

alienate

to give up the liberty to exercise one or more natural liberties to agree to give up the exercise of a natural liberty. see also inalienable, unalienable accept to commit to tolerate and to not-oppose that which one is said to accept. One can accept a decision, policy, etc. without ~~agreeing~~^{expressly} ~~to~~ with it proactively. This is to say that the concept of accepting has the quality of subcontrariness rather than the quality of agreement.

see abridged glossary for final wording acceptance

The act of accepting something. The concept of acceptance has the quality of subcontrariness rather than the quality of agreement.

antisocial

descriptive of behavior which is disruptive and harmful (or potentially so) to the functioning of a group or Society.

asocial

without regard to Society or social issues benefit

a satisfaction resulting from some action, see also ^{anti}~~anti~~social benefit, social benefit, interest-benefit

business

or Enterprise

a commercial enterprise undertaken for the purpose of ~~profits~~ obtaining ~~a~~ profit from its activities.

(derived from Black's Law Dictionary (definition))

business competition

The social dynamic of interacting commercial activities carried out by business competitors

Competition: add see also: business competition business competitors

two or more sellers attempting to sell to the same buyer such that only one of the sellers can conduct a commercial transaction with the buyer.

business entity

The Object that subsists in ^{the interacting} ~~the~~ enterprise activities of a designated aggregate of people plus all tangible and intangible assets and liabilities associated with those ~~enterprises~~ and ~~their~~ interactions activities