

This photo was taken by Pfc. Zalmanoff, a celebrated news-photographer, but now in the armed services of his country. It was taken in my down-town study in Moscow. On the bookcase is a picture of my son, a sweet boy if ever there was one. He is 21 years old, and is an Ensign flying a torpedo-bomber in the U. S. Naval Reserve. The soldier on the wall is Brig. General Chrisman, a close personal friend. He passed on a few years ago. He was loved by all.