Dr. Frank B. Roberson, Moscow, publisher and founder of "Psychiana," must appear in the office of Immigration Inspector Stewart in Spokane Wednesday for deportation proceedings brought against him there.

When contacted here, Dr. Roberson reported that he had nothing to say at this time.

Dr. Roberson was tried in federal court here in May on charges of falsifying information in a passport application, the accusation being that he swore he was born in America, while the immigration authorities said he was born in England. He was acquitted after a four-day trial, in which the government brought witnesses from all parts of the United States, and one from England.

The present deportation proceedings are based on the same contention, that he entered the country illegally at Eastport, Idaho, in 1935 without a visa.

Of Deportation

Assistant United States District Attorney Frank Griffin said Saturday night he was told by S. H. Stewart, federal immigration inspector at Spokane, that Frank Roberson, Moscow newspaper publisher and widely known author of "Psychiana"—a religious philosophy—was recently arrested on a deportation warrant.

"Stewart told me," Griffin asserted, "that Roberson posted a bond to secure his freedom and that he would come up for hearing either in Spokane, or Moscow, within a few days."

Robinson, recently acquitted by the Idaho federal court on a three-count indictment charging falsification of passport information, is charged with illegal entry into the United States from England.

He is one of the outstanding business men of the northwest, federal attorneys said, and from an idea that was conceived while he labored for years as a drug store clerk he has built a large fortune.

Robinson is the author of courses in religious philosophy that are widely read.

Griffin explained that the United States district attorney's offices have nothing to do with immigration hearings.

The deportation proceedings against Dr. Frank B. Robinson of Moscow, Idaho, may be a long-drawn-out affair.

A hearing in offices of the immigration service was concluded Friday, and all evidence, sealed, was forwarded to the department in Washington, D. C.

Should the department rule that he is subject to deportation he has recourse, after being taken into custody, to habeas corpus proceedings. If his release on that ground should be denied, he has right of appeal to the circuit court of appeals at San Francisco. Failing there, he has a right to carry his case to the United States supreme court.

Dr. Robinson has an American wife and two children. It is possible that he will go the limit in fighting deportation, should the department in Washington hold against him. His attorney is Edward W. Robertson.
