

To My Students

— :: —

The volume of personal students' mail coming to me is very large—you will appreciate this, of course. Every letter, though, addressed to me personally from students, and inquiring for further instruction or light regarding the Lessons is given my personal attention. It is manifestly impossible for me to personally sign every letter, so this is done by my secretaries. Please don't think, though, that because my personal signature does not appear on some students' letters, they have not been given my personal attention, when I am in Moscow. When I am away, my secretaries, who are entirely qualified to do so, answer your letters, and they know me well enough to answer them exactly as I would.

Cordially and sincerely,
FRANK B. ROBINSON.
