and wages alone of 1059 persons, all employed by the state. Of this amount $534,094 was provided for "extra help," an item not mentioned in the 1891 budget.

From these figures it is to be seen that during the years of 1931 and 1932 the state of Idaho will pay for personal services a total of more than three and a half million dollars from funds collected from her citizens in the form of taxes.

But that is not all. Salaries and wages of the special departments, some of which are among the heaviest users of personal service, are not included in the above figures.

Among these special departments are the highway department, the state's biggest spender and employer of hundreds of road workers; the department of law enforcement, with its numerous clerks and patrolmen; the game department, which has many deputy wardens in the field.

Funds for the maintenance of these departments, whose aggregate expenditures for salaries and wages will run into millions of dollars annually, are derived from the gasoline tax, game licenses and other licenses and fees of various kinds. They come, however, as do the direct taxes, from the purse of the general public.

Comparing the state government of 1891 with the heavily-manned organization of today, we find it less difficult to understand how the cost of government has increased.

GRAIN MARKET SUMMARY.

is reported below average and less favorable than a year ago. In parts of the Danubian Basin, particular in Hungary, where crops suffered considerable damage from winter killing prospects are unsatisfactory. In the Mediterranean countries, the outlook is more favorable and conditions appear to be generally up to average. The acreage in Spain, France and Italy, the three most important producing countries of this group, is placed at 35,529,000 acres as against 34,946,000 acres last year.

European wheat markets held generally steady during the week under the influence of light offerings of native wheat. Prices of milling wheat at Hamburg advanced about 3c, to $1.66. Native wheat at Paris was about 1c higher at $1.80½, with the Milan market steady at $1.65 3-4. The French milling quota of foreign wheat has now been increased to 45 per cent. Trade reports indicate that Germany is planning to permit the importation of around 7,000,000 bushels of wheat duty free. Offerings of North African new crop durum wheat for June shipment, were reported liberal. Offerings of southern hemisphere wheat increased, particularly from Argentina and southern hemisphere shipments for the week totaled slightly over 11,000,000 bushels. Foreign inquiry for North American wheat was fairly active and moderate sales of both Canadian spring and U. S. hard winter wer reported during the week.

Pacific coast markets were steady to higher and did not follow the decline in futures at Chicago. The strength in the situation at Portland and Seattle was attributed principally to the very light offerings since demand was of only moderate volume. Export demand was still lacking and no export sales of either flour or wheat were reported during the week. Demand from California was of only moderate volume, reflecting the small purchases from mills and feeders in that state and the competition of offerings from the southwest. Prices of cash wheat at Portland advanced 2-3c during the week.

NOT KNOCKING, BUT—

Falls City, Neb.,—To the World-Herald: We read a lot in the Public Pulse that people write knocking President Hoover. Why do they kick, now that they have him for president when they know he's just as good a president as he was food administrator during war times? Don't we have wheatless, meatless, seatless and eatless day now the same as we did then? We farmers are surely enjoying good times. We are getting 7c a dozen for our eggs, and my husband just sent two of our best cows to market and got about $12 each for them after he paid for the hauling, commission, etc. I have a list of 20 or more farmers around here who have not bought their 1932 auto license and are not going to. Many have quit taking a newspaper. Several have had their telephones taken out. I'm sure they will all vote for Hoover and more prosperity. I have just finished patching the patches on my little boy's overalls. I would like to sew a big patch on the seat of that old elephant's pants and then kick it off.—Mrs. E. C. V.

SIMPSON'S ADDRESS A PART OF CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

anyone fear a fixed price on farmers' products?

Here are a few fundamentals. No unorganized group has anything to say about the price of their products. No unorganized group can take advantage of a tariff on their products. The farmers of the nation in relation to other groups are organized to a less degree than any other group. The work of a farmer tends to make him an individualist. The members of no other group are so completely isolated from each other as are farmers, and this isolated condition of living makes him an individualist. I could qualify in court as an expert witness in the matter of organizing farmers. It is my opinion, formed out of 16 years of continuous organizing work that they will not in the near future organize to a degree where they can set the price of their products. Here is another fundamental: When a group of producers do not set the price of their own products, somebody else does it for them. In the case of farmers, a handful of gamblers on the Chicago Board of Trade set the price of his grain. Another handful of gamblers on the cotton exchanges set the price of his cotton. And so on through the whole list of his products the prices are set by those who care not whether that price gives the farmer the cost of producing his crops.

In support of my statement that a tariff does not operate for an unorganized group let me cite wool as a farm crop on which there is a 30 cents per pound tariff. Yet farmers get less than one-half that price for wool. Also the case of wool proves that surplus is only a scarecrow. In the last ten years we have imported one-half billion pounds of wool more than we exported. We do not produce as much wool as we consume. Yet the farmers are not getting more than one-fourth the cost of production. This ought to show any intelligent person that to reduce production of wheat to domestic consumption, so long as you let the wheat gamblers price it, there would be no assurance of farmers getting cost of production.

The Swank-Thomas bill provides that the government shall regulate the marketing of farm crops just like the government regulates the marketing of transportation. The government under the interstate commerce law does not buy or sell transportation, but it does say what the price of every pound of freight shall be. It fixes this price on the cost of the transportation. The Swank-Thomas bill provides that all that part of the major farm crops, such as wheat, wool, cotton, pork, beef, poultry and dairy products used in this country, shall be purchased by licensed buyers at a minimum price covering cost of production. Cost of production includes pay for all labor used in producing the crop and interest on the investment. This does not put the government in business any more than the regulation of transportation puts them in business.

It is well to remember that exports of agricultural products are now only about 5 per cent more than imports. The 1900 census shows 30 per cent more. In other words in 30 years our surplus has decreased from 30 per cent to about 5 per cent. At the same rate, in a few years, we will be an importing nation so far as agricultural products are concerned. The Swank-Thomas bill contemplates that farmers will be prosperous if they can have cost of production for what the home folks use. Surely no real American wants to eat a farmers' bread and butter at less than it cost the farmer to produce it.

We have precedent for doing the thing the Swank-Thomas bill provides. February 1919, delegations of Farmers' Unions from one-half dozen midwestern states came to Washington and promoted a bill through congress providing for a minimum price for that year's crop of wheat. The bill also provided for an appropriation of $1,000,000,000 to be used in making the price effective. Remember this was after the war had closed and before any of the spring crop had even been sowed. The government, just as provided in the Swank-Thomas bill, licensed all purchasers of wheat such as mills and elevators. Then these licensees were told, "If you pay less than $2.26 per bushel for No. 1 wheat, Chicago basis, your license will be cancelled and your business closed." The result of this legislation was that the gamblers on the Grain Exchange in Chicago were forced to gamble above this guarnateed minimum price and the market went up and stayed around $3 per bushel up to May 1, 1920, when the law expired. There were three nice things about the 1919 guaranteed minimum price for wheat. First, it did not cost the government a penny. Second, the price of bread did not advance in spite of the fact that farmers received 75 cents per bushel more for their wheat that year than they did the two years of the war, and thus it did not cost the consumer anything. Third, it is the only years in 20 years, according to government figures, that wheat farmers made a profit on wheat. If farmers needed said for their 1919 crop they need it ten times as badly for their 1932 crop.

France, Germany, Italy and other European countries have been doing this very thing for their farmers ever since the war. A little less than a year ago wife and I were in France. We visited cousins of hers who are farmers. In April last year, the very week we were there, they were selling wheat at $1.85 per bushel, figured in our money. It was much higher in theirs. We found that farmers in Italy received $1.80 per bushel and in Germany $1.88 per bushel. Each of these governments had a minimum guaranteed price, just like we had in 1919, and their prices played above the minimum every year. In France the minimum was $1.71 and farmers were getting $1.85.

The great cartoonist, John M. Baer, made a cartoon, recently carried in Labor and copied by many papers throughout the United States in which he shows the wheat farmer in the United States with a bag of wheat marked 30 cents a bushel. This good American farmer is talking to Uncle Sam. He points to France where the cartoon shows a wheat farmer of that country with his bag of wheat and a price of $1.80 per bushel. This American farmer says to Uncle Sam, "Can't this great nation do as much for the American farmer as France does for its peasants?" In the cartoon is the American consumer of bread on the American side and the French consumer of bread on the French side of the cartoon. The French consumer has two loaves of bread under his arm, the American consumer one, and the American consumer is saying to Uncle Sam, "Yes; and I pay as much for a 1-pound loaf as a Frenchman pays for two." The Swank-Thomas bill undertakes to do for the American farmer exactly what the government of France has been doing for its farmers for the last 15 years.

The farmers I talked to in France last April told me that they were the most prosperous they had even been in their lives with the exception of during the World war when the lowest price they received for wheat was $3.48 per bushel. You farmers listening in at this time, if you are satisfied with the price the gamblers fix on your products, then turn from this hour happy and contented. If you are not satisfied with a gambler-fixed price, then turn from this hour and write your congressman and senators demanding them to support the Swank-Thomas bill. Call a mass meeting in your neighborhood and pass resolutions addressed to Hon. Marvin Jones, chairman of the House Agricultural Committee, and Hon. Charles L. McNary, chairman of the Senate Agricultural Committee, demanding the Swank-Thomas bill be reported out at once.

Frazier Bill

In the series of the three bills none is more important than the refinancing bill introduced by Senator Frazier. Five state legislatures have passed resolutions memoralizing congress to enact the Frazier bill into law. Farmers owe so much that they can not pay the present high rate of interest and taxes. The mid-west states are fast becoming the largest landholders in America. In the last few years, through tax sales, 70,000,000 acres of land have become the property of a dozen states. The Frazier bill provides for refinancing farmers on a basis of 1½ per cent interest and 1½ per cent payment on the principal each year—a total of 3 per cent per year. If the Frazier bill becomes a law, it means a reduction of total interest paid by farmers of at least $500,000,000 per year. Even though farmers were getting cost of production they could not pay their debts at the present high rates of interest, which means the Frazier bill is vital to the economic life of agriculture.

The Frazier bill has in it provision for the government issuing money to loan to farmers to pay off their present indebtedness. It is estimated it would require three or four billion dollars to refinance those farmers who would make application. Everybody here in Washington, from the president down, now admits there is not enough money in circulation to do the business of the country. Every bill passed in this session of congress has provisions for increasing the volume of currency, but on a basis of paying interest to bankers, which means increased taxes on the 120,000,000 common people of the country. The Frazier bill provides for government money instead of bankers' money. It will be a source of revenue to the extent of 1½ per cent to the government and thus reduce the taxes of 120,000,000 common people.

To all farmers listening in who are satisfied with the rates of interest they are paying I want you to turn from this hour smiling, happy and contented, but to all those listening in who would like to have a loan on the terms of the Frazier bill turn from this hour determined to do your part to give your congressmen and senators the courage to look international bankers in the eye and say, "Get thee behind me, Satan."

Wheeler Bill

Money is a crop, just like wheat or cotton. The value of the unit of a crop depends largely upon the size of the crop. When the crop of wheat is a small one the value of the unit, a bushel of wheat, goes up. When the crop of wheat is a large one the value of a bushel of wheat goes down. The same thing is true of the money crop. When there is a large crop of money the purchasing power of the unit of money, a dollar, goes down. When there is a small crop of money the purchasing power of the dollar goes up.

The money crop is by far the most important of any crop, because it measures to a large extent the value of all other crops. A high priced dollar means a dollar that will buy a lot of wheat, a lot of cotton, a lot of any commodity. The important thing about change in the purchasing power of a dollar is its effect on fixed charges, such as taxes, debts, and interest on debts. Hence, the control of the money crop is the most powerful influence in the nation.

The Constitution of the United States says, "Congress shall have the power to coin and regulate the value of money." Regulating the value of money is done by controlling the volume of money. It was never intended that Congress should transfer this power to anybody else, but they did. In the national bank act of Civil war times, the demonetization of silver in 1873, and the Federal reserve act of 1914 Congress absolutely transferred the control of the money crop in the country to a handful of international bankers. They can make the crop big as they did during the war and the purchasing power of the dollar came down.

May 1, 1920, the volume of money was so big in this country that a dollar would only buy one-third of a bushel of wheat. It would only buy two and one-half pounds of cotton. It would buy less than two pounds of butterfat. Farmers and other people borrowed lots of money when it took so little of their product to purchase a dollar. Then out of a clear sky those who control the crop of money ordered the payment of notes and other obligations, and as fast as notes were paid currency was destroyed.

A little while ago I told you that one set of war profiteers are those who hold the obligation of the people and the government. Let me amplify. The latter part of January, 1920, I was here in Washington attending to some business for members of the Oklahoma Farmers' Union, of which I was president at that time. While here I visited Mr. John Skelton Williams, who was the comptroller of the currency. I asked Mr. Williams, "When is deflation to begin?" He answered me, "The other members of the board have just voted for it to begin May 1 this year." Then he told me this sordid story. He said, "I told them that such a course would break lots of little country banks." He said, "They answered me that the little banks ought to break, there are too many of them." Tears were on his cheeks when he said that he told them "such a course would ruin ruin lots of farmers, and that they coldbloodedly replied, 'They ought to be ruined; they are getting so prosperous they won't work.'"

At that time there were 30,000 banks in this country. Today there are about 20,000. Ten thousand have closed their doors. And I know I am conservative when I say that one-half the farmers have been ruined. I have a number of citizens to corroborate this testimony of mine. I would have no trouble in establishing this in a court of record. I am telling it to you in order that you may know that this thing did not just happen. I want you to know it was deliberately planned and diabolically carried out. He who says no one is to blame is either an ignoramus or a knave.

As proof that I believed what Mr. Williams told me, I went back to my home in Oklahoma and on the 5th day of February, 1920, made a public sale. I did not wait to catalog my registered shorthorns. I did not wait to get an expert auctioneer for the full-blooded livestock I put in that sale. I employed a farm auctioneer living there in the community and described the breeding of my livestock myself.

I expect ther are farmers listening in at this hour who purchased cattle at my sale, with the banker standing at their elbow urging them to bid, assuring them that their note would be carried more than six months for which it was being made. When the note was due six months later, that banker, through orders that came from the international bankers, forced these farmers to pay their notes, and many of them sold the same cattle at one-fourth of what they paid for them February 5, six months before. As further proof that I believed what Mr. Williams said, I was at that time editor of the Oklahoma Union Farmer, which went to every member of the Farmers' Union in Oklahoma. In the February 1st issue, 1920, I warned the members of what I had learned from the comptroller of the currency. I do not want you to blame the banker in your town. He was as innocent as a baby and as surprised and shocked as you were when he was informed May 1st notes must be paid.

The job the Wheeler bill proposes to do is to break the strangle hold the international bankers have on the money crop of this country. I firmly believe there is no bill the international bankers will do to defeat than the Wheeler bill, remonetizing silver. If you want to deal a blow to these pirates of finance, shower your congressmen and senators with letters, petitions, and telegrams until they have the courage to look an international banker in the eye and defy the power that has gripped your national capital. The battle here is—

Lost 20 Lbs. of Fat In Just 4 Weeks

Mrs. Mae West of St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I'm only 28 years. old and weighed 170 pounds until taking one box of your Kruschen Salts just 4 weeks ago. I now weigh 150 lbs. I also have more energy and furthermore I've never had a hungry moment."

Fat folks should take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it's the SAFE, harmless way to reduce as tens of thousands of men and women know.

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen at the Genesee Drug Co. or any drugstore in America—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back. adv

Veteran Is Retired.

Babe, the veteran or "veteraness"—which ever you choose to say, has been retired from active service as one of the gray horses, which Ed Vanouck has driven as a team for the past fifteen years. Babe, to be more exact, is a gray mare, 21 years of age, and has completed her fifteenth year of faithful service and will be turned out to pasture until she tires of her "earthy" labors and passes on to her reward.

Bill, the gray gelding, with which she has trod the streets of Genesee for so many years, is even her senior in service by one year, although he is a year younger, having served 16 years. He is now in his twentieth year.

When Babe was relieved Monday noon she was replaced by Pet, a ten-year old mare, which was purchased from John Krier, and a dead mate for Old Bill.

The owner of the dray line, Ed, himself, has been in the harness for 18 years this last "stretch," having however, operated the service at other periods.

HIGH SCHOOL SMOKER DRAWS AN ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE

to Suenkel; round 2 to Emerson, and judges, referee and the audience were unanimous that the third was a draw.

Smylie and Rinehart went three rounds to a draw and gave a good exhibition, Rinehart probably having a shade the better of it in the opening round, but if it is to be closely judged, Smylie took the two remaining rounds. There was insufficient difference, however to grant a decision.

Billy Edwards and Gene Grieser appeared well matched, both boys showing more training that was expected. Edwards perhaps delivered the greatest number of blows, but Grieser placed his with more power and in giving a decision, Grieser was winner, after Edwards sprained a thumb, otherwise the decision would have been a draw at least.

Getting into the heavier division, Mulalley and Olson were adjudged equal, Mulalley winning the first round, Olson the second, and the third round could be nothing save a draw. Both boys were ambitious, Olson being wild in throwing his mitts, and Mulalley's punches lost their effect as he crouched after almost every exchange of blows. This was one of the fastest bouts and most interesting.

Cliff Wishard won one of the few decisions during the evening, outpointing his partner in the ring, Wilford Cameron. Wishard was cautious in the opening seconds, and after Cameron made two or three long swings, the information was that Cameron had a dangerous right should it connect, but Wishard was always inside or far enough away to dodge the blows. Neither man took much punishment, the bout being interesting, although it is believed the crowd would have been glad to witness the connection of Cameron's long shots, had it not been that Wishard would have to take 'em. Wishard was clearly the better boxer, and at times showed that he could hit, as he rocked Cameron once or twice. The two judges and referee awarded the decision to Wishard.

While there was an open two-minute period Billy Herman and Gerald Pederson entered the ring and tried to do bodily harm with the large boxing gloves. This was a two-round event, resulting in a draw.

As a special feature, A. Driskill of Moscow stopped Donald Dye of Pullman early in the first round of their three-round match, Driskill appearing much the superior in every way. Dye was completely stopped before the bell in the first round, and was carried along until the rest period, but was unable to finish the match.

George Miller, looked very good as he left his corner of the ring to meet Chas. Litchfield, Lewiston, and what looked like a good three-round match was in progress when Litchfield connected with Miller's chin, the latter being out but still on his feet as the Lewiston man backed away. Miller was unable to finish the match, although he quickly revived after he was placed on a chair. Miller had attempted to come back after several years' absence from the ring with only about ten days training, a time too short by far in which to harden a chin and get in shape.

The school was well pleased with the patronage accorded the smoker, and it may be that a second card will be arranged wherein Litchfield and Driskill may meet. These two boys are plenty good, both about the same size and they sling leather somewhat better than was expected.

Jack Vandenburg was referee and F. W. Loncosty and R. L. Edwards, judges.

CLEAN-UP WEEK.

Clean-up week starts in Genesee April 18 and if property owners have the trash accumulations of the winter stored in convenient places in the alleys or along the property, it will be removed by the city without cost to you. Another provision is that rubbish must be placed in containers to facilitate quick handling.

Genesee will have a number of visitors here April 29 and it is hoped that all property will be cleaned up.

grade room. The pupils in that room have been encouraged to adopt constructive spare-time activities and on that night some of the results of the activities will be on display.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

The sixth graders have been working problems from athletic records. They found it quite interesting to compare their records to the standard records given in the arithmetic book.

Last week the fifth grade made short plays for their language lesson. Dorothy Follett's was best and was acted out in the next class period. The second best was written by Loren Kambitsch.

We memorized the poem "The Song of Sherwood" in reading class, having a contest to see who could memorize it first. The boys won by one point. The score was 88 to 87.

Some of the pupils illustrated the modes of travel in pioneer days. Barbara Huffman, Mona Myers and Ethel Dresher had the best pictures.

In geography the fifth grade has been traveling through the southern part of Africa. Yesterday we visited the diamond mines.

To be on the honor roll pupils must have no grades lower than a B. The following are on the honor roll for this six weeks period: Rita Loncosty, Gainford Olson, Richard Sampson, Bayne Hickman, Adeline Herman, Cicily Herman, Robert Schooler, Rowena Nordby, Dorothy Follett, Loren Kambitsch, Donald Emerson, Mona Myers, Bonnie Hayden, Warren Suenkel, Homer Burr, Glenn Osmundson, Lavern Edwards, Gwendolyn Suenkel and Helen Edwards.

First and Second Grades

The primary folk finished making their band costumes last Friday. The second grade children are enjoying the stories in their new readers.

Thieves Lock Up Marshal.

John Morgan, 40, and Leon LeVere, 30, are on their way to the penitentiary at Walla Walla, after locking up Night Marshal Ed Ash of Palouse, robbing a hardware store and stealing an automobile. The stolen automobile was found stuck in the mud in Deep Creek section of Latah county, 15 miles north of Potlatch. The men were asleep and were apprehended by a Latah county deputy sheriff, Charles Ogan, and his brother, Mike Ogan of Potlatch. The men confessed when confronted by Sheriff Daily of Whitman county.

Nez Perce County Pays Less.

Salaries of all county officials except the coroner were reduced for the coming biennium in Nez Perce county. The sheriff will receive $1800 instead of the $2000 for this year; the assessor takes a $200 cut to $1800; the probate judge will receive $1500 compared with $1800 for this year, the school superintendent to receive a like reduction; the treasurer receives a cut of $100, making his salary $1700, and the surveyor will lose $120 if reelected.

The sheriff, assessor and treasurer agreed voluntarily to the reductions.

Sheriff and Judge Ask Less Pay.

Sheriff Charlie Summerfield and Probate Judge L. G. Peterson have agreed to accept a 10 per cent cut in their pay. Summerfield offered to accept less salary beginning April 1 and Peterson is willing to take less for the year 1933.

Evening Bridge Club.

Mrs. Glen Sampson entertained the Evening Bridge club last Friday evening. High score was won by Mrs. Saidee Gibson and the consolation by Mrs. Harold Haymond. Mrs. T. H. Herman was a guest. Mrs. Gibson and Mrs. Frank Hoorman will be joint hostess at the next meeting.

Friday Bridge Club.

Mrs. T. H. Herman entertained the Bridge club last Saturday evening, when four tables were at play. Mrs. Walter Emerson won high score and Mrs. J. J. Tupker, the consolation. Mrs. Harry Schooler will be the next hostess.

High School to Have Dance.

Hirzel & Miller's dance band which has recently completed a contract on board an ocean liner, playing for dances and other affairs, are making their headquarters in Lewiston, and while in this territory have been secured by the Associated Student body to play for its dance at the gymnasium Friday, April 15.

Physically Fit?

THE GENESEE NEWS

VOL. XLIII — GENESEE, LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, APRIL 22, 1932 — NO. 44

CLARK BROTHERS VISIT FOR FIRST TIME IN TWENTY YEARS

Grant Clark last saw his brother, U. S. Clark, twenty years ago, and enjoyed the two days which his brother spent in Genesee, Monday and Tuesday, leaving here for San Francisco.

U. S. Clark is completing his third trip around the world and his fourth visit to the Orient, having spent several weeks in Manchuria and China proper during the time a state of war existed. Mr. Clark contradicts press reports in the number of Chinese killed, stating that the counting was done mostly by Japanese, and the greater number of casualties were those of women and children. He told of the invasion of China by the Japs as being ruthless, done more to frighten the Chinese into submission than for any other motive, but the invaders were surprised how Chinese flocked into the battle sector in such numbers that it seemed almost impossible to subdue such a population. Most of the destruction was caused in Chinese cities by long range fire from battleships and by airplane, said Mr. Clark. Japanese forces would shell a position for several hours with long range guns and trench mortars and then rush the hastily constructed fortifications, only to find the Chinese there in great numbers, armed, however, with antiquated guns, some with old bayonets, swords and even pointed sticks, and told of how they stood off the superior Japanese troops.

Mr. Clark, on this last round-the-world trip, on a secret mission, visited 32 foreign countries, Russia being one country in which he did not stop, the only city of that country in which he had contact being Vladivostok. Leaving the United States at San Diego, he went to Fort Phillip, Australia, and then back to this continent, to Santiago, Argentina, round the Horn to England, into Germany, France, Italy, Turkey, Persia, India, Siam, French Indo China, China proper, into Manchuria and Vladivostok, returning to Canton, China, Bombay India, and by boat across the Arabian, Red and Mediterranean Seas to Spain where he sailed for the United States, landing at New York, and on his way west stopping at Genesee to visit his brother and family.

SOUTH IDAHO MAN CHOSEN AS STATE GAME WARDEN

Boise, Idaho—A. H. Eckert, Glenns Ferry, for four years Elmore county commissioner, was appointed state game warden last Saturday by Governor C. Ben Ross, to succeed M. P. Bailey, resigned.

The appointment followed a month of negotiations to secure a warden after Bailey presented his resignation to take a position with a Calfornia fruit preserving company as sales manager in the Pacific Northwest.

At the time of his resignation, Mr. Bailey said he had differences with the administration over the 10 per cent salary reduction but otherwise his relations with the chief executive had been most cordial. He held the position a year, succeeding R. E. Thomas, now warden of the state penitentiary.

GENESEE HAS LARGEST EGG.

Alexander Brothers, Genesee ranchers, are justified in claiming a record in owning the largest hen egg in Latah county, in fact, the proportions of the egg now on display at the News office are such that they may not be confined to Idaho, and it is thought that no section in the United States or the entire world, for that matter can produce such a large-sized specimen.

Dimensions of the egg are as follows: Length, 4 3-8 inches; diameter, 2 3-4 inches; circumferences 11 7-8 by 8 7-8 inches. The egg contained a double yolk and was laid by a Lakenvelder hen, raised by the Alexander Brothers, and she is still laying eggs despite the depression and going about her business with all the confidence in the world.

Lady Lakenvelder is the offspring of a pen of three pure-strain birds imported into Idaho by Alexanders, a strain of chickens known for their egg production. The hen which laid this large egg is not large and is white in color with a black neck and black tipped wings.

FLOYD ROGERS AND MISS MARIE WALKER MARRIED

The many friends of Floyd Rogers will be agreeably surprised to learn of his marriage to Miss Marie Walker of Clarkston, Wash., on the evening of New Year's day, the ceremony being performed at the Seventh Day Adventist church in Lewiston, Elder Willoughby officiating. Mrs. Rogers is the daughter of Mrs. B. C. Sergerson of Clarkston.

The church was beautifully decorated for the ceremony which was attended by a large number of friends of both families, the relatives of the contracting couple being seated in a reserved portion of the church.

Several days following the wedding a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Carpenter, former residents of Genesee, for the young couple, where they were serenaded and showered with gifts preceding a program of speeches and musical numbers. Later in the evening a delicious luncheon was served the assembled guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers are now at home on the ranch which has been farmed for the last five years by Floyd and his brother, Avery. Mrs. Sergerson also accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Rogers and will remain here for some time. They came Monday.

JEFFERSON BANQUET DRAWS DEMOCRATS FROM GENESEE

Ed Smolt, George Morscheck, Wm. Cunningham, Henry Halverson, R. L. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Meyer and J. J. Berg went to Moscow Saturday evening to attend the Jefferson banquet and program, and incidently to hear the remarks made by Wm. Morgan, Boise attorney and former supreme court judge; Lieut. Governor G. P. Mix, and Attorney W. Orr Chapman, Twin Falls, relative to democratic undertakings for the coming primary and general elections.

About 85 people were present at the meeting held in the Elks Temple.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE FOR CELEBRATION APRIL 29

All arrangements have been completed for the big celebration on Friday, April 29, beginning at 10 a. m., and lasting throughout the day until 12 o'clock midnight. All indications point toward one of the biggest celebrations that Genesee has seen for many years. (Those of our fellow citizens who seem to have some control over weather conditions can win the gratitude of our people by seeing that the weather man dishes up a nice, warm, dry day.

The most impressive part of the program will begin at ten o'clock when the band and the school children join in the flag raising exercise. Following this the lower grades will give the Maypole dance and Health Day exercises. Next comes the Arbor day section of the program at which time the various classes and organizations taking part in the school landscaping program will plant a tree or shrub. At 11 o'clock Commissioner of Education W. D. Vincent will address the audience.

At 11:45 the tumbling team of the University of Idaho will give its performance and at 1:00 o'cloke the combined Uniontown-Genesee bands will give a concert.

At 1:30 p. m. the Washington Bicentennial program in which our local organizations and the rural schools will participate.

Governor Ross to Speak

At 2:30 Governor C. Ben Ross will speak. At 3:30 the community field and track meet. At 9 p. m. a free community dance will be given.

We are endeavoring to make this day purely one of entertainment and enjoyment and without cost to anyone. Various local musicians have agreed to furnish the music and this will enable us to have an evening's dancing without charge, and it will undoubtedly be one of the best dances of the year. Be there to meet your friends. Forget your troubles for a few hours. We know you will like it.

Public Card Party

Those who don't dance the Knights of Columbus will sponsor a card party, which is also free. It will be held in the K. C. hall and appropriate prizes will be given for winners of high and low score.

The morning and afternoon programs will take place on the school grounds and at the band stand in the city park. Chairs and benches will be provided to seat the crowd. Should the weather man play false and produce rain, the program will be held in the opera house.

Purpose of Celebration

The purpose of the community celebration as outlined above is threefold: To celebrate the 200th birthday of George Washington and to observe Arbor and May Days.

For the community dinner, everyone is urged to bring their dinner which will be spread on long tables, weather permitting, and all join in the noon meal. Coffee will be served by the high school.

Eighth Grade Exams.

Several months ago Genesee public schools filed application with the state board of education for exemption of our eighth graders from the state examinations. County Superintendent Miss Ellen Peterson, approved our application and last week we were notified that our application had been acted upon favorably. As long as the Genesee school maintain the high degree of efficiency which it has attained this year the promotion of the eighth grade pupils into high school will be entirely under the jurisdiction of the superintendent and teachers. This should

LAWLESSNESS CONTRIBUTES TO COST OF GOVERNMENT

A large portion of the expenses of modern government is necessitated by the recalcitrancy and cupidity of a very small fraction of our citizenry. This group, while small and unworthy of governmental consideration on its own account, must be controlled in the best interests of society at large and the burden naturally and rightfully rests upon the shoulders of constituted authority.

The most familiar examples of this class of citizens are those who violate our criminal laws, persons who steal, murder or commit other crimes. They are comparatively few in number, but the business of suppressing their activities constitutes one of the largest items of governmental expense. Because of them we must maintain police forces, jails, courts and penitentiaries, all at great cost. Protection of society is a foremost governmental obligation.

Much Policing Required

Suppression of crime is, however, only a small portion of the great mass of policing duty for which the government is responsible. All of our tremendous multitude of laws, both state and national, as well as municipal ordinances and local regulations must be enforced. Laws are useless if they are not made effective.

Government policing is a business of tremendous scope, much wider than is generally recognized. It reaches into practically every department, it is the duty of a portion of the duties of virtually every government employee. It is the reason, either in part or in whole, for the existence of many branches, bureaus and departments. Crime suppression, enforcement of rules and regulations and the protection of the public require an expensive organization of many coordinated branches.

High Cost for Few

The majority of our citizens are law-abiding, but some are not, and these must be controlled, even at an exorbitant cost. To illustrate: Because a few would ship potatoes in a manner violating the state shipping regulations, all shipments are inspected; because some carriers would over-charge their patrons, a public utilities commission is created to control all carriers; because a few persons might kill game out of season, the game department supervises all hunting; because one grocer might sell impure goods, the department of public welfare inspects all food handling establishments.

One out of fifty motorists will perhaps pass up a stop sign, but to protect the other 49 from him traffic officers must be employed to regulate the entire 50. In order to protect the public from those few who would steal automobiles, a complicated and expensive title system has been evolved.

Idaho's Police Force

Idaho, like all other states, has a tremendous policing force. Its various branches are known by different names, many of the policemen carry no gun and wear no badge of authority, but nevertheless they are as essentially law enforcement officers as the uniformed cop on the street corner.

The department of agriculture, with its duty of enforcing shipping, inspection and license regulations, is primarily a policing organization. The department of law enforcement, the fish and game department, the department of public welfare, the department of reclamation, the public utilities commission, the state mine inspector, the blue sky department, the department of finance, the insurance department—all of these, and all other departments responsible for the enforcement of laws and regulations, have a policing duty, to which in many instances they owe their actual existence.

Forty-Four Sheriffs

Idaho has, in addition to the state patrol force and the national guard, 44 sheriffs, with their deputies and assistants. The cities have police departments, villages have marshals and night watchmen, precincts have constables. All of these employes are engaged directly in police work, the business of protecting the many from the few.

From the above it becomes apparent that the enforcing of our laws constitutes one of the largest items of governmental expense.

Daughter is Born.

A nine and a quarter pound daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Esser on Monday, April 18.

PROMINENT DEMOCRATS TO INVADE GENESEE TONIGHT

Announcement was made Thursday morning that a number of prominent Idaho democrats would be in Genesee tonight (Thursday), among them being Mayor James Pope of Boise, and W. Orr Chapman, Twin Falls, both candidates for the nomination as United States senator. Compton I. White, Clarks Fork, candidate for United States representative will also be here, as will F. S. Girard, Coeur d' Alene, candidate for the nomination of secretary of state, and Ramsey Walker, treasurer of the democratic state central committee.

The men, it is understood will arrive during the afternoon, and at 7:30 o'clock p. m. they will be the inspiration for a meeting to be held at the Cozy theatre, to which everyone is invited. This is the opening gun in the primary election campaign in Genesee, and will undoubtedly bring out a large number of people.

F. A. SMITH IS APPOINTED AS FEDERAL LABOR REGISTRAR

Approximately twenty men have filled out applications for employment, which is partially controlled by the U. S. Department of Labor, the applicants to receive employment as occasion demands. Each applicant is instructed to fill out the memorandum, which furnishes the department, through its district agent, Jack Running of Lewiston, with all information as to qualifications of applicants.

Questions asked by the employment service appointees are: Name of applicant, age, race, address, weight, height, telephone number, sex, married or single, number of dependent children and age of each; citizen of what state, naturalized or native born; education and special training, physical defects, if any; kinds of work done and time spent in each occupation, and it is also necessary to state if the applicant has served in the armed forces of the U. S., all of which will expedite the securing of employment, which may be only for a short period or for any indefinite period of time.

GENESEE CHILDREN APPEAR IN PROGRAM AT LEWISTON

About twenty children, under the direction of Mrs. Antoinette Hordemann appeared in a program at the Lewiston Normal auditorium Tuesday evening, together with pupils of Mrs. Hordemann's from Lewiston and Colton, the aggregate number on the program being sixty-five. Those who witnessed the presentation said there were about 800 people in attendance, and when the Genesee children completed their part on the program they were showered with flowers. Those from here appeared in rhythm band selections, vocal and instrumental numbers. The youngsters received many compliments and the program was well received.

Tuesday evening, April 26, the Genesee pupils will present a program at the high school gymnasium. There will also be a number here from Lewiston and Colton. A small admission charge of 25 cents and 10 cents will be charged.

OFFICIALS EXCHANGE BANK MEET WITH ITS CUSTOMERS

While there is no inter-locking of directors or stockholders between the American Bank, of Spokane, which closed Thursday and the Genesee Exchange Bank of Genesee, the former bank acting only in the capacity of Spokane correspondent for the local institution, failure to open its doors Friday morning tied up during liquidation, approximately $30,000 belonging to the Exchange Bank, which naturally, occasioned the necessity of establishing connections with a new correspondent bank, and may have caused some anxiety to depositors in the Exchange Bank, although it was not evidenced in any alarming degree. Stockholders in the Genesee Exchange Bank immediately and voluntarily advanced an amount of money equivalent to 50 per cent of their stock in the local bank, and in the presence of the deputy state bank examiner of the State of Idaho, went over the assets of the bank, which justified a further sum of money obtainable from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, it was stated by D. L. Bressler, vice president and cashier of the Exchange Bank, and A. H. Oversmith, attorney for the bank, at a meeting of practically all depositors and those who have money borrowed from the Exchange bank.

The meeting above referred to was held Monday evening at the high school gymnasium and was called by the officers and directors of the Exchange Bank to "lay their cards on the table" so to speak, and place before those interested the situation as it existed.

D. L. Bressler, in calling the meeting to order, informed his listeners that customers of the bank had two courses to pursue, one to withdraw their deposits and force the bank to take drastic steps to protect depositors, or to have confidence in the officials and bank and not withdraw deposits until arrangements were made to cover the temporary loss sustained when the American bank closed it doors, after which he introduced A. H. Oversmith, who said that he was called in consultation immediately upon receipt of information from Spokane, and he further stated that he advised against any action toward closing the Exchange Bank before the matter could be laid before the bank examiner and other banking officials to determine the amount of the loss temporarily sustained, which action resulted in keeping the bank open providing the depositors at the meeting would by their actions place confidence in the local institution and not draw heavily until arrangements were completed to replace that part of the cash assets now held by the American Bank, which will be released gradually and returned to the Exchange Bank as liquidation progresses.

Mr. Oversmith went more into detail describing the two courses which depositors might pursue, but admonished those assembled that a bank closing would be harder on the borrower than the depositor because the officials would immediately close the doors should a run start, in order to protect its depositors, and in liquida-

When a Split Stick Was a Bank Check

Three hundred years ago when a man put money in an English bank his deposit was recorded by notches in a stick, which was then split, the bank keeping one half, the depositor the other half. Before money was withdrawn, the two halves had to be matched together. The depositor's half was called "Bank Stock," the part the bank kept was the "check." The modern check system would astound those 17th century bankers.

SIMPSON'S ADDRESS A PART OF CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

Just recently a bill has passed both houses and signed by the president, giving additional control of the money crop to these international bankers up to at least a production of another $8,000,000,000. All of this is based on the interest plan, and the control completely in the hands of the international bankers' financial wrecking crew.

You should insist that your congressman and senators vote for the remonetization of silver. If made a law, it will increase the volume of basic money in this country by $2,000,000,000 without cost to the taxpayers of the nation. It is money over which international bankers have no control. It is the money of the 120,000,000 common people; let us restore it to ourselves and give the 20,000 ultra-rich their money, the gold of the country. Gold is a note-increasing money, while silver is a note-reducing money.

My friend, John M. Baer, has drawn another cartoon showing these international bankers as note raisers. They took a farmers' note for $3,000 May 1, 1920, placing a mortgage on the farmers' land to secure the note. At that time 1,000 bushels of wheat in Chicago would have paid the note. These international bankers changed the 3 in that note to 18, which is raising it from a $3,000 note to an $18,000 one. In other words, with wheat at 50 cents a bushel it now takes 6,000 bushels to pay the $3,000 note. The same is true if measured in cotton, in pork, in beef, or most any farm commodity.

We must have the Wheeler bill in order to make it possible for us to pay the debts we made when wheat was $3 a bushel and cotton 40 cents a pound.

Gold is a trade-killer money, while silver is a trade-getter money. Three-fourths of the people of the world can sell to us but can not buy from us, because we are on a gold standard and they are on a silver or bi-metallic standard. Canada, since England has gone off the gold standard, can ship butter into this country, pay the tariff, take a gold dollar back and change it into $1.33 of their money, which after paying the traiff, shows a profit. If the Wheeler bill were passed, in 30 days the nations of the world would be at our doors ready to buy products for which at the present we have no world market.

The prosperity and happiness of our people depends upon three things—production, distribution and exchange. Two of these things are now working—production and distribution. Production is working, as evidenced by the fact that the farmers' granaries are full and the manufacturers' warehouses are overflowing. Distribution is working. We eat strawberries in Washington today, that were picked in Florida yesterday. The third thing, exchange, has fallen down. The gold standard has proven inadequate not only for this nation but for the whole world as well.

Mr. L. D. Brandeis, a member of the United States Supreme Court, in a book written 10 years ago, entitled "Other People's Money and How the Bankers Use It," said: "We must break the Money Trust or the Money Trust will break us."

Sir Henry Detering, head of Shell Oil Co., recently said: "This barring of silver is undoubtedly one of the main causes of the restriction of world trade today."

Roger Babson, the great economist, said September 28, 1931: "Silver will be remonetized. The purchasing power of silver thus restored will boost the purchosing power of countries on a silver basis. Until this is done the recovery of world business will be delayed."

Arthur Brisbane said recently: "The bankers want money as scarce as possible so that they may more easily control it and increase their power, but they are schort-sighted and must realize soon that gold is too scarce and is actually cornered by two nations, leaving the others without real money to carry on the business of the world."

The recent bills passed by congress to make more money not only are to be condemned because they are on a basis of paying interest to bankers but more to be condemned because they only pretend to be temporary relief. The bills themselves provide that the increased circulation shall be withdrawn at the end of a year.

If you are satisfied for international bankers to continue to control all the money crop, then turn from this hour happy and contented. On the other hand, if your soul rebels against what has been done and what is being done and you desire to add $2,000,000,000 to the world's supply of money, a permanent increase in the volume of our circulating medium, then neither eat nor sleep until you have done your duty as a citizen in securing the passage of the Wheeler bill by writing your congressmen and senators demanding that they support this measure.

The Farmers' Union.

The Farmers Educational and Cooperative Union of America is just what its name implies—a class organization of farmers whose purpose is the educating of farmers to the end that they may cooperate. Education and cooperation are the two enemies suggested in the full name of the organization. We are a militant farmers' class organization to which every farmer in the United States should belong. If every farmer in the nation did belong, this thing could all be over in 10 days. There are a dozen ways we could get what is right if we were organized 100 per cent. If there is nothing done at this session of congress to place agriculture on an equality with other industries, the fault will be with those farmers who have neglected to get into their own class organization. Most other groups are into their unions 100 per cent, and I respect them for their intelligence in this matter. I have never been any place in the United States where the teachers were not members of their union to the last man or woman. I have never been any place where there was a non-union banker—they all belong to their union. It is a mystery to me how some four or five million farmers in this country feel that they can get along without their organization when they see their business, laboring, and professional brothers organized 100 per cent. If it is necessary for all bankers to belong to their union in order to protect and better the conditions of their families, I am sure it is much more necessary for farmers to do the same thing.

Farmers listening in, as I close this talk, let me remind you that our enemies have said a million times and they express it in three words, "Farmers can't organize." Every farmer in the United States who is not a member of his class organization is a living witness to this statement of the enemy. I beg of you to become a member of your class organization. Do it at once. Quit bearing testimony for the enemy. Get on our side of the case and be a witness for us that farmers can organize. The enemy has three other words. You have heard them. They are, "Farmers won't stick." Ah, my brother member of the Farmers' Union out there in Colorado, in Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and a dozen other states, you, who have not paid your dues for 1932, have been a living witness for the enemy for 1 month and 27 days. Oh, I urge you, I plead with you, go to the local secretary before the sun goes down and by paying your dues get on our side of the case and be a witness for us that farmers will stick.

I am pleading with all my soul for you to get into the union, and I warn you that the rumblings of revolution are at your door. I know you can hear it. I warn you that want and hunger have been allowed to enter millions of homes and remain there unmolested. I know you can see it. I warn you that greed and avarice, clothed in royal purple, are respected and adored here in Washington, while love and unselfishness go in rags and are shunned as things unclean.

MARK MEANS MUST HAVE SWALLOWED SOME SEED

The Lewiston Morning Tribune conducts a column titled "One-Minute Interviews," in which appeared the following:

"Did you ever notice how the Palouse country is losing all of its soil?" Mark Means queried yesterday on his return from a business visit at Pullman. "Why, the way that soil is being washed off the hills there won't be any farms left ten years from now."

Means said the erosion is due to continued production of wheat which has robbed the land of its humus.

He was told at Pullman that experiments made by Washington State College reveals a loss of three tons of soil to the acre during one season from erosion. The loss is heavier on steep slopes.

"The college professors are working on the problem and hope to find some remedy," Means said. "But you don't have to go to college to learn how to stop it. All they need to do is to plant some grass and spread some fertilizer on those hills and let nature take its course. And if they don't that Palouse country is going to lose its fame as a great wheat producing region."

Well now, that sounds as if Mr. Means might be in the seed business, and was attempting to hurry the sale of seeds. It is true that erosion exacted its toll from the lands this spring, more perhaps in the Pullman section than elsewhere but with low prices for wheat and other grains the policy followed by local farmers is perhaps the best for the present. Erosion may be reduced somewhat, by leaving the stubble stand until Spring said a prominent ranch owner, after reading the interview, and further, when land is plowed in the Fall it should be left as rough as possible to hold the snow and retard the run-off in the Spring.

Whatever Mr. Means may think and say of the Palouse, it must be remembered that 1929 produced as large crops as in the best of years gone by.

Courteous to the End.

"Is there anything you would like to do before I press the button?" asked the warden at Sing Sing to the murderer in the electric chair.

"Yes," said the latter, "I would like to get up and give a lady my seat."

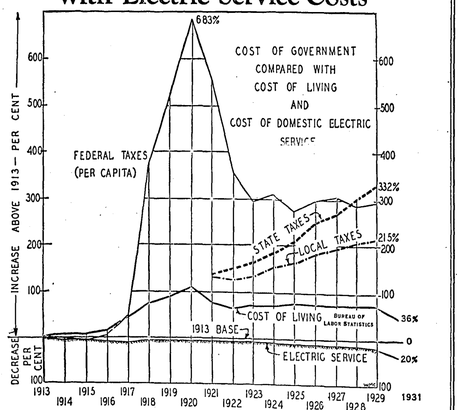
Taxes and Living Costs Compared with Electric Service Costs



Taxes have been reduced to a per-capita basis and these figures referred to 1913 as a base. The chart thus shows the percentage increase in per-capita taxation above 1913. If actual money totals were used, without allowing for increase in population, the result would be even more grotesque.

NOTE: National tax statistics were available for this chart only up to and including 1929. Aggregate state and local taxes payable in 1931 were higher than for 1929. 1931 living costs are much lower than in 1929, while domestic electric service on national average is 20% LOWER THAN IN 1913.

The chart shows how cost of government, as expressed in taxes, and residential expenses have fluctuated since 1913.

The cost of domestic electric service, however, has continuously remained below the 1913 level and today is 20% less on national average and MORE THAN 20% LESS in the territory served by this company.

Out of every dollar received by this company for electric service, more than 14 cents is paid out in TAXES.

Helping You fight Germ Life and Infection

DISINFECTANTS AND INSECTICIDES

Modern science has provided ways and means of shutting away germ life from your home. Special preparations are for sale to do this work; there are old familiar safeguards which should be used at frequent intervals. These ounces of prevention are worth many pounds of cure. If you are not familiar with what to use and how to use it, we will assist you. Health demands disinfectants and a vermin-free house.

SPRING IS WHERE?

Spring apparently has retreated around the same corner as prosperity, and yet there are people, standing on the streets in overcoats, asking about the possibilities of baseball this summer. No doubt that subject is on the minds of many, but Spring will have to thaw out some of the old "soup-bones" before those who usually start baseball off, can become sufficiently enthused to open their pocketbooks and arrange for finances to start the season. There is little or no use in approaching even the most ardent of fans when their fingers are apt to become frost-bitten. Wait until the sun comes out; then we predict baseball will take its place in the interests of many, despite the fact politics are monopolizing the limelight at present. There is nothing better under present conditions that a good ball game. We leave it to you.

Spring has been very backward this year with freezing temperatures recorded Wednesday night and frost the night before. Gardens, however, are reported doing well, and grain, though suffering some from the effects of the long winter is turning the Palouse to a beautiful green. All we need now is some sunshine, and a well-developed right arm and hand to withstand the bone-crushing tactics of the occassionally-seen politicians. Let 'em come, but Spring is just as welcome.

"I hear you and the leading lady are on the outs." "Yeah," said the electrician. "It happened during that quick change act when the stage was all dark. She asked for her tights and I thought she said lights."—Emmett Index.

COMMUNITY SHOULD TAKE PRIDE IN ITS ACTION

Citizens of the Genesee section are to be commended for their sagacity which became so outstanding at the meeting called by the Exchange Bank at the high school gymnasium Monday evening, when officials of that institution publicly and frankly laid before its customers the condition of the bank and what procedure the directors would take to protect its depositors.

The vote of confidence given the bank, which has been carried out to the letter, is refreshing, coming as it did when people are wont to permit their better judgment to be overruled by unwarranted fear. Staunch as the directors of the bank have been, and are, they were equalled by confidence of depositors at the meeting Monday evening. There was no attempt to smooth matters over—the situation was explained frankly, and customers of the bank were to be the judges. The unhappy incident of the American Bank at Spokane suspending operations to protect depositors, one of which was the local institution, temporarily tied up about $30,000 of our bank's cash, the Spokane bank being merely a correspondent or clearing house which handles drafts and checks coming through Spokane for the Genesee Exchange Bank. There is no connection of any kind other than above mentioned between the local institution and the American Bank, and as soon as liquidation justifies, money will be returned at intervals to Genesee.

The community should take pride in its action, greed was banished in favor of justice and good judgment, the resources of the Genesee section were taken into consideration and were not impaired by hasty action. The unshaken adherence to principle and honesty manifested has been further exemplified since the meeting, men and women of means have openly pledged their support and we wish it were possible to repeat the exact words of one man who stated that there remains sufficient grain remaining unsold in the Genesee section, even at prevailing prices, and the property of himself and friends, which would be turned into cash before they would permit the suspension of the Genesee Exchange Bank. Such confidence is the outcome of constant steadfastness to principle, typical of Genesee men who have accumulated wealth, yet retaining a foresight and a desire to be of benefit to his fellowmen. Human beings are not infallible but the trust and honesty of one to another as exemplified in Genesee will bring the community closer together, and the fruit of faith will be remembered throughtout the coming years. Genesee has lived up to tradition and the respect in which it will be held will be a source of satisfaction and encouragement to all.

PUBLIC SCHOOL DOING A GREAT DEED

Plans for the celebration of the Washington Bicentennial, Arbor Day and May Day have been consolidated and arrangements are now complete. for the staging of a real old-time affair, with all organizations in town supporting the school.

Of course the school will need the support of everyone to make their observance a success. Everything in the way of entertainment is free, and students have arranged for a food sale prior to the celebration to enable the busy ones to procure food for the picnic lunch to be held on the lawn of the city park, which at this time of the year is beautiful.

Prominent speakers will be here, the local band will be strengthened by the Uniontown organization, and in the afternoon a track and field meet will be held. All rural schools are urged to participate, and the parents should join with the children for one big day.

After the daylight program is completed, there will be a free card party at the K. of C. hall, with prizes for the winners, donated by the members of the order. This is being held for those who do not wish to dance but wish to enter the celebration and enjoy it to the fullest extent.

And to wind up the day there will also be a big free public dance, and don't think because it's free it won't be a good one.

RESOLUTION.

WHEREAS, the Supreme commander of the Universe has, in his infinite wisdom, summoned from our ranks a highly esteemed comrade, Roy C. Michelsen; and whereas, the long and intimate relations with him have been temporarily severed, it becomes eminently befitting that we record our appreciation of him.

Therefore be it Resolved: That the sudden removal of the Comrade from our midst leaves a vacancy deeply realized by all members of the American Legion, and

Be it Further Resolved: That with deep sympathy for the bereaved relatives of the deceased, we express our hope than even so great a loss to all may be overruled for good by Him who doeth all things well.

And it is Further Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of Bielenberg-Schooler Post, American Legion, a copy printed in the Genesee News and a copy forwarded to the family of the deceased.

SATURDAY LAST DAY FOR ALL CANDIDATES TO FILE

Candidates, whether they intend to file for county, state or national office must do so on or before Saturday, April 23 with the county auditor if for county office and with the secretary of state if for state office.

Politics have livened up during the past week and while there are a number already on record, Friday and Saturday will be the rush period.

B. C. Rowe, Moscow, has filed for state senator, and may find as his opponents on the republican ticket, Thos Feeney or C. M. Wilderman, both also of Moscow. Walter A. Fiscus from Potlatch precinct is the only one to date to file for state senator on the democratic slate.

R. E. Nordby, Genesee, has filed for commissioner from the second district and finds as his opponent, John T. Baken of Moscow. C. C. Williams and Elmer Travis, have filed as democrats from the first district, the office as commissioner from that district now being held by James H. Blane, who will undoubtedly file for the same position. Wednesday there were no filing from the third district, but it is supposed Geo. C. Hoidal, of Troy, will again aspire to the commission from his district.

Ira W. Larkin has filed for sheriff and will oppose, without doubt, Charlie Summerfield, present incumbent. Both are republicans.

L. G. Peterson to date has no opposition as probate judge.

Gladys H. Olson, a democrat, has signified her desire for the office of treasurer on the democratic ticket.

Edith Adrianson has filed as a republican for county superintendent, and it is naturally supposed that she will run again Ellen Peterson for the republican nomination. The democrats have two candidates also, Mrs. Hattie Swofford and David Ross.

Abe Goff, present prosecuting attorney, while not as yet filed, will perhaps make the race against Adrian Nelson and J. H. Felton, all republicans. What the democrats will do is not known.

H. R. Short has filed for coroner and is unopposed at present by either republican or democrat.

Wednesday it was stated that Fred Hove, Genesee, would be filed as a candidate for nomination to the house of representatives in the state legislature as a democrat.

O. E. Bell and Alfred Anderson, of Moscow, were in Genesee Tuesday circulating a petition for Dan Burr as county assessor, to oppose Walter Q. Taylor in the republican column.

The state ticket will be loaded with candidates from both parties. Ross will have opposition from his own ranks in the person of Barzilla Clark, Idaho Falls mayor. Defenbach, to date has no opponent for the nomination on the republican side, and it is not thought that he will have.

The next interesting race will be for the United States junior senator's job. Thomas, republican, will have little trouble from his party, but in the democratic column, there are five who seek the job now held by Thomas. They are: Mix, Pope, Chapman, Stratton and Kessler, two wets, one dry and two undecided.

For the remaining offices in the state there will be candidates aplenty. The notice, to be published April 28 will contain all the names of candidates for office for whom Genesee residents will be asked to consider before making their choice at the direct primary election, May 24.

GREY EAGLE NEWS.

Visitors at J. C. Cameron's Wednesday evening were Heber Harms, Ted Cameron, Gladys and Doris Harms.

Chas. Schooler was a Lewiston visitor Saturday.

O. W. Harms motored to Juliaetta Friday on business.

Sherman Wahl, who has been ill for some time, was taken to a hospital the last of the week for treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Gray spent several days with Mrs. Michelsen and Hope Michelsen.

Ray Trautman was a Thursday visitor at J. P. Hermann's.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bumstead moved to the Martinson place near Peter Isaksen's last week.

O. W. Harms, Heber Harms and Paul Dinsen motored to Tekoa Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Schooler and family went to Lewiston to attend the funeral of Frank Schooler Tuesday.

Note: In last week's News we made the mistake of saying Isaac Isaksen was doing road work in our district. It seems it was in another district farther south.

FRANK SCHOOLER, FORMERLY OF GENESEE PASSES AWAY

Funeral services were held in the Vassar chapel, Lewiston, at 2 o'clock Tuesday for Frank Elvis Schooler, who passed away Saturday, following an illness of short duration, which begin with sciatic rheumatism, and became complicated with pneumonia when the patient attempted to resume his work before recovery was complete. The rites were attended by many friends and relatives from Genesee, Pullman and Lewiston. Miss Helen Dye and Donald Dye sang the hymnals, accompanied by Miss Olive Jain, all formerly of Genesee. Services were in charge of the Elks lodge at the chapel and the committal services at Normal Hill cemetery were given by the Eagles lodge. Pallbearers were: W. A. Gibson, L. W. Pickering, B. F. Whitcomb, representing the Elks, andW. C. Cooper, C. D. Livingstone and George Thiessen, of the Eagles.

Deceased was born March 15, 1886, at Oneida, Kansas, the son of Benjamin Harrison and Martha Jane Schooler, the father passing away a number of years ago. The deceased was 46 years, one month and one day of age, and is survived by his widow and adopted daughter, his mother, who lives at Long Beach, Calif.; four brothers, Charlie W. and Harry H. of Genesee, Philip B. of Orofino, and Benjamin H. of Long Beach; and four sisters, Mrs. James Dye, Pullman, Wash.; Mrs. Edward Pauley, Port au Prince, Republic of Haiti; Mrs. Louie Steltz, Puyallup, Wash., and Mrs. Robert Lent, Long Beach, Calif.

The deceased was engaged in the real estate business in Lewiston for the past thirteen years.

Surprise for Mrs. Edwards.

A surprise birthday dinner was given for Mrs. Nathan Edwards at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Geltz on Sunday. Besides the honored guests and the Geltz family, there were present Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Edwards and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Hartzel Edwards and children, all of Lewiston; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Edwards and son, Lavern, and Nathan Edwards.

Next Meeting of Auxiliary May 13

Because of special school activities on April 29 the next meeting of the Legion Auxiliary will not be until May 13 and the time of meeting has been changed from 2 o'clock to 2:30 o'clock.

The Auxiliary voted to give a small sum to the school toward the purchase of trees for the school yard.

The balance of the afternon was spent in sewing carpet rags.

Blue Bird Club.

Mrs. Nels Lande was hostess to the Blue Bird club Tuesday afternoon when a social time was spent followed by refreshments. Guests were: Mrs. John Hove and Mrs. Art Tegland. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Isaac Isaksen.

Mrs. J. J. Tupker was hostess to the Card club this week, entertaining four tables. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Fred Nagel, high, and Mrs. Otto Kretschmer, low. Mrs. John Luedke will be the next hostess.

Lenville Literary Postponed.

The Literary at Lenville has been temporarily postponed, according to a telephone communication from there Wednesday evening. An exceptionally interesting program was outlined for Friday evening. Watch the News for the new date.

Wish to Locate Missing Man.

Bonners Ferry Herald: The Roy Hamilton family have been notified of the disappearance from his home at Spencer, Nebraska, of Edwin D. Korab, a World War veteran, and an old friend of the Hamilton family. It is thought that he may be in the Northwest.

The description of the missing man follows: Age, 38; height, 5-9; weight about 180; brown eyes and hair, hair turning gray; tatoo in blue on forearm "E. D. K."

He walked away from his home and it is feared has lost his memory or mind.

Anyone learning of his whereabouts is asked to verify tatoo marks and at once notify Elmer Korab or Claude Collins, Lynch, Nebraska.

WHO REMEMBERS STAUFFER? PLACES HIS FAITH IN MURRAY

Nearly everyone in and around Genesee remembers the man with the long beard and flowing hair who lived here for several months. There is an interesting story connected with the man and it is reprinted from the Lewiston Morning Tribune.

Early in the summer of 1929, about three months after Herbert Hoover was inaugurated president of the United States and financial conditions the world over were assuming an acute stage, G. R. Stauffer took a vow he would never have his hair cut or his beard trimmed until a democratic president occupied the White House. He has kept his word.

Stauffer, son of the late Chris Stauffer, for many years a farmer in Tammany, and himself a farmer in that section until about 10 years ago, is a familiar sight on the streets of Lewiston, although his home is in Clarkston. Morning, noon and night he may be seen walking at a lively rate along Main street, and while the residents of this city have become accustomed to seeing "the man with the long hair and whiskers," newcomers usually take a second and third glance in his direction.

Lover of Nature

Fifty years old, standing about six feet and weighing in the neighborhood of 200 pounds, Stauffer, who keeps well posted on matters political and the affairs of the world in general, was found yesterday walking along the railroad tracks with a companion. He said he had for the last several days been watching the flow of the Clearwater river, the birds and the changing color of the hills north of the city.

"Yes, sir, in the summer of 1929 when affairs of the world started to become a tangled mass and nations were clamoring for one reason or another, I got to thinking things over and finally decided that until a democrat was seated in the White House I would refrain from cutting my hair or being shaved," he said.

"Why?" Stauffer was asked.

"Well, I was just ashamed of conditions. I thought rather than face my fellowmen I would hide myself behind bushes (pointing to his three years growth of whiskers and his long hair, lapping well over his coat collor.)"

"Do you thing there's a chance you will have your hair cut and your whiskers trimmed in 1932?" Stauffer was asked.

"Well, I don't know but I hope so," he replied.

Asked as to his favorite for the democratic nomination for president, Stauffer, without hesitation, chose Alfalfa Bill Murray.

"Murray is a man of the masses and Hoover is a man of the classes," he said. "We have had too much class legislation. In fact, I believe a change is always a good thing, whether a democratic or republican administration is in control. There is such a thing as being in power too long, and that's just what has happened this time. The thing to do is elect Murray president and watch conditions right themselves."

"Do you really think Murray has a chance for the nomination?" was a question put to Stauffer.

"Yes I do," he said, "and a good chance. The only way to keep a democrat out of the White House in 1933 will be because of dissension in the democratic ranks. I can see signs of this now with so many candidates being talked of. The thing for the party to do is to center on one man —Murray for example—and vote the straight ticket. If the democrats are not winners this year it would look like a new party would have to be formed to battle the G. O. P."

Stauffer blames conditiôns to indifference of the people.

"I believe in voting," he said, asking as to residence qualifications in Idaho to become an elector, indicating he may again take up his residence in Lewiston. "So many people fail to go to the polls and these are the ones that do the most grunting and growling when men not to their liking are elected. The way to remedy this is to vote, and, if you lose, that's all there is to it."

Stauffer said that some think he is a member of a religious sect which prohibits one's hirsute appendage to be kept in check.

"I respect a man's religion whatever it may be," he said. "My reason for letting my crop of hair grow on head and face is merely in keeping with a promise I made myself almost three years ago."

Stauffer's whiskers are tinged with gray at the tips but the hair on his head fails to show signs of advancing years. He is known to many as "Happy" Stauffer.

Fat Girls, Here's A Tip for You

All over the world Kruschen Salts is appealing to girls and women who strive for an attractive, free from fat figure that cannot fail to win admiration.

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses and does it SAFELY and HARMLESSLY.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Dawson entertained friends at dinner Sunday.

School News.

George Ellis Kinyon was absent from school Monday. He hurt his hand and Monday he consulted a doctor so there would be no danger from infection.

Jesse Charles Oylear was absent from school Monday. He hurt his foot with a pitchfork.

Wednesday was our surprise picnic dinner for the birthday people, Harriett Ross, George Ellis Kinyon, Evelyn Williams and Allen Schultz. A picnic dinner of sandwiches, pickles, salads, pickled eggs and ice cream and cake wree served. John Dygert, Edd and Eldon Johnson brought a big freezer of ice cream. Edith Williams and Donnie Kennedy brought the cakes. The other children and Mrs. Anderson furnished the rest of the lunch. Candles were lighted on the cakes and each one took turns blowing them out.

Thursday our Health Club met. The different committees were elected for the new month.

VOCATIONAL CONFERENCE FOR NORTH IDAHO BOYS

University of Idaho.—The annual vocational conference for northern Idaho boys, sponsored by the Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads in cooperation with the University of Idaho, will be held at the university April 28, 29 and 30, announces J. M. Raeder, associate professor of plant pathology, chairman of the university committee on arrangements.

Each of the high schools in the 31 communities served by the two railroads will select three boys from the junior or senior classes at its representatives to the conference with transportation paid. As many other boys as desire may attend the conference from each high school but the railroad offer covers only three boys from each school.

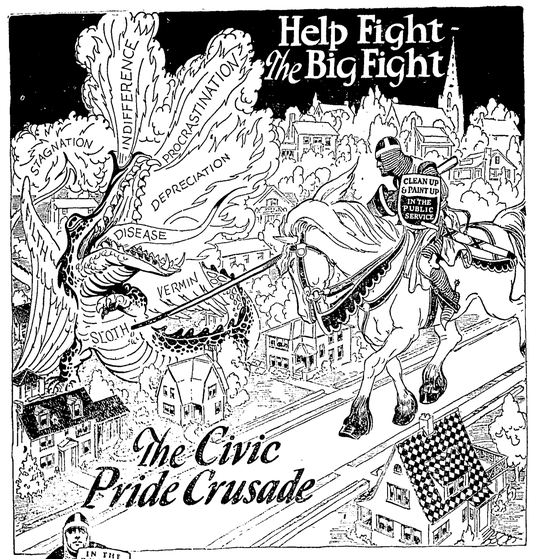
Following are the communities in which high schools are elegible to appoint three boys to take advantage of the offer of the railroads: Genesee, Bonners Ferry, Burke, Culdesac, Cottonwood, Craigmont, Coeur d'Alene, Clarks Fork, Ferdinand, Grangeville, Gifford, Julinetta, Kendrick, Kooskia, Kamiah, Lewiston, Lapwai, Mullan, Nezperce, Orofino, Potlatch, Priest River, Post Falls, Reubens, Rathdrum, Sandpoint, Salmon, Spirit Lake, Troy and Wallace.

The conference program will be much broader than ever before, Prof. Raeder indicates, and an invitation is being extended to all high schools to have as many boys at the conference as they desire. During their three-day stay at the university the boys will be quartered at fraternity houses.

Punished.

"Daughters need discipline at various times," remarked Mrs. Hiflier.

"They certainly do," snapped Mrs. Up-All-Night. "My Margery's sixteen, but only last night I had to send her to bed without breakfast."



This is EVERYBODY'S battle. If one family neglects to buckle on the bright armor of civic pride, that street will suffer and the Dragon of Neglect will creep into the neighborhood. Indifference and Procrastination have more far-reaching effects than most people understand. A slovenly house and grounds reflect on the entire section—garbage under a beating sun can start a disease epidemic that will sweep a town.

The Clean Up, Paint Up and Fix Up Crusade is therefore a Crusade in behalf of everyone and the entire country. Do your share! Back up the Knight who rides ahead through every community, his lance out of its scabbard, ready to slay these demons of Neglect.

At the meeting of the school board Monday night, teachers offered positions for 1912-13 term were Supt. L. T. Babcock, M. B. Dunkel, Miss Amy A. Berge, the two last named as principal and assistant principal, respectively; Miss Mary Wardrobe, eighth grade; Miss Anna Bond, sixth and seventh grades; Miss Carol Byrnes, fourth and fifth grades; Mrs. L. T. Babcock, second and third grades, and Miss Maggie Nisbet, primary department.

The debating team of Genesee business men, composed of Ed Smolt, R. E. Emmett and J. T. Nelson, affirmative, will meet the team of the Genesee high school, including Supt. Babcock, Prof. Dunkel and Robert Montague, negative. The question is: "That a Protective Tariff with Federal Control of Corporation is a Better National Policy than a Tariff for Revenue Only."

Genesee was treated to quite a surprise last Thursday evening when announcement was made by Mr. Elmer Vanouck and Miss Ilena Wood that they had been married on Monday, February 12, 1912, at Sumnyside, Wash., at the home of Mrs. R. Lee Ehmer, a friend of both the bride and groom.

be good news to both parents and pupils as there are only three schools in Latah county who are given this privilege, Moscow, Potlatch and Genesee.

Third and Fourth Grades

Since Arbor Day is especially important this year our interests are centering about it. We have studied its history and purposes and have learned something too, of the etiquette of the forest, that is, rules of the outdoors and the campfire.

We memorized and illustrated Kilmer's poem, "Trees." We also read many other poems which afforded expression of our interests at this time.

We are anxious to see the new stamp that our government has printed in honor of Mr. J. Morton, the man who first started Arbor Day. We are wondering too, which tree will be chosen for our national tree, the redwood or the white pine. Naturally we favor the pine.

Guess This Riddle

I have only one foot, but thousands of toes;
My one foot stands but never goes;
I have many arms, and they're mighty tall;
And hundreds of fingers, large and small;
From the ends of my fingers my beauty grows;
I breathe with my hair, and I drink with my toes;
I grow bigger and bigger about the waist, and yet I am always very tight laced;
None e'er saw me eat—I've no mouth to bite;
Yet I eat all day in the full sunlight;
In summer with song I shake and quiver;
But in winter I fast and groan and quiver.

By Order City Council.

JOHN A. SCHMIDT.

Old-time residents in Genesee will recall to their memory John A. Schmidt, who came to Idaho 50 years ago and settled near Genesee on a homestead. Mr. Schmidt passed away Thursday of last week at a hospital in Coeur d'Alene after a short illness at the age of 86 years. He was born at Hamburg, Germany, and for 71 years was a resident of the United States, twenty of which were lived at Genesee. After disposing of his interests here, which consisted in part of a ranch west of Genesee, adjoining the Lawen place, he moved to Spokane, living there for 18 years before removing to Coeur d'Alene. He is survived by his widow and five children, one a daughter, the wife of Mr. Guy Payne of North Bend, Oregon.

Colin Wilson an Extremist.

Colin Wilson goes to the wrong extreme. We no sooner find the largest chicken egg in the world, when he comes in with what he thinks is the smallest. He has a right to his claim, no doubt, for the egg is about 40 times smaller than the big egg. Figure that out.

NOTICE.

WHEAT MARKET SUMMARY FOR WEEK ENDING APRIL 15

Domestic wheat markets turned sharply upward during the week ending April 15, influenced principally by further deterioration in winter wheat and delayed seeding of the Spring crop, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Diminishing European bread grain supplies, with a more active export inquiry for remaining stocks in surplus areas, were further strengthening factors. Feed grains were slightly higher, reflecting the advance in wheat and also some improvement in current demand.

Wheat Crop Report

Crop developments and the amount and location of remaining supplies are now the outstanding features in the wheat market situation. The rise of 5 to 6 cents per bushel in domestic wheat prices during the week was caused largely by reports of further deterioration in the winter wheat crop. Continued lack of rain with high winds resulted in additional damage to wheat in western Kansas and Nebraska, Northwestern Oklahoma and eastern Colorado, where conditions were already poor. Dryness was also detrimental in Texas and California. Wheat made generally good progress in the Ohio Valley, but rains are needed generally in the central and southern part of the winter wheat belt. Spring seeding, while eight to ten days late, made good progress during the week in the northern states, except in a few areas where the soil is too wet. World wheat supplies are materially under those of a year ago. This, together with increased demand from deficit areas tends to be a strengthening influence in the wheat markets.

Stocks of wheat in the principal exporting countries, outside of Russia, at the first of April were around 65,000,000 bushels less than a year ago. United States stocks, exclusive of merchant mill holdings, were around 42,000,000 bushels larger than last season, but stocks in Canada, Argentina and Australia totaled around 107,000,000 bushels less than a year ago. In the United States most of the increase in supplies was in farm stocks which at the first of March were 43,000,000 bushels greater than a year earlier. Country mill and elevator stocks were somewhat under those of a year ago and were the smallest since 1918. Canadian wheat stocks totaling about 243,000,000 bushels at the first of April were around 37,000,000 bushels under those of a year ago and also slightly below those of 1929, but with those exceptions were larger than for any other year for which data are available. Canadian farm stocks were about 30,000,000 bushels less than on the same date last season, but country elevator stocks established a new high record with a total of 83,500,000 bushels, and reflected the progressive accumulations during the past eight seasons, when each year has shown a gain over the preceding one. Stocks in the southern hemisphere countries are around 70,000,000 bushels under those of a year ago, reflecting the smaller crops and the materially increased shipments to date this season.

Pacific Coast Markets

Pacific coast wheat markets advanced about the same amount as eastern points, influenced largely by the same factors. Export inquiry was still lacking and domestic demand continued dull. Domestic mills were taking only sufficient wheat for immediate requirements and inquiry from California was less active. Marketings were relatively light with receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia River terminals, totaling only 266 cars or a little over half as many as a year ago. Wheat and flour shipments from these markets during March totaled around 2,954,000 bushels or about 516,000 bushels more than during March, 1931. The cold backward Spring has retarded growth of both winter and spring wheat but prospects continue generally favorable.

California Markets

California markets strengthened under the influence of unfavorable prospects for the new crop and higher quotations on northern and southwestern wheat. Practically no rain has been received in the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys during the past nine week and the condition of the crop is now quite critical. Late seedings are especially poor. Offerings of local wheat were negligible with growers holding remaining supplies firmly because of uncertainty concerning the new crop outturn. Mill demand for wheat was confined principally to purchases for immediate requirements but feeders increased purchases to replenish the depleted stocks.

Offerings of wheat were principally from Washington, Oregon and Texas, since very little inter-mountain wheat was moving to California points.

Foreign Supplies Low

In the large deficit areas of Europe wheat stocks are reported to be unusually low. Stocks of wheat on farms in Germany at the mille of March totaled around 28,000,000 bushels and were somewhat greater than the corresponding date last season but were less than for other recent years. Italian stocks are also reported low and milling regulations have again been changed to permit the utilization of 85 per cent of foreign wheat in southern provinces and 90 per cent of foreign durum and 60 per cent foreign bread in milling mixtures in northern and central areas. The French milling quota for wheat is now 45 per cent, compared with a maximum of 30 per cent at the close of last season. This reflects the increasing dependence of French millers upon foreign stocks.

OFFICIALS EXCHANGE BANK MEET WITH ITS CUSTOMERS

tion procedure the borrower would be forced to surrender to liquidation on his part under the direction of the state banking department, which, Mr. Oversmith stated, would force a large number of people in this community to the wall.

In closing his remarks Mr. Oversmith invited anyone in the audience to ask questions pertaining to the situation. Three questions were asked, the first being one concerning the relation of a bank to its correspondent bank; the second dealt with the amount of checks to be written especially those to insurance companies which would necessarily take money from local circulation, and the third, that of paying local current bills.

After answering the questions to the satisfaction of those concerned, Mr. Oversmith in concluding, informed his listeners that he was going to ascertain the sentiment of the body of depositors and others present, and in so doing a motion was made by Henry Lorang and seconded by Mahlon Follett that the officers, directors and stockholders be given a vote of confidence. A standing vote was taken and almost to a man the entire assembly expressed its confidence in the local institution.

John G. Meyer, mayor, was then asked if he would say a few words. Unprepared by short notice Mr. Meyer said that this was perhaps the first time a set of officials, directors and stockholders had openly consulted with its customers and faced the situation, rather than ruthlessly destroy an institution, doing so with a selfish motive. Mr. Meyer complimented those present on their judgement and appealed to all to do the fair thing, reminded them also that the Exchange Bank was a local institution and repeated the words of Mr. Oversmith, that the stockholders would fulfill their every obligation to depositors.

A. Kaline, Winchester merchant, and former state senator, who has been a depositor in the Exchange Bank for many years, stated that he was going to remain in support and that he could see no reason why the bank would not be in the best of condition in a few weeks. It was previously stated that Mr. Kaline was a heavy depositor in the bank, having certificates of large denominations as well as a large checking account.

The usual business was being transacted at the Genesee Exchange Bank Tuesday morning, deposits were being made by farmers and business men and there was no uneasiness apparent anywhere. There is an agreement, however, whereby depositors are not checking heavily, especially for purchases made without the town, it being the purpose to retain within the community every available dollar until the loan is received from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Farm work is now under way and the season demands accurate time pieces.

VOL. XLIII — GENESEE, LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, APRIL 29, 1932 — NO. 45

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE FOR THE BIG CELEBRATION

Little remains to be done toward the completion of the program for the celebration Friday, April 29, in fact plans are now complete, and the program as outlined follows:

10:00 Flag raising exercise, by the school children, Genesee band and American Legion participating.
10:15 Rythm orchestra.
10:30 May Pole dance.
10:45 Arbor Day program led by American Legion, dedicating a tree to the memory of George Washington and the hope of World Peace.
11:15 An exhibition by the University of Idaho tumblers.
11:30 An address by Dr. C. W. Chenoweth, head of the department of philosophy, Uuniversity of Idaho.
12:00 Community basket dinner in the city park.
1:00 p. m. Band concert by the combined Genesee and Uniontown bands.
1:30 Bicentennial program.
2:30 Address by the Hon. C. Ben Ross, governor of the state of Idaho.
3:30 Community field, track and stunt events.
9:00 to 12:00 p. m. Community dance at opera house. Genesee and Rimrock orchestras alternating.
9:00 to 12 p. m. Card party at the K. of C. hall for those who do not wish to dance. Appropriate prizes.

Every effort has been put forth to make our celebration an enjoyable one, and we sincerely hope that the many friends of the schools in and about Genesee will be able to arrange to be with us for the entire day. Come and meet your friends, listen to the programs, engage in the sports, play cards or dance to your hearts content and go home again tired but happy.

On Monday we received a wire from Commissioner Vincent saying that it would be impossible for him to be with us so our arrangements were immediately made with Dr. Chenoweth to speak in his place. Dr. Chenoweth has a splendid reputation as a platform speaker and his many friends locally are very happy to again have the opportunity of hearing him.

Presents Pupils in Recital.

Mrs. Hordemann presented her rythm orchestra and a number of her pupils in a musical recital at the opera house Tuesday evening. A dancing teacher from Lewiston also presented a few of his pupils from Lewiston, the same evening in several dance numbers.

Pupils from St. Joseph's school assisted in the singing.

Undergoes Operation.

Don Bressler entered the Colfax Hospital Monday morning and immediately underwent an operation for acute appendicitis. He was taken ill Sunday and Monday morning summoned a doctor. The apendix had ruptured before the operation was performed.

His wife and mother, Mrs. Bertha Bressler are in Colfax also and report that he is recovering satisfactorily.

The Congregational Ladies Aid will be entertained Wednesday afternoon, May 4 by Mrs. Will Hickman.

CROPS BACKWARD.

Crops in the Palouse are no exception to the general rule this spring. From almost everywhere come reports of unseasonably cold weather, which has retarded growth of grain. Local wheat and barley fields are showing up the deterioration caused by the long winter. There are exceptions also to this condition. Fields which now show barren spots may soon become completely covered as the sun has found an opening in the clouds.

Alfalfa looks very good this year where the land is well drained.

E. K. BYLAND HAS GOOD WORD FOR THE PALOUSE COUNTRY

E. K. Byland, well known in Genesee, having been an engineer for the Northern Pacific, and at times having the run from Genesee to Pullman, was here Monday, visiting friends and enjoying the beautiful spring weather, which arrived only recently. Mr. Byland, while having seen many years of railroad service, is comparatively speaking, new in the service of the Northern Pacific. Many of the years an engineer was spent by Mr. Byland in the employe of the Santa Fe, but having visited the Pacific Northwest, he longed to live in this part of the United States, finally resigning his position with the Santa Fe and giving up all priority rights to live where he liked it the best.

Mr. Byland is a native of Kentucky but has traveled extensively, and he gladly states that there is no place like the Genesee section, where people are healthy, congenial and the possessors of the qualities which go to make life worth living. Mr. Byland has a home at Spokane, but prefers to live in this part of the Inland Empire. At present he is taking whatever runs are afforded those who are compelled to "work the extra board." He is now living in Lewiston, but comes to Genesee to have his automobile serviced and to visit friends. Scotland, Wales and Old Mexico have many places of interest and beauty, said Mr. Byland, but nowhere have I found a country that I like as well as Genesee, which will undoubtedly be the identical words of many others if they were to seek greener fields and a healthier place to live.

It must be remembered that Mr. Byland knowingly surrendered his seniority rights on another railroad to live where his health was best, and where he wanted to reside, and as the Northern Pacific company served this section, it was that company which secured his services.

Registration Books Close May 21.

May 21 is the last day for qualified electors to register in Idaho for the primary election on May 24. It may be well to inquire of the registrar, Mrs. L. C. Hayden if you are in doubt as to being properly accounted for. Those required to register are men and women of 21 years or more who did not register at the last general or primary elections, and those who have changed their voting precinct since the last general election. A certificate of transfer may be obtained in lieu of re-registration, however, for the last named persons.

HIGH SCHOOL SMOKER TO BE HELD SATURDAY, MAY 7

The smoker scheduled for May 7 promises to be a record event of the year, with two final events of the first rank.

With Chas. Litchfield meeting Ardie Driskill in a four round final and Harold Whitcomb of Lewiston meeting "Red" Driskill in the semi-finals, a three-round battle.

The two Driskill brothers are of Moscow and the other two fighters are from Lewiston. Weights will be listed in the next issue of the News as well as the lineup of local contestants.

A tumbling exhibition by the Ainslee Twins, girls, of Moscow, will furnish an opening exhibition. They will give you plenty to talk about.

The local scrappers are working out but have not been definitely lined up as yet.

This smoker is put on under a charter and will be under the supervision of the state boxing commission. The proceds will go to to offset the high school athletic fund deficit.

A real show will be exhibited and those who saw Litchfield and Driskill win their fights at the last smoker will know what is in store for them in this fight.

The other semi-final will have two 170-pound men with previous ring experience. Whitcomb has won 8 out his nine fights during the past winter.

Set this date aside.

Community Track Meet

The community field and track meet scheduled at 3 p. m. Friday is to include both young and old equally. There will be no expense but an award will be given for the winner of each event. The Genesee business men have made this possible by donating trade slips.

The events include: Open and age restricted dashes, a schoolmam's race, a fat men's race, a school board race, forth and back race, a three-legged race, etc.

Sub-District Commerce Contest

In the sub-district commercial contest held in Moscow, April 15, Genesee students, Ednah Rosenau and Fern Erickson, won highest individual honors, being first and second in the Typing I contest. Team honors in Typing I went to Moscow, the school whose contestants as a whole, maintained the highest average. Team honors in Typing II went to Troy. Moscow had no competition for the Shorthand contest, just as Genesee had no competition for the Bookkeeping contest. Gail Sampson, Ruth Alice Vanouck and Kathleen Busch represented Genesee in the Bookkeeping contest.

Music Students at Lewiston.

Genesee citizens are very proud of the showing made by the students in the District Music meet at Lewiston last Saturday. The competition was the keenest it has ever been, due, in part, to the fact that the North Idaho district, having no meet of its own this year, competed in the Lewiston contest. Genesee's orchestra was the only one-year organization entered, so we could not expect to be placed. However, they played remarkably well and received many compliments both on their fine performance and their excellent conduct. It was the first music meet any of the students had ever attended and the first performance the orchestra had ever given on a stage before an audience, so the experience gained will be of great benefit and next year we shall have hopes of placing.

Mrs. Harris and the students who were privileged to attend the meet want to thank those who furnished transportation. Their kindness was greatly appreciated.

Seventh and Eighth Grades

Tuesday night the seventh and eighth graders went on a weiener roast out at Sullivan's grove. A fire was built by the Boy Scouts of the group and a hearty lunch, including roasted weiners and marshmallows, was enjoyed. After supper a game of ball was played and everyone went home.

Seniors Go to Spokane.

The Seniors of '32 went to Spokane on their annual "sneak." Points of interest visited were: The Country Club, Manito Park, Spokane Falls, top of the National Bank building (16 stories high) which gave them a full view of Spokane and surroundings. The snow-capped Mt. Spokane was especially beautiful. The airport was also visited as were the U. S. Flying Squadron, the Womly Flying school, The Varney Airlines and the Mamer Transport lines. The cheapest

W. ORR CHAPMAN AND MAYOR POPE SPEAK ON CAMPAIGN

Nearly every seat at the Cozy theatre was filled last Thursday evening when four democratic candidates addressed the large gathering. There was but a short time available in which to inform those interested in politics, but despite this there were accommodations for but few more.

George Morscheck acted as chairman of the meeting and first introduced Compton I. White of Clarks Fork, who explained the plight of the North Idaho farmer and miner, and advocated the use of silver as a basis of our currency, believing that this would do much to relieve present economic difficulties. Mr. Compton is the democratic candidate for congress for this district.

Next the chairman introduced F. S. Girard, Coeur d'Alene, aspirant to the democratic nomination for secretary of state. Mr. Girard outlined his program if nominated and elected, and told of the duties of the secretary of state and the importance of that office in regard to its membership on the various boards.

W. Orr Chapman, Twin Falls, candidate for the nomination as United States senator, was next introduced. Mr. Chapman criticized the republican administration and told of the principles followed by democratic leaders, which are those laid down by Thomas Jefferson, about which centered the address of the South Idaho aspirant. Mr. Chapman said the democratic party traced back only to the days of Jefferson, but the republicans could even trace back to Biblical times, quoting from the scriptures words, which in effect were, that the man who has plenty shall receive more, but those who have little shall have less, upon which Mr. Chapman said was based the principles of the republican party.

This candidate favors remonetization of silver, payment of the so-called "soldiers' bonus" at an immediate date,; the restoration of civil liberty whereby there would be no religous discrimination; and pleaded for the destruction of gangdom, and its accompanying evils. The speaker very openly attacked the saloon of prewar days, but what he said relative to this was mild in comparison to the words he used to describe the state of affairs, due in his belief, to evils of prohibition, so flagrant in the cities. Mr. Chapman reviewed the deplorable conditions exisiting and vigorously assailed those who would permit gangdom to gain the upper hand over our government, citing the Lindbergh kidnaping as an example wherein members of the underworld were contracted with to assist in the return of the child.

Mayor James Pope of Boise, who arrived after the meeting was well under way, was introduced, and he quoted many camparative statistics dealing with the trend of times, all of which tended to emphasize the insecurity of the American farmer under the conditions as they exist today. Mr. Pope did not express himself in such a way as to give his listeners any idea of his individual platform, unless his words can be construed to mean that present day problems can be corrected through taxation. He told of his trip to France with a party of mayors of various cities in the United States. In France he stated that farmers were assessed but very little, perhaps a dollar of our money, the bulk of taxes coming from revenue from income, citing one case in which an employee of a bank received about $225 a month, and which salary was taxed better than 10 per cent. Taxes on income mount high as salaries go upward until it reaches a position where the tax is 50 per cent. Mr. Pope also told of the retaliatory tariffs imposed by other countries, and offered the suggestion that all tariffs imposed by the United States be removed wherever an item was controlled by a monopoly. This, Mr. Pope believed, would bring about competition in the manufactured items controlled by monopolies and thereby bring the cost of manufactured goods to par with what the farmer received for his products.

Both Chapman and Pope were surprised at the size of their audience and so expressed themselves.

Ramsey Walker, Coeur d'Alene, was also present, but did not take the floor. He is not a candidate for any of the elective offices.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Knapp of Spokane are planning to move back to Genesee and will arrive soon.

ATTENTION LEGIONNAIRES.

Bielenberg-Schooler Post No. 58, American Legion, has been invited to participate in the Washington Bicentennial and Arbor Day celebration, sponsored by the public school of Genesee. It is therefore requested that as many members of said Post as possible, will attend this celebration at 10 a. m., April 29.

It is also requested that Legion caps be worn.

COOPERATIVE MANAGERS TO MEET IN SPOKANE ON MAY 5

Spokane—Managers of the 60 local cooperatives affiliated with North Pacific Grain Growers, Inc., regional cooperative, will gather in Spokane, on Thursday, May 5, for the regular spring convention.

Directors of the locals also are invited, and more than 100 in all are expected to attend.

Operations of North Pacific for the past year will be discussed, as will plans for the coming year. The program for crop advances is expected to be in shape for announcement. Each man is urged to bring as many problems to the meeting, according to A. C. Adams, manager of North Pacific, as there will be no fixed program.

Harry Collins, vice president in charge of the Pacific coast division of Farmers National Grain corporation, Portland, will be present. He will be prepared to discuss thoroughly the problems pertaining to wheat and wheat marketing.

A. R. Shumway, Milton, Oregon, president of North Pacific Grain Growers, also will be present as will North Pacific's other 16 directors.

GENESEE NEWS BEST BIDDER ON MAY ELECTION BALLOTS

Sealed bids were asked and received by the county commissioners for the printing of approximately 8,000 primary election ballots for Latah county. Three printing establishments submitted bids which were opened by the commissioners Saturday at the court house, the bid of $233.00 by the Genesee News being the lowest, compared with $237.50 asked by the Moscow Publishing company, the same bid being presented by the Kendrick Gazette.

BURGAN STORE ROBBBED OF MONEY AND SUPPLIES

Several pairs of shoes, a number of shirts, all size 16; two sacks of sugar, hams, case goods, two 5-pound bricks of cheese, and $29.91 were stolen from Burgan's store some time Thursday night or Friday morning. Entrance was gained through a door in the basement, which also easily admitted them to the store room and store.

OLD TIMERS WENT TO COURT ONLY AS THE LAST RESORT

An integral part of any good government is its judiciary, whose duty it is to see that justice under the law is administered to all and sundry. Without courts, laws would be useless and society would revert to the days when might, not right, prevailed.

The judicial powers of the state are invested in the supreme and district courts, with the justice, probate and lower courts in the various counties and communities serving as primary tribunals of justice.

In the early days people with differences went to "lawing" as a last resort. Romantic history has it that they preferred the six leaden jurors of old Judge Colt. The present procedure is to apply to the courts first.

More Cases

This trend of modern society has made more work for the judges and the attorneys and less for the undertaker. Where one case grew before, a dozen stand today.

Naturally, this tremendous increase in the number of legal actions on the part of our citizens has necessitated an improved judiciary with an enlarged capacity. All of which brings us around to the subject under discussion: Increased costs of government, says Glenn Balch, writing on tax topics, under the direction of the Idaho State Chamber of Commerce.

Let us consider at present the state supreme court. As created under the constitution, it consisted of three justices, a chief and two associates, who were charged with the duty of hearing cases appealed from the lower courts.

First Appropriation

For the expenses of the supreme count during the first two years of Idaho's statehood, 1891-1892, a total of $26,638 was appropriated. The three justices received $3,000 annually and held four terms, two at Boise and two at Lewiston, each year.

Subtracting the justices' salaries from the appropriation, we find that $8,638 was left to pay the clerks' wages of $2,000 a year, the crier's $4 per day, the bailiff's $4 per day, the messenger's $2 per day and the other expenses incidental to the tribunal.

Rolling by some 40 years of history, let us now consider, in order to get a comparison, the 1931 appropriation for the state supreme court. It totalled $92,710. In other words, during the 40-year period the costs of our supreme court have increased more than $66,000.

Court Expenditures

How come? Directly, the increase is the result of the added complexities of life that have developed during the period in question. More people and closer contacts have engendered more legal friction; more and conflicting laws have greatly complicated the administering of justice.

Translated into more understandable terms, these things mean increased facilities, increased conveniences, increased judicial personnel, all of which take their respective tolls from governmental coffers.

For instance, today we have five justices instead of three, at annual salaries of $5,000 instead of $3,000. Wages of law clerks and stenograph-

Pleasures are Earned!

Start Saving Now

Recreation and rest can be truly enjoyed only after they have been earned, thru work, thru saving, or thru investments. Youth fights the inevitable in this, but age knows it is true.

To be able to "go off on trips" and enjoy life in later years it is necessary to build while young, and to build on the solid foundation of thrift. Your work weeks now should be profit weeks, a spending of a little less than you make. These saved dollars go to work immediately for you and your recreation and rest in future years.

WHEAT MARKET SUMMARY FOR WEEK ENDING APRIL 22

Wheat markets lost most of their recent gains during the week ending April 22, influenced by some improvement in winter wheat prospects as a result of local showers, increased receipts following the previous week's price advances, relatively large remaining stocks and a continued dull demand, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Feed grains declined along with wheat, but the continued limited demand was also a factor and May corn at Chicago reached the lowest point since October, 1899.

Wheat Price Factors

Remaining supplies and crop developments are now the leading factors in the general wheat market situation. The world visible supply of wheat and flour was estimated by trade agencies at 623,000,000 bushels, or 18,000,000 bushels more than a year ago and a substantial decrease from the peak of 669,000,000 bushels, reached at the first of February. U. S. wheat stocks at the first of April, including a trade estimate of merchant mill stocks, were around 40,000,000 bushels more than at the same date last year. Taking into account reduced stocks in Canada, however, North American wheat supplies, including bonded grain, appear to be only about 26,000,000 bushels larger than a year ago. Continued liberal shipments from the southern hemisphere countries have substantially reduced the surplus in those areas and remaining stocks are not large.

With supplies of old wheat diminishing, more attention is being given new crop prospects. India, the largest producer of winter wheat outside the U. S., has harvested a crop slightly above that of a year ago, with the outturn placed at 347,648,000 bushels as against 347,275,000. North African crops have improved with recent rains and harvesting will soon be in progress. Conditions in other countries along the Mediterranean are favorable although crop developments in France have been somewhat retarded by cool weather. In the countries of northwestern Europe crop growth has been retarded by cool weather, which however, is favorable to root development.

Seeding of spring wheat is expanding rapidly. Moisture and soil condition in the U. S. spring wheat sections are generally satisfactory, with the exception of the sections in northwestern North Dakota and northeastern Montana, where droughty conditions prevail. Sowing has been completed in parts of South Dakota but some lowlands were still too wet to work at the middle of the week.

Canadian seedings are well started in southern parts of all three of the Prairie Provinces but operations are somewhat behind those of both 1931 and 1930. Recent rains improved conditions in Manitoba and northern Saskatchewan and central and northern Alberta, but conditions in southern Saskatchewan are becoming serious, with the limited amount of both sub-soil and surface moisture. Russian seedings are reported to be 10 to 12 days late in the northern Caucasian and Volga regions and seeding in these Provinces are advanced only about as far as this time last year. Progress in seeding was reported to be unsatisfactory on Soviet farms in Ukraine and northern Caucasia. Seeding had been completed in Crimea at the middle of April, had become general in the southern part of the Ukraine and has begun in parts of the lower Volga.

Pacific Coast Markets

Pacific coast markets were slightly weaker but did not follow the full decline at Eastern points. Continued light offerings and somewhat less favorable prospects for the new spring crops were the strengthening influences at Portland and Seattle. Farmers were not selling freely on account of uncertain crop prospects for the current season. Unusually cold, wet weather has delayed seedings of spring wheat beyond the usual time for good yields and much seeding remains yet to be done. Receipts at Columbia River and Puget Sound terminals totaled only 267 cars compared with 446 cars for the corresponding week last year. Domestic mills and feeders furnished the principal outlet, although California buyers again came into the market for limited amounts, with sales of around 500 tons reported. No export business in either wheat or flour was consummated during the week, but final shipments of flood relief wheat to China were made during the week.

California Markets

California markets were about steady, influenced by very light local offerings and higher quotations from northern and Texas shippers. Trading was comparatively light, with both mills and mixed feed manufacturers taking only sufficient wheat for immediate needs at both San Francisco and Los Angeles. Offerings of intermountain wheat were very light and generally at prices above those quoted on northern and southwestern grain. California crop prospects remained very uncertain although the cool weather helped conserve remaining moisture reserves.

Only scattered light showers were received and the dry spell was still largely unbroken in the principal producing areas.

Special Dispatch

The following from Consul Garrets, Tokio, under date of April 14: Wheat prices at mills, in cents, per bushels., April 1. Western white No. 2, 90c; Canadian No. 5, 81c; Australian FAQ 83c; domestic standard, 77. Wheat imports for February in thousand bushels: From U. S., 28; Canada, 423; Australia, 3,474. Total flour exports for February, 150,000 bbls. The wholesale price at mill, April 1, 90c per bag. Activity of mills poor, due to decreased domestic consumption and poor export demand. Prospects for American wheat in immediate future are still unfavorable, because of comparatively high price. However, about 5,000 tons of western No. 2 have recently been imported by Japanese firms, this probably due to anticipated increase in tariff rate, expected after next Diet convenes on May 25.

Domestic Barley.

Domestic barley markets somewhat irregular. Foreign markets were also unsettled with a slight decline in the value of the British pound sterling and uncertainty as to governmental regulations.

British markets continued quiet with quotations fluctuating under the influence of slight declines in the value of the pound sterling and the uncertainty as to the prospective trade regulations. Recent advices received through the U. S. Bureau of Foreign Tariffs indicate that no change has been made in the British import duty of 10 per cent ad valorem on foreign barley. Continental business was fairly active with a good inquiry from feed interests in spite of the sharp competition of other feed grains and the new German regulations permitting the importation duty free, of a specific quantity of seed wheat. Offerings of new crop barley from India tending to check price advances, particularly for feeding types. North African crops were making favorable progress although some locust damage is feared. Cold weather has retarded growth in countries of northwestern Europe.

Domestic barley markets were irregular, with the unsettled situation in the middle west offset by firmness in Pacific coast areas. The San Francisco barley market was quiet but prices were steady to firmer as compared with a week ago. Trading and movement were light with offerings from the interior districts small and most classes of trade using stocks accumulated earlier in the season or purchasing only sufficient quantities for nearby requirements. Some improvement in export inquiry, with trade reports indicating sales of 2,000 to 3,000 tons of malting types to the United Kingdgom, was a strengthening factor. These sales were reported at approximately $1.20 to $1.30 FAS San Francisco on the basis of present exchange values and freight rates. Foreign inquiry however, subsided somewhat towards the close of the week with the announcement on the British Tariff Policy.

Crop prospects continued unfavorable although lower temperatures prevented rapid deterioration and light scattered showers brought partial relief in some sections. Late-seeded fields are reported to be in a particularly critical condition with damage in some areas reported irreparable. The condition of the crop however, this season is still better than a year ago.

THE LOW DOWN FROM BOISE.

The race is on at last. (Or should we say, the swim?).
'Twill be a test of lung power, anyway,
And limb.

I do not envy any one of those
Now matched,
But rather him who at the entries' close
Was scratched.

The filing is over and done, and now in only 30 days we'll know who will be running against whom for the succeeding five and a half months.

Twenty-nine democrats and 16 republicans qualified for the elimination heat. And none of 'em sleeping as well right now as Barzilla Clark, who found out what an unsociable thing a democratic primary can be, and quit.

Cowboy Ben, of course, is right in his element. He hasn't been out of training since early in 1930. He's like an army mule, hoofing it all the time, peace or war, slick and satisfied while the corn holds out.

Minidoka County News says trout weighing seven to 15 pounds have been caught in the alfalfa fields near Rupert. If of the right sex they might have saved Game Warden Mac Bailey's life, for the news was just getting out when he resigned, that the state hatcheries are empty.

Whether the plenitude of democratic candidates will yet be embarrassing over in the southeast nobody knows. It hasn't been so far. They have blithely signed and circulated each other's petitions like nobody's business.

But only one has nothing now to lose,
And that Barzilla.
Said he, when came the final day to choose,
'I'll take vanilla."

NOTICE FOR PUBLICATION OF TIME APPOINTED FOR PROVING WILL, Etc.

In the Probate Court of the County of Latah, State of Idaho.

In the Matter of the Estate of LOUIS ANDERSON, Deceased.

Pursuant to an order of said Probate Court, made on the 9th day of April, 1932, notice is hereby given that Monday, the 2nd day of May, 1932, at 10 o'clock a. m., of said day at the court room of said Court, at the Court House in Moscow, in the said County of Latah, have been appointed as the time and place for proving the Will of said Louis Anderson, deceased, and for hearing the petition of Mali Anderson for the issuance to Joseph P. Anderson of Letters of Administration with the Will annexed, when and where any person interested may appear and contest the same.

Dated this 9th day of April, 1932.

L. G. PETERSON,
Probate Judge and Ex-officio Clerk.
Adrian Nelson, Attorney for Petitioner. 43-45

POLITICAL TINKLINGS.

Twenty-nine democrats and 16 republicans are seeking nominations for 14 places on the state ballot. There are three contests on the republican side: For United States senator, secretary of state and superintendent of public instruction. Democrats are competing for seven nominations. But for governor, attorney general, state auditor and state treasurer the nominations are already assured to single aspirants on each ticket.

How Candidates are Distributed

How are the primary candidates distributed geographically? Six democrats and one republican are from Ada county; four democrats and one republican from Bannock county; three democrats and one republican from Bonneville county; three democrats and one republican from Canyon county; four democrats and one republican from Twin Falls county; five democrats and four republicans from north of the Salmon river; four democrats and seven republicans from the rest of the state.

Willing Signers.

Examination of nominating petitions on file in the office of the secretary of state discloses that numbers of good democrats in Madison and Jefferson counties signed petitions for two candidates for the same office. In two instances the very men who circulated one man's papers signed another's. What a little perjury in a primary?

Every poppy made means a penny for a needy family at home. Although flat on his back in a government hospital, this disabled World War veteran and thousands of his comrades are able to help support their dependents by making paper poppies for the American Legion Auxiliary's Memorial poppy sale, to be held throughout the country on May 28, the Saturday before Memorial Day.

Disabled veterans are making poppies for the Auxiliary this year in 53 hospitals and convalescent workrooms in 34 different states. By "Poppy Day" they will have completed more than ten million of the little flowers and earned $100,000 for themselves and families. The poppies will be sold by volunteer workers from the Auxiliary to be worn in honor of the war dead, with all money received going to the welfare of the disabled and their families.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Having become a candidate for nomination as prosecuting attorney on the Republican ticket I wish to submit to the taxpayers and electors briefly some of the principles for which I stand in my relation to that office.

First. The matter of salary. I will submit, in the event of my election, to the board of county commissioners for their determination the annual compensation for my services. I can see no valid reason for removing from control of the commissioners the matter of fixing the salary of the prosecuting attorney any more than any other county official. And by reason of the existing economic situation I will accept as binding any action by the board as to reduction in salary which they deem justifiable.

Second. My public record in the past as a county official in the interest of the taxpaying public I promise to maintain, and the expenditure of public funds will be held to a minimum, consistent with an efficient discharge of public duties.

Third. I pledge to devote primarily my services to the discharge of the duties that go with the office, and private interests and unofficial functions will be secondary.

Fourth. I pledge observance of a strict enforcement of all laws without discrimination or prejudice.

Fifth. I promise a diligent prosecution of all criminal statutes and speedy trial of offenders, recognizing that dilatory tactics and delays are not only extremely expensive, but destructive of both law and morals.

PLAIN TALK FROM FARMERS.

Application of common sense to government farm problems is again being urged upon Washington by farmers throughout the country. The latest advice along this line directs attention to overlapping of activities between the department of agriculture and the department of the interior. Speaking for the farmers, Tom Cathcart, editor of The Country Home, addresses an open letter to Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior.

"Dear Mr. Secretary," writes Editor Cathcart, "you have an extraordinary opportunity to help hard pressed taxpayers, to confer a great benefit on the farmers, and to prove yourself a generous and far sighted public servant.

"Nobody knows better than you what a crazy quilt our government has become. Bureaus and commissions have become so plentiful that not even old residents can name them all. Some are independent and others are scattered through the various departments without logic or reason.

"Take your own department, for instance. Among other bureaus you have the reclamation service and the general land office. They should be transferred to the department of agriculture, for many sound and convincing reasons, as you, being an intelligent man, very well know.

"Take your reclamation bureau, which is now considering a $400,000,000 irrigation project in the Columbia River basin, to yield more than a million acres of new farm lands. The plain fact is that too much land is now being used for agriculture. It is necessary to restrict rather than increase the productive farm lands, if agricultural unrest is to be dispelled by fair prices.

"No progress in these matters can be made while the responsibility is divided, and while sundry bureaus work independently and without thought of the major problem. Why don't you inform your associates in the cabinet and notify the president that in the interest of the nation you are willing to surrender these bureaus which properly belong in the department of agricultural? Such a surrender would be an act of statesmanship which would be long remembered and appreciated.

CUTS FIFTY-TWO SACKS OF SPUDS IN 16 HOURS

Lester Hayden, who has attained a prominent position among weather prophets, yesterday stated that he was also the champion seed spud slicer of Latah county, and doubted if Idaho could produce a man capable of duplicating his feat of cutting 52 sacks of potatoes in 16 hours. Mr. Hayden does not believe that cutting such a quantity of spuds in the time mentioned is a record. He is of the firm belief, however, that on his seventh-fifth birthday he will be able to slice 75 sacks. Yesterday was his fifty-first birthday anniversary, and although he would be satisfied with preparing 51 sacks for seeding, he cut the extra sack as good measure. It might be well to say also, that Mr. Hayden offered as witnesses to this feat such persons as Roy Evans, by whom he was employed; Herman Theuerkauff and Paul Dinson. Jess Bowers who was as dubious as you may be, has been convinced of the capabilities of the champion potato slicer and will verify the statements of Mr. Hayden, relative, of course, to spud cutting.

Mr. Hayden's endurance at the age of 51, working like lightning and so forth are equalled by the confidence which he has in him self, and along this line he offers to meet anyone in a hand spud-cutting contest, the winner to take all the wages derived therefrom. He goes farther. He issues a challenge, provided his opponent will slice the spuds in accordance with specifications of the owner of spuds which will be used in the contest. Mr. Hayden realizes that spud growers in the Genesee section are particular, and the seed must be cut to such measurements as will facilitate planting. No machine of any sort is to be used; the work must all be done by hand.

Certain that no one will accept the challenge, the champion states that he is equally as swift in the art of laying shingles. He did not issue a challenge in this particular line of endeavor, at the present time.

In parting Mr. Hayden said that he can cut potatoes as fast as a man can plant them, providing, that he does not change teams during the day in which he cuts the seeds.

Anyone who wishes to accept this challenge may arrange it personally with Mr. Hayden, or the News will gladly act as a "go-between." No masked marvels are barred, neither does age become a consideration.

GRASSHOPPER LOSS AVOIDED BY USE OF POISONED BRAN

University of Idaho—Grasshopper loss can be prevented by use of poisoned bran mash properly prepared and applied, says W. H. Shull of the department of entomology, University of Idaho college of agriculture.

"In the interest of economy and efficiency in control," declares Mr. Shull, "farmers should not wait until their crops have been attacked before attempting to kill the insects. They should be poisoned while they are still small and before they have had opportunity to feed upon cultivated crops. Poisoning should be done at the places where the grasshoppers hatching early in the spring"

Grasshopper eggs are deposited from one-half to three inches deep, usually in more compact soil along ditch banks, roaways, fence rows and in desert areas. The eggs may be located by digging in the soil with a knife or trowel.

The most successful means of controlling grasshoppers is by the use of poisoned bran mash which must be properly applied and at the right time to be most effective. The mash is made according to the following formula:

Coarse bran, 100 pounds; liquid sodium arsenite, one quart, or white arsenic or paris green, 5 pounds; water, 7 to 8 gallons; molasses, 2 gallons; amyl acetate, 3 ounces. The bait may be mixed on a cement or wooden floor in a tight wagon box, on a canvas, or in a tank. The bran should be spread out very thinly and the dry ingredients added to it and very thoroughly mixed together before the liquid parts, all except about half of the water is slowly added. Just enough water should be added so that the mass when finished will not stick together when pressed firmly in the hand and so that the bran will break into flakes when broadcast. Broadcasting should be done very early in the morning.

Complete information on the control of grasshoppers is contained in Extension Bulletin No. 83, which may be obtained from the University of Idaho college of agriculture, Moscow, or from any county extension agent.

How One Man Lost 22 Pounds

Mr. Herman Runkis of Detroit writes: "A few lines of thanks from a rheumatism sufferer—my first bottle of Kruschen Salts took all the aches and swellings out of my joints—with my first bottle I went on a diet and lost 22 pounds and now I feel like a new man."

To lose fat SAFELY and quickly take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast.

For your health's sake ask for and get Kruschen—the cost for a bottle that lasts 4 weeks is but a trifle at any drugstore in the world and if after the first bottle you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back. The Genesee Drug Co. or any drugstore in America will be glad to supply you. adv

SENATOR THOMAS ATTACKS HIGH FARM BOARD SALARIES

Washington, D. C.—Senator John Thomas of Idaho in the hearing before the agricultural committee of the senate on the Borah bill to reduce salaries of the farm board, made it embarrassing for some of the officials to explain why salaries of $75,000 and higher should be paid the executives in these times when most of the farmers are taking serious losses in marketing their products. Senator Thomas took the lead in the hearing in demanding that enormous and unreasonable salaries be reduced in proportion to the needs of the time.

When officials stated that they had to go into competitive markets to secure high-salaried qualified managers, Senator Thomas reminded them that hundreds of especially qualified managers were now without employment because of the present conditions of industry who would be glad to work for much less than salaries paid at present. He also stated that no man was worth $75,000 to a farmers' cooperative association when its members were losing money in every day's operation.

"I am a sincere friend of cooperative marketing and some of these organizations have been very successful in the west but it will be extremely difficult to show to these farmers who are now losing money on their farms just how a cooperative manager can earn one of these fabulous salaries," said Senator Thomas. It's an outrage, and my colleague, Senator Borah, has aptly said, 'it's nothing but legalized graft'."

Thomas Favors Salary Cuts

"I am not only in favor of holding the salaries of the farm board officials down to reasonable amounts but I am also in favor of reducing the salaries of the heads of all departments of government and those of the members of both houses of congress," Senator Thomas said.

"It's absurd to make the point that there is only one person who can do each one of these jobs at such salaries. There's nothing mysterious about the work of these officials and many well-qualified men stand ready to do such work efficiently at much less salaries," said the junior senator from Idaho.

The complete testimony is printed in the committee report on the hearings on S. 2493, Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

TASTY WHEAT DISHES.

Cereals being good for breakfast, they are also good for other meals, in various forms. Here are some worthy of consideration:

1. Fried cereal is sufficient for the main starchy dish of any meal.

2. Add to left over cereal, an equal amount of ground, cooked, seasoned pork, hamburger, sausage or ham. Mold into cakes and fry.

3. Add to the above one beaten egg, bread crumbs moistened with tomato juice and mold into a loaf and bake.

4. Make a cereal custard pudding by using a thin custard thickened with cooked cereals. Good proportions are:

2 eggs
2 cups of milk, scalded
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup cooked cereal.

Bake in slow oven until custard sets. Serve with cream or fruit sauce.

5. Cook one cup of cereal and add one cup of grated cheese. Cool, slice and fry. Peanut butter may be used instead of cheese.

6. Make a Spanish cereal as follows: Fry together diced bacon, onion, mango and pimento, add left-over cereal and simmer for a few minutes.

Other Uses of Whole Wheat

Whole wheat flour may be used in pancakes, muffins, waffles, shortbreads and breads. One-third whole wheat and two-thirds white flour is a good proportion to use. If too much whole wheat is used the bread will be heavy.

Left-over cereals may be used to thicken soups.

A cereal gruel—two tablespoons of whole wheat to a cup of water or milk—makes an excellent dish for aged people.

Portland Grain Exchange.

Portland, Ore.—Wheat markets were slow, draggy affairs this week; however, the stability shown by commodity prices in the face of heavy security liquidation, is gradually accumulating confidence and optimism in wheat prices. Commodity markets will reflect the first sign of business recovery and the gradual advance in wheat prices is well grounded.

It appears that Europe and the Orient may take larger quantities of wheat than anticipated, which would reduce the world wheat surplus considerably and make a healthier prospect for next season. New crop prospects show the most decisive crop reduction ever made and if maintained may reduce the wheat crop in this country 350 million bushels from last year's final figures.

Locally, new crop prospects have been reduced by cold, wet, unseasonable weather. This same condition in the past has postponed the growing season until the usual hot, dry spell which follows, reducing early estimates. Cash wheat here is demanding about 2 cents a bushel over the May option. There is no export business. About 500 tons were worked to California.

DESERVING DESSERTS

DESSERT has to do something to justify its existence besides being sweet. It's an integral part of the meal, after all, and ought to contribute its quota of well-being to the partaker. That's just what the following desserts do because they all contain Hawaiian pineapple, a fruit the acids of which turn alkaline in the body, and which contains an enzyme called bromelin which is a powerful aid to digestion. All of which would not be very interesting to a dinner just wanting a tempting dessert, if it didn't taste so good. But, whether you eat it hot or cold, it does.

This Is a Hot One

Steamed Pineapple Pudding: Sift together one and one-half cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Add three-fourths cup liquid consisting of the syrup from an 8-ounce can of pineapple tidbits and sufficient water to make the required amount. Add two tablespoons melted butter. Beat two egg whites stiff, add three tablespoons sugar and fold into the batter. Fill individual buttered molds half full of the batter, add two or three tidbits from the can to each, and cover with the remaining batter. Steam thirty minutes. This recipe makes from six to eight molds, depending on their size. Serve with the following

Sauce: Mix one-half cup sugar with two teaspoons flour, and add one and one-third cups water. Use part canned pineapple syrup (you have any on hand). Boil about five minutes, stirring until smooth. Pour slowly over two slightly-beaten egg yolks, and cook a minute or two longer. Serve hot.

This One is Cool

Pineapple Maple Tapioca Soufflé: Turn the contents of a No. 2 can of crushed Hawaiian pineapple and one-half cup maple syrup into a double boiler, and bring to scalding. Add one-third cup minute tapioca, and cook until transparent. Cool slightly, fold in three stiffly-beaten egg whites, and bake in a slow—325°—oven for twenty minutes, or until set. Cool. This serves eight. Serve with the following sauce:

Maple Custard: Beat two egg yolks slightly, and add one and one-half cups diluted evaporated milk and one-third cup maple syrup. Cook in double boiler, stirring constantly, until the mixture coats a spoon. Cool. Both pudding and sauce can be flavored and colored with maple flavoring, if desired.

This One is Frozen

Frozen Fruit Delight: Bring one-half cup water and one-eighth teaspoon salt to boiling, add two tablespoons minute tapioca, and cook in a double boiler until clear and thick. Add one-third cup sugar and one-fourth cup mint jelly, and continue cooking until the jelly is melted. Cool. Add the contents, both syrup and fruit, of an 8-ounce can of crushed Hawaiian pineapple, and the thoroughly mashed contents of an 8-ounce can of peaches, including the syrup, and one-half teaspoon almond flavoring. Freeze to a mush in refrigerator trays or in ice and salt. Stir occasionally. Fold in one cup of beaten cream, and continue freezing. This serves eight.

This One is Whipped

Pineapple Prune Whip: Dissolve one package lemon gelatin in one cup boiling water, then cool. Add the contents of an 8-ounce can of crushed pineapple and one cup chopped stewed prunes, and chill. When the mixture starts to set, fold in four stiffly-beaten egg whites, and pile lightly in glass dessert dishes. Chill. Serves eight. Serve either with cream or with the following

Sauce: Bring one and one-half cups of liquor in which the prunes were cooked (add water if there is not enough of this juice) and one-third cup sugar to boiling, and pour slowly over three slightly-beaten egg yolks. Cook in a double boiler until the mixture coats a spoon. Flavor with vanilla, and serve cold.

This One's a Cake

Pineapple Russet Shortcake: Place a can of condensed milk in sufficient water to cover it in a closed vessel, and boil steadily for two hours. Put away until ready to use. This can be done days in advance, and always kept on hand. Split pieces of sponge cake, making two layers. Spread the condensed milk mixture thickly between and on top. Then cover with canned crushed pineapple, and garnish with fresh strawberries or maraschino cherries to give it color."

airship could be bought for $1400 while the largest, a Ford tri-motor, ten-passenger plane, at the Mamer Flying school cost $42,000. This large ship is the second of its kind owned by Mamer and will be used for passenger service between Spokane and Seattle.

The next point of interest they visited was the Davenport hotel and here they looked at the collection of antique furniture and vases in the lobby and mezzanine floor. These antiques were collected by Mr. Davenport in the various stores in foreign countries.

Of course they visited the new million dollar Fox theatre and decided that the architecture and furnishings of the theatre were far superior to the picture shown that day.

CHANGES OF 50 YEARS.

1882

Fifty years ago women wore hoopskirts, bustles, petticoats, corsets, cotton stockings, high buttoned shoes, ruffled cotton drawers, flannel nightgowns, puffs in their hair, did their own cooking, baking, cleaning, washing; went to church Sunday; were too busy to be sick.

Men wore whiskers, square hats, ascot ties, red flannel underwear, big watches and chains; chopped wood for stoves; bathed once a week; drank ten-cent whisky and five-cent beer; rode bicycles, buggies or sleighs; went in for politics; worked 12 hours a day; and lived to a ripe old age.

Stores burned coal-oil lamps; carried everything from a needle to a plow; trusted everybody; never took an inventory; placed orders for goods once a year in advance; always made money.

1932

Today women wear silk stockings, short skirts, low shoes, no corsets, an ounce of underwear; have bobbed hair, smoke, paint and powder, drink cocktails, play bridge, drive cars, have pet dogs and go in for politics.

Men have high blood pressure, wear no hats, and some no hair; shave their whiskers, shoot golf, bathe twice a day, drink poison, play the stock market, ride in airplanes; never go to bed the same day they got up; are misunderstood at home; work five hours a day; usually ten; die young.

Stores have electric lights, cash registers, elevators; never have what the customer wants; trust nobody; take inventory daily; never buy in advance; have overhead; markup, markdown; quota budget; advertising; stock control; annual and semi-annual end of the month, dollar day, founder's day, rummage, economy day sales —and never make money.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

On Sunday, May 8 at 2 p. m. at the Cozy theatre Erwin Graue, associate professor of economics of the University of Idaho, will address the open forum. His subject will be "Dimetalism," a subject of paramount importance to all at this time.

Mrs. M. L. Sargent, professor of modern languages of the University of Idaho will give a very interesting lecture also. Her subject will be "Churches and Cathedrals of the World." Mrs. Sargent will also show some slide pictures of these famous buildings.

Let's all turn out and show these two professors we appreciate their cooperation. R. L. Edwards.

BUSINESS HOUSES TO CLOSE FOR CELEBRATION FRIDAY

Most of the business houses in Genesee have signified their intention of closing for part of the day Friday. The banks will close at 12 o'clock and open again at 3 o'clock. Follett's, Raders City Market, Burgan's and the Supply company will close at 10:00 and open again at 3 o'clock. The barber shops will be open until 12 and close for two hours, and the drug stores will close for about the same time. Herman's Hardware and Herman's Furniture store will close from 12 to 3, and most of the other business houses are closing that employees and owners can enjoy the program Friday morning and afternoon also, most of them opening at 3 o'clock. It is impossible for the service stations and some other places to close, but wherever possible the business men are cooperating with the school to make its Washington Bicentennial, Arbor Day and May Day celebration a success.

OLD TIMERS WENT TO COURT ONLY AS THE LAST RESORT

ers require a biennial appropriation of about $30,000, and $10,000 is required every two years for operating expenses.

This growth in supreme court costs has been gradual. The legislature of 1909 added $4,000 to justices' salaries, making the total $26,000. Stenographers' wages were also increased the same year from $4,800 to $6,600, and $5,000 was appropriated for an annex and heating plant at Lewiston.

In 1917 three law clerks, one for each justice, were added to the payroll at a cost of $13,800. That year's appropriation for stenographers was $9,000, while the cost of travel and incidentals reached $8820. In 1921 the number of justices was increased to five and their annual salaries to $5,000. Practically all of these increased expenditures, added one at a time, are in effect today.

The other side of the picture is a force of specially trained workers, handling a tremendous amount of legal business that frequently involves thousands of dollars and occasionally human life and liberty. The capable and honest administration of justice is a governmental virtue upon which a dollar-and-cents value can hardly be placed.

O. E. S. Gleaners.

Mrs. Ruth Perkins was hostess to the O. E. S. Gleaners Tuesday afternoon. Following the business meeting, presided over by Mrs. Nels Lande, president, the afternoon was spent in hemming and embroidering dish towels for the kitchen at the Masonic hall. A special meeting with a pick-up lunch is planned for the May meeting.

Legion Meets May 4.

Members of Bielenberg-Schooler Post, American Legion, are requested to be present at the meeting Wednesday evening, May 4, at which time the chairs will be painted. Each one is asked also to bring a paint brush and assist in the work which has been permitted to drag along until this time. There will be lunch served to each one attending.

Change Stage Schedule.

The greater number of stages will now be routed via Genesee rather than Uniontown, owing to the greater amount of business on this run, according to word received at Smolt's.

NOTICE.

The annual stockholders' meeting of the Rapid River Mining & Milling Co., Ltd., will be held at its office in Genesee, Idaho, on the 10th day of May, 1932, at 2:30 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing a board of directors for the ensuing year, as well as transacting such business which may legally come before said meeting.

"WISECRACKER" GETS OVER BIG

"The Wisecracker," presented in three acts by the senior class of '32 was well received by a large audience last Friday evening at the high school opera house. George Blume in the person of Emerson Gregg, a retired merchant, became irate at times and although his wife, played by Marie Wagner, was his obedient servant, she finally had her inning, when her favored suitor for the hand of her daughter, overcome old man Gregg's dislike, however costly it proved to be. Richard Harris took the part of the mother's favorite and the "Wisecracker," being opposed by the father's partner, Spencer Tuppman, the part taken by Russell Rinehart, who also desired the hand of Gregg's daughter, played by Marguerite Kluss. Jefferson Chandler, a real estate broker complicated matters for the Gregg family, Marvin Miller playing the part. Esther Kries, as Fanny Calkins, an old friend of the family, did nothing to smooth relations between members of the Gregg family and was a thorn in the side of Chandler, but she triumphed in the end, as did Mazie Holler, a flapper, played by Bernice Gibbs, who, pursuing a course of many engagements, made Tuppman the more gracious to accept a life of single blessedness.

The parts were well taken and the audience greatly enjoyed the presentation. Before the curtan and during intermissions the school orchestra, under the diction of Mrs. Harris, played several selections. Herbert Steinegar, assisting in the intermission entertainment, played a violin solo.

BASEBALL COMING UP.

Spring must be here. One says, "we must have a ball team"; another says "Genesee won't be without a ball club this year"; and others rant and rave because there does not happen to be a game scheduled for Sunday.

As the matter now stands, those interested in baseball are asked to assemble at Smolt's about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon to talk over plans and rush a club into the field.

Most teams are playing independent baseball; Genesee has a number of likely looking younsters raring to play, so there remains nothing save to give them a start.

Try to be at the meeting Sunday afternoon.

Relief for that Burning Face!

SPRINGTIME, with its changeable weather—its warm, sunshiny days, days that are windy and dry, and then the rainy, blustering days, mean that the ladies will demand the best in face creams, powders and lotions. We carry in stock all the leading brands of cosmetics and articles needed to keep one's face and hands in such condition, that the user will be more than pleased.

Likewise, the farmer's hands and face, after a long, hard day in the field, facing the sun and wind, needs attention.

FARM-TO-MARKET ROADS PLAN OF GOVERNOR ROSS

While in Genesee Friday to attend the school celebration, Governor C. Ben Ross explained his plans for farm-to-market roads, mentioning also a number of these roads now under construction or already completed. Approximately $257,000 has been saved, the governor stated, in operations of the state highway department, $150,000 in the engineering division and $107,000 in maintenance, which is the foundation of a fund to build market roads where most needed at the present time.

The plan as outlined is a fifty-fifty proposition, the separate highway or good roads districts cooperating with the state highway department. The state agrees to survey, grade and adequately drain the road bed and the districts will, as their share of the contract, surface the road. The state will also furnish the crusher if the highway districts will furnish the power, the rock, the hauling and provide for distribution under supervision. He explained also that individuals may return part of the money received as wages to apply for their share of costs, or a levy could be made to care for this work, as other road work has been taken care of.

It is also required that sufficient rock be placed in a stock pile for the oiling of such projects the year following initial completion, or the first spreading of rock. The highway department, in its study of highways in Idaho, estimates the life of a rock road to be eight years, but where oiled many additional years of service are obtainable.

Equipment to be used in construction of market roads is that owned by the state, which will be released for this particular road work after the main highway construction program is completed. Persons who interviewed the governor relative to market roads were of the opinion that side roads would come in for consideration during the latter part of August of September.

COZY THEATRE REOPENING.

The smoker scheduled for the same evening will start at 8:50, which permits people to attend the first show at the Cozy.

Lands Large Salmon

Superintendent E. S. Suenkel and family enjoyed a fishing trip on the Clearwater river Sunday, and brought home a large Chinook salmon, which registered 12 pounds on an accurate weighing device. The fish was 36 inches long.

Later: Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Tupker and Paul Parks were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Suenkel Monday evening at a fish dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Gray and children of Boise, came Sunday to attend the funeral of Don Bressler. They remained during the week to visit Mr. Gray's mother, his sister, Mrs. Ray Edwards and family, and other relatives.

New Cross Walk Constructed.

A 70-foot concrete cross walk was completed Thursday, joining the sidewalks along the Driscoll and Woods properties. For many years a plank cross walk has served those traveling in that part of town, and since the new walk was completed along the Congregational church, pedestrians have an unbroken circuit of concrete walk.

Bids were asked on the construction of the cross walk, Chet Mochel, being the lowest bidder, asking 17 cents per square foot for 4 inch construction and 23 cents for 6 inch. The walk is four feet wide and was opened for ordinary traffic Saturday.

BASEBALL SPROUTING IN SPITE OF DAMP WEATHER

Weather conditions mean but little to the baseball fan and those who like to play the game, for Sunday a large number of candidates turned out to attend a baseball meeting. The crop of baseball players this spring is as large as usual, if not larger, and there will be competition for every position.

At the meeting Sunday Fred Meyer and Ronald Geltz were selected as co-managers to arrange games for the coming season, and it is expected there will be a game at Genesee Sunday, May 8. Genesee has been slow in organizing this year for the baseball campaign, but weather has had a lot to do with it, but now that the crop has sprouted, and fans are beginning to wake up, interest is increasing.

Sunday's meeting brought out sentiment for an all-home ball club this summer with the possible exception of a pitcher, and games will be scheduled only with other towns which are pursuing the same tactics.

Finances naturally enter into the matter of placing a team in the field and immediate steps have been taken to arrange for a dance. The Firemen, who postponed their dance, are now in favor of turning the funds derived from this source, to the ball team. Watch for date of dance.

Prospects for the Genesee base ball club this year include: Ervin Nebelsieck and Al Olsen, catchers; Jack Vandenburg, Les Gray, Archie Putnam, Bob Kane and Vic Danielson, pitchers; George Blume at first; Cecil Gray at second and Ed Blume at short have no likely opposition for the positions named, but there is no telling what the season may produce. Harold Klemm and George Smylie are looking toward the third base position, and Lefty Emmett, Stub Geltz and Les Wishard are the candidates for the grassy outfield spots, with several of the pitchers also looking in the same direction, while not on the call for mound duty. Bob Kane is also said to look good at the short field position. A number of the boys have been practicing between showers and their actions have been noted, but to date no definite assignments have been made.

Morris Murphy and Miss Rose Murphy of Lewiston, visited from Friday until Sunday with their aunt, Mrs. Helen Sanford, and grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Linehan.

MANY PAY LAST RESPECTS TO DONALD LEE BRESSLER

Innumerable friends gathered at the Congregational church Monday to pay their last respects to Donald Lee Bressler and lend comfort to the bereaved relatives in their hour of most unexpected sorrow, the deceased having passed away at St. Ignatius Hospital, Colfax, following an operation for a ruptured appendix. Feeling ill the evening of Saturday, April 30, he paid little heed to the ailment until Sunday, when he mentioned to the family that he was feeling unwell. Monday morning early, the suffering became almost unbearable, and at the insistence of his wife, a doctor was summoned, who arrived about 6:30 Monday morning. Mr. Bressler consented to entering a hospital but before leaving Genesee he attended to some business at the bank and walked across the street to a barber shop. Returning to the bank he was stricken by the most severe pains and was immediately rushed to Colfax. The operation itself was apparently successful and the patient was recovering satisfactorily until last Thursday, when his kidneys ceased to function, this factor contributing to his untimely death. His physical condition became worse and Friday morning the patient asked to see his daughter, the wife, mother, sister and other relatives being present at the hospital most of the time during and following the operation. Friday his condition became serious, and at about five o'clock the Sisters at the hospital intimated by their suggestions that the end was drawing near. Mr. Bressler accepted the inevitable in a manner characteristic of the deceased.

Funeral services were held from the Congregational church Monday, the American Legion being in charge of the services, with the Rev. Dr. Joel Harper of Westminster Congregational church, Spokane, where Mrs. Bressler is a member, reading the funeral sermon, and a choir composed of Mrs. W. W. Burr, Miss Esther Martinson, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Meyer, Mrs. Robert Emmett, Mrs. Arthur Springer, Elmer Krier, F. A. Smith and Colin Wilson, with Mrs. W. M. Herman as piano accompanist and director assisted in the services.

The body rested at the home for a few hours Monday and was then taken to the church, under escort of the Legion and was there held during the services amidst overflowing floral tributes from friends and business associates, which signified the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

Interment was in the City Cemetery beside the remains of the father, Fred Bressler, who passed away in 1925. Honorary pallbearers were Fred Nagel, Henry Martinson, Frank Moorman, John Weber, Joe N. Hasfurther and T. Driscoll, and the active pallbearers were: Roy Evans, James Magee, Mahlon Follett, Chas. Gray, Lewis Jain and Alfred Olsen.

The American Legion officiated at the grave, with the Rev. Mr. Harper assisting, and Rev. Fr. Carey sounding taps after the salute to the dead was fired.

Donald Lee Bressler was born September 14, 1894 to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bressler in Genesee and was at the time of passing 37 years, seven months and 15 days of age. Attending the Genesee public school and graduating with the class of 1913, he entered the University of Washington at Seattle, and was completing his third year at that institution when war was declared. He then went to the first officers' training camp at the Presidio, San Francisco, where he was commissioned a second lieutenant, going overseas with the 161st Infantry which regiment saw service in Siberia during the World war. He was advanced to the rank of first lieutenant while overseas and returned home an officer of the regular army, resigning the commission, however, to begin his carreer as a banker in the Genesee Exchange Bank, with which he has been associated since April, 1919, first as an assistant, becoming president September 1925, following the death of his father.

Deceased was a member of Sigma Chi, college men's fraternity, a member of the Elks Lodge, Moscow, and of the American Legion, acting as service officer in recent years, following his service as commander.

Mr. Bressler was married January 14, 1928 to Miss Irene Mulalley, who survives, as does the mother, Mrs. Fred Bressler, a sister, Miss Adelaine Bressler, and the little daughter of the deceased, Miss Beverly, and a host of other relatives.

CELEBRATION DREW MANY PEOPLE TO GENESEE FRIDAY

Threatening weather may have kept a number of people at home Friday; nevertheless there was a large crowd in Genesee that day to attend the Washington Bicentennial, May-Day and Arbor Day celebration, sponsored by the schools.

The program opened at 10 o'clock in the morning with the flag-raising exercises at the public school building and was followed by tree planting by the American Legion in behalf of the community, and members of the senior class of 1932. Two trees, a part of the landscaping program at the high school were planted.

Children from the first, second, third and fourth grades participated in a May-Pole dance on the lawn at the school and this was followed by several selections from the Genesee Rhythm band, under the supervision of Mrs. Wm. Hordeman, Wayne Bershaw acting as director.

Immediately following this three men from the University of Idaho gave an exhibition of tumbling.

At 11:30 Prof. Chenoweth of the University of Idaho entertained a large number of people which were seated on the north side of the bandstand in the park. Prof Chenoweth's lecture was most timely, as his benevolent philosophy put those gathered about him in a good mood to enjoy the celebration.

At the sound of the siren at 12 Mr. Chenoweth concluded his delightful lecture. Prof. Chenoweth said people here should be contented with their opportunities, which he believed lay almost undiscovered, and that people should free themselves of the attractions of display and fashion, using himself as an example whereby his listeners could judge his happiness, which was not lessened by his out-of-date clothing, his hat which had seen many years service, and his automobile, which, although eleven years old, was in fashion today. Clothes do not make the man, he stated, and he attempted to offer consolation to the women-folks who were compelled to face the public without a new hat. Spending the dollars you haven't got will not affect a cure for present-day problems, the professor said, although one will never be broke as long as he is permitted to spend the dollar which is to come, but which he doesn't have.

During the noon-hour a number of people gathered on the park lawn and spread their picnic dinner, coffee being served by the high school. Owing to the presence of the governor in Genesee, a luncheon was given for him at Smolt's, attended by about forty democrats who gathered to confer with the state's chief executive.

At 1 o'clock the combined Genesee and Uniontown bands played a half-hour concert, which was followed by the Bicentennial program, prepared and rendered by pupils from St. Joseph's school. The first number was a Colonial army drill by the boys and was followed by a Minuet in two parts Miss Beverly Manring playing the violin obligato and Mrs. Hordemann, the accompaniment. Both boys and girls were dressed in Colonial costumes.

Pupils from the Ingle school sang Yankee Doodle," and groups of pupils from the Grey Eagle and Shaffer schools each sang songs fitting to the day. Howard Schooler sang two vocal solos, accompanied by Lowell Isaksen, and Miss Delpha Cameron of Grey Eagle played a piano solo.

As the school program drew to a close Supt. E. S. Suenkel, introduced John G. Meyer, mayor, Rudolph E. Nordby, chairman of the school board, and Miss Ellen Peterson, Moscow, county superintendent of school, who gave brief remarks.

Governor C. Ben Ross was the main speaker of the day, and he directed his words toward the younger people who were assembled. Surveying the group from his lofty pinnacle as governor of Idaho, a position to which he aspired as a youth, the chief executive said that leadership was needed in government, and that the younger boys gathered about him should begin to think of furnishing an occupant for the governor's chair. Gov. Ross did not criticize the boy who plays "hookie" from school, and rather than look upon some one else's achievements as the highest, encouraged the youth to say "thunder," illustrating his point by a story. He also told of his early boyhood, how he informed his playmates that he

PUBLIC SCHOOL ORCHESTRA BROADCASTS FROM KWSC

Members of the public school orchestra, under the direction and supervision of Mrs. Arvilla Harris, appeared in a program broadcast from radio station KWSC, Washington State College, Pullman, Wn., Monday evening, and delighted the many patrons of the school as well as the parents and friends of the orchestra members and instructor.

Supt. E. S. Suenkel, who accompanied the orchestra to Pullman, acted as announcer of the numbers as they were played. Following is the program as broadcast, beginning at 9:15 o'clock p. m.:

"Let's Go," March.
Selection, "Bohemian Girl."
"Ave Maria," violin solo, Herbert Steineger.
March, "Flag of Truce".
Novelty number, "Scented Blossoms," dedicated to the teachers of the schools.
Trumpet solo, Arvin Nordby.
Selection, "Bachelor Girls," dedicated to Paul Parks.
Violin quartet, Thomas Sanford, Floyd Hove, Herbert Steineger and Erich Steineger.
Overture, "Fortuna."
Violin solo, "Minuet," Floyd Hove.
"Little Corporal," dedicated to the parents of members of the orchestra and those listening in.

The program lasted about forty-five minutes and most everywhere in Genesee the reception was splendid.

TWO GENESEE STUDENTS TO GRADUATE FROM U. OF I.

University of Idaho: Two students from Genesee will receive their bachelor's degrees at the 1932 commencement at the University of Idaho, June 6, according to a list compiled by the university registrar. This will be the 37th commencement exercises for the state university.

The 1932 graduating class will be the largest in the history of the university, exceeding 400 for the first time, 334 of which will be bachelor's degrees and 74 master's degrees.

Commencement is June 6. Baccalaureate exercises will be held Sunday, June 5, with Dr. W. O. Thompson, president emeritus of Ohio State university, the speaker. The commencement speaker has not yet been selected. Alumni of the university are planning several events as part of the program.

The Genesee students and the degrees they will receive are as follows: Clarence J. Doyle, B. S. (Ed.); Verona W. Wolff, B. S. (Ed.)

LEATHER WILL FLY AT HIGH SCHOOL SMOKER SATURDAY

A varied program that will provide both thrills and laughs has been arranged for the Genesee athletic enthusiasts this Saturday evening at the high school gymnasium.

To top the card we find the victors of the last two fights on the last smoker slinging leather at each other in a four-round battle. Driskill has won three fights at Moscow this winter by the knockout route, none of them going over two rounds. We saw him win easily over Dye in the first round here after a knockdown. He is a hard-fisted fighter, using short cutting blows and a natural weave on defense.

Chas. Litchfield of Lewiston will offer Driskill opposition of a type he has probably never experienced before. "Chuck" has had some valuable fighting experience that will go a long way toward offsetting the slashing blows Driskill has been noted for. Litchfield showed that he also has a mule kick tied up in his right when he knocked out George Miller in the closing seconds of the first round of the last fight. Litchfield stayed ten rounds with Jimmy Evans in a fight last winter.

Red Driskill, a brother of Ardie, and Harold Whitcomb, both possess 170 pounds with which to back up their blows. Both have had ring experience. Whitcomb has won several fights the past winter and is classed by ring critics as a very clever and hard fighter.

We find Olson taking on a rangier and slightly heavier man in Donald Dye of W. S. C. Dye took four counts in the first round against Ardie Driskill at the smoker but came back fighting. Olson made a good showing against Paul Mulalley. Dye is training now and is going to show Genesee people a different fight this time, it's predicted.

In the middle weight class we find Smylie and Rinehart meeting Erickson and Broemeling, challengers, who did not appear on the last card. Both these fights will be fast.

We found some smooth working fighters in Billy Edwards and Gene Grieser. The small boys, Boyd Jacobs and Delmond Grieser will give a demonstration of action for a short time. Ed Miller will meet "Lefty" Emmett in the first ring encounter for either man. Watch that left hook.

The program will open with the Ainslee twins' tumbling act. These girls are accomplished in this art and offer a rare entertainment.

A battle royal with eight contestants, selected in advance will have more possibilities that did the last one with four entries.

A barrel fight and a blind men's fight will furnish plenty of thrills.

The Genesee-Uniontown band will furnish the music.

Pleasures are Earned!

Start Saving Now

Recreation and rest can be truly enjoyed only after they have been earned, thru work, thru saving, or thru investments. Youth fights the inevitable in this, but age knows it is true.

To be able to "go off on trips" and enjoy life in later years it is necessary to build while young, and to build on the solid foundation of thrift. Your work weeks now should be profit weeks, a spending of a little less than you make. These saved dollars go to work immediately for you and your recreation and rest in future years.

Let us explain our saving plan

MOTHER LOVE.

Mother love! The golden cord that stretches from the throne of God, uniting all animate creation to divinity. Its light gleams down the path of time from barbarous ages, when savage women held their babes to almost famished breasts and died that they might live. Its holy flame glows as bright in hovels where poverty breaks a meager crust as in palaces where wealth holds Saturnalian feasts. It is the one great universal passion, the sinless passion of sacrifice. Incomparable in its sublimity, interference is sacrilege, regulation is mockery.

The wild beasts hear its voice and answer to its call. A tigress finding her cubs slaughtered pauses to lick their wounds, and then with raging heart seeks out their murderer. A she wolf standing at the mouth of her den, with gleaming fangs and blood-red tongue, dies in defense of her whelps. Tiger's cub or wolf's whelp, I would rather feel the caress of the hairy paws of my savage mother, I would rather have her care and protection than that of an official animal trainer.

I once saw a little timorous quail, with marvelous intelligence and still more marvelous courage, protect her brood by exposing herself to the hunter's deadly aim. I then realized that nothing could take the place of mother love.

If its divine fire so warms and thrills the heart of beast and bird, with what intensity does it consume the bosom, with what ecstacy inspire the soul of a woman for the child of her body. Although she knows that she must risk her own to bring forth a new life, she does not draw back. Her love-lit eyes behold only visions of happiness, of glory and of power to be realized by her unborn child. With smiling lips and eager heart she enters the vale of shadows. The first cry of the new-born falls on her ear, sweet as the music of paradise. Her trembling hands caress the tender skin; her soul cries out the anxious question, "Will my baby live?" The torturing days of convalescence fly swiftly upon wings of hope. She nestles the tiny, helpless thing to her bosom; sustains it with the milk of her body, every drop drawn from a fountain of infinite love.

With indescribable solicitude she watches over her offspring. Even when her body slumbers her soul keeps vigil and her hands in unison with her spirit will stretch forth to soothe the baby back to sleep. With glowing pride she watches the growing child, shields it from harm, guides it along the paths of rectitude, inspires its soul with lofty sentiments of honor and of faith in the eternal God.

When time has piled the snows upon her head and turned her brown or raven locks to white, her love will still abide, riper and sweeter with the passing years. Though she may live until her children are themselves grown old and gray, she yet will see the silken locks of youth; their roughened hands yet have the caressing touch of baby fingers; their voices bear to her the tender and melodious notes of industry. And when at last she approaches the portals of death there is no solace so sweet as the presence of those she bore "to people and replenish the earth."

For mother love there is no substitute, even though it bear an official stamp. If there be truth in religion, then this holy sentiment was planted in woman's heart by the hand of God. It has made life possible. It is in truth the very source of life itself. When all other passions are dead it survives. It will pass through the fiery furnaces of disgrace and yet live. It will endure the scorching breath of contumely with unwavering fidelity.

A mother will enter prisons of shame and kiss a felon hand thrust through the bars. She will sit beside the accused in courts of law, when the mob jeers and the heartless machinery of justice grinds its grist of agony, and with unwavering faith maintain her child is innocent. She will stand at the foot of the scaffold and, when the trap has fallen, cover the condemned body with kisses and with flowers. It is still to her the innocent suckling she once hugged to her breast.

But if the path of life has led her son to fields of honor, her heart will glow with pride, ineffable, unspeakable. If he is called to war, she will bid him good-bye with dry eyes, although her heart be filled with tears. She will maintain a firm and hopeful mien, that he may gain sublimer courage from her sublime example. When he sleeps upon the tented field her spirit will keep watch. Whilst he is slumbering she will pray. In the agony of waiting she will die a thousand deaths, but will choke back her sobs and hide her torture. She will search for him amongst the slain, and try with kisses to warm the dead and unresponsive to life. She will coffin her heart with the beloved body, and her soul will keep the eternal vigil of a deathless love.

Mother love! It has produced, fondled, reared, inspired and glorified all the shadowy hosts who have passed across the bank of time since man first raised his eyes toward the heavens. It is, I say again, the golden cord that binds earth to God.

Asked to Keep Dogs at Home.

Complaints have been made by several ranchers who have fed Chinese and Hungarian pheasants during the winter, about the dogs who are permitted to run loose in the stubble fields and other places where the birds mentioned are nesting. One man stated that he knew it was asking a lot of the boys who go out shooting squirrels or go fishing to leave their dogs, especially those of the hunting type at home, but he believed that every bird possible should be saved. He observed that bird dogs had little trouble in locating the birds on nest, and after driving the birds away, often ate the eggs.

No one wishes to stop the boys from shooting and fishing, but the birds having experienced a hard winter, are scarce in number, and boys who pursue the mentoned sports will be glad to cooperate.

Mother's Day
May 8

"Mother"

THE MOST BELOVED WORD THE WORLD HAS EVER KNOWN

SUNDAY, MAY EIGHTH, has been designated as Her Special Day. Everywhere, even in the remotest parts of the world, will loving and thoughtful tribute be paid to her.

We thought you would be glad of this little reminder and suggestion to help make her happy.

We are displaying an especially beautiful group of WHITMAN'S Candies, appropriately dedicated to "Mother" and shall look forward to helping you in your choice of a remembrance.

After you have selected your gift, it will be a pleasure for us to mail or deliver it so that she will have it at just the right time.

WHITMAN'S, you know, is the "sweetest gift for the sweetest person in the world."

Congregational Aid.

The Congregational Ladies Aid was entertained by Mrs. W. R. Hickman Wednesday afternoon. A quilt is being worked on and a box of clothing is being made up to send to the Children's Home in Lewiston. Mrs. Hickman served delicious refreshments.

BASEBALL SUNDAY.

It was announced late Wednesday evening that a baseball game had been scheduled with the Colton K. C. team for Sunday, which means that the Genesee club will have to form some kind of an organization before the first game here.

The strength of either team is unknown, but it can be easily assumed that the two clubs will be about equal for the first game of the season. If the weather continues to be rainy no doubt the game will be called off, but there is reasonable assurance that the sun will be shining and fans will be able to enjoy a taste of the national pastime.

MOTHER'S DAY.

Pink and white carnations
Deep in memory's vale,
To and fro they're swaying
In the May-day gale;
To my heart they're bringing
Treasures of the past;
Olden golden memories,
All too dear to last;
Happy days of childhood
When she loved me so;
Mother's Day Carnations
Of the long ago.

New Ford Displayed.

One of the attractions at the celebration Friday was a model of the new Ford V-8 Tudor sedan. It was viewed by many while on display at the Genesee Motors, people continuing to visit the showroom until late in the evening. The car was transported here by truck and on Saturday the model was taken to Lewiston to be displayed.

The main topic of conversation at the present time is the high school athletic smoker, which takes place at the gymnasium Saturday night.

MOTHER.

She carried me under her heart; loved me before I was born—
Took God's hand in hers and walked through the Valley of Shadows that I might live—
Rocked me to sleep when I was weary; held my hand when I learned to walk;
Nursed me when I was sick; suffered with my sorrow; laughed with my joy;
Glowed with my triumph; and while I knelt at her side, she taught my lips to pray.
Through all the days of youth she gave strength for my weakness, courage for my despair, and hope to fill my hopeless heart;
Was loyal when others failed; was true when tried by fire;
Was my friend when other friends were gone;
Prayed for me through all the days, flooded with sunshine or saddened by shadows; loved me when I was unlovely.
Though we lay down our lives for her we can never pay the debt we owe to a Christian Mother.

—Rose R. Gilgan.

Junior-Senior Banquet

The Junior class of '33 honored the Seniors with a four-course dinner Tuesday evening at the American Legion hall. The room was decorated with streamers of green and gold and the centerpiece was a large bouquet of daffodils; nutcups and favors were in the senior colors, gold and emerald. The toastmistress and general chairman of the evening was Helen Winegardner. Mr. and Mrs. Suenkel, Mr. and Mrs. Tupker, Miss Anderson and Mr. Parks were present besides members of the two classes, with the junior class advisor, Miss Melgard. Waiters were George Smylie, Donald Springer, Robert Broemeling and Teddy Wagner. An enjoyable evening was spent by those present.

In Appreciation.

We wish to express our appreciation to the many people in and about Genesee who gave so freely of their time and energy to make the Health Day, Arbor Day and Bicentennial program a success. The splendid cooperation of the various communities leads us to believe that it would be well to rechristen the celebration and call it Community day.

Public Recital.

A public recital will be given May 10 by the music pupils of Mrs. Wm. Herman at the high school auditorium.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

In arithmetic the sixth grade has been working reviewing problems. Each day we take the total of the scores for the boys and girls. So far the boys are ahead with a score of 1930 to 1310.

Members of the fifth grade have been studying decimal fractions. They find the work quite easy as well as interesting.

During our literature period we memorized the poem, "In School Days." The sixth grade pupils won in the contest which was to see what grade could memorize the poem first.

For a project in geography the sixth grade is making a class booklet on Idaho. Several of the pupils sent to different cities for booklets on the important industries of the state.

In fifth grade language we made poems about Mother. Dorothy Folletts was chosen as the best:

"Mother"

In this earth the Mother's are
The sweetest people near and far,
The dearest friend a child can have,
To keep him happy and not sad,
A friend to love him and to care
What they try to do and dare.
She does our work with a willing hand,
While you are playing in dirt and sand;
She works to make you happy and gay
And you should help her every day.

First and Second Grades

Everyone but one in the primary room are awarded gold star buttons and silver star buttons for penmanship.

The first and second grade children took an excursion trip down to Mrs. Smylie's residence where they observed a woodpecker's nest.

Thomas Wilson, a first grader wrote the following story: We walked down to Mrs. Smylie's. We saw a woodpecker's hole. We kept still, but the woodpecker would not come back. So we went away.

Blue Birds Go Thru Rain.

The Blue Bird club was entertained Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Isaac Isaksen and because of the mud and rain, the members could only drive their cars within a quarter of a mile of the Isaksen home. They walked the rest of the way. Every available shoe and sock at the Isaksen home was put in use as most of the ladies had to remove their footwear owing to the rain and mud encountered. Lowell Isaksen made the trip out to meet some of the ladies on horse-back and offered the horse for transportation but most of the ladies preferred the mud. At the close of a most enjoyable afternoon with refreshments of chop-suey, rolls and coffee, one lady remarked she would willingly ride a cow back to the mud-bound cars, so Mr. Isaksen backed a truck to the door of the home and transported them to their cars where additional grief was encountered, a flat tire. Despite the misfortunes incidental to the mechanical age they all reported a merry time. Guests included Mrs. Geo. Berry, Mrs. John G. Meyer and Mrs. Bill Rosenau.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. L. N. Rudd.

The Tire that Taught Thrift to Millions

Attorney: Why do you say they are gamblers?

Sheriff: While we were chasing them they were betting on which one of us would capture them.

Did you ever see an abandoned mining camp? Houses all unpainted, what there were left of them. No wonder the folks all left! Put Jones & Dillingham Paint on your home and you'll never want to leave it.

Nothing we know of has added less to the sum of human happiness than the discovery that spinach can be canned.

Don't wait until you have an accident. Use reasonable precaution by having your car inspected frequently. That's what our service department is here for.

Drinking may decline, but drinkers seldom do.

Right now, before hot weather comes would be a good time to drive in and have us put new hose connections on the water-circulating system of your car. Old rubber deteriorates and breaks down until it often almost stops the flow of water. Save your car from overheating by having us put on new hose now.

Don't put off the little jobs when it comes to keeping your car in shape. Frequently a small repair bill saves a much larger one. So feel perfectly free to drive in and consult our service manager whenever you hear a strange noise in your car.

Jones: Well, old man, how are you getting along with your poultry raising? Making expenses?

Smith: Not yet, but my hens have taken to eating their own eggs, so I hope they will soon become self-supporting.

Look your implements over at this time of year. See what you need in the way of repair parts. Tell us. We'll do the rest, and with genuine repairs too.

During the past week we delivered an all enamel Monarch Range to the home of Lars Liberg. That makes another home where preparing meals has been made a pleasure instead of a task.

A man entered a restaurant and ordered his breakfast. As the waiter placed it on the table, he remarked, quietly:

It looks like rain.

Guest: Yes, but I ordered coffee.

Fly time is coming and if you are planning to keep them out of your house this summer now is a good time to be fixing up those screens or ordering new ones. It's all right to swat the flies and it's all right to spray them or hit them with a hammer if you want to, after they get in. But why let them get in at all when good screens will keep them out.

Somebody's recipe for happiness: Never be discouraged nor a discourager.

There is only one way to practice thrift in lubrication and that is to lubricate often and well. The man who tries to save a few dollars by having his car greased only a few times a year is laying up some large repair bills for himself. Drive in today.

Ask me another: If you should meet a skunk in the road, what sense would be the most pleased?

Answer: Absence.

Add one quart of clean oil to one quart of dirty oil and you have two quarts of dirty oil. Does it Pay? Absolutely No! Let's fill 'er up with a fresh supply of Conoco Germ Processed Oil. What do you say?

One would naturally expect something like this to happen: "Funds for prohibition enforcement are the intake for the upkeep of the downput of the output.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLE SHIPMENTS INCREASE

Boise—Fruit and vegetable shipments from Idaho in 1931, totalling 40,539 cars, surpassed 1930 shipments by approximately 25 per cent, the increase being largely in the famous Idaho potatoes, it is revealed by the annual report of the federal bureau of agricultural economics.

Potato shipments last year filled 31,240 cars, which carried the well-known tuber to all parts of the nation as well as to foreign countries. In 1930, 22,162 cars leaving Idaho loading points carried potatoes. The increase in spud shipments was 40 per cent.

A large increase is also noted in the shipments of onions, the most profitable financially of Idaho's 1931 vegetable crops. The number of carloads of onions increased from 635 in 1930 to 1484 in 1931. Apple shipments decreased, largely because of an inactive market, from 6776 to 5396 cars. Plum and fresh prune shipments also decreased, from 1002 to 1003 cars. Four hundred and fifteen cars of green peas, representing a slight gain over 1930, were shipped.

Bonneville county was the heaviest shipper of spuds in the state during 1931, a total of 6447 cars being loaded in that district. Bingham county was second with 5,841 cars; Twin Falls loaded 4286 cars; Cassia sent out 3692 cars of choice Idaho tubers. Idaho Falls, with a total of 5988 cars, was the largest individual potato loading point in the state.

Canyon county led in onion shipments, a total of 685 cars (more than the entire shipment from the state of the previous year) leaving loading points in that county. Twin Falls county was a close second with 622 cars. Nampa shipped the largest numbers of cars, 294, of any one loading point; Twin Falls was second with 216 cars.

Payette county was the heaviest shipper of apples, 2526 carloads. Fruitland, sending out 1020 cars, had the largest individual loadings, and the town of Payette, with 998 cars, was a close second. New Plymouth, the third apple shipping point in Payette county, was the scene of 508 car loadings.

Canyon county produced 654 cars of apples; Gem county, 571 cars and Twin Falls county, 490 cars. The towns of Emmett, Nampa, Parma, Twin Falls, Council and Boise were all heavy apple shipping points. Twenty-three cars of dried apples were also shipped from the state.

The Emmett district, prime cherry producer, led the state in shipments of that fruit with a total of 87 cars to its credit. Lewiston, also famous for its high quality cherries, was a close second with 86 cars. Total cherry shipments from the state was 191 cars.

Peach shipments were light during the year, only 31 cars moving. Seventeen of these were loaded at Emmett, five at New Plymouth and four at Council.

Heaviest green pea shipments, 150 cars, were loaded at Driggs, in Teton county. New Meadows sent out 86 cars, and 77 were loaded at Parma. In each of these sections green pea growing has become a major industry. Other sizeable shipments were as follows: Arco, 48 cars, and Fruitland, 29.

Ada county was the heaviest shipper of plums and fresh prunes, 411 cars of this fruit leaving the Boise, Kuna and Meridian freight yards during the year. Payette county ranked second with 394 cars; Gem county shipped 235 cars for third place; and Canyon county's 202 cars entitled it to fourth place.

Ninety-seven cars of celery were shipped during the year, Canyon county producing all but 10 of them. Caldwell shipped 71 cars and 15 were loaded at Nampa.

Canyon county also led in lettuce and romaine shipments, producing 126 of a total of 180 cars. Nampa loaded 77 cars; Parma 43. Weiser, in Washington, produced 38.

Other fruit and vegetable shipments from the state during 1931 were as follows: Cantaloupes, 3 cars; greens, 6 cars; mixed fruits, 4 cars; mixed vegetables, 41 cars; pears, 9 cars; spinach, 5 cars; sweet potatoes, 1 car; and watermelons, 10 cars.

ADMINISTERING JUSTICE AN EXPENSIVE STATE FUNCTION

Administering justice to the people of a state is an expensive procedure, and the complexities and complications with which this thing called civilization has surrounded us make the task all the more difficult, says Glenn Balch, writing under the direction of the state chamber of commerce.

The district courts handle a large share of our legal business. The state is divided into what are known as judicial districts and each has its judges and attendant attaches. District court sessions are held twice each year in each county, with frequent special hearings interspersed as the need may be.

The cost of Idaho's district courts, like that of practically every other branch of state government, has increased heavily during our two score years of statehood. The records show, however, a corresponding increase in the volume of legal business transacted.

Appropriations Compared

From a first biennial appropriation of $40,000 in 1891, the expenses of our district courts gradually increased year by year until a peak figure of $237,000 was reached in 1927. The 1931 appropriation was $235,450.

Believing an increase of this size enough to excite the average curiosity, we have gone through the records in an endeavor to discover some of the particulars. The first sizeable increase, it is noted, came in the 1901 appropriation, which totalled $56,,000. The increase amounted to $11,000. Itemized, it was as follows: Judge's salary, $6,000 (a new district, the sixth, was created); stenographer's salary, $2,000; judge's traveling expense, $1,000; stenographer's traveling expenses, $2,000.

The addition of another new district, being a division of the Third, in 1905, added approximately $11,000 more to the state's district court expenses. In 1909 the Eighth judicial district, comprising the counties of Kootenai and Bonner, was created. This legislature also authorized a wholesale salary boost that practically doubled district court costs, bringing the total up from $65,250 to $112,900. Stenographers benefited to the extent of $26,000, making the total appropriation for them $40,000, and $20,400 was provided for judge's traveling expenses.

More New Districts

The 1911 legislature not only created a new district, but went farther and authorized additional judges for the Third, Fourth and Eighth districts. As a result, the appropriation for judges' salaries was increased from $50,000 to $93,750 and stenographic costs mounted from $40,000 to $53,400. The total appropriation this year was $181,350, a rather astounding increase for a 20-year period.

The next legislature to go on a court cost spending spree was that of 1917. It created the Tenth judicial district and authorized additional judges for districts five and seven. For the then total of 15 judges it appropriated $120,000 for salaries. The salary appropriation for the 15 reporters was $75,000. For judges' traveling expenses $20,000 was provided.

Four years later, the 1921 legislature met and created the Eleventh judicial district, adding one judgeship, with its attendant reporting and traveling costs to the state budget This legislature also decided to increase the salaries of district judges to $4,000 annually.

Eleven Districts

When the smoke of the session blew away, the following itemized appropriations had been made: District judge salaries, $128,000; district court reporter salaries, $80,000; traveling expenses, $27,000. The total appropriation that year amounted to $235,000.

Summing up, we find that instead of five districts and five judges, as in 1891, we now have eleven districts and 16 judges; we find that the incidentals, stenographic and reporter hire and traveling expenses, etc., that cost $10,000 in 1891 now cost $195,000.

CELEBRATION DREW MANY PEOPLE TO GENESEE FRIDAY

was going to be governor some day, and when a young man he saw Governor Gooding occuping the position which he aspired to.

Turning from his remarks directed to the boys he told of diversified farming and the benefits to be derived therefrom, quoting figures in connection with his own farming operations. Governor Ross played heavily upon his accomplishments, tracing them from boyhood to his present position and then returned to his plea for leadership, asking that his listeners consider his statistics on the financial operation of international bankers, and told of the amount of the total indebtedness of the United States, from the federal government down to the smallest taxing unit, saying that there was an insufficient sum of money in circulation in this country to day to pay the interest on the indebtedness let alone pay any on the principal.

In closing he said that he expected to be asked to return to Genesee, and commended those responsible for the pleasant surroundings and for the celebration which was in progress.

Music throughtout the day was furnished by the Genesee band, assisted by several from the Uniontown band. During the afternoon concert there were about ten men from the neighboring town who came to Genesee to assist in the playing.

About 3 o'clock the crowd went to the baseball park and there witnessed the track and field events, the results of which follow:

100-yard dash, free for all: Russell Rinehart, first, Ralph Broemeling, second.

School board 50-yard dash: Fred Commick, first; Walt Emerson, second, Pete Isaksen, third.

Girls under 14, 50-yard dash: Beuletta Nordby, first; Frances Dresher, second.

Boys under 10, 50-yard dash: Rosenau, first, Jester, second, Scharnhorst, third.

Fat men's dash: Albert Nagel, first, Art Cameron, second; George Anderson, third.

Three-legged race: Edwards and Scharnhorst, first; Smith and Isaksen, second.

Back and forth race: Herman, first; Flomer, second; Isaksen, third.

Sack race: Scharnhorst, first; Isaksen, second; Emerson, third.

Shot put: H. Schooler, first; Jim Kane, second, Weedy Esser, third.

Relay race: Rinehart, Flamoe, R. Broemeling, Hasfurther, first; Johann, Dresher, Bertrand, Vandenburg, second; Schooler, Magee, Pederson, Jacobs, third.

The skies were overcast during most of the day, but it did not rain. The newly improved school grounds and city park served as the finest kind of a place to hold such a gathering. Those responsible for the undertaking are to be congratulated and the money which it cost to acquire the beautiful lawns is well spent.

A free dance and free card party was scheduled for the evening but at 5 o'clock word was received of the sudden death of Don Bressler.

WHEAT MARKETS SLOW AS RAINS IMPROVE PROSPECTS

Beneficial rains over the principal wheat areas in both the United States and Canada during the week ending April 29, weakened the wheat market and prices declined three to four cents per bushel, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Continued lack of export demand for U. S. wheat, increased offerings from Australia and Argentina, large remaining domestic wheat stocks and further decline in securities, contributed to the weakness in the wheat situation. Materially increased offerings with only a moderate demand weakened the corn market. Oats and barley wer also lower.

Wheat Price Factors

Crop developments are now a dominant factor in the wheat situation and the improvement in U. S. winter wheat prospects as a result of widespread moisture, was largely responsible for the sharp decline in domestic wheat prices during the week. The crop made excellent progress in Missouri and Kansas, but growth was only fair in Iowa and Nebraska. Rain in the Ohio Valley benefitted wheat in that area. Weather was very favorable in the spring wheat belt. Wet soil delayed farm operations in some areas, but seeding in the U. S. spring wheat belt is expected to be practically completed by May 1, with soil conditions good. Seeding in Canada also made good progress under favorable weather and soil conditions. Trade estimates placed the area prepared for spring wheat in the Prairie Provinces at 20,430,00 acres, compared with the official estimate of 18,581,000 acres in 1931.

Crop prospects in foreign countries improved somewhat during the week with more favorable weather conditions in important winter wheat areas in Europe and better conditions for spring wheat seeding in Russia. In the North African countries where harvesting will begin next month, conditions are fairly good, although some damage has occurred in certain areas. Rains in Algeria brought relief where hot, dry winds threatened severe damage, although yields may be below earlier expectations. No serious injury has been reported in Tunis or Morocco and conditions in these countries are generally favorable. In the European countries along the Mediterranean, conditions continue satisfactorily and prospects are generally good. The U. S. Agricultural commissioner at Berlin reports from personal observation that crops in Germany, Czechoslovakia and Austria and poland are two to three weeks late, although conditions have been improved recently by more seasonable weather. Many sections are still showing the effects of the winter drought, but winter killing appears not so severe as earlier reports indicated. The damage incurred appears quite generally distributed, resulting in a poor stand, uneven growth and unsatisfactory stooling. Lack of funds in some of these areas where poor winter seedings are normally offset by increases in spring acreage, is preventing re-seeding this year. Russian seedings of spring wheat are about the same as last year, but considerably below those of 1930 when a record crop was produced. Seedings to April 20 were reported at 6,642,000 acres.

Pacific Coast Markets

Pacific Coast markets followed the decline at Eastern points and were two to three cents lower than a week ago. There were practically no developments in the local situation. Weather in Washington and Oregon was more favorable over the wheat-growing sections. Seeding of spring wheat has been delayed by cold, wet weather but prospects are much better than last year, particularly in the dry, light soil sections. Farm work continued to restrict country marketings and receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia River terminals totaled only 386 cars, a considerable portion of which was for delivery on earlier sales. Demand was principally from local mills since no export business was reported and inquiry from California buyers was negligible. Export bids were well below local prices and no sales were reported. Export wheats declined with futures but milling grades were fairly steady.

Foreign Demand Off.

Foreign inquiry for North American wheat slackened somewhat during the week under increased offerings from the Southern Hemisphere. Clearances of Australian and Argentine wheat comprised the bulk of the world's shipments and totaled 9,054,000 bushels for the week. The opening of navigation at Montreal and on the lakes has been reflected in some increase in clearances from North America during the past two weeks and shipments during that period have been nearly double those for the corresponding weeks a year ago.

The German wheat duty has been reduced, effective until June 30, 1932, from $1.62 1-8 per bushel to $1.16 per bushel, for a quantity equal to 15 per cent of all wheat milled during the three months, April through June, 1932, by flour mills which used foreign wheat. The milling quota requiring utilization of 97 per cent of domestic wheat remains unchanged except for a reduction to 70 per cent for mills using wheat imported at this reduced tariff rate. This new milling rate is effective to August 15, 1932.

In Genesee to Attend Funeral.

Among those who came to Genesee Monday to attend the funeral of the late Don Bressler, were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Powers and Mrs. James Bell, former residents of Genesee, now of Spokane, and Mrs. Geo. Ingarham, also of Spokane; Mrs. R. S. Sullivan and Mrs. Chas. Ingle of Pullman, Wn.; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jain, A. H. Oversmith, Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Thatcher, Mrs. F. E. Dicus and J. S. Heckathorn, all of Moscow, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Gray, Boise, and Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Cathcart, Harrison, Idaho.

Relatives of the deceased present were: Mr. and Mrs. Mark Ratcliffe, Lynn Ratcliffe and Mrs. Don Jordan, of Cheney, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hogue, Miss Arta Scroggins and Arthur Scroggins, all of Spokane; Mrs. E. T. Jacobs and Dick and Edavelle Jacobs, Lewiston; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jacobs, Walla Walla, Mr. and Mrs. Dick McDonald, Bovill; Mrs. Elzie Carter and Mr. and Mrs. Nick Carter, Boise; Winton Carter, Moscow, and Mr. and Mrs. George Gannon and Mrs. Matilda Gannon of Pullman, Wash.

CARD OF THANKS.

The love and kindness bestowed upon us during our recent bereavement, and the helpful service of the American Legion, the choir and many others is sincerely appreciated and from the depths of our hearts we thank you.

Mrs. Fred Bressler,
Mrs. D. L. Bressler
and daughter, Beverly,
Miss Adelaine Bressler.

Parents of Son.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gehrke are the happy parents of a son, born Saturday, April 30, at the St. Joseph's hospital in Lewiston. The baby has been named Raymond Ellsworth.

Registration Books Close May 21.

There are now 380 persons eligible to vote in the Genesee precinct, according to Mrs. L. C. Hayden, registrar. Registration closes May 21, and it is estimated that there will be 500 names on the books by that time. There were 271 registered for the last general election.

COOPERATIVE DIRECTORS MEET IN SPOKANE MAY 5-6

Directors and managers of cooperative farmers' grain companies met in Spokane May 6 and 7, to discuss plans for handling the coming crop and to talk over the problems confronting some of the cooperative units, mainly those who organized recently.

From Genesee there were present at the Spokane meeting, A. Carbuhn and Edgar Evans, directors of the Genesee Union Warehouse company, and Frank Hoorman, manager. A. C. Linehan, director of the regional organization, the North Pacific Grain Growers, Inc., also went to Spokane Thursday, but remained until Saturday, on business connected with the Grain Growers. The three other men returned home Friday night.

The meeting was called to acquaint the various cooperative units with the workings of the others and to formulate plans, which would enable the more recently organized cooperatives to better handle the crop in prospect. Owing to the many years of successful operation of the local union company there were few questions to be asked relative to the coming crop, and during the two-day session the local officers and managers were called upon to explain the manner in which Farmers' business under a cooperative was handled in Genesee.

Chief among the matters to be explained to all the cooperatives was the arrangement with Farmers National Grain Growers, whereby it is possible to receive advances on early crop contracts, but not to exceed 10 cents per bushel on the amount sold. In handling these advances, the grower gives his note to the local which in turn endorses and sends it back to the North Pacific Grain Growers. A grower's note will be accompanied by his contract of sale to the local of a specified amount wheat at a determined price. The advances should not exceed the rate of 10 cents per bushel on the amount covered by the contract, further advises the North Pacific. The interest rate will be the going rate charged for this type of service, at the present time said to be around 6½ per cent, but is subject to change, notice of which will be given before the time arrives for contracts to be made.

Assistance in the financing of bag purchases is also contemplated by the North Pacific, this matter yet being indefinite, and is aimed to be of assistance to the younger local cooperatives.

Loans against warehouse receipts will, in all probability be handled this season in the same manner as they have in the past, through the North-Pacific Grain Growers, the rate to remain the same as last year, unless the Intermediate Credit bank reduces its rate of interest to the regional cooperative.

Friday Bridge Club.

Mrs. Fred Shirrod entertained the Friday Bridge club last week at her home. Mrs. D. C. Burr won the high score award and Mrs. Fred Morscheck the consolation. Guests were Mrs. Henry Morscheck, Mrs. Fred Morscheck and Mrs. Isaac Isaksen. Mrs. Harry Schooler will entertain next.

Byron Defenbach Says:

"Nor does the celebrated fraud case at Lewiston give the democratic party any cause for complaint. The prosecution was conducted by stalwart republican attorneys; the judge has a reputation as a distinguished republican orator; the republican chairman of Nez Perce county was on the jury. The only democrats prominently connected with the case were the chief executive, the former commissioner of public works, and the defendant."

HAVE YOU A JOB FOR A MAN FOR ONE OR MORE DAYS?

Thirty-two applications have been filled out and filed with F. A. Smith, each man seeking employment for one day or more, and to date there are no requests for labor. Mr. Smith was appointed federal labor registrar for Genesee, and it is expected that some of the men will go to work as soon as highway work opens up, but there is at present a number of men with families who want work, and are willing to accept one day's work or more until other work is undertaken, such as highway repairing and construction.

Those asking for employment need it badly to keep their families, and an endeavor is now being made to contact people who can furnish one or more days work. If you can give one of these men a day's work, call F. A. Smith at the First Bank, and tell him what you want. The men have all classified themselves, and it is believed that Genesee people can provide a few days work for a number of these men.

RUDDS WILL MOVE TO MOSCOW.

Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Rudd are making preparations to move from the Williamson ranch to Moscow where Mr. Rudd has been employed for the past two years and a half as foreman of University of Idaho construction. During the time he has held this position he has traveled back and forth from the farm to Moscow. They have sold their farming equipment to Martin Grieser, which includes all machinery, livestock, chickens and so forth, Rudds retaining their household furniture only.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudd and family will move shortly after school closes in their district, which will be May 20. They have not made arrangements at Moscow as yet for a residence.

When the Rudd family moves, the farm will be operated by Martin Grieser, who with his family will reside on the place.

The place which Martin has been farming is the property of his father, Adolph Grieser, and as soon as he vacates the elder Mr. Grieser will again resume active operation of his own farm.

Breaks Leg Playing Baseball.

Bill Broemmeling suffered a broken leg last Thursday while playing ball at Thorncreek. The accident occurred during practice, and at first it was thought the injury was slight but on examination by a doctor, the large bone was found to be broken. They were playing on uneven ground and it is thought the injury resulted during a collision between players.

MEETING HELD TO DISCUSS GOV. ROSS' ROAD PROPOSAL

An interested group of farmers and business men met at the Legion hall Saturday afternoon to discuss the proposal made by Governor C. Ben Ross relative to a fifty-fifty plan of farm-to-market road construction, and to further explain the plan for improvement of side roads.

John G. Meyer, who consulted with the Governor on his recent visit to Genesee, and who with others heard the details of state aid in financing market roads, presided as temporary chairman of the meeting before he was unanimously chosen as permanent chairman, during the time required for the various projects presented to be viewed and a report made at a meeting Saturday evening, May 21, at the Legion hall. A Carbuhn was elected secretary.

After relating the details as explained to him, Mr. Meyers, asked those present to make suggestions as to procedure, which naturally led several to take the floor, asking for consideration of highway improvement or intitial construction, in such localities as they knew to be existing without year-round roads leading to market.

The first plea for a farm-to-market road came from Frank Jones of Good Roads District No. 3, asking that consideration be given the missing link in the canyon near Pine Grove, traversing an isolated portion of his district, and located between the Genesee and Juliaetta highway districts. The road in question is that part which leads down into the canyon and across the Potlatch creek. In connection with this portion of road, Mr. Jones also made a plea for the farmers on Fix Ridge, who would require an additional four miles of surfaced highway to enable them to reach market in all kinds of weather.

Commissioner Ira Fix of the Juliaetta highway district also appeared in behalf of this proposed piece of road and made plain the plight of farmers in his locality.

Henry Martinson of the board of commissioners of Genesee highway district mentioned the portion of road in the north part of his district which is as yet not complete.

Otto Sweeney and Geo. Carbuhn, on invitation asked for consideration of grading and surfacing that portion of road which lies in the Rimrock highway precinct and adjoins the Lewiston Highway district, from the Lawen farm, past the Manderfeld and east into Genesee. With this section completed, it was stated a surfaced highway would be available, connecting Genesee and Uniontown.

Gus Beechler of Rimrock highway district made it known that there exists a portion of road near the Aherin place which needs improvement in grading and surfacing, and stated that should tonnage be the requirement necessary to establish a certain road, his section of the county would compare with any in this part of the state.

To arrive at a plan whereby the proper data could be furnished the governor for his consideration, the chair appointed several committees from the various localities to estimate the amount of tonnage hauled and the number of families, a farm-to-market road would accommodate.

From Juliaetta highway district, Ira Fix, Oliver Clark and Jim Whalen were named; from Good Roads District No. 3, M. Mullalley, Frank Jones and Casper Tylden; Genesee Highway district, Henry Martinson, Jim Magee and Ben Johnson; Rimrock preeinct, John Kries, Gus Beechler and Wilson Archibald, and from the Lewiston Highway district, Geo. Carbuhn, D. Scharnhorst and Clarence Aherin.

The funds to be used in this proposed farm-to-market highway construction is in a special fund, created from savings in the engineering and maintenance divisions of the state highway department, and it is necessary, according to the information at hand, for the separate highway districts to be in position to match the state expenditure, either in cash or in a guaranteed assurance that the district's portion of the work will be completed.

Union Warehouse is a Model.

Cooperative Comment, a newspaper published by the North Pacific Grain Growers, Inc., in a recent issue carries a picture of the Genesee Union Warehouse and points out this structure as a model for other cooperatives in the Pacific Northwest.

GENESEE HIGH SCHOOL ON NORTHWEST ACCREDIT LIST

Supt. Suenkel has just received a letter from the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools notifying him that the Genesee high school has been fully approved by the association which has charge of accrediting high schools, colleges and universities of the states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Utah and Alaska. This association has accredited seven schools in Utah, two in Nevada, three in Alaska, forty-one in Oregon, twenty-two in Idaho and thirty-four in Montana. This accredit rating places Genesee on an equal footing with the leading high schools of the Pacific Northwest. Only two high schools of Latah county are accredited with the Northwest Association, Moscow and Genesee. Of the thirty-seven schools in Idaho checked by this association, only twenty-two have been fully approved.

That gives Genesee the highest rating obtainable in the northwest. Two hundred and thirty-three schools were checked in this territory, and of this number there were but one hundred fifty-nine which met the requirements.

Therefore, the people in and about Genesee have ample reason to be proud of their high school.

To Friends of Graduates

The general science class went on its annual field trip at 9 o'clock Wednesday. They visited the Moscow telephone automatic exchange and the mining and engineering departments of the University of Idaho. The purpose of the trip was to make a collection of leaves, insects, flowers and so forth.

STATE PRESIDENT FARMERS UNION WILL VISIT GENESEE

The following telegram was received from Jesse Vetter, state president of the Farmers Union:

"Will be with you Thursday night, May nineteenth. Notify secretary of this notice. Notify me if too late."

Upon receipt of the wire the secretary of the Genesee local began to notify members of the organization, as it is planned to have as many as possible present to meet the state president. The meeting is scheduled for 8 o'clock at the American Legion Hall, and every member of the Union is expected to be present.

Mr. Vetter's residence is at Coeur d'Alene.

SENATORIAL CANDIDATES MAY DEBATE ON LIQUOR

Boise—A statewide series of debates on prohibition was proposed Monday by Harry S. Kessler, Boise attorney and dry candidate for the democratic nomination for United States senator, in accepting the challenge of Dr. Owen T. Stratton, Salmon physician. Stratton is a wet candidate for the same office.

Stratton issued a challenge to Kessler yesterday, saying "although he disagrees with me on solution of the liquor question, he is at one with me regarding the question as of first importance." He offered to debate at any time, any place.

In a letter to Stratton, Kessler urged that debates be held in the south, Twin Falls section, southwest, and northern parts of Idaho.

"I would further suggest that for the enlightenment of the voters," he said, "that we invite our two rather foggy-minded opponents, Mr. Pope and Mr. Mix, to also participate and state their views on this subject; or if they do not choose to speak, I personally would be glad to have them present, so that we might possibly imbue them with some convictions on that subject."

He did not mention W. Orr Chapman, Twin Falls, candidate for the democratic nomination. Chapman and Mix advocate a referendum.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brown and son, Bobby, left Thursday to make their home at Tekoa, Wash.

Home from California.

Mrs. Ben Sather returned Tuesday from a two weeks trip to Southern California. While there she visited her daughters, Mrs. Mabel Hovland, Mrs. Emma Lou Allen, and Miss Olive Sather; and son, Norris Sather. Mrs. Sather enjoyed the trip very much and brings best wishes from a number of former Genesee people now living in California, who wish to be remembered to old-time friends. Mrs. Sather visited with the Art Hampton family and with Mr. and Mrs. Jim Jackson and their daughter, Mrs. Ben Martin. Mr. and Mrs. Sather are now at the ranch with their son, Allen.

HIGH SCHOOL SMOKER DRAWS ITS SECOND LARGE CROWD

Nothing remains to be said about the smoker sponsored by the high school Associated Students, at the gymnasium Saturday evening. It was the topic of conversation until early hours the following morning, and it all reflected most favorably on the promoters. Everyone was well satisfied and nowhere could a more interesting fighting card be found. It simply went over big.

This is the second smoker arranged by the Associated Students, and while the first was considered successful it was merely a forerunner of what was in store at the last affair. Opening with a tumbling act by the Ainslee Twins, girls, about nine years of age, no finer exhibition has ever been witnessed. The girls did everything in their repertoire, and were greeted by continual applause. They were by no means one of the lesser attractions.

To open the fistic encounters, six boys were placed in the squared ring, Richard Theuerkauff, Jim Springer, Bobby Smith, Chet Green, Floyd Hove and Glen Mayer. After the customary introduction the boys started their attack and the first two to go out were Hove and Mayer, which left Dresher paired with Theurerkauff, and Smith with Green. The two pairs battled furiously, but could not make sufficient headway for the elimination of either. A short rest was taken before the boys went to it again, but there appeared but little difference in the ability of any one, which, owing to the time being consumed, it was necessary to call it a draw.

Ralph Broemeling and Russell Rinehart, weighing in at about 150 pounds started the scrapping for the high school youngsters, the former receiving the decision. Broemeling constantly keep snapping his tantalizing left to Rinehart's forehead, and being the possessor of a much longer reach, kept Rinehart at long range. With two rounds of boxing, the boys came out in the third and gave a fine demonstration for the first minute, but at the sound of the bell, both boys were tired on their feet, and had not the strength to punish each other.

KENDRICK TO PLAY BALL IN GENESEE ON SUNDAY

The Colton K. C. ball team, which played here last Sunday offered but little opposition for the newly organized Genesee club, but for Sunday, May 15, Manager Fred Meyer says Genesee will have plenty of competition from the Kendrick invaders. This town usually has more strength early in the season, as many of the players are dropped, owing to the earlier harvest season. Genesee has in years past developed the strongest team about mid-season, when players are home from the University and when the weather is warmer. Sunday, the aggregation, although lacking form that is bound to come in the next few weeks, showed sufficient strength to warrant the support of fans. The crowd Sunday, while not as large as last year or in past years for the opening game, there were several other happenings which detracted from Sunday's attendance. The admission was lowered to 25 cents for adults, and it is thought that by playing all local men, all expenses will be met as they come up.

The starting lineup for Sunday, as given out by the management is as follows: Olsen, catcher; Jack Vandenburg, pitcher; Geo. Blume, first base; Ed Blume, shortstop; Cecil Gray, second base; Bob Kane or Skinny Weber, third base; Lefty Emmett, left field; Stub Geith, center and Les Gray at right field. Putnam and Danielson, will be on hand to take a part in the twirling as occasion demands, and Nelesieck will be held in reserve, to go into the game, with the change of pitchers. Besides these Klemm and Smylie will no doubt be given an opportunity to show their wares, as will Les Wishard.

Following the game here Sunday with Kendrick, the local aggregation will go to Troy May 22 and the week following meet either Lapwai or Troy here. An effort is being made to schedule two games with Uniontown and Lewiston Orchards, one of the games for Memorial day.

Last Sunday the players mentioned above won easily from Colton, every man in uniform going into the lineup at various stages of the game. The 8 to 0 win Sunday is no indication of the strength of the local club as little attention was paid to placing batters, the idea being merely to place the numerous men in positions where they were best suited, as will probably be the case during the game here with Kendrick. Colton held Genesee to about eleven scattered hits, but the many errors permitted the high score for the locals. Genesee, on defense, played very good ball, and really looks better as a defensive club rather than an offensive one. It may be that time is required for the players to get their eye on the ball. Such being the case, Genesee, with a fine week to practice, should be hitting a fast stride Sunday.

Genesee Valley Church.

There will be services Sunday at 9 o'clock. Rev. Arthur L. Swenson of Moscow will bring the message.

Sunday school at 10 o'clock.

LEGISLATIVE SESSIONS IN IDAHO DRAIN ON FINANCES

Law-making, as does most other governmental functions, comes higher these days than it used to, says Glenn Balch, writing on taxation, under direction of the Idaho state chamber rection fthe Idaho state chamber of commerce. Every two years the legislature convenes, holds a 60-day session during which it makes, repeals and amends the laws that govern our daily lives. The cost of these sessions is borne by the public purse.

The cost to the tax payers of these biennial gatherings of state senators and representatives has practically doubled during Idaho's 40-year period of statehood.

Expenses incidental to the first legislature, which met in 1891, totalled $46,500. The law-makers themselves received a salary at the rate of $5 per day for their services. The secretary of the senate and the chief clerk of the house received $7 per day; their assistants and the sergeant-at-arms were paid $6. The doorkeepers and clerks received $5; the janitors, $4; the messengers and pages $3; and the chaplains, $2.

Salaries Not Increased

It is noteworthy that this is one department of government in which salaries have not increased. The legislators and attaches of today receive practically, in many instances identically, the same compensation received by the law-makers and their helpers of the First session.

Despite this, however, we find that a grand total of $96,460 was required to pay the expenses of the 1931 session. In other words, it cost the taxpayers of Idaho slightly more than $1500 every day, including Sundays, that the legislature was in session.

In considering the increased expenses of the legislature it must be remembered that our present law-making body is much larger than that of 1891 and that government is a much more complex business.

First Session.

In 1891 there were 18 senators, one for each county, and 36 representatives, making a total of 54 members in all. At present, each of the new 44 counties has a senator, and the number of representatives has increased to almost 80. From these figures it becomes apparent that the current legislature wages is more than twice as much as it was in 1891.

Growth of the legislature has been gradual. In 1895 the numbers of senators was increased to 21, and the number of representatives to 49. One more representative was added to the list in 1903, and four years later two new counties necessitated two new chairs in the senate chamber.

Cause of Increase.

The increase in the size of our legislature can be directly attributed to our increase in population and to the late penchant in government circles for creating new counties. Under the constitution, every new county means an additional senator and each group of voters totaling a specified number must have a representative in the house.

If our legislature is, as some seem to believe, too large and unwieldly, the matter can be remedied by an amendment to the constitution. There is already a move under way for the consolidation of counties that will, if successful, reduce the size of the senate.

There have been in recent years two extraordinary sessions of the state legislature. One was called by Governor Baldridge in 1930 to consider imperative matters relative to the state's highways. It cost $12,000. The second special session was called by Governor Ross in 1931, immediately following adjournment of the regular session, to enact tax legislation. The appropriations for it totalled $16,000.

Portland Grain Exchange.

Portland: Wheat prices were slightly lower for the week, inspite of the constructive news. Under anything like normal conditions, the present wheat situation would attract outside interest and raise prices considerably, but confidence in futures seems lacking. Perhaps the greatest possible remedy would be less politics and more common sense in Washington.

Locally, interest this week was centered on the sale of 40,000 tons of wheat out of Vancouver, B. C., destined for Vladivostok, and the sale of 250 tons to move from the Columbia River to the United Kingdom. While this business is intrinsically small it denotes a more optimistic outlook for the Pacfic Northwest export business. With Soviet Russia definitely out of the picture as an exporter for the present and Liverpool prices gaining on local values, it is estimated that Europe will need to enter our markets before long. Australia and Canada have much smaller carryovers than last year and there are several months to go before new crop supplies are available.

Portland futures show net declines for the week as follows: May down ½ cent; July down 1-8 cent; September down 1 cent and December down 1 cent per bushel.

U. OF I. SUGGESTS SOY BEANS AS NEW A CROP FOR IDAHO

University of Idaho—Idaho farmers who are looking for a new crop, one that is adapted to the warmer sections of the state, should try soybeans, suggests H. W. Hulbert, agronomist at the University of Idaho agricultural station.

Soybeans, introduced from war-torn Manchuria, are used in Idaho for hay, seed, pasture and soiling. Since they are a legume they add nitrogen to the soil if properly innoculated, and as a cultivated crop, help in the eradication of weeds.

A long, warm growing season is absolutely essential. The crop can be grown in southern Idaho irrigated sections west of Cassia county, and in the northern Idaho areas adapted to corn and navy beans. Where corn does not mature, soybeans are not likely to be successful. Varieties adapted to Idaho require from 100 to 120 days to mature, entirely free from frost and cold weather.

Soybean hay is the equivalent of alfalfa in digestimle nutrients and palatibility. It is also equal to alfalfa for milk production if cut at the proper time and well cured. The crop should be harvested for hay shortly after the pods can be handled with ordinary hay-making machinery.

Areas deficient in midsummer pasture can be made to furnish a succulent green feed by means of soybeans. Midsummer is the time when this crop is at its best, when other forage crops are tough, woody, and past their prime. Hog producers will find soybeans ideal for pasturing off at maturity.

The seed is an excellent substitute for concentrates such as linseed oil and cottonseed meal, and can be fed in a grain ration by grinding. If the seed is grown for oil, the resulting meal is a high class protein supplement. A number of farmers have used the crop for soling, cutting it green and hauling it to livestock.

Varieties recommended as satisfactory for Idaho conditions are Minsoy, Ito San and Chestnut. Minsoy is especially adapted for sed production, and Chestnut and Manchu, the latter also a good variety, are best for hay.

Ito San and Manchu will furnish an abundance of green summer forage.

Soybeans respond to exactly the same practices as corn. Plant the crop when you would plant corn, in a well prepared, moist seedbed. Cost of the seeding is low, 7 to 12 pounds of seed being required for an acre, at 10 to 15 cents per pound. If possible, Idaho grown seed should be used, as it matures earlier and produces higher yields.

Tillage implements used for other cultivated crops are suitable for soybeans. The earlier cultivations may be with a harrow or rotary hoe. The last cultivation should be finished before the beans come into bloom. Some farmers use a combine in handling the seed crop. Others utilize the grain binder, mower, or bean puller with equal success.

"The Sowers"

Many are starting the new season with the same old Theme song—"I've got the blues." There has never been a year when this song had such a big run as it had last year. We wouldn't dare suggest for 1932 such a radical change as "Happy Days are Here Again," but we might get away with "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag and Smile, Smile, Smile." The writer isn't just sure what the "Old Kit Bag" looks like, but at least it should be fairly large if it is to hold all the troubles we'd like to lock up in it.—Spencer (Nebr.) Advocate.

Man Lost 26 Lbs. Looks 100% Better

Feels Stronger Than Ever

Just to prove to any doubtful man or woman that Kruschen Salts is the SAFE way to reduce — let us take the letter of Mr. F. J. Fritz of Cincinnati, Ohio, recently received.

He writes: "I've tried extreme dieting, setting-up exercises with very little results—but the results from Kruschen are almost incredible. In 3 months I reduced from 205 to 179 pounds and feel stronger than ever—no more wheezing or gasping for breath—friends say I look 100% better."

Bear in mind you fat man that there is danger in too much fat—try the safe way to reduce—one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning—cut down on fatty meats and sweets—one bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle—get it at the Genesee Drug Co. or any drugstore in the world.

UNIONTOWN FARM SELLS.

Lou and Otto Schwenne have just closed a deal, selling their 160-acre farm four miles east of Uniontown to John Moser of Colton. This is considered one of the best lying, strongest producing farms in that section. It has three fine springs, more or less meadow land, lots of big shade trees, hog-tight fences, fair improvements and is ideally situated for Mr. Moser's requirements. Mr. and Mrs. Moser, with their two children, bought it primarily for a bome, where they can dairy and raise livestock, as well as wheat. It is on a rock road, near a school, and within a mile of the Leon elevator. While the exact consideration was not given, it is understood to be approximately $70 an acre. It was a straight cash deal, no trade being involved. The deal was handled by G. F. Shirrod, realtor.

Guests at Comnick Home.

Following the Sunday morning services at St. John's Lutheran church, at which the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Comnick was baptized, the following guests were entertained for dinner at the Comnick home: Rev. and Mrs. Wolff and daughter, Verona, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Herman and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Reisemer and Gretchen, and Mr. and Mrs. Ira Crandall of Pullman, Wash.

Sunday Guests.

RESOLUTION.

WHEREAS, the Supreme commander of the Universe has, in his infinite wisdom, summoned from our ranks a highly esteemed Comrade, Donald L. Bressler; and whereas, the long and intimate relations with him have been temporarily severed, it becomes eminently befitting that we record our appreciation of him.

Therefore be it Resolved: That the sudden removal of the Comrade from our midst leaves a vacancy deeply realized by all members of the American Legion, and

Be it Further Resolved: That with deep sympathy for the bereaved relatives of the deceased, we express our hope that even so great a loss to all may be overruled for good by Him who doeth all things well.

And it is Further Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of Bielenberg-Schooler Post, American Legion, a copy printed in the Genesee News and a copy forwarded to the family of the deceased.

WHEAT MARKETS SLIGHTLY FIRMER; DEMAND IMPROVED

Grain markets strengthened slightly toward the close of the week ending May 6, influenced by light offerings and some improvement in demand, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Wheat turned firmer with the advance in security markets and the sale of several cargoes of Canadian wheat to Russia. Feed grains advanced as a result of lighter marketings and a material improvement in the shipping demand for corn.

Domestic Wheat Crops

Domestic winter wheat made generally favorable progress during the week except in western Nebraska and the western third of Kansas, where prospects are still poor. Private estimates May 1 indicated an outturn about the same as was officially forecast from conditions April 1. Abandonment was placed at over 14 per cent. European winter wheat conditions were somewhat variable. Reports from Germany indicated winter killing somewhat below normal, with the condition of the crop May 1 a little above average. Cool weather retarded growth in France and northern and central Italy. Seeding of winter wheat proceeded with generally favorable soil conditions in Argentina. Weather was also favorable for Fall seeding in Australia.

Spring wheat is getting a late start in both North America and Russia because of delayed seedings on account of wet soil. The moisture, however, favors growth when the weather becomes warmer. The Spring wheat crop in the U. S. made generally favorable progress during the week. Much of it was up to good stands and growing nicely in southern portions of the belt. Wet soil delayed seeding operations in Canada, but prospects for germination have been much improved throughout the Prairie Provinces. Seeding was well along at the close of the week in western Manitoba and southern Alberta, but just started in northwestern Saskatchewan and northern Alberta. Russian spring wheat seeding has been retarded by rains, but is somewhat ahead of last season, when it was very late. In the lower Volga region and northern Caucasus, the combined seedings totalled only 3,840,000 acres to April 25, compared with 3,983,000 acres last year and 10,958,000 acres two years ago to that date. Final Spring wheat acreage in these regions totaled 12,815,000 acres last year.

European Markets.

European wheat markets were about steady during the week, with native wheats quoted slightly higher than a week ago at important Continental markets. A new Spanish decree, permitting a total importation of 100,000 tons of wheat, with the duty to be adjusted every ten days to conform to changes in exchange. Importation however, is subject to approval of the ministry of agriculture.

Russia purchased five cargoes of Canadian wheat during the week for May and June shipment from Vancouver to Vladivostok. Black Sea shipments totaled nearly 600,000 bushels of wheat during the week, but included no Russian grain. Southern Hemisphere shipments continued of good volume, totaling 4,495,000 bushels from Australia. North American shipments were also fairly large and consisted principally of Canadian wheat.

Pacific Coast Markets.

Pacific Coast markets remained about unchanged. Trading in the Pacific northwest was dull and featureless, with demand light and offerings of small volume. While Spring wheat seeding in Washington and Oregon was delayed, crop conditions were reported mostly favorable. Marketings remained light, receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia river terminals totaling only 339 cars for the week. Demand was quiet and principally from local mills. Exporters were not actively in the market because of lack of export sales. One sale of 250 tons of wheat to the United Kingdom was reported at Portland, which was the first export business at that market for some time. Demand from California was slack with millers in that area taking only sufficient for immediate needs and feeders turning more to lower priced barley.

Guest of Mrs. Pauline Gehrke Sunday were: Mr. and Mrs. Dick Nebelsieck and family, George Gehrke, Mrs. John Flomer and family, Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Gehrke and family, Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gehrke, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Gehrke and daughter, Dorothy, Mr. and Mrs. Brooks and Miss Brooks of Lewiston.

You have the Squirrels

—and they are rapidly increasing in numbers every day—the damage which they will do cannot be estimated. Farm produce prices may he unreasonably low, but you can't afford to permit these destructive rodents to multiply. The damage they will do this spring and summer will be great, but it will not compare with the damage of their offspring next spring.

We have the poison

—Strychnine in any quantity you may desire—the most common dry weather squirrel poison—and it's effective too. .If you have not been using Strychnine, we will be glad to give you the directions for mixing and spreading.

Michelson's Kill-'em-Quick

Michelson's Kill-'Em-Quick, is a Squirrel Poison that is easy to mix and easy to handle. The poison is already mixed with other necessary ingredients—all you have to do is soak the grain over night and then mix in Michelson's Kill-'Em-Quick

Some of you may not be satisfied with poisoning results—Why not change the kind of grain you are now using. If you are using oats, change to wheat or some other grain.

MRS. JACOBINE HALVERSON.

Funeral services were held Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock at the Vassar chapel in Lewiston for Mrs. Jacobine Halverson, who passed away at her home at Clarkston. The deceased is a pioneer resident of Genesee, but since the death of her husband in 1911, she has been making her home with her children in Lewiston and Clarkston.

Deceased was born September 13, 1866 in Denmark, and came to the United States when 21 years of age. January, 1889, she married Halvor Halverson, and to this union eleven children were born, eight of whom survive, also fifteen grandchildren. The children are: Hans Halverson, Moscow; Ed and Audolph, Lewiston; Phillip, Clarkston; Mrs. Ida Biddison, Clarkston; Mrs. Marie Pelton, Lewiston, and Mrs. Anna Masse and Mrs. Carrie Cesmat, both of San Diego, Calif. The last two named were unable to be here for the funeral.

Clifford Olson is now farming the place on which the Halverson family lived and where the children were born.

Short services were held at 2 o'clock Wednesday at the Genesee Valley Lutheran church. Interment was in the cemetery there.

Entertains on Mother's Day.

Mrs. Mary D. Herman entertained Sunday for Mrs. Mary T. Herman and family and Henry Miller of Uniontown; Mr. and Mrs. Chris Scharnhorst and family and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Jenkins and family, and Louis Herman.

GRACE S. THOMAS, FORMERLY OF GENESEE PASSES AWAY

Miss Grace S. Thomas, office manager of the R. C. Beach company for the last ten years, and among the best known business women of Lewiston, died at St. Joseph's hospital at 10:30 o'clock Friday morning of a heart attack. She was taken to the hospital three weeks ago for a surgical operation and was reported improved. Death came with suddenness. She had been ill at alternate times for about five years.

Born at Kendrick, September 13, 1899, Miss Thomas received her early education at Colton and was graduated at the Springfield, Ore., high school. She taught school one term in Oregon. She came to Lewiston with her parents in 1918 and was employed in the First National bank . The family moved to Genesee two years later and Miss Thomas was employed at the First Bank of Genesee. In 1922 she accepted the position with the Beach company.

Miss Thomas was a member of the local lodge of Rebekahs and was active in the civic affairs of the city.

She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Thomas of Moscow, and two brothers, Fred Thomas and Walter Thomas, both of Portland.

Funeral services were held at the Vassar chapel at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, the Rev. Dr. E. F. Harold officiating. The room was filled with friends of Lewiston and several outside towns and the floral offerings were in abundance. Mrs. Vonley Miller gave the hymnal, accompanied by Mrs. Robert Wright, at the organ.

Interment was in the Normal Hill cemetery. The pallbearers were: Frank Fix, Everett Duff, Howard Wilson, Kermit Fitzgerald, Thomas Stedman and Lee Gilmore, employes of the R. C. Beach company.—Lewiston Tribune.

Piano Recital.

Mrs. W. M. Herman presented her high school students in a public recital at the high school auditorium Tuesday evening. The auditorium was filled, a large number of parents, friends and students attending. Those taking part were Fern Erickson, Dorothy and Kathryn Baumgartner, Verona Rosenau, Helen Thiessen, Kathleen Busch, Juanita Bowers, Eleanor Borgen, Vivian Olson, Marie Wagner, Edna Rosenau, Glenna Harris, George Smylie and Russell Rinehart. The last two named were the only boys taking part and although beginners, and making their first public appearance, their selections were much enjoyed. Russell played "Wooden Shoes," and "Petite Valse" and George played "On Dress Parade" and "Twilight." Later in the recital they appeared in a piano duet, playing "Il Trovatore."

An added feature of the program were two violin solos by Mrs. Arvilla Harris, accompanied by Arthur Schwarz, student at the University; and the ladies' chorus, composed of Mesdames John G. Meyer, E. H. Field, W. W. Burr, Eugene O'Conner, Arthur Springer, A. Alexander and Misses Esther Martinson and Bertha Nelson, accompanied by Mrs. Herman.

Mrs. Herman is presenting her grade pupils in a recital at the Congregational church Tuesday evening, May 17, at 8 o'clock.

It's very likely that cold suppers cause more divorces than cooling love.

There's a reason for the constantly increasing popularity of Chevrolet Cars. Ask some of the traveling men why their firms are now using Chevrolets. Come in and let us explain the reason to you.

"The water has rotted away the foundation timbers at my house," said a man who makes home brew. "And just think, there are still people who drink the stuff."

Now is a splendid time to fix up both inside and outside. It is a fine time to have the interior painting done and none too early to get started on the outside work. Our stock of Jones & Dillingham paints is complete in all colors. Talk over your paint problems with us, we are always willing and ready to help you.

CELEBRATED POET RELATED TO FORMER LOCAL JUSTICE

Edwin Markham, poet laureate of Oregon, and author of the poem, "The Man With the Hoe," whose birthday anniversary occurs Friday, May 13, is known to some of Genesee's pioneers through the man's brother, Dan Markham, a justice of the peace in the days when this town was first started. Dan Markham, deceased, is buried in the City cemetery, and no doubt there are several who will recall to memory this person.

The poet, Edwin Markham, was born in Oregon City in 1852, the parents being Samuel and Mary Winchell Markham, the mother being a writer of considerable verse published at Oregon City. In Edwin's boyhood his father moved the family to California, where the sons herded sheep, and the poet also worked at farming and blacksmithing, taught school and wrote "The Man with the Hoe," and several other poems. He then transferred his activities to New Brighton, New York, where he and Mrs. Markham have received many eminent British and American authors, and are to celebrate the poet's 80th birthday anniversary Friday, May 13.

Pacific coast daily newspapers have devoted much space to the life and works of Edwin Markham, comparing him with the greatest of British and American authors.

Written after seeing Millet's world-famous painting of a toiler in the abyss of labor, Edwin Markham records the following, "The Man with the Hoe":

Bowed by the weight of centuries he leans
Upon his hoe and gazes on the ground,
The emptiness of ages in his face,
And on his back the burden of the world.
Who made him dead to rapture and despair,
A thing that grieves not and that never hopes,
Stolid and stunned, a brother to the ox?
Who loosened and let down this brutal jaw?
Whose was the hand that slanted back this brow?
Whose breath blew out the light and within this brain?

Is this the Thing the Lord God made and gave
To have the dominion over sea and land;
To trace the stars and search the heavens for power;
To feel the passion of Eternity?
Is this the dream He dreamed who shaped the suns
And markt their ways upon the ancient deep?
Down all the caverns of Hell to their last gulf
There is no shape more terrible than this—
More tongued with cries against the world's blind greed—
More filled with signs and protents for the soul—

What gulfs between him and the seraphim!
Slave of the wheel of labor, what to him
Are Plato and the swing of Pleiades?
What the long reaches of the peaks of song,
Thru this dread shape the suffering ages look;
Time's tragedy is in that aching stoop
True this dread shape humanity betrayed,
Plundered, profaned and disinherited,
Cries protest to the Powers that made the world,
A protest that is also prophecy.

O masters, lords and rulers in all lands,
Is this the handiwork you give to God,
This monstrous thing distorted and soul-quencht?
How will you ever straighten up this shape;
Touch it again with immortality;
Give back the upward looking and the light;
Rebuild in it the music and the dream;
Make right the immemorial infamies,
Perfidious wrongs, immedicable woes?

O masters, lords and rulers in all lands,
How will the future reckon with this Man?
How answer his brute question in that hour
When whirlwinds of rebellion shake all shores?
How will it be with kingdoms and with kings—
With those who shaped him to the thing he is—
When this dumb Terror shall rise to to judge the world,
After the silence of centures?

THE LOW DOWN FROM BOISE.
(By A. F. Dooley Riddle)

Shall we attend affairs of state,
Or merely prestidigitate?

The most completely exploded theory of modern times is that which hold the present depression to be only psychological. But if you don't watch out Idaho democrats will prove it sound. The depression nourishes them and refreshes their souls.

Ramsey Walker, chairman of their "victory loan" drive, reports some county quotas actually raised. How could that be were not the lamp of hope burning brightly?

Dinners in endless series have been held from one corner of the state to the other, half the company at each being made up of the same formidable corps of democratic candidates. More irrefutable proof of light hearts and soaring hopes.

And Governor Ben still goes galloping about the state, christening cream separators and orating on "integrity in government," with the state tax burden the heaviest in all time.

Every democratic platform since 1918 denounced "cabinet" government —until 1930. Then Ross was elected and juggled with it himself. It would not be fair to say that he only expanded it. He made one consolidation. He has had his own secretary act as purchasing agent. That's just a matter of taking care of a few millions of dollars of purchases.

State house salaries had to be cut. Governor Ben confessed he was morally forced to do it. It just about spoiled his two years' fun.

Like their seer and prophet, Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Idaho democrats can't get down to the realities of this depression. For speaking purposes they loudly declare something ought to be done, but they haven't a ghost of an idea how to do it.

"Temporay success," says Byron Defenbach, "may be achieved by manipulation, by false promises, by diverting public thought from the real issues; but power so attained cannot long be held." Yes, it is more than likely to develop next November that the voters of Idaho haven't entered sympathetically into this merry farce.

They'll say:

"It's been a nice show, Ben—and still
You haven't helped us foot the bill."

Marriage and Divorce in Idaho.

Washington, D. C.—The bureau of the census announces that, according to the returns received, there were 2,263 marriages performed in Idaho during the year 1931, as compared with 4,497 in 1930, representing a decrease of 2,234 or 49.7 per cent, due in part to a change made in the marriage laws effective March 16, 1931, which requires an interval of 5 days to elapse between the application for a license and the granting of the same. In 1922, there were 4,138 marriages performed.

During the year 1931 there were 961 divorces granted in the State, as compared with 997 in 1930, representing a decrease of 36 or 3.6 per cent. In 1922, there were 844 divorces in Idaho. There were 16 marriages annulled in 1931, as compared with 18 in 1930.

The estimated population of the state on July 1, 1931, was 446,000, and on July 1, 1930, 445,000. On the basis of these estimates, the number of marriages per 1,000 of the population was 5.1 in 1931, as against 10.1 in 1930; and the number of divorces per 1,000 of the population was 2.15 in 1931, as against 2.23 in 1930.

The number of marriages was furnished by the state department of public welfare and the number of divorces by the clerk of the district court of each county. The figures for 1931 are preliminary and subject to correction.

Twin Falls county leads in the number of marriages in 1931 with 194 and Owyhee is low with only two. In 1930 Kootenai county was easily the leader in the number of marriages with 515, and finished third in 1931 with 167, Ada and Bannock counties going into a tie for second place with 171 each.

Ada county takes the "Reno" honors without a close contender, 154 couples splitting up in 1931 and 145 in 1930 tiring of each others affections or lack of it. Valley county married people were apparently content during 1931, as there are no divorces recorded; in 1930 five couples severed relations through the courts.

Clark, Oneida and Adams counties record one divorce each for 1931; Clark county, however, had no family troubles of consequence in 1930, there being no court records of divorces.

Latah county's matrimonial ventures in 1931 suffered in lack of numbers, there being only 58 marriages recorded for that year as against 174 in 1930. Divorces dropped to 7 in 1931, compared with 11 for 1930. Two marriages were annulled in 1930, and last year there was but one.

HIGH SCHOOL SMOKER DRAWS ITS SECOND LARGE CROWD

Grieser and Boyd Jacobs in their three one-minute set-to. Leather fairly smoked when these two midgets went into action, but the best either could do was a draw. There was not an idle moment in this go.

Glenn Erickson in his three round fracas with George Smylie, came back in the final stanza to even up what looked like a decision for Smylie. In the opening round Smylie stepped quickly into the lead, and keeping Erickson on the offensive, dealt several punishing blows to the upraised chin of Erickson. The second was more even, but Smylie continued to hold a lead, but in that third round, Erickson, more cautious in leading, drew Smylie in as the aggressor, and soon wiped out any advantage either may have had. Both boys went down during their exhibition, and of the less experienced fighters, these two boys appeared to be in the best condition. The decision was a draw.

Bertie Wishard and Ralph Broemeling were blind folded and helped into the ring to deal out punishment to one another, whenever located. It was necessary to employ hniters to bring the boys into action and draw them together. Whenever contact was made, it usually meant that the boys would go into a death grip and carry themselves to the floor.

Gene Grieser found Billy Edwards a bit tougher at their recent meeting than before, yet he managed to come out with a draw after touching the canvass three times in as many rounds. These youngsters are both two-handed and bore in at every opportunity.

Lefty Emmett got by in fine shape during the first round in his match with Gus Miller, but was soon solved in the second and third rounds. Blood flowed freely in this match from both sides, but the boys continued goodnaturedly to land blows on body and face. Emmett went down in the second round, but was up before the referee could start his counting. The decision was a draw, and the fight was one of the best.

The barrel fight between Flamoe and Dresher furnished plenty of excitement, the latter winning by pushing Flamoe over three times in succession. Both went down four times together, and each time they entered their barrels to start over again.

The judges awarded a decision to Ken Olson over Donald Dye in their three-round battle. Olson at the sound of the bell rushed a blow to Dye's face, but was quickly tied up on the ropes. These boys went at it fast and furious, Olson showing much better form than at the first smoker. His blows were not directed from long range, and his footwork was also better. Dye was the aggressor after the opening exchange of blows and continually forced Olson to the ropes, fighting with Olson against the barrier most of the time. Dye may have been dazed slightly in the opening round, but finished with no more signs of fatigue than Olson. The decision should have been a draw.

In the semi-finfinal event, Whitcomb of Lewiston outpointed and outfought his opponent, Red Driskill of Moscow, opening a cut over the latter's right eye in the first round. The cut bled profusely and failed to respond to caustic treatment. Driskill was missing with his power punches, and was forced at numerous times to fall into a clinch to become stable. Whitcomb's left was damaging and his right was equally effective. Driskill was game however, and continued to take punishment for the three two-minute rounds. Whitcomb gave a remarkable demonstration of the fistic art and there now exists the thought that he might be a match for the older Driskill. Whitcomb was given the decision, after winning every round.

The final bout between Ardie Driskill, Moscow, and Chas. Litchfield, Lewiston, proved several things, chief of which was, that Ardie is a real scrapper. Litchfield chose to mix it freely at the sound of the bell for the first round, but shortly drew up at body's length on the canvass for the count of four. Becoming wary of Driskill, Litchfield was more cautious but at each attempt to force Driskill he was met with a barrage of lefts and rights, which he chose for the subject of a dream as he lay on the canvass, to be carried off before the first round was complete. Litchfield weighed in at 147 and Driskill at 148 but the slight difference in weight was multiplied many times in the effectualness of Driskill, who as the headliner on the card, clearly demonstrated his right to hold that position.

This smoker was conducted under a state charter issued to Lewiston men, and met with all requirements of the state athletic commission.

Habit is a pecular thing. For instance, we still lock the safe when we leave the office at night, just as in the good old days.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

At the republican primary election held in Latah county last Saturday, Roosevelt won over President Taft by five-to-one.

A class of five young men will graduate from the Genesee high school this year. The commencement will be May 19, and the address will be by Prof. Edward M. Hulme of the University of Idaho. The baccalaureate sermon will be at the Congregational church, May 12, by Rev. E. M. Patterson. The class play, "A Frightful Dilemma," will be given May 16 and because of the fact that there are no girl graduates, the teachers were called upon to assist the boys. The five young men who will receive their diplomas are John H. Wardrobe, Andrew C. Wardrobe, Robert Montague, Loren Babcock and James Keane.

Linger Longer Club.

Mrs. Harry Schooler entertained the Linger Longer club Wednesday afternoon. The ladies enjoyed a social afternoon, which was followed by refreshments. Mrs. Ben Jain will be the next hostess.

Afternoon Party.

Mrs. Hannah Swenson was hostess Friday afternoon at a party in honor of her house guests, Mrs. Juels Swenson, Seattle, and Mrs. J. C. Slater, Tacoma. Besides the two out-of-town guests, there were present, Mrs. D. W. Aherin, Mrs. Ed Erickson, Mrs. George Erickson, and Mrs. Dick Green.

Progressive Club.

Mrs. Ruth Perkins entertained the Progressive club last Thursday with a 1 o'clock luncheon and a social afternoon. Next Thursday Mrs. Elmer Vanouck will be hostess.

VOL. XLIII GENESEE, LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, MAY 20, 1932 NO. 48

FARM-TO-MARKET ROADS OUTLINED SATURDAY NIGHT

Committees which were appointed Saturday, May 17, to study farm-to-market roads adjacent to Genesee, reported at a meeting held Saturday evening, May 14 at the Legion hall. Five committees were named at the first meeting, and at the second meeting E. L. Dawson and others presented an application for the sixth project to be considered.

John G. Meyer, previous to the meeting appointed a central committee, its membership being, himself, Clyde Manning, Ed Smelt and George Morscheck, who would assemble the reports of the various committees for presentation to state engineers, who it was announced, would be in Genesee within ten days from the last meeting to travel over the proposed projects, make their surveys, which will enable them to present to the Governor the most feasible proposition. Farm-to-market roads are being constructed, it is understood, by funds derived from savings in the engineering and maintenance divisions of the department of public works, the various districts cooperating with the state.

The central committee as appointed, was approved unanimously by the various committees present.

Several of the committees came well prepared with data on mileage, tonnage which would travel a certain road and the number of people it would serve if constructed. This information required considerable time for presentation, but with the interest manifested by the various highway and good roads districts in and around Genesee, a number of people went over some of the proposed improvement projects Sunday to obtain additional information and study the worthiness of each road, and to make a preliminary survey.

At the last meeting it was stated that the selection of the road to be improved would be entirely up to the state engineering department, and those present were asked to refrain from criticism should they meet with disappointment for the time being. The funds with which to build farm-to-market roads are limited, said Ed Smolt, who made the plea for fairness, declaring that the amount mentioned previously was available, and those who could present a project which will meet with the Governor's approval will no doubt be the fortunate ones as far as having a farm-to-market road.

As soon as the engineers arrive in Genesee, it was announced that the various committees would be notified and would have an opportunity to present all information available to them which would assist them in arriving at a definite conclusion.

ATTORNEY GENERAL RULES ON CANDIDATES' PROMISES

An Associated Press Dispatch from Boise under date of May 14 brought to an abrupt end the practice of promising by candidates to accept a cut in salary. The dispatch reads as follows:

"Any candidate offering to serve for less than the salary fixed by law for the office he is seeking is criminally liable and disqualified for holding office, Attorney General Fred J. Babcock declared today in an opinion interpreting provisions of the 1931 primary law.

"The opinion was written for R. E. Leitch, prosecuting attorney of Payette county, who asked whether 'promise by a candidate for elective office to discharge his duties for less than the salary fixed therefore,' constitutes a violation of the corrupt practices act.

"In reply the attorney general quoted court opinions from nearly a dozen states which he declared made it very clear that such a proposal was, in effect, offering a bribe to the electorate."

LEGION TO OBSERVE MEMORIAL

Monday, May 30, Memorial Day, will be observed by the American Legion, it was determined at the meeting Wednesday evening. A program at the park in the morning, after which all ex-service men will go to the several cemeteries and decorate the graves of deceased ex-service men, which includes those of the late World War, Spanish American war, and Civil War.

Arrangements will be completed in time for announcement next Thursday.

Sunday, May 29, all former service men are asked to meet at the Legion hall at 9:30 and from there go to the cemeteries to assist in cleaning up around the graves.

District Commander Rawls of Lewiston was present at the meeting and other member of the district organization. Lunch of ice cream and cake was served at the close of the meeting by Joe Anderson and Fred Hove.

Baccalaureate Services

Baccalaureate services were held at the gymnasium Sunday evening, with the Rev. N. E. Beach, delivering the sermon to the graduates, and a large assembly of parents and friends of the class. Rev. Fr. Carey gave the invocation and benediction.

Marching into the hall the twelve seniors were accompanied by Supt. E. S. Suenkel, Paul Parks, Miss Ruth Anderson and Miss Thelma Melgard, instructors in high school, who were seated before the stage. Miss Kathryn Baumgartner played the processional.

Rev. Beach, in his sermon, stressed the importance of preparedness for the life now confronting the seniors, explaining that while some lines of endeavor required more preparation than others, the higher the occupation the greater the need for preparation. In selecting a vocation in the future, the speaker also said the seniors were now at the crossroads, and admonished them to refrain from taking the path of least resistance, but in whatever direction they chose to go, to take with them a belief in the Lord.

Registration Closes May 21

The last day for registration of voters is May 21, the books closing at 9 p. m. that day. Those who have not registered are urged to register at once. Mrs. L. C. Hayden is registrar for Genesee precinct.

Parents of Son.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Broemmeling Sunday, May 15.

CANDIDATES WARMING UP IN THE POLITICAL ARENA

As the time draws near for Idaho's primary election, candidates on both parties are becoming active, seeking to inform the electorate of their qualifications for the respective offices.

Heading the republican ticket J. Wesley Holden, candidate for United States senator has been giving much time in an attempt to gather more votes than his worthy opponent, John Thomas, who chose to remain in the national capital rather than campaign before the primary. In this race Holden is undertaking a strenuous job, and it may be that voters will wish to take their chances on a man they already know, rather than initiate a new member of the senate at this time.

Burton L. French will experience no opposition for congress in the first district as no one registered against him from the republican ranks.

Byron Defenbach, candidate for governor, is given a clear field in his race, although the number of votes he will receive will be an indication of his strength in the coming general election.

C. A. Bottolfsen, is a lone candidate for lieutenant governor on the republican ticket, and it is safe to phophesy that he will not only win at the primaries but also at the general election. Though young in years, his experience in the legislature gives him a big advantage over his democratic opponent.

T. Bailey Lee and Bertram S. Varian have no visible opposition in the primaries, as there are two to be elected, but from the younger men the democrats have chosen two very likely winners in the general election.

Lukens, republican candidate for secretary of state, one of the big vote gatherers in Idaho, has opposition at the primaries in the persons of W. W. Deal.

E. G. Gallet, Geo. G. Barrett and Fred J. Babcock, republican candidates for the offices of state auditor, state treasurer and attorney general, respectively, will ride to an easy victory without opposition.

Myrtle R. Davis, present incumbent of the office of state superintendent of public instruction, an office which under the convention system, has almost always gone to a woman, this election must meet Nina E. Steunenberg, and around this office centers a campaign that will be interesting to watch. The outcome will be one affecting the appointive office of commissioner of education, the present commissioner and Mrs. Davis, not being on any too friendly terms.

Stewart Campbell is unopposed for state mine inspector on the republican ticket.

Burton C. Rowe, present senator in the Idaho legislature from Latah county, is without opposition this year, but he is conducting his campaign now for the Fall election.

Alfred S. Anderson and Thomas A. Feeney are practically nominated as representatives for Latah county, as there are two to be elected, and it is improbable that any opposition will be manifested.

Harry M. Dailey and Elmer Travis choose to run for the same office, that of county commissioner from the first district, which comprises the northern portion of the county. One will be nominated.

Rudolph E. Nordby, present commissioner from the second district, and chairman of the board of county commissioners, has as his opponent in the person of John T. Baken.

Geo. C. Hoidal, present commissioner from the third district finds as his opponent from that district John L. Woody, former county commissioner and a former chairman of the board.

J. H. Felton will be compelled to divide the total vote cast for county attorney with Abe Goff and Adrian Nelson, there being three candidates seeking the nomination on the republican ballot. Goff is the present incumbent.

Ira W. Larkin, Potlatch, running on the republican ticket, at the primaries will oppose Charlie Summerfield, who now holds that office.

Leola R. King, for the first time in several elections meets Clara B. Wethered as a candidate for nomination for the office of county treasurer.

L. G. Peterson is unopposed for probate judge on both tickets.

Ellen Peterson present incumbent as superintendent of county public schools is this year meeting opposi-

TIMBER FIRE PROTECTION APPROPRIATION IS $150,000

In 1913 a new item of expense appeared among the state appropriations. It was entitled "timber fire protection" and the amount of the appropriation was $36,000. Eighteen years later, we find, this appropriation grown to $150,000, says Glenn Balch, writing under the direction of the state chamber of commerce. The per year average increase was $6333.

In other words a governmental function which did not hac its inception until the state was 23 years old will cost the tax payers $150,000 this biennium. That explains, to a certain extent at least, why expenses of government have increased.

Timber Valuable

However, it is well, before we begin to criticize, to go deeper into the records and determine if possible what lies behind the timber fire protection appropriation and what justification there is, if any, of this expenditure.

Idaho, on becoming a state and at other times, received large land grants from the federal government to hold in trust for our public schools, universities and colleges, and penal and charitable institutions. On these lands there was, and is, standing timber of considerable value.

Fire Destructive

Fire, as citizens of Idaho have good reason to know, is one of timber's most destructive enemies. Fire hazards, also, are materially increased by human occupation of the woods for industrial and recreational purposes.

Quite naturally, the state of Idaho, as trustees of the school land grants, could not stand idly by while the value of the property was being heavily depreciated by forest fires. Therefore the timber fire protection fund was created and the money used to protect state-controlled timber.

Sales Show Profits

For some idea of the value of these timber holdings, let us quote statistics from the state land department. In 1925 and 1926 the returns to the various school funds from timber sales totalled $541,782.25. The fire protection appropriation that year was $90,000. The 1927-1928 returns were $327,296.50; while the appropriation was $100,000. In 1929-1930, a year of unusually light lumber demand, the sales totalled $256,846.

A still more significant figure is that of the total value of all school-grant timber sales up to October 1, 1930. This value is $4,458,560.07, representing the timber disposed of on an area of 286,870 acres.

The state still holds in trust some 700,000 acres of timber land. A considerable portion of it is located in the valuable white pine sections of northern Idaho; other areas lie in the western yellow pine belts. Denser population and heavier recreational use of the forested areas have resulted in increased fire hazards and necessitated a corresponding increase in the costs of prevention and suppression.

No public-minded citizen would urge that these timber holdings be left unprotected; but our present condition of financial annoyance dictates that such protection should be accomplished at the smallest possible cost.

Cost Per Acre

In protecting the timber property it controls, the state works through the various timber protective associations, of which there are six in northern Idaho and one in the southern part of the state. The state has the status of a private member in the associations and participates in their respective districts. For operating expenses, the state is assessed on a per acre basis, as are the other association members.

On the face of this arrangement, it appears that the state is securing its timber protection services at a cost on a par with that of private owners, which argues for thrift and economy.

In passing, it might be said that a large portion of the $150,000 fire protection appropriation granted by the 1931 legislature was expended during the disastrous season of last summer, leaving but very little ready cash with which to face the second half of the biennium.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S RULING.

The News is in receipt of the complete ruling by Attorney General Babcock, relative to promises by candidates offering to discharge official duties for less than the salary fixed. It was received too late for publication, but those wishing to read it may call at this office.

BASEBALL DANCE.

Advertising has now been out several days for the big baseball benefit dance for May 26 at the high school gymnasium, and everyone is talking of the good time in store for those who like real good music, novelties, and a good time. Barney Malerich's Tennessee, has been engaged for this event, and nothing will be spared to make it a dance to be remembered. Dancing will continue until 1 o'clock.

This dance is the one scheduled by the firemen for a month ago, but owing to conflicting dates at the time it was postponed. The first firemen's dance was the most successful this year, and many requests have been received, asking that the firemen have a second affair, which they are doing, except that the proceeds will go into the baseball fund, with which to go toward paying for the uniforms and equipment purchased this spring.

EIGHTH GRADE GRADUATION EXERCISES HELD WEDNESDAY

Pupils graduating from the eighth grade chose as their motto this year, "One Step at a Time, But Forward." Those receiving diplomas Wednesday evening at the high school gymnasium were: St. Joseph's school, Lawrence Hasfurther, Lewellen Bershaw, Constance Miller, Margaret Reisensuer and Winifred Jacobs; Genesee public school, Gretchen Reisemer, Glen Mayer, Grant Loncosty, William Baker, Harold Suenkel and Emma Louise Vanouck, teacher, Mrs. Avilla Harris. From District No. 3, Arthur Warneke, Leonard Werneke and Justine Scharbach, teacher, Dan Hager; District 67, Marie Kluss, teacher, Miss Marian McComb; District No. 29, Rose Krick, teacher, Miss Agnes Warlick; District No. 64, Eldora Taylor, teacher, Miss Cecelia Dwyer and from District No. 16, in Nez Perce county, Marian Holben and Ernest Theuerkauff, Miss Marian Atkins, teacher.

The following program was presented:

Music, by the Genesee school orchestra, under the direction of Mrs. Arvilla Harris.

Greeting to parents and graduates, Supt. E. S. Suenkel.

Recitation, Eldora Taylor, Dist. 64.

Class History, Lewellen Bershaw, St. Joseph's school.

"Mothers Party Dress," Grace Jutte, District 29.

Recitation, Alfred Werneke, District 3.

Music by the orchestra.

School Prophecy, Winifred Jacobs and Constance Miller, St. Joseph's school.

Recitation, Wayne Jutte.

Valedictory, Emma Louise Vanouck, Genesee public school.

Remarks by Miss Ellen Peterson, county superintendent of schools, who also presented the diplomas.

Music by the orchestra.

MUSIC RECITAL.

Mrs. W. M. Herman presented her grade pupils in a music recital at the Congregational church Tuesday evening. Pupils taking part were Bouletta Nordby, Cicily Ann Herman, Dorothy Follett, Marjorie Rose Springer, Della Stout, Irene Baumgartner, Betty Lou Burr, Margaret Springer, Maxine Lange, Rowena Nordby, Donald Emerson and Neyva Erickson.

Assisting in the program were Roberta and Jacqueline Post and Nita DeVore, who sang, "My Beautiful Doll" and by Marie Hoorman, Della Stout, Inga Dinson, Shirley Kleweno and Marjorie Rose Springer, in two songs, "Walking Up the Green Grass," and "In Wooden Shoes." They were accompanied at the piano by Glenn Harris and Vivian Olson.

The string trio, composed of Neyva Erickson, Beuletta Nordby and Betty Lou Burr, accompanied by Margaret Springer at the piano was also very much enjoyed.

PUTNAM EFFECTIVE AGAINST KENDRICK; GENESEE WINS

Putnam, striking out nine of the seventeen men to face him in the last five innings of the ball game here Sunday with Kendrick, blasted the hopes of the visitors. Four Kendrick batters reached first while he was on the mound, three hitting over the infield, the other on an error at third.

Anderson, who pitched his first game in the past ten years ago, struck out five men in the first three innings and Jack Vandenburg who relieved him, struck out one man. Vandenburg was taken from the game after an injury to his ankle when he fell going into first.

Three errors on Genesee in the opening inning gave Kendrick its lone run of the game, Genesee scoring 14 runs during the free-hitting stride the players found early in the game.

Olson was the heavy man on the stick for Genesee, getting three hits in five trips.

Every available player was permitted to show his wares again Sunday, and judging from the strength of the first string lineup, Genesee has more than an even chance of winning most of its games this summer.

Sunday the club goes to Troy and on the following Sunday Troy returns the game.

The schedule as now arranged is as follows:

May 22— Troy at Troy.
May 29—Troy here.
May 30—Uniontown here.
June 5—Kendrick at Kendrick.
June 12—Uniontown at Uniontown.
June 19—Julietta here.
June 26—Julietta at Julietta.
July 10—Potlatch at Potlatch.
July 17—Potlatch here.

It may be interesting to fans to know that relations in baseball have been resumed with Uniontown, the first game to be here Memorial Day. Both clubs are playing all home men and the outcome of each game should be more even than before. Win or lose, the fans will have a treat Memorial day.

Negotiations are already being made for games on July 3 and 4. Walt Allen is seeking teams to play in a two-day tournament at Helmer, and Lewiston no doubt will have a tournament for the holiday.

GEORGE E. ERB, LEWISTON, TO SPEAK HERE MONDAY

George Morscheck and Ed Smolt at a late hour Wednesday announced that George E. Erb, Lewiston, would be one of the principal speakers at a democratic meeting at the Cozy theatre Monday evening, May 23, at which time state and county issues would be discussed. The meeting is open to everyone.

Other speakers will be Lieutenant Gov. G. P. Mix, candidate for the United States senate; W. L. Kerner, Moscow, democratic candidate for the state senate; William Smith, Deary, candidate for state representative, a running mate of Fred Hove's; David Ross, candidate for the democratic nomination as superintendent of public schools in Latah county, also of Deary; Jim Wilson, county chairman for the democratic party; Gladys H. Olson, democratic candidate for county treasurer, and several other candidates on the democratic ticket, who have not as yet made definite arrangements for being here Monday evening.

OLD-TIME RESIDENT DIES.

Mrs. W. R. Hickman received word Monday of the death of Thos. H. Day, at 3 o'clock Sunday morning, at his home in Spokane.

Mr. Day had been ill with Brights' Disease, and was confined to his bed since last November. He was 69 years of age. His family was among the first residents of Genesee, leaving here for Spokane 25 years ago.

Mrs. Day is an aunt of Mrs. Hickman.

THE LOW DOWN FROM BOISE.

(By A. E. Dooley Riddle)

Fateful Day

What of ye 24th of May,
Upon us now? O, what to say
To all ye patriots, anent
This noble, ah, experiment?

How time has flown! Next Tuesday is circus day in Idaho. Four out of five hitherto indefatigable "Victory dinner" orators soon go back and get acquainted with home cooking again.

It is the private opinion of this witness that of all those who love their land and state enough to take active part in politics, three-fourths believe in their secret hearts that primaries are bunk but that it is equivalent to high treason to say so.

In Boise, Payette, Driggs, St. Maries (or pick any spot on the may, blindfolded) republican parsons are pleading with thir flocks not to get into the wrong pew next Tuesday—and the democratic dominies are preaching the same text. Depending on locality and complexion of local tickets, accusations of skullduggery are flying. And there's nothing anybody can do about it.

This pulpit has no advice, therefore, except: "Vote in the primary, durn ye, and then take your medicine."

Just between us girls, though, even if it is treason, we can say the whole circus is mostly sideshow because we all know the only real scrap is between Byron and Ben, who are already bandaging their knuckles in readiness for the gloves.

Parker Carver launched out last week to check payrolls of highway contractors in south central Idaho, ostensibly to see that local labor is favored. That's good politics. It just occurs to us, though, that if Parker survives this term of office he'll have to take next year off and catch up in sleep. He's private secretary to the governor, state purchasing agent, administration information bureau, and Ben's only consolidator and overhead saver.

CANDIDATES WARMING UP IN THE POLITICAL ARENA

tion, in the person of Edith Adriansen, who has been teaching in the Juliaetta schools.

D. C. Burr who filed as a candidate for the office of County assessor, is opposed by Walter Q. Taylor.

H. R. Short is unopposed for coroner and although successful as he will be at the primaries, will have democratic opposition at the general election.

Democratic Slate.

It will be necessary indeed to hold a primary election to decide the candidate for nomination as United States senator, there being five aspirants for this office, all apparently confident of election. Here centers the most-contested office on either ticket, and there is also greater possibilities of disappointment. Only one senator is to be elected this year. Orr Chapman, Twin Falls; Harry S. Kessler, Boise; G. P. Mix, Moscow; James P. Pope, Boise, and Dr. Owen T. Stratton, Salmon City, place their names before the electorate to decide who shall represent the democratic party at the primaries. Chapman is without doubt the orator of the quintette, and a believer in the rights of an individual to personal rights; he also favors each person having his own say on the "wet" problem. Harry Kessler, the last to enter the race, is an avowed dry and challenged Dr. Stratton to a debate on the question of prohibition, Stratton being for a repeal of the eigtheenth amendment. Gainford Mix says he will follow the dictates of his followers and the people of Idaho, and while neither wet nor dry, favors a referendum. Pope is non-committal on the question, but he will be influenced to some extent by Ada county from which political subdivision he will receive his strongest support.

George A. Meffan, Cecil R. Peckham and Compton I. White each is of the belief that he should represent the first district in congress. This difference of opinion, however, will be decided in the battle of ballots, and they will finish in the order in which named.

C. Ben Ross will be a lone entry for the gubernatorial appointment as candidate for governor, Barzilla Clark having scratched his name on the eve of the final date for filing for office.

George E. Hill and Victor Peterson furnish a two-man event in the race for lieutenant governor.

Francis M. Bistline and Edwin M. Holden are conceded by some democrats to be in waiting for the nomination as a member of the supreme court bench, W. M. Morgan being given first position, with Emery A. Owen out of the picture entirely. The two first named are the young men of the quartette seeking the two-man jobs on the bench; Morgan has the edge on Owen by being better known. It remains to be seen who will be elected. Politicians fare better oftentimes when not so well known.

O. E. Bossen, Franklin Girard and W. W. Goble enter the race for the democratic nomination as secretary of state. Little is known of either of this trio, and of all the candidates proposed for any of the offices, chance will play a leading part.

Harry C. Parsons, Myrtle P. Enking, Bert H. Miller and Retta F. Martin are certain of a berth on the democratic special as it rolls into November for the general fracas. They seek the offices of state auditor, state treasurer, attorney general and state superintendent of public instruction, respectively.

Two men seek the office of state mine inspector on the democratic ballot May 24, W. G. Huseman and W. H. Simons.

While there is usually more interest manifested in county offices, especially where there is a contest, than on the state ticket, Latah democrats have the opportunity of lining up with one of two candidates for the nomination for state senator. Walter A. Fiscus was the first to file for this office and W. L. Korter was persuaded to enter the contest in opposition.

Fred Hove and William Smith are assured of the nominations for state representatives on the democratic ballot. Two are to be elected at the general election.

James H. Blane, present commissioner from the first district is opposed by C. C. Williams, while I. E. Snow from the second district and Walter Driscoll from the third district are without opposition in the primaries.

No one has filed for sheriff on the democratic primary ballot, the race to be between Summerfield and Larkin on the republican side.

Ivanella Lieuallen and Gladys H. Olson are out for the nomination as county treasurer nomination, democratic.

David Ross, one of the first to file for any office in Latah county, has chosen to seek the nomination as county superintendent, democratic, and finds as his opponent, Mrs. Hattie Swofford.

A. K. Carlson and Charles A. Meyer are on the lonesome corner of the democratic ballot, seeking the nomination as county assessor and coroner, respectively.

The time for registration expires Saturday evening, May 21, only two more days. A heavy registration is being reported over the entire county, the democrats making a strong bid for the selection of the strongest candidates. The talk of one party entering the other's primary, may materialize in some Idaho counties, but locally, the two major parties are going to stick pretty close to party lines. Two years ago there were few precincts which held democratic primaries, but this year there is a different attitude, due mostly to the new direct primary election law, and a desire to strengthen the democratic party being that Idaho has a chief executive of that political faith.

The WASHINGTON WATER POWER CO.

THE CLASS OF THIRTY-TWO.

Here I am, do you all see me?
I see you're look kind a'dreamy.
What's wrong? You aren't tired yet?
Wait till to the end we get.
I'll now say what I'm gonna do;
I'll tell you all about the class of Thirty-two—
The big boy in this class is Suenkel,
The Boss, the teacher and the friend;
His class in high school is the smartest,
Which they will be till the end.

And now the students—thirteen of em;
I shall go by alphabet—

Here is George Blume, first of all;
In football he stands just like a wall;
He got A's throughout the year;
His girl's name as third will appear.

Wilson Esser—what a man,
He must be eating Kellogg's Bran;
He's strong and husky and is tall;
His volume is twice that of Paul.

Burniece Gibbs, the beauty queen,
Brings honor to the Gold and Green.
For she is smart and she is bright,
In looks, you know, she is allright.

Richard Harris, too, is smart
And else he must have quite a heart.
To take seven subjects all the year,
Is working limit, pretty near.

And here is Marguerite Kluss
Who used to be in love with Russ;
She too, is smart; she's got to be,
Or she wouldn't me a Senior, see!

Esther Kries is quite a dame;
On the stage brings Seniors fame;
Her eyes are black as black can be,
Which looks so cute, Believe you me!

Marvin Miller, too is here
Representing Pine Grove's near;
He lives together with Clyde Sweet,
And plays the violin so sweet.

Russell Rinehart is a funny guy;
Before the audience he's never shy;
In school he makes the pupils rave;
From him the teachers are never safe.

Here's Pearl Springer, above them all
For he is more than six feet tall;
His fun is working in the gym;
It seems to me, this makes him slim.

Erich Steiniger from Germany
Is always working "wie noch nie."
His favorite pastime's playing chess
Which he plays good, I must confess.

Herbert Steiniger is quite a man;
Drawing is his favorite fan;
He likes to tell the boys a riddle,
But enjoys himself most with his fiddle.

Clyde Sweet is a baching man;
I heard he's good with a wrying pan;
Washing dishes—I don't know;
I don't think he likes that so.

Marie Wagner—last—not least,
Helps beautify the Senior feast.
Her smiles bring cheer to ev'ry one;
She brings the Seniors lots of fun.

And now the colors of the class,
First is green as green as grass,
With gold as dandelions are;
This to see don't go so far.

For ev'ry lawn smiles at you bold,
Saying, "this is the green and gold."
A nice job did the Seniors painting,
Although colors were washed by raining.

The Senior Sneak was "To Spokane"
And "thank luck" it didn't rain;
You know, in Spokane it's quite fine;
I think I 'll take you up some time.
Well, time, you know, flies rather fast
And I believe, I'll have to quit at last.
Marguerite's waiting, I've got to date 'er,
So long then, folks, I'll see you later.

Sunday Guests.

Mrs. Chris Scharnhorst has as Sunday dinner guests, her sister and family of Craigmont, Mrs. and Mr. Hiliard Patton and daughter, Betricia Ann; her father, Mike Kasper, and brothers, Matt and Lawrence, and sister, Gertrude Kasper, and Miss Mary Krick of Uniontown, and Mr. and Mrs. Chris Scharnhorst and family.

Monday Bridge Club.

Mrs. Harold Haymond and Mrs. N. M. Leavitt were hostesses to the Monday Evening Bridge club this week, entertaining with a supper served on the lawn at the Leavitt home. At bridge later, Mrs. E. D. Pederson won high score and Mrs. W. M. Herman, second high. Mrs. F. A. Smith was a guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Trautman Entertain.

In honor of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Knapps who recently returned to Genesee to make their home, a party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Joe Trautman at their home Sunday afternoon. Cards were played and delicious refreshments were served at 5 o'clock. Beside the hosts and the honored guests, there were present, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hoorman, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Kretschmer, Mr. and Mrs. John Krier, Mr. and Mrs. John Weber, Mr. and Mrs. Thiessen, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Hasfurther, Mr. and Mrs. George Hasfurther, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Grieser, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Wagner, Mr. and Mrs. Mike Reisenauer, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kraut, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bielenberg, Joe and Henry Bielenberg, Mrs. Alfred Hasfurther, Robert Kuhn, Carl Erickson, Rev. B. J. Carey and Miss Rosalia Trautman, the latter of Lewiston. High score honors at cards went to Mrs. Joe Knapps and John Krier and the consolation to Mrs. Frank Hoorman and Mike Reisenauer.

SONG OF G. H. S. '32 SENIORS.

Now our high school days are over,
And a new life we've begun;
We shall go out chasing rainbows,
As our diplomas we have won;
As we part from one another
And the school we love so well,
We will say to you as we bid adieus
We dread to leave our pals.

We shall go out now a'working,
Fighting struggles of the life,
But we shall never forget you
On our never ending strife,
As it blinks us,
And it winks us,
Asking "come and taste of me,"
Now, then, good bye, folks
You will be with us
Always in our memories.

To most folks there's a spot that lives forever
Deep down within their fondest memory;
Our school house in old Genesee we'll
Never forget through our struggles in the world.

Our dearest spot on this earth is old Genesee
Where we first learned most of the wisdom we know;
The place where we learned to win and be defeated;
Oh, how we hate to leave you now behind.

(Sung to tune of "When the Bloom is on the Sage."

Investigating Rowler Estate.

Alex Bier, Kennewick, Wash., was in Genesee Wednesday making inquiry relative to the estate of Theodore L. Rowler. Mr. Rowler is a former resident of near Genesee, and for the past twelve years has made his home at Kennewick. He died three weeks ago, and Mr. Bier, as administrator has been unable to find any relatives of the deceased. Diligent search of all records of the deceased have not as yet been made. Mr. Rowler, according to Mr. Bier, never married. He left his native state of Wisconsin 50 years ago. Included in the estate was a tract of land, now being farmed by Gamble Brothers, a tract of 160 acres.

Mr. Bier would appreciate any information concerning the deceased. His address is Kennewick, Wash.

J. Wicks, who has been at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Magee during the winter, left Monday for Coeur d'Alene.

GENESEE CANDIDATES DESERVE CONSIDERATION

This year there are three men from Genesee who seek nominations for office, two republicans and one democrat, all three of whom are deserving of the whole-hearted support of this community.

Rudolph E. Nordby, present chairman of the board of county commissioners, has made an exceptionally good officer, and the administration of county business in Latah county compares most faorably with the administration in other counties. In fact, during the times of stress Latah county is being held as a model for other counties. Latah county has managed through its county commissioners to keep out of debt and thereby avoid payment of interest on warrants presented but not paid for want of funds. Economy has been the watchword, and Mr. Nordby has taken every possible step to conserve the finances of the county. He and the other commissioners have been denied the privilege of further reducing county expenses by statutes interpreted by the supreme court to mean that certain procedure must be taken, and Mr. Nordby has made no rash promises on the eve of election to persuade electors to vote for him. It is safe to say that he is standing squarely upon his record as a county commissioner and the successful administration, a part of which must be duly credited to him. Reductions in costs have been made wherever possible under existing laws, and the reductions have been consistent with the trend of times. Located as he is partiality never enters a contract binding on the county, and while the commissioners are endowed with some powers of discretion, they are handicapped by laws enacted by our state legislature. Often the commissioners could affect greater savings than are possible under existing laws, and when hampered by statute, there are those without an understanding that condemn unjustly.

Mr. Nordby has the interests of the county at heart; he is a heavy taxpayer within the county, and the economical administration of county business is taken to heart. He has maintained a residence in the county for thirty years, and knowing the county as he does, he knows the people and the problems that confront them. No one is better prepared to serve as commissioner than Mr. Nordby.

D. C. Burr who has been a resident of Latah county for many years, has been persuaded by his friends in various parts of the county to file for the nomination as assessor. This work would not be new to the candidate mentioned, and in entering the primary election he is doing so with the knowledge that he is well qualified to handle the office. It was not the thought of Mr. Burr to enter the primaries as a candidate until as was stated, his friends asked him to.

Fred Hove, democratic candidate for the nomination as state representative, a long time resident of the county, is another man who was persuaded by friends to file for office, and it took considerable time for him to think it over. As a result he will have no opossition in the primary election as there are only two candidates for the office and there are two to be nominated.

Legion Men Go to Kooskia.

"Oh, the mule's gone lame, the hens won't lay; corn's way down—wheat won't pay; hogs no better—steers too cheap; cows quit milkin'—meat won't keep; oats all heated—spuds all frozen; wheat crop's busted—wind still blows; looks some gloomy, I'll admit—get up Dobbin, we ain't down yet" was the sentiments of Legionnaires after they arrived at Kooskia for a meeting of the district organization of American Legion, Department of Idaho. Those attending from Genesee were Andy Wardrobe, Cap Haymond, Ray Edwards, and Chas Gray, the latter being here from Boise.

The meeting was reported as one of the most successful in this district, and the entertainment was on a par with other such gatherings, if not better in some respects.

Those who went from Genesee say the program was very interesting and they were especially pleased with the appearance of the state commander, H. W. Dworshak, of Burley.

Those present from the department organization were the commander, Hommer Huddelson of the veterans' bureau, Les Alberts, adjutant, and Martha Ramsey, president of the Legion Auxiliary, which organization met in district convention the same day.

D. C. Howard of Craigmont, was elected district commander; Carey Smith, Moscow, vice commander, and Homer Moore, Craigmont, adjutant. Grangeville was selected as the next meeting place.

1932 FOOTBALL PROSPECTS.

Football prospects for 1932 in the Genesee high school are not so bad, says Coach Parks. There are twelve lettermen returning and many likely looking recruits. Some of the boys are putting in spare time this summer in passing and kicking, and it is hoped that a punter will step onto the field this Fall. With the loss of Geo. Blume in the fullback position; Rinehart at half, and Miller, Steiniger, Springer and Sweet in the line, new material will have to put forth exceptional effort to fill the holes left by these boys.

The material from which some real football players are expected to develop is in the form of Don Springer, Bill Baker, Dan Ahern, Bill Burr, Carl Thiessen, Rodney Tegland, Raphael Linehan, Joe Tobin and Marvin Holben. Other prospects unseen will likely show up next fall.

The high school has a determination in the hearts of all to place the much-coveted conference trophy upon our shelf next season.

It is easy to keep a lawn looking nice if you cut it often, but it's an awful job after it gets long and shaggy. A few minutes in the morning with a Great States Lawn Mower gives you a wonderful appetite for breakfast and keeps the lawn in tip-top shape.

Many a man who has "gone over the top" would shrink from acting as judge of a baby show.

Going to get a new car this spring? No? Then why not paint up the old bus. You can do it yourself with Flex Auto Enamel, and at a very small cost.

It's easy enough to serve drink—the hard part is serving the term that goes with it.

We have a New Golden Series DeLaval Cream Separator which the DeLaval company has sent us for demonstration purposes only. They want ten farmers, each to use the separator eight days and tell us how they like it compared to the one they now have. If you are interested at all in a cream separator, try this one—it's not for sale, but if you like it we will be glad to make delivery of a new one.

Take a pencil and paper now and list the worn or broken parts of your machines. Then let us know what "quick service" actually means.

By doing this now, you can be sure that your machines will be ready for use when you need them, and you won't have any last-minute breakdowns to delay you when time means money.

Genuine parts fit closer, wear better and last longer. We are ready to serve you now.

Life insurance has been known to transfer a plain, unattractive woman into a fascinating widow.

The chronic cusser works for the devil for nothing and pays his own expenses.

John J. Humphrey is another progressive farmer, who believes in using the latest improved tools—He just bought a McCormick-Deering Rod Weeder.

Sunday School Teacher: In what book do we find the account of the false prophets?
Little Boy: In Pa's income tax books.

The farmer with a cellar full of potatoes, pork, canned fruit, sauerkraut, apples, jelly and hard cider doesn't give two whoops in a hurrah what happens in Washington or Wall Street.

A. T. Anderson took delivery of an International Steel Farm Truck this week.

Present Will o' the Wisp

Thursday evening of last week, the high school dramatics class, under the direction of Miss Thelma Melgard, presented a playlet "Will o' the Wisp" at the Masonic hall. The audience was composed of parents of those taking parts, a few friends and members of the Masonic fraternity and their families.

Miss Gail Sampson played the part of the Will o' the Wisp; Miss Mercedes Smolt, the country woman; Miss Esther Kries, the poet's wife, and Kathryn Baumgartner, the maid. The story was about the poet's wife, who with her maid, visited the country home to find out why her husband liked to spend his summers there. She was later led to death by the Will o' the Wisp.

MOTOR FUEL FROM WASTE PRODUCTS OF THE FARM

Rev. B. J. Carey, who spent several hours at the University of Idaho Monday, returned home very enthusiastic over the discoveries made recently by Prof. R. S. Snyder, agricultural chemist at the University, which discoveries it is believed will revolutionize the motor fuels and oil industry and also make available lower priced fuels for homes, schools, factories and for the generation of electrical energy. Utilizing waste and surplus materials from the farms, such as potatoes, grain, fruits and numerous other articles, Prof. Snyder has patented a process of extracting the explosive elements, and also the elements which may be turned into lubricating oils and fuel oils. There are at present a number of plants which have been able to produce alcohol from waste products, but their product has been insufficient in certain elements to compose a motor fuel. In the patented process now being developed by Prof. Snyder, the extracted fuel materials will combine readily with existing explosive motor fuels, and when used leaves absolutely no carbon deposit. There are several radical features in this newly discovered process with which the public will become acquainted as soon as patent records are complete, said Fr. Carey.

"The patented process of extracting fuel and oil from surplus farm products, is one thing that will bring about a change for the better," said Fr. Carey, and "the depression will soon vanish around that corner which now is hiding prosperity." It is estimated that by utilizing the surplus and waste materials of the farm, the farmers' returns will return to normal even though lower prices continue for marketable produce.

LENVILLE NEWS.

A number of friends of Mrs. Neal Kinyon surprised her Tuesday evening, and helped her celebrate her birthday anniversary. A pleasant social evening was enjoyed, each guest presenting her with a remembrance of the occasion. Refreshments were served.

Our last Literary for this year was held Friday night. VOL. XLIII — GENESEE, LATAH COUNTY, IDAHO, FRIDAY, MAY 27, 1932 — NO. 49

HAIL AND WIND STORM DOES DAMAGE TO GROWING CROPS

Damage to growing crops and to spring planted crops, resulting from the hard wind, rain and hail storm, which struck east and north of Genesee last Friday noon is difficult to estimate. The greatest damage was to spring-sown peas, which in many instances were washed out together with the cultivated soil. In some places the soil was washed to the entire depth of the cultivated portion and in places deep furrows were made on the side hills and through the flats.

A heavy, black cloud came up from the southeast at about 12:45, and after about five minutes wind began to blow from the east, and as the cloud came fully into view and darkness settled, the storm broke as the cloud traveled over the Wm. Schlueter farm where it rained hard and as it continued north and west, it swept over the Nebelsieck and Kambitsch places. Wind and rain did considerable damage on all the farms in the path of the storm until it reached the Kluss place where the storm increased in its fury, accompanied by a heavy fall of large hail. At the H. B. Jones place the yard was strewn with broken limbs of trees and overturned articles. Rain fell at the Chas. Grieser, Martin and George Hasfurther farms but at the W. O. Borgen place, the hail fell. At the Sather and Rossebo farms the downpour of rain which followed in the wake of the destruction by hail, ran over highways, tore through the flats, washing out crops and causing the creek to quickly overflow its bank and send down a stream of water, carrying with it a large amount of debris, pea seed which had recently been sown and a number of posts and other materials. The storm continued its destruction to a point just north of the John Hove ranch and swung up the valley. Beginning just north of the Sam Lange ranch on the North and South highway the creek was overflowing in a few minutes after the rain started, and while Art Hove was working in his field and Elnar Johnson was operating a disc and driving a four-horse team, Cowcreek left its banks and completely surprised both these men. Elnar Johnson, who was working out a corner of land across from his home near the highway, the creek left its banks and also completely filled the overflow channel made this spring. It was not raining at either of the places mentioned, and before Mr. Johnson had time to realize his situation he was completely surrounded by water. He had some difficulty with his team, but he managed to reach dry land at about the peak of the flood waters.

But little hail fell on the Johann ranch during the severe part of the storm, but as the cloud passed over rain fell heavily. The Henry Lorang place was in the direct path of the storm and while the home was sheltered by trees, early gardens suffered as did gardens everywhere that hail fell.

North from the Genesee Valley Lutheran church hail fell with great force and the hailstones were of such large size and hardness that the crop

ATTEND K. C. CONVENTION.

John Kluss, state treasurer of the Knights of Columbus, Anthony Weber, grand knight of the Genesee council and Henry Lorang, past grand knight, all of Genesee, left last Saturday for Pocatello to attend the annual state Knights of Columbus convention, which was in session, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

At the final session Henry Lorang was elected state treasurer and John Kluss was chosen first alternate to the supreme national convention in August. Moscow was chosen as the 1933 meeting place.

The three men, accompanied by Messrs. Papineau and Grieser of Moscow, motored to Pocatello via the North and South highway to Weiser and then over the Old Oregon Trail to Pocatello. They returned via Pendleton, arriving home Wednesday night.

C. A. Hawkins, Lewiston, was elected Idaho state deputy; Tom Gleason, Boise, secretary; J. F. Jenny,, Cottonwood, advocate; Anthony Ecker, Nampa, warden, and the Rev. Fr. E. Cody, Moscow, chaplain.

BALL GAMES SCHEDULED WITH TROY, UNIONTOWN

Troy, after losing a better game than the score would indicate last Sunday, will be here Sunday, May 29 for a return game. There is but little difference in the two clubs, and it's a toss-up as to the winner of Sunday's game. Putnam gave a good account of himself in his first two games and it may be that he has hit a stride that means a lot of good baseball here this summer. Tilden, the big Troy hurler, always has a number of wins tucked away for his club, as his strong arm has found Genesee unawares several times.

No prediction on the outcome of the return game is venteured, but there exists little doubt that it will not be a good game.

Uniontown Here May 30.

For a time it was feared that Uniontown had forgotten that baseball was a sport not to be forgotten in the Palouse, but our neighboring town quickly accepted the opportunity to play here Memorial day. This game will be interesting no matter which club is the winner. Both towns are represented by home talent only and with the old time rivalry still existing, here's a real game for two-bits, the admission price.

Dance in Evening.

There will also be a dance in the evening, with music by the Blue Jay orchestra, composed of six young men who have plenty of opportunity to know how modern dance music should be played. The dance will be at the high school gym.

On Motor Trip to Omaha

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Tupker left Wednesday morning by automobile for Omaha, Nebr., to attend the annual commencement exercises at Creighton University, their son Gene, being a member of the graduating class. Gene will return home with them to stay a month before finishing his interne work in Portland, preparatory to entering the medical and surgical profession.

Mr. and Mrs. Tupker will return immediately after commencement. From here they went to Boise, then to Pocatello, through Montpelier and to Granger, Wyo., and there drove over the Lincoln highway, directly to Omaha. Returning they expect to take a more northerly course and may visit Yellowstone park.

R. E. NORDBY SUCCESSFUL CANDIDATE AT ELECTION

R. E. Nordby, present chairman of the board of county commissioner, received the republican nomination for commissioner, Second District. His opponent in the republican primary election was John T. Baken, Moscow, who received 752 votes, compared to 1363 for Mr. Nordby. The present commissioner, with 26 of the 27 precincts reporting, carried every one with the exception of Cornwall where Baken received a majority of eight votes; Princeton, which gave Baken one more vote than Nordby; and Palouse, where the vote was a tie, 13-13. Cora precinct was yet to be heard from. Returns are unofficial.

Fred Hove, unopposed candidate for the democratic nomination for state representative, received 688 votes, according to unofficial returns, with 26 of the 27 precincts heard from.

Genesee voting in the first democratic primaries since 1918, polled a heavier democratic vote than did the republican party, with the county as a whole showing more votes for republicans than democrats. Genesee was considered to be one of the strongest democratic precinct, giving C. Ben Ross a vote of 159.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK IN GENESEE ONE OF INTEREST

Seldom does one witness a high school commencement week program which was as thoroughly enjoyed as the one which closed Friday evening, when twelve seniors of the class of '32, Genesee high school, received their diplomas, significant of graduation on the completion of the Idaho prescribed high school course, entitling each diploma holder to enter university.

Opening the final week of school with the baccalaureate services at the opera house, conducted by Rev. N. E. Beach and Rev. B. J. Carey, four young men, Steve Johann, a former high school student here, and Elmer Krier, Maurice Krier and Leander Krier, recent graduates of Genesee high, composed a quartette, singing "Ave Marie," and later the Krier brothers in a duet, sang, "The Heavenly Father," Mrs. Eugene O'Conner accompanying at the piano for both numbers. Certainly former graduates of the local school as well as parents and friends took considerable pride in the class, the former students and the school as the class marched in and as the four young men and their accompanist assisted in the services.

In trend with the times Class Night and Graduation Exercises were combined, and everything being of a local nature, the efforts on behalf of those who participated were fully rewarded by being able to address a large and appreciative audience Friday evening. After every seat was occupied and standing room was at a premium, the class assembled on the steps leading into the opera house and marched to their places on the stage as Kathryn Baumgartner, a student of the high school, played the processional. On the stage where the seniors were seated were also the members of the school board and E. S. Suenkel, superintendent.

Seats were reserved for the parents of the graduates and members of their families. A wide aisle was left through the center of the hall, marked by streamers in the class colors and supported by four little girls, Shirley Haymond, Marjorie Rose Springer, Thelma Marie Hoorman and Della Stout, and down this aisle marched the graduates.

After the class was seated Marie Wagner, salutatorian, welcomed those present and thanked the community, their parents and teachers for the assistance offered them in the years of school life. Herbert and Erich Steiniger, who joined the senior class last September, played a violin duet, "Memories." Burniece Gibbs, in reading the class history, told of the various activities during the final year of high school and also told how the class arrived in their first year of high school, describing the losses and additions during the remaining three years.

Russell Rinehart read the class poem, written by Herbert Steiniger, a humorous bit, which was thoroughly enjoyed. The class song, original in its wording, was sung by the class to the tune of "When the Bloom is on the Sage." Esther Kries, reading, Pleasures are Earned!

Start Saving Now

Recreation and rest can be truly enjoyed only after they have been earned, thru work, thru saving, or thru investments. Youth fights the inevitable in this, but age knows it is true.

To be able to "go off on trips" and enjoy life in later years it is necessary to build while young, and to build on the solid foundation of thrift. Your work weeks now should be profit weeks, a spending of a little less than you make. These saved dollars go to work immediately for you and your recreation and rest in future years.

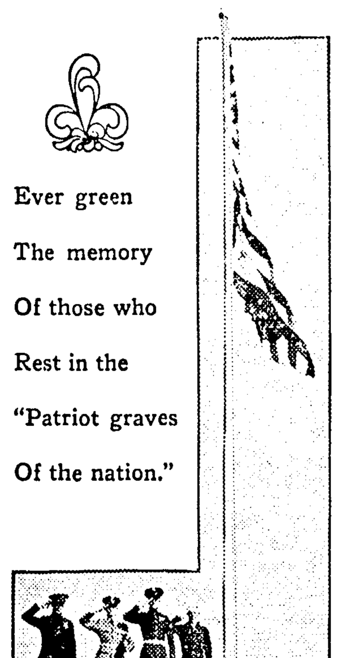
NEVER FORGOTTEN



PUBLIC WELFARE BOARD COSTS IDAHO LARGE SUM

(By Glenn Balch)

In 1907 the state legislature decided that Idaho should have a board of health, the purpose of which, presumably, was to look after the physical welfare of the growing populace. For the succeeding biennium expenses of this board the sum of $5,000 was appropriated, sufficient to pay the salary of the secretary and a few incidentals that were expected.

The duties of the board, as set forth in the act creating it, included general supervision of all matters pertaining to health and life, keeping vital statistics and health records, making sanitary investigations and probes and regulating heating and ventilation in public buildings.

From that year on we find that this matter of public health and welfare has been holding the increasing attention of the succeeding legislatures; as a result of which the board has had a remarkable growth and development.

Appropriations Increase

In 1909, two years after the creation of the board, it was found expedient to increase its biennial appropriation to $15,000. The 1911 appropriation was $25,100. A reduction in 1913 of slightly more than $7,000 would indicate that the board had reached the limit of its financial needs, and the 1915 and 1917 appropriations, $11,720 and $23,655 respectively, strengthen that presumption.

However, by pursuing the records farther, we find that except for this slight lapse the bureau has run true to governmental form. Its expense requirements for the current biennium amount to $109,060. In other words, the cost to taxpayers for public health services has been multiplied 21 times in the past 24 years, which seems to be a significant comment on how the burden of governmental expenses has increased.

Expenses Itemized

The 1931 appropriation for the department of public welfare, successor to the old board of public health, was apportioned as follows: Administration (salaries, wages and expenses for regular employes), $66,160; venereal disease control, $5500; board of eugenics, $5500; child hygiene, $4400; vaccines and anti-toxines, $2500; and tuberculosis treatment, $25,000.

The records reveal however, that the various legislatures added to the duties of the department of public welfare as well as increased its appropriations. There is no question but that there is little resemblance between the board which spent $5,000 in 1907 and the extensive department that spends more than $100,000 at present.

Many Duties

Let us look into some of the department's activities. Under it are: The public health advisor; the bureau of vital statistics; bureau of child hygiene, the state bacteriolgist, the state chemist, the division of sanitary engineering, the division of food and sanitary inspection, division of venereal disease control and the state board of eugenics. In addition the department has supervision over the two insane asylums, the state school and colony, the soldiers' home and the Lava Hot Springs establishment.

During the biennium of 1929-1930 a total of 7440 inspections of stores, cafes, bakeries, markets, hotels, barber shops, beauty parlors, confectioneries, pool halls, dairies, creameries, schools, jails, resorts and tourist camps were made by food and sanitary inspectors in the interest of public health. In the same biennium the state chemist made and reported on 3704 analyses of samples of 28 different substances. The state bacteriologist made 43,768 examinations.

Heavy Responsibility.

From the foregoing it becomes apparent that a heavy burden of responsibility for public health has evolved upon the department of public welfare; and also that our citizens, collectively and individually, have come to be more and more dependent upon its various functions and the services it performs. None but the most radical would advocate the abolition of the sanitary and food inspections, or criticize the department's practice of assuming the leadership in control and eradication of infectious and contagious diseases—yet, these things cost money and are, in their respective proportions, responsible for the increase in the expenses of government.

CHRISTMAS AND TAXES— ELECTION AND GRADUATION

Christmas and taxes coming due at about the same date, and graduation and election coming at approximately the same time gives one too much to think about. We have managed so far to become accustomed to the first two events conflicting, but a direct primary, such as Idaho has, is a source of much complaint. First thing we know our legislators will specify that we hold primary election on the date designated for the opening of the fishing season, and change the date of general election to correspond with that of the opening of the hunting season. If they do, may we suggest that the guns be directed at the legislators, rather than toward some inoffensive wild animal. Legislators too are accused of being responsible for wild life, not the kind that hunters seek, however. Reference is being made to the 60-day sojourn at Boise where 'tis said a good time is not to be shelved in favor of the passage of a few laws. Then too, we may be thankful, if the legislators devoted all their time to the passage of new laws, what shape would our country then be in. People are too much governed today, and it might be suggested that for every misdeed of any legislator, one law be repealed. If the same legislator was found guilty of the same act twice, repeal two laws; a third offense by the same person should wipe out ten laws. Charge the repeal to him personally. That proposition, on second thought is treacherous, the man or woman legislators who failed to toe the mark while he or she was in Boise would soon become the most popular—perhaps they are under our present system.

Reduced 30 Pounds Never Felt Better

Safe Way to Lose Fat

Take the case of Miss Madelone Crowley, for instance, who lives in Little Rock, Ark. Just read her letter:

"I have used Kruschen Salts for one year—when I started I weighed 140 pounds—now I weigh 110 pounds and never felt better in my life."

That's the big reason a host of men and women take Kruschen to lose weight—as the fat goes you gain in health—skin clears—eyes grow bright—activity replaces indolence.

Take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—cut down on fatty meats, potatoes and sweets—a jar of Kruschen that costs but a trifle lasts 4 weeks—get it at the Genesee Drug Co or at any drugstore in the world—but for your health's sake demand and get Kruschen Salts.

VACCINATION ADVISABLE AGAINST SPOTTED FEVER

The wood tick, carrier of the dreaded Rocky Mountain spotted fever, is more dangerous during March, April and May than at any other time of the year, says Claude Wakeland, entomologist for the University of Idaho agricultural experiment station.

Nothing can be done to prevent contraction of spotted fever once a person is bitten by an infected tick, and once the disease is contracted, the best physicians are helpless. Strange to say, in some localities a high percentage of spotted fever cases prove fatal, while in nearby areas the disease is of little consequence. Dangerous as the disease has proved to be, anyone in tick-infested territory can safeguard himself by taking proper preventitive measures.

Through long years of experiment and at the cost of several human lives, the U. S. public health service has perfected a vaccine which establishes complete immuity in most of the milder cases of the disease and a sufficient degree of protection against the virulent types to insure recovery. Physicians can obtain this vaccine free from the Hamilton, Montana, office of the U. S. public health service as long as the supply lasts. Protection by vaccination rarely exceeds one year, so it is advisable to be vaccinated each spring.

Rattlesnake Rides Log.

Asotin Sentinel: Elmer Wiggin and Charles Cook, who have been catching floating wood in Snake river, report a very queer experience when they hooked onto a large log last week and towed it into shore and landed it near the George Ausman place, near the mouth of Ten Mile. Riding on top of the log, all coiled, was a rattlesnake, which Mr. Wiggin proceeded to kill. It measured three feet in length and had nine rattles. Mr. Wiggins is keeping these rattles as a trophy of his first learning that rattlesnakes would ride logs down a stream during high water season.

Few Survivors of Men Who Marched in Youth's Vigor

Sixty-seven years ago a valiant and victorious army marched in the heyday of its youth along the broad stretches of Pennsylvania avenue in Washington.

That was the beginning of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Following the fall of Richmond and Lee's surrender at Appomattox the victors came to the Capital of the Nation, there to be reviewed by the President of the United States, John J. Daly writes, in the Washington Post. Figures vary as to the number of men who marched in that historic parade—a procession that took fully three days in the passing, according to some who witnessed it. Others say the parade was over in a day, that stragglers came into town the day after the parade and carried on the march—a gathering of uniformed men that undoubtedly numbered somewhere near 50,000.

Men? They were boys, most of them, and they marched with a song on their lips—a certain satisfaction in their souls. After this demonstration they did what most returning warriors have done from time immemorial—turned their attention to the pursuits of peace, to the prosaic tasks of "making a living."

Now, 67 years after that celebrated parade in Washington, the survivors of that grand old army gather in little groups throughout the land to make preparations for the proper observance of Memorial day—Decoration day, as some call it. They are going out to the federal cemeteries that dot the land here, there, and place flags and flowers on the resting places of their comrades.

The two great ceremonies are at Gettysburg, Pa., and at the National Memorial cemetery at Arlington, Va.

At Gettysburg, the President of the United States delivers the principal address.

At Arlington, Va., where rest in one grave more than 2,000 unknown soldiers of the Civil war—Confederate and Union—the ceremonies are in charge of the Department of the Potomac, a branch of the Grand Army of the Republic that has numbered amongst its ranks the great and outstanding names of Union soldiery.

Sixty-seven years ago they were young men, boys in the prime of life—and now they totter into their meeting halls to recall those glorious days of old; when they were the heroes of the hour.

So few remain, it is not easy to visualize what the immutable workings of time have done to the G. A. R.

Bodies bent and broken, that old spirit still survives—and will, too, till the last man only remains; to turn out, some day, all by himself, and lay a wreath and hoist the flag over all his dead comrades.

Britain Pays Honor to War Heroes of America

Ceremonies which occupy several hours mark Britain's public recognition of Memorial day, although actual observance of the day as regards America's war dead takes place on Sunday.

The American ambassador places a wreath upon the tomb of England's Unknown Soldier, in the Westminster shrine. The American Legion post and American Overseas Memorial day association members send wreaths.

Last year Rev. W. H. Garth, of St. Martin's church, Islip, N. Y., assisted the canon in a service at Westminister.

On Sunday, in Brookwood cemetery, where lie 453 of America's 582 war dead in British soil, the formal Memorial day exercises are held with many American and other military and civil notables present. All of these graves are on that day decked with the colors of the United States.

Birth of G. A. R.

The first post was organized at Decatur, Ill., April 6, 1866, but the membership was slow in growing and there were in 1879 only about 45,000 enrolled. From then until 1890, though, the numbers steadily increased and in the latter year there were 409,489 members. Ten years later death had cut the roll to 277,000 and by 1910 to 203,000.

Nation's Gold-Star Mothers

American gold-star mothers in France for visits to the graves of sons who died in the World war gave an impressive background last year for the most extensive observance of Memorial day yet held abroad.

Troops fired volleys in salute of the dead at the American cemeteries throughout France. Taps were sounded, and dignitaries spoke. But the feature of the day were the trips before and after the ceremonies by the war mothers to the graves of those they lost more than 11 years before.

At Suresnes cemetery, outside of Paris, Ambassador Edge made the principal address, referring to them as those "who had given those who were dearest to them that others might live in the full enjoyment of their liberty."

"You mothers instilled into these young men the principles for which they laid down their lives," he said. "You taught them the fundamentals of loyalty, courage, truth and vision. You with the fortitude which mothers throughout the ages have mustered, held your heads high as you bade them good-by.

"Let us look upon the myriads of crosses," he concluded, "and realize with poignant emotion the magnitude of our responsibility. We seem to see the heroes of Chateau Thierry, Belleau Wood, Thiaucourt, St. Mihiel and the Argonne pointing forward, forward; we seem to hear the great chorus of their voices calling to us to carry on until mankind breaks through the shadows and eternal peace dwells on earth."

A dab of powder here and there is certainly worth the price

You know that a little powder now and then is well worth the money it costs. In fact, compared with the effect, the price is so trifling you hardly consider it at all.

Yet the cost of electricity is just as moderate. Consider the examples below. They are typical. Where else does a penny buy more than in electric service?

.... but where do you get more for your money than in buying Electric Service?

Children Must Come with Parents

Governor Writes About Roads.

The following communication was received from the governor Wednesday by Ed Smolt:

"Before I left Lewiston I made arrangements for Mr. Johnson to have a conference with you boys relative to market roads. He was to go over the same and report to me. I have not, as yet, heard from him but probably will within the next few days.

"This is what the state proposes to do, and in this proposition we have in mind roads through open country and not rock construction. The State of Idaho will do the grading and build the structures on a cooperative agreement with the County Highway District or local citizens, by which they agree to put a certain amount of crushed rock on the road graded. It is understood under this cooperative agreement, that the expenditure of the local taxing unit, either county or highway district, and the State shall be about equal, that is to say, on a fifty-fifty basis.

"Yours very truly,
"C. Ben Ross."
Governor.

The next meeting of the O. E. S. Gleaners will be June 21 with Miss Ruth Martinson.

Fishermen Take Notice.

George McMahan, formerly of Genesee now living at Pullman, and Dr. John McCoy of the same city, ardent fishermen, have discovered a labor saving device in an electric worm digger, that is the device is operated by electricity. Monday the men were in a position to go fishing and needing worms they purchased this contrivance mentioned. Placing the two rods about a foot and a half in the earth, the electric current was turned on and almost immediately a nice variety of fishing worms began to appear on the surface, and in great numbers. With no effort the men were able to secure an ample supply of worms.

Witnessing their success, that of inducing angle worms to come to the surface, the men are contemplating an experiment to rid gardens of cut worms as the electric contrivance with one setting brings worms to the surface within a radius of 6 feet.

Surprised on Birthday.

In honor of Mrs. D. C. Burr's birthday anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Burr, Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Follett, Mr. and Mrs. Vern Beckman, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nagel, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES ADDRESS GENESEE PEOPLE

Eight candidates for nomination on the democratic ticket addressed a fair sized crowd at the Cozy theatre Monday evening, preceding election. Ed Smolt acted as chairman of the meeting, and introduced each of the speakers, asking Fred Hove to speak first. Remarks by the candidates were very brief, owing to the number here to become acquainted with the constituency, each, however, stating the office to which nomination was sought. Following Fred Hove were William Smith and David Ross of Deary, Walter Fiscus, Potlatch; Gladys Olson, Troy; Weldon Schimke, Moscow; W. L. Korter, Moscow, and Geo. Erb of Lewiston, the latter making a plea for everyone to vote, and the election being for nominating purposes for voters to remain within the party. At the general election, Mr. Erb advocated the selection of candidates from all parties, if voters were of the opinion that a party either than his own, presented the stronger candidates, stressing the fact that good government came from capable officers rather than from those elected because of party affiliation.

G. B. Mix was unable to be present owing to a previous engagement at Wallace, Idaho.

HAIL AND WIND STORM DOES DAMAGE TO GROWING CROPS

of alfalfa on the Odenborg farm was beat to shreds. Farmers in this vicinity were at work before noon in their fields seeding, and at the Gilberston place where seed was in sacks on the ground, the rush for shelter made them forget their work for the time being. Culverts were washed badly on the road to Iverson's, Egland's, Johnson's, Emerson's and down to the Clifford Olson place. Deep ditches were washed in all the fields along this road, and at the Egland place, a newly-sown field of peas was almost taken completely. Hail stones were piled deep along the ditches and against fences, and it was stated that hail could be found until 8 o'clock. At five o'clock there was plenty of it to be seen piled up along the roads. Roads suffered also from the high water which ran over most of this portion of road.

At the place farmed by Ernest Hordeman the storm continued to destroy crops and wash summer fallowed land. At Art Tegland's farm the storm abated somewhat, although near the home the hail fell hard, but here most of the damage was done by rain. Mr. Tegland was at work in his field, and as the storm broke he went to the head of his team and stood during the storm. Had he been farther to the east and yet on his own land he would have been able to witness the storm without being in it.

Mud covered the roads in several places in the storm area, carried there by water which overflowed, and there were several small sections of the highways from which the rock was washed.

At Genesee there was but a light shower, barely sufficient to completely wet the sidewalks. The wind blew hard, however, for a few minutes.

The storm did no damage Friday noon at or near the Martinson ranch, the hail ceasing to fall at the Borgen place.

The cloud apparently lifted at this point and struck again near Troy, for it is reported that a severe hail fell around that town shortly after noon Friday.

St. Joseph's School Closes.

Tuesday St. Joseph's school closed for the summer vacation, and the event was celebrated with a picnic at the school grounds and a ball game for the boys and also the girls. The game was between pupils from the public school and St. Joseph's.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S SOLDIERS REMEMBERED ON OUR MEMORIAL DAY

This year, on the day when the American people give thought to those who gave their lives for the preservation of the nation, it is especially appropriate to remember the patriots who died during the Revolution while battling with General Washington for the independence of the American people. In no way could Memorial day be better observed than in thus devoting it to Washington's honor, during this year when we celebrate the 200th anniversary of his birth, and nothing would be more in Washington's own spirit than this tribute to those loyal Americans who gave their lives to the cause for which he fought.

This rite is all the more necessary, according to the United States George Washington Bicentennial commission, because of the curious historical fact that no accurate record was ever made, either during the Revolution, or after it, of the patriots who died in action, in their country's struggle for Independence. Washington's hurriedly gathered and untrained army had no facilities for the "paper work" that has become an elaborate feature of modern military science.

For example, no county of American dead has come down to us from even so important an engagement as the action at Princeton, which enabled Washington to clear the British out of New Jersey. The best authority on the subject contents himself with reporting the British loss as more than one hundred, and the American loss "much less."

One historic fact does sharply stand out, however, as to patriot losses in battle. That is, where Washington himself reports them, they are accurate enough, and their smallness indicates with what economy of men he accomplished his epoch-making results. For example, he himself records that in the siege of Yorktown, the action that decided the Revolution, there were but twenty-three of his officers and men killed. At King's Mountain, another pivotal engagement, the British loss was severe, but again the patriots lost but few. The battle of Trenton, to fight which Washington made his famous crossing of the Delaware, and which saved the patriot from going on the rocks of public apathy, was bought at the cheapest price of all. Two patriot soldiers were killed, and three officers wounded—one of these was Lieutenant James Monroe, afterwards President of the United States.

The best count now possible by military experts gives Washington a total enlisted military force of 39,500, but he never had these gathered at any one time, owing to lapses and over-lappings of enlistments, and at critical times his forces sank to 3,000. The most accurate count possible today, covering the number of patriots actually shot and killed in battle, fixes their number at 4,044.

Again the Revolutionary army could make no effort to mark the burial places of the dead, as is the modern military practice, and the sacred places where these heroes lie will never be known. Almost the only graves of Revolutionary soldiers are those who survived the war and were buried in private burial grounds.

Nothing remains, therefore, of those who gave their lives in the making of the United States except the memory of their heroism. It is the greater reason why on Memorial Day, in this year of tribute to George Washington, the United States should give a thought to these self-giving men who died that their country might live.

Hawks Dislike Airplane.

Airplanes traveling from Spokane to Lewiston or vice versa, pass over a large hawks' nest just west of Genesee, almost directly over the Lawen place, now operated by Colin Wilson. One of the large birds was noticed last week to be flying higher than a north-bound plane, and though too wise to attack the noisy intruder, the hawk flew along over the plane for a considerable distance. When the plane continued its course northward the hawk was seen to make a power-dive from a great height, and alight near its nest on the Jacobs place. Whether the bird would consider attacking the plane would be difficult to determine, but in its anxiety, especially at this time of year, during hatching season and while the young birds are on the nest, the older birds are know to be almost fearless.

Roses for the Veterans

The mothers on the byways have looks of yearning sadness,
And helmets by the stairways flood homes with memories;
A sense of loss on gay days subdues the note of gladness,
While winter with its gray days mo... through the lonely trees.

And fathers on the May days pin on their scarlet poppies,
And gratitude on gay days reminds of others' loss;
Read "Christ in Flanders" Sundays and pass around their copies,
Recall their boys in old days before they faced the cross.

Plant roses by the highways for boys that manned the trenches,
Place stars along the skyways for aces of the clouds,
And maples on the boulevards which grief with tears bedrenches;
Let cedars in lone graveyards guard those our love enshrouds.

A wreath float on the sea wide which o'er their graves is mourning;
Put lilies by the bedside of boys with limp and scar;
And help them at the crossways where crowds rush by in scorning,
And open all the doorways from which marred limbs debar.

Forget-me-nots strew always along the veterans' marches,
And keep the tombs and memories of loyal heroes green;
So may the golden gateway, with glorious rainbow arches,
Bespan the veterans' roadway that leads to the Unseen.

DIVERSIFICATION SECRET OF FARM SUCCESS SAYS WILDE

George H. Wilde says: "Much money is made by specialists who put their entire resources into producing a single crop. Neighbors undertake to follow the leader. Result: Glutted markets, lowered prices, profitless farming.

"Many farmers can charge their present conditions to the one-crop idea. I know whereof I speak, for I am in constant touch with farmers. But there are numerous instances of successfully diversified farms. The secret of successful farming lies in diversification.

"With a basis in registered dairy stock the Woodland Holstein farm operated by Lloyd Whipple at North Plains is an outstanding example of successful diversification. Only the cream from this 66-head herd is sold. The milk is fed to calves and hogs on the 320-acre farm. A large crop of hay is available; oats, barley and corn are grown for feed. Eight sows averaging two farrows a year make possible annual sale of about 75 hogs. Hogs thus bring a profit on the feedstuff grown. Young Holsteins from the Whipple herd bring top prices. Entire operation of the big farm has shown a consistent profit despite two depressions within its history.

Diversification is equally successful on a small scale. To the small operator the matter is even more important since his whole farming program must be worked out to the best advantage as to time and economy. Berries, larger fruits, truck gardening poultry and milking stock can be handled on small tracts and will pay well if the ground worked will permit a variety of operations. The successful farmer cannot follow Andrew Carnegie's tip and put all the eggs in one basket, if he hopes to make returns for time and money invested. Diversify and the soils of your county will pay big returns."

GENESEE SUPPORTS PUTNAM AND WINS FROM TROY 8 TO 4

Ed Blume's circuit blow, Les Gray's four successive hits, Olsen's two-base hit, Geo. Blume's smashing single and Putnam's pitching were too much for Troy Sunday, when the Genesee ball club took the first game from Troy 8 to 4. Putnam, pitching superb ball for nine innings, was given exceptional support, there being only three errors chalked up, two by Putnam, and one by Emmett, and they were due in great measure to the slippery fields. Only one of the errors put a man on base in position to score. Troy, according to the score sheets, played errorless ball.

Genesee played a very good game on defense, against a team which can be said to be about equal in strength. Skinny Weber earning for himself a position at third, by virtue of snaring with one hand, the terrific smash of Eichner's, and by scooping a sizzler from the bat of Krier. Stub Geltz in center had a good day, making four putouts.

Ninth inning—Geo. Blume, out, pitcher to first; Nebelsieck, out in the air to right field; Waber, out, third to first. Troy: Thompson and Tilden fanned and Walt Allen, pinch hitting for Rausch flew out to first.

Defective Wire Causes Blaze.

Paul Osmundson suffered burns to both hands recently when he grasped a live light wire at his home. The wire supported a light in a bedroom and was located directly over a bed. When the wire shorted-circuited by it's being defective, sparks dropped on the bed coverings and pillows, and Mr. Osmundson was a busy man, trying to jerk the wire from its socket and at the same time extinguish the numerous little blazes which started on the bed. Burns were on the palms of his hands, and though painful at the time, healed quickly. There was no damage other than that to bed coverings.

MAKING THE END OF WAR'S LONG DEBAUCH

IT WAS the armistice. The eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month, 1918, marking the end of modern man's most terrible debauch of blood-letting; starting the desolating hang-over period from which the combatants of the World war—both victors and vanquished—are just emerging.

And around the world there was universal rejoicing and peace.

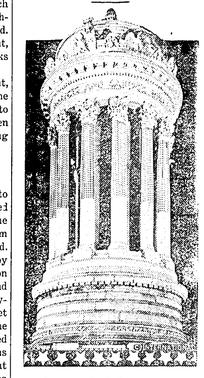
The blaring or sirens, the blowing of whistles, the ringing of bells, the waving of flags. Streets littered with paper, surging crowds, parades and demonstrations; Caruso singing from the fifteenth-floor balcony of his Broadway hotel; negro red-caps in Grand Central station cake-walking through the concourse behind one porter who was pushing an invalid chair in which was a stuffed figure of the kaiser.

The President's and Mrs. Wilson's automobile escorted to the White House by cheering throngs.

Clemenceau—the old Tiger of France—expressing his satisfaction of victory before the French chamber. Rome—wild with victory; Tokyo echoing with cheers—an allied world delirious with joy.

Happy, dancing, singing groups silhouetted around the campfires, and in the villages behind the lines, lights appeared in windows that had been darkened throughout the war, welcoming beams of yellow radiance invited to warmth and comfort within. The sound of popping corks in crowded cafes and estaminets. All of it was a part of that corridor of light across war-torn Europe, the glow, the heat, and the warmth. It was peace.—Washington Post.

HEROISM REMEMBERED



Soldiers' and Sailors' monument towering above the Hudson river on Riverside drive. New York.

MEMORIAL TO THE NATION'S WAR HEROES

ARLINGTON was never destined to be a battlefield. It was fated to be instead a vast monument to the fruits of battle. There were brought the dead from those terrible fields where, for four years, the youth of North and South slew each other in fratricidal warfare. There rose, in token that North and South should no longer shed each other's blood, a monument to the Confederacy. There, without distinction of state or section, now lie dead from the Spanish war—including the sailors of the Maine—the Philippine insurrection, and the World war. The monuments are often distinctive, and there are stones carved with the last brave words of dying boys.

No soldier, from the Unknown in his magnificent emplacement above the river to the humble Vermont or Iowa private brought with the other shattered wreckage of the Wilderness or the Rappahannock, could ask a lovelier resting place, or one more peaceful. Despite the constant going and coming of visitors, the place is quiet—far quieter, probably, than it was in the early days when Mr. Custis used to allow the people of Washington to hold picnics down near the river in Custis grove. No one dances in Arlington now as they did in those days before its somber glory had been bestowed upon it. But one can wander along shaded roads and paths and be aware of the heavy march of history, of exquisite natural beauty.

Of old, unhappy far-off things,
And battles long ago,

of yesterday's bereavement, and of a pain so old that it has long since ceased to be pain.

The visitor may pass in review almost the whole history of the Republic—pioneer days, for Arlington was once a wilderness solid for a few hogsheads of tobacco; Revolutionary days; years of far-flung internecine warfare, shaking the nation to its foundations; records of fighting on the western plains and on the islands of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans; and finally, the sacrificial years of 1917 and 1918. But he will come back to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier with an unanswered question—with the question, indeed, which more than any other in these latter days troubles humanity. For there is still space for other valiant dust.

In Memoriam

In grateful memory of the soldiers who fought in the French and Indian war; soldiers and sailors of the American Revolution; heroes of the War of 1812 and the Mexican war; soldiers and sailors who fought in the War for the Union, 1861-1865; veterans of the Spanish-American war and the World war; soldiers and frontiersmen who fought in the Indian wars; and those hardy pioneer men and women who endured danger and privation and death by torture at the hands of the savages, in order to advance American civilization upon this continent—we bow in reverence Memorial day.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

THOSE LAST HOURS OF THE GREAT CONFLICT

IN THE darkness of that unhappy night of devastation, the last night of the World war, the old fighting Eighty-ninth—by that time one of the crack shock divisions of the A. E. F.—bridged Powder river, near Stenay, under the fire of those deadly batteries from the eastern shore, and threw the Three Hundred and Fifty-third infantry, the Sunflower regiment, on into enemy land. Up the gentle slopes of the Meuse they went, "maintaining contact with the enemy."

What meaning in those five simple words! Perhaps back in our homes in America, after all these soft and peaceful years, we forget—doubtless most of us would like to forget! But the combat men of the A. E. F.—God help them—will never remove from their scared memories of those days the thoughts which "contact" brings, mustard gas, shrapnel, wire, machine guns, the deadly bayonet, the high explosive, the dirt, the filth, the havoc of action.

The morning wore on. Fighting men went down, never to rise again. Others clawed the brown grass and soil in agony from wounds they will carry until the sunset day of life. But still the Americans pressed on. And then came the first order of change, from the commanding officer, watch in hand, of a battery of the "heavies" miles in the rear, "Cease Firing." A little later the same idea had transferred itself to the fussy 75s.

Then came 11 o'clock and silence! It was the end! Four long years of travail were over. And there the men stood, "with their hands still clasped on their empty gats and their thoughts across the seas." Mother, sweetheart, wife—they would see them again!—Kansas Farmer.

Election Day Locally.

Judges and clerks officiating at the double primary election in Genesee Tuesday were Maggie Bottjer, J. J. Berg, Ed Smolt, Martin Hasfurther, W. W. Burr, Robert Emmett, Fred Meyer, Mrs. Art Springer, Mrs. Ruth Perkins and Harry Schooler, with Arnold Olson, constable.

Genesee was disappointed in the number of votes cast after approximately 600 people had registered. It was expected that perhaps 75 per cent of those would vote, but on the count it was learned that but 280 of the total number had cast ballots.

New Primary Unpopular

A number of voters voiced their opinion of Idaho's new primary election law, and while it was only a nominating election, people disapproved of the procedure and there are quite a number who refused to go to the polls on learning of the operation of the direct primary.

Day Cold and Windy.

Other reasons which kept people from the polls were the weather and expense of traveling to and from the polls. Indifference was manifested to some degree and a backward growing season kept others from voting. The day was cold and windy and rain threatened when the skies became overcast at numerous times throughout the day. The voting was not only light in Genesee but in almost every other precinct in the county.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK IN GENESEE ONE OF INTEREST

apparently from a newspaper, gave the class prophecy, which was also of a humorous nature, involving each member of the class. Marguerite Kluss prepared and read the class will and bequeathed to those in the junior class many of the habits and customs of those graduating.

George Blume, valedictorian, chose to present a lecture on "World Peace," rather than deliver the customary address. In this the valedictorian deserves much credit; his discourse was timely, well prepared and ably presented. The thoughts expressed indicated that much time had been given to its preparation, and from the lecture, the audience derived not only pleasure but information conducive to further thought on world peace.

Supt. E. S. Suenkel, in presenting the class to the board, told of the pleasure of the faculty in preparing the class for graduation, and commended the class on their arrival at commencement. R. E. Nordby, before presenting the diplomas to each member of the class, told the class and audience of school conditions, financially and otherwise, and stressed the value of an education.

As a closing number the class sung its farewell song, and then formed in a line to receive the congratulations of those who attended the program.

Assisting in the program was the high school orchestra under the direction of Mrs. Arvilla Harris, an organization which was developed during the past school year, and one which patrons of the school can well feel proud.

Not as a novelty, but in keeping with the trend of times, the boys of the class wore white blue-striped overalls, black ties and white shirts. The girls were attired in becoming gowns.

Members of the class receiving diplomas were: George Blume, Richard Harris, Ether Kries, Russell Rinehart, Clyde Sweet, Marvin Miller, Burniece Gibbs, Marguerite Kluss, Marie Wagner, Herbert Steiniger, Erich Steiniger and Wilmer Springer.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Davee and family of Lewiston visited Wednesday and Thursday with Mrs. H. M. Warren and other relatives.

The annual meeting of the Genesee Union Warehouse company will be held Saturday, June 18, at the American Legion hall, Genesee, beginning at 1:30 p. m. At this time members of the board of trustees will be elected.

Following the meeting of the stockholders of the Warehouse company, stockholders of the North Pacific Grain Growers will meet to name delegates to the regional convention, to be held in Spokane, Monday, June 20.

NELLIE M. WIGG.

A telegram was received Thursday morning by W. W. and D. C. Burr, notifying them of the death of their aunt, Miss Nellie M. Wigg, at Wetaskiwin, Alberta, Canada at 5 p. m. Wednesday. Miss Wigg is a former resident of Genesee, the sister of Mrs. O. F. Burr, and taught the seventh and eighth grades in the public school here. She also taught at the Ingle and Paulson schools before moving to Canada with her father and brother about the year 1897, where the three homesteaded land in Alberta.

Mrs. Earl Husted and little daughter, Maxine, of Deerpark, Wash., came last Friday and visited until Monday with Mrs. Husted's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Craft.

OVER 250 POPPIES SOLD.

The Boy Scouts were very successful in the sale of Veteran-made Poppies last Saturday. Mrs. Mahlon Follett, chairman of the Legion Auxiliary committee on Poppies, supervised the sale, the gross proceeds of which were $29.00. Bobby Smith was high in sales, with Bobby Schooler and Dallas Flomer, second and third, respectively. The boys were awarded cash prizes for their efforts, and they were a busy bunch.

Money derived from the sale is for rehabilitation work among families of former service men. The Auxiliary wishes to thank the public for its generosity and the boys for their efforts Saturday.

ALBERT PAULS FORMERLY OF GENESEE, DIES AT GOODING

Word was received Monday night by Ernest Peterson, of the death of his cousin, Albert Pauls, 38, at Gooding, Idaho. Mr. Pauls passed away at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, supposedly due from exposure, resulting in pneumonia. Deceased is survived by three small children, the eldest 9 years; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Pauls; seven brothers and a sister.

Albert Pauls was born on the place now being farmed by Fred Hove, the homestead of Peter Pauls, one of the early settlers in Latah county.

MAX KUNEY LOW BIDDER ON HIGHWAY SURFACING

Max J. Kuney, Spokane, was low bidder on surfacing 13 miles of the North and South Highway, from the Kasper place, south of Genesee, to Thorncreek. His bid was $18,194 for surfacing. While it was not announced, this bid certainly includes widening of the present roadbed to meet requirements of the federal government, which is aiding in completion of this project. Kuney agreed to pay $3.60 a day for labor and charge $1.20 a day for board.

Bids were called at Boise Tuesday by the bureau of highways for oiling the section of highway above mentioned, the estimates to be opened on June 10.

At present the Kuney company is surfacing a section of highway near Craigmont.

BALL TEAM TO KENDRICK.

Having no difficulty in winning the first four baseball games of the season, the Genesee club goes to Kendrick Sunday for a return game. A number of people have signified their intention of following the team, and while there is little possibility of losing to Kendrick, a closer game is expected than the one played here.

Registration Books Reopened.

Mrs. L. C. Hayden, registrar for Genesee precinct announces that the books have been reopened for registration for the general election November 8. Those who did not register for the primary election or who did not vote at the general election two years ago are urged to register. If in doubt as being registered, Mrs. Hayden will gladly inform you.

WHEAT MARKET UNSETTLED AT CLOSE OF WEEK MAY 27

Domestic wheat markets were unsettled, with feed grains dull and mostly lower during the week ending May 27, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. A rather sharp advance in wheat prices early in the week, under the influence of unfavorable winter wheat prospects, was followed by a decline which offset most of the gain. Beneficial rains in both winter and spring wheat areas, the excellent progress of the spring wheat crop, recurrent weakness in security markets and continued dull export inquiry for the remaining stocks of North American wheat, were principally responsible for the weaker situation towards the close of the week. Feed grain remained in dull demand. Offerings were only of moderate volume, but easily sufficient for the limited current trade needs. Prices were mostly lower compared with a week ago.

Crops Three Weeks Late

With the exception of the domestic winter wheat, developments for the 1932 harvest continued generally favorable, although crops are mostly two to three weeks later than normal. The International Institute of Agriculture places the 1932 world wheat acreage about 7,000,000 acres over that of 1931, with an estimated increase of about 11,000,000 acres in Spring wheat, partially offset by a decrease of around 4,000,000 acres in the Winter wheat area. Rains received during the week were too late to improve the domestic Winter wheat crop materially, since harvesting has already begun in Southern Arizona. The first car of the season was shipped from Olney to Wichita Falls, Texas, during the week. This new wheat tested 60 pounds to the measured bushel.

Spring wheat in the United States and Canada made vigorous growth, with stands and color good. Cool weather, with ample moisture, favored development of wheat and aided in the destruction of grasshoppers. Canadian seeding was practically completed, with moisture condition in Manitoba reported 103 per cent of the ten-year average. Moisture in Alberta was 82 per cent and in Saskatchewan 88 per cent of average.

European Crop Conditions

European crop conditions remained generally favorable, although two to three weks behind normal. Harvesting along the Mediterranean usually begins in June, and some new crop wheat appears on local markets toward the latter part of that month. Harvesting in northern France is not general until August and is not much earlier than in England and Germany. Warmer weather in Russia improved crop conditions and Spring seeding made good progress. Seedings of Spring wheat to May 20 were placed at 44,184,000 acres, compared with 43,700,000 acres to the same date last year.

The general market situation was not changed materially during the week. Marketings of United States wheat continued of only moderate volume but receipts at Winnipeg were rather liberal, totaling 5,243 cars. Southern Hemisphere shipments were of only moderate volume, totaling a little over 2 000,000 bushels from Argentina and slightly over four million bushels from Australia. Milling restrictions were again modified in France, where mills are now allowed to use 45 per cent of foreign wheat. In Italy the foreign wheat quota was increasedd to 75 per cent of bread wheat and to 95 per cent of durum in northern and central areas and to 95 per cent of break wheat and 90 per cent of durum in southern sections of the country. The prices of native wheat in Europe were slightly lower in Hamburg and Milan, but higher at Paris. Native milling wheat was quoted May 27 at Hamburg at $1.08, at Milan at $1.68 and at Paris at $1.83. African durum was quoted at Marseilles at $1.64½ and Italian durum at Naples at $1.82. Australian wheat for June shipment sold at Liverpool during the week at 65 3-8c and No. 2 Manitoba at Vancouver at London at 62 3-4c per bushel.

Pacific Coast Markets

Pacific Coast markets were about unchanged to slightly lower. Wheat prospects in Washington and Oregon continued good in the Spring wheat districts where moisture was plentiful, but some weed damage was reported in Winter wheat areas. Marketings of old wheat continued light, receipts at Puget Sound and Columbia

IDAHO'S FIRST FINANCIAL SUPERVISOR NAMED IN 1905

Glenn Balch, writing his twenty-first article on taxation in Idaho, under direction of the state chamber of commerce says:

In 1905 Idaho state legislators first decided that governmental supervision of the financial activities of the public was needed. The public was too trustful, too easily duped; it needed protection.

The legislature of that year authorized the employment of a state bank examiner at a salary of $2400 a year and appropriated an additional $2200 to pay his traveling expenses and the expenses of his office. Fifteen pages of the 1905 session report are devoted to outlining his duties and establishing banking regulations.

Examiner's Duty.

"It shall be the duty of the bank commissioner," the report states, "when he shall deem it necessary and at least once a year, without previous notice, to visit and make a complete report and examination of each bank falling into the provisions of this act."

This was the beginning of a mass of regulations designed to protect the deposting public from the pitfalls of careless and indifferent banking. That such a service is meritorious and needed is evidenced by the losses depositors have suffered through failures.

Growth Characteristic

The growth of the department of finance is characteristic of governmental branches. Its appropriations show increases as follows: 1907, $9,000; 1909, $13,400; 1911, $24,800; 1913, $24,800; 1915, $24,950; 1917, $26,995; 1919, $68,545; 1921, $53,434; 1923, $62,581; 1925, $54,700; 1927, $62,625; and 1929, $71,060. The 1931 appropriation for the banks and banking division and the blue sky branch totalled $68,195.

Thus we find that a department created 17 years ago and given an initial appropriation of only $6000 is now costing Idaho taxpayers approximately $70,000 each biennium, which should be enlightening, concerning the increased cost of government.

Many Duties Added.

However, on investigation we find that the department of today is far more complex and elaborate a governmental branch than the old one-man bank commission established in 1905. The succeeding legislatures have forced it upon it many new duties and have enacted many additional regulations for it to enforce.

The banks and banking division now supervises the activities of more than 85 banks operating in Idaho under a state charter. These banks had on December 31 deposits belonging to Idaho citizens of more than 38 million dollars, a sum of money well worth protecting. Likewise the duty of liquidating suspended banks falls upon this department.

Blue Sky Bureau

The blue-sky bureau, so called because it seeks to protect investors from smooth-tongued promoters who have nothing but "blue sky" to sell, controls the activities of the various building and loan associations, brokerage firms, investment companies, collection agencies, etc.

For instance, in 1931, 21 applications for permits to sell securities within the state were denied because "in the judgment of this department they were not of the class and character that would insure the investor a reasonable chance for return of his money." There are those who maintain that this department has saved Idaho investors millions of dollars.

Revenue Earned.

The department has the virtue of earning as well as spending money. In 1929 and 1930, examination and charter fees collected by the banks and banking division totalled $24,801,- 23, which went into the general fund. The blue sky collections totalled $10,- 575.63 for the same period. Totalling these figures, we find that the two divisions are more than half self-sustaining, reducing their actual cost to the taxpayers to about $25,000 per biennium.

The personnel of the department consists of one commissioner of finance, one director of blue sky, a custodian of securities, a liquidating agent, four bank examiners, a secretary and a stenographer.

Parents of Daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Currin are the parents of a baby girl, born Thursday, May 26. She has been named Mary Adeline.

LEGION MEMORIAL SERVICE.

John Eikum, commander of the local post of the American Legion, delivered the Memorial Day address at the City Park Monday. He paid tribute to the departed service men of all wars, stressing the sacredness and importance of Memorial Day, and read the program of the Legion relative to the occasion. Commander Eikum's address, besides being timely and interesting, was well delivered and enjoyed by those assembled. Assisiting were Fred Hove, chaplain, the band, directed by Fr. Carey, the audience singing "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner," and a firing squad from the Legion ranks, Fr. Carey sounding taps at the close of the program.

Following the program at the park, the ex-service men went to the four cemeteries to decorate the graves of all departed veterans.

TROY AND UNIONTOWN FALL BEFORE GENESEE 20-4, 16-3

Continuing in the win column Genesee took Troy Sunday 20 to 4 after the visitors scored two runs in the second inning, presenting what looked like a ball club the equal to that which Genesee has placed in the field this season, a club composed entirely of local talent. Genesee held Troy in the opening inning, Troy blanking the locals in the same inning. Troy's big inning was the second when two men were hit by pitched balls and a third was placed on the paths by a walk, Shepherd cracking a single to score Wright and Williams. Troy's second run came in the fifth when Watts singled and went to third after Eichner reached first on an error, Watts scoring on a passed ball. Thompson, Troy third sacker was walked in the ninth and was advanced by Shepherd who hit safely, Thompson scoring on Camerons' roller to first.

Genesee scored two runs in the second and frame, Emmett going to first on an error, advancing on C. Gray's safe blow; Weber forced Gray, and while Putnam was at bat Weber stole second; Geltz went to first an error, Emmett scoring on the throw, and as it went wild Weber crossed the plate.

In the third inning Geo. Blume made one hard for Troy's shortstop to handle, reaching first; Al Olsen doubled, scoring Blume, and Olsen taking third on a passed ball, scored on Emmett's outfield fly. In the fourth inning Weber walked, stole second; Geltz hit safely; Les Gray bunted and on a wild throw to first Weber scored. Geo. Blume on a hitting spree, sent one to the fence to score Geltz and Gray, Blume scoring on Olsen's single. In the sixth inning, Les Gray was safe by virtue of an error, stole second and scored on Blume's double to the fence; Olsen walked; Ed Blume hit, scoring Geo. Blume and Olsen, C. Gray was safe at first when Eichner made a bad peg to first, Blume scoring the fourth run in that inning. In the seventh Les Gray walked, pilfered an extra base and also third to score on Geo. Blume's fourth hit of the game; Ed Blume walked; Emmett hit to score G. Blume; C. Gray hit to score E. Blume and Emmett

REV. A. F. WOLFF RESIGNS AS PASTOR OF ST. JOHN'S

Rev. A. F. Wolff tendered his resignation Sunday as pastor of St. John's Lutheran church, effective June 26, to accept a call from Carthage, Ill., home of Carthage College, a Lutheran endowed school. Carthage is a city of about 5,000 population. Rev. and Mrs. Wolff came to Genesee 24 years age from Mott, N. D., where the former was pastor of the German Lutheran church, serving prior to that at Bridgewater, S. D. Rev. Wolff is a graduate of the University of Minnesota at Minneapolis, and of the Lutheran Seminary at St. Paul. His home was at Mapleton, Minn., and that of Mrs. Wolff's, St. Paul, where they will visit during the early part of July before going to Carthage.

Rev. and Mrs. Wolff came to Genesee July 20, 1908, and have made this their home continuously, during which time the former was instrumental in the building of the present Lutheran church structure, which replaced a smaller frame building. Rev. Wolff personally supervised the building and much of the work, especially the decorating and interior finishing is his work. The two daughters, Misses Ruth, a graduate of the University of Idaho, and now an instructor in the New York Institute of Music and Art, and Verona, who will graduate June 6 from the University of Idaho, will reside in New York City, as the younger daughter will go there to study music.

A call was sent from the congregation of St. John's Lutheran church Tuesday to Rev. A. Klickman of Toluca, Ill., and an answer will probably be returned by Sunday.

RURAL LETTER CARRIERS HELD CONVENTION MAY 29

Mr. and Mrs. Al Mayer attended the Rural Letter Carriers' convention at Kamiah, Sunday, May 29. This was a district meeting of the state organization. Twenty-six carriers and their families were present at the sessions held at the Odd Fellows hall, and undoubtedly there would have been double that number present had it not rained during the convention day.

Mr. and Mrs. Mayer have been active in the association, Mrs. Mayer having held all the offices in the Ladies' Auxiliary, and Mr. Mayer has been the state president and secretary of the district organization for several years.

T. R. Dowdy, Moscow, was reelected president; L. M. Carr, Lewiston, vice present; Secretary and treasurer, C. W. Passmore, Moscow. The delegate to the state convention in Moscow, July 4 and 5 is E. W. Ingils of Craigmont.

The Auxiliary joined the men's organization Sunday for an enjoyable dinner.

Parents of Daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Futter announce the arrival of a baby girl, born Sunday, May 29, at the Gritman hospital, Moscow. They have named the baby May Emily.

Election Day Locally.

Judges and clerks officiating at the double primary election in Genesee Tuesday were Maggie Bottjer, J. J. Berg, Ed Smolt, Martin Hasfurther, W. W. Burr, Robert Emmett, Fred Meyer, Mrs. Art Springer, Mrs. Ruth Perkins and Harry Schooler, with Arnold Olson, constable.

Genesee was disappointed in the number of votes cast after approximately 600 people had registered. It was expected that perhaps 75 per cent of those would vote, but on the count it was learned that but 280 of the total number had cast ballots.

New Primary Unpopular

A number of voters voiced their opinion of Idaho's new primary election law, and while it was only a nominating election, people disapproved of the procedure and there are quite a number who refused to go to the polls on learning of the operation of the direct primary.

Day Cold and Windy.

Other reasons which kept people from the polls were the weather and expense of traveling to and from the polls. Indifference was manifested to some degree and a backward growing season kept others from voting. The day was cold and windy and rain threatened when the skies became overcast at numerous times throughout the day. The voting was not only light in Genesee but in almost every other precinct in the county.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK IN GENESEE ONE OF INTEREST

apparently from a newspaper, gave the class prophecy, which was also of a humorous nature, involving each member of the class. Marguerite Kluss prepared and read the class will and bequeathed to those in the junior class many of the habits and customs of those graduating.

George Blume, valedictorian, chose to present a lecture on "World Peace," rather than deliver the customary address. In this the valedictorian deserves much credit; his discourse was timely, well prepared and ably presented. The thoughts expressed indicated that much time had been given to its preparation, and from the lecture, the audience derived not only pleasure but information conducive to further thought on world peace.

Supt. E. S. Suenkel, in presenting the class to the board, told of the pleasure of the faculty in preparing the class for graduation, and commended the class on their arrival at commencement. R. E. Nordby, before presenting the diplomas to each member of the class, told the class and audience of school conditions, financially and otherwise, and stressed the value of an education.

As a closing number the class sung its farewell song, and then formed in a line to receive the congratulations of those who attended the program.

Assisting in the program was the high school orchestra under the direction of Mrs. Arvilla Harris, an organization which was developed during the past school year, and one which patrons of the school can well feel proud.

Not as a novelty, but in keeping with the trend of times, the boys of the class wore white blue-striped overalls, black ties and white shirts. The girls were attired in becoming gowns.

Members of the class receiving diplomas were: George Blume, Richard Harris, Ether Kries, Russell Rinehart, Clyde Sweet, Marvin Miller, Burniece Gibbs, Marguerite Kluss, Marie Wagner, Herbert Steiniger, Erich Steiniger and Wilmer Springer.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Davee and family of Lewiston visited Wednesday and Thursday with Mrs. H. M. Warren and other relatives.

NELLIE M. WIGG.

A telegram was received Thursday morning by W. W. and D. C. Burr, notifying them of the death of their aunt, Miss Nellie M. Wigg, at Wetaskiwin, Alberta, Canada at 5 p. m. Wednesday. Miss Wigg is a former resident of Genesee, the sister of Mrs. O. F. Burr, and taught the seventh and eighth grades in the public school here. She also taught at the Ingle and Paulson schools before moving to Canada with her father and brother about the year 1897, where the three homesteaded land in Alberta.

Mrs. Earl Husted and little daughter, Maxine, of Deerpark, Wash., came last Friday and visited until Monday with Mrs. Husted's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Craft.

OVER 250 POPPIES SOLD.

The Boy Scouts were very successful in the sale of Veteran-made Poppies last Saturday. Mrs. Mahlon Follett, chairman of the Legion Auxiliary committee on Poppies, supervised the sale, the gross proceeds of which were $29.00. Bobby Smith was high in sales, with Bobby Schooler and Dallas Flomer, second and third, respectively. The boys were awarded cash prizes for their efforts, and they were a busy bunch.

Money derived from the sale is for rehabilitation work among families of former service men. The Auxiliary wishes to thank the public for its generosity and the boys for their efforts Saturday.

ALBERT PAULS FORMERLY OF GENESEE, DIES AT GOODING

Word was received Monday night by Ernest Peterson, of the death of his cousin, Albert Pauls, 38, at Gooding, Idaho. Mr. Pauls passed away at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, supposedly due from exposure, resulting in pneumonia. Deceased is survived by three small children, the eldest 9 years; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Pauls; seven brothers and a sister.

Albert Pauls was born on the place now being farmed by Fred Hove, the homestead of Peter Pauls, one of the early settlers in Latah county.

MAX KUNEY LOW BIDDER ON HIGHWAY SURFACING

Max J. Kuney, Spokane, was low bidder on surfacing 13 miles of the North and South Highway, from the Kasper place, south of Genesee, to Thorncreek. His bid was $18,194 for surfacing. While it was not announced, this bid certainly includes widening of the present roadbed to meet requirements of the federal government, which is aiding in completion of this project. Kuney agreed to pay $3.60 a day for labor and charge $1.20 a day for board.

Bids were called at Boise Tuesday by the bureau of highways for oiling the section of highway above mentioned, the estimates to be opened on June 10.

At present the Kuney company is surfacing a section of highway near Craigmont.

BALL TEAM TO KENDRICK.

Having no difficulty in winning the first four baseball games of the season, the Genesee club goes to Kendrick Sunday for a return game. A number of people have signified their intention of following the team, and while there is little possibility of losing to Kendrick, a closer game is expected than the one played here.

WHEAT MARKET UNSETTLED AT CLOSE OF WEEK MAY 27

Domestic wheat markets were unsettled, with feed grains dull and mostly lower during the week ending May 27, according to the Weekly Grain Market Review of the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. A rather sharp advance in wheat prices early in the week, under the influence of unfavorable winter wheat prospects, was followed by a decline which offset most of the gain. Beneficial rains in both winter and spring wheat areas, the excellent progress of the spring wheat crop, recurrent weakness in security markets and continued dull export inquiry for the remaining stocks of North American wheat, were principally responsible for the weaker situation towards the close of the week. Feed grain remained in dull demand. Offerings were only of moderate volume, but easily sufficient for the limited current trade needs. Prices were mostly lower compared with a week ago.

Crops Three Weeks Late

With the exception of the domestic winter wheat, developments for the 1932 harvest continued generally favorable, although crops are mostly two to three weeks later than normal. The International Institute of Agriculture places the 1932 world wheat acreage about 7,000,000 acres over that of 1931, with an estimated increase of about 11,000,000 acres in Spring wheat, partially offset by a decrease of around 4,000,000 acres in the Winter wheat area. Rains received during the week were too late to improve the domestic Winter wheat crop materially, since harvesting has already begun in Southern Arizona. The first car of the season was shipped from Olney to Wichita Falls, Texas, during the week. This new wheat tested 60 pounds to the measured bushel.

Spring wheat in the United States and Canada made vigorous growth, with stands and color good. Cool weather, with ample moisture, favored development of wheat and aided in the destruction of grasshoppers. Canadian seeding was practically completed, with moisture condition in Manitoba reported 103 per cent of the ten-year average. Moisture in Alberta was 82 per cent and in Saskatchewan 88 per cent of average.

European Crop Conditions

European crop conditions remained generally favorable, although two to three weks behind normal. Harvesting along the Mediterranean usually begins in June, and some new crop wheat appears on local markets toward the latter part of that month. Harvesting in northern France is not general until August and is not much earlier than in England and Germany. Warmer weather in Russia improved crop conditions and Spring seeding made good progress. Seedings of Spring wheat to May 20 were placed at 44,184,000 acres, compared with 43,700,000 acres to the same date last year.
