Frank:

Here are the descriptions (appendix A) to go with the manuscript I sent to you earlier. There undoubtedly are a few typo's in the text, but I will take care of them when you send back any suggestions for changes. I have one figure in the text which was quickly drawn by my amatuer hand; I figure you can get someone to finish it off more effectively than I can. That also goes for the two figures I included in the main manuscript.

I am now finishing up the maps and will soon send them on to you. You will want to get someone to ink in the type names on the mylar overlays. The acetate overlays are pretty much an experiment and you may want to redo them using a better color process. As long as they still convey the same information I care not how they are done.

Thanks for your patience and I will keep working. Say, you don't want to buy a new computer do you?
