

Camera Proves Annual Stag Party at Hotel Boise Turns Out to Be "Ducky" Affair

THERE'S A "GATHERIN' OF THE CLAN" about once a year down Hotel Boise way when those two big game hunters, Ralph Breshears and Virgil McGee, give a stag dinner party for more than a hundred men from Boise and other parts of Idaho and serve to each and everyone present one of the web-footed victims of their

Victor Morris of Latah County is telling Postmaster Harry Yost all about a decoy duck and when Mr. Yost asked him, "What is the difference between a duck?" we heard him say, "One leg is longer or else the tail!" It is apparent from the next picture that politics were dropped at the dinner party as Governor Charles C. Gossett
