The Quest of the Golden Goose

In hunting for a business or occupation most people are really hunting for a goose that will lay golden eggs.

The commonest aspiration is to so construct and devise a business enterprise that it becomes almost automatic—so that when the play-fever touches the blood one may "let go," sit at one side, and watch for the daily golden egg with a certainty of its appearance.

Every business man has, in his store or enterprise or venture, a possible golden goose, a present golden gosling. It rests with himself alone whether he will raise the bird or not—whether it will arrive at goldengoosehood or perish from neglect and ignorance.

These birds require much attention, much care — and they must be fed, if you would have them grow to goosehood; and their natural diet is advertising.

No golden goose was ever raised to a "working age" if the food was stinted, or denied, or adulterated or substituted.

The merchant who "knows things" ... silver in food ... after many ... silver will return in golden ...

Such investments may require a little faith—but more common sense.

Is Your Business Enterprise Progressing Towards Golden Goosehood?

TYPHOID FEVER.

Sources of This Dangerous and Prevalent Disease.

... It is the scourge of the larger cities of this country, the late summer and autumn are the seasons when it is most prevalent. ... Water is the usual vehicle for typhoid germs, as is well known, and probably all great outbreaks of the disease in cities are due to an infected water supply. ...

It is the train of little luxuries—hot baths, barber's services, library, private smoking compartments, clothes pressing service, all the little things that add to the comfort of a journey. Its beautiful observation car is a revelation. The dining car service is superior, the menu varied and satisfying. From end to end it is pleasing, comfortable and beautiful—a train which makes friends and keeps them.
