"Taking Care of What We've Got"

Moscow, Idaho
October 11-13, 1983

UNIVERSITY of IDAHO
WILDERNESS RESEARCH CENTER

College of Forestry, Wildlife & Range Sciences

"Most of the areas to be set aside as wilderness will be staked out within the next few decades. From then on, the fate of those areas will rest solely upon their management. This is a sobering responsibility for resource professionals, and future generations will be our critics."

John Hendee, 1974, Western Wildlands

FOR WHOM IS THIS WORKSHOP DESIGNED?

For almost twenty years since the passage of the Wilderness Act of 1964, attention and debate have focused on the size of wilderness and allocation of roadless areas on federal lands. Now it is clearly time to direct concern to protection and proper use of wilderness areas already established.

With recreational use of wilderness growing steadily and sharply, management poses a major challenge — not only for federal administrators, but for citizen groups and industry as well. The nation will need the best available ideas and progressive interdisciplinary management to cope with heightening demands on wilderness and the need to maintain it in a healthy natural condition.

The First National Wilderness Management Workshop is designed to meet the challenge, to air and clarify key issues and problems implicit in managing wilderness — in "taking care of what we've got." It will provide a public forum for full participation, with open discussion and expression of divergent viewpoints, in an atmosphere of good will and mutual respect. The workshop will serve the interests of: decision makers and resource managers of agencies with wilderness responsibility (Bureau of Land Management, Fish and Wildlife Service, Forest Service, National Park Service); state fish and wildlife officials; state tourism officials; user groups in mining, grazing, outfitting, recreation, and citizen organizations concerned with ecological and environmental protection.

TIME AND PLACE

The Workshop will begin at 9:00 a.m., Tuesday, October 11 at the University of Idaho, and end at 3:00 p.m. Thursday, October 13, 1983. Five optional pre-workshop wilderness weekend trips are also offered, leaving from and returning to Moscow October 8 and 10th, respectively.

THE WORKSHOP FORMAT

The workshop is geared to interaction and openness, the examination of practical experiences in wilderness management and a review of issues and conflicts in hopes of resolving or reducing them. The emphasis is on participation, rather than on listening to written presentations.

Invited presentations, panels, small group discussions as well as an "information exchange" where all attendees can gather and swap ideas and information will provide for maximum interaction. The following major wilderness issues will be discussed:

- Wilderness Wildlife. What are the special management needs for game species — for rare and endangered species? How should predators be managed in wilderness? What is the fitting role of hunting?
- Managing Fire. When and why should it be allowed? Should it be used? What are the wildlife, aesthetic and ecological factors in wilderness fire?
- Insects, Disease, and Exotic Species. When and how should they be controlled? Or should they?
- Wilderness Access and Development. Is there too much of it? Or too little? What standards can determine appropriate and inappropriate levels? Will state-by-state wilderness legislation cause serious exceptions?
- Recreational Outfitters. Who are they? What are their responsibilities? What roles do they play (or should play) in wilderness conservation and education?
- Conflict in Consumptive Uses. What are the viewpoints of mining, grazing, airplane and motorboat users of wilderness? Do they, in fact, seriously conflict with other users, or with wilderness itself? Or can they achieve compatibility?
- Public Information and Education. How much does the American public understand about the need for restraint and respect in wilderness use? How can the public be reached and involved? Whose responsibility is it?
- Wilderness in the East. Does it face special management problems? To what degree should standards for one national system prevail?
- Wilderness in Alaska. Our 49th state embraces more classified wilderness than the rest of the country combined. What are the special problems? Opportunities?
- Research Update. What have we learned from research about the behavior of wilderness users and managing their impacts, about the effectiveness of management strategies, about communicating with wilderness users, and more? What research information is available?

"Recreation may be one use of wilderness, but not the most important use by a long shot... Many resource professionals regard wilderness as 'non-management', when wilderness actually requires intensive and committed management of a type it does not now widely receive."

Michael Frome
in correspondence with Max Peterson

WHO ARE THE SPEAKERS?

The initial list of speakers and panelists includes the following:

- Senator James McClure, Chairman, Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources
- R. Max Peterson, Chief, USDA-Forest Service
- Russell E. Dickenson, Director, National Park Service
- Joyce Kelly, Chief, Recreation, Cultural and Wilderness Resources, Bureau of Land Management
- Arnold Bolle, Vice President, The Wilderness Society
- Rupert Cutler, Senior Vice President, National Audubon Society
- Destry Jarvis, Chairman, Alaska Coalition
- William Worf, Wilderness Consultant, USDA-Forest Service, retired
- Jerry Conley, Director, Idaho Department of Fish and Game
- Don Dexter, Director, Wyoming Department of Game and Fish
- Roger Contor, Alaska Regional Director, National Park Service
- Robert C. Lucas, Project Leader, INT Wilderness Management Unit, USFS
- George H. Stankey, Scientist, INT Wilderness Management Unit, USFS
- Jack R. Cole, President, National Forest Recreation Association

Others will include wilderness managers and spokesmen from mining, grazing, recreation, tourism and outfitting.

PRE-WORKSHOP FIELD TRIPS

Five three-day field trips are optional, but they will enhance participants' workshop experience. They will visit some of the finest wilderness areas in the Northwest, all within easy reach of Moscow. Transportation will leave Saturday morning, October 8, returning Monday evening, October 10. Trips and rates are listed below:

- Selway-Bitterroot Wilderness, backpacking. Rate $105
- Seven Devils in the Hells Canyon Wilderness, backpacking. Rate $105
- Lower Salmon River, float trip. Rate $185
- Eagle Cap Wilderness, backpacking. Rate $105
- River of No Return Wilderness, special fly-in to Taylor Ranch, field station of the Wilderness Research Center. Rate $130

To facilitate having a wilderness experience, group sizes will be small. Trips will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis. All transportation, equipment and food will be provided, as well as a leader knowledgeable about the area. Detailed information on the trips and what to bring will be sent immediately when registration is received.

"Wilderness is important to the nation and its people. I assure you that the agency will continue to strive to upgrade the wilderness resource in balance with all our resource management tasks. I am committed to that challenge... A great deal of effort has been made to inform visitors, prior to their arrival, on the importance of low-impact camping, clean-up, and establishment of new vegetation on worn sites. Endeavors are starting to pay off and visitor behavior patterns are showing positive results. It is possible to change people's habits."

Max Peterson, in response to Frome

GENERAL INFORMATION

Preregistration: The registration fee is $95 if received before Sept. 15, 1983. The fee is $110 after Sept. 15. Those who register early will receive copies of the complete program and be able to pick up program packets upon arrival at the workshop. The fee includes access to all sessions, workshop materials, keynote luncheon, refreshment breaks, and a copy of the proceedings.

Housing and Meals: A block of rooms has been reserved at a special government rate of $25 single, $30 double, at Cavanaugh's Motor Inn (208-882-1611), at the edge of the University of Idaho campus. Be sure to mention that you are attending the Wilderness Workshop. Housing and meals are the responsibility of the registrant. Reservations should be made as early as possible. Other nearby motels include University Inn-Best Western (208-882-0550), Hillcrest Motel (208-882-7579), Mark IV Motor Inn (208-882-7557), Motel 6 (208-882-6639), and Royal Motor Inn (208-882-2581). Shuttle service at the Moscow-Pullman or Spokane Airports can be arranged with the motels.

Location: Moscow is located in northwestern Idaho, 85 miles south of Spokane, Washington. It is served directly by Cascade Airways and Horizon Airways, both with flights from major cities of the Northwest.

For more information: Write or call Dr. Edwin E. Krumpe, Wilderness Research Center, University of Idaho, Moscow, ID 83843. Phone 208-885-7911.

PROFESSIONAL STAFF

Dr. Edwin E. Krumpe, Assistant Professor of Wildland Recreation Management; Director, Wilderness Research Center.

Michael Frome, Visiting Associate Professor of Wildland Recreation Management; Conference Program Chairman.

Dr. Janet Bishop, College of Forestry, Wildlife and Range Sciences, Continuing Education Director; Workshop Coordinator.

Dr. Ray Karr, Director of Information, U.S. Forest Service Region 1; Program Consultant.
