My dear Dr. Robinson:-

In our relation of student and instructor, having completed the course in Psychiana, I trust I am not presuming too much in addressing you here.

Psychiana is truly remarkable in my opinion and has revolutionized my life; the benefits derived from it are immeasurable so far and my outlook on life has been entirely changed. I therefore feel deeply grateful to you for your instruction.

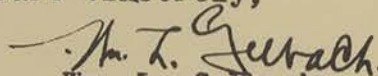

It has always been my disposition to extend favors and preferred during all my life to give rather than to ask. In studying Psychiana it has been my great desire to be able to extend to those in need, the power of healing and while the benefits of your instruction have been so great that I am receiving much that I didn't have before, yet it would be my extreme pleasure and utmost delight to be able to extend assistance in the manner of healing, for that would, in my opinion, be giving something that is real, and acceptable in a time when such is a need indeed.

My purpose in writing you is to ascertain whether you might have a suggestion to give me. This has been so much of a burning desire with me that perhaps with your further assistance or suggestion, I may attain to that which would make me extremely happy, - to extend to someone in real need an assistance which would be at such a time, of tremendous import.

Possibly I am asking something of you that I shouldn't, but this desire, let me repeat, is and has been upon my heart and therefore this letter.

I shall greatly appreciate a reply from you and thank you most kindly.

Yours sincerely,

Wm. L. Gelbach
