Dear Todd Sullivan,

I believe I now have three copies of your articles several years ago in Railfan Magazine, which attests to the good distribution your writing has received. I refer to The Camas Prairie. In fact your maps were a real help to me as I was exploring the CP last summer.

How come? I was completing the last few dangling ends of research on "The Kettle Valley and Its Railways" that Pacific Fast Mail published last November. In the area I took the time to discover a bit of the CP. It intrigued me and, so far as I know, since no book has been published on the CP it is going to be my next project.

Possibly you could help me some on this? Do you have some of your own photos you'd be willing to have as candidates for the book? Or do you have other material, not of your own making, that you likewise would be willing to let me use? Or, a final question, could you direct me to any people for photographs or historic material on the Camas Prairie?

PFM expects to do the book provided it is adequate in size and material I receive would be for single publication only and with due credit given as to its source. What arrangements would you make for material of your's that is used?

Anyway, fine articles, your's. I enjoyed them and hope you someday do some more.

Sincerely,

Hal Riegger,
