SUBJECT: Taylor Ranch deed and grazing permits

I've given Nancy a copy of the warranty deed for Taylor Ranch and property map for your files. Except for water rights and ditch rights-of-ways, there's no mention in the deed of grazing rights, mining rights, etc. I've reviewed the records I have concerning USFS grazing permits for the field station. From the early 1970's through 1982, the Big Creek District (now Krassel District) granted the field station a special use grazing permit for 4 head on the south side of Big Creek adjacent to the field station for the entire year. In 1990, a short term permit was granted during the period the National Guard was moving the Lanham cabin to the field station. These all were special use permits with specific periods and stock limits for stock used for domestic purposes of inholdings. So there is no allotment attached to the field station that I can discover. So I don't think we need worry about losing any rights by not grazing stock off the field station or proving up on any gold mines.

- * Discussion of the organization of pre-registration advising.
 - * Other agenda items from the faculty.
2. A memorandum from Jan Mason Rauk, Associate Director, Human Resources Office, addresses inquiries and concerns about leave taken and reported. She suggests that we all read section 4820, especially 4820 C-1e and 4820 K in the Faculty-Staff Handbook.
 3. From now until 17 April, according to New Student Services, high school seniors and transfer students will be visiting various departments and attending selected classes. Kathreen will collect daily schedule routines from each of us so she will know who is aboard and who is not for visiting these students. New Student Services has been very good about giving us advance notice.
