Snow Returns With New Year

Snow, ice, and cold returned to the region late last week after a warming trend had brought rain which melted previous snow and ruined any chance for a White Christmas.

The temperatures dropped Saturday night and by Sunday there was snow on the ground again. Snow fell Sunday evening, New Year's Eve, and by January 1st there was several inches on the ground. The skies cleared Tuesday but the mercury dropped down to 10-above Tuesday night. There was a slight increase in temperature Wednesday and Thursday but not high enough to cause any melting. More snow was predicted for this weekend.

The snow and ice posed serious problems for the motorists this week. The road from the railroad tracks to the top of the Lewiston Hill was covered with ice and hard-packed snow making travel very difficult. The road to Moscow was clean and completely dry because the highways crews had plowed the roads before the snow had a chance to pack down. Many of the secondary roads were also ice-covered and very slick.

Harlem Globetrotters

At Spokane Coliseum Jan. 11

Those whirling dervishes of the basketball court known as the Harlem Globetrotters, as dashing, fancy, and irrepressible as ever, will take over the Spokane Coliseum on Thursday, January 11 for their big fun and thrills package starting at 7:30 p. m.

The magicians of the court will take on the New York Nationals, but that's only half the story. The game will be backed up by the special array of entertainment personalities the Globetrotters bring along for pre-game and between-halves presentation, as assemblage of performers signed in various parts of the world touched by the celebrated cage team on its global jaunts.

The saga of the Harlem Globetrotters and the late Abe Saperstein thus goes on in fine style. This is the forty-second consecutive season for the fabulous aggregation but the first not under the age is of the grand little impresario, who died in March of 1966, nor his estate which operated the club last season.

New owners George Gillett, Potter Palmer, and John O'Neill decreed that the show go on in the tradition of Saperstein. They're still Abe Saperstein's Fabulous Harlem Globetrotters in fact as well as in name.

Tickets for the January 11 contest are now on sale in Spokane at the Coliseum and Jacoy's prices for reserved seats being $3.00 and $2.50. General Admission will go on sale at gametime only with adults at $2.00; under 12 years $1.00.

Aliens Must Register

Forms on which to submit the reports are available at any post office or office of the immigration or naturalization service. Persons who are unable to pick up a form because of illness, or other reasons, may have a relative or friend obtain a card for them.

The card should be returned to one of these offices.

Parents or guardians of aliens under fourteen years of age submit reports for such children.

Post-Holiday Let-Down Curtails Job Opportunities

As a result of the usual post holiday let-down in hiring new workers, only four workers were placed on jobs by the Moscow Office of the Idaho Department of Employment according to Frank J. Hartstein, Moscow Office Manager. Hartstein said that three of those were carpenters and the other was a woods worker.

During the last week of the year of 1966 only two workers were given job finding help by the Employment office.

Ten new jobs were listed, and at the end of the week there were still 35 jobs available for area residents. Needed in the area are workers who could qualify as secretaries, bookkeepers, a typist, a sales clerk, domestic workers and cafe workers, as well as a service station manager, a service station attendant, TV repairman, an auto mechanic, lab technicians, salesmen, as assistant manager for a lumber yard and a janitor.

Hartstein's report indicated that a total of 196 area workers were receiving unemployment insurance through his office at the present time. This is down considerably from the 288 who were drawing such benefits a year ago and is up only slightly from the previous week's total of 178. During the week there were 29 workers filing new claims for benefits indicating new unemployment occurring during the week. A year ago this week the total number of new claims filed was 31, the same as for the previous week.

In the Moscow area there are currently 68 workers receiving unemployment insurance compared with 64 last week and 89 during the same week a year ago. At Genesee there are 4, the same as for the previous week.

In the Troy-Deary-Bovill area 79 idled workers are claiming unemployment insurance compared with 75 a week ago and 109 this time last year.

In Kendrick there are 8, a week ago there were 5 jobless pay recipients. At Potlatch 26 persons are seeking compensation compared with 22 during the previous week, but less than half of the 53 who were seeking such compensation at this time in 1966. Ten checks are going into the Elk River area compared with 8 a week ago, but far fewer than the 37 of the last week in last year.

Sen. Church Says Pony Express Could Be FASTER

The Pony Express was faster than today's airmail service—and the airlines don't even have to fight off Indian attacks.

That's what Senator Frank Church told Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien after Church received an airmail letter that took 14 days to get from Sun Valley, Idaho to Washington, D. C. The Idaho Senator sent O'Brien the envelope carrying a Dec. 13 postmarked cancellation in Sun Valley and an incoming "received" stamp in Church's office of Dec. 27.

"Airmail!" Church chided the Postmaster General. "It only took the Pony Express ten days to make it from St. Joseph, Mo., to Sacramento, Calif. This letter took 14 days by air. Why?" O'Brien hasn't replied yet. He may not have gotten Church's letter.

THE LENGTHENING DAYS

I love the lengthening days because they bind me
To nearer—dearer things that are to be;
When all this wintersness shall be behind me
And wildflowers come to vane and up-land lea.

In lengthening days I find no note of sadness
For buds of promise back to me they bring;
My heart goes singing on through gates of gladness
Where lengthening days will tide me on to spring.

December Rainfall Totals 2.82 Inches

Larry Sorensen, Soil Conservation Technician for this area, reported Wednesday afternoon that 2.82 inches of moisture fell in the Genesee region during the month of December to bring the 1967 total rainfall figure to 19.96 inches.

The December figure was the highest in nine years, Sorensen reported, and was received in form of both snow and rain, but mostly rain. Not since 1958, when 3.86 inches of moisture fell, had there been as wet a December. In two other years, 1955 and 1956, Genesee received over the three-inch total. Last year's December's rainfall totaled 2.37.

Rain or snow fell on eleven days during December. The wettest day of the month was December 26 when .92 of an inch was recorded. December 30 was another very wet day with .66 inches measured. Other daily amounts ranged from .04 to .29 inches.

The major amount of moisture fell after December 20 when much of the frost had left the ground, Sorensen said. This helped greatly in allowing the rain to penetrate and be retained in the soil. He estimated that roughly three-quarters of the total December moisture was absorbed by the earth. Ground that had been planted to wheat and peas last year was in the best condition to receive the rain. The heaviest washing and erosion occurred on summer fallowed land that had been finely worked.

Extra Charge for ReflectORIZED Plates

Idaho motorists were reminded today by the Motor Vehicle Division of an additional 50 cents per plate charge to be paid when 1968 license tags are purchased. This will amount to $1 per set for regular vehicles.

Jack Farley, division director, pointed out this is a "one-shot charge" to take care of the added production costs for the new, five-year, reflectORIZED plates. The extra assessment is in addition to regular plate costs. All vehicle owners, other than those who are buying plates for vehicles which carry but one tag, will pay an additional dollar this year, Farley said. This fee will not be charged in successive years nor for boat licenses, he added. License plates may be obtained from County Assessors or their branch offices starting Dec. 1 and, according to law, must be attached to vehicles by Jan. 1, 1968. Farley pointed out plates must be purchased in the county where the vehicle owner resides.

Vehicle owners, Farley said, should be certain their title number is stamped on registration papers or in their possession when applying for new licenses. He said title numbers can be obtained by contacting lien holders.

The new, five-year, reflectORIZED plates were authorized by action of the last Idaho legislature.

Tree Order Blanks Ready

Tree order blanks are now available at your County Agent's office. With the increased interest each year in tree planting, farmers are advised to get their tree orders in early to avoid disappointment.

Trees are to be used for windbreaks, woodlots, Christmas trees and other utility-type plantings. The trees are not to be used for ornamental purpose or planted within the incorporated towns or cities.

The deadline for receiving orders is March 10, 1968.

Help in selection of trees, planting, and care is available from your county agent.

Wallace Grocer Buys Rice Market

Mr. and Mrs. Eli Rice announced Wednesday afternoon that they have sold their business to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Centamessa and their son, John and wife of Wallace, Idaho. The new owners will assume management of the business effective next week.

WINTER ANGLERS LEARN MANY TRICKS OF SPORT

By Jim Humbird
 Idaho Fish and Game Department

Fishermen whose devotion to their sport is so great their friends charge them with having traded Santa Claus for Isaac Walton will note with glee that the 1968 fishing regulations set aside more waters for year-round angling than last year. This is in line with a trend that has developed over the past ten years to gradually expand the number of places to fish during the off-season months.

One rule of thumb used to judge whether it should close with the general statewide trout season on October 31, goes like this: Will winter anglers catch fish that were stocked as fingerlings the previous spring with the idea that they will make their growth and be ready for the creel by opening day of the next general statewide trout season? This happens anyway at Magic Reservoir, for example, and would be the case at other reservoirs such as Mackay, Island Park and Henrys Lake, to name just a few, if the general fishing season did not close in the fall. Fingerlings planted in the Magic Reservoir in early springtime grow so fast that anglers start catching them as 7 to 8 inches long before the curtain comes down on October 31.

Other reservoirs such as Little Wood, Fish Creek and Roseworth can be kept open for ice fishing in January and February without cutting into trout stock that is intended for harvesting the next summer and early fall. This kind of management goes into effect January 1, 1968, at Pallasades Reservoir in Southeastern Idaho, where angling heretofore has opened and closed with the regular statewide trout season.

Some fish must be caught when they are there. Sea-run steelhead trout is one such species. Best fall angling for steelhead starts about mid-October, depending on weather, and it is more or less good until too much ice on the Snake, Salmon and Clearwater, makes fishing difficult and unsafe. As winter reluctance loosens its grip on these waters, usually sometime in March, steelheaders come back once more to fatten the riffles and deep pools for these great fish.

Northern Idaho fishermen meet more giant mackinaw and Kamloops rainbow trout in May, the first part of the special lake season in the Panhandle region and from mid-October through November. Some of the largest lake trout ever brought to creel in Idaho were hooked during the early and late parts of the special lake season. These likewise are the months when the bulk of kokanee or blueback salmon harvest, which generally averages more than a million fish, is made on Priest, Bend Oreille and Coeur d'Alene lakes—between the storms.

Late January and early February are the outside dates between which the run of peacock cisco, a unique species of small whitefish, come out of the depths of Bear Lake to spawn in the channels of the sandy beaches in southeast Idaho and Utah. A special six-week season allows cisco to be dip-netted. The limit is 20 fish a day.

What care fishermen such as these that rabbit hunting continues on thru the holidays, and through February 29, 1968, that statewide waterfowl hunting goes through January 4, and for ducks and coots in the special mallard area until January 14?

Most hunting seasons may be over for another year, except for the cottontails and unprotected species such as crows and jackrabbits, but there is still plenty of fishing. The new regulations, effective January 1, mark each of the state's six fishing areas with a shaded screen box to make them stand out. Beneath these are exceptions to general statewide fishing season regulations and listed separately, by name, are waters that are kept open for year-round angling.

Because the temperature of a fish's body is the same as the water surrounding it, the metabolism slows down during cold weather. It does not eat so much as in the summertime, and needs longer to digest what it does eat. Indeed they are more inclined to loaf in big quiet pools than to search for something to eat out in the riffles.

As a result of these two factors, trout and whitefish won't go out of their way to get caught, but they will take bait that comes close to them. Trout will take artificial lures—flies, if the water is clear, or spoons, spinners and small plugs—that are fished properly. They must be put down deep, where the fish are, and moved slowly.

The two most important principles of winter fishing are (1) find the fish, and (2) put the bait down where they are and make it easy for them to take. This holds for all kinds of fishing, and for all species of fish. Trout shift from one place to another, and whitefish run in big schools during the winter. One pool may be crowded with them and another that looks just as good will be barren.

Spinning tackle probably is the most efficient for bait fishing, regardless of what the season may be. Monofilament nylon won't pick up so much water and, consequently, won't fill the guides full of ice this time of year quite as fast as braided line. There are many tricks to make winter fishing more comfortable and successful, including warm clothing and insulated foot gear.

And, of course, there is always the presumption at the outset that the spirit is hardy and willing, though the flesh is sometimes weak.

Opportunity, Washington
 January 2, 1968
 Dear Editors and Readers:
 This may be late but I am taking the first opportunity to getting it off to you. The past holidays were spent by my going to Joan Lorang Sturgill's home at Opportunity for a five o'clock dinner and the following were diners at the occasion: Marguerite Lorang from River-view-Terrace; Henry Lorang from Holy Family Home; a friend of Bob Sturgill's, Scott Nixon; Bob and Ramona Sturgill, and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sturgill of Opportunity, Washington.
 New Years was really a dual occasion for celebrating since the Sturgill's son Robert was born on a New Year's morning at Pullman, Washington on January 1, 1948.
 Sumptuous choice cuts from the traditional bird, King Turkey, followed by all of his servants to pumpkin pie, and/or apple pie a la mode, were served and everyone expressed a thankful sated appetite.
 There were the usual expressions of seasonal greetings and the old folks were taken back to their adopted homes in time for bed-check.
 May I include my personal and best wishes to all for a Happy New Year.
 Sincerely yours,
 Henry Lorang

COOL-HEADED COWS GIVE MORE MILK

COOL-HEADED COWS give more milk, the United States Department of Agriculture reports. In tests, cows gave 15 to 20 per cent more milk when their heads and necks were held in enclosures cooled to 60 degrees than when they were housed in a 85-degree barn. Reduced cost is the main reason for cooling only cows' heads and necks to reduce milk production losses in hot weather. Most dairymen hesitate to air-condition their barns because of high installation, operating and maintenance costs.
STORING FRESH WATER by "injecting" it through wells into subsurface rocks is being tested by hydrologists of the Geological Survey, Department of the Interior and the city of Norfolk, Va. If successful, the method of underground water storage may have far-reaching applications in many coastal areas where surface storage is difficult or expensive. Hydrologists admit that experiments involving techniques for storing fresh water underground are not new. This test, however, will be the first time that large amounts of water will have been involved. Researchers hope that hundreds of millions of gallons of fresh water will be stored underground and held "in reserve" for several years.
CHROME PIGMENTS are now being manufactured in Huntington, W. Va., adding to the list of colors produced in the Ohio River town. The Holland-Suco Color Company, which has a plant in Huntington, has begun production of primrose chrome yellow and soon will be producing a full range of chrome pigments. The chrome operation has been moved from Brooklyn, New York.

AN OPTICAL OBSERVATORY costing $575,000 will be built by the University of Michigan at Peach Mountain, 15 miles northwest of Ann Arbor. Its 48-inch telescope will provide more observation opportunities, and, like the present telescope on the central campus, will be designed for stellar observations, specifically the measurements of the spectra of stars. The telescope will be equipped with a special spectrograph and photo-electra cells to transplate light waves of stars into electrical impulses for computer analysis. Equipment for taking conventional photographs will also be built in.
GENERAL AVIATION is on the increase, according to the Federal Aviation Administration. Non-airline pilots last year flew 104,706 airplanes a record 3.3 billion miles in 21 million hours. They consumed 512 million gallons of gasoline and jet fuel.

AMERICAN FALLS

The huge American Falls Reservoir on the Snake River near Pocatello provides irrigation water for the volcanic soil of the surrounding valley. The area is now famed for wheat, sugar beets, beef, cattle, and the elongated russet potato. A short distance down-river lie Register Rock State Park and Massacre Rocks, where members of an early Oregon Trail wagon train were killed by Indians in 1862; other pioneers who followed left still visible autographs painted with black axle grease, on Emigrant Rock.

P. T. Barnum didn't say it, but the Idaho States Police does: "There still are some people who think seat belts are just for long trips." In fact there's someone like that born every minute.

The Idaho State Police points out that courtesy and a sense of fairness are an essential part of safe driving, but drivers also must remember that driving is no game and it is not competitive activity.
 So you think you have your vehicle under control. The Idaho State Police points out that you lose up to half the friction between tires and pavement when it rains. And it takes 485 feet to stop on dry pavement at 70 miles per hour.
 The Traffic Safety Division of the Department of Law Enforcement says turn signals should indicate you are going to make a turn, not that you are making one. Signal your turns in advance—at least 100 feet in advance.

School Topic For Civic Club

Lester Diehl, Superintendent of School will present the results of the evaluation of the school district that is being made now and will be completed prior to the January meeting of the Civic Association.

The results of this evaluation will show the type of program that the school now has, and the program as it should be in the future. A committee of ten persons from the community helped to evaluate the district.

As requested by the State Department of Education the Genesee School District is making an evaluation of the District. The evaluation instrument being used is Profiles in Excellence. This evaluation instrument was developed by the National Education Association to help School Districts evaluate their programs.

The State Department of Education has asked each School District in the State to evaluate their own programs and that this evaluation be sent to the Idaho Task Force at the State for Education. The Idaho Task Force at the State level will use this information to determine the kind of program that is in operation now and the kind of program that the State of Idaho will be able to finance in the future.

A committee has been set up to work with the school on this project. The committee should finish the project sometime this week and results will be published. ## Job Placements Rise, But So Does Unemployment

Sixteen Latah County workers received job finding help through the Moscow Office of the Idaho Department of Employment during the past week, according to a report made by Frank J. Hartstein, Moscow Office Manager.

Hartstein said that this compared with four persons placed on jobs during the previous week and with 12 persons sent to jobs during the same week in 1967. At the end of the week there were 31 jobs still open compared with 35 the previous week, and 23 during the same week a year ago.

Sixteen new jobs were listed with the Moscow Employment Office during the week. At the end of the week women who were qualified could find jobs as secretaries, a part time bookkeeper, a cashier, sales clerk, a fast and accurate typist, cafe and domestic workers. There were jobs open for a laundry worker, a service station attendant, an insurance salesman and laboratory technicians for qualified men.

The number of persons claiming unemployment insurance rose by ten from the previous week according to Hartstein's report. At the end of the week there were a total of 206 persons filing claims, compared with 196 at the end of last week. One year ago the total was 263. During the week 24 persons filed new claims indicating unemployment commencing during that or the previous week.

In the immediate Moscow area there are 76 persons receiving unemployment insurance payments, compared with 69 a week ago and 99 a year ago. In the Genesee area there are four, the same as for the previous week.

In the Troy-Deary-Bovill area the total is 76 now, 79 last week, and 91 last year. In the Kendrick area the total rose from 8 last week to 9 currently.

Twenty-nine jobless pay checks are going into the Potlatch area, three more than a week ago, but far fewer than the 47 of this same time in 1967.

Thirteen persons in Elk River are receiving unemployment insurance benefits compared with 10 during the previous week, but only half as many as the 26 who were receiving such benefits during the first week of last year.

Local Grocery Is Now Food Center Thrift Store

Rice's City Market is now the Food Center Thrift Store as Fred and Jon Cantamessa assumed ownership and management of the local grocery firm Monday morning.

The father and son purchased the store last week from Mr. and Mrs. Elji Rice, who operated the firm for twenty years. Jon Cantamessa will manage the store, assisted by Doug Burmeister. Fred Cantamessa has owned and operated a Thrift Store in Wallace, Idaho since 1948. He will stay at the local store for a short period and then return to his other market in Wallace.

Jon is a recent graduate of the University of Washington and has a background of experience in the grocery field working in the Wallace Store since he was a boy.

Both of the new owners said they were very impressed with the friendly welcome Genesee and its people had given them.

Supply of Stamps Goes Quickly At Local Post Office

Genesee's initial allotment of six cent stamps were sold out the first day the recent raise in postal rates became effective, Postmaster Verla Hall said Wednesday. Beginning Monday, January 8, all first-class mail required a minimum of six cents to mail.

The new six cent stamps quickly disappeared, Mrs. Hall said and the one cent stamps, which were used by people to bring the old five-cent stamps up to the required amount under the new law, also were in great demand. The Post Master said 1,700 one-cent stamps were sold Monday, exhausting the supply at the local office. The amount of one-cent stamps sold just that day in the amount usually sold over a three-month period.

Two cent stamps were also sold out by mid-week and at noon Wednesday only approximately 1700 three-cent stamps were on stock in the post office. The local postal people have been using regular ten-cent stamps and marking letters air-mail to meet the needs of the increase in air mail rates.

All post offices in this area have been experiencing the same shortage of stamps because of the recent change in rates and even the Spokane office, which services the outlying offices, are short of stamps.

Mrs. Hall said she has orders in for more stamps but has received no indication as to when the order will be filled.

Idaho Farms Are Becoming Bigger—and Fewer

BOISE — Idaho farms are getting bigger and fewer. Average size has increased more than 70 percent in the last 20 years while the number has gone down about 25 percent, according to the University of Idaho agricultural extension service. The summary was given this week in the January issue of "Economic Facts for Idaho Agriculture" by Quentin D. Banks, marketing information economist. Total land in Idaho farms has increased by more than 20 percent, the report said. The data is based on USDA figures. The report also said the average of land and buildings per farm is almost five times as large as it was 20 years ago.

Average size of farms varies considerably, depending on the area of the state. In the southwestern irrigated district it is 343 acres. At the other extreme, the central range area, it is 1158. The report figured on the 1964 census and estimates for later years, also shows substantial differences in farm income for various areas. Commercial farms with gross sales of more than $10,000 varies from 27 percent in the northern cutover area to 58 percent in the northern wheat area. In the south central irrigated area 57 percent of the farms grossed more than $10,000. Only 45 percent of those in the central range area, 46 percent of the southwest irrigated area, 47 percent in the southeastern area, and 56 percent in the upper Snake area grossed that amount.

Substantial increase in agricultural growth during the next decade is predicted by the college of agriculture. Similar projections for the last 8 years came very close to actual increases in production and income. Total receipts from farm marketing exceeded half a billion dollars for the first time in 1965. They increased about $35-million more in 1966. Figures for 1967 will be available next year.

In discussing the beef situation, the monthly summary said marketing of feed cattle is expected to continue high in 1968. More cattle are likely to go to market in the first half of the year than in the same period of 1967, continuing downward pressure on prices.

With declining prices and lower feed costs, feeders may have a tendency to hold cattle for heavier weights. If this tendency does develop, the economist said, it will further depress prices. In this situation, lighter market weights are desirable.

Slaughter of cattle and calves in 1967 is at a level that indicates a delicate balance between herd liquidation and herd buildup. In is generally believed, the report said, that dairy cow numbers are decreasing while beef cow numbers are increasing. Some forecasters believe that total numbers are actually increasing. This could mean a larger calf crop in 1968 than the previous year.

Snow, Winds Closed School

Four inches of snow, whipped by strong winds closed the Genesee Public Schools Monday and gave the students at both the public and parochial schools an unexpected vacation from the classrooms.

After a warm weekend the snow returned to this area late Sunday night and early Monday morning as the temperatures also dropped back below freezing. The fresh, dry snow was blown into drifts as much as three feet in depth across some of the country roads. Supt. of Schools Les Diehl said he and bus supervisor Ewald Lettenmaier attempted to survey road conditions early Monday morning but were forced to give up because of the drifts only a few miles out of town.

The highway district worked all day Monday and soon had the roads cleared of drifting snow but not in time for the school bus runs. Classes were resumed Tuesday and the buses made their runs but not without difficulty. Four of the six buses had to chain up for their routes and even then one bus slipped off the road and had to be towed out.

Even the main highways were still very slick in spots Wednesday and the Genesee Valley road was almost a solid sheet of ice and hard-packed snow. The secondary roads in the country which were just graveled fared better although they were very icy in spots.

Trees for Farmers Will be Available Soon

When the time comes to order seedling trees, which won't be long now, the University of Idaho forest nursery will have a good supply, Homer Futter, county agricultural agent, reported this week. There are 465,000 little trees of various species for windbreaks, woodlots, Christmas trees and reforestation.

Although the deadline for orders is March 10, the agent said it was advisable to determine needs soon and turn in the lists while stocks are plentiful. The trees are available for many purposes but not for ornamental uses, nor can they be planted within the boundaries of incorporated communities. The nursery at Moscow produces 11 evergreen species. The main ones are Scotch pine, Douglas-fir, grand fir, ponderosa pine, blue spruce, Norway spruce lodgepole pine, and Austrian pine. There are 315,000 of these species on hand, plus 115,000 grown on contract for the forest industry. The nursery also has 150,000 trees of 14 hardwoods. Russian olive, Siberian pea, golden willow, hybrid poplar, black locust, and lilacs are the main ones.

Seedlings ordered by the March deadline will be delivered in the spring at planting time. Leaflets giving planting instructions will also be distributed.

The business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Lee Davis, new in-coming president. New resolutions were adopted for the coming year. Hostess for the meeting was Mrs. David Garrett. The next meeting will be January 18 which will be a stewardship meeting.

Supt. Diehl Rehired

At the regular board meeting on January 8th the Genesee School Board voted to rehire Lester Diehl as Superintendent for the school year 1968-69.

The board also approved a policy as to the rental of the new gym to groups for special money-making events. The policy is that the group be charged $7.50 an hour for the first two hours and $5.00 an hour after the first two hours. It was felt by the board that this is a normal charge for electricity and heat plus the janitorial services.

The Parents Club met Monday evening, January 8 in the meeting room of the school with president Glen Baumgartner presiding.

The group voted to sponsor a local speech contest for students in the 4 upper grades of the school with two 8th grade winners eligible to enter the area speech contest in Grangeville sometime in February.

New Council Members Seated

John Myers, Jr. and Jack Magee were sworn-in and seated as members of the Genesee City Council at the Monday meeting of the council. The two were elected in November for terms of four years each. Myers was elected from the Second Ward to replace Lucile Moser, whose term had expired. Magee was elected from the First Ward to succeed Walter Moden, Jr.

Following the administration of the oath by Clerk C. D. Manfred, Mayor Dick Scharnhorst welcomed the two to the council and thanked outgoing councilmen Moser and Moden for their work during the past four years.

Scharnhorst appointed Myers as Street Commissioner and Magee as Police and Fire Commissioner. Ed. Jutte, the former Street Commissioner, was assigned as Parks and Recreational Commissioner at his request. Bill Roth will continue as Water and Sewer Commissioner and will also become Finance Chairman, a position previously held by Moden. All of these new assignments become effective immediately.

In other business that evening, the publication of monthly financial statements were discussed by the council. The State Legislature, at the last session, made changes in this field and the city is now attempting to find what is the required procedures. There is a certain amount of confusion as to the exact meaning of the ruling and both the city clerk and treasurer are now in the process of determining how it will affect Genesee.

The possibility of extending the depth of the small water pump in the city water house was discussed. At present time the city can pump from three sources: informally they are referred to as the small pump, the old pump and the new pump. The former two are in the red stucco building east of the Texaco Service Station. The new pump is housed in the small cream-colored building just back of this building. The water level of the city wells has apparently dropped to a point where, when the two larger pumps are in operation, the small pump has inadequate depth to draw water. To correct this it will be necessary to lower the turbines and shaft of the small pump deeper into the well. Cost estimates will be obtained before any further action is taken.

The council also discussed garbage collection and disposal and took no action.

There was a discussion on what use could be made of the building deeded to the city by Eli and Ramona Rice. The city would like to see a business firm in the building and attempts will be made to that end.

University Still Requests Potlatch River Water

The Regents of the University of Idaho have applied to the Department of Reclamation for a permit to divert 33.91 cubic feet per second of water from the Potlatch River, in Clearwater County, to meet the future domestic and municipal needs of the University and the City of Moscow.

R. Keith Higginson, State Reclamation Engineer, said that the Department of Reclamation has received petitions and letters from over 700 persons and organizations protesting the filing. The objections appear to be based upon the contention that there is no water available for the University if existing rights are supplied as well as a fear that such an interbasin transfer would have an adverse effect upon fish, wildlife, and other water uses. One protest was written on a piece of wrinkled wrapping paper inside of which were two feathers and the jawbone and tail of some small animal tied together with rawhide.

Higginson will conduct a public meeting in the High School at Kendrick, at 7:30 p. m. on January 25, 1968, to discuss the individual protests and to determine the need for, and procedure to be followed at any future former hearing. He pointed out that there are many uses of water in the state which are not recorded, by filing with the Department or by court decree. Many of the protestants appear to be claiming such unrecorded rights.

The decision on the University application will be based upon the Department's finding of the availability of unappropriated water, the effect upon existing water rights, a showing of financial feasibility and evidence that the application was not made for delay or speculation.

FIFTY YEARS AGO...

A Genesee Man Shares His Reminiscences

By Henry Lorang

That time would take one back to the 1917-18 era when all of Western Europe was facing a common formidable foe at the command of Kaiser Wilhelm of the German Empire who dreamed nothing impossible by overcoming national enmities and the eventual conquest of the Western Hemisphere.

When the United States declared war against Germany on April 6th, 1917, I was attending the Northwestern Business College to take a business course along with some newly made friends in Spokane who had come from country towns in Idaho and Washington.

Business in Idaho in 1967 ran the gamut from excellent to poor depending on the industrial segment and geographical area, but by most measurements available the state's economic growth during the year approached the national average. This is the report of First Security Bank's quarterly News Letter which will be distributed soon, it was announced by W. J. Phair.

The News Letter is edited by Dr. El Roy Nelson, First Security vice president and economist.

Further expansion of the state's economy in 1968 is expected to proceed at the same rate as national growth is indicated. The outlook for agriculture and metals, phosphate, paper and lumber, is fair to good according to First Security, but major problems are seen in metal production in the Coeur d'Alene area due to labor difficulties.

There is anticipated some increase in total gross and net farm income in 1968. During the first three months of the year, cash receipts from marketing about be slightly above totals of one year ago, thus reflecting slightly higher prices for livestock and slightly greater quantities of crops marketed.

Cash receipts from farm marketing in Idaho during 1967 exceeded $500 million, slightly less than the record of $542 million in 1966. Crop production during 1967 was generally lower. Approximately the same ratio is expected for the 1967 crop with small quantity going into starch and a larger quantity going to food than was the case for the 1966 crop.

Value of mineral production in Idaho during 1967 was listed at $106.2 million according to preliminary figures released by the U. S. Bureau of Mines. For the first six months of the year records were established but the copper strike closed three major mines in the Coeur d'Alene area in July. Silver production in 1967 was reported at 16.3 million ounces, somewhat below that of the two preceding years.

Total non-agricultural employment in the state in November was 226,109, up 5.40 or 2.4 per cent from a year earlier. Increase were shown in all major categories except mining where the strike against copper companies exist. Unemployment at 10,800 was 6.2 per cent below last year. However, some 400 were involved in labor disputes in the mining district. The seasonally adjusted rate of unemployment in November was 4.1 per cent, the lowest for any November in ten years.

Preliminary estimates indicate retail trade in Idaho totalled $1.18 billion, or almost five per cent above 1966. Trade was sluggish in the early months of 1967 but was generally good during the end of the year.

Tree and shrubs, too, need protection from winter weather. Like people, they stand the cold better if they are properly dressed.

Sunscald is one of the main problems Honor Fetter, county agricultural agent advises. This occurs in winter when day temperature is considerably warmer than it is at night. Fruit trees and several species of ornamentals such as maple, mountain ash and sycamore, are susceptible. Cuts beneath the bark become active by day and die at night. Trees are wounded where bark drops off. An easy method of protection, the agent said, is to place a board—about one by ten will do nicely—at the south side of the trees to shade it from the sun side.

Another method is to wrap aluminum foil around the trunk.

Foundation shrubs are sometimes smashed by snow falling from the roof. Damage can be reduced if snow and ice is carefully knocked off without breaking the branches. The best remedy, however, is prevention of the trouble by planting the shrubs three or four feet from the building.

And when you prune trees next spring, it is a good idea to keep winter protection in mind. A branch left low on the south side will cast a shadow and give some protection from sunscald.

Careful Income Tax Filing Is Advised

File tax returns carefully. The advice of Internal Revenue officials again this year regarding income tax returns.

1. Use the addresses printed on the forms mailed to each taxpayer, or at least the "piggy back" label on them which is coded for machine processing.

2. Follow the instructions enclosed with the forms, which show line-by-line how to prepare the return.

3. Double-check the return for correct social security numbers, name and address, signatures, arithmetic and calculation of the tax.

4. Save records to prove all deductions taken.

5. Salary and wage earners should not file their returns until they receive Forms W-2 from all their 1967 employers.

6. Audits said incorrect or incomplete returns delay the payment of income tax refunds.

Sheep Producers Should File For Payments

Sheep producers are reminded to file applications for 1967 marketing year payments under the national wool act by the end of January.

Payments on Wool Represent the Percentage Necessary to Bring the National Wool Act Into Effect

Payments on wool represent the percentage necessary to bring the national wool act into effect. The wool will be at a level comparable to that for shorn wool.

Because Payments are Based on National Wool Act, Producers are Urged to File Returns as Soon as Possible

Payments for the 1967 sales will begin about April.

The Genesee Community Firemen, have set Saturday, February 17 as the date for their annual public crab feed, it was decided at the Monday business meeting.

This yearly event is sponsored by the local Firemen and is used to assist members of the department or their families in case of need. This money, separate from the regular department fund and is used only for this purpose.

The meal will be served in the upstairs of the Fire Hall Saturday, February 17 between the hours of 5 and 6 p. m.

Admission charge of $2.50 for adults and high school students and $1.75 for grade school children will be made. Pre-school children will be served free.

The meal will consist of fresh crab, cole slaw, potato salad, relish plate, pickles, crackers, coffee, soft drinks, and other refreshments.

Community Day Date Is June 8

The first meeting of the general committee for the 1968 Genesee Community Day celebration was held Tuesday evening, January 16 in the Firemen's Hall. The meeting was presided over by J. Wayne Roach, who will serve as general chairman for this year's annual celebration.

Other members of the general committee this year are Jess Johnson, Louis Leaman, Fred Gray and Jerry Carnive. Also, Johnson, Pharr and Singhose are all new to the committee. Roach and Newman were both on the 1967 committee.

After a discussion of possible dates for this year's celebration it was decided to hold Community Day on Saturday, June 8. This seemed to be the date that would have the least amount of conflicts with other events already scheduled in other communities.

The weather and the possibility of farmers still having work to do must also be considered in selection of a date.

The committee also agreed to contract with Gerald Foster, owner and manager of the Great Day Way Carnival, to be in Genesee for this year. Foster brought his units up for the 1967 celebration and he proved to be very satisfactory.

The committee will meet again Tuesday, January 30 at which time other committee appointments will be made. Any suggestions for additions or improvements in the celebration will be appreciated by the general committee.

FROM OUR FILES

30 YEARS AGO
 Word has been received by Mrs. Lloyd Esser of the death of her great grand-father, Mrs. Arvina Clouse at her home in Raymond, Oklahoma. Mrs. Clouse was aged 97 years, passing away January 17.

A no-host surprise birthday dinner was given Thursday evening of last week for Mrs. Dick Nebelsieck at her home.
 Henry Oberg and Wm. Gray left Jan. 19 for southern California.
 Mrs. Archie Harris and daughter, Miss Glenn returned Thursday of last week from Walla Walla where the latter underwent an operation for appendicitis.

30 YEARS AGO
 The annual meeting of the Genesee Farmers Union was held Saturday afternoon. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year. H. J. Herman, president; Thos. H. Dwyer, v. p.; W. E. Tipton, sec'y-treas., and H. Baumgartner, doorkeeper.

The Isch-ga-bibble club and their husbands were entertained at cards Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. Joe Kempf.

Neither absent nor tardy for the first semester are: 1st grade: Gladys Meschaker, 2nd: Oscar Hampton, Cecil Nebelsieck, 6th: Olive Mulalley, Bessie Newbrough; 7th: Beatrice Armstrong; 8th: Irene Mulalley, Margaret Sampson, Jess McMahon, Margaret Anderson, Doris Newbrough; high school: Elizabeth Hayward, Susie Alber, Fred Meyer.

Miss Sophie Beechler recently entertained a number of friends with a well-prepared dinner.
 As an example of what can be done to increase the earnings of a farm, Arvina Borgen sold to the Bee Hive on Wednesday, dried prunes to the amount of $14.25.

Messames Geschelchen and Frank Jones, Mrs. Dr. Hayes and others are on the gripe list.
 Carpenters have been improving the interior of the M. E. church this week. The east wing has been sealed.

Harrows and plows have been brought out, birds sing, doors wide open, what more evidence do you want that spring is here.
 Chas. Ingle gets his share of joshing lately. Everyone wants to be treated.

Sherry, the Lewiston barber, according to the teller, hired a stranger to assist him in the shop. After a month the two men discovered they were brothers and now they have a big time. The stranger was stolen from home when a boy and was made a circus performer. After he could learn no more circus tricks, he learned the barber's trade.

ROOSTER-HEN COUNTS
PLANNED THIS MONTH
 January and February, depending on snow cover and cold weather, is the time when field workers of the Idaho Fish and Game Department take on the job of counting all upland game birds they see as they go about other work during the busy winter season.
 Snow and cold weather are needed to bunch the birds and make them easier to see along the roads. Special emphasis is placed on pheasant sightings during the winter when weather conditions are best for accurate representative sex ratio counts.
 Counting the number of hens and roosters that are seen in the time span allowed gives the pheasant sex ratio, which averages two cocks to one hen through the years. This is combined later with the spring pheasant crowing count census of males to give the breeding population index, which can be compared from year to year.

CARELESSNESS CAUSES ACCIDENTS
 Year after year carefully kept records that meet standards of the National Rifle Association show that most accidents with guns stem from just plain carelessness. Moreover, the bulk of all this accidental mayhem and death is self-inflicted, or from the gun of a buddy in the same party.
 Last year, 36 of the 49 casualties were caused by the accidental discharge of guns; in 1966 the ratio was 19 or 26. Last year, 43 of the 49 accidents were either self-inflicted or from the gun of a buddy in the same party. In 1966 the ratio was 20 out of 26.

TEACHERS ADVISED ON INCOME TAX RETURNS DUE BY JANUARY 31
 Teachers and others in the education field who received retirement fund interest in 1967 may come under the provision of the law requiring them to file their federal income tax returns by January 31, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

IRS information officer John Anduzia said the earlier filing date would apply to those who overlooked payment of an estimated tax by January 15 on the retirement fund interest and any other income not subject to withholding tax, if the amount exceeded $200 for the year or the additional tax resulting is $40 or more.

However, he explained the law also provides that if they file their 1967 return by January 31, they will avoid the penalty charge which is computed at a 6 percent interest rate for not paying on the estimate basis.

Anduzia said forms 1099 reporting of retirement fund interest, which is taxable under federal tax law, are being mailed to all recipients by the State Retirement Fund office.

New Assistant Coaches
Named at U. of Idaho
Football coaching staffs of two 1968
new teams were named by the University of Idaho in the announcement by President Ernest W. Hartung of three assistants to new Head Football Coach
V. C. McNease.

McNease himself is a native of Mississippi, and there is expected to be a lot of Southern drawing in the giving of orders on the practice field, but no drawing is expected in the style of play.
"McNease wants it fast with a lot of action in the air, and he is rounding up a staff to give him just that," said Athletic Director Paul Ostyn. "There is still one assistant to be named. Al Ready on the staff is Ed Troxel, who was

TO THE GENESEE PUBLIC
We wish to offer congratulations to Fred and Jon Cantanessa on the Grand Opening of their new Food Center Thrift Store. We have known these men and their families for a number of years and have complete confidence in their ability to offer our community the best in food service. We wish them every success in their new business and hope our former customers will also continue to give the Cantanessas the same patronage and support we were so grateful to receive.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hove entertained several people at a 6 o'clock dinner on Sunday evening in honor of Mrs. Jim Magee's birthday anniversary.

Miss Dorothy Kries was pleasantly surprised Sunday evening by a group of friends who went to her home to celebrate her birthday.

Miss Eileen Flomer entered St. Lukes hospital in Spokane Monday for Nurses Training.

The two little daughters of Rev. and Mrs. Marcus Rieke, Mary and Grace, both of whom lost their toys in a fire recently which started in their playroom at St. John's Lutheran parish house, were on Sunday given a toy shower at the Lutheran church basement.

50 YEARS AGO

On next Friday, February 8, local talent will present 'Smith's Honeymoon' under the auspices of the Red Cross. The cast of characters include: Edwin Smolt, Fred Bershaw, L. Clark, D. McFarlane, John Hasfurther, Tess Keane, Hazel Moore, Mrs. G. E. Taber, Ella Nebelsieck, Henrietta Meyer, Adeline Bressler, and Mrs. H. W. Brune.

The City Market is erecting a 50-ton ice house in the rear of their market.

Grace Jain returned to school after a 7-week absence.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph N. Hasfurther returned Wednesday afternoon from a 10-day trip to Seattle and other coastal points.

Wednesday night the temperature dipped to 5 below.

Mrs. H. W. Brune had the misfortune to have her hand caught in a power clothes wringer Monday morning. The hand was bruised but no bones broken.

February 3, 1899

Frank Lawen comes up smiling with a brand new boy. Born Saturday and Dr. Beck says he's all right.

Mrs. W. E. Gages circulated a paper around town and raised over $60 for the benefit of the sick and needy members of Co. D at Manila.

Married, at the Catholic Church at Lewiston, Friday, January 27, Mr. Mox Ebel and Miss Maggie Moore.

Walter Jain was the happiest man in Genesee yesterday, but it was not on account of the groundhog seeing his shadow. It's owing to the appearance of a bright little girl at his home. Even Grandpa Lanphar got so hilarious he pushed the price of cattle up a few notches.

Taylor Nebelsieck has cozy quarters now.

Salmon-Steelhead Restoration Moves Ahead

Salmon-steelhead restoration work in the Clearwater River watershed will complete its seventh season this year. It involves constructing artificial hatching channels in headwater streams of one of America's great wilderness areas, the Selway-Bitterroot, and getting perishable eyed fish eggs to them in time for planting. This is one of the crucial fisheries management undertakings in the Pacific Northwest, and one of the big conservation stories in the nation.

More than 6½ million eyed chinook and coho salmon eggs, and just over three-quarters of a million eyed steelhead eggs, were planted in artificial hatching channels last year. Since 1961, when the salmon-steelhead restoration work began, many millions of eyed chinook salmon eggs have been planted as they became available from sources on the Snake and Salmon rivers, and from Bonneville Dam on the lower Columbia River. Several hundred adult salmon and coho spawners a year have been returning to tributaries of the Clearwater the past three seasons.

LINCOLN

High on the mighty plinth the hero stands,
His sad Mount Rushmore-face a sight to see;
And yet the rough-hewn beauty of his hands
Still casts a spell of tenderness on me—
I love to think that in our hearts he lives
A phalanx for the conflicts yet to be;
And how the inspiration that he gives Still helps to make men noble, strong, and free. —Bert Gamble

STILTLED GOOSE NEST structures like this one are built and erected as a project of Explorer Post No. 60 of the Boy Scouts in Boise. These boys are (left) Pat Benson, Arnold Coleman, regional land management supervisor, Idaho Fish and Game Department, and son Jim Coleman and Randy Norell. The goose nest structure is one of ten erected upstream from Black Canyon Dam. On the lower river near Payette, 18 usable goose nest structures were erected last year, and ten of these were used by nesting geese last spring.

Job Opportunities Decline In Latah County

Winter weather continued to keep job activity to a minimum in the Moscow, Idaho area, according to Frank J. Hartstein, Manager of the Moscow Office of the Department of Employment. Hartstein said that his office assisted nine workers in finding employment during the week, the same as during the previous week, and one more than the number helped during the same week in 1967.

Fourteen new jobs were listed with the office, one less than during the week before. At the end of the week there were 38 jobs still open. Several secretarial positions were open in the area, as well as jobs for a rapid and accurate typist, sales clerk, cafe and domestic workers. Men could find work as a farm equipment mechanic, grocery man, TV repairman, service station manager and an insurance salesman. Although fourteen workers filed new entitled for the year. Hartstein said that at this time a year ago there were 246 persons receiving benefits. In the immediate Moscow area, the total number receiving jobless pay was 89, compared with 84 a week ago and 105 a year ago. In Genesee the total was four, one less than a week ago. In the Troy-Deary-Bovill area 69 workers were receiving checks, 76 last week and 80 last year. Thirty-one checks were going into the Palatch area, one more than a week ago, but less than the 43 of this time last year. Nine workers in the Kendrick area were continuing their claims, a week ago there were ten. Eleven workers from Elk River were applying for benefits, the same as last week, but fewer than the 18 who were seeking benefits at this time in 1967.

PIONEERING with POTLATCH

It was a new century . . . a time of exciting new developments in logging. The Steam Donkey was about to make its entrance.

The first two Potlatch donkeys went to Helmer and Moosa Creek . . . and soon there were twenty more throughout the Bovill-Potlatch-Elk River area. By 1907 the woods resounded with the grind and thunder of these tireless skidders. The crews included a donkey puncher, wood buck, hook tender, two choker setters and a white punk. Together, they could snake the biggest log from as much as 1800 feet in the timber, through brush and stumps—bounce it along the skid road, and into the yarding area for loading. World War I scarcity of parts made repairing "down" donkeys increasingly difficult, and they were gradually replaced by horses. By the early 1930's, tractors were replacing the horses. TODAY, the cat-skinner skids several trees at a time with his tractor to the landing area. Trucks transport them to decking areas where logs are held for the final leg of their journey to the mill by rail or log drive down the Clearwater River.

University of Idaho Research Unit Studies Cougar
What effect does America's big cat, the cougar, have on the great herds of deer and elk that roam the Pacific North West? Is he a menace or a benefactor? These are some of the questions answered by Dr. Maurice G. Hornocker in a study he conducted on the big cat during three consecutive winters from 1964 to 1966.
According to Dr. Hornocker, newly-appointed leader of the Idaho Cooperators of Idaho, "The cougar is an important animal and one we can't afford to lose. Until such time as the surplus deer and elk can be harvested by hunters, bringing these populations into balance with their winter food supply, then, cougar predation will remain beneficial."
To gather data for this study on the cougar and its effect on prey Hornocker went into the rugged Idaho Primitive Area near Big Creek and successfully captured 30 cats, some as many as 14 times for a total of 116 different captures. In tracking the big cats, Hornocker walked more than 3,700 miles and in mountains ranging from 5,300 to 7,000 feet.
To capture the cougars, Hornocker used three pound dogs to track and tree them, and a tranquilizer gun to quiet them. The tranquilizer gun, developed by Hornocker, resembles a shotgun and is fired by a 50 cal. charge. The final step is to mark the drugged lion by tattooing or with a collar for future reference when recaptured or killed.
"We had a couple of close calls trying to get the drugged cat out of rotten trees or trees hanging over bluffs, but one incident was particularly close. It happened when I first began the study for past years, may be the result of widespread dispersal of ducks and geese in the beginning of winter. The mid-winter waterfowl inventory basically is the responsibility of the Fish and Wildlife Service, with Neal Argy, game management agent in Boise, as coordinator.

Waterfowl Counted
Officially the statewide waterfowl inventory shows 555,281. Of these, 525,085 were ducks and 5,000 were geese. Counts which are tallied separately, totaled 25,000. There were 31 trumpeter swans and 230 whistlers. There were 29 state workers and 4 federal workers. Henry Lorang, 80, Genesee Pioneer, Passes February 7
Henry Lorang, 80, died of a heart attack at 4 p. m. Wednesday, February 7 at Sacred Heart Hospital at Spokane where he had been a patient for two weeks.
He had resided in Genesee most of his life.
He was born on January 26, 1888 at Genesee, while that town was still part of Nez Perce county. He was the son of John and Mary Lorang.
He was a student at Northwestern Business College at Spokane when World War I began. He enlisted in the Army December 11, 1917 and served in France in 1918 with the 247th Aero Squadron.
He settled on a farm near Genesee after the war. He married Margaret of the Lewis and Clark Hotel at Spokane in 1923.
The reception which was originally planned for January was postponed due to an automobile accident in December.
The Juttos have three children, Wayne, Lewiston, Idaho; Mrs. Clinton (Grace) Lyette, Moscow, and Mrs. Roy (Gloria) Virah, Tacoma, Wash. They have eight grandchildren.

Local SCS Man Returns From California Training Session
By Larry Sorensen
There are a few people in the sub-unit of the Soil Conservation Service District located around Genesee who might be interested to know just what happened to me the past two weeks, from January 21 to February 2, 1968, so I will try to explain.
About January 18th, I was called by the boss from Boise and told that I had been selected from personnel in Idaho along with two others, to attend a Grade Inspectors School in San Luis Obispo, California, and would I accept the invitation. After a few slight protests I accepted since to better ones self it is usually necessary to put forth some effort in one's behalf.
I was also told that I would be sent to Montpellier, Idaho for two months, May and June, to work as an inspector on a project being built in that area, and I would be returning to Genesee on or about July 1.
Early in the morning of January 21st, I boarded a plane to Los Robles, California. Enroute I was with five or six other SCS employees from Wyoming, Washington, and Oregon, all going to attend the same school.
Some were seasoned veterans as inspectors for other projects in their own respective areas where such small water construction projects are in some degree of completion at the present time.
The first hour of school gave each student an opportunity to talk about himself, where he was from, his hobbies and finally to give a good introduction and allow for some form of bragging.
A short introduction to the course was given. The students were selected to attend the school because some superior officer believed the man had some of the following qualities, of which there were 10. 1. He should be a leader. 2. He should possess a pleasing personality. 3. He would have background of knowledge of construction work and technical know how, and have had some experience working with people. 4. He must be observant in all phases of the work. 5. He must have use and tact as well as some good common sense and fair play. 6. He must be honest in all of his phases. 7. He must be friendly, but firm, with all people. 8. He must keep good records. This is most important. 9. He must be resourceful and stay on top of all situations. 10. He must be of good moral character.
I quickly observed that if I had made some of my supervisors believe I had all of these virtues, that I had been underpaid for a long time, or maybe had just acquired some of them.
Anyway, after finding that I qualified for this training, we began schooling.
The bell rang at 8:00 a. m. and run until 5:00 p. m. with one hour lunch break, and reconvened at 7:00 to about 9:00 p. m. In the evening there were three instructors, each taking a two-hour period and each instructing on a different phase of the overall program.
Items covered were SCS standards and specifications. Reading and interpreting plans. Earth work surveying, staking state road, soil compaction, field tests and job work.
There were several sessions spent on concrete. Kinds, history, how it should be mixed and how the aggregate should be handled, stored, transported, placed in the forms and how it could be checked for strength.
To this was added steel reinforcing, kinds and makes, along with forms and special ties and strength tests.
There were about eight hours of this session that dealt with contracts and negotiating and management of them.
Not that we would be setting up contracts but that we would be able to work with them better by knowing about them.
I am sure I might have missed some of the finer parts of the school, but I will be able to get some field experience on the job at Montpellier, Idaho, during May and June and near the first of July. I will be back during that time.
The regular conservation work will be done out of Moscow and Lewiston work unit offices.

Variety of Topics Discussed At City Council Meeting
The Colton Wildcats, who rolled with ease to a 60-33 win over the Bulldogs last month, defeated Genesee again last Saturday night, but were pressed to come out with their 60-55 victory. Tuesday night the Bulldogs were hosting the Lapwai Wildcats and defeated the valley team 64-44. The Bulldogs were an earlier 41-34 defeat suffered on the LHS floor.
In a fast-paced, rough game the Bulldogs exchanged leads several times with the Colton squad and were clinging to a slim 27-25 advantage at the half in their Saturday night contest. Colton's strength and superiority on the backboard spelled the difference in the final half as they defeated Genesee 60-55. Nick Englund scored 12 points to be high point man for the Bulldogs. Doug Springer and Terry Goltz each had 12 points.
Genesee won the preliminary contest 44-37.
Genesee Over Lapwai
The Wildcats from Lapwai were not quite as wild as the Colton bunch, and Genesee scored an impressive 61-54 victory Tuesday night on the home court. Genesee went ahead in the first quarter after the score was tied at 8-8 and was never behind. Doug Springer counted for almost a third of the Bulldog score in the first quarter. Darrel Green and Nick Englund each added 12 more tallies.
Genesee swept the bill class the first of July. I will be back during that time.
The regular conservation work will be done out of Moscow and Lewiston work unit offices.

Special Meeting of Genesee School Board
The Genesee School Board at a special meeting Friday studied the budget for the coming school year. It was felt by the board that the school could operate next year with the same millage as this year. It was also discussed and approved that all teachers in the system be offered contracts for the coming year.
Francis H. Larson, Clarkston, and Edna Haight Hampton, Lewiston, were married January 31, in St. Paul's Episcopal Church Chapel, Walla Walla, W. A. Father Roger Williams officiated and the officiant was Mr. and Mrs. Alton Hauser of Pomeroy.
After the ceremony, the couple spent a few days in Salem, Oregon where they visited the Hampton family. The family, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Hampton, will reside on Alpova Road, Clarkston.

of years of evolution to produce. Lindbergh, now 65, writes in the Christmas magazine piece that "If I were entering adulthood now instead of in the environment of 50 years ago, I would choose a career that kept me in contact with nature more than science. This is a choice, an individual still can make—but no longer mankind in general. Too few natural areas remain. Both by intent and indifference we have mauled ourselves from the wilderness that produced us. Our emphasis of science has resulted in alarming rises in world populations that demand an ever-increasing emphasis of science to improve their standards and maintain their vigor."
America's celebrated "Lone Eagle" was named a couple of years ago as director of the World Wildlife Fund, which is headed by Dr. Ira N. Gabrielson, former director of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and global authority on saving rare and endangered wildlife species.

Lindbergh spoke out in another mass-circulation magazine piece in 1964 on the same subject, as follows:
"Is civilization progress? The challenge, I think, is clear; and as clearly, the final answer will be given not by our accumulation of knowledge, or by the speed of our aircraft, but by the effect our civilized activities as a whole have upon the qualities of our planet's life—all life of plants and animals as well as that of men."
He questions the value of supersonic transports that will travel between earth and moon and nearby planets; of cosmic power literally in the hands of our planet; of all its irreplaceable wildlife qualities of even greater worth.

Ideas such as these have been expressed in many ways by great numbers of people the past few decades, at least. It is not hard to see the hopeless plight man is fashioning for himself—the desolate, airless, and poisonous water and air, the sad state of massive cities that are outdated by their antiquated technologies. In other words, mankind is fouling its own nest, expanding the gross national product by ten per cent a year.

Of importance here is that Lindbergh said these things in print where millions of readers can see them. People are quoting "Lucky Lindy" to the effect that it is important to put a man on the moon—but even more so to save a chunk of wilderness for all time. The words have weight, since most people love and respect this great American.

It was Peter Scott, first president and chairman of the World Wildlife Fund, who summed the whole thing up in these words:
"Man is the most dangerous and destructive predatory animal that has ever known. He is also the most imaginative and creative (animal). Man has evolved important differences from other animals like reasoning power and accumulated experiences which are rather striking. Not the least among these is the evolution of a conscience." The still has about 27 million acres of land that is classed as public domain. This land is managed by the U. S. Forest Service, National Park Service, Idaho State Land Department, and the Bureau of Land Management. These lands generally are open for public use, to play, hike, hunt, fish, swim and recreate with few responsibilities. This great public domain with its rich fish and wildlife resources can be maintained through sound conservation measures as a place of beauty and enjoyment and passed on to a better land for those who follow. The dollar impact of such resources on the state's economy is of enormous importance.

Some people charge that Idahoans are insensitive to the fundamental nature of their wildlife heritage, that most of the natives take it for granted. Just the opposite may be true. Instead of being highly vocal and getting some of their pleasure into words, they simply enjoy their five senses the unique privilege of being just a few minutes from their homes to good hunting and fishing—wherever they may live.
Such people have learned how to see the rhythm of poetry and grace in the motions of a trumpeter swan in flight; how to feel textured rock, or grass underfoot and the multitude of surfaces all around; how to hear the symphony of the storm, and of quiet emptiness; how to taste wild sage that blends with the horizon on all sides. Without knowing how to find words to capture such pleasures, Idaho outdoorsmen somehow know or feel that man and nature are not two things apart. Man is nature—fully and completely—no more and no less. Such knowledge is a sixth sense. It also is what National Wildlife Year is all about, with its theme this year—"Learn to Live With Nature." As Lindbergh so aptly wrote, "The human future depends on an ability to combine the knowledge of science with the wisdom of wildlife."

MY SWEETEST VALENTINE
Not dainty, crinkly, paper-face
With cupid smiling through;
No ogling painted, female face
With lipstick gooily-goo—
But great big rounds for kisses
With strokes along the way,
Which means "our arms go 'round your neck
And love you good each day"—
Tattered, and battered, and frouthy
With scribbles of love divine;
Proving how WEE FOLK wrought
For—MY SWEETEST VALENTINE.

RURAL ELECTRIFICATION

PIIONEERED BY WWP

Just after the turn of the century, about 1906, The Washington Water Power began a continuing program of rural electrification.

That year our first long transmission line was built from Spokane through the Palouse.

Two years later another extension was built west to Lind. By 1909, the young WWP Company was serving 877 suburban customers in 12 little Inland Empire communities plus 84 farms.

By 1939, this had grown to 1,326 miles of rural lines, serving 10,406 customers. At that time, 61% of Washington State farms were "electrified," second only to California. This was a proud accomplishment.

When REA's were formed, WWP recognized their mission and entered into a cooperative arrangement, delivering Bonneville power to REA's over WWP lines. This assistance was at no cost to REA's and relieved them of much difficult and expensive construction.

Cooperation of this sort, added to the early pioneering and know-how of WWP, makes it little wonder that the Inland Empire has led the nation in farm electrification.

Today, many farm homes in this area rival or surpass city houses in the use of electricity. Farming has become a sophisticated and involved operation, but today, as for three generations past, WWP is still there, "Reddy" to help.

GREEN PHEASANTS ARE TOUGH TO HUNT
More than 1,500 Japanese green pheasants were released last year in Idaho's five northernmost counties in a strictly experimental introduction program that is slated to continue for several seasons. In northern Idaho, where green pheasants are abundant, they are found along forest edges and brushy draws away from cultivated fields more than ring necks. This means that greens can live in a wet climate. But wintertime in their homeland is not as harsh as in the Panhandle.

Letters to the Editor
 To the Editor:
 From the San Jose Mercury, "The aircraft carrier Oriskany—minus 19 fliers shot down, captured or missing—returned Wednesday." This represents about one sixth of the men assigned as pilots on that ship. At a rate such as this, for every six carriers assigned to Viet Nam, we would lose one carrier's complement of pilots. It does seem that daily we read of the loss of one or more military aircraft.

Salmon River
 Called the River of No Return, the fast-flowing rapid-filled Salmon River is navigable only downstream. Rubber rafts, with experienced white water guides make the exciting and wet trip from Salmon to Riggins, taking fishermen, hunters, and adventurous sight-seers through a magnificent canyon carved by a rampaging river. Celebrated Chinook salmon fight their way upstream each autumn, leaping rapids and jumping small cascades.

IDAHO PRIDE ACTIVITY
 Thirty-two Latah County 4-H Junior Leaders met to consider the new Idaho Pride Activity" Saturday morning at the Latah County Courthouse.
 Beverly Lyon, Vicki and Terry Beck presented an hour-long program on how Latah Junior Leaders could best implement this new program.
 Leonard Burns, Latah County Agent, said this activity is designed to strengthen relationships of young people with their community leaders through community service activities such as beautification and Keep Idaho Green.
 Idaho State Key Awards certificates for outstanding leadership in club and community were awarded to Marilyn Lyon, Jim Westberg, Dianne Lindsey, Moscow; Connie Tietz, Carol Tietz, of Prineas; and Bryn Lindsey, Polk.
 Others receiving this award, but not present are: Susan Allor, Deary; Nancy Frye, Alice Pope, Becky Youmans, Sharon Hoffman, Moscow; Melvin Krasslet, Julian Howard, Kathy Kried, Potlatch; and Rhonda Brammer, Kendrick.

20 lbs. Good Hay Daily For Beef Cows
 A beef cow can winter well on about 20 pounds of good hay per day, Leonard Burns, county agricultural agent, advises stockmen. Quality legume and grass hay will be sufficient feed in most cases if there is free-choice moisture or trace mineral salt and bone meal or dicalcium phosphate, according to Morris Hemstrom, livestock specialist of the University of Idaho extension service.
 To bring a pregnant cow through the winter in moderate flesh and good condition to produce a healthy calf, Hemstrom said, it is advisable to feed about two pounds of dry roughage per day for each 100 pounds of body weight. A pound of barley equals two pounds of high-quality hay or three pounds of lower-quality hay in energy value. He also suggests feeding the best roughage to first-class heifers and lactating cows. Plenty of clean, fresh water is necessary at all times. Control parasites.
 An economical way to use dry-cows range for a beef heifer is to let the cows graze as long as there is feed. Provide a free choice mixture of salt, mineral and vitamin A. Cows on this kind of grazing will usually do all right, Hemstrom said. They can lose 10 percent of their weight with no ill effects.
 About six pounds of quality hay per day will furnish minimum protein requirement. You can feed hay about twice a week. Additional protein for cows on winter range can be supplied by cottonseed or soybean meal in soft defense with salt added to limit intake of protein. It requires about 800 pounds of salt to one ton of meal to limit intake of protein supplement to the required amount. As cows become more tolerant to salt higher levels will be needed. Lots of water must be supplied when large amounts of salt are eaten.

The plaques can bear the signatures of donors, the names of friends or persons to be honored, the crests or seals of organizations.
 Of the 128 memorial gifts of $1,000 or more, 101 have come from alumni, and 27 from non-alumni. Of the total of $188,741 in this category, $135,341 came from within the state, and $53,400 from out of state.

 Between the half-thawed snowdrifts
 Back from the woodland shore;
 Your starry eyes come peering
 Before the March winds roar—
 Sweet hangers of springtime,
 Cast in the frozen mold;
 Give to me your riches,
 All that my heart can hold—
 Teach me the happy magic
 That strength of struggle brings:
 Help me to live for others
 Like you, through the coming springs—
 Lead me in full surrender
 From selfish things apart;
 Glorious winter blossoms,
 Burgeon within my heart.

SCIENCE TOPICS
MOON MYSTERY IS IT HOLLOW?
 A DEVICE being tested high atop the Hudson Palisades by Columbia University scientists at the Lamont Geological Observatory may give the first measure of the inner structure of the moon. One of the first U. S. lunar astronauts will plant the device, a seismometer, on the moon's surface to detect moonquakes. The scientists who designed it believe its readings will solve one of the lunar mysteries: Is the moon made of solid rock, or does it, like the earth, have a hard mantle with a liquid inner core of molten rock?
 A 20,000-POUND track-inspection car, the heaviest ever instrumented, is determining and recording track condition under simulated load conditions on a major U. S. railroad. It is the first of its size to operate in the U. S. A special floor of five-inch-thick steel was installed so that the car would simulate load conditions of "working" cars. National Cylinder Gas, Chicago, says the car simultaneously measures the curvature and vertical unevenness of both rails, super-elevation, track gauge, track twist, distance, time, speed and actual mileage. Railroads have depended on the eyes and notebooks of track walkers for this kind of information.
 WORKING with a gigantic but intricate detector deep in an old silver mine, University of Utah physicists have uncovered evidence suggesting the existence of another highly elusive and mysterious sub-atomic particle of nature.

STUDIES of monkey communication and social organization are giving scientists a better understanding of the nature of more complex societies, such as that of man, reports a University of Wisconsin zoologist. He says that by observing the behavior and communication of a group of monkeys, researchers are able to explain how these social behaviors—known as culture—are transmitted from one member of the group to another. "A more complete understanding of the nature of social organization and communication in the non-human primates can have valuable implications for treating human social problems," he said in the report.

Rep. Brocke Feels Special Legislature Accomplished Little

February 12, 1968 George F. Brocke, State Representative of District 5, commented on the special session of the 39th legislature that adjourned Friday, to the effect that very little was accomplished, and that serious damage to the State was done in some areas.

Brocke said that the people of South Idaho just do not understand the forests and forest industry of Northern Idaho. Such was the case of Senate Bill 3 which limits the liability of forest fire protection to 180 per acre on all forest lands.

Brocke stated that the amendment that was added to the dredging bill was of such a nature that the only move possible was to not act upon the amendment, but leave the dredging laws as they are now.

PIONEERING with POTLATCH This was real horse power! Steam donkeys had been used earlier for skidding in some areas, and had more power in their favor. But for most of the men on the crews, horses were a welcome relief. Parts for repairing donkeys were next to impossible to come by during World War I, but horses didn't require mechanics and a shop full of spare parts.

Job Openings Remain High Nineteen Latah County workers were assisted in finding employment during the past week by the Moscow Department of Employment office according to Frank J. Hartstein, Moscow Office manager. Hartstein said that this is just one more week that 18 helped to find work during the previous week, but more than three times the six who were given job finding help during the same week in 1967. Among the men placed on jobs were a machinist, a bulk petroleum products truck driver, a service station attendant, warehouseman, construction laborer, sales clerks, cafe and domestic workers. At the end of the week there were 45 jobs still open in the Moscow area for qualified workers. Fast and accurate typists could find work, as well as secretaries, sales clerks, an experienced grocery checker, cafe and domestic workers. Men could find work as a service station manager, farm hands, a machinist, insurance salesman, auto mechanics, a carpenter and an orderly. Hartstein said that the number of jobs open in the area continues to remain high for this time of year, but pointed out that most call for specific training or experience. He said that his office had a number of University students and high school students who were seeking part time work. Most of these young men and women have not had the time to develop specialized skills, Hartstein said, but they do have the enthusiasm and the desire to do a good job if given the opportunity. Although 13 persons filed new claims or unemployment insurance during the week, the total number of persons still receiving benefits dropped from 211 to 208 at the end of the week. A year ago there were 235 idle workers throughout the county receiving unemployment insurance. In the immediate Moscow area there were 94 workers receiving benefits, the same as a week ago, but less than the 100 of the corresponding week last year. The total at Genesee was 5, compared with 4 at the end of last week. Sixty-five persons were seeking jobs pay from the Troy-Deary-Bovill area, compared with 71 during the previous week and 76 a year ago. At Kendrick the total was 10, two more than the previous week. Thirty-three checks were going into the Polatach area, the same as last week and three more than the 30 of the same week in 1967. Elk River, the total was 9 workers receiving jobs pay, down two from the previous week was down 10 from the 19 Hartstein claims one year ago. Hartstein predicted a rise in unemployment within the next few weeks as warmer weather seems to be approaching the area causing the imposition of limits on highways and the closing of some logging roads to heavy traffic.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS Q. Under the new Social Security law, how much can I earn and still draw Social Security? A. If you are entitled to Social Security benefits and your total earnings for 1968 are $1,680 or less, you can still collect all of your Social Security benefits. Q. Do the 1967 Social Security amendments also change the monthly amount I can earn without losing my Social Security benefit for that month? A. Yes. Regardless of your total earnings for the year, you can receive a Social Security check for any month in which you do not earn more than $140 in wages and you are not active in self-employment. Q. Does this new change in the law apply to my 1967 earnings which I will report in 1968? A. No. Your annual report of earnings concerns your 1967 earnings and the old law, with the $1500 limit applies. The new law is effective for earnings in 1968. Q. If I earn more than $1680, do I lose all of my Social Security benefits for the whole year? A. No. If your total earnings in 1968 are more than $1680, but not more than $2880; $1 may be withheld from your Social Security benefits for each $2 of your earnings above $2880. Q. I work only part of each year; can I get Social Security benefits when I'm not working? A. Yes. Regardless of the total amount you earn in a year, no benefits will be withheld for any month in which you do not earn over $140 in wages, and you aren't engaged in substantial service in self-employment. If you are self-employed, you should inquire at your Social Security District Office for more information about how this rule applies to your particular situation. Q. I am 73 years old. Does the new Social Security law change the work test in my case? A. No. There was no change in that part of the law. Regardless of your earnings in the year, no Social Security benefits will be withheld because of your work in any month in which you are 72 or older.

MILD WINTER WEATHER AIDS WILD CREATURES

Favorable wintering conditions for big game animals throughout the state were reported today by the Idaho Fish and Game Department in a statement adding that drastic changes would be necessary to cause problems now for most elk and deer herds. However, a growing food shortage is faced by waterfowl near Blackfoot, where some 250,000 wild ducks face a critical situation, according to Dale R. Jensen, Pocatello regional game biologist. Unlike hardy ring-necked pheasants, ducks are not equipped to dig through deep snow to find food.

Ray Rogers, Coeur d'Alene, regional game biologist, reports generally mild temperatures and light snowfall have prevailed in the Idaho panhandle through the winter months. "Although there has been an easy winter for big game, Big game wintering conditions likewise have remained favorable on most ranges," he said. "The snow cover in the McCall region, according to David Neider, regional game biologist. Earlier snow fall on the lower slopes of the Salmon and Snake River drainages has melted well above critical portions of the range. Greenup is apparent long the main Salmon River below Riggs. Weather conditions have not been severe enough to cause real problems for upland game birds. Turkey trapping has not been successful because flocks have remained high and inaccessible. Dick Norrell, Boise, regional game biologist, comments that above average temperatures in January left big game winter range bare or with light snow cover. All game animals and upland game birds were wintering exceptionally well, with no concentrations noted. In the Salmon area, snow depths are below average for this time of year, despite January storms. Snow covers the valley floor, but not enough to make problems for pheasants and chukars, according to Ralph V. Peterson, regional game biologist.

BIG QUAKE PREDICTED TO SHAKE CALIFORNIA
 A CATASTROPHIC EARTHQUAKE is "inevitable" before long in central California, says a University of Michigan physicist. He predicts it will be at least as severe as the one that leveled San Francisco in 1906. He forecasts the quake "sometime in the next 10 to 20 years, possibly even tomorrow." The San Andreas fault, which runs along the California coastline, is responsible for the 1906 earthquake and for dozens of lesser tremors since then.
 Most major quakes in this system occur about every 50 years. The longer the period between major tremors, the more severe they tend to be. It has been 62 years since the last big quake shook California.
 VIDEOTAPE REPLAYS are giving students at Georgia Tech a chance "to see themselves as others see them." The tapes are being used extensively by public speaking and industrial classes and also play a role in data acquisition. The speech students re spotting performance flaws that might otherwise have remained unnoticed; student engineers are able to view themselves making oral presentations. The engineering students are also using the videotapes to conduct research; they recently investigated the effects of installing closed-circuit television in a factory.
 CHANCES are that when you try to pronounce a strange word you depend on previous experience with similar words and your knowledge of the English language. But how does a child decide on how to pronounce a new word? A linguist and a psychologist at the University of Wisconsin are analyzing this problem and other skills related to reading in an attempt to determine the clues a child learns that later helps him to correctly pronounce an unfamiliar word. Their research indicates that English orthography, the relationship of letter patterns to pronunciation of words, is a more regular and complex system than had been assumed.

If Little Miss Muffet Only Knew...
 "Little Miss Muffet
 Sat on a Tuffet
 Eating her curds and whey
 When along came a nice man
 And again filled her pan
 With cheese made the Idaho way"
 If the little miss was around today she would see that Idaho is doing a booming business in cheese production and has been since 1922 when the first factory for processing opened in Idaho. Current figures show that the 11 Idaho plants are expanding and making new changes to keep up with an increasing demand from surrounding areas.
 From January to November, 1967, Idaho plants produced 30,580,000 pounds of American cheese. This category includes jack, colby, Monterey, and washed or stirred curd. Those figures are impressive and allow Idaho to rank 8th in national competition. Only seven states stand above the Gem State, but Idaho's population figures in comparison are minimal.
 The food that Little Miss Muffet munched on was a colonial version of what we know today as cottage cheese, but hers was without liquid. The present day whey was once considered a plague to the dairy industry, as a foul-smelling waste product from cheese manufacturing. However, Idaho dairymen have found a good use for the side product in the production of animal feed. The main uses of liquid or dehydrated whey are in bakery products, soups, gravies and fermentation of beverages. It is also a source of minerals, vitamins, protein, and lactose.

Gold-Fashioned Split Pea Soup

Soup-and-Salad Suppers make for relaxed weekend meals the year around, to be enjoyed by family and "company" alike. The soup, of course, should be substantial—a main course in itself—served with a fruit salad that doubles as dessert. This simple basic recipe can be used for dry peas, whole or split, also for lentils. Of variations there is no end, so this treasured "recipe" may well become a "Specialty of the House."

Basic Recipe For Split Pea and Lentil Soups

1 pound (2 1/4) cups green or yellow split peas or lentils
 8 cups cold water
 1 large bayleaf
 1 teaspoon salt
 1/4 cup chopped onion
 1/4 cup diced celery
 1/4 cup diced raw carrots
 1 large bayleaf
 1 teaspoon salt
 1 fat garlic clove, if desired

Combine in heavy kettle with a tight-fitting lid. Bring water to boiling point. Cover. Reduce heat. Simmer for 2 hours, stirring occasionally. Split peas and lentils require no soaking. Dry whole peas need soaking.
 Most recipes suggest that the cooked soups be sieved. Must this always be? It's a chore and seems unnecessary. Split peas will "cook up" more than lentils. Use a potato masher if you feel the need of some puree. Try "chunk style" for a change. These are very thick soups which need a bit of thinning. But use them "condensed" if to be frozen. There will be about 8 cups of the thick soup. Thinned to the desired consistency, count on 10 to 12 servings of a bit more than a cup each.
 To thin: For Dry Pea Soup, stir into the slowly-heated soup a small amount of hot water, light cream or undiluted evaporated milk. For Lentil Soup, chicken broth, tomato juice, diluted cream or tomato soup, or water may be used. Lift out the bay leaf before freezing or serving.

LOST RIVER VALLEY
 This site of a river that sinks into the Snake plain is a gem hunter's paradise, with jasper and agates in abundance.
 McCall, a thriving resort town on Payette Lakes, McCall is also a principal point of entry for the great Idaho wilderness, composed of remote wind-swept plateaus, sheer cliff awesome canyons and towering mountain peaks. Cold clear streams, fed by melting snows flow through a section of the country that, even today, is still only partially explored. To there the visitor must walk, pack-in, boat-in, or fly-in. Experienced outfitters at McCall and other Idaho cities arrange guided trips along hundreds of miles of trails, deep into an area of America where plentiful bear, deer, moose, elk, mountain goat, and big horn sheep move virtually unharmed through thickly forested slopes. Each winter and spring the famed steel head trout make the run along Salmon River streams, some of which have never been fished by man. Nearby is the center for the U. S. Forest Service's famed "Smokejumper" school, an alma mater that trains young men to parachute into forest fires, and for a USAF survival school. East of here lies the half submerged old mining town of Roosevelt, flooded out by an ancient landslide.
 MACKAY
 Tourists are welcomed at a small rodeo held each July and featuring a free barbecue for all comers. Nearby is Mr. Borah, Idaho's highest peak, rising 12,665 feet above Palsimeroi Valley, where one of the world's largest antelope antelope herds roams.
 BOISE
 The State's Capital and largest city, lying in the warm valley of the Boise River, is noted for its beautiful trees. Some of them, planted by President Benjamin Harrison, Theodore Roosevelt and William Howard Taft, surround the imposing Capital Building. Beneath the trees, for free heat by many thrifty office and home owners. The city is also the home of a large Basque colony and visitors may sometimes see traditional Basque dancing. At the Summer Festival and colorful Sheepherder's Ball, Julia Davis Park has one in an interesting pioneer village and museum well worth visiting. Also not to be missed, the Idaho State Historical Society. South of the city, along the Snake River, fishermen sometimes catch sturgeon that weigh hundreds of pounds. North of Boise, a spectacular mountain road leads to Shafter Butte Lookout, which offers, on clear days, one of the State's most magnificent views. Close by, the Bogus Basin ski area has become one of the State's prime skiing spots.

IDAHO MOTORISTS WARNED OF CHANGING TEMPERATURES

Supt. L. Clark Hand of the Idaho State Police warned Idaho motorists today that changing temperatures present a real hazard to winter drivers who may not realize the increased dangers of icy roads when thawing starts. "Watch the temperature when driving on icy roads," advises the superintendent. Temperature, he says, plays an important part in breaking distances and possible traction on snow and ice. As the temperature rises, ice and snow become more slippery.
 Citing an example, Hand said, when the temperature is 30 degrees, the stopping distance of a car traveling 20 miles an hour is approximately 235 feet. But when the temperature is down around zero, the stopping distance is reduced to approximately 114 feet.
 Thus, he pointed out, "Stopping distances are more than twice as long when the temperature is near the melting point, (32 degrees) than when it is near zero."
 The superintendent added, the answer to this major factor of temperature change in winter driving is to ease up in a freeze up and get the feel of the road as you drive.
 This way a driver can control his vehicle so as to insure his own safety and that of others on slippery roads.

I love you March—when tempests rage and roar.
 When winter folds her tents to say "Goodbye."
 When wild chinks beat at my humble door;
 And cloud formations mass to man the sky—
 I love you March—you do not mock at woe,
 But with a sympathizing touch you bring;
 A tenderness—akin to melting snow;
 To comfort me—and TIDE ME ON TO SPRING.

who'd want a new dress if it were just like your old one?

How much fun would be left in fashion if all style were standardized? This system would cut down on shopping time. But it would also cut down on your individuality. In turn, standardization would cut down on advertising, there'd be a cutback in production. And if we worked hard to do so, we might wreck the economy. Wouldn't we be better off to leave things the way they are? Today's advertising is already policed by the world's smartest detective... the American consumer.

Following the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, Clerk C. D. Mardock reported on the city's attempt to increase the water pressure in the west part of town.

John Balduis appeared before the council to ask about the problem of air in the city water lines and also about increasing the water pressure in the west part of town.

The sewer line on Genesee Avenue, which was installed last summer, is starting to sink as the ground settles in the fill. This is creating a problem from both traffic and appearance points and will take some time to correct.

The concert features ancient, traditional and contemporary sacred choral literature, from Palestrina to Noble Cain and Dale Wood. The first group of numbers consists of more worshipful music and is arranged as a typical worship service might begin; the second is some what informal and includes some program type music such as spirituals.

The third group in the concert includes material which has either words or music coming from Christian Church related sources. The words of one song were written by Ross J. Griffith, President Emeritus of Northwest Christian College; another has words by Carlton Buck, Minister of the Eugene First Christian Church. There is music by S. Clarence Trued, a successful composer of church anthems who is music director for the Rostberg First Christian Church.

Other candidates were Jeanne Peterson, freshman; Jill Linehan, sophomore, and Jan Baumgartner, junior. Donna is active as vice president of the senior class, secretary of F. H. A., member of Girls' Club, Pep Band, Youth Legislature, choir, band and small ensemble. She is also a princess of the Genesee Rim Riders, chairman of a poem contest and a member of the Eugene First Christian Church.

Bulldogs Defeat Trojans In Two Overtimes; Kendrick Clips GHS for District Crown

Kendrick High School, the team every one expected to win the 1968 District 2, Class 4-A, disappointed nobody as they walked off with the championship in the basketball tournament concluded last Friday night at Genesee. The KHIS Tigers took the trophy and a chance to participate in the State Tournament by defeating the Trojans in the two overtime game Thursday night.

Troy had upset the Bulldogs 54-51 in the first round of the tournament. Last week in a contest that was close and hard fought, but that first meeting was mild compared to the excitement of this game. Genesee was first on the scoreboard as Doug Springer hit Genesee's first four points, the first basket on a jumper from outside the key and the second a lay-in. Troy came back to make it 4-2. The Trojans then ahead 4-5 on a free throw, Terry Geltz put the Bulldogs back in front 6-5. Troy scored again and it was 6-7. Geltz hit again and it was 6-9. Then Troy 9-8 and Nick Eglund hit a free throw to tie it 9-9. Bob Abbott's free throw put Troy ahead 10-9 but Springer's jump shot pushed the Bulldogs to the front again 11-10 before Troy scored to make it 12-11. Springer's free throw tied it 12-12 and Nick Eglund's tip-in put the Bulldogs in command of a 14-12 game as the first quarter ended.

Troy tied the game 14-14 seconds after the second quarter began and went out ahead by as much as five points. With 4:45 left in the quarter, Troy led 17-14 and he hit one from the side to close the quarter to 21-18, then Eglund made it 21-20 from the top of the key.

With just 1:03 left on the board Nick Eglund tied the score 29-29 and the crowd went into its feet screaming encouragement to both teams. Troy scored with 32 seconds remaining in the game and the score was 61-59. Genesee threw the ball into the air and the Trojans scored with 32 seconds remaining in the game and the score was 61-59. ### Job Openings Show Decrease

Sixteen Latah County residents were assisted in locating suitable employment during the week by the Moscow Office of the Idaho Department of Employment according to Frank J. Hartstein, Moscow Office Manager. Hartstein said that this is the same number as were given job finding help during the previous week, and three more than were sent onto jobs during the same week a year ago. At the end of the week there were 29 jobs still open, 1 less than at the end of the previous week, and down from the 37 jobs open a year ago. Work in the Moscow area is available for sales clerks, maids, cafe and domestic workers, as well as for farm hands, a gardener, part time janitor, service station operator and an auto mechanic. Hartstein said that farm jobs are beginning to be listed with his office for year round workers, farm hands to work from now through fall work, and for workers to just do the spring work.

Logging activities in the area came to a virtual standstill during the previous week, and the number of persons in the logging industry continued to decrease to rise last week. Although the number of persons filing new claims dropped from the previous week's record of 135 to last week's 42, the total number of jobless pay recipients rose to 359 from the previous week's 330. A year ago the total was 219. Hartstein pointed out that the unemployment situation exists in Taiwan, where Western Wheat Associates representatives enjoy a very favorable relationship with buyers.

Canada and Australia have also been courting Oriental wheat importers for the growing volume of cash business. The trade team in which Harris and six others participated was sponsored and organized by the Foreign Agricultural Service and USDA.

Questions and Answers

Q. I am unable to work because of an auto accident. My wife, who supported me since we moved here from Michigan in 1960, died in October, 1967. I tried but was not able to get disability benefits on my own social security. I had too little work under social security. Since I did not qualify on my own can I get benefits on my wife who worked a long time under social security?

A. The new law provides for disability benefits to certain totally disabled widowers who were dependent upon a deceased worker who was fully insured. You may be able to qualify for these benefits if you were dependent upon your wife and you are unable to perform any gainful activity. You should contact your social security office at once.

Got the Hiccups?

a service of the Idaho Medical Assn.
Do you know a sure-fire remedy for hiccups?
If not, you are the exception. It has been suggested there are more cures than hiccups.
Friends are always ready with advice ranging from pounding on the back to frightening you out of your wits.
If you have a pet remedy that works, go ahead and use it, suggests the Idaho Medical Association.
The hiccup occurs for trivial reasons, or for no apparent reason at all and usually given time disappears the same way.
If you are interested in a few more tips, try these:
In the case of babies, give sips of water and pat the baby on the back.
For adults one of the simplest remedies is to lie down and relax.
Take a few sips of water, drinking slowly. Relax and think about something else.
If your hiccups linger on after you have tried all the home remedies which should take some time you may be well advised to contact your family physician.

HELLIS CANYON

The deepest and most awesome part of the 150-mile-long Grand Canyon of the Snake, which forms the border between Idaho and Oregon, lies beneath the Seven Devil's Mountains and is the continent's deepest gorge, an astounding mile to a mile and a half in depth. In places it was almost inaccessible by land, but dam builders, now turning the Snake into a series of lakes, are opening it up. Fishermen and thrill seekers have ridden down stream through the canyon's rapids, but only one group (Donald McKenzie and his tur trappers, in 1819) is known to have gone all the way upstream through the chasm. Trappers can now be made upstream as far as the entrance to the deepest part of the canyon on the weekly mail boat from Lewiston. Partisans of public and

BEWARE OF "FERTILIZER QUACKS"

Beware of "fertilizer quacks," advises Wayne Theissen, soils specialist of the U of I. extension service. They are active in Idaho and many other states, he said, persuading farmers to buy products that frequently have very little value.

The quack claims mysterious benefits from "conditioning" the soil through chemical, biological or other means and unlocking nutrients already in it, often with material from some unusual natural deposit. He makes no guarantee for nitrogen, phosphorus or potassium. Sometimes he claims benefits from micro-nutrients, but he does not guarantee such content. Usually the analysis lists several elements that are not used at all in plant growth. He has no research results from reliable sources to back his claims. When asked what the county agent thinks of the product he often says, "Don't ask him. He probably wouldn't know the value of our product so he wouldn't recommend it."

To be sure you are getting your money's worth, Theissen said, seek trustworthy advice, or use the material on a limited trial basis before you sign up for an unproven product.

Agricultural scientists of the USDA and land-grant universities regularly test new products that show promise of benefit to the farmer.

Business Population In Latah County Up 2.2 Percent

Today Edward Seder, manager of the Spokane office of Dun and Bradstreet, Inc., announced statement received mailed to 364 businesses in Latah County. He said figures obtained from a physical count of the Dun and Bradstreet Reference Book totaled 364 manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers in this area as compared with 356 in 1966—an increase of 2.2 percent for the period.

According to Mr. Seder, each March business concerns in all parts of the United States are asked by Dun and Bradstreet for copies of their financial statements. This year requests are being sent to approximately three million business concerns—to the corner grocer worth a few thousand dollars as well as to businesses worth millions.

The Dun and Bradstreet Reference Book lists those manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers who seek or grant commercial credit. It does not include some of the service and professional businesses such as beauty and barber shops, security dealers and real estate brokers. Therefore, the figures for total business in the United States would be higher than the three million quoted above.

Using the Dun and Bradstreet Reference Book listings as a guide, it is in-cluded some of the service and professional businesses such as beauty and barber shops, security dealers and real estate brokers. Therefore, the figures for total business in the United States would be higher than the three million quoted above.

When the owner or officer of a business enterprise, or his accountant, fills out and mails his financial statement to Dun and Bradstreet, it becomes a part of the credit report on his business and a factor in determining the credit rating of his business.

Mailing the statement, rather than waiting for the Dun and Bradstreet reporter's call means a concern's important suppliers will quickly have the latest facts on which to make credit and sales decisions. When the Dun and Bradstreet reporter receives a business's financial statement in advance of his periodic call, he can make a more detailed analysis of the financial condition of the business and discuss its operation more intelligently.

Back of each listing of a business in the Reference Book is a Dun and Bradstreet credit report. The report includes the following: a history of the business which shows how it has been operating; a description of what the business does and how it does it; a financial section which usually includes the latest financial statement; and a record of how the business pays its bills.

Genesee Valley Church To Celebrate 90th Anniversary

Members of the Genesee Valley Lutheran Church will gather at their house of worship Sunday, March 17, to observe the 90th anniversary of the founding of the congregation. It was on Sunday, March 17, 1878, that Rev. Emil A. Christensen conducted the first worship service before what was to become the forerunner of the Valley Church, the oldest Lutheran organization in the State of Idaho.

The following day, March 18, 1878, a constitution, that of the Norwegian Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, was accepted by the congregation. The new church was named "Vor Frels Menighet, Nez Perce County, Idaho." (Our Savior's Lutheran Congregation.) The congregation was organized in the Thron Creek area. This was the Norwegian Lutheran Lehighon Congregation in Genesee Valley. At the end of the year 1884, the Lehighon congregation could count 75 baptized individuals in its membership.

Our Savior's congregation made the decision to erect a new church on January 7, 1889. Mr. A. Warren donated the land for the new church which was built one-half mile north of the present church site.

In 1911 the Trinity congregation decided to build a new church which was located on the site of the present Valley Church. Dedication ceremonies were held in late June of 1912.

In 1917 Trinity and Our Savior's congregations merged. This was on July 9, 1917 and the congregation voted to use Trinity's newer church and sell the older structure.

In 1920 the St. John's Lutheran Parish joined together with the Genesee Valley Lutheran Parish to form the present Genesee Lutheran Parish.

Rev. Christian S. Oswood, present Lutheran minister, will conduct anniversary services. Sunday Morning worship will be at 10:00 a. m. with the sermon being delivered by Rev. S. F. Veldey. A dinner will be served in the church basement from 12:30 to 1:30 p. m. and afternoon services will begin at 2:30. Afternoon services will be delivered by Rev. H. S. Babington, Senior Pastor of Ballard First Lutheran Church, Seattle, and Rev. J. L. Crary.

Varsity Basketball Team Honored

The annual boys' "A" squad basketball banquet was held Tuesday evening in the high school multipurpose room. The event was hosted by the parents of the boys and honored the coaches, cheerleaders and team. Approximately 55 attended.

Supt. and Mrs. Lester Diehl were also guests.

Marion Holben was master of ceremonies. Lee James gave the invocation. Hobart introduced coaches Ozkie Kanikkeberg and Dave Baumgartner. Team members and cheerleaders were recognized by Kanikkeberg. Douglas Springer, captain of the team, responded and thanked the coaches for their help, and the parents for their support.

Speaker of the evening was Wayne Anderson, Moscow, head basketball coach at the University of Idaho. Coach Kanikkeberg introduced Anderson, who was recently selected the Big Sky Coach of the Year. His Idaho team finished second but each finished second in their respective divisions.

Anderson likened his team to the Genesee club but in that both were slow starters but each finished second in their respective divisions.

Using the word "Ideal" Anderson said that "I" might stand for intelligence, a fine character, and a high standard of achievement. He urged the ballplayers to pursue their academic studies to the best of their ability, both in high school and college.

"I" also stands for industry and a great desire to play and do well sometimes makes up for shortcomings in ability. It is a great attribute in athletics as well as in life, Anderson said. "A" the fourth letter in "Ideal" suggests athletic ability, Anderson continued. He cited the example of the late Genesee athlete, Fred Morschke, who was a great athlete in each quality he suggested. Finally, "L" stands for loyalty, Coach Anderson said. Loyalty to the team, the school, and to the community is an important attribute of any athlete.

Decorations of blue and gold adorned the gymnasium. The boys each received a certificate of appreciation. Small gold megaphones were presented to the cheerleaders and small gold baseballs to the team.

SERVING THE GENESSEE COMMUNITY SINCE 1888

Each year hundreds of children die from the effects of home poisons and thousands more suffer unnecessary pain and injury. This is at least partly due to a lack of respect for the power of household remedies, according to medical authorities.

Perhaps a quarter of a million products designed for home use contain toxins. Many are attractive to youngsters for chewing, eating and drinking. Products such as cleaning and polishing agents, detergents, shoe polish, cosmetics, plant sprays and a variety of medicines, including aspirin, have all been involved in accidental poisonings. The Idaho Medical Association recommends the following precautions to lessen the danger of accidental poisoning:

*Keep drugs and household cleaners well out of reach of small children. Seal containers as tightly as possible.

*Poisons contained, antitoxins, and precautions may be listed on labels. Do not remove toxic materials from original containers.

Here's How Bronate Works!

This field was sprayed with Chipman Bronate last spring except for the check area which you can see is too weedy to be profitable. Don't wait—spray today—for the smaller the tough weeds are, the better the kill.

Bronate is a combination of Buctril and MCPA weed killers designed to kill your annual weeds early—before you can safely use 2,4-D and before weeds have severely reduced your yields by using up too much moisture and too much plant food.

Call your favorite aerial applicator today or see your nearest McGregor man for a big, fast McGregor ground sprayer. McGregor sprayers are precision tip-tested. They put high-powered herbicides exactly where they are intended to go without wasting expensive chemical.

Snow Depth Down Reports Survey Cover

The March 1 snow survey was completed March 2 by Norman Foster and Dennis Fremont of the Soil Conservation Service, and Jerry Smith and Leroy Heitz of the University Engineering Experiment Station. The snow survey included five courses on Moscow Mtn. and the Sherwin Course between Bovill and Clarkia, Idaho.

The results showed 16.6 inches of snow on the highest course on Moscow Mtn. and 16.0 inches on the Sherwin course near Bovill. The water content was 5.9 and 5.6 inches respectively for Moscow Mtn. and Sherwin course.

The snow depths of 16.6 and 16.0 inches compared with last years snow depths of 38.9 and 40.1 inches respectively for Moscow Mtn and Sherwin. The snow depth of 16.6 for Moscow Mtn. is well below the 10-year average of 41.9 for this same time of year.

Four courses at lower elevation on Moscow Mtn. had no snow cover for this month. This has happened only once before in the last 10 years when in Mar. of 1963 the same four courses had no snow.

GIVE ME THE MAD-GLAD MARCH

Give me the mad-glad March with tempests raging,
 With daffodils to bloom, and nod and sway;
 Give me the vernalite that knows no aging;
 And change the winter in my heart to May—

Give me a lane along the wind-swept willows,
 And walk beside me in the twilight gloam;
 When nimbus clouds are toss't in stormy billows,
 And budding starflowers light the path-way home—

Give me your kiss with stress of longing broken,
 A wedge of wild geese plowing mad-March skies;
 Silence through which love's ultimate is spoken,
 By sweet surrender in your lovelit eyes.

Richest Source of Protein Found in Idaho

Recipes contributed to the author by the Idaho Bean Commission some five years ago have been included in a new specialty cookbook on beans written by Victor Bennett, San Francisco chef.

Contained in the book are a number of Idaho recipes among which is the famous "Buckaroo Beans" which serves up with hot battered corn sticks, crisp relishes, fruit shortert or pudding and cookies. Or for another delicious taste tempter, there are the recipes for Chili Beans, Sun Valley Style, or Herbed Beans, Idaho Style.

Many varieties of beans are successfully grown primarily in the Twin Falls Magic Valley area in Idaho. The three principal dry bean types are the Great Northern, the Red, and the Pinto. The poor, misunderstood extension telephone.

What it is, what it isn't.

It is a second telephone in your home. It isn't paying for a separate line into your house. Or paying for a separate number.

And it isn't paying a double telephone bill.

What it is is merely an extension from your present phone. And if you have to dash through the house or scramble downstairs to say out-of-breath hellos, it's something you need.

And it isn't a big expense. The cost— if you choose the basic style and color— is something like 4 cents a day. (Which is a bargain; you pay about four times that for your regular phone.)

It's not even a sensational new fad— by now four out of ten homes in America already have an extension phone. And the average family takes over 400 incoming calls a year on it, and uses it for at least that many outgoing calls.

Last of all, it wouldn't cost much to try one for a couple of months and this would tell you everything.

Whether it is, or isn't, for you.

Call our business office or ask the man on the telephone truck.

In the association of ideas, says the Idaho State Police, too many people think of traffic tickets in connection with traffic violations and fines. When more drivers come to think of death and injury in connection with traffic violations there will be fewer injuries and fewer deaths on our highways.

The Idaho State Police points out that there is a good and sufficient reason for every traffic law. Their purpose is to protect you and others from needless injury or death. But they cannot help you unless you know them and obey them.

It's Avadex Time!

Every Genesee farmer knows what happened here last spring. This Avadex BW sprayer skip is a vivid reminder of how badly wild oats can clobber your profits if you don't use Avadex BW this year.

Avadex BW works best if it is mixed in the soil immediately—right now—not an hour or a half-day later. Use your McGregor sprayer as a hitch to pull your harrows right behind your McGregor sprayer. This makes your Avadex BW work harder and last longer.

Every McGregor sprayer tip is tested for accurate flow and good pattern. McGregor's have—and use—the only precision tip tester in this area. When using expensive herbicides, you just can't afford not to use a McGregor sprayer. McGregor's do not just calibrate by measuring the output of one tip and assume every other nozzle has a good spray pattern and flow.

Farm Homes Burglarized

There has been an increase in rural burglaries reported. Sheriff Lange took the object of the break-ins, according to the sheriff, are to be antiques or any other old-fashioned items which might have a resale value.

The recent revival of interest in old time items, especially rural or farm-type objects, is apparently the motive for this type of burglary.

Reported to Bernie Grieser that several farm areas had been burglarized in the last few weeks and that the thieves took such items as old kettles, door knobs, pots and pans and even doors.

The sheriff suggested it would be best if residents, especially those in the country, take a close watch on vacant houses, sheds, and other outbuildings.

Valley Church Anniversary Well Attended

The Genesee Valley Lutheran congregation celebrated the 90th anniversary of their founding Sunday, March 17. Approximately 180 attended from Spokane, Pullman, Wenatchee, Lewiston, Moscow, Seale, Coeur d'Alene, Clarkston, Troy, Deer Park, Tacoma, and Orofino, to greet old friends and participate in the days activities.

St. John's congregation joined the Valley for Sunday school and morning devotions. The Rev. Sam Veitoy, former pastor, Deer Creek, gave the morning address. Songs were sung by children of the Sunday school, and St. John's Senior Choir, under the direction of Joe Kantola, presented several selections.

The 12:30 meal was planned, prepared, and served by ladies from both parishes.

The afternoon program began with two vocal selections by Mrs. Don Ringe, of Tacoma. Mrs. Leon Danielson was her accompanist.

The Rev. H. S. Babington, Seattle, former pastor of the local parish, delivered the afternoon address. Greetings were brought by the Rev. J. L. Cray, executive assistant to the District President of the American Lutheran Churches.

Greetings were also brought from the Rev. Veitoy, Deer Creek; the Rev. Martin Larsen, Moscow; the Rev. Gulhaugen, Clarkston; (Pastor Gulhaugen's father and great grandfather were former pastor and his great grandfather was one of the founders); Pastor Hoffman, Troy; Pastor Herman Crounch, of Cashmere, and the Rev. John Moore of Genesee Community church.

A coffee hour followed the afternoon program. The hostesses, Pastor Hoffman, Troy; Pastor Herman Crounch, of Cashmere, and the Rev. John Moore of Genesee Community church.

Lewiston OEO Agency Receives Grant

A $102,410 grant to the Community Action Agency, Inc. of Lewiston, Idaho, has been approved by the Office of Economic Opportunity. Don Thomason, director of OEO's North Central Region, made the announcement today.

The Lewiston agency conducts anti-poverty programs in Nez Perce, Lewis, Latah, Idaho, Clearwater and Washington Counties in Idaho, and for Asotin County in Washington State.

In addition to administrative costs, the grant will enable the Lewiston agency to establish a neighborhood service center in Latah and Clearwater counties and one in Grandville, Idaho. These centers will be designed to serve as meeting places for the low-income communities, where they can come for pre-occupational training, employment referral and placement, and family services.

A Full Year Head Start program which was previously funded, will continue. One Head Start Center is at the First Methodist Church in Lewiston and one at the Clarkson Methodist Church in Clarkston, Washington. Each center has 60 children attending classes.

In addition to the grant, local communities have donated goods, space and services valued at $50,001. Any remaining funds from the last fiscal period have been reprogrammed for use in these programs.

Katherine D. Pell is director of the Community Action Agency.

not our enemy). A Supreme Court decision that a person may not be denied a job in a critical defense industry because of communist party affiliation—in 1961 our non-defense spendings was $8.9 billion. Proposed for 1968, $106.3 billion, yet crime, riots, and frustrations get worse. Once, only Congress was to make laws, but now the President and the Supreme Court are frequently in the act. Who is responsible for all of this, and for a government out of control of the citizens?

YOU, the reader of this! Mr. Joe Apathetic Citizen, who is too busy with other things to be bothered with the concept "by the people." Mr. Joe, trusting citizen who believes that once a person is elected to a public trust he will always act for the good of the country. He is unwilling to face the fact that our elected representatives will be only as concerned for this country as Mr. Citizen is himself. Your concern has made it possible for communism to take over 2/3 of the World's population, because, believe it or not, it is our State Department's policies, time after time, which have made possible the enslaving of millions by the communist conspiracy.

"I am only one, but I am one. I can't do everything, but I can do something. What I can do, I ought to do. What I ought to do, by the grace of God, I shall do."

The first step must always be to seek the truth.

Here's How Bronate Works!

This field was sprayed with Chipman Bronate last spring except for the check area which you can see is too weedy to be profitable. Don't wait—spray today—for the smaller the tough weeds are, the better the kill.

Bronate is a combination of Buctril and MCPA weed killers designed to kill your annual weeds early—before you can safely use 2,4-D and before weeds have severely reduced your yields by using up too much moisture and too much plant food.

Call your favorite aerial applicator today or see your nearest McGregor man for a big, fast McGregor ground sprayer. McGregor sprayers are precision tip-tested. They put high-powered herbicides exactly where they are intended to go without wasting expensive chemical.

IT'S TOO SOON FOR CONCLUSIONS

"IT IS TOO EARLY to draw specific conclusions about the moon," says a geochemist at Columbia University. He questions preliminary claims that the moon's chemical composition and history are similar to the earth's. "It is very doubtful that we could understand the surface processes and the history of the surface of the moon without bringing back actual samples," he said. "Even very sophisticated instruments are not able to answer questions regarding the age of surface materials."

A UNIQUE ATTACK on schizophrenia may give form to a "barometer" able to forecast "emotional stormy weather." A University of Michigan professor, leader of a 15-to-20-year study being conducted in Denmark, reports that certain measurable responses to special tests "may be precursors of a variety of psychiatric breakdowns." His goals are the identification of likely schizophrenics and the prevention of the disease in those persons. Perhaps some day, he hopes, every schoolchild will be given a mental test with each routine physical examination.

Grain Rate Reduction Will Save Over a Million

Over $1,000,000 will be saved by North Idaho wheat growers during the coming year as the result of a general grain freight rate reduction soon to be published by railroads serving that part of the state.

Robert Henry, administrator of the Idaho Transportation Council, announced the reduction Wednesday at a meeting of the Idaho Wheat Commission in Boise. He noted that the decrease in rates would affect whole and processed grain moving from North Idaho to port cities on the Columbia River and Puget Sound.

The railroad action followed an extended public hearing on the subject held in Seattle on February 13, Henry said. It climaxed two years of effort by the Transportation Council, Wheat Commission and Idaho State Wheat Growers Association to secure the reduction.

"We are extremely pleased that our efforts have proved successful," said Harold West, Idaho Wheat Commission administrator. "This means over a million dollars each year will be channeled back into the economy of North Idaho as a result of the savings."

The railroads will cut almost 30 percent from the rate on whole grain, and transportation costs on grain products will drop by nearly 20 per cent, according to Henry. Justification for the reduced rate reduction Wednesday at a meeting of the Idaho Wheat Commission in Boise. He noted that the decrease in rates would affect whole and processed grain moving from North Idaho to port cities on the Columbia River and Puget Sound.

The Idaho Wheat Commission also announced at its meeting plans to engage Stanford Research Institute in a four-month study of currently available research and literature on wheat and to recommend future research into wheat uses. Commission chairman Vard Meadows, American Falls, said the SRI study would focus on wheat products for domestic consumption.

Several Wheat Commission members will travel to Washington, D. C. to attend a Congressional Breakfast on March 29, Meadows said. They will meet with the Idaho congressional delegation and members of House and Senate agriculture committees as well as confer with key staff personnel of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

PIONEERING with POTLATCH

Idaho's fallers can date themselves back to 1805, when Lewis and Clark cut trees near Orofino to burn out canoes. Sawmills date back to Henry Spalding's mill on the Clearwater in 1840. The coming of the railroads really opened up the great forests, and soon after Idaho achieved statehood July 3, 1890, scarcely a town on or near a railroad was without its mill.

A lot of manpower was needed to supply these mills and wherever lumbermen gathered, top dollar and good food were offered to work in Idaho counties with exciting names like Kootenai, Benewah and Latah. Weather largely determined the logging season, but when operations were in full swing crews worked as long as daylight permitted and slept in remote logging camps. It was a rugged life — calling for a special kind of man.

TODAY — a logger is a professional woodsman. But like his father and grandfather, he is a strong, hearty outdoorsman who is in the business by preference. His equipment has been modernized — he works 8 hours a day and goes home to his family. But the robust requirements are still much the same . . . and so is the excitement, the satisfaction and the pride.

What's So Different About McGregor Sprayers?

At Test shown testing sprayer tips to insure an accurate flow and proper spray pattern. McGregor's have built and use the only precision tip orifice testing equipment in northern Idaho and eastern Washington.

Why is this important? Simply because every single spray tip must put out a uniform pattern and flow or you wind up with too much here, too little there and needless expense. Of course everybody's sprayers are calibrated for every job they do but this does not guarantee a uniform pattern or flow from every single tip. Only an actual test can insure this.

McGregor sprayers are worth waiting for. Call your nearest McGregor manager today for a sprayer that won't waste expensive high-powered chemicals and that will put your spray right where it is supposed to go.

Give Your Car a Spring Cleaning Too, Advises AAA

Washing your automobile in Spring cleaning time, Robert F. Keen of the Inland (AAA) Automobile Association reminded motorists this week. "Warmer weather impels increased use of the family car, so it's important to have it ready for the road."

A well-organized compartment can contain such useful items as the car's first aid kit, sunglasses, notebook and pencil, aspirin, facial tissues, which broom and perhaps a foil-wrapped washcloth for freshening up and cooling tired eyes. In lieu of the washcloth, some enterprising travelers stock specially impregnated cleansing tissues, claiming them handy, refreshing and easily disposable.

For quick cleanup and repairs to the compartment might also store a small bottle of cleaning fluid or paste and a sewing kit. Efficient packing of all these items will still leave room for a flashlight, a bottle of sunburn lotion and a topping of maps and tour books.

Items not to consider for the compartment, according to Keen, are cameras and film. Heat easily affects both and the best photos are brought home by those who keep the camera on the seat for impulsive picture taking.

Medical Care Inquiry Mailed This Week

Idaho citizens are alerted to watch the mail this week for a questionnaire that will determine what kind of medical care the public wants for the future.

Only about 2,400 persons across the state will receive the form, prepared by the Mountain States Regional Medical Program, but the study will pinpoint specific needs especially in the increasing field of heart disease, cancer and stroke.

Dr. O. Graeber, M. D., Boise physician and director of the Idaho Regional Health Center, said the questionnaire is of vital importance to every resident of the state. Dr. Graeber commented that surveys of all major health professionals in the state have recently been completed. Attention is now being directed toward those who receive the care.

"The citizen who receives a questionnaire should consider it an important opportunity to voice his personal views about health services in the state," Dr. Graeber remarked. "We sincerely hope everyone will cooperate."

INDUSTRIAL IDAHO Idaho Agriculture: A Big and Capital-Intensive Industry

In late 1964 at Nampa, the first United States Steel Service Center in Idaho was opened, specializing in fertilizer distribution for the State and surrounding areas.

Launched as a new concept in soil fertility services, the entire Idaho system now includes nine outlets located in Burley, Piler, Hansen, Nampa, Paul, Rexburg, Terreton, and Wilder. Each of the centers offers a full range of custom bulk fertilizers and micronutrients to meet the demands of farmer's soil needs.

Thieves broke through the rear door of the Food Center Thrift Store at Genesee sometime early Monday morning and stole in excess of $700 dollars worth of cigarettes and other merchandise.

Less rain fell Tuesday than it had on Monday but there was another moderate rain shower Wednesday which gave the ground a good soaking.

Seeding Was Underway This sudden reversal of the good weather which had characterized much of the month brought an abrupt halt to pea seeding that was just getting started in some of the areas around Genesee.

Some Rimrock farmers had started seeding peas last week and Leonard Singhose, Agrow Seed Company manager at Genesee, reported that Don Denner had begun seeding peas Saturday, March 23, out on the Elk Ridge area. The Agrow manager said that the first peas last year went into the ground April 10, so weather conditions this year allowed seeding to be planted almost 20 days earlier than in 1967.

Even prior to the rains this week, Singhose said the fields had good ground moisture and that he didn't feel that this early planting date would pose any special problem.

Rainfall from Monday to Thursday morning was recorded at .69 inches and there was another moderate shower Thursday forenoon which was not added to this figure.

St. Mary's Parochial School Will Close At End of Term

The Rev. Father B. C. McCarthy announced that St. Mary's parochial grade school at Genesee will be closed at the end of this school term. The announcement was made by the parish pastor at worship services last Sunday.

The discontinuance of the parochial elementary school will mean the transfer of approximately forty-five students to the public school system next fall. St. Mary's is the second parochial school in this area to announce its discontinuance. A similar announcement was made earlier in the week at Nez Perce, Idaho.

The school building will be used to conduct religious classes, the local priest said. Economic conditions were given as the main reason for closing the school.

First Classes In 1896 The first parochial classes at St. Mary's parish were held in a room in the rear of the old church on November 3, 1896. The classes were conducted by the priest and lay teachers, and twelve children were enrolled.

The old St. Joseph's school was built in 1900 when Fr. Remi Keyzer was pastor. Bricks for the school were made at a local plant, and the school was dedicated the same year by Bishop Glorieux. The school was remodeled and two new classrooms were added in 1912 when Fr. Heagy was pastor.

St. Mary's school was broken in the fall of 1959, and the building was completed and dedicated May 3, 1960 when Father Francis P. McGlinchey was pastor.

March Going Out Like Lion

March lived up to its reputation as an unpredictable month as snow, sleet, and rain swept across the northwest this week and it appears that the month will "go out like a lion."

Strong winds began buffeting the countryside early in the week and had blown a heavy cloud cover on Friday and Saturday. The skies cleared Sunday morning but the strong winds still prevailed. There was rain early Monday morning but the temperature dropped slightly and by late afternoon the rain had turned to snow. Snow fell from 6 p. m. Monday evening until almost 9 p. m. and left one-half inch of covering on the ground. The snow was still visible Tuesday morning but the temperature rose and rain quickly melted the remaining snow.

Less rain fell Tuesday than it had on Monday but there was another moderate rain shower Wednesday which gave the ground a good soaking.

C. L. CHEHEY

In his announcement Chehey stated the 40th Legislature in 1969 will be of critical importance to the future of Idaho. He is recently named the recipient of the 1967 Distinguished Service Award presented by the Moscow Jaycees for civic service to the community.

LACK OF BLOOD MAY CAUSE SOME DEAFNESS

SOME TYPES of deafness of the inner ear, at present incurable, may be caused by abnormalities in the blood vessels supplying that area, reports a professor of otolaryngology at the University of Michigan. If such an abnormality prevents the blood from reaching the inner ear, he says, the effect could be similar to that of gangrene: The organ dies and its function is lost forever.

GENETIC COUNSELING, aiming at helping to prevent certain inherited diseases, should be made compulsory, a University of Chicago geneticist contends.

He says, "At the moment we're in a period of lag between the available information and the propagation to the public concerning it. I don't really see the harm in making this compulsory." He said that persons with genetic disorders "are not going to want to know the consequences. I think patients, for example with hemophilia, will not want to know the incidence of inheritance in their children. It's a painful fact in many instances and it is not something people like to face."

HE also said that the possibility of treating genetic disorders by correcting the defect directly is probably very far off in the future.

"QUICK AS A WINK" is a well-known saying and for centuries people have measured the shortest interval of time they could think of by the blink of an eye.

Pinkers Must Carry Valid Hunt Licenses

Pinkers of all ages who go out on warm afternoons for a little target shooting are reminded by the Idaho Fish and Game Department that most species of birds are protected by both state and federal laws. This includes all species of hawks and owls, as well as bald eagles, the national emblem, and golden eagles.

Conservation officers of the Idaho Fish and Game Department issue citations for shooting any kind of bird except a member of one of the eight unprotected species named by state law as follows: Crow, raven, magpie, English sparrow, cormorant, pelican, starling, and kingfisher.

Protection is provided also for gray skits, and eagles under separate law.

Pinkers also are reminded that a hunting license is required for anyone to carry an uncased gun in forest or field. Resident youngsters 12 years old or more are eligible to buy hunting licenses. These cost $3 for hunting, or $6 for a combination license to hunt and fish.

Non-residents can get special $5 licenses for varmint shooting.

Resident youngsters under 14 years of age do not need fishing licenses and may keep the fish they catch up to one limit.

Nonresident children under 14 years of age do not need fishing licenses but their catch must be included as part of that of a licensed fisherman with them.

APRIL—let me take that April trail again As spring's first flutes pipe forth the daffodils;

Thrill to the spray of wind-sweet April rain. Back from it's blest' baptism of the hills—

Let me behold the loughlight in your eyes As hand in hand we walk the ways of spring;

While mating bluebirds ride the dove gray skies. When earth, and life, and love are burgeoning.

DEES AND PROFITS TO WOOD INDUSTRY

Leaf-cutter bees are adding dollars to the industry of Idaho, but also to the wood industry, according to a University of Idaho forest economist.

E. L. Williams, assistant agricultural and forest economist, published findings of a recent survey of the management of leaf-cutter bees (Megachile rotundata) in Experiment Station Notes, No. 10 available from the College of Forestry, Wildlife and Range Sciences.

"Efficiency in pollinating alfalfa-seed crops and the recent multiplication of the alfalfa leaf-cutter bee in the Inland West has caused a strong demand for boards used by the insects as nesting material," said Williams.

His personal interviews with entomologists, county agents, seed company managers, and growers gave him some indication of market needs for the nesting boards.

Williams said $350,000 worth of drilled boards were used or consumed last year by five bee board producers in the Boise Valley, the center of bee culture and board marking in the Inland West. Seed producers predict that the demand in 1968 would double that of 1967, he said.

"Drilled boards of two types are on the market," said Williams. "The simplest and the one in widest use is that which has 250 holes drilled per board foot and no further processing."

Boards used are from soft pines, sugar and western white and ponderosa. Williams said each mill well is quite easily drilled, has good dimensional stability when properly dried, is light weight and is generally available in the area where the board is drilled.

INCOME TAX REFUNDS TO BE ADDED

All income tax refunds are paid subject to later auditing or investigation of the returns, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

Therefore taxpayers receiving refunds are advised to save their records to prove the returns are correct when called upon to do so.

The returns are checked over by electronic-accounting machinery before refunding. However, full verification would delay payment indefinitely so they are audited later in the year.

If these two dots represent two wild oat plants per half-square foot in your pea or barley field, they add up to 175,000 hungry wild oat plants per acre!

Maybe this doesn't look like trouble today but fields with even this few wild oats won't make much money for you come harvest. Robber wild oats have stolen too much moisture, too much plant food, and have crowded out too many profitable pea and barley plants.

Use the sure wild oat killer AVADEX BW today. It has made money for Palouse country farmers on hundreds of thousands of acres during the last five years. You can't argue with success!

Questions and Answers

QUESTIONS: Many older people retired before Social Security permitted them to pay into the program. Since they have not contributed to Social Security, are they eligible to apply for Medicare at age 65?

ANSWER: Any person—whether he has ever paid into Social Security or not—who reached age 65 in 1967 or earlier, upon making the proper application and proving his age, is eligible for the hospital insurance protection under Medicare. The 1967 Social Security amendments require those who are not dependents of an insured worker to have at least 3 calendar quarters credit on their social security account to be eligible for the Medicare hospital insurance protection. For those reaching age 65 in 1968 and later years, the required number of calendar quarters increases by three for each subsequent year until 1974 for women and 1975 for men.

QUESTION: My grandmother is a widow who will reach 65 in 1968. Her husband died many years ago, before social security started. She has a very little opportunity to pay into Social Security and is not eligible for any payments from Social Security. Will she be permitted to apply for Medicare hospital insurance when she becomes 65?

ANSWER: If this widow has at least 3 quarters of coverage to her credit on her own social security account—anytime since January 1, 1957, when the Social Security program first started, she is eligible for Medicare hospital insurance upon making the proper application and proving her age. A quarter of coverage is a three month period in which the worker has been paid $50 or more in wages; or, if self-employed, up to four quarters may be credited during a calendar year if a timely tax return has been filed showing a net profit of $400 or more.

QUESTIONS: Many older people retired before Social Security permitted them to pay into the program. Since they have not contributed to Social Security, are they eligible to apply for Medicare at age 65?

ANSWER: Any person—whether he has ever paid into Social Security or not—who reached age 65 in 1967 or earlier, upon making the proper application and proving his age, is eligible for the hospital insurance protection under Medicare. The 1967 Social Security amendments require those who are not dependents of an insured worker to have at least 3 calendar quarters credit on their social security account to be eligible for the Medicare hospital insurance protection. For those reaching age 65 in 1968 and later years, the required number of calendar quarters increases by three for each subsequent year until 1974 for women and 1975 for men.

QUESTION: My grandmother is a widow who will reach 65 in 1968. Her husband died many years ago, before social security started. She has a very little opportunity to pay into Social Security and is not eligible for any payments from Social Security. Will she be permitted to apply for Medicare hospital insurance when she becomes 65?

YOUR GAME DEPARTMENT By John R. Woodworth, Director Idaho Fish and Game Department

Communion To Meet The regular quarterly meeting of the Idaho Fish and Game Commission is scheduled to start in Boise, April 18, at the headquarters office of the Fish and Game Department.

The afternoon of the first day, beginning at 1:30, a public hearing will be held to hear testimony and consider evidence on questions of fish and wildlife management.

Closing dates for big game seasons and opening dates for upland game birds farmed well during the moderate winter which prevailed over most of the state most of the winter. Elk and deer remained scattered and fairly high on the range, thus giving winter range browse plants and shrubs a rest from heavy foraging through the winter months.

Reports from all regional game biologists around the state indicate that the birds and animals "have it made" for another year.

Sage Grouse Booming This is the time of year when sage grouse put a colorful courting display in remote sagebrush clearings. Strutting in southwestern Idaho starts in late February and peaks toward the end of March. It occurs later in the season at higher elevations of the upper Snake River region. Sage grouse hatching peaks toward the end of May, regardless of weather, in southwestern Idaho. Other major booming and nesting grounds are found in the counties of Fremont, Clark and Owyhee.

INCOME TAX REFUNDS TO BE ADDED

All income tax refunds are paid subject to later auditing or investigation of the returns, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

Therefore taxpayers receiving refunds are advised to save their records to prove the returns are correct when called upon to do so.

The returns are checked over by electronic-accounting machinery before refunding. However, full verification would delay payment indefinitely so they are audited later in the year.

BONDS AGAIN OFFERED AS REFUND OPTION

Savings Bond Chairman for Latah County, Aele Anderson, this week reminded taxpayers the Treasury Department will once again offer them the opportunity of taking income tax refunds in United States Savings Bonds.

The savings option, introduced in 1963, is in addition to the two standard options of taking refunds in cash or applying them to next year's tax.

"When a taxpayer elects to take his refund in Series E Bonds," Mr. Anderson said, "his money goes to work immediately on two jobs. It begins to build his financial security. At the same time, it contributes to our country's economic strength. Those who elect the U. S. Savings Bond option join millions of Americans who are investing in their country's future in this way."

"When you check the Savings Bond line on your 1967 tax form," the Chairman continued, "you automatically assure yourself the refund is automatic. Provide yourself with an easy method of holding on to your tax refund dollars and a sure way of making it grow one-third larger at maturity. When your refund is made, the rest is automatic. For example, if you're entitled to a refund of $42, you'll get a $50 face-value Series E Bond (cost $37.50), plus a check for $4.50."

He concluded, "choosing Bonds is the surest way I know to make your tax refund really mean something to you."

Little Change Noted In County Job Picture

Little change was noted in the employment picture in Latah County during the past week. Tately Latah County workers were assisted in finding jobs, compared with 21 given job finding help during the previous week. A year ago only 14 persons were sent out on jobs in the area. At the end of the week there were 82 jobs still open, one more than at the end of the previous week.

Area farmers were in need of tractor operators, and many business establishments were also seeking workers.

A variety of jobs were open ranging from secretaries, bookkeepers, sales clerks, cafe and domestic workers to carpenters, salesmen, mechanics, service station managers and panitors.

Total unemployment in the county continued to decline, despite the fact that 10 workers filed new claims for unemployment benefits last week.

The movie shows the part Idaho wheat plays in our economy and the role in world trade.

NOTED CONDUCTOR TO DIRECT IDAHO SUMMER MUSIC WORKSHOP

Wesley Noble, widely known conductor of bands and choral organizations, will direct a band workshop at the University of Idaho, June 17-22, it was announced today by Professor Hall M. Macklin, head of the Music Department.

Noble, who is head of Music at Luther College, Decorah, Iowa, has conducted high school and university bands in every state, and last month directed the all-state high school band at the Idaho Music Educators conference in Boise.

FARMERS INSURANCE GROUP

A Genesee woman told me this story and swore it to be the gospel truth. She liked to make candy apples and one day apples, she heard one worm from deep inside the apple saying to a companion worm: "Don't crawl out, now, Joe they're paying."

Up in Iceland they still use fish for money. Of course, it gets a little sloppy when you're playing a slot machine.

An angry employee went to the paymaster and complained that his paycheck was a dollar short.

The paymaster checked his records and replied: "Last week we overpaid you a dollar. You didn't complain about that, did you?"

"An occasional mistake I can over-look," replied the workers, "but not two in a row!"

Mother (to school teacher): "My Robert is a very sensitive child. If you need to punish him, just slap the boy in the rear seat—that will frighten Robert."

WOMEN WILL HELP IDAHO REDUCE HIGHWAY DEATH RATE

Assurance that women of Idaho want to help promote safety, especially on the highway, was given by Mrs. Wilbert Cammack, Blackfoot, when she reported on a safety meeting she attended in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Cammack, president of the Association of Idaho Extension Homemakers and the association's state safety chairman, was Gov. Don W. Samuelson's representative at the meeting.

Referring to her state organization, which has a membership of 21,070, she said, "If we are provided with the information for safety programs we will use our members to provide the local grass roots support."

"Women have the ability to organize and to reach the goals they desire to protect their loved ones."

The best way to help a critical big game winter range is to have moderate winters in which elk and deer are scattered but forage lightly on browse shrubs. This starts new twigs sprouting on old growth and tends to keep shrubs low enough for browsing animals to reach. Too much foraging over several years causes shrubs to die. But most species thrive on "hedging" as much as 80 percent of a season's growth. More than that is harmful. Some browse shrubs are "hedged" as much as 70-80 percent of annual growth, even during mild winters.

CHILD MAY STEAL TO 'BUY' FRIEND

MANY CHILDREN steal once or twice in the process of growing up, but a University of Michigan psychiatrist says repeated stealing means something is wrong with the emotional atmosphere in the family. He says stealing is more common among boys than girls and believes it stems from anger and resentment or loneliness. He said that a child may steal to "buy" friends, to gain symbolic gratification or to produce an emotional response in his parents. Often he wants to make them feel hurt, because most of these episodes of stealing follow an incident in which the child feels he is needed.

Some commercially produced germ-free mice widely used in studies of disease and the effects of drugs, vaccines, radiation, etc., have been found to be serious undetected. He said that because the use of these animals affects many scientific investigations, users of such animals should consider the impact of deterioration on their data.

One cubic foot of fresh water from Lake Michigan contains only 0.01 pounds of salt, or about one-sixth of an ounce.

Signs that the work so far to transplant part of the Snake River steelhead spawning runs from Hells Canyon to the Salmon River drainage may be successful. Reingold said that the fourth fin-clipful are found in the return of a few adult fish last year and again this spring it was disclosed this week.

Mel Reingold, Salmon, fishery biologist for the Idaho Fish and Game Department, reports that four marked steelhead were caught by anglers on the main Salmon River and brought through a checking station at North Fork on March 10. ### DEPT. OF LAW ENFORCEMENT

Underlining the relationship of defensive driving to traffic safety, Supt. L. Clark Hand of the Idaho State Police today said, "You for two—the other driver and you—if you want to stay safe in traffic."

The superintendent described the defensive driver as "one who knows that morally he must do all he can to prevent an accident no matter what the circumstances may be. This means he must drive as skillfully as he can, obey all laws, and do whatever he can to compensate for the unsafe act of others."

In line with this, Hand stressed the importance of anticipating the other fellow's errors. "Many accidents could be avoided if he, if drivers would keep a constant lookout for the mistakes of others. In this way they would perceive dangerous situations in time to do something about them."

"Unfortunately," Supt. Hand says, "there aren't enough defensive drivers. There are too many drivers whose main code of the road is, never gets the other guy a break."

The superintendent continued, "This type of driver will try anything if he thinks he can bluff his way through. He gets a big kick out of making other drivers get out of his way. What he fails to appreciate is that he stays alive mainly because many other good drivers do drive defensively."

The superintendent concluded, "The Idaho State Police does not depend on persuasion alone to make irresponsible drivers mend their ways. Such drivers face the prospect of being brought to trial and losing their driving privileges."

FIELD DOG TRAINING

Dog and boat owners are reminded that it is unlawful to molest upland game birds or waterfowl, their nests or their young. Harassing waterfowl with boats is just as wrong as molesting upland game birds or their nests or their young chicks. The restriction against field training for dogs from April 15 through August 15 was rescinded by the Idaho Fish and Game Commission several years ago. But owners must keep their dogs under tight control at all times.

SEN. CHURCH ASKS FOR EXCESS WAR PROFIT TAX INSTEAD OF INCREASE IN INCOME TAXES

Senator Frank Church, D-Idaho, said this week he will continue to fight for enactment of an excess war profits tax to take the place of the Administration's proposal for a 10 per cent increase in income tax.
"I think the time has come to squeeze the big profits out of this war in Vietnam, rather than to squeeze more taxes out of the farmer and wage earner," Church said.

Although defeated on its first test in Congress, Church said he would continue to fight for his proposal to tax excess profits, as well as for measures to cut Government spending.
He made it clear during Senate debate recently that he will not support the Administration's plan to raise individual income tax rates.

"If we must have new revenue to finance our regrettable venture in Vietnamese affairs," he told the Senate, "let's collect it from the interests that are getting fat off the war."
"Colt Industries, for example, recently made a 1400 per cent profit on a gigantic contract for M-16 rifles! By looking to such extravagant profits, considerably more money could be raised than the sum involved in the President's tax proposal. Moreover, an excess war profits tax would represent far less sacrifice than that of the young men who are risking their lives in Vietnam and interrupting their education, family and career plans."

Patterned after the excess war profits tax in effect during World War II, the Church proposal would recover 85 per cent of the corporate profits in excess of normal earnings which result from increased business due to the war in Vietnam.

In order to reduce the anticipated war deficit, Church supported a proposal—which passed the Senate—to force cuts in nonmilitary spending by $5 billion. He also backed another proposal which

Job Placements Drop Slightly In County

Employment activities during the past week dropped slightly as compared to the previous week, according to Frank J. Harstein, manager of the Moscow Office of the Idaho Department of Employment. It was noted that new jobs received totaled 19 as compared to 31 the previous week and 17 one year ago. The decrease in job activity is primarily due to adverse weather conditions. Sixteen people were placed by the Moscow office during the week as compared to 20 the previous week and 14 one year ago. The 43 jobs remaining unfilled at the end of the week include openings for sales clerk, bookkeeper, waitress, maid, ranchcook, babysitter. For men there were jobs for farm tractor operators, car-wash man, automobile mechanic, automobile service station attendant, farm station manager, parts clerk, yardman, salesman (various), faller, carpenter, and janitor.

Unemployment insurance claims continued to decrease throughout the County this past week due to some workers exhausting benefits and others returning to work. At the end of the week there was a total of 312 persons filing claims for unemployment insurance which is a drop from the 323 persons drawing benefits the previous week and this same time one year ago, when 336 persons were filing claims. There was no change in the 11 filing claims from the weekend area. Pottlatch had a slight drop from 50 the previous week to 46 this past week. One year ago claims totaled 129 in that area. There was no change in the 11 filing claims from the Kendrick area. Pottlatch had a slight drop from 50 the previous week to 46 this past week, as compared to 37 this same period of time one year ago. Elk River remained the same with 49 filing claims for the past two week period as compared to 55 a year ago.

State Highway Dept Prepares For Annual Spring Break-Up

State Highway Engineer, Ellis L. Mathes announced this week that some sections of Idaho highways are still restricted to loads of 350 pounds per inch width of tire with a maximum allowable load of 10,000 pounds on the front axle if 10-inch tires or larger and 14,000 pound on any other axle. Trucks and buses having a gross weight of 10,000 pounds or more are restricted in critical areas to a maximum speed of 30 miles per hour.

Normally from February into May, many roads in Idaho and most of our northern states are weakened from excessive moisture in the sub-grade. During this time break-up occurs and roads have to be restricted to less than legal allowable weight loads and to less than legal truck speeds to protect the highways.

The various types of restrictions as authorized by the Idaho Code depend on road building materials, moisture, temperature, and the actual amount of the break-up. Special routing of sections will not be restricted to below legal weight unless severe break-up will result. However, to save our highways, weight permits will not be issued on these routes during the Spring break-up period.

Restricted speed zones will be marked by red signs with a maximum speed of 30 miles per hour and a yellow marker will mean that legal speeds may be resumed. These markers will generally be attached to existing highway sign posts and when properly used, will afford protection to the highway as well as speed-up the flow of traffic.

Further information on load and speed posting on all routes may be obtained at any of the Department of Highways, which are located in Shoshone, Pocatello, Boise, Lewiston, Coeur d'Alene, and Rigby.

If you want your children to grow up saying the Idaho State Police, you will teach them to walk on sidewalks or away from the path of cars, and you will impress them with the importance of crossing streets with care.

Watch for children when you are driving, warns the Idaho State Police, especially in school zones, residential areas and near playgrounds. Remember one victim of your mistakes will haunt you for life.

As a parent it's up to you to see that your children know how to behave safely on the highways. You will teach them to walk on sidewalks or away from the path of cars, and you will impress them with the importance of crossing streets with care.

Watch for children when you are driving, warns the Idaho State Police, especially in school zones, residential areas and near playgrounds. Remember one victim of your mistakes will haunt you for life.

FHA Honor Fred Hoves As March Senior Citizens

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hove were honored by the local Genesee chapter as the March Senior Citizens.

Mr. Hove was born here and attended the Smith School and the Genesee High School previous to his entering the Navy as a member of the Naval Aviation during World War I. He resumed his farming career near Genesee in 1927 with his bride, Evelyn Tesch, who was originally from Plover, Wisconsin. They were married May 23, 1923, in Lewiston, Idaho, after which they moved to Longview, Washington temporarily for three years.

In 1932 Mr. Hove was elected State Representative to the State Legislature for four years. He has served as a County Commissioner, a School Board member during the late Consolidation Years, Board of Directors member of the Genesee Union Warehouse Company for 35 years, a charter member of the American Legion and a 21-year member of the Lewiston Elks. His hobbies are fishing and card games of which he does plenty of since his retirement four years ago.

Mrs. Hove graduated from Lewiston Normal School and was a rural school teacher for nine years. She taught in Elk River, Big Bear Ridge, Aurora School, Thornecreek, and Smith Schools, new Genesee.

She also taught the sixth grade at Longview, Washington while they lived there. Her hobbies are sewing, handicrafts, and upholstery work. She is a charter member of the Genesee American Legion Auxiliary, member of St. Mary's Altar Society, and Catholic Daughters of American, and last, but certainly not least, an experienced homemaker.

The Hoves have one daughter and two grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Hove are both credits to our community due to their very active lives of service to the community. A committee of F H A 'ers went on April 7 to spend the afternoon with this wonderful couple. The committee brought cake and punch which was enjoyed by all.

The girls visiting were Doris Denmler, Charlotte Wedin, Jan Baumgartner and Mary Mayer who reported that they really enjoyed their chat with the Hoves. All girls are invited to visit Mr. and Mrs. Hove whenever they can and the local FHA chapter is very proud to honor this couple as "March Senior Citizens."

BUSINESS IN IDAHO GOOD REPORTS BANK NEWS LETTER

Business in Idaho through the first quarter of 1968 was generally good, and patterns in the second quarter should parallel those nationally with continued high levels of employment and personal income.

This is the report of the quarterly First Security Bank News Letter being distributed this week, it was announced by W. J. Phair, Manager, Genesee Office.

Total personal income in the first three months of the year was approximately $450 million, or about four per cent higher than the corresponding period in 1967. Total employment and payroll were higher and gross and net agricultural income were about the same.

Outlook for agricultural income in the Genesee area for 1968 is fair to good with variations among producers of livestock and crops. Total cash receipts from farm marketing are expected to equal totals of 1967 and to exceed the $337 million reported for 1967, which was not a good agricultural year in Idaho or in the nation.

Prices for cattle have improved since January along with those for lamb and broilers. Because cattle slaughter is not expected to increase significantly during the second quarter, prices of feed cattle should hold rather steady at present levels.

Inventory of all cattle nationally on January 1 was the same as 1967, while in Idaho the inventory is two per cent higher, reports the News Letter.

Lamb production in both Idaho and the nation will be lower than in 1967, but prices will improve considerably.

Potato stocks nationally on March 1 at 87 million cwt. were up seven million from a year ago and three million of the increase was in Idaho. As a result, prices are down approximately 30 percent from last year. Potato processing from the 1967 crop began later than usual, and by March 1 processors had utilized almost 22 million cwt., mainly for food items. Prospective plantings for 1968 indicate increases for corn and other feed grains, beans, peas and sugar beets. However, decreases are shown for wheat and potatoes.

Mineral production for the first quarter in the state was considerably lower than in the same three months of the two preceding years. The strike against the nation's four major copper producers in July, 1967, closed three of Idaho's major lead-zinc-silver mines and some milling facilities. Resumption of operations indicates increases for copper and other metals.

It means a great deal to a lonely Serviceman in Vietnam or some other overseas post to receive letters from his loved ones back home. But it is even a greater thrill when he can hear their voices speaking to him.

The Latah County Red Cross Chapter is planning to make this possible for Latah County men in the armed forces overseas.

This coming Saturday, April 13th, a Red Cross recording mobile will be at the Moscow Grange Hall from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. to tape talking letters to Servicemen stationed overseas. These recordings of voices from home will be made free of charge and mailed to the Servicemen overseas where they will be played back by Red Cross workers stationed with their outfits.

Families who have a father, son, husband, or brother with the armed forces overseas are invited to come to the Grange Hall and make a 15-minute "Talking Letter" to their Serviceman. If he has a favorite dog back home, bring it along to bark its "hello" to the Servicemen overseas.

Families wishing to make one of these "Talking Letters" are urged to carefully plan in advance what they want to say. It takes about 20 minutes to make one of these recordings.

To help with scheduling the time, families wishing to make one of the voices from home tape recordings are asked to notify Rev. Valder, Secretary of the Red Cross, by phoning 882-2412 for their time reservation.

If enough families are interested, the Latah County Chapter will make these Voices From Home recordings a regular part of its Red Cross program.

Two varieties of tomato plants developed in Idaho are good bets for gardens in many parts of the state, according to Tony Horn, horticulturist of the University of Idaho extension service. They are Owyhee and Payette. Each was introduced several years ago as a result of research by R. Simpson, a plant scientist at the Parma branch experiment station. Through a number of seasons they have proven reliable. They are good bets for back yard or commercial production.

Both Owyhee and Payette resist curly top, a disease that has reduced yield and quality to some other varieties common in Idaho. Because they are more or less immune to the virus carried by certain insects, they are favorites of many producers.

Payette has the additional characteristic of a dwarf vine. The thick stems form a compact plant that grows erect. Fruits set heavily and is concentrated in clusters, lending itself efficient hand picking and improving the possibilities of harvest by machine. It grows in less space than many other tomato plants.

Payette produces fruit early in the season. It matures about a week sooner than Owyhee or Sioux. Both Payette and Owyhee are developments of Sioux.

First-picking yields of Payette in tests have been 14 to 21 tons per acre—depending on plant spacing—compared with an average of about six tons for Sioux.

Water Hemlock

Water hemlock is usually found on wet pastures, along streams and along irrigation ditches where there is lots of moisture. It grows from two to eight feet tall and has lance-shaped leaves with pointed tips and serrated edges. The small white flowers grow in umbrella-shaped clusters. They are like the flowers of wild carrot. The roots are large and they are efficient, low, oily material that smells sweet. This yellow substance contains most of the poison.

The poison works rapidly according to Robert Higgins, agronomist of the University of Idaho extension service. It sometimes kills livestock within 15 minutes after the plant is eaten if the intake is large. Animals with only a taste may show symptoms for several days and then recover. The symptoms are loss of muscular control, rapid pulse twitching, dilation of the eyes, frothing at the mouth and convulsions.

To avoid difficulties it is wise to grub out the plants wherever they are found. Higgins said. Bury all parts. Poison remains a long time in a dead plant.

Patches of water hemlock can be killed with a 2, 4-D spray before buds appear. The ratio is two tablespoons of 2, 4-D amine form in a gallon of water. When an area is treated, Higgins advised, keep livestock away for two or three weeks. Treated plants are sometimes more palatable than those that have not been sprayed.

1968 Crop Oats Price Support Rate Set

The price support rate for 1968-crop oats in Latah County will be 68 cents per bushel, or $42.50 per ton, Melvin Proccer, Member, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, has announced. This is the same rate in effect for 1967-crop oats.

Price support will be carried out thru loans on oats stored on farms or in elevators, and by purchases.
Mr. Proccer pointed out that operating procedures for loans on farm-stored grains, in use during the past four years, enable farmers to obtain their crops instead of delivering them to the Commercial Credit Corporation as payment of the loans.

"The Odd Couple" To Be Presented at UI April 22-27

One of the most hilariously successful stage comedies in Broadway history will be presented by the University of Idaho drama program in the U. Hut Arena Theatre at 8 p. m. April 22 through April 27, the comedy called "The Odd Couple" by Neil Simon, which opened in New York in the Spring of 1965 and continued to draw packed houses for over two and a half years.

"The Odd Couple" is the fourth in the six tremendously popular hits-in-a-row by Neil Simon, who with such preceding entertainments as "Barefoot in the Park," "Come Blow Your Horn" and the musical "Little Me" proved he can set off explosions of laughter with unerring aim.

Howard Taubman, then critic of the N. Y. Times, declared when reviewing "The Odd Couple" that it is "a farce that's lighter than air, wittier than the breeze and brasher than a sailor on the town," as it tells the adventures of two friends who decide to room together after previous years in what is sometimes known as matrimonial bliss.

Mr. Taubman added: "The comic point is that two men residing together can develop a domestic situation as irritating to each other as a bad marriage."

John Naples and William Grubb will portray these two friends who develop a temperamental incompatibility as they share an apartment. Mr. Naples will be seen as a gruff sportswriter and a slob, happy to live in messy disorder, and Mr. Grubb as a compulsively neat fighter against dirt and messiness and food that doesn't meet the highest epicurean standards.

John Chapman, critic of the N. Y. Daily News, declared that women will join them in the famous poker-game scenes of the play, and Corine Rowland and Pamela Knepper will be seen as a pair of English sisters, neighbors of the mismatched pair of men, with whom they have a demoted date one evening.

Charles Wright, Cope Gale, Charles Bonney and James Hutcherson will be seen as chums of the odd couple who join them in the famous poker-game scenes of the play, and Corine Rowland and Pamela Knepper will be seen as a pair of English sisters, neighbors of the mismatched pair of men, with whom they have a demoted date one evening.

Edmund Chavez is directing this hurricane of merriment and Robert Thompson is designing the setting of a ramshackled bachelor's apartment.

WWP Electricity was a great bargain 40 years ago...

Today it's an even greater one!

Ever since toast jumped out of the frying pan into the electric toaster, things have been easier at breakfast time. The new toasters can also think. If you don't have one, you're missing something wonderful. WWP's new electric rate is pretty wonderful, too. In a time when most living costs are headed sky-high the company has continued to reduce its residential rate. With the latest residential rate cut, the price per kilowatt hour reaches a low bracket of only 9/10¢. Electric heat, like toasters, has been steadily improved and now costs less than ever. Call us to find out how it can keep your home warm as toast.

Wool Exhibits At Fair

Latah County wool growers will have an opportunity to exhibit their best fleeces at this year's fair, according to Leonard Burns, Latah County Agent.

Within the next month and half, the sheep will be shorn and the wool bagged for marketing. Wool producers are urged to hold back their best fleeces for this year's contest.

Burns notes that area sheep shapers will be glad to help owners select a fair fleece.

and fleece ties at the County Agents office in the courthouse in Moscow. He cautions growers to shear their sheep after the yolk (grease) starts up into the fleece, and only when the sheep are dry.

As wool is closely examined upon delivery, tags (dirty wool) must be sacked separately. Fleece tied with anything other than paper fleece ties will be rejected. Present wool buyers expect producers to manage fleeces in such a manner as to protect the wool from excessive dirt, hay chaff and burrs. Wool is discounted on receipt for any foreign material.

PIONEERING with POTLATCH

The spring log drive down the North Fork of the Clearwater River has become a tradition. Drive #1 took place in 1928 and involved 20 million board feet of logs, less than half the size of present day drives. Oar-powered bateaus were used to haul men down the river and for rescue work. Since 1931 a wanigan has been their floating camp.

In 1949, a 22 horsepower outboard motor was mounted on the trimmed stern of a bateau — the drive's first major change. Wanigans were built on cedar-pole rafts until 1951, when air-filled rubber pontoons were introduced. In 1955, two-way radio came to the drive... and in 1956, outboard motors replaced the long wooden sweeps on the wanigans, and life jackets replaced life belts.

TODAY — the Jet Age has arrived. First the single-motor jet boats "Larch" and "Spruce"... and last year, the all-aluminum "Ponderosa" with twin 190-HP engines. With both engines at full throttle, the "Ponderosa" travels 45 miles per hour... has 3,200 pounds of dynamic thrust... and transports 12 to 15 loggers through turbulent high water. Modern equipment has brought many changes to the annual Clearwater drive, but its success still depends largely on the strong backs, iron nerve and nimble feet of the men with peaveys and pike poles — men like those who have made the drive a success for nearly 40 years.

About 1971, Potlatch will make its last log drive... then Dworshack Dam will block the river, committing to legend the last major white water sawlog drive in the nation.

JOHN MIX SEEKS OFFICE

John Mix, a fourth generation Latah County democrat, today announced his candidacy for the democratic nomination for state senator. Mix, 33, president and general manager of KRPL, Inc. threw his hat into the political ring with the announcement that petitions in his behalf are in circulation throughout the county.

Mix will run for the senate seat now held by democrat Harold Lough, who last week announced that he will not seek reelection. Mix is the grandson of the late G. P. Mix, twice Idaho Lt. Governor, in the 1930's.

Mix has lived at Moscow since 1952, except for a three-year military leave of absence. A graduate of Boise High School, he received a B. A. from the University of Idaho in 1956. He became part-owner of KRPL Radio in 1959 and purchased the controlling interest in 1963.

Mix is an active member of the Moscow Chamber of Commerce and just completed three years on the board of directors. He is a member of the Moscow Lions Club, the Moscow Elks Lodge, the Public Relations Policy Committee for Development at the University of Idaho, the First Methodist Church of Moscow, and is a Captain in the Idaho National Guard.

Mix is married to the former Shirley Black and they have three children, Stephanie, 10; Jeffrey, 8, and Tracy, 5. The democratic hopeful currently is vice president of the Idaho State Broadcasters Association, in which he has served three terms on the board of directors.

faces the human race—the population explosion. Contrary to popular misconception, he said, the relatively small extension to age 60 of the healthy, productive middle period of life would greatly relieve the effects of the population explosion because it would "double the return on the investment society makes in each person."

WIDESPRED USE of oral contraceptives by women may threaten to end man's dominant role in the family, says a University of Wisconsin social work professor. For this reason, men might well welcome the development of male contraceptive drugs as a means of restoring a more favorable balance of power. He adds that "when one can choose between a baby and a refrigerator, or between parenthood and another career, one's sense of power is very great."

PHOSGENE plays an important role in a number of industries. The gas derives its name from the Greek words meaning "light" and "to produce" because it was first made by the action of light on a mixture of carbon monoxide and chlorine.

The rich pell of fisher is considered the best of all furs, and during the heyday of the industry, commanded top prices, often topping $100 each. The fisher is a rarity, capable of killing porcupines with some degree of regularity. Foresters are hopeful that the reintroduction of fisher may mean fewer tree-damaging porcupines.

The poor, misunderstood extension telephone. What it is, what it isn't. It is a second telephone in your home. It isn't paying for a separate line into your house. Or paying for a separate meter. It isn't paying a double telephone bill. What it is merely an extension from your present phone. And if you have to dash through the house or scramble downstairs to say out-of-breath hellos, it's something you need. And it isn't a big expense. The cost—if you choose the basic style and color—is something like 4 cents a day. (Which is a bargain; you pay about four times that for your regular phone.) It's not even a sensational new fad—by now four out of ten homes in America already have an extension phone. And the average family takes over 400 incoming calls a year on it, and uses it for at least that many outgoing calls. Last of all, it wouldn't cost much to try one for a couple of months and this would tell you everything. Whether it is, or isn't, for you. Call our business office or ask the man on the telephone truck. General Telephone

"Cost-Price Squeeze" Catches Farmers In Middle
 The president of Idaho Farm Bureau Federation, Monroe W. Hays, Filer, said this week that the current "cost-price squeeze" is the central factor in farm policy discussions.
 Mr. Hays referred to testimony given by Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, to the Senate Agriculture Committee and he told them, "Whether or not we continue to have galloping inflation in this country will be decided by the Executive branch and the Congress. The key is whether these two branches of government will work together to achieve meaningful reductions in expenditures."
 "I am confident that members of this Committee realize that government spending policy will have more to do with farmers' opportunities to earn good incomes in the future than will any and all decisions in the area of government farm programs," Shuman continued.
 Hays said that a similar point can be made with respect to the importance of policies affecting international trade. "Any action," he said, "governmental or non-governmental, which reduces farmers' markets at home and abroad, directly affects both the volume and price elements of the farm income equation."
 Referring again to Mr. Shuman's testimony, Mr. Hays concurred in urging the Senate Agriculture Committee to reject a proposed extension of the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965.
 Hays said that "... instead of continuing down the dead-end road of government supply-management, price fixing, and subsidies, farmers need a broad based program to expand markets, increase prices, cut costs, and thus provide the basis for increased net farm income."
 "Such a program is embodied in Senator Abraham Ribicoff's bill (S-3158), however a few amendments would be required to make certain that soybeans would be eligible for recourse loans, that cropland retirement programs are available and PL 480 purchases are made in the market place," Hays concluded.

Area's Altered Streams To Be Studied For Damage
 By Stuart L. Murrell
 Regional Conservation Educator
 Dick Irizarry, Fishery Biologist, Idaho Fish and Game Department is presently conducting a special fish production study on streams that have been altered through man's activities, such as channelization, dredge mining, and road construction. Irizarry will be in the Clearwater area for several weeks as part of a statewide effort to find out what is happening to the fisheries in Idaho's streams.
 He has sampled fish populations in 29 streams across the state, totaling 507 miles. The study has shown that natural streams that have not been changed by man's activities produce 10 times as many game fish as altered streams. In addition, the natural areas produce 14 times as many pounds of game fish.
 Last weekend, 9 scouts from Fish and Game sponsored Explorer Post 188 helped Irizarry shock fish populations in 1000 feet of Lapwai Creek. Two electrical charged nets are placed in the water and any fish swimming between them is momentarily stunned by the charge of electricity. Biologists can then net them and take measurements and weights before returning them to the river unharmed. In 300 feet of Lapwai Creek that had been channelized for flood control only 11 steelhead trout were shocked. Channelizing like that done on Lapwai Creek removes streamside vegetation needed for shading the stream, eliminates undercut banks which supply cover for fish to hide in, and reduces the deeper holes. All of this adversely affects the fish living in the stream. On 800 feet of natural stream area, the scouts found 22 steelhead trout in addition to over 500 nongame fish such as suckers, squawfish, dace, shiners, and chiselmouths. It is clear that the natural area supplies a much better environment for fish production. Some of the other streams Irizarry is checking in our area are Orogrande, Skull, Quarts, and Wettes Creeks in the North Fork country.

 Many miles of Idaho's streams have been altered and it is evident our fishing has suffered. It is hoped that a stream protection law can be passed in the next Legislature.
 Montana recently enacted such a law that gives the Fish and Game Department some voice in what activities a private individual or other state agency can engage in on state owned streambeds. Montana feels this law has helped considerably to protect their better trout streams.
 He who receives a benefit should never forget it; he who bestows should never remember it.

VAULTERS MAY GET SCIENTIFIC BOOST
 POLE VAULTERS who use fiberglass poles can theoretically add a foot and a half or more to their best jumps if they heed the results of a study reported by researchers from the Pennsylvania State University. They say that the average vaulter could improve his jump dramatically by increasing his "controlled take-off velocity" and "exploiting more efficiently" the energy stored and returned by the fiberglass pole as it bends and unbends.
 SOCIETY has become so specialist-heavy that it now appears the specialist will have to look to the "general practitioner" to help him. At least that's the opinion of an industrial engineer at the University of Toronto. He says scientists are surrounding themselves with their own environment to such a point that they "can't see beyond their own expertise." What's happening is that the specialist "can't communicate outside his own field. If you can't communicate, you are just not making much contribution to social evolution," he adds. The solution, he says, is "the generalist." A cadre of them, even with fewer specialists, would result in more progress because scientists would be working on a much more solid base.
 NO SINGLE THEORY explains all aspects of the origin of the seas, but many earth scientists agree with the hypothesis that both the atmosphere and the oceans accumulated gradually through geologic time from some process of "degassing" of the earth's interior. According to this theory, the ocean had its origin from the prolonged escape of water vapor and other gases that the molten rocks of the earth to the clouds surrounding it. After the surface had cooled, falling rain began to accumulate and drain into hollows in the earth surface, forming the primordial seas.

For at least 1/3 of your day, it's a nuisance.
 Nobody spends all day near a kitchen phone. Or a hall phone. (Or wherever it is you have the ringing thing.)
 We're guessing that at least 1/3 of the time, a one-phone family does cross-country running through the house or scrambles down some stairs to take the call.
 You can't call that modern living. In fact, 40% of the families in America aren't living like that.
 They've got an extension phone somewhere else in the house.
 That second telephone would cost a lot less than you probably think. Something like 4 cents a day if you choose the basic color and style.
 (And that's a bargain—you already pay about four times that for the phone you've got now.)

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES
Large Attendance, Meritorious And Successful Program
Essays and Orations By First Graduating Class of Genesee H. S.

The First Annual Commencement Exercises of the Genesee High School passed off very happily. The interest of the public as shown by the large attendance must have been gratifying to the teachers, and the graduates who had made such diligent preparation for this important event in their lives. The program was one of excellence throughout, but interest centered chiefly in the four bright young graduates, the "Class of '96." Their essays and orations were highly meritorious. Hearty applause greeted each effort and flowers in profusion were showered upon the stage. The manner in which the exercises were handled indicated time well spent in our public schools, the thoughts conveyed gave every evidence of much natural ability and careful training. The graduates reflected credit upon their instructors and showed great promise themselves. It devolved upon Thos. Keane, the youngest of the class and last on the program, to address words of graduation to the teachers and school board and an appropriate sentiment to his class, and right well and gracefully he did it. The essays and orations were productions meriting their publications in full and for that reason we must forego extended mention.

W. A. DeBow, president of the board in presenting the diplomas made an excellent address to the class, imparting words of counsel and encouragement, while Superintendent Anderson's address was one to inspire the graduates to greater achievements and the attainment of broader culture. He also highly complimented the teachers and school board directors.

Following are the essays and orations of the Class of '96:
FREEDOM: By Samuel Prentiss Burr. THE POWER OF EDUCATION: By Minnie Mae Hodgins. THE CHISEL: By Lulu Marie Hough. MY NATIVE LAND: By Thomas Joseph Keane.
The sermon to the graduates was given by Rev. Wm. C. Fowler from First Corinthians XVI, 13.

May 29, 1968
The place of holding the commencement exercises has been changed from Elliott Hall to the Congregational church with program elsewhere.
The graduating class with Professor Cobbs and Marie Nebelack went down to the river yesterday after flowers for the commencement exercises. Robt. McMungie did the conveying.

The Genesee Schools close today. It is an admitted fact this term has been a highly satisfactory one to pupil and parent. The Commencement exercise this afternoon should be largely attended. The class includes Miss Lulu Hough, Miss Minnie Hodgins, Mr. Prentiss Burr and Mr. Thos. Keane. The News knows these young graduates and has nothing but good words for them all. They have studied faithfully and have justly earned the honors to be conferred today.
The past week we received a letter from Marjorie Burt, of Spokane. In it she writes: "Is it possible to purchase a copy of the Genesee News for May 2, 1957? That issue reflected the celebration of Community Day and had a picture on page one of the first graduating class from Genesee High School in 1896. My mother, Mae Hodgins was a member of the class of '96."
We were sorry no 1957 copy was available but hope the above article will be of interest to Miss Burt.

Apple Blossoms
Oft when May winds toss the dear old orchard
Back again to me across the years;
Comes the rapture of the APPLE BLOSSOMS
Storming through my life's December-tears—
Apple blossoms in their wild stampeding
Take me back to dear loved-days of old;
When in lover's land we strolled together
Sweetheart, when our tales of love we told—
Years have rolled away but still unfading
Is the day you said you loved me so;
Amid that tender pink and white cascading
Of the APPLE BLOSSOMS long ago.

McClure Seeks Another Term

James A. McClure, Idaho's First District Congressman, announced today that he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for re-election to the House of Representatives.

In a statement released this morning, McClure said that he had campaigned two years ago in behalf of fiscal responsibility and against centralized government. He indicated that he felt the 90th Congress had made some progress in this direction and he intended to continue working toward these same goals if re-elected.

In his statement, the Idaho Congressman said: "Today I announce my candidacy for re-election to the United States House of Representatives, where I have been privileged to serve as the link between the people of the First District and official Washington."

"When I was a candidate two years ago, I ran on a platform of four goals: to return a measure of fiscal responsibility to the Federal bureaucracy; to end the trend toward centralized government; to represent the people of Idaho and their interests; and to base my judgments on what is right rather than what is expedient.

"I hope my service has contributed in some small way to the furtherance of these goals.

"For instance, last year Congress reduced the President's budget by more than four billion dollars—not nearly as much as I was in the right direction."

"I also supported numerous efforts to take control of Federal programs away from Washington and turn it over to the States.

"Personally, I am proud to find that my attendance record has been among the top 10 per cent in Congress and that I led the entire Idaho delegation in this respect.

"Prior to 1967, we heard a great deal about rubberstamp Congress, where the President made his proposals and Congress automatically approved them without question.

"Today's Congress can pride itself in the fact that members of the House and Senate have once again begun to think for themselves.

"It is my belief that the people of Idaho want that kind of representation, that they expect me to study the issues, listen to the testimony of experts, and then vote according to my conscience.

"That, I have tried my very best to do.

"In asking for your support again, I can think of no better pledge to make than to say that I will continue working for these same goals throughout the coming years."

McClure, who is 43 years old, was born and raised in Payette. After graduation from the University of Idaho College of Law in 1950, he went into law practice with his father in Payette for sixteen years. During that time he was elected city attorney, prosecuting attorney, and State Senator. McClure was elected to Congress in 1966.

He is married to the former Louise Miller and has three children: Marilyn, 15; Kenny, 13; and David, 10.

Your Medicare Handbook

Within the coming weeks, older people in this area will be receiving a new copy of "Your Medicare Handbook" a new up-to-date guidebook on their Medicare benefits, how the program works, and how payments are made.

D. Gene Shaw, social security district manager, said the new handbook highlights the changes enacted in the 1967 social security amendments, improving protection and simplifying Medicare procedures. It has also been made easier for older people to read and understand.

In developing the new edition of "Your Medicare Handbook," Social Security Administration sought the suggestions of elderly readers as well as experts in the field of communications and representatives of professional organizations.

Delivery of the new red, white, and blue edition to the 19.6 million Americans 65 and over started April 29, 1968. Because of the method of distribution the people in this area will not all receive their handbooks at the same time. Receipt of the handbooks will be spread out over the next 6 weeks, Shaw said.

Any social security beneficiary who has not received a handbook by the middle of June should contact the Lewiston office, 726 21st Street or telephone 743-9456. The office is open on Friday evenings until 6:30 p. m. in addition to regular weekday hours to accommodate those who cannot contact the office at other times.

Idaho To Build Wildlife Research Center In Primitive Area

MOSCOW — The University of Idaho is proposing to purchase, equip, and staff a Wildlife Research Center in the heart of the Idaho Primitive Area that would be one of few of its kind in the United States. It was announced today by Dr. Ernest W. Hartung, president of the university.

The unique wilderness headquarters, to be located on a 65-acre tract of land 25 miles east of Big Creek, would serve as a center for basic and applied scientific research in the wilderness aspects of wildlife, forestry, range, botany, geology, soil, anthropology, sociology and psychology.

The property for the proposed center, which has been a hunting camp, is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Jess Taylor. The university has an option to purchase the property for $100,000. Located on the wilderness-area land are four buildings, including ranch house and cabins, and a 2,300-foot airstrip.

By the time I first came to Washington in 1957, I have also regarded my office as one of personal service to the people. Periodically, I have visited every county courthouse, offering my help to anyone with a problem involving the Federal Government. My door has been open to all comers, without regard to politics or partisan considerations.

In this manner, I have worked for all the people of Idaho, and, on this basis, I ask the people for another vote of confidence.

Idaho's Segment of The Oregon Trail
Heavy wagon and stage coach traffic etched deep ruts in many stretches of southern Idaho deserts during early emigrant travel. Although nearly 100 years have elapsed since the Oregon Trail was used, many of the ruts may still be found.

Early emigrant trails naturally followed the routes of easiest travel close to available water supplies. The Oregon Trail enters Idaho near the present Idaho-Wyoming border crossing of U. S. Highway 30. The trail passes through or near the present cities of Montpelier, Soda Springs, Fort Hall, American Falls, Twin Falls, Glenn Ferry, Boise, Caldwell, and exits the State on the Oregon border just west of the city of Parma. If one traces the route, it becomes obvious that travelers were never far from adequate water supplies.

As traffic increased on the Oregon Trail, pioneers searched for and established new and less arduous routes for movement of their wagon trains. Seven alternate and shortcut routes were established before the Oregon Trail fell into disuse.

Some of the earliest travelers crossing the desolation of the southern Idaho desert during the mid 1800's would be awestricken today to see the hundreds of square miles of developed fertile farm land. Luckily for Idaho, some of the adventuresome pioneers who were tired of travel saw the great potential and stopped to begin a new chapter in Idaho history. That chapter was the establishment of the agricultural industry, and Idaho's first stable economy.

He enjoys much who is thankful for little; a grateful mind is both a great and a happy mind.

Sen. Church Seeks Re-election

Today I announce my candidacy for re-election as United States Senator for Idaho.

First of all, I want to express my deep gratitude to the people for the trust they have reposed in me these past 12 years. In return, I have endeavored, as Idaho's senior Senator, to represent the State with dignity, diligence, and independent conviction.

The Senate is the citadel of the small state of our Union. Idaho's influence in Washington depends primarily upon the stature and seniority of her two Senators. With the passing years, I have been enabled to serve Idaho with increasing effectiveness and growing respect.

In the nation's capital, it is to the Senate that our State must look for the protection of her vital interests. The safeguarding of our water, the preservation of our scenic splendors, the prudent development of our great natural resources, the attention which will be given to the special needs of our farmers, workers, and local businesses, all depend upon Idaho's capacity to deal from positions of strength in the Senate. This is what Idaho has at stake in the coming Senatorial election.

From the time I first came to Washington in 1957, I have also regarded my office as one of personal service to the people. Periodically, I have visited every county courthouse, offering my help to anyone with a problem involving the Federal Government. My door has been open to all comers, without regard to politics or partisan considerations.

In this manner, I have worked for all the people of Idaho, and, on this basis, I ask the people for another vote of confidence.

Closed Fire Season Begins

The closed Fire Season on all areas in the State of Idaho, outside of the cities, will become effective May 10. State Land Commissioner Gordon Trombley states that after this date it will be UNLAWFUL to burn on forest or range lands without a burning permit possession.

Burning permits, when conditions are safe, can be obtained from Department of Public Lands offices, U. S. Forest Service offices and Grazing District offices. Advice on burning problems is also available at the same offices.

According to Ed Ring, Chief Forest-Fire Protection at Coeur d'Alene, campers, smokers, and debris burners are responsible for twenty-five percent of Idaho's wild fires. Fires in these categories are the result of sheer carelessness and each citizen has a responsibility to see that they are prevented.

Soil Bank Program Expiring

Latah County farmers will soon be growing crops again on land that once was retired under the Conservation Reserve program. In the next two years, nearly 14,000 acres will cease to be under CR contracts, stated Melvin Proctor, member of the Latah Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee. On this acreage, involving 128 farms, there is about a 3,200 acre wheat allotment.

This voluntary program to postpone production of grain crops, was started in 1956, and at one time had more applications than could be accepted. Acreage was considered on a bid basis, with the low bids accepted first on 25,000 acres signed up on 173 farms. Rental payments varied from $12.00 to $24.50 per acre with the total payment limited to $5,000.00 per person. The peak annual payments for Latah County totaled $467,000.00 in 1963.

Fencing of the grassland in soil bank to allow grazing following contract expiration has been considered by many land owners. Cost-sharing of such fences was recommended by the ASC Committee, and is now in the Latah Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee. This practice pays 50 per cent of the cost not to exceed one dollar per rod for a 4-wire fence surrounding grass on cropland that management considers better off if it remains in grass. Soil bank owners are urged to contact Leonard Burns, Latah County Agent, for information about income from CR and which remains in grass and is rented for pasture. Soil bank land that remains in grass has automatic wheat history preservation for the same number of years as the farm was under contract.

Problem of Mental Health

Is the problem of mental illness one that applies only to the other fellow? Is it a national problem only and not a local problem? Is it a vague abstraction, rather than a hard reality?

All three of these questions must be answered in the negative. No individual is immune. A good street address is no protection, nor is a sizable bank account. The mental illness respects no respecters of religion or ethnic background. Here are some figures:

—More than 20 million Americans are suffering from known mental illness. At least 40,000 Idahoans need professional help in mental problems.

—An estimated 23,000 persons committed suicide in 1966. Idaho's suicide rate is higher than the national average. More than 100 Idahoans committed suicide each year.

—An estimated 4 million children are in need of some kind of psychiatric help because of emotional difficulties. Between 12 and 15 thousands of these children live in Idaho.

These figures, grim as they are, do not tell the whole story. Rather, they provide the backdrop for a number of significant trends in the continuing war on mental illness, some of them quite promising. Thanks largely to research undertaken during the past 20 years, often with Mental Health Association support, dramatic gains have been made along many lines, such as the new tranquilizing drugs; significant new treatments have been found for some mental illnesses, and aftercare and rehabilitation services designed.

These gains are reflected in figures showing a decline in state hospital populations. A remarkable reduction of 10 per cent in the total number of patients in these hospitals has occurred over the short span of 11 years. Even more remarkable, this downward trend in hospital populations has accelerated over the past five years. The key to this reduction is the increase in numbers of patients released each year.

A stepped-up program of research, education and service conducted by your Mental Health Association will score new victories on this front. You can help by supporting this important work this month.

Idaho Farmers Used More Fertilizer Last Year

Idaho farmers used about 10 percent more commercial fertilizer in 1967 than they did the previous year, a report by Wayne Theissen, soils specialist of the University of Idaho extension service, showed today. A total of 313,570 tons was "registered for use," compared with 285,276 tons in 1966, about 77 percent was listed as dry and 23 percent as liquid carriers of nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium.

Theissen said the figures compiled by the state department of agriculture represents amounts "registered for use" which means tonnage stored or distributed by fertilizer suppliers rather than actual application by farmers. However, the figures reflect increased use on the soil for crop production.

About 67,000 tons of nitrogen were reported in 1967. This is an increase of approximately nine percent. Nearly 65 percent of the nitrogen was dry and 35 percent in liquid form. Liquid nitrogen increased about four percent, with a corresponding decrease in dry ingredients.

The report said 44,000 tons of phosphorus were registered, an increase of five percent. About 87 percent was dry.

The amount of potassium registered for use was 5000 tons, compared with 2700 tons in 1966, an increase of 85 percent.

The summary indicated that Idaho farmers invested more than $20 million dollars in commercial fertilizers during the year. Fifty-eight percent was for nitrogen, 30 percent for phosphorus and two percent for potassium.

As fertilizer use continues to rise, Theissen said, more soil and plant analysis becomes necessary to determine nutrients needed for efficient crop production.

Trout Stocking Trucks Roll Daily Over State

A million or more pounds of hatchery fish of several species and sizes will be stocked this year in Idaho streams, lakes, and reservoirs. Fish and Game Department declared today.

Truck and trailer fish hauling units are busy day and sometimes at night getting ready for the June 1 opening of the statewide general trout season. Many trout being released are "catchables," six or more inches in length. Catchables are raised and released to give "instant" fishing where angling pressure is greatest, according to State Hatchery Supervisor Paul Cuplin, of Boise.

"This takes some pressure off native fish which already are adjusted to habitat conditions and will grow and reproduce their own kind," he said.

Cost of fish feed per pound of fish produced has gone down steadily since the coming of dry feed. In 1965, one pound of dry feed produced one pound of fish. In 1967, one pound of dry feed produced one and a half pounds of fish.

The cost of producing and planting a pound of fish last year averaged about 54 cents.

Dworshak Elk Trapping

Elk trapping operations resumed on the North Fork of the Clearwater River near the new Dworshak Dam recently and part of the study this year will involve tiny radio transmitters to be installed on the animals so their movements can be "tuned in" as required. At least 257 different elk have been trapped and marked since the work started in 1963—nearly 100 of them just last year. Color-coded ear markers and neck bands are used so that the animals can be observed at a distance and identified with respect to time and place of tagging.

LET THEM ALONE. Babes of the woods such as this fawn deer are not lost and do not need help from people who discover their hiding places. They almost surely will die if taken out of their natural habitat and away from the care of their mother. Besides, to molest them in any way is a misdemeanor.

Good Samaritans Let Babes of Woods Alone

This is the time of year when wildlife "babes of the woods" are discovered in their hiding places by people who find them appealing and want to take them back to the city as pets.

Such "adoption" and removal from their natural habitat and mother's care almost always leads to unnecessary death of the infant. Besides, to molest them in any way is a misdemeanor, according to a spokesman of the Idaho Fish and Game Department.

When found by human intruders, babes of the woods appear lost, hungry, forlorn and abandoned. The parents, naturally spooky and reluctant to show themselves, often stand timidly nearby as their offspring are kidnapped by people who find them cute and cuddly.

Moreover, the young of any species require expert care and feeding. They usually won't survive away from their mothers. Some animals become extremely dangerous to humans as they grow up.

IDAHO DEAN PRESENTS PAPER EXPLAINING NORTHWEST'S ORIGIN

A paper explaining the bending of mountains in the Pacific Northwest more than 185 million years ago was presented by Dr. Roland R. Reid, dean of the College of Mines, University of Idaho, at the annual meeting of the Rocky Mountain section of the Geological Society of America in Bozeman, Montana, May 10.

The paper, written by Dr. Reid and W. R. Greenwood, suggests that movement of the continent during the Jurassic time has led to the bending of the mountains of the Pacific Northwest.

According to Reid, "Small folds or bends in the rocks of the Ordovician and Elk City areas of Idaho were produced during such continental drifting movement."

AAA Offers Helpful Hints On Buying Used Cars

Warmer weather encourages used car sales as families plan for holiday trips, or decide to buy a second car for use at the summer cottage.

The AAA has investigated the problems of used car buying and come up with a list of hints for the shopper, hoping his only "lemon" this summer is in ice tea.

For example, says AAA the buyer should check for sagging seat springs, and other hard wear to the car's interior; good indications of high mileage and resulting wear to all other parts of the automobile.

Here is the checklist, provided by the Inland Automobile Association: Gary Matters, the club's Traffic Safety manager, says that buyers will save expensive repair bills by following these procedures.

- Check the body for signs of repair after an accident, and for untreated rust areas.
- Check for sagging or hard-to-close doors. Try all doors and windows for proper operation, and inspect glass for damage.
- Inspect tires for tread wear: Uneven wear indicates need for adjustment.
- Press the brake pedal. If it stops too slow or "gives" slowly under pressure, a major repair is probably needed.
- Check for steering wheel play in excess of two inches.
- Check for clutch play in excess of two inches if the car has a standard transmission. If it has an automatic transmission, start the engine and listen for unusual noises.
- Start the engine and look for excessive exhaust, which may indicate the need for major motor repair.
- Move the car and check the ground for water and oil leaks; either is expensive to repair.
- TEST DRIVE THE CAR. Note if operation is smooth and if the body "feels" sound. If there are any doubts have the car inspected by a trusted mechanic or diagnostic center.
- If almost sold, but still not certain, ask the dealer for the name of the previous owner and ask his honest opinion of the car.

Forty-One New Jobs Listed With Employment Office

Although 41 new jobs were listed with the Moscow Office of the Idaho Department of Employment during the week, qualified workers were in somewhat short supply, and only 14 persons were placed on jobs during the week, Frank J. Hartstein, Manager of the Moscow office reported that there were 85 jobs open now.

He said that all of them required either specialized training or experience. Men could find work as carpenters, service station attendants, a mechanic, an elevator man, a construction inspector, baker, salesman, fallers and log tractor operators. Women are needed to fill such jobs as secretaries, general office clerks, a bookkeeper, telephone solicitors, sales clerks, cooks, waitresses, maids and live-in housekeepers.

The number of Latah County recipients of unemployment compensation continues to decline, according to Hartstein's report. Although 10 persons filed new claims during the week, the total dropped from 134 to 121, indicating that 23 workers discontinued their claims. Most of these returned to work, he said. A year ago, there were 152 persons receiving jobless pay in the county.

SYNTHETIC 'RICE' MAY REPLACE RICE

A NUTRITIOUS SYNTHETIC FOOD designed to supplement the diets of underfed people who depend on rice as a food has been developed by a University of Michigan chemical engineer. He has produced what he calls the "Balina seed."

It closely resembles rice and is made entirely from vegetable sources. Major components are cereal flours (mostly wheat, with some oats, barley and corn), toasted legume flours (soy, wheat germ, dehydrated yeast, and vitamin and mineral supplements to give a balanced food. "This is probably the first really successful product that could be substituted for rice in typical rice recipes," he said.

FLUOROCARBONS: the carbons that form the base of the coating that keeps eggs from sticking to coated frypans have entered the biological field in an intriguing manner—as a substitute for red blood cell function.

Harvard University reports that emulsified fluorocarbons have been shown to be highly effective in transporting oxygen and carbon dioxide through vessels of living creatures from which the red blood cells have been removed. They also are capable of maintaining life.

CURES for a disease caused by the growth inside a dog's heart of needle-like worms up to 12 inches long are being sought at Cornell University. The disease, which is transmitted by mosquitoes is found in many parts of the U. S. It also has become a problem with sentry dogs in Vietnam. Treatment by medicine or surgery has not been completely satisfactory. In a heavily infected dog, the heart becomes clogged with worms and the animal gradually wastes away.

FOOD PROCESSING PLANTS of the future will be located close to food sources and not in metropolitan areas, predicts Volter Louisville.

In fact, the company says, some food industries have already moved closer to their suppliers. U. S. packing houses for some time now have been relocating nearer livestock sources and the Russians and Japanese have sea-going plants traveling with their fishing fleets.

ONCE CONSIDERED a fringe, the air plane now is an integral and vital part of many business operations. The Federal Aviation Administration reports that 80 of the 100 corporations in the U. S. have their own aircraft. It says that companies operate some 24,000 planes and employ some 26,000 people to fly them. The figures raise the question of whether one can succeed in business without really flying?

Summer School Set At Idaho

Although school may be out for most collegians in approximately three weeks 1,500 will quickly return to classes when the University of Idaho's Summer school begins June 10. The summer session will continue to August 2.

In 1899, Idaho was the first institution in the Pacific Northwest to provide a summer school.

According to Dr. Paul Kaus, director, 179 graduate and 128 graduate courses will be offered this year. There will also be a number of workshops and short courses which will attract an additional 1,500 persons, reported Dr. Kaus. Many high school students will participate in the workshops.

Accelerated courses and workshops will include music, art, business, education, special education, school administration, French, German, photography, physical education and home economics.

The 1968 Summer School bulletin is now available, and can be obtained by writing the Summer School Director "The University of Idaho's summer program is gaining national attention because it attracts so many out-of-state students and summer faculty. The reason primarily rests in the fact that the university is situated in one of the loveliest summer recreational areas in the entire country," explained Dr. Kaus.

Fees for part-time students, enrolled for five credits or less, are $15 per credit. Full-time resident students carrying six or more credits will pay $87.50, and non-residents of Idaho, $102.50.

Regional Lake Fishing Predicted As Good

By Stu Murrell, Regional Conservation Educator

The fishing forecast for the May 4th opening on lowland streams and lakes in the Clearwater Region looks excellent this year. Fishing hours are from 5:00 a. m. to 11:00 p. m. The lowland streams are clear and low for this time of year and should provide good fishing. All our lowland lakes and some of the selected streams have been planted and reservoirs have a limit of 10 trout. The stream limit is 15 trout. The following is a brief summary on each area:

At Winchester Lake the rough fish were eliminated last summer and it should provide excellent fishing for juvenile steelhead.

The Palouse River near Laird Park should be good for catchable rainbows which were recently stocked.

Some of the other lowland streams that will provide fishing for juvenile steelhead are the lower end of Cottonwood, Butcher, John's, Five and Six-Mile Creeks.

Be sure to obtain a copy of the fishing regulations and read the information pertaining to the area you wish to fish in. Soldier's Meadow Reservoir will not open until the regular trout season on June 1.

Waha Lake has had catchable rainbows planted this year and along with fry planted last year, will provide good fishing.

The water levels are low and comparatively clear.

Blue Lake should be fair fishing for 6 to 8 inch rainbows.

Mann's Lake should be fair angling for recently planted catchable rainbows and largemouth bass. The reservoir is full and somewhat muddy.

Spring Valley near Troy should be good for holdover and recently planted rainbows and possibly some cutthroat. If it rains the road around the lake may be impassable.

Elk Creek Reservoir near Elk River should be good fishing for catchable rainbows and eastern brook trout. Roads are in good condition in this area.

Moose Creek Reservoir should provide fair angling for recently planted catchable rainbows. Roads can be slick in rainy weather.

Lawyer's Creek has recently been planted with catchable rainbows near Craigmont and Ferriand. It should provide good fishing on opening weekend.

The section of Elk Creek below Elk Creek Reservoir has been heavily stocked with catchable rainbows and should provide good angling. Some brook trout are available in the other portions of the stream.

Lagawa Creek has some fair fishing for juvenile steelhead.

WANTED BY THE FBI

JAMES EARL RAY, also known as Eric Starvo Galt, Harvey Lowmyer, John Willard, James McBride, James Walton, W. C. Herron and James O'Conner.

James Earl Ray, a Missouri prison escapee, sought under the alias Eric Starvo Galt in connection with the gunshot slaying of civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., is one of the FBI's "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives." FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover ordered the special addition of Ray to the "Ten Top" list to insure widespread dissemination of Ray's photograph and description to speed his location.

Ray has been intensively sought since the murder of Dr. King on April 4, 1968, as he stood on the balcony of a Memphis, Tennessee, motel. An exhaustive FBI fingerprint search, comparing latent fingerprints uncovered in the Dr. King case against fingerprints of over 53,000 persons on whom wanted notices were posted, determined that Galt and Ray are identical.

A Federal warrant, issued at Birmingham, Alabama, on April 17, 1968, charges Ray, under the alias of Galt, with conspiring to interfere with a Constitutional Right of a citizen, Ray, who escaped on April 23, 1967, from the Missouri State Penitentiary, is also sought for unlawful flight to avoid confinement for robbery. His long criminal record also includes convictions for burglary and forging U. S. Postal Money Orders.

A white American, born in Alton, Illinois, on March 10, 1928, Ray is 5'10" tall, weighs 163 to 174 pounds, has blue eyes and short brown hair. He has a nervous habit of tugging at an ear lobe and his left ear protrudes noticeably. Known as a "loner" and "redneck," Ray has worked as a baker, laborer and color matcher. He has taken dancing lessons and completed a course at a school of bartending.

Consider Ray armed and extremely dangerous. Report any information concerning him to the nearest FBI office.

 Backed by more than 50,000 Idahoans, Senator Frank Church has called on the Senate to reject proposals for sweeping new national gun controls.

"I oppose the passage of new Federal controls written with an eye to big city crime, but uniformly applicable to the country as a whole," Church told senators during debate on the anti-crime bill.

"We have a different way of life in Idaho than anything known in the East. We hope to keep it different. The people of my state don't think we need national gun regulation. Neither do I."

For the benefit of his Senate colleagues, Church's desk was piled high with petitions bearing the signatures of over 50,000 Idaho citizens who oppose Federal gun controls.

"In my hand," he said during Senate debate, "I hold six letters from Idaho favoring stronger Federal gun controls, the total number I have received during the past year. The ratio of opponents to proponents, as registered with my office, is about 8,000 to 1."

Church pointed out that the genius of the American system of government "is that we resist centralized authority, recognizing the diversity which exists within a land of continental dimensions and the consequent necessity for leaving such jurisdiction to state and local governments."

"Especially has this been so in the field of law enforcement," the Idaho Senator continued.

Pointing out that problems of law enforcement in Idaho are much different than those faced in states with large urban populations, Church said that "Idaho doesn't ask to write the gun laws for California or Illinois. We ask only to be left the master of our own house."

We are against new Federal gun controls because they wrap all states, large and small, in the same blanket."

"Guess what they've gone and done now! A machine that lays its own track—and picks it up again!" Many a logger entertained his family with similar descriptions after seeing the first primitive tractors. As early as 1912, tractors for use in the woods were being manufactured with valve-in-head engines and two speeds forward, one reverse. Two of these early models went to work for the old Deer Park Lumber Company as early as 1923 . . . but until the '30's, horses still did most of the work.

Continuing effort to improve logging efficiency led to the introduction of tractors to woods work as it already had the truck and later the chain saw. The gradual replacement of horses by mechanical horsepower took many years but was essentially complete in the Clearwater region by 1943.

TODAY — modern tractors are a part of almost every step of logging from cutting the first road into the woods to the "cat-skinner" skidding his drag of logs to the landing area. Men and their machines, today as in the past, pioneering

Senate Debates Gun Controls

The U. S. Senate this week is debating one of the most controversial issues in decades—gun control legislation. No one in the United States—seems undecided on this issue, for every poll conducted in recent years, and the attention of the public has been in the press and on national radio and television, indicates that practically every citizen has a rock-bound opinion on whether or not a new gun control law is needed. These deep convictions notwithstanding, the fact remains that few persons actually understand what the subject is all about.

The polls repeatedly pose the question to citizen samplings: "Are you for stricter controls on guns?" They seldom explain what is meant by "stricter controls," and the answering public finds itself supplying evidence on a subject in which it is largely unoriented.

As it is, the question: "What is this gun control bill?" and "What is the content of the gun control bill, you're one of the millions who do not understand the situation, for the fact is that there are SEVERAL gun control bills, and they are all different.

Congress probably will decide this year which of these proposals, if any, it will write into law; therefore, it behooves the electorate to understand the issue, or issues at hand.

Following is a brief rundown on the five main gun control bills now being discussed on the Senate floor. Each of the bills is proposed as a section of the Senate bill, the Safe Streets and Crime Control Act.

(1) The Dodd Bill (D-Conn.). Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.), chairman of the Judiciary Committee, Subcommittee on Juvenile Delinquency, is the prime sponsor of federal gun legislation in this decade. In early 1963, he authored the bill which has practically interstate sale of handguns, primarily to curtail their availability to teenagers and criminals. The bill was the result of an investigation against the problem of juvenile delinquency, and the subcommittee had found that pistols and revolvers played a dramatic and tragic role in many teen-age suicides and individual murders. This legislation had widespread support, including the endorsement of the National Rifle Association and other sportsmen's organizations.

John F. Kennedy in late 1963, however, Sen. Dodd amended his bill to impose controls over interstate shipments and sale of rifles and shotguns, as well as pistols and revolvers. At this point, his bill now became the center of heated controversy, and he lost the support of the NRA and the other sportsmen's organizations who regarded it as a threat to the traditional American right to own firearms and use them for recreational purposes. The debate has raged ever since, especially on the several occasions when Sen. Dodd added tighter restrictions to his bill.

Sen. George Jackson moved to have his bill reported out of Committee as written. The Senators on the Committee rejected his proposal to include rifles and shotguns in the prohibition against interstate sales, but gave approval to the section prohibiting all interstate sales of pistols and revolvers.

This measure is not included in S-917, the Safe Streets bill which is now being debated on the Senate floor. It constitutes Title IV of the bill.

Briefly, it would: Prohibit all mail order sale of all firearms other than rifles and shotguns; prohibit pistol sales to residents of other states; prohibit pistol sales to persons under 21; prohibit importation of surplus handguns and military surplus weapons such as bazookas, grenades, and tear gas; place stringent controls over purchase or sale of the so-called destructive devices, such as bazookas.

The measure also has the effect of adding to the ban on mail order and out-of-state sale of pistols. All sides are in agreement on most other portions of the measure.

(2) The Hruska Amendment. The House of Representatives has already passed the Safe Streets and Crime Control Act, without any gun control provisions. When and if the Senate approves its version of the Safe Streets Act, it will have to pass the Hruska Amendment. This measure must go back to the House for approval. If the House approves, the bill would go to the White House, for anticipated signature into law by the President.

(3) The Topping Amendment. Sen. Joseph Topping (D-Md.), an ally of Dodd, is sponsor of an amendment to restore the prohibition against interstate sale of rifles and shotguns to the Safe Streets bill. This is the section rejected earlier by the Judiciary Committee, and it would impose the same restrictions on sale of the so-called "hot" weapons as the proposed legislation now imposes on handguns.

(4) The Brooke Amendment. The proposal with perhaps the least support is the Brooke Amendment (R-Mass.) to require federal registration of all sportsmen's guns. It has practically no support from either side—it is an amendment by Sen. Edward W. Brooke (R-Mass.) to require federal registration of all sportsmen's guns.

Both sides regard this approach as far too drastic, and none of those involved in the long-standing controversy has ever proposed registration, even at a local level.

(5) The Javits Amendment. In an apparent attempt to provide some middle ground on which both sides could maneuver toward compromise, Sen. Jacob Javits (R-NY) has proposed an affidavit procedure for sales of rifles or shotguns in interstate commerce. At first glance, Javits' proposal appears to incorporate aspects of both Dodd's and Hruska's approaches, but basically it would satisfy neither, for Dodd would require completely all sales of rifles in interstate commerce, and Hruska would not interfere with any sales of rifle in interstate commerce.

These are the five approaches to gun control now being debated on the Senate floor.

The House of Representatives has already passed the Safe Streets and Crime Control Act, without any gun control provisions. When and if the Senate approves its version of the Safe Streets Act, it will have to pass the Hruska Amendment. This measure must go back to the House for approval. If the House approves, the bill would go to the White House, for anticipated signature into law by the President.

Capt. Henry's Fur Trading

Early day fur trading has long been known as the first vehicle for exploration of the vast land masses of the western United States and Canada. Probably the most popular and famous trading region was centered in the three state area of Idaho, Montana, and Wyoming near what is known as Yellowstone National Park. The fur trading business was directly responsible for one of the first settlements in Idaho. In 1810, Captain Andrew Henry of the Missouri Fur Company established Fort Henry on the Snake River about five miles downstream from the present city of St. Anthony. The post was small, consisting of a few log structures and was abandoned the following spring. Small and short-lived, Fort Henry was the beginning of more permanent settlements in this section of eastern Idaho.

Memories of Captain Andrew Henry remain in parts of northeastern Idaho, where Henry's Lake and Henry's Fork of the Snake River bear his name.

CLEARWATER REGION FISHING PREDICTION

The General season for trout will open Saturday, June 1st, in the Clearwater Region. Fishing hours are from 5:00 a. m. daylight savings time to 11:00 p. m.

High water conditions that have developed with recent rains should make fishing difficult and roads muddy in the high country. Unless it clears up by the opening weekend, fishing will be slow.

Some of the preferred areas for opening weekend are listed below: In the northern part of the Clearwater Region fair fishing should be available in the tributaries of the North Fork of the Clearwater such as Breakfast Creek, Cedar Creek, and Benton Creek.

The Lachsa River and South Fork of the Clearwater are high. These areas will be planted with fish when water conditions become suitable. This is to provide the maximum return to the fisherman.

One other species opens that receives very little publicity and that is the bullfrog. The limit is 12 on these large frogs and their legs are considered a delicacy.

INFORMAL WHEAT HEARING VIEWS REPORTED

Wheat farmer representatives who took part in informal hearings early in May on the 1969 national wheat acreage allotment generally favored a 10- to 15-percent reduction from the 1968 acreage allotment, according to Department of Agriculture officials who conducted the meetings on behalf of Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman.

Informals hearings were held at 10 locations throughout the country—including one at Spokane, Washington, and one at Billings, Montana—to enable producers, their organization leaders and people of the wheat trade and processing industries to express their views and recommendations regarding the acreage allotment decision that must be made by the Secretary.

Producers generally agreed the harvest from 45 to 48 million acres would be plenty of wheat in 1969 as compared with the harvest of 59 million acres in 1967, the USDA people said. In 1968, planted acreage is currently estimated at 62.7 million acres, and the winter wheat crop is forecast as a near record.

In view of the prospective increase in wheat carry over at the end of the current marketing year and the possibility of a further increase after marketing of the 1968 crop, most recommendations being made to the Department say the program should encourage farmers to reduce production below the level of consumption and thus reduce stocks.

Fish Population Samples Taken in Idaho Streams

The Idaho Fish and Game Department is currently conducting a fish production study on several Idaho streams. Fish populations are measured in natural areas and they are also measured in adjacent areas that have been altered by some activity such as rechanneling, dredge mining, or road construction.

Trizary, a biologist, has sampled fish populations in streams across the state. The study has shown that streams that have not been changed by man produce many more young game fish as altered streams.

Trizary explained that the population samples are taken using electro-fishing gear. Two electrically charged nets are placed in the water and any fish swimming between them are momentarily stunned. After the fish are measured and weighed, they are returned to the water unharmed.

Thus far the survey has covered 507 miles of 26 streams. Of this, 44 percent or 224 stream miles have been altered. Trizary pointed out that channel alteration normally eliminates shade, deep holes and undercut banks. These areas are used by fish to rest, feed, and hide.

The importance of stream fisheries was revealed in the Department's inventory of the state's fisheries. It showed that although streams comprise only 22 percent of the available fishing waters in Idaho, they support an estimated 56 percent of the fishing harvest.

Retired Farmer Was Champion Wagon Driver. Pictured above is a three-wagon, eight-line rig used by Ellis Odberg to win the championship of the world in hitched one behind the other and handled by a single driver. Among the tests for the rig were driving a figure eight at a dead run and driving through gates with an inch to spare. One can imagine the skill and daring and split second timing that were involved in such events. The Odbergs still have colts descended from some of the well-trained horses that Mr. Odberg bred in the Centennial. Mr. Odberg was married in the early 1920's to Miss Lillie Olson of Troy. They have three children: Ellis Jr. (Jim), who with his wife Pat farms the Genesee place; Ann, a resident of Portland, and Irene (Billie), who lives with her husband and children near Arlington, Oregon. The couple have six grandchildren. The Odbergs reside in Portland now, but spend part of each year in Genesee and Lewiston. And, as always, when the time comes, one notices a twinkle in his eye when his favorite subject of horses is brought up. And as a brand new Appaloosa colt foals downed in the Centennial, one notices a spotted harbinging of a new generation is keeping a man who is advanced in years very young at heart—Marrie Scharnhorst.

Ellis Odberg Remembers Story of James Gang Visit To Northwest. Each year, Genesee Community Day features an exhibit and display of old time maps, tools, pictures, machinery, housewares, clothing, etc. as part of its celebration. R. E. Nordby, Lew Messinger and Mrs. M. S. Moser are the coordinators for this display. This year, in keeping with the old-time display, we thought a story about events in our region of the Scharnhorst, in visiting with Mr. Ellis Odberg, found that he had a story about Jesse James and his famous gang having been in this area many years ago. Mr. Odberg loaned us the story which we have printed as he wrote it. JESSE JAMES' WEST CAMP.

Ellis A. Odberg. A verification by the author of Jesse James' travels in Oregon, Washington, and Idaho. In 1870, Jesse Woodson James started traveling west to Oregon. He had a Minnesota bank robbery. He had a hideout in North Yamhill county, Oregon and another in Polk County which was about four or five miles from the Benton-Polk county line.

At that time went out looking for it in that area. Although it is very possible that the gang was in Colton and later uncovered when they moved to an Idaho hideout, there might be a simpler explanation for the fact that no trail was ever found. I feel that it was a night holdup and it is likely that the robbers took the gold with them. If the James boys did hold up the bank, it seems likely that they carried their haul up to their hideout near Forest, Idaho. They stayed there with an outlaw called "Horse Thief Campbell."

This author's father, Matthew H. Odberg, once encountered the James gang near the Tucuman River in the area west of the present town of Pomeroy, Washington. Mr. Odberg spoke of the show of marksmanship which Jesse James put on. James would charge down the lane at a full gallop and put a bullet in every fence post that he passed. The elder Odberg spoke of this occasion many times as a personal recollection. He also spoke of James as a likable person and it is even possible that James assisted the elder Odberg in some way, as they evidently encountered each other on the Dalles, Oregon trail. The author's father was a member of the Genesee degree chapter of the Elks. He mentioned that James was a government freight carrier at that time, hauling from the Walla Walla trail to Mount Idaho (near Grandview) in the Nez Perce Indian War of 1877. This was also the route to Forest, Idaho where the James gang was staying during the same period.

Mike Odberg, the author's deceased brother, traded an unbroken horse for a 45 Smith and Wesson six shooter in 1904. This gun had supposedly belonged to Jesse James. Although I am not convinced that it is the same gun, the print on the gun shows that it was made in 1880. In the book, THE GREAT WEST, by Nelider, he mentions the fact that James did have a 45 calibre Colt and a 45 Smith and Wesson. At the time the gun was purchased in Genesee, Idaho, the author's father was known to be a man of good reputation and honesty. At any rate, the old gun is now in this author's possession and may be seen upon near the top of the grade; many people

My Rainfall Totals 1.21 Inches. Only 1.21 inches of rain fell in the Genesee area during the month of May, 1968. It was reported this week by John Luodke, who maintains a rain gauge for the Soil Conservation Service records. The 1.21 inches received in the month of May was almost one-half less than the moisture during the same period in 1967, which was listed at 1.63 inches.

Welcome Sunday Rain. Heavy rain swept over most of the Palouse country Sunday evening and early Monday morning and dropped 9.9 inches of welcome moisture on the fields and gardens of the area. The rain began Sunday morning shortly before the noon hour and then stopped about 6 p. m. There was a heavy rain for about two hours then it stopped and began again early Monday.

Card of Thanks. I wish to thank all my friends and neighbors who sent cards, flowers, visited me and made inquiries while I was in the hospital and since returning home have been demoralized and thoughtfulness have truly been appreciated. Robert Kuhn

Retired Farmer Was Champion Wagon Driver. Pictured above is a three-wagon, eight-line rig used by Ellis Odberg to win the championship of the world in hitched one behind the other and handled by a single driver. Among the tests for the rig were driving a figure eight at a dead run and driving through gates with an inch to spare. One can imagine the skill and daring and split second timing that were involved in such events. The Odbergs still have colts descended from some of the well-trained horses that Mr. Odberg bred in the Centennial. Mr. Odberg was married in the early 1920's to Miss Lillie Olson of Troy. They have three children: Ellis Jr. (Jim), who with his wife Pat farms the Genesee place; Ann, a resident of Portland, and Irene (Billie), who lives with her husband and children near Arlington, Oregon. The couple have six grandchildren. The Odbergs reside in Portland now, but spend part of each year in Genesee and Lewiston. And, as always, when the time comes, one notices a twinkle in his eye when his favorite subject of horses is brought up. And as a brand new Appaloosa colt foals downed in the Centennial, one notices a spotted harbinging of a new generation is keeping a man who is advanced in years very young at heart—Marrie Scharnhorst.

City Will Begin Operating Starting Traps This Week. Devices constructed to live-trap starlings have been completed by the city and will soon be placed in suitable locations in the city in an effort to control the population of these nuisance birds. This was one of the topics discussed at the Monday evening of the city council held Monday evening.

Wayne Roach appeared before the council to present the location map of the recently installed sewer system in the city of Genesee. The map will be stored for future reference. A discussion of the problems of providing sewer, water, and roadway entrance to a residence being constructed by Everett Wishard was made by the council. Mr. Wishard is in the process of building a home on Pecan Street back of the city. The sewer line will be running the sewer line up from Fir Street and opening the alley just north of the Green home to provide access to the house.

people putting their rafts in at Paradise or flying into Shearer or Moose Creek landing strips. Judging from the rapids we observed, only experienced boaters should float this stream. It is full of large boulders and narrow chutes but small enough to swim out if you get dunked.

The area receives considerable use on horses and is known nationwide for its excellent elk hunting. The trails are good along the river and up Moose Creek and Bear Creek.

Upper Selway River Makes Beautiful Trip
By Stu Murrell
Regional Conservation Educator

A backpack trip down the upper Selway River makes a beautiful trip. Opportunities for viewing wildlife and photographing it abound in addition to the spectacular scenery. During fishing season, which began June 1st, large cutthroat trout up to 20 inches can be taken in the numerous, dark green runs. Whitefish are also abundant. There are numerous undeveloped campsites along the river including some nice sand beaches for swimming.

I had the opportunity to backpack down the Selway River from Paradise Ranger Station downstream to Selway Falls last week in April with four other members of the Fish and Game Commission. It was a very enlightening trip and I learned much about the resources of the area and its problems.

During the trip of about 55 miles we observed 276 elk, 106 mule deer, 17 whitetails, 20 ruffed grouse, 1 blue grouse, a coyote, numerous tracks of black bear, and a real rarity, a cougar. In certain sections of the river steelhead could be seen migrating and several were observed spawning in tributaries and on gravel beds in the main river.

We stopped and checked the three artificial spawning channels that we have constructed at Indian Creek, Running Creek and Ditch Creek. These are nothing more than ideal streams built with the proper sized gravel for raising salmon. At the end of each one there is a holding box so we can count the number of spring chinook that have hatched from our planted eggs. We expect the first returns over Lewiston Dam from this program this spring. Many of the streams, such as Meadow Creek, Three Links Creek, and Bear Creek are fine steelhead spawning areas.

One of the things that impressed all of us was the clarity of the water even though we had rain the first night and day plus melting snow adding to the runoff. The Selway is the only major stream for anadromous fish left in the Snake River System that still runs free and clear during spring runoff. The main reason for this is the protection the 1 and one-fourth million acre Selway-Bitterroot Wilderness Area affords to the watershed.

However, when the Selway-Bitterroot was reclassified in 1963 a large chunk of over 400,000 acres was not included in the wilderness. In 1966, the Forest Service proposed logging 140,000 acres of this, Area E as it's called. Biologists were concerned over the possible damage to the fishery resources due to siltation from logging roads. Twelve percent of all the steelhead that enter the Columbia River spawn in the Selway. In addition, we have already spent over 1 1/2 million dollars on anadromous fish in this drainage.

A special committee, appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture, indicated the Forest Service should take a second look at their logging proposal on the headwaters of the Selway. The committee stated, "It does feel very strongly that the further roading of the area as proposed by the Forest Service, would be hazardous with respect to water quality." Easily eroded soils were their main concern.

Another problem is apparent in the area from Moose Creek Ranger Station downstream to Selway Falls where brushfields are growing out of reach of big game and coniferous trees shading them out. This area has had a history of burns in 1910, 1919, and 1934. It is apparent that game along this section of the Selway could be benefited by a prescribed burning program, such as is presently being carried out along the Lochsa River in cooperation with the Forest Service. Having the river is another method of gaining access of this area with

Closing Dates Set For Big Game Hunts

Opening dates for big game hunting seasons in Idaho will follow a fixed pattern that can be plotted years ahead without the help of calendars, it was announced by the State Fish and Game Commission.

Normal variations in a calendar from year to year are overcome by tracing on graph paper the differences in starting dates for elk and deer hunting seasons. Only experienced hunters should start September 21, depending on the year.

Since opening dates for big game hunting seasons were set for this year last January to facilitate the planning of vacation schedules, the Fish and Game Commission established closing dates for these seasons, and opening dates for upland game bird hunting. Closing dates for birds will be set in August.

A two-day wild turkey hunt was set

Tips Given On Traveling With Youngsters

Three general rules for taking the youngsters along on a vacation trip by car, keep them safe, keep them occupied and tailor your mileage and stops to their eating and sleeping habits, are given by Dale P. Sledman, General manager of the Inland (AAA) Automobile Association.

How well these rules are followed, he added, can spell the difference between a happy motoring vacation and one beset with harassment and unfortunate incidents.

Concerning safety, he urged seating the children away from the driver at all times, preferably in the back seat. Instruct them not to play with door handles or buttons, or distract the driver in any way. They should also be admonished not to stick their heads or arms out the car window.

Keep the child occupied. Variety is essential to keep him from becoming bored and restless. This problem was solved by one mother who took along the three favorite toys of each of her children, and went to the dime store before leaving to pick up a few 'surprises' to bring along the way. Surprises help when the novelty of the trip begins to wear off.

Stopping to picnic gives everybody a chance to work out car stiffness. Take along a lunch and Thermos filled with appropriate beverage, and let the children try toasting wieners and marshmallows at an outdoor campfire meal.

AAA believes traveling with children can be a family happy event, if adequate planning precedes the trip.

Twenty-Five Workers Given Job Finding Help

Twenty-five Latah County workers were helped in finding employment during the week by the Moscow office of the Idaho Department of Employment. Frank J. Harstein, Manager, reported that this was slightly more than the 18 placed during the previous week and also more than the 21 placed during the same period of time in 1967.

During the week there were 32 new jobs listed with the Employment office, Harstein said, making a total of 58 jobs available. Among the jobs open for men are: fallers, janitors, mechanic, salesmen, groceryman, carpenter and baker. Openings for women include: maids, babysitters, companion, waitresses, kitchen helper, cooks, bookkeeper, secretary, salesperson and seamstress.

The Genesee News, Genesee, Idaho, June 7, 1968

New claims for unemployment insurance totaled 28 during the week which was considerably higher than the 9 new claims one week ago and 7 this same time one year ago. Many of these filing new claims are off their regular jobs due to layoffs in the woods because of rains during the past week. Even though the number of new claims taken rose, the total number of persons filing for benefits still remained the same, with 87 persons filing claims as compared to 87 the week before. This is due to some persons finding jobs and others exhausting their benefits. A year ago there were 75 active claims.

Moscow showed a slight decrease just as amazing as the silly extra-23 persons receiving benefits compared to 28 last week and 29 during this same period a year ago. Genesee's total of 6 last week dropped to 2 this week, and the Troy-Deary-Bovill area total rose to 40, as compared to 20 last week and 24 this same time one year ago. The number of persons seeking benefits from the Kendrick area remained the same as last week with three persons receiving benefits. The number of claims total at Elk River decreased from 7 last week to 2 this week.

The petty economies of the rich are just as amazing as the silly extravagance of the poor.

National Guardsmen Begin Field Training In Boise

Boise—More than 2500 Idaho and Nevada Army National Guardsmen began field training this week at Gowen Field near here. The Guardsmen come from communities throughout both states. Most are members of Idaho's 116th Armored Cavalry Regiment commanded by Col. Theodore R. Pence from Buhl.

Early this week, the 1900 members of the 116th Armored Cavalry Regiment moved in convoys of trucks, tanks, and heavy guns to desert training areas approximately 20 miles south of the main camp. Here the units will bivouac for seven days and nights undergoing training from 7:30 a. m. to 6:00 p. m.

Training began this week with the test firing of heavy weapons including the M48 tank-mounted 90mm guns, 105mm howitzers and 4.2 mortars. Other Cavalrymen began training with their smaller weapons including rifles, pistols, machine guns and grenade launchers which will fire later this week to become qualified marksmen.

This year, training emphasis is on individual skills, according to Colonel Pence. "The regiment was reorganized in January, he said, so many of the Guardsmen are getting their first practical experience in their new jobs. "Although the soldiers have received training in their new assignments since January at home-town armories this is their first chance to try out their skills in field conditions and with the equipment and facilities available to operate or fire it.

Next Sunday and Monday, the regiment will complete its desert training phase having qualified gunners on all weapons, as well as having trained all support personnel from riflemen to cooks.

It will then return to Gowen Field for special chemical and radiological training and to begin preparing equipment for turning to a concentration site where tanks, guns, armored mortar carriers and other equipment is stored throughout the year. Units maintain only their wheeled vehicles, small arms, and a minimum amount of tanks and heavy weapons at their home-town armories.

The 116th Armored Cavalry Regiment headquartered at Twin Falls is composed of the 1st Squadron with units at Caldwell, Homedale, Boise, Gooding, Buhl, Nampa, Weiser, Payette, and Emmett; the 2nd Squadron from Pocatello, Jerome, Hailley, Burley, Twin Falls, Rupert, and Preston; and the 3rd Squadron from Nevada.

Idaho National Guard units supporting the regiment in field training include: Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, Boise; the 116th Heavy Equipment Maintenance Company, Boise; the 25th Army Band, Caldwell; the 159th Engineer Detachment, Lewiston; and the 50th Engineer Platoon from Moscow.

FATHER-SON TALK MAY BE BIRDS, BEES, COMPUTERS

A "LIVING" BACTERIUM CELL that eats, grows and reproduces itself—all by mathematical formulae—has been created by a computer scientist at the University of Michigan. During its "life" in the computer, the cell thrives on milk, sugar and kindness. If maltreated, it gets sick and dies. The researcher said he created the cell model by taking detailed facts of life processes and interpreting them in a computer to see if they could function as a whole. They did. He says the result shows that the laws of physics and chemistry can be applied to life processes to produce greater understanding of life itself.

EARLY RADIOLOGIC treatment can apparently lead to complete cures for some victims of Hodgkin's disease, a cancer-like ailment that will kill as many as 3,500 Americans this year, say medical researchers at the University of Chicago. They say past success with radiologic treatment has led to a potential new treatment in the form of Hodgkin's disease affecting the skin. They are using superficial radiation of skin lesions, combined with high-energy radiation from electron beam scanning, to treat the disease.

ARC WELDING applications in tanks and railroad cars requiring continuous electrodes can be easily performed with new semi-automatic equipment that is separated into two connected units, reports National City.

Another plus, if you have your vehicle inspected now, says Harold Davis, supervisor of the State's Vehicle Inspection Division, is that you will avoid the rush and long delays toward the end of the year.

Davis explained that all Idaho-registered vehicles and that includes pickups, utility trailers and house trailers, must be inspected prior to December 31, 1968 and at least once during each subsequent 12-month period.

"Exceptions to the law are few," Davis said, "and generally are limited to Old Timer vehicles which are so registered in Idaho."

The division supervisor said the motorist public must become more active in the program or face the possibility of inspection station delays and possible loss of use of vehicles during the late-year rush is on.

"The rate of inspections is increasing," Davis said, "to about 2,000 each week."

"But," he pointed out, "that is the total we should be inspecting each day if all Idaho-registered vehicles are to be inspected by the year's end."

under Gas, Chicago. The portable wire-drive unit weighs only 40 pounds and can be carried to difficult-to-position weldments. It is separated from the control unit by 25 feet of cables (called to 40 feet when standard 15-foot cables are connected to the gun).

AZO COMPOUNDS, once thought to be producible only in a laboratory, have been found by Rutgers University scientists to be created naturally as the result of microbial action in soil treated with pesticides. Some azo compounds (the name comes from the French word for nitrogen) are known to cause cancer and others are suspect.

THROUGHOUT the world, rivers carry an estimated 4 billion tons of dissolved salts annually to the ocean, reports the U. S. Department of Interior. About the same tonnage of salt from ocean water is probably precipitated on the ocean bottom or otherwise extracted from it. Thus yearly gains may offset yearly losses, and the oceans probably have a balanced salt input and output.

IT'S A MAN'S WORLD when it comes to flying airplanes. Sixty-five years after the Wright brothers developed the airplane, women are still a definite minority group in aviation. Latest Federal Aviation Administration figures show only 23,659 active women pilots in the U. S.—less than five per cent of the national total.

FATHER'S DAY
Again it's Father's Day—Again the story comes drifting back to me across the years:
The chapel choir is singing of God's glory
They're singing through my life's December tears.

Along the old rail fence the thrush is singing
As sunshine down the vale of memory shines
And calling folks to church the bells are ringing
They're ringing from the Valley of The Pines.

In woodland ways again I seem to wander
Where June so lately said goodbye to May;
Where wild red roses weep I stand and ponder
The debt of love I owe to you today.
—Bert Gamble

I heard a story a few days ago about the laziest man in the world (he didn't live in Genesee) and I thought you might enjoy it. It seemed as if the man had died and his wife was making necessary arrangements with the undertaker. When the matter came up for the disposition of the body she asked that his body be cremated. The undertaker was a little bewildered as he knew the family had a plot in the local cemetery. He inquired as to why she had decided on cremation. She answered that her husband was the laziest man in the world who had never turned his hand to do a bit of work. She said she planned to save his ashes and put them in an hour glass and every morning when she looked her egg, she was going to work him to keep the time.

A businessman sought to borrow $100,000 from the bank. "That's a lot of money," said the bank president. "Can you give me a statement?" "Yes," said the businessman. "I'm optimistic."

Spencer Hampton Wins State Teenage Driving Championship

Spencer Hampton, participating in the Idaho Road-E-O contest held at Council Bluffs, Iowa, won the state title for the best male driver.

Spencer, along with other entrants from the United States, Canada, and British Columbia, participated in the National Road-E-O to be held in Washington, D. C. this year in August.

The local Jay-Cees Chapter in Genesee conducted the preliminary contest in May. The Jay-Cees then sponsored the first place winner to the state tests.

The Jay-Cees State Road-E-O Committee, two Idaho State Policemen, and the Adams Co. Sheriff conducted the tests in Council Bluffs. All tests on all three levels are impartially given. The state test was in three divisions: written test for driving factual knowledge, driving a prescribed skill course, and supervised road driving. The entrant remains away from the test site so that he has no advantage over the other contestants.

The Auto Road-E-O is co-sponsored by the Lincoln-Mercury division of Ford Motor Co. Entrants are awarded to the first place winners on local levels and a sponsored trip to the state test site is provided by the local chapter. The state award is an all-expense paid trip to the National contests, and plaques are given for first, second, and first place runners up.

Council is a town of approximately 900 people, twenty-six miles south of New Meadows. This is a thriving logging and farming community. A beautiful new high school has just been completed. The tests, however, were held on the ample black-top grade school grounds.

Council Jay-Cees provided an evening banquet for the young contestants. Parents and all people involved in the days schedule were invited to attend. The banquet was presented by Melvin Jenkins, State Road-E-O Committee Chairman, and by Mr. Johnny Johnson, Jay-Cees State Committeeman.

A special recognition is extended to the Genesee Jay-Cees for their active work on behalf of our young people. Much time is taken from busy work day schedules to provide incentives for youth accomplishments.

The Jay-Cees Auto Road-E-Os open to all licensed boy or girl drivers currently enrolled as a student in either a public or parochial high school. The student must:

1. Not have turned 19 years of age before August 1, 1968.
2. A mild water accident or other national finals which will be held the first week in August, 1968.
3. Not have a pending charge of a moving violation and have been convicted of such violation in the six-month period prior to the national finals.
Jim Scharnhorst won the Top Male Driver Award for the year 1967, going on to the Nationals held at Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Girls State Report Given by Delegate

The last week I had the honor of representing Genesee's American Legion Auxiliary as their delegate to the 22nd Annual Springs Girls' State in Paris, Idaho. Leaving Genesee Junction at 1:40 A. M., on a chartered bus, I arrived nine hours later, Sunday, June 9th, at the Northwest Nazarene College campus where the session was held.

All delegates immediately registered and were assigned their room, the city of which they would be a citizen, and the county of which they were either President, Justice, or Democracy. Each girl also belonged to a party, either the Nationalists or the Federalists.

After city meetings and religious services all went to the campus by Dr. John E. Riley, President of Northwest Nazarene College. Miss Louise Shaddock, employed with the Department of Commerce and Development in Idaho was the guest speaker.

Later in the evening came the formal opening of Springs Girls' State and we were introduced to the State Officers and counselors, and the staff members. Greetings were acknowledged by Jim Newsome, Department Commander of the American Legion; Mrs. Leigh Nielsen, Department President of the American Legion Auxiliary; Howard Burnett, 1967, Gem Boy's State Governor. Entertainment was presented by the "Coda," American Legion Auxiliary sextette and winners of national competition.

Monday morning all attended a lecture by Mrs. Roy Arnold on parliamentary procedure. Mr. Ernest Starr, mayor of Parma, talked to us on city government to prepare us to elect our own city officials. I ran for Mayor of Spokane and was elected City Clerk and City Budget.

Next was the Poppy luncheon where all Girl's State citizens had a chance to make a Poppy for her own. The program was presented by the Dep. Poppy Committee for Veterans.

Immediately we were back in the classrooms studying county government and were lectured on the subject by C. M. Vanskyne, County Commissioner. Next Mr. Pat Harwood, former legislator and director of Public Affairs, informed us on the duties of state officials. Monday evening guest speaker, Mr. Dave Hanson, Coordinator of University Extension, Civil Defense Program from the U. of I. gave an interesting talk on "Civil Defense and the Citizen."

Tuesday began a busy day of campaigning for county, state, and political party offices. Speeches were made and primary elections held. I ran for County Sheriff and Sec. of the Nationalists Party.

After the tension and excitement of elections subsided for our trip to Boise the next day. Lectures were given on the way our Senate and House are run and each girl was assigned membership in either the House or Senate. Thursday evening brought entertaining messages. All 270 girls dressed in formal for the formal dinner. Honored guests were Justice of the Supreme Court C. Taylor and Mrs. Taylor; Miss Helen Wilson, Rev. and Mrs. Marvin E. Green, Minister of the Trinity Lutheran Church; and Dr. and Mrs. B. Marston.

The inauguration service took place next and the public was invited. All Girl's State citizens were present there and then were addressed by Miss Helen Wilson, Dean of Women at Northwest Nazarene College.

Friday everyone loaded up on buses for Boise. Upon arriving at the convention in our assigned offices and a special talk was given by Gen. Geo. Bennett, Adjutant Gen. of the Idaho Military Exp. Following the new Girl's State Governor, Holly Miller, delivered her Federal firearms statutes remain in full force for persons possessing firearms or engaged in their transfer, manufacture or importation, Homer O. Crossman, IRS Regional Commissioner for the Western Region, said today.

The recent decision by the U. S. Supreme Court in the Haynes Firearms case has been misinterpreted by some firearms dealers and others, as relieving them of the requirements imposed by the National Firearms Act.

seizure, Mr. Crossman said.
The Supreme Court did not, in its decision, hold the National Firearms Act or any of its provisions to be unconstitutional, Mr. Crossman pointed out.
The underlying objective of the Act is to prevent criminals from obtaining gangster-type weapons such as machine guns and sawed-off shotguns.

Today it is lawful for a responsible person to own guns. Yet Mayor Alioto of San Francisco has declared the week of July 4th as "amnesty" week during which time you can turn in your guns with "no questions asked."

the will of the people has been overruled by an ever increasingly powerful Federal establishment. It is so far out, to turn in, or registered, for whatever the reason, that one day a law can be passed that the possession of all weapons is illegal and, regardless of public sentiment, all registered weapons confiscated? The only weapons left being those of the unlawful, and those of the state.

Supervisor Mendelson, speaking of the city gun control registration legislation which was to be introduced on June 10, and admitted "pushed through" said, "The only people who might object are those who want to use their guns for unlawful purposes, and those are the people we're out for."

A wise judge, noted for his modern views in sentencing the defendant. "I'm going to give you the maximum punishment," he said. "I'm not going to put you in our nice, comfortable jail. I'm going to let you go free and worry about taxes, politics, strikes, high prices and atom bombs—just like the rest of us."

LOW FORMS OF LIFE MAY BE FOOD SOURCE

A NEW FOOD SOURCE that may help stave off mass starvation may be available as early as 1980, reports a University of Pennsylvania chemical engineer. He is currently studying biological engineering problems involved in the production of single-cell protein. The protein material is derived from the lowest forms of life—single-cell yeast, bacteria, and algae—and can be used in creating new food forms to replace meat and dairy products in the human diet. Other nations, he says, including Russia, Czechoslovakia, India and Nationalist China already have pilot SOP plants underway, as do several major U. S. soil companies.

PULSARS—those mysterious sources of extremely regular bursts of radio signals far out in space—don't seem to be doing a "blinking thing." Astrophysicists at the University of Rochester, who have taken the first optical look at a star recently pinpointed by radio astronomers as the most likely source of one pulsar, have found no evidence that corresponding light flashes are being emitted. Their conclusion—either the star has been wrongly identified as a pulsar, or the pulsation mechanism does not give out appreciable light.

A IMPORTANT PART is played by nickel catalysts in the hydrogenation of margarine. Hydrogenation, says Girdler Catalysts, Louisville, involves mixing the nickel catalysts in pellet form with soybean oil and then subjecting the material to hydrogen gas under exact pressure and temperatures. The catalyst triggers a chemical reaction that causes the oil to harden.

RULES governing rights of way in the air are similar to those in effect on the high seas, where sail generally takes precedence over steam. Under Federal Aviation Administration regulations, a balloon has the right of way over every other category of aircraft. Next in the order of precedence are the glider and airship, dirigible, lighter-than-air craft. In addition, an aircraft towing or refueling another has the right of way over all other engine-driven craft. THE SALTTEST sea waer (40 parts

Why it Pays to Check Periodically
If you have worked long enough under the social security law, you and your dependents can get monthly social security insurance benefits when you retire or if you should become disabled. Monthly benefits can also be paid to certain members of your family when you die.

And Medicare can help pay for hospital and doctor bills at age 65 for you and your dependents. These benefits will depend on the earnings credited to your social security record. To check on your social security record, clip the coupon above, and mail it to your record.

PIONEERING with POTLATCH

For many years, flumes and log drives were the most workable and least expensive answer to the constant problem of getting logs from mountain to mill.
an efficient machine . . . but like all machines, it took many alert, experienced men to keep it working.

TODAY — the towering splash of logs hitting rushing water is seen no more. The swoosh and thump of logs hurtling down the mountain have been stilled. To minimize jamming, decking was started at Camp Y in 1955. The spectacular eight-mile Beaver Creek flume above Camp B was closed . . . The Camp T flume was used for the last time in 1956 . . . and Drive #26 in 1957 originated entirely from decked logs. Thus another colorful chapter of logging has drawn to a close and passed into memory.

Idaho Farmer's Income Likely To Be Better This Year

BOISE — Income of Idaho farmers is likely to be better than last year, according to an economist of the University of Idaho extension service predicted this week in the June issue of "Economic Facts for Idaho Agriculture." Quoting D. E. Berg, a marketing information specialist, said it appears receipts for agricultural products will be higher, and although much of the increase will be taken up by higher cost of production, the net probably will be more than it was in 1967.

Record levels of employment and income throughout the nation are in prospect, the summary said. The advance inactivity will bolster domestic markets for farm products and improve farmers' non-farm opportunities.

The outlook is better for livestock enterprises than for production of most crops, Banks said. Livestock prices averaged higher during the first four months of 1968 than during the same period a year ago. Prices of feed grain have been a little lower. Feed-price ratios were more favorable to livestock feeders.

Crop production for the nation is not expected to contribute much to the expected increase in farm income in 1968. It is estimated to be slightly below 1967 for several major crops including wheat and feed grains. However, carry-over stocks will be more than last year and prices are not likely to advance enough to offset reduced production and increased production costs.

It appears that the danger of carrying cattle to excessive weights before slaughter has been avoided through the critical months this spring, Banks said. There is a possibility, though, that unless feeders are careful to keep cattle moving to slaughter as soon as they are ready, carcass weights this summer could be too high. Average weights of feed cattle have continued less than a year earlier this summer. Since early in 1968, steer slaughter weights have been the lowest in five years. Reduction in slaughter weights this spring has been a big factor in keeping prices higher than last year.

Danger Of Tetanus Increases In Warm Weather

Tetanus, first described by a Greek physician more than 2,000 years ago, is still with us.

The risk of tetanus, or lockjaw, increases in warm weather with gardening and out-of-doors activities. The spores can be picked up by plants or animals, and introduced into the victim's body by something as small as the scratch of a thorn or an insect bite.

The spores are usually washed away in a clean free-bleeding cut, but when blood flow is slight, as in a deep puncture the bacteria may gain a foothold in the body. They thrive in the absence of air, notes the Idaho Medical Association.

Once they enter the body, tetanus spores "hatch" into microscopic bacteria which thrive in the absence of air. They begin to multiply, liberating a deadly poison which attacks the nerve centers, causing convulsions and muscle spasms—some so severe that victims have been known to fracture a vertebra.

Head and neck nerves which control the chewing muscles are usually the first to be affected. These muscles turn rigid, giving the disease its familiar name—lockjaw.

Although the disease is almost completely preventable by immunization, no antibiotic or other drug can halt the disease.

Game Harvest Up

Harvest figures for 1967 indicate that last year provided good hunting for animal game animals. Figures compiled from the annual hunter questionnaire showed an increased harvest for all upland game birds except two species.

Harvest figures were down on Hungarian partridge and Chinese pheasant which are the two species of upland game birds that are most degraded on agricultural lands for food and cover. Based on the long-term average, Hungarian partridge was down three percent and Chinese pheasant was down 16 percent. However, the pheasant harvest was up ten percent over the 1966 take.

For the rest of the upland game birds, harvest figures for 1967 were higher than the long-term average with mourning dove up 26 percent, sage grouse up 105 percent, forest grouse up 28 percent, chukar partridge up 13 percent and quail up 43 percent.

SCIENCE TOPICS

It has three leaves, avoid it. The plant is likely to be poison ivy. June and July are peak seasons for the shrub that causes skin irritation and swelling. It is prudent to recognize the plant and leave it alone, advises Homer Putter, county agricultural agent.

Children are the most frequent victims, but no age group and few individuals are immune. Poison ivy—also known locally as poison oak—is a shrub two to six feet tall. The shiny leaves occur in threes near the end of stems. The small flowers are greenish white. The fruit is white. In autumn the leaves vary in color from green to red. Toxic oil is produced in all parts of the plant. Contact with the skin generally produces inflammation, swelling and blisters. Do not touch the plant, botanists say, and do not burn it. The smoke can cause severe eye irritation. If exposed to the plant, repeated washings with warm water and laundry soap will often remove the oil. Applications of five percent ferric chloride dissolved in equal parts of alcohol and water usually reduce irritation. In an emergency the tannin from boiled tea leaves will give relief.

If you have poison ivy in your yard, you can eradicate it with weed-killing chemicals. Formulations containing 2, 4-D, 2,4-5T, amtrilox, silvex or ammonium sulfamate are the most effective. Pamphlets that help in identification of poison ivy, poison oak, and poison sumac—all related species—can be obtained at the county agent's office.

GHANT BURNERS at a Pennsylvania state mill require as much natural gas to operate one hour as it needed to heat an average home for three years. The preheating burners, the largest of their kind, were designed by National Cylinder Gas, Chicago. They are capable of using the fuel gas at a rate of 480,000 standard cubic feet an hour and are used to increase the scrap content in a heat of steel from the conventional 28 per cent of a 160-ton charge to as much as 40 per cent. They fire at a rate of more than 480 million British thermal units per hour.

July 4 is a holiday set aside for observance of the anniversary of our nation's independence.

Unfortunately it also signals an annual outbreak of fireworks injuries.

In response to a questionnaire circulated among Idaho physicians by the Idaho Medical Association last year, fireworks injuries to 17 victims were reported. In 11 cases there were burns in varying degrees of seriousness.

A large skin graft was necessary for a 14-year-old boy, whose right arm was ignited by a sparkler. A Wallace man, 28, was hospitalized for several days after a firecracker was thrown into his eye.

If you have poison ivy in your yard, you can eradicate it with weed-killing chemicals. Formulations containing 2, 4-D, 2,4-5T, amtrilox, silvex or ammonium sulfamate are the most effective. Pamphlets that help in identification of poison ivy, poison oak, and poison sumac—all related species—can be obtained at the county agent's office.

Rubbing Devices For Cattle Can Help Stop Face Flies

Rubbing devices that provide insecticides for cattle on range and pasture can reduce the damage of face flies, Leonard Burns, county agricultural agent, reports. The most effective units are constructed so that animals will treat their faces. Rubbing stations designed only for control of horn flies do not meet the face-fly problem.

Control of the pest on milking dairy cows has been accomplished with dairy insecticide oil-mist applicators.

These and other recommendations are offered in a publication of the University of Idaho college of agriculture just added to the bulletin rack in the county agent's office. The name of it is "Face Fly, a New Pest of Idaho Livestock." It was written by Larry O'Keefe, extension entomologist.

The face fly has become a livestock pest in nearly all Idaho areas since it was first found in 1965. It poses a serious problem, O'Keefe says, because no completely effective control is known. Face rubbers, feed additives, and other methods appear helpful, but research is continuing toward a more effective solution.

The non-biting fly feeds on moisture and secretions about the eyes and muzzle of cattle, horses, and sheep. Irritation causes livestock to bunch, seek shade and refuse to feed. Grazing patterns are upset. Production of beef and milk are reduced.

Face flies are troublesome during most of the summer. They prefer bright sun and do not follow stock into deep shade or buildings.

"The flies are susceptible to many insecticides," O'Keefe said, "but effective control must include repeated applications to the face of animals. This is difficult unless animals are handled every day, as in the case of milch cows or unless self-application insecticide dispensers are used."

Shock Requires Attention

Shock is the frequent companion of wounds and accidents and its treatment is one of the most important of all first aid measures.

Shock occurs when too little blood reaches the brain, resulting from a decrease in the normal blood supply, an increase in the capacity of the blood vessels, or a combination of both. It often results in fainting or drowsiness, according to the Idaho Medical Ass'n.

For the treatment of shock, call a physician immediately. Meanwhile, place the victim on his back with his head lowered. Keep him comfortably warm by wrapping him in blankets.

Artificial respiration must be used if there is breathing failure. Apply pressure to a wound to stop bleeding and try to keep the victim calm.

Although shock may occur within seconds after an injury, it usually begins later.

Shock can often be prevented by reducing anxiety, chilling, pain, and blood loss, and by providing prompt medical attention.

IDAHO SCIENTISTS TO STUDY USE OF THREATENED SEWAGE FOR AGRICULTURE

Moscow— Beginning July 1, a study to determine the feasibility of using treated sewage effluent for fertilization and irrigation purposes in Idaho will be conducted by the University of Idaho scientists Roy E. Williams and Alfred Wallace.

The study calls for examination of sites in Idaho where sewage effluent can be distributed on crop lands and forests in such a way that the natural screening process of soil particles and absorption of chemical nutrients by plant roots will purify the effluent.

According to Williams, "The soil should act as a living filter that will purify the effluent and make the water usable."

A similar study, conducted by Pennsylvania State University, found this method to be "highly effective."

Some of the conclusions of that study were:

"Effluent water and nutrients promoted crop and forest growth. Hay yields increased 300 per cent; corn grain 50 per cent; corn shocks 103 to 136 per cent, and oats 17 to 51 per cent.

"Effluent will not harm water quality and in most cases, improves it.

"Except under very restrictive geologic circumstances, effluent is safely filtered by soil, and removes up to 99 per cent of nutrients."

In addition to the advantages stated in the Pennsylvania State study, Dr. Williams feels this disposal method will keep unsightly algae blooms from forming in Idaho's streams and rivers. He said:

"Presently, when sewage effluent enters streams, the phosphates and nitrates in the effluent serve as nutrients for undesirable algae formations. With the new method, the phosphates and nitrates are used as plant food and do not pollute the streams."

Idaho Senators Will Fight Water Diversion To SW

Senator Henry Jackson of Washington, chairman of the Senate Interior Committee, said this week Idaho Senators Frank Church and Len B. Jordan will both play key roles in efforts to protect Idaho water resources from diversion to the Southwest.

The House of Representatives passed legislation in May to authorize full-scale studies of diverting water from Idaho and other parts of the Pacific Northwest to the Colorado River Basin.

Referring to an upcoming conference between the Senate and House on this legislation, Jackson said that "Representatives from the House... will be stacked against us."

"Our task," Jackson said, "is to have on the Senate side men dedicated to protecting the rivers of the Northwest. Fortunately, a senior member on the Senate side at the conference will be Senator Church and this is where seniority pays off. And likewise, on the Republican side from Idaho, will be Senator Jordan," Jackson said.

"We are determined to stay put on this issue to see to it that no diversion scheme on the part of the Colorado River States is put over," the Washington Senator said. "Without Senator Church and Senator Jordan on my conference, frankly, we just wouldn't be able to do it."

Now Is The Time To Begin Battle Against Aphids

Aphids are on the attack and it's time to hit them a stiff counter punch, according to Homer Futter, county agricultural agent.

The sap-sucking plant lice invade flower and vegetable gardens. They generally live on the underside of leaves and petals. Because many of them are green, they blend with their surroundings. Detection is sometimes difficult because of their color and small size. Aphids rob plants of vital juices and sometimes transmit virus diseases. They invest a wide variety of flowers and vegetables.

To control them, advises L. E. O'Keefe entomologist of the University of Idaho extension service, good bets are diazinon or malathion. However, he cautions that you should not apply an insecticide on an edible plant just before harvest. Labels tell when to use the chemicals and what amounts. The usual application is either a 50 or 57 percent malathion liquid or 25 percent diazinon liquid. Mix malathion at the rate of one teaspoon per gallon of water, and

Judy Krier Bride Of Michael Schoeff In St. Mary's Rites

St. Mary's Catholic Church, Genesee, was the setting of a lovely double ring ceremony June 19, 1968, at 6:00 p. m. when Judy Lynn Krier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Krier became the bride of Michael Eugene Schoeff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack E. Schoeff of West 1527 York, Spokane, Washington.

The Rev. Father B. C. McCarthy solemnized the vows in a setting of white gladioli, blue daisies, and cathedral candelabras.

Mrs. Glen Baumgartner sang, "The Wedding Prayer," and "Ave Maria," accompanied by Mrs. Wilson Esser.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of peau de soie with alencon lace trim on the Empire bodice, accented with seed pearls and sequins. The back of the gown featured an inverted pleat of the A-line skirt, and extended into a chapel train. Her 3-tiered elbow-length bridal veil of silk illusion was imported from England and held in place with a headpiece of seed pearls on candlelite lace. Her bridal bouquet was of stephanotis, white roses, and ivy, centered by an orchid.

Mrs. John T. Flanigan, Renton, Washington was her sister's matron of honor. She wore an aqua blue, sleeveless, floor-length gown featuring a high-rou neck with band full length of dress down center. Her matching veil was attached to a large, aqua rose headpiece, accented with aqua and lavender leaves. She wore three-quarter length fingerless white gloves, and carried a French cloche bouquet of lavender chrysanthemums with aqua blue and lavender streamers.

Bridesmaids, who were dressed identically to the matron of honor, were Mrs. Gary Krier, Lewiston, sister-in-law of the bride; Miss Betsy Morken, Genesee, and Miss Ronda Chaffins, Spokane.

Samuel Vercoe, Spokane served as best man, and ushers were Douglas R. Krier, brother of the bride, Spokane, and Richard Ryan and John Neirety, La Crosse, Washington.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Krier wore a mintgreen dress with matching lace coat and beige accessories. Her corsage was a beige double orchid. The bridegroom's mother's dress was of lace beige with matching beige accessories with a green orchid corsage.

Assisting with the reception following at Carter's Charcoal Broiler, Genesee, were Mrs. Frank Kamitsch, Lewiston and Mrs. Herman Krier, Clarkston, aunts of the bride; Mrs. Ray Dahmen, Spokane, cousin of the groom, and Mrs. Wayne Doty, Endicott, aunt of the groom. Mrs. Samuel Vercoe was in charge of the guest book, and Miss Judy Linehan, Genesee, assisted at the gift table.

For her going-away ensemble, the bride chose a white knit dress and jacket with navy blue accessories and wore the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Schoeff is a 1965 graduate from Genesee High School, and has just completed her junior year at EWSC, majoring in office administration. She is affiliated with Alpha Phi Delta sorority. Schoeff graduated from LaCrosse, Wn. High School and is a senior at Eastern Washington State College, majoring in industrial technology.

Out-of-town guests to the wedding included Donald Wiedrich and family; Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Krier and Pat; Mrs. Ted Smith, and Mrs. Ernest Dugan, all of Seattle, and Ronald Russell, Spokane.

The bride's parents were hosts to the bridal party, relatives and friends at a buffet dinner at their home following the ceremony. Pre-nuptial parties included miscellaneous showers at Genesee and LaCrosse, Washington. A personal shower was given by college friends of the bride at the home of Mrs. Ray Dahmen, Spokane, and a coffee hour at the home of Mrs. Ray Linehan in Genesee. The groom's parents were hosts at a Chinese festival for the rehearsal dinner at the Colfax Coffee Shop in Colfax, Washington.

One Of Our Most Confusing Errors Yet

As readers certainly must have gathered by this time, errors are not uncommon in the Genesee News, however, last week we came up with one of our best to date. It concerned an article about the telephone number for Dick Scharnhorst's Mobil Oil Service. If you will remember, the story said that if you were unable to contact Dick at AT 5-3111 for oil or gas delivery you should call this other number . . . well, the number was supposed to be Chuck Manfred's telephone number at AT 5-2031 but what it ended up as in the paper was the number of another oil service here in Genesee, which has a number quite similar to Chuck's.

We sincerely regret the mistake and any inconvenience or confusion that may have resulted from the error. We would go through the number business again but frankly we just don't want to risk it. Instead we will say that if you can't contact Dick or any of his family at home or his plant, call Chuck Manfred at the NP depot.

Hofmann-Johnson Wedding Vows Exchanged June 29

Charlotte Jean Hofmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hofmann, Rosalia, Washington, became the bride of Jerry C. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Johnson, Genesee, on June 29 at the Rosalia United Methodist Church with the Rev. Truman Cotten, officiating.

The church, flanked with white gladioli, stock, and yellow chrysanthemums, was illuminated by two candelabras. Alternate pews were marked with white bows centered with sprigs of yellow lily of the valley. Mrs. Larry Cupp sang "Because," "The Wedding Prayer," and "O Perfect Love," accompanied by Mrs. Willis Widman at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown fashioned of organza with long fitted sleeves. A bateau neckline, scooping in the back with the attached fan-shaped chapel train, was topped with an organza rose and petals. Embroidered motifs enhanced the high-rise bodice complimenting the slight A-line skirt. A forward headpiece of matching embroidered motifs and organza loops was attached to the tiered elbow-length veil of imported silk illusion. She carried a white orchid surrounded with yellow rose buds and streamers of stephanotis on her white Rainbow Bible.

Miss Bonnie Hofmann, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She was attired in a full-length gown of spring lime green saki with a scoop neckline and elbow-length sleeves. White Venise lace motifs based on moss green velvet enhanced the high-rise bodice which extended into a A-line skirt. A veil of matching tulle formed her headpiece. White pearl earrings and short white gloves completed her ensemble, along with a nosegay of a yellow rose surrounded by yellow carnations.

Dressed identically to the maid of honor was the sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Sam Luke, Pasadena, California, and Mrs. Ed Demko, Vancouver, Washington.

Kay Nelson, Coeur d'Alene, was best man, and the ushers were Les Diehl, Genesee; Duane Widman, Rosalia; Don Morken, Seattle, and Dan Danielson, Boise.

Leisa Hofmann, Rosalia, served as flower girl for her cousin's wedding, and Erick Nelson, Coeur d'Alene, was the ring bearer.

Mrs. Hofmann chose a pink three-piece ensemble with a jeweled necklace and matching accessories for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Johnson wore a blue lace-trimmed sheath with matching lace coat and white accessories. Each wore a corsage of rose buds surrounded by carnations.

Friends and relatives of the bride and groom helped at the reception which followed in the church social room. They included Mrs. Burdett Prince, Clarkston, who poured coffee, and Mrs. Jerry Taylor, Lewiston, who presided at the punch bowl. Those helping serve cake were Mrs. Oscar Danielson and Mrs. Vic Danielson, both of Genesee. Cousins of the bride and groom attended the guest book and took the gifts.

For her going-away outfit, the bride chose a pink jacket dress with a lace bodice and white accessories. She wore a white orchid from her bridal bouquet, and a necklace and earring set, a gift from the groom.

After a wedding trip to the Washington coast and Canada, the couple will be at home in Genesee, Idaho.

Uninvited Pea Pickers Run Risk Of Poisoning

Ed. Morken, Jr. stopped at the News office this week to make the request, through the paper, that whoever slipped into his pea fields over the weekend should really contact the Morkens in regard to the type of chemical spray used to treat the crops, so they could inform their physician in case of illness.

Ed said he noted earlier in the week where someone had been into the fields and apparently picked a quantity of fresh peas for home use. Vines had been torn up and other plants crushed as though containers had been dragged across them by careless, uninvited harvesters.

As so many of the local pea fields are, the Morken peas had been treated with chemicals which are potentially dangerous under the right conditions.

Civic Association Will Fund Library Until End of Year

Funds from Genesee's Day celebration will be used to finance the Branch Library here until January 1, 1969. This decision was made at the regular meeting of the Genesee Civic Association held Friday evening at Carter's Charcoal Broiler.

The decision to again use part of the Community Day celebration receipts to maintain the library in Genesee was made reluctantly after surveys revealed that the library was definitely desired in town but, at present, there was no other funds available to maintain the facilities except those of the Community Day committee.

In 1967 the Civic Association voted $600 to help establish and maintain a branch of the Latah County Library in Genesee. Prior to that time the community was served by bookmobile from the Moscow County Free Library. The county library agreed to provide the books, necessary paper, and supplies and pay the salary of a librarian if the local community would furnish the building and pay the heat and lights.

This original grant of $600 was exhausted by March of this year and since that time the outstanding bills have been paid from regular civic association funds. The vote to underwrite the cost of continued operation until the end of the year was made with the hope that other means of financing the library could be found this fall.

Toll-Free Telephone Service

For the past year there has been increasing interest shown among area telephone subscribers of having the Genesee and Moscow exchanges connected via a toll-free service whereby calls could be made either to or from Moscow to Genesee without paying long-distance service charges. Contact has been made with General Telephone Company, and the Civic Association secretary, Mercedes Roach, read a letter received from General Telephone informing the association that a survey is now being conducted which would determine the feasibility of connecting the Genesee-Moscow exchanges on a toll-free basis. The letter states the survey should be completed within the next sixty days and the results would then be available.

Civic Association Will Incorporate

For many years now the Civic Association has operated under the assumption that it is incorporated under the laws of Idaho as a non-profit corporation. This assumption has been recently questioned in connection with the organization's liability if it sponsored summer teenage dances. To settle the matter a letter was written to the Secretary of State in Boise and his office replied that there was no record of articles of incorporation ever having been filed for the Genesee Civic Association. Following this information, association president Carl Simons contacted Genesee attorney Leonard Bielenberg who said he would draw up the necessary papers of incorporation. After discussing the matter the civic association voted to accept Mr. Bielenberg's offer.

Community Day Report

J. Wayne Roach, chairman of the Community Day general committee thanked all groups and individuals who participated and worked at the annual event. No accurate financial report can be made at this time because all the bills and receipts have not yet come in, but it appears that a profit of approximately $1,000.00 will be realized.

Other business to come before the group included the announcement by President Simons that Mrs. Lilly Hermann had accepted the chairmanship of the local library committee.

There were twenty-eight people present at the civic meeting which is the last one until fall.

TV FANS LIKE ROLES THEY IDENTIFY WITH

IF YOU'RE a television viewer who tends to be strong, self-assured and fabulously rich, you're probably a fan of Ben Cartwright of TV's "Bonanza" program. Or, if you're the rugged, outdoors type, the "Daniel Boone" series and its principal character are likely to appeal to you. That's because adults tend to prefer and view most frequently those television roles whose personalities the viewers sense to be similar to their own personalities, a University of Southern California research study shows.

A RESEARCH TEAM in the Louisiana State University chemical engineering department is working to perfect a blood oxygenator that it hopes can surpass existing medical equipment in performing the body's circulatory functions during lengthy heart and lung surgery. The device, now being perfected in a campus laboratory may be the forerunner of the world's first artificial lung.

THOSE beautifully colored autumn leaves that delight the eye are not so delightful when they fall into drinking water sources and decompose, say researchers of the U. S. Geological Survey. The leaves degrade water quality by causing a rapid oxygen decline. As they are carried down stream and into reservoirs, the organic load may result in increased treatment costs to remove objectionable taste, odor, color, and dissolved substances before the water is put into distribution systems. The government scientists, studying the effects of leaves from eight species of trees, found maple and dogwood to have the greatest influences on degradation of water quality. The effects are particularly pronounced in the fall when stream flow is low and the main leaf-drop occurs.

PLANNING A VACATION TRIP

Planning a vacation trip can be almost as much fun as taking one, according to Robert F. Keen, Travel Manager at the Inland (AAA) Automobile Association.
Whether you're planning a trip 100 miles away from home or all the way across the country, Keen suggests you involve the entire family in the planning. Sometimes junior will come up with an idea you hadn't thought of, but which could intrigue your fancy.
First step in your planning is to gather as many vacation brochures as you can, so you will have a wide choice of prospective spots to visit. These brochures are available through your travel agent, such as AAA, through coupons in newspapers and magazines. Study them carefully, remembering always that they are written with a view to making you vacation hungry for the particular spot being described.
When your choice is narrowed down to three or four spots, begin watching the newspapers and magazines for articles about the spots you have chosen. These will help narrow your choice to your final destination.
Next, take a look at your budget. Can you afford the spot you've selected, or should you go back to an alternate choice? Usually, if you can afford to go, you probably can afford to go another, if there isn't a great difference in the distances to be traveled. In most popular vacation spots there is a wide range of accommodations, from budget to luxurious.

If you're really budget-conscious, you may want to consider camping. That sort of vacation is growing in popularity each year.
If you've finally decided on the general area you plan to visit, get some good guide books covering that area. If you are an AAA member, AAA's Tour Books are for you.
In your planning, don't forget your home. Make a checklist of the things to be done to give your home that "lived in" look while you are away. Here are some of the things for your list:
Make sure insurance policies are paid up.
Arrange for your mail to be picked up, forwarded, or held at your branch post office until your return.
Notify delivery services, such as the milkman and paper boy to suspend deliveries.
Arrange to have your lawn mowed while you are away.

weighty load were fabricated with a solid welding wire shielded by carbon dioxide, a process that makes the welded joint as strong as the base metal, says Alloy Rods Company, York, Pa.
LET'S SAY you've got a weed or two for the maligned dandelion. The scourge of the homeowner's lawn is unappreciated. Bees gather its nectar. Birds eat its seed. Wise is made from its flower. Its roots have medicinal value and its leaves are used in spring salads. But, best of all, children have fun with it.

Arrange for care of your pets. Turn off outside water faucets. Check major service installations, such as refrigerator, furnace, and water heater to make certain they are in good working order.
Notify local police and firemen that you intend to be away, and give them the approximate date of your return. Let them know where they can find a key.
Leave with a neighbor a key to your home, your itinerary and your automobile license number for use in emergencies.
Securely lock windows and doors and leave window shades in a position which would be normal if you were at home. You may want to investigate one of the devices available for automatically turning on a light in your home at night and turning it off in the morning.

PEA AND LENTIL COMMISSION MEETINGS SCHEDULED
Administrator Harold Blain of the Washington and Idaho Dry Pea and Lentil Commissions announced today that two Commissions will hold their regular quarterly meetings July 9 and 11. The Washington Commission will meet July 9 and the Idaho Commission July 11. The meetings will start at 9:30 a. m.
The Commissions will meet for the first time in their new joint office which is located on the state line adjacent to the Moscow-Pullman highway.
Blain reported that the new office is rather unique in that half of the joint office is in Washington and half is located in Idaho. This shows the type of cooperation which exists between the two state organizations in working together to develop better markets for dry peas and lentils.

PROPOSED GUN LAW SAID INEFFECTIVE

A strong resolution opposing restrictive Federal gun legislation was adopted by the Idaho Fish and Game Commission and released this week in Boise on behalf of the majority of state residents who are sportsmen and against any additional firearms control.
It stressed that the cost of registering from 100 to 200 million guns of all kinds in the country is estimated in the range of $1 to $2 billion the first year. This compares with a range of $4 to $5 billion annually spent on all law enforcement.
Firearms of all types were only involved in 3.4 percent of all serious crimes in the United States in 1966. Thus if all firearms could be abolished, and criminals could find no illegal sources of firearms, there still would remain 96.6 percent of all serious crimes to prevent.
"Firearms controls, restrictions or even registration are not a panacea to the nation's crime problem," says Commission Chairman Dr. William Durbin, Moscow. "and the public is being done a disservice by those who try to make them think so."
"Everyone agrees there should be reasonable controls on the ownership and use of firearms," he added. "Law enforcement agencies must have tools to control the misuse of firearms, and especially in times of civil disorders. At the same time, millions of law-abiding citizens should not be deprived of their rights to own firearms."

Dr. Durbin added that a more logical solution to preventing crimes committed with guns is to have better enforcement of prevent laws and a very severe mandatory penalty for any crime in which a gun is used.

OREGON GAME COMMISSION STUDYING BOATING USE OF HELL'S CANYON

The Oregon Game Commission has initiated a study of boating and recreational use of the Snake River and lower Salmon River from the Oregon line upstream to Hell's Canyon Dam. In April an underwater boat counter was installed near the Oregon-Washington line. It counts boats going upstream and down stream. Personnel of the Game Commission also began interviewing fishermen two weeks ago. They will be operating their checking station located at Cache Creek Ranch, about two days out of ten. A sign is placed on the river asking fishermen, boaters, water skiers, etc. to stop. All recreationalists are urged to help in this study and stop at the interviewers when the sign is out. So far, the cooperation has been excellent, and most of the people interviewed have been from the Lewiston-Clarkston area.

Results of the study will show the numbers of man-days use of the area by type of recreation, such as fishing, camping, etc., fishing success, and what portions of the river receive the highest use.
The study was originally set up to gather information on the portion of the Snake River which has not been studied before. It will also be useful in considering the merits of proposed dams. Idaho Fish and Game Department will be cooperating with the study and the information will be useful in management for Idaho.
On July 15th will be a club trail ride at the arena.
July 27-28 is Troy days. We ride in the parade at Troy. Also entry blanks for the Troy Gymkhana are here. So if you want to enter contact your president. Entries must be in by July 20.

Researchers writing in the Journal of the American Medical Society reveal that a Michigan survey of traffic crashes indicated that of 177 people killed, 70 would have survived had they been wearing seatbelts. Twenty-three others also would have survived had they been wearing seat belts and shoulder harnesses. Ejection from the vehicle was listed as the main cause of death.

Surplus Food Provision Has Been Marked By Controversy

In 1955, the Congress placed 30 percent of the annual surplus receipts in a fund to be turned to the Secretary of Agriculture to encourage greater use of Agriculture's abundance than the commercial market could sustain.

Section 32 funds have always received close and continuing scrutiny by the Congress. The purpose is to insure that sufficient funds are available to meet emergencies caused by surpluses and low prices for commodities other than those with price supports.

Over the years, and particularly in this decade, use of these funds to feed the poor has taken on a collateral and supplementary role.

The only "permanent" Section 32 activity is the Commodity Distribution Program; and this is a program which Congress has never specifically authorized.

Congress in enacting, and the Administration in requesting, the Food Stamp Program, clearly developed a policy that Section 32 has a limited role in feeding hungry people.

Another point which escapes public attention is that Section 32 funds, regardless of the process by which the USDA acquires them, are subject to the usual business considerations of expenditures, and that is to balance all public needs against available resources.

The few minutes you save by driving at speeds greater than safety demands can never compensate for the added risk, warns the Idaho State Police.

Council Accepts Bid to Pave Laurel Street

Idaho Business Was Good During First Half of 1968

Business in Idaho during the first half of 1968 was generally good in most economic segments and the outlook for the second six months should follow the same pattern. This is the report of the quarterly First Security Bank News Letter which was distributed this week. It was announced by W. Ph. Far, manager of the Genesee Office. The News Letter is edited by EdRoy Nelson, First Security vice president and economist.

Total personal income, based on preliminary data for the first six months, totaled approximately $960 million, a six per cent increase over 1967. Employment and payrolls were all considerably higher than last year.

The News Letter points out that a major factor in determining the outlook for a considerable portion of business, including construction, will be national affairs and the impact of the recent expenditure-tax increase bill.

The outlook for income from agriculture in the state has improved considerably in the second quarter. Cash receipts from farm marketing in 1968 are expected to exceed 1967 totals by three to five per cent. Net income should be three to four per cent higher.

Cattle prices have improved each month and average $2 to $5 above year prior prices of one year ago. Lamb prices are somewhat above year-ago levels and the outlook for lamb is excellent with strong demand and smaller quantities available. Wool prices are also up from last year.

The potato outlook for the Gem State has improved considerably especially when compared with last year. Prices moved upward in the spring months largely as a result of a decrease nationally in winter-late spring, and summer production. Price improvement for carry over crops has also resulted.

Sugar beet plantings, both in Idaho and the nation, are considerably higher than last year. Increased plantings are also shown for dry beans and feed grains, while slightly lower plantings are reported for peas. Fruit production, because of severe frost and cold weather damage in April and May, will be down also 20 per cent.

Lumber production, according to 1st Security, was reported to be $35.1 million board measure during the first four months of 1968—an increase of 5.5 per cent over last year and about equal to the 1966 period. Lumber prices have increased substantially, and paper production is above year-ago levels.

Metal production for the first six months was far below 1967 when operations were virtually at a maximum. The strike against the nation's four major copper producers continued into April and kept three of Idaho's mines closed. By June, however, monthly production was reported at 1967 levels.

The silver price of $2.44 an ounce is a major plus factor in the state's metal mining industry. This price compares with $1.30 last year. Lead, at 13 cents, was down one cent, while zinc, at 12 1/2 cents, is the same.

Manufacturing output in the state by June was almost the same as last year for the metals. Output was higher for lumber and paper, trailers and other durable products, and food products, but was lower for chemicals.

Total employment reported in May was 275,500, an increase of 6,000 mechanical last year. Agricultural employment was also higher than one year ago, while non-agricultural wage and salary employment total 190,000, up 4,000 for the period. Manufacturing employment increased substantially in all categories, but mining employment was down slightly because of the strike.

Unemployment, reported at 10,600 in May, was down almost 1,000 from last year, according to First Security.

Before you start your next trip be certain your car is in good mechanical condition. Tires, brakes and lights are especially important, says the Idaho State Police.

'Athlete's Heart' Not So Dangerous As 'Loafer's'. With attention that has been given to "athlete's heart" it may come as something of a surprise to learn that the "loafer's heart" is more likely to cause trouble, reports the Idaho Medical Assn.

SCIENCE TOPICS. 'GOING HOME TO MOTHER' IS EASIER IN THE CITY. OLDER PERSONS living in rural areas may experience greater isolation from their children and other family members than those living in cities, a University of Wisconsin sociologist has found. He studied five Wisconsin communities ranging in size from a village of 150 to a city of 170,000.

CHIMICAL MACE can be used with comparative safety as a weapon to incapacitate a person temporarily if certain precautions are taken, says a University of Michigan professor of pharmacology. He reports that if the contractor spray is used properly there is no danger to a person's eyes or other organs or tissues.

UNIQUE PULSATING CELLS in the heart may hold the clues to early detection of cardiovascular trouble, reports a microbiologist at Louisiana State University. He believes these heart cells produce a substance essential to maintain their peculiar pulsating characteristic. "If we can isolate and identify this mysterious factor and then determine its role in maintaining and inducing the beating of heart cells in the laboratory test tube, we may find a method for the early detection of cardiovascular trouble," he said.

While the Concor was involved in other matters I was able to slip in a good one this week. Wow!

While interviewing the applicant for aid to needy children, the harassed social worker asked incredulously, "Don't any of your eight children have the same name?" The woman thought a while and then replied, "I believe the twins have."

"We'll have to rehearse that," said the undertaker as the coffin fell out the back door.
"Tell me, who is the real boss in your house?"
"Well, my wife bosses the children and the children boss the dog and cat, and...
And you?"
"Well, I can say anything I like to the geraniums."

When the kids dance nowadays, they don't talk, they don't touch one another, they don't even look at one another. It's somewhat like being married 30 years.
"Tell me, who is the real boss in your house?"

Salmon Hatching Channel A Success

By Stu Murrell.
The number of returning adults of spring chinook over the Lewiston dam indicate the artificial hatching channels constructed by the Idaho Fish and Game Department on the Selway River are a success. By June 30, 447 spring chinook had passed over the Lewiston Dam. Last year there were only 174 fish counted over the dam by this time.

Job Placements Dropped In County Last Week

A temporary slump was noted in the Moscow area during the Fourth of July week according to Frank J. Hartstein, Manager of the Moscow Office of the Idaho Department of Employment. He said his office placed 10 persons on jobs during the week, compared with 23 persons given job finding help during the previous week.

NICE YELLOW PERCH like this one are fun and easy to catch, a good food for anglers. They are also fine table fare when browned just right. Perch and other species of pan fish are much neglected as sources of recreation and their home states in the East and South and introduce them in strange waters.

Conservation Practices Aided By 1968 Agricultural Conservation Program
Conservation practices encouraged by the 1968 Agricultural Conservation Program are helping to improve and conserve soil and water resources on about 620 farms in Latah County, Clarence Jensen, vice chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee said today.

Each year, throughout the county, about a million farms take part in ACP and well over 2 million different farms participate in 4 or 5 years.
Last year, conservation measures on county farms represented an investment of well over a quarter of a million dollars. A large number of farmers carry out many conservation practices entirely at their own expense while having other practices cost-shared through the ACP.
In Latah County in 1967, some 64 thousands dollars was used in matching funds to promote greater efforts in conservation work. Farmers have gone much further than half way in matching this amount with their own resources.
Similar investments were made through ACP and by farmers in all of the nation's agricultural counties, the people of America benefited from close to a half-million dollars worth of ACP conservation work.

A U. S. export target of 75 million bushels of wheat for the 1968-69 marketing year has been set by USDA. ACP is the same as the goal for shipments during the 12 months ending June 30, which is now seems may be exceeded, according to USDA.
The target is based on the export supplies of wheat available when it was needed to save lives.
Ten patients from Genesee used 31 pints of blood this year which have meant a saving of $850.00 for those involved.

Near Record Crop of Winter Wheat Expected In Idaho
Growing conditions continue favorable, Idaho is expected to set a new record crop of winter wheat in 1968, Quentin D. Banks, marketing information specialist of the University of Idaho extension service, said today in the issue of "Economic Facts for Idaho in Agriculture."
The crop was forecast June 1 at 40,500,000 bushels. Since then weather has been expected to favor production. The total is expected to be close to the record of 1967.

The national wheat crop is also expected to set another record. Farmers seeded fewer acres for harvest in 1968 than last year, but improved yields and a higher percentage of acreage harvested for grain are expected to more than offset the reduction in acres. This will likely result in a record about the same as last year's crop of 1.524 billion bushels.
Domestic use is not expected to expand much unless wheat prices are permitted to drop low enough to encourage more feeding of wheat to livestock.

Western Europe anticipates a large crop, the summary said, because of increased acreage and excellent weather. But there are reports of poor prospects in Western Europe.
Weather has been favorable in several Communist countries, including Russia. Remnants of wheat purchases by these countries in Western Europe, since 1963 and 1964 could have considerable effect on world grain trade.

A report on Idaho wheat varieties shows a substantial increase in hard red spring wheat to soft white winter wheat mostly Gaines, during the last three years.
"Gaines is a high-yielding variety, contributing to the increase in Idaho production.
The Idaho potato crop is developing well, Banks said, but is later than usual. Many growers, he said, may be faced with a choice between trying for highest possible yields or harvesting early with minimum risk of quality loss. How they decide can have substantial effect on marketing the 1968 crop. Acreage is about the same as it was in 1966 and 1967.
If growing and harvest conditions are favorable, this should produce another large crop.
Cattle slaughter in Idaho continued to rise above 1967 through April. Total slaughter from January through April was an estimated 119,150 head, according to USDA crop and Livestock report. This was nine per cent more than during a similar period last year. Slaughter cattle prices were down from the last three months. Prices in the North West have been slightly stronger than in the Midwest and Plains States. There is optimism in the beef industry. Placements on feed are large.

DECEMBER 31 DEADLINE FOR INSPECTION OF MOTOR VEHICLES

Warning that there will be no extension of the December 31 deadline for the inspection of motor vehicles. The Idaho Department of Law Enforcement today urged vehicle owners to have their registrations with them or in the car when going in for an inspection.

Law Enforcement Commissioner Warner C. Mills said, "There is no provision in the law for the extending of the Dec. 31 deadline. All registered vehicles must be inspected by that time or otherwise considered as being operated illegally."

Harold Davis, supervisor of the state vehicle inspection program, pointed out much time can be saved if the owner will present the registration slip to the inspecting serviceman or leave it in plain sight in the vehicle.

Davis said the inspection program is not tied in with registration of vehicles, that is, an owner does not have to present an inspection certificate to obtain a new registration.

However, he added, information on the registration form must be transferred to the inspection card, such as owner's name and address, make, model, and year of vehicle, etc.

Mills and Davis expressed concern over the lag in inspections, pointing out less than 45,000 of the more than 500,000 vehicles have been inspected during the first six months of the year.

"The inspection of vehicles must be stepped up immediately," they said, "or we are going to experience a terrific jam towards the end of the year."

They also pointed out motorists who do not have their vehicles inspected prior to December 31 will be issued citations for failure to comply with the law. "This," they added, "could lead to loss of use of vehicles until they have passed inspection."

PFI's Lewiston Sawmill Bounces Back After Future Seemed Uncertain

An uncertain and bleak future faced the sawmill operation of Polatch Forests, Inc. in Lewiston about three years ago. The mill, constructed in 1938 and designed for the large white pine logs available at that time, could hardly be considered efficient in the 1960's when log sizes were so much smaller and prices were so low.

Full operation of the new PFI Jayve veneer and plywood plant near Pierce in 1965 added to the complexity of the Lewiston situation because many logs formerly available from the Hearquarters area were now being utilized by the Jayve plant, leaving a higher percentage of small rough logs for the saw mill in Lewiston.

Amid rumors that the mill in Lewiston was facing severe employment cutbacks or even closure, a special sawmill study committee was named and set for the first time in July of 1966. Company management from Clearwater Unit level through sawmill supervisory staff level was represented along with representatives from engineering, accounting, cost analysis, and hourly employees.

Assigned objectives were fourfold: (1) determine the total long-range timber volumes (and quality) available; (2) determine the best location for future production facilities; (3) assess the complexity of the Lewiston sawmill; (4) recommend a course of action.

Extensive study by the committee, including consultation with company foresters and inspection of many other sawmills, led to the conclusion that about 100,000 board feet of logs per day were available to the mill, that Lewiston should continue to be the location of the mill, and that a whole new concept in sawmilling was needed to effectively solve the problem of decreasing efficiency.

Company management accepted the committee's recommendation that equipment known as Chip-N-Saw be installed in combination with a double-arbor edger type gang mill. By May of 1967, Chip-N-Saw manufacturers had modified their standard machine to specifications suggested by the committee.

The resulting cant, if eight inches wide or smaller, passes through a double arbor edger (multiple circular saws) and is reduced to boards or dimension lumber. Larger cants are automatically sent to a gang saw where they too end up as boards or dimension.

The new equipment replaced one headrig, leaving four. The first result was a remarkable 20 percent increase in total mill output with no increase in personnel—a substantial improvement in efficiency. The new equipment is processing about three times as many logs as the replaced headrig had been handling.

Designed specifically for the small log (16 inches in diameter or less), the Chip-N-Canter has increased production because fewer small logs must now be processed by the older, less efficient equipment.

An important bonus produced by the new equipment is an increase in utilization of raw material—timber. Sawmill instructions to loggers supplying the Lewiston mill now specify cutting logs down to 6-inch diameters instead of the previous 8 inches.

The Chip-N-Canter should also allow increased tree thinning operations as a result of improved quality of timber stands because now some of the smaller trees removed in such operations can economically be sawed into a straight line.

Modernization of the sawmill, not limited to the Chip-N-Canter installation, continues. Extensive remodeling of the conveyor system to move slabs, edgings, and other chips (wood residues) is nearing completion. The old system of belts and chains had been added to over the years until it totaled about 1 1/2 miles in length in a straight line.

The new system will total only about 3/4 mile. The actual reduction is more than might appear at first glance, however, because much of the new system is of the vibrating type as opposed to the "endless" belt or chain it replaced. The wood residue is moved along by vibration in a metal trough rather than by being carried on an endless moving belt, the length of which is actually twice the distance the residue is moved.

Other improvements include rebuilding two lumber trimmers. They now handle more lumber than three trimmers did before. Approval has also been given for the installation of new modern equipment now being used.

The objective is to complete the modernization project next year. The decision to upgrade the Lewiston sawmill rather than build a new one elsewhere and the subsequent installation of the Chip-N-Canter equipment has been the beginning of a whole new era for the Clearwater Unit sawmill.

"The future is much brighter now than it was three years ago," a company spokesman said. "Of course, the company is pleased that our committee came up with the recommendations it did and that the management group followed through with them."

"There is no question that the Lewiston-Clarkston community would have been adversely affected if a course of curtailed operations had been followed. The economic factor of a reservoir of talented lumbermen in this community, in addition to the possibility of a practical modernization of the project, a reality," the spokesman added.

SCIENCE TOPICS

MAN STOPS APING APE DARWIN'S idea that man's physical form evolved from that of other animals is now generally accepted. Now, many scientists are beginning to think that much human behavior has also evolved from animal origins.

A Rutgers University anthropologist says many clues to man's behavior can be found in studies of the lower animals. He also says that there must have been such an evolution because in the same way there was a transition from apes to manlike form there must have been a similar gradual change, in functions, from apes to manlike.

LOBELINE SULFATE, a drug used in smoking clinics throughout the country as a smoking deterrent, did not decrease the frequency of cigarette smoking when tested with human subjects, reports a team of University of Michigan pharmacologists. In this study the subjects did not know what drug they were being given but their smoking behavior was being monitored. The drug had no effect on the number of cigarettes smoked by the subjects who were given five consecutive days, the dosage recommended for use as a smoking deterrent.

DIET INDEPENDENCE an nature alone as a source of food will lessen as we learn to synthesize food by manufacturing protein, reports Votator, Louisville. However, the company says that any synthetic foods developed will probably be used to supplement our diets rather than to replace food in them. It points out that some companies are now synthesizing a number of products in non-food areas that were originally produced by nature, such as man-made fibers.

TINY LEAD PELLETS are helping a University of Chicago physician gain new knowledge about small-artery disease. Thousands of the pellets, which are as small as the eye of a needle, are injected into the artery supplying the bowel of a test animal. They lodge in the tiny arteries of the bowel wall.

causing a decrease in flood flow. The animals are then examined by x-ray. The physician hopes that his observations will yield information relating to the effect of arteriosclerosis, which also leads to decreased blood flow.

THE CHEMISTRY and genetics of the living cell are being studied by two biologists at the University of Pennsylvania with a specially developed polarized light microscope that has two unique advantages: It can be used to observe structures that can normally be studied only with the electron microscope, and it can be used to observe cells that are still alive and functioning.

They say that the important thing about their approach is that they can study cells without slicing them up, chopping them up, mashing them, or damaging them in other ways.

Jazz Pianist Will Appear At Lewiston Arts Festival!
A native of Spokane who has become a nationally famous jazz pianist will appear July 20 during the second annual Arts Festival at Lewiston.

Arrangements for Rowles' appearance during the Lewiston Festival were made by Bryan Hopkins, Lewiston jazz musician and leader of the Gentleman of Note, a Lewiston jazz band.

Rowles and his quintet will present a separate section of the program during the jazz concert.

Rowles and his quintet appear frequently in the Los Angeles area and he is an arranger and pianist for Henry Mancini.

He is also collaborating on jazz music with Johnny Mercer.

The festival opens July 18 with an appearance by the Antique Theatre of Buhl, Idaho, a professional group.

The festival will close July 29-30 with appearances by the City Center Jazz Ballet of New York. The Joffrey troupe also appeared at Lewiston last year.

Joffrey will present a lecture demonstration at Moscow July 31.

Card of Thanks
The Family of Josephine Knapps wishes to thank the doctors, nurses, and sisters of St. Joseph's Hospital for the care they gave her in her last illness.

Motor Vehicle Division records show motorcycle registrations are increasing each year.

The motoring public has to accept them as "rightful highway users", the superintendent said.

Records also show that as motorcycle registrations increase so do the number of accidents involving two-wheelers.

Three fatalities where victims were riding motorcycles have been recorded in Idaho through June 10.

"The State Police is suggesting this lights-on program as a possible means of preventing and reducing vehicle-cyclist accidents and we seek the cooperation of all motorcycle operators," Hand concluded.

Cyclists Should Burn Headlights At All Times
State Police Sgt. L. Clark Hand today suggested that motorcyclists burn their cycle headlights at all times when traveling on highways.

"These two-wheelers are hard to pick out during daylight, and especially twilight hours," said Hand.

"It is our belief that if the cyclists will cooperate in this lights-on program that we may be able to reduce the number of motorcycle accidents," the superintendent added.

Hand noted that surrounding states have laws which require motorcycle operators to burn their headlights at all times when driving on public highways.

The superintendent said "It will also greatly aid our music program. Instead of band and chorus alternating every other day as in the past it will allow both to be scheduled classes every day," he added.

"This schedule will also allow us to expand the commercial offering of the school," he said.

"Typing II and Journalism can be worked into the schedule. It means that a student should be able to get every subject which he wishes to take during his high school career without the cost of a summer school session."

Change In School Hours Should Aid Students This Year
Considerable study and work has been done in planning a new schedule which will help students in their school careers.

Two youngsters from Idaho will compete with teenagers throughout the country early next year.

The 17th annual nationwide contest is sponsored by the Lincoln-Mercury dealers throughout the country in cooperation with the U. S. Jaycees.

Competition at the National Auto Road-E-O consists of an in-depth test on rules of the road, a series of behind the wheel tests over a difficult obstacle course, an observed drive in city traffic and personal interviews.

The five-day program will conclude with an awards banquet at Cobo Hall in Detroit at which the six winners will be named.

The National JayCee Safe-Driving Auto Road-E-O was begun in 1952. Since then, nearly four million teenagers have participated.

Pea Harvest Reaching Peak; Wheat Harvest Beginning

Harvesting of the 1968 seed pea crop in the Genesee area is rapidly approaching the peak of operations, reported both Agroneed Seed Company and Genesee Union Warehouse Wednesday afternoon.

In addition to the pea harvest many local farmers are already harvesting operation on the barley and wheat fields which are being brought to maturity by the hot, dry conditions which have prevailed over the Northwest.

Genesee Union's assistant manager, Frank Bauman, said Wednesday that 7,221,500 pounds of peas have been delivered to the local co-op as of Tuesday evening.

Bauman reported that wheat was just getting a good start as of Tuesday evening. He said the warehouse records showed that 67,232 bushels have been delivered which is approximately five per cent of the total wheat harvest expected in 1968.

Idaho fish planting operations shift gears and give the big push to some 200 mountain lakes, many of which can be reached only by foot. Lowland lakes and reservoirs are stocked for the year in most cases, and repeat plantings in streams is determined by fishing pressure.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. My first wife passed away three years ago. Our 10-year-old son never received social security benefits, because she had not worked for several years before she died. Can I now get benefits for my son on his mother's social security work?

A. Under the old law, there were circumstances under which no benefits could be paid to survivors of a woman worker unless she had worked under social security for at least 1 1/2 years in the last 3 years, prior to her death. This requirement has been removed.

Q. My wife died 3 years ago leaving me with 2 small children. I received a check from social security to help pay the funeral expenses. I was told that nothing could be paid to the children, because my wife had not worked in the last two years before her death. Has the new law changed anything that might help us now?

A. The new law removes the requirement that a woman must have worked under social security for at least 1 1/2 years in the last 3 years before her death, in order to pay benefits to her surviving minor children. You should contact your social security office as soon as possible.

Success in life depends upon persistent effort, upon the improvement of moments more than upon any other one thing.

Mountain Lakes of Idaho

Idaho's back country contains thousands of scenic mountain lakes varying in size from one acre to over 300 acres. The Idaho Fish and Game Department has cataloged and evaluated over 1000 of these lakes; and a fish planting program started in 1947 has insured excellent fishing.

Fishing in small, cold, clear high country lakes can be extremely frustrating, but when the trout decide to feed, limits can be filled in short order. Most species of trout including the beautiful California Golden and the native Cutthroat, are found in the mountain lakes of Idaho.

Access to the back country lakes range from direct paved road to long arduous hikes of 20 miles or more. Some of the more inaccessible lakes can only be reached by cross-country foot travel.

One need not be a fisherman to enjoy the mountain lake country of Idaho. Most of these bodies of water lie in rugged alpine basins and provide points of interest for photographers, wildlife enthusiasts, rock hounds, and nature lovers.

To become an able and successful man in any profession, three things are necessary, nature, study and practice.

INSURANCE FOR THE BEST
With 10 major companies serving the Western states of Arizona, California, Hawaii, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, and Washington, Idahoans can make sure that their lives, homes, personal belongings, cars, and even their animals are insured to maximum capacities.

In a virtually every field and aspect, insurance is showing substantial increase in Idaho. Figures from the SUNSET Western Market publication reveal that life and medical care policies are showing a highly intensive coverage.

Since the Westerner drives more miles than any other car owner in the nation, auto insurance has also been increased. In 3 years, premiums showed a 31.9 per cent gain in the Western states, which was well ahead of the 22.2 percent gain for the nation.

Late-beginning casualty insurance figures also continue to climb in the West and show that two-thirds of the people are protected by health insurance, over 20,000,000 in the 8 states.

Insurance is a stabilizing factor in the economy of Idaho, both as a supplier of funds to individuals, businesses and communities, and as a steady employment force.

Cougar Kill Drops
The number of cougar killed last year by hunters and trappers was 47 animals less than the year before, according to data compiled for 83 of the 84 conservation officer districts. This is the fourth smallest take for the big Idaho cats since the bounty was removed in 1959-60.

Half the things that people do not succeed in, are through fear of making the attempt.

Idaho Potatoes To Bring Higher Prices This Fall

BOISE— Idaho potatoes are expected to bring higher prices this fall than they did in 1967. The acreage is smaller this year, prices are presently higher than they were last summer, and stocks of frozen french fries are less than they were a year ago and an economist of the University of Idaho extension service said today. Quentin D. Banks, marketing information specialist, said production prospects indicate the fall crop in both Idaho and the nation will be harvested from fewer acres in 1968 than in 1966 or 1967.

The Idaho harvest was estimated to be 294,000 acres compared with 304,000 last year. These estimates were made as of July 1 by the USDA Statistical Reporting Service. The economist said in the August issue of "Economic Facts for Idaho Agriculture" that this year's crop is later than usual and there have been reports of unfavorable growing conditions in several areas. The crop was behind schedule in July. If conditions are favorable through September Banks said, some producers may have to choose between trying for maximum yields and trying to stop growth, hasten maturity and reduce the risk of quality loss because of possible damage by the frost at harvest.

"Most growers," he said, "are likely to have higher returns from a moderately large crop of high quality potatoes than from a bumper crop that has quality problems."

Large harvests of most Idaho agricultural products are expected, the report said. The crop of winter and spring wheat is estimated at 55,150,000 bushels, slightly below last year but 39 per cent above average and the second largest on record. Acreage is two percent less than last year. Yield per acre is estimated at 44 bushels. On a national scale, wheat production is forecast at 1,588 million bushels. This is four per cent more than 1967 and 29 per cent above average.

Idaho is expected to produce nearly 25 million bushels of barley; four percent less than last year. Yield of 46 bushels per acre is in prospect. Production of corn, oats, barley, and mixed grain is expected to be greater than last year. Hay acreage is slightly up but yields are expected to be below 1967 for a total of 3,400,000 tons, eight percent less than the previous year.

Feed grain supplies throughout the country are expected to be plentiful through next winter.

Success doesn't happen. It is organized, pre-empted, captured by concentrated common sense!
 Francis E. Willard

MEDICAL ACADEMY PROPOSED BY ARMED SERVICES SOLON TO MEET DOCTOR SHORTAGE

The establishment of a military medical academy, to train physicians for the armed services and also to help ease the nation's general shortage of doctors has been proposed by Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., a high-ranking member of the House Armed Services Committee. Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford was asked to appoint an interdepartmental group to examine in detail the proposed "West Point for Doctors." The academy would utilize existing federal resources in metropolitan Washington to give four years of training to qualified candidates who would agree to enter the armed services (seven years has been suggested) in return for their medical education.

A farmer couldn't tell his two horses apart. He tried cutting the tail off one and man of the other—but this didn't work because they both grew back. Then he had a blinding inspiration. He measured them. The black horse was two inches taller than the white horse.
