

June 1, 1984

Dear Todd,

I just cannot understand some of you fellows: I'm having the same trouble with another rail photographer. It's too bad, because, like you, his photos are excellent.

It was last October, 1983 that I sent you a list of photos of the Camas Prairie I'd like to get from you; also enclosed was a check for $30 as down payment, which you cashed.

Another letter inquiring about progress February of this year. And now it's the 1st of June.

I'm sorry, but I cannot work on a book like this. I have a deadline with the publisher which I must observe, and he can count on me to do that.

Either the photos or the check back!

And I mean right away.

Yours,

Hal Riegger,
