WILDERNESS CENTER HAS YEAR OF UNPRECEDENTED GROWTH

BROADCAST

(Moscow)--The recently released annual report of the University of Idaho Wilderness Research Center...which aims to encourage interdisciplinary research on the wilderness and wilderness user...calls 1975 a "year of unprecedented growth"...and tells of plans to broaden the center's efforts in the future. Besides formation of a Technical Board to establish formal objectives, policies and responsibilities for the five-year-old center... 1975 saw 10 research projects underway...continuing summer programs for undergraduates at the university's Taylor Ranch field station in the Idaho Primitive Area...and a successful summer backpacking trip for wildland recreation management students across the wilderness area to acquaint them with the wilderness environment. Dean John Ehrenreich...of the College of Forestry, Wildlife and Range Sciences...directs the center.

STUDENT MUSICIANS WIN HONORABLE MENTION

(Moscow)--Five University of Idaho music students were awarded an honorable mention recently in the 30th annual Coleman Chamber Music Auditions at Pasadena, California. Coached by U-I associate music professor Robert Probasco, the Faure Woodwind Players competed against 11 other chamber music ensembles...and were the only group not from the Los Angeles area to be honored. The student quintet has previously toured southern Idaho and Missoula, Montana.
